Transactions between related parties. To prevent tax evasion or avoidance, Member States can choose to take measures to ensure that, in respect of the supply of goods or services involving related parties as defined by the Member State, the taxable amount is to be the open market value. Member States can only do this if at least one of the parties involved does not have a full right to deduct VAT. "Open market value" means the full amount that, to obtain the goods or services in question at that time, a customer at the same marketing stage at which the supply of goods or services takes place, would have to pay, under conditions of fair competition, to a supplier at arm's length within the territory of the Member State in which the supply is subject to tax. Where no comparable supply of goods or services can be ascertained, "open market value" means the following: (1) in respect of goods, an amount that is not less than the purchase price of the goods or of similar goods or, in the absence of a purchase price, the cost price, determined at the time of supply, or (2) in respect of services, an amount that is not less than the full cost to the taxable person of providing the service.

C. Goods in the Single Market

On 1 January 1993, the Single Market was introduced in the EU. Under the rules of the Single Market, goods may move freely between Member States without hindrance, including customs controls. As a result, the concepts of "import" and "export" don't apply to cross-border trade of goods between Member States. For trade between taxable persons, cross-border supplies of goods between Member States are called "intra-Community supplies" and the acquisition of those goods in the Member State of arrival are called "intra-Community acquisitions." This is different for supplies made to private individuals and other nontaxable persons.

Imports and exports. In the EU, the term "export" applies to the supply of goods exported from a Member State to any country outside the EU (also referred to as Third Countries). The term "import" applies to goods imported into a Member State from any country outside the EU.

After goods are imported into the EU, they are in "free circulation," which means that they may travel within the EU without further payment of customs duties or further border controls.

Intra-Community supplies of goods to nontaxable persons. "Nontaxable persons" are any persons or legal entities that do not perform any economic activity. They are usually not registered for VAT. In the EU, VAT is generally charged on supplies of goods made to nontaxable persons using the "origin principle," which means that VAT applies in the Member State where the goods are shipped from, not the rate that would apply in the Member State where the supplier is established (if different from the Member State of where the goods are shipped from) or the customer's Member State (the Member State where the goods are shipped to). For example, if a Danish tourist buys a dress in a shop in Paris, she pays VAT at the French standard rate of 20%, not at the Danish standard rate of 25%, even if the dress is subsequently "exported" to Denmark. However, exceptions to this rule (may) apply for "distance sales of goods," sales of "new means of transport" and sales to "nontaxable legal persons" (see below).

Digital economy. Specific VAT rules apply to cross-border supplies of goods and services sold via the internet (e-commerce) in all EU Member States with effect from 1 July 2021. These new rules apply to all direct sales to nontaxable persons (in practice these are mostly private individuals), but we refer to these rules as e-commerce VAT rules because most of these transactions are conducted via the internet. In general, the place of supply is in the country of consumption, i.e., where the goods are shipped to or where buyer of the services resides, subject to any "use and enjoyment" provisions that may override this rule (see Section D. Services in the Single Market, subsection Effective use and enjoyment below). Therefore:

- For supplies of services made by a nonresident supplier to a business customer (i.e., business-to-business [B2B]), the business customer is responsible for accounting for the VAT due, using the reverse charge.
- For supplies of goods made by a nonresident supplier to a business customer (i.e., B2B), where the goods are transported from another EU Member State, the business purchasing the goods is responsible for accounting for the VAT due, as an intra-Community acquisition. If the goods come from outside the EU, the purchaser may have to report an importation of goods.
- For supplies of goods or services made by a nonresident supplier to a final consumer (i.e., business-to-consumer [B2C]), the supplier is generally responsible for charging and accounting for the VAT due at the rate applicable in the customer's country (unless the supplier's sales fall beneath the distance selling threshold of EUR10,000 with effect from 1 July 2021). This VAT can be reported using a single VAT registration, using a "One-Stop-Shop" mechanism.

For more details about intra-EU distance sales in each Member State, see the relevant chapters.

Effective 1 July 2021, an e-commerce supplier may have a choice of how to account for VAT on its B2C supplies.

Note the place of supply rules in the EU will be amended for B2C services that are streamed or made available virtually (e.g., virtual events or distance learnings). Member states are required to transpose the new obligations by 1 January 2025.

Local VAT registration. A nonresident supplier may choose to register for VAT in each Member State and account for VAT on all supplies made and recover input tax in accordance with local rules (see the Non-established businesses subsection below). Non-EU businesses may be required to appoint a fiscal representative for accounting for the VAT due on these transactions.

For more details about local VAT registrations in each Member State, see the relevant chapters.

One-Stop Shop. Effective 1 July 2021, a supplier can choose to account for the VAT due under the EU One-Stop Shop (OSS), which can be used for intra-EU cross-border supplies of goods and all cross-border supplies of services made to final consumers in the EU. Unlike the previous Mini One-Stop-Shop (MOSS) scheme that applied until 30 June 2021, the OSS is not limited to cross-border supplies of electronic services, telecommunication services and broadcasting services.

The OSS is an electronic portal that allows businesses to:

- Register for VAT electronically in a single Member State for all intra-EU distance sales of goods and for B2C supplies of services.
- Declare and pay VAT due on all supplies of goods and services in a single electronic quarterly return.

The OSS can be used by businesses established in the EU and outside the EU. If a supplier or a deemed supplier decides to register for the OSS, it must declare and pay VAT for all supplies (goods as well as services) that fall under the OSS.

For more details about the operation of the OSS in each Member State, see the relevant chapters.

Import One-Stop Shop. Effective 1 July 2021, the Import One-Stop-Shop (IOSS) scheme applies for B2C distance ales of goods from outside the EU.

Effective 1 July 2021, VAT is due on all commercial goods imported into the EU regardless of their value. The actual supply is subject to VAT in the country where the goods are imported (the country of destination). The IOSS facilitates the declaration and payment of VAT due on these sale of low-value goods (i.e., consignments valued at less than EUR150 per consignment). It allows suppliers selling low-value goods dispatched or transported from a non-EU country to customers in the EU to collect, declare and pay the VAT due. If the IOSS is used, the importation into the EU is exempt from VAT

For more details about the IOSS in each Member State, see the relevant chapters.

The use of the IOSS special scheme is not mandatory. If VAT is not collected via the IOSS scheme, the importation of goods into the EU is subject to import VAT in the country of final destination, and the Member State can decide freely who is liable to pay the import VAT, which could be the customer or the seller (or an electronic interface).

Postal Services and Couriers Scheme. If the IOSS is not used and the customer is liable for the import VAT due on the supply (and importation) of consignments with a small intrinsic value (i.e., less than EUR150), the VAT can be collected using the special scheme for postal services and couriers.

For more details about the special scheme for postal services and couriers in each Member State, see the relevant chapters.

Online marketplaces and platforms. Under the new EU VAT e-commerce rules, effective 1 July 2021, taxable persons that "facilitate" certain B2C sales of goods are deemed to have purchased and then supplied those goods themselves. This means that the single supply from the "underlying" supplier to the final consumer is split into two deemed supplies:

- A supply from the supplier to the facilitator (deemed B2B supply).
- A supply from the facilitator to the final customer (deemed B2C supply). Any intermediation service provided by the facilitator is disregarded for VAT purposes.

This provision does not cover all sales facilitated via the facilitator. It only covers distance sales of goods imported from non-EU jurisdictions in consignments with an intrinsic value not exceeding EUR150. The jurisdiction of residence of the supplier using the facilitator is irrelevant. The supply to the facilitating platform is VAT exempt and the supplies made by that platform follow the e-commerce VAT rules as described above. In addition, the provision also covers sales within the EU, if the supplier is not established within the EU. This applies to both local shipments within one Member State, as well as intra-Community shipments. In both cases, the final customer must be a nontaxable person.

For more details about the rules for online marketplaces in each Member State, see the relevant chapters.

Intra-Community supplies of goods between taxable persons. As mentioned above, "taxable person" (also for the purpose of intra-Community trade) is generally any person or legal entity that is registered for VAT in the EU. Because no customs controls exist anymore between Member States in the Single Market, intra-Community transactions between taxable persons are no longer termed "imports" and "exports" (see Imports and exports above). Instead, they are referred to as "intra-Community acquisitions" and "intra-Community supplies."

In general, EU VAT is charged based on the "destination principle" on cross-border supplies of goods made between taxable persons. Under this principle, 0% VAT is chargeable in the Member State from where the goods are supplied (known as the "Member State of dispatch") and the purchase is taxed as a separate taxable event in the Member State where the goods are delivered (known as the "Member State of arrival").

Intra-Community supplies. An intra-Community supply of goods is "zero-rated," i.e., exempt with credit in the Member State of dispatch. This means that no VAT (or rather, 0% VAT) is chargeable, and the supplier is entitled to deduct VAT paid on purchases connected with the zero-rated supply. The supplier must be able to prove that the goods have been dispatched to a taxable person in another Member State, by establishing that the customer has a valid EU VAT identification number (of a country other than the Member State of dispatch) at the time of the supply. The supplier must also quote the customer's EU VAT registration number, including the country prefix (e.g., BE for Belgium), on its invoices. The evidence required has been harmonized, but still varies among Member States.

Where the goods are transported by or on behalf of the supplier, the supplier must hold at least two items of noncontradictory evidence from the below exhaustive list, issued by two independent parties. At least one item of evidence must relate to the transportation or dispatch of the goods. Where the customer arranges the transportation of the goods, the supplier must hold a written statement from the customer regarding the transportation of the goods (containing specific, required information), as well as at least two items of noncontradictory evidence, meeting the criteria above.

The following evidential documents are included in the exhaustive list:
- Documents relating to the transport or dispatch of the goods, such as a signed CMR document or note, a bill of lading, an airfreight invoice, an invoice from the carrier of the goods (the "transport documents")
- An insurance policy with regard to the transport or dispatch of the goods or bank documents proving payment of the transport or dispatch of the goods
- Official documents issued by a public authority, such as a notary, confirming the arrival of the goods in the Member State of destination and a receipt issued by a warehouse keeper in the Member State of destination confirming the storage of the goods in that Member State (the "other documents")

Many EU Member States consider the above a "safe-harbor rule" and continue to apply their own, often less strict, rules regarding the evidence for zero-rating intra-Community supplies. Information about the evidence required in each Member State is provided in the chapters of the respective EU countries.

Intra-Community acquisitions. An intra-Community acquisition is an acquisition of goods from another Member State by a taxable person. An intra-Community acquisition is taxable both in the Member State that issued the VAT identification number of the business making the acquisition, as well as the Member State of arrival. The first acquisition (under the VAT number of the purchaser) does not apply if the person acquiring the goods can establish that VAT has been accounted for in the Member State of arrival at the rate of VAT applicable in that country.

The acquisition tax is self-assessed by a taxable person as VAT payable. If the acquirer is entitled to recover the VAT on the acquisition as input tax (that is, VAT on purchases), the acquirer may offset the input tax at the same time as declaring the output tax. Consequently, an acquirer that deducts input tax in full does not actually pay any VAT in connection with an intra-Community acquisition.

If a business makes an intra-Community acquisition of goods in a Member State where it is not registered for VAT, it is probably required to register there.

Branch transfers. A transfer of goods between different parts of the same legal entity is not generally treated as a supply for VAT purposes (for example, no VAT is charged on a transfer of goods from a factory to a warehouse owned by the same company within the same Member State). However, this rule does not apply to transfers of own goods across borders within the EU. A taxable person is deemed to make an intra-Community supply and an intra-Community acquisition if this person transfers goods between different parts of a single legal entity that are located in different Member States. For example, a deemed supply and acquisition may occur when goods are moved between branches of the same company located in different countries or when goods are stored in a warehouse in a different country after being manufactured but before being sold. If a deemed acquisition occurs, the person transferring the goods may need to register for VAT in both the Member State of dispatch and the Member State of arrival. Further information about the requirement to register for VAT is listed in the chapters of the respective EU countries.

Certain transfers are excluded from the provision discussed above, either because they are deemed not to be acquisitions (see the subsection below, Transfers deemed not to be acquisitions) or because the supply of the specific goods is exempt from VAT.

Transfers deemed not to be acquisitions. Not all intra-Community movements of own goods qualify as acquisitions. Exceptions include the following transfers:

- Goods to be installed or assembled for a customer in another Member State
- Goods transported to another Member State under the distance-selling rules
- Goods that will be exported outside the EU from another Member State or dispatched to another Member State (that is, the goods are temporarily in the second Member State)
- Goods sent to another Member State for processing (provided that the goods are returned to the Member State of dispatch after processing)
- Goods temporarily used in another Member State for a supply of services made there
- Goods used temporarily (that is, for less than two years) in another Member State, provided that customs duty relief would be available if the goods were imported from outside the EU
- Goods acquired from a person not registered for VAT, unless the goods acquired are a "new means of transport" (see the subsection below, New means of transport) or are subject to excise duties (such as alcohol and tobacco products)

Acquisitions by exempt persons, nontaxable legal persons and flat-rate farmers. Exempt persons, nontaxable legal persons and farmers who account for VAT under a flat-rate scheme are not treated as taxable persons. Consequently, goods acquired by these persons are generally taxed according to the origin principle, that is, in the Member State of dispatch.

However, if a person in one of these categories makes intra-Community acquisitions in excess of EUR10,000 a year (or a higher threshold set by the Member State), it must register for and pay VAT on its acquisitions in the Member State of arrival in the same way as taxable persons, that is, by using the reverse-charge mechanism. However, because a nontaxable or exempt person does not generally deduct input tax, VAT due on intra-Community acquisitions must generally be paid to the VAT authorities. These persons may also choose to be treated as taxable persons even if their acquisitions do not exceed the turnover threshold.

New means of transport. All supplies of "new means of transport" are taxed using the destination principle, that is, in the Member State of arrival, regardless of the status of the vendor or acquirer. Consequently, any person that acquires a new means of transport (see below) from another Member State must account for VAT. Taxable persons account for VAT in the same way as for all other intra-Community acquisitions, that is, by using the reverse-charge provision. Nontaxable persons must pay VAT due to the VAT authorities.

The following are considered to be "means of transport:"

- Boats with a length exceeding 7.5 meters
- Aircraft with a take-off weight exceeding 1,550 kilograms
- Motorized land vehicles with a capacity exceeding 48 cubic centimeters or with power exceeding 7.2 kilowatts that are intended to transport persons or goods

For boats and aircraft not to be treated as "new," both of the following conditions must be met:
- The supply of the goods must be more than three months after the date of their first entry into service.
- They must have sailed more than 100 hours in the case of boats and flown more than 40 hours in the case of aircraft.

For cars not to be treated as "new," both of the following conditions must be met:
- They must be supplied more than six months after the date of first entry into service.
- They must have traveled more than 6,000 kilometers.

Excise products. The supply of excise products (i.e., energy products, alcohol and alcoholic beverages, and manufactured tobacco) is always taxable in the Member State of destination. As a result, nonresident suppliers of excise products may be required to register for VAT there.

Intra-Community transportation of goods. VAT is charged on the intra-Community transport of goods using special rules. VAT is charged by the supplier on transport services provided to nontaxable persons in the Member State where the transportation begins.

For supplies of intra-Community transport services provided to taxable persons, the supplier does not charge VAT if the taxable customer is registered for VAT in a different Member State. Instead, the taxable person (customer) accounts for VAT in the Member State where it is established, using the reverse-charge mechanism.

Quick Fixes. Some of the rules regarding intra-EU trade have been further harmonized. These rules are referred to as the "Quick Fixes" and are applicable from 1 January 2020. Pending introduction of a "definitive" system for the VAT treatment of intra-Community supplies of goods to taxable persons, the EU has adopted these Quick Fixes for intra-Community trade in goods. At the time of preparing this chapter, discussions are ongoing in the EU Council on a definitive VAT system to replace the current "transitional" VAT arrangements, which have been applied since 1993. It has been proposed that this new system should be based on taxation in the country of origin at the rate applicable in the country of destination. However, it is not foreseen that such new rules will be agreed to or adopted in the short term.

The Quick Fixes consist of four adjustments to the EU's VAT rules to provide a short-term solution for specific problems: the VAT treatment of call-off stock, the rules for determining which supplier in a supply chain performs the (zero-rated) intra-Community supply, the evidence required for proving the applicability of the VAT zero rate and the condition that, to benefit from a VAT exemption for the intra-EU supply of goods, the valid VAT identification number of the customer is a requirement.

Call-off stock simplification. Without simplification, call-off stock transferred to another Member State represents a transfer of own goods. Under the simplification, the transportation is linked to the supplier's intra-Community supply of goods to his customer in another EU Member State. This removes the supplier's obligation to register in the Member State where the stock is transferred to and, instead, the customer accounts for local VAT on the intra-Community acquisition there. This simplification is subject to a number of strict conditions.

The simplification applies to a "call-off stock arrangement," i.e., where:
- Stock (own goods) are moved from one Member State to another Member State with a view to their subsequent supply to another taxable person under a call-off agreement.
- The supplier is not established in the Member State of destination.
- The customer is VAT-registered in the Member State of destination.
- The supplier knows the customer's identity and VAT registration number at the time of transfer.
- The supplier maintains a "call-off stock register" and records the transaction on their EC Sales Lists.

Also, goods will have to be supplied from the stock (or returned to the Member State of departure) within a 12-month period.

Where simplification applies, at the time of the "local supply" from the stock, the supplier is deemed to make an intra-Community supply of goods, and the customer is deemed to make an intra-Community acquisition of goods. Special rules apply where the goods are supplied more than 12 months after arrival, returned to the supplier within 12 months, allocated to another customer, supplied to another person, removed to another country or destroyed, lost or stolen.

Chain transactions. In a cross-border chain transaction where goods are supplied multiple times and the goods are transported or dispatched from the location in the EU of the first supplier to a location of the customer in another EU Member State, the zero rate can only be applied to one single supply within that transaction chain. All other supplies are local supplies, either in the Member State of departure of the goods or in the Member State of arrival.

There are two rules for determining which of the suppliers in a chain transaction can apply the zero-rate. These rules only apply to supplies made by an "intermediary operator" which is the supplier within the chain other than the first supplier in the chain who dispatches or transports the goods itself or through a third party acting on its behalf. As a main rule, where the same goods are supplied successively, and those goods are dispatched or transported from one Member State to another Member State directly from the first supplier to the last customer in the chain, the dispatch or transport shall be ascribed only to the supply made to the "intermediary operator." However, the dispatch or transport shall be ascribed only to the supply of goods by the intermediary operator where the intermediary operator has communicated to its supplier the VAT identification number issued by the Member State from which the goods are dispatched or transported.

Two other Quick Fixes concern the list of documents to demonstrate that an intra-Community supply was made, as mentioned above, and the requirement to have the valid VAT identification number of the customer to be allowed to apply the exemption/zero rate to an intra-Community supply.

Triangulation simplification (ABC transactions). A "chain transaction" involves goods that are sold to different parties in a series of transactions but are delivered directly from the first vendor in the chain to the final purchaser in the chain.

If three taxable persons that are registered for VAT in different Member States enter into a chain transaction, special "triangulation" simplification rules may apply. These transactions are sometimes referred to as "ABC transactions." For example, manufacturer A in Spain sells goods to distributor B in France but delivers them directly to B's customer, retailer C in Italy. In these circumstances, the triangulation simplification rules may be applied. Under the normal intra-Community rules, B makes an intra-Community acquisition in C's country in these circumstances. However, under the simplification rules, B may choose not to register for VAT in C's country, and instead, designate C as being responsible for the VAT due. In addition, B must indicate to A that the simplification rules are being applied and include this information on its invoice to C. In some Member States, B may also be required to notify the VAT authorities that it has chosen to use the simplification rule rather than register for VAT there. Following case law of the European Court of Justice, careful consideration must be given to which party is responsible for transporting the goods to determine whether the simplification may be used, because simplified triangulation applies only if the cross-border transport of the goods is arranged between parties A and B.

In some Member States, the triangulation simplification rules do not apply if more than three parties are involved in the chain.

D. Services in the Single Market

As a general rule, business-to-business (B2B) supplies of services are taxed where the customer is located. For business-to-consumer (B2C) supplies of services, as a general rule the place of taxation is where the supplier is established. However, in certain circumstances, these general rules for supplies both to businesses and to consumers do not apply, and specific rules apply to reflect the principle of taxation at the place of consumption. These exceptions concern services such as restaurant and catering services; hiring means of transport; admission to cultural, artistic, sporting, scientific and educational events; and telecommunications, broadcasting and electronic services supplied to consumers.

In general, the following rules apply to services rendered by a taxable person established in the EU:

- If the customer is established in the same Member State as the supplier, the supplier charges VAT on the service at the rate applicable in the supplier's Member State. Member States may, however, apply the domestic reverse-charge mechanism referred to above in relation to supplies of certain services susceptible to fraud, namely gas and electricity services, telecom services and the supply of greenhouse gas emission allowances.
- If the customer is a nontaxable person established in another Member State, the supplier charges VAT on the service at the rate applicable in the supplier's Member State.
- If the customer is a taxable person established in another Member State, the supplier does not charge VAT. The taxable customer accounts for VAT due using the reverse-charge provision at the rate applicable in the customer's Member State.
- If the customer is established outside the EU, the supplier does not charge VAT. The customer may be required to account for VAT in the country where it is established, depending on that country's VAT law.

The following EU VAT rules apply if a person established outside the EU supplies services:

- If the customer is a nontaxable person, the supplier does not charge EU VAT, unless they are "telecommunications, broadcasting and electronically supplied (TBE) services" (see the subsection below, TBE services) or the "use and enjoyment" provision applies (see the subsection below, Effective use and enjoyment). However, the supplier may (also) be required to charge VAT in its own country, depending on that country's VAT law.
- If the customer is a taxable person established in the EU, the supplier does not charge EU VAT. The taxable customer accounts for EU VAT due using the reverse-charge provision at the rate applicable in the customer's Member State. The supplier may also be required to charge VAT in the non-EU country where it is established, depending on that country's VAT law.
- If the customer is established outside the EU, the supplier does not charge EU VAT, unless the "use and enjoyment" provision applies (see the subsection below, Effective use and enjoyment) or other exceptions apply for such as restaurant and catering services; hiring of means of transport; and admission to cultural, artistic, sporting, scientific and educational events. However, the supplier may be required to charge VAT in its country, depending on that country's VAT law.

Reverse charge. To equalize treatment for the supply of services between Member States, the reverse-charge mechanism is used. Under the reverse-charge mechanism, the supply of services is not subject to VAT in the Member State of the supplier. The taxable recipient who has purchased the services self-assesses the VAT due as payable. If the recipient is entitled to recover the VAT on the purchase as input tax, then the recipient may offset the input tax at the same time as declaring the output tax. Consequently, a recipient who deducts input tax in full does not actually pay any VAT in relation to reverse-charge supplies. This process also applies to services received from suppliers that are established outside the EU.

In certain cases, mainly to combat VAT fraud, the reverse-charge mechanism also applies to local transactions. This can, for example, apply to CO2 emission allowances and telecommunications services as mentioned above, but also to the supply of staff, construction work, the supply of used materials, mobile telephones, microprocessors and central processing units.

Effective use and enjoyment. The above rules may lead to non-taxation or to double taxation if either party is not established in the EU. To help avoid these effects, additional rules may apply that either allow a service that is "used and enjoyed" in the EU to be taxed or prevent a service that is "used and enjoyed" outside the EU from being taxed. With a few exceptions, Member States may apply the effective use and enjoyment provisions to almost any type of service if they choose to do so.

If a service is taxed in the EU under the effective use and enjoyment provisions, a non-EU supplier of the service may be required to register for VAT in every Member State where it has customers that are not taxable persons. For the information regarding the rules relating to VAT registration, see the chapters on the respective countries of the EU.

Fixed establishment. The definition of a fixed establishment depends on the place of supply rule for the service in question. For determining the place of supply of services performed to a business (i.e., B2B), under the rules where the services are taxable where the supplier is established, a "fixed establishment" shall be any establishment, other than the main place of establishment of a business, characterized by a sufficient degree of permanence and a suitable structure in terms of human and technical resources to enable it to provide the services that it supplies.

Electronically supplied services. Specific VAT rules apply to supplies of telecommunication services, broadcasting services and electronically supplied services, also referred to as TBE services. "Electronically supplied services" include services such as supplies of downloaded software and music, information services and distance-learning services supplied by computer.

For further details on VAT obligations on supplies of TBE services, see Section C. Goods in the Single Market, subsection Digital economy.

E. Vouchers

The EU VAT rules differentiate between single-purpose (SPV) and multi-purpose vouchers (MPVs). The former, SPVs, are defined as "a voucher where the place of supply of the goods or services to which the voucher relates, and the VAT due on those goods or services are known at the time of issue of the voucher" while, all other vouchers are defined as MPVs. The transfer of an SPV by a taxable person acting in their own name is regarded as a supply of the goods or services to which the voucher relates. The actual handing over of the goods or the actual provision of the services in return for an SPV accepted as consideration by the supplier is not regarded as an independent transaction from a VAT perspective. The transfer of an MPV, however, is not subject to VAT until it is accepted as consideration for the actual handing over of goods or the actual provision of services.

F. Small businesses trading in the EU

Member States apply simplified VAT rules to small and medium enterprises (SMEs) established and trading in the EU. The threshold for qualifying as an SME varies per Member State. These simplifications are mostly implemented as a VAT registration threshold or a VAT exemption in combination with simplified administrative requirements. Further information about the VAT rules for SMEs is listed in the chapters of the respective EU countries.

The European Commission has proposed new rules to give Member States more flexibility for small businesses trading in the EU. The new rules, which will come into force on 1 January 2025, will introduce:

- A revenue threshold across the EU, under which small businesses would benefit from simplification measures, whether or not they have already been exempted from VAT.

- The possibility for Member States to free all small businesses that qualify for a VAT exemption from obligations relating to identification, invoicing, accounting or returns.
- A turnover threshold that would allow companies operating in more than one Member State to benefit from the exemption from VAT and simplification measures in all Member States.

G. Rates

EU Member States may apply a standard rate of VAT and a maximum of two reduced rates. No higher rates may apply. These reduced rates may not be less than 5% and may apply only to certain goods and services listed in Annex III of the EU VAT Directive (Directive 2006/112/EC). As Member States may, in addition to the two reduced rates, apply a reduced rate lower than the minimum of 5% and an exemption with deductibility of the VAT paid at the preceding stage to a maximum of seven points of supplies of goods and services listed in Annex III. The reduced rate lower than the minimum of 5% and the exemption with deductibility of the VAT paid at the preceding stage may only be applied to certain points of Annex III.

As an exception to the reduced rate rule, Member States may continue to apply a reduced rate lower than 5% or to apply a reduced rate to goods not listed in Directive 2006/112/EC if such rates were in force in that country on 1 January 1991 or if the rate was agreed on at the time of the country's accession to the EU. These exceptions are also open to the other EU Member States. Special reduced rates may also apply in certain territories. Member States can apply reduced, super-reduced or zero VAT rates to electronic publications, thereby allowing alignment of VAT rules for electronic and physical publications.

Directive 2006/112/EC sets out which supplies of goods and services may or must be exempted when supplied within the territory of the Member State. Exempt supplies do not carry a right to deduct related VAT on purchases (known as input tax).

The European Commission periodically publishes the VAT rates that apply in the 27 Member States and provides examples of the goods and services that benefit from reduced rates in the EU (http://ec.europa.eu/taxation_customs/resources/documents/taxation/vat/how_vat_works/rates/vat_rates_en.pdf).

H. Recovery of VAT

Businesses (taxable persons) can deduct the VAT incurred on their purchases, in so far as the goods and services they purchased are used for the purposes of their own taxed transactions. For a right of deduction to exist, the input transactions must have a direct and immediate link with the output transactions giving rise to a right of deduction. No right of deduction exists for input tax on purchased goods and services that are used for VAT exempt transactions, such as certain financial services, educational services and medical services. In this case, the input tax is a business expense.

Partial exemption. If a business uses the goods and services it has purchased for taxable as well as exempt supplies (either simultaneously or subsequently), it can deduct only a portion of the input tax. This deductible portion of input tax (the so-called "pro rata" percentage) is in principle based on turnover proportions. The deductible input tax is calculated following the following formula: turnover for which a right of deduction exists (numerator), divided by total turnover (denominator). Member States may use slightly different approaches. Member States may, for example, authorize or require a calculation of the proportional deduction for each sector of a taxable person's business or on the basis of the use made of all or part of the goods and services.

Capital goods. For capital goods, a special system exists for the adjustment of the input tax that a taxable person initially deducted. The initial VAT deduction shall be adjusted where it is higher or lower than that to which the taxable person was entitled based on actual use (over time) of the capital goods. Adjustments may have to be made if, after the time of initial VAT deduction but within a certain period (the so-called adjustment period), the use of the goods changes from use for which a right of deduction exists to use for which no right of deduction exists (and vice versa). This (annual) adjustment of input tax must be made in respect of one-fifth of the VAT charged on the capital goods, or if the adjustment period has been extended by the relevant Member State, in respect of the corresponding fraction thereof. In the case of immovable property, Member States may extend the adjustment period up to 20 years.

Noneconomic activities. Because a right of deduction only exists for VAT on purchases of goods and services that are used for taxed transactions, noneconomic activities (e.g., owning shares without performing taxed activities for the subsidiary whose shares are owned) also limit a business's right to VAT deduction. Members States have to set their own rules for determining the nondeductible proportion in these cases.

I. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Every EU Member State must refund VAT incurred by businesses that are neither established nor registered for VAT in that Member State. A non-established business may claim VAT to the same extent as a VAT-registered business in the Member State.

EU businesses. For businesses established in the EU, refunds are made under the terms of Council Directive 2008/9/EC. All Member States must refund VAT to eligible claimants established in other Member States. The procedure for reimbursement of VAT incurred by EU businesses in Member States where they are not established is a fully electronic procedure, ensuring a quicker refund to claimants.

Eligibility. To be eligible for a refund under Council Directive 2008/9/EC, the claimant must satisfy the following conditions:

- It must be a taxable person that is not established in the Member State of refund.
- It must not have the seat of its economic activity, a fixed establishment from where business transactions are carried out, a domicile or a residence in the Member State where the refund is requested.
- It must not make supplies of goods or services in the Member State of refund, with the exception of transport and transport-related services and supplies of goods and services where the customer liable for the VAT due on the supplies (under the reverse-charge mechanism; see Section C).

Minimum claims. Under Council Directive 2008/9/EC, the minimum claim period is three months, and the maximum period is one year. The minimum claim for a period of less than a year is EUR400. For an annual claim, the minimum amount is EUR50.

Documentation. Under Council Directive 2008/9/EC, claimants established in the EU must electronically submit applicable documentation through an electronic portal set up by the Member State where they are established. The refund application must contain the following:

- The applicant's name, contact details, nature of the business, bank details, period to which the application applies and the VAT identification number of the applicant
- For each Member State separately, a list of the name and address of the suppliers and their VAT identification numbers, nature of the purchases categorized according to the coded categories in Council Directive 2008/9/EC, the date and number of all purchase invoices, import documents and the taxable amounts, as well as the VAT amounts, as well as, if applicable, any pro rata VAT deduction amount, as a percentage
- On request by the Member State of refund, original invoices or import documents, if the taxable amount is EUR1,000 or more (EUR250 for fuel purchases)

Time limits. Under Council Directive 2008/9/EC, the deadline for the electronic filing of the refund application is 30 September of the calendar year following the refund period.

Refunds are generally paid within six months after the Member State receives the claim. Member States must pay interest on VAT amounts refunded outside this time limit. For further details, see the chapters dealing with the individual countries of the EU.

Appeals. All Member States provide an appeal procedure if a refund is denied.

Non-EU businesses. For businesses established outside the EU, refunds are made under the terms of the EU 13th VAT Directive. All Member States must refund VAT to claimants established outside the EU. However, Member States may apply a condition requiring the non-EU country where the claimant is established to provide reciprocal refunds with respect to its own turnover taxes. For further details on each Member States reciprocal agreements, see the individual Member State chapters

Eligibility. To be eligible for a refund under the EU 13th VAT Directive, the claimant must satisfy the following conditions:
- It must carry out activities that would make it eligible to be a taxable person in the EU if the activities were conducted there.
- It must not have an establishment, center of economic activity, registered office or place of residence in the EU.
- It must not make supplies of goods or services in the Member State where a refund is requested, with the exception of transport and transport-related services and supplies of goods and services where the customer is liable for the VAT on those supplies (under the reverse-charge mechanism; see Section E).
- If a VAT refund is claimed in any Member State that requires reciprocal VAT refunds for its citizens, the country where the claimant is established must satisfy this condition.

Minimum claims. The minimum claim limits for non-EU businesses may not be lower than for EU businesses as indicated above.

Documentation. Under the EU 13th VAT Directive, a non-EU claimant must submit the following applicable documentation to the relevant address in the Member State where a refund is requested (the relevant addresses are listed in the Member States' respective chapters):
- The standard application form, which is available in all official EU languages and in all Member States; however, the form must generally be completed in the language of the Member State where the refund is requested
- Proof of entitlement, which may include a certificate issued by the tax authorities in the country where the claimant is established (required annually)
- Original invoices, import documents, bills, vouchers, receipts or customs clearance forms supporting the amounts of VAT claimed
- Documents appointing a tax representative in countries where that is required

Time limits. Under the 13th VAT Directive, claims by non-EU businesses must generally be submitted within six months after the end of the calendar year, that is, by 30 June of the following year for most Member States. This deadline is generally strictly enforced. However, certain exceptions exist. The deadlines applied by the individual Member States of the EU are indicated in the Member States' respective chapters. Member States are not obliged under EU law to pay interest on VAT amounts refunded outside this time limit.

Appeals. All Member States provide an appeal procedure if a refund is denied.

J. Invoicing

The cornerstone of the VAT system is the invoice, which must be issued for most taxable supplies. However, an invoice is not required for B2C supplies of services.

The relevant EU rules aim to promote and simplify invoicing rules by removing burdens and barriers and establishing equal treatment between paper and electronic invoices without increasing the administrative burden on paper invoices, as well as to promote the uptake of e-invoicing by allowing freedom of choice regarding the invoicing method used. The EU VAT rules prescribe a certain minimum amount of information that needs to be included on an invoice. Simplified invoicing requirements apply to certain transactions of a low value. Also, invoicing is not always required (e.g., for some SMEs, for some e-commerce transaction). Further information about the invoicing requirement is listed in the chapters of the respective EU countries.

VAT in the Digital Age (ViDA). On 8 December 2022, the European Commission (the Commission) proposed its VAT in the Digital Age (ViDA) package. It includes a series of measures aimed at modernizing the VAT system and making it resilient to fraud and to address challenges in the area of VAT for the platform economy.

Key proposals are as follows:
- Introducing standardized digital reporting requirements (DRRs) across the EU in an electronic format and imposing electronic invoicing on cross-border EU B2B transactions
- Addressing the challenges of the platform economy in short-term accommodation rental and passenger transport services by clarifying existing rules and enhancing the role of platforms in VAT collection
- Reducing VAT registration requirements in the EU by not taxing the transfer of own goods between Member States, by expanding the scope of the OSS and expanding the use of reverse charge for B2B transactions

The new system introduces digital reporting for VAT purposes for B2B intra-Community transactions to provide Member States with information on a (near) real-time basis. Businesses will also be obliged to follow electronic invoicing for intra-Community B2B supplies based on a European standard. The information reported would be shared via a database of the Commission (i.e., the VAT Information Exchange System [VIES]) between tax authorities for analysis.

The Commission believes that the real-time availability of information about cross-border trade of goods/services will help in addressing missing trader fraud. The Member States will also have the option to introduce mandatory electronic invoicing and digital reporting for domestic B2B transactions, which should comply with the same European standard as cross-border electronic invoicing. The Commission expects that the existing digital reporting requirements in various Member States should converge with the proposed requirements by 2028. However, at the time of preparing this chapter, it is uncertain whether the date (2028) will indeed be feasible, given the discussions between the Member States and the Commission on this topic. It is expected that this date will be postponed by at least one or two years.

The package of proposals takes the form of amendments to three pieces of EU legislation: the VAT Directive (2006/112/EC), Council Implementing Regulation (EU 282/2011) and the Council Regulation on Administrative Cooperation (EU 904/2010).

K. EU filings

Intrastat. Intrastat is a system of reporting related to intra-Community transactions made by taxable persons. It allows the collection of statistical information on intra-Community trade in the absence of customs controls at the borders. EU businesses must submit information on a periodic basis to the VAT or statistics authorities if they make either intra-Community supplies or intra-Community acquisitions of goods in excess of certain limits. Businesses are also required to file Intrastat returns for cross-border services provided to business customers in other EU Member States.

Penalties may apply to missing and late Intrastat reports and to errors in reporting.

Further information on the requirements for Intrastat reporting is provided in the chapters dealing with the individual Member States of the EU.

EU Sales Lists. Taxable persons that make intra-Community supplies must submit EU Sales Lists (ESLs) to the VAT authorities quarterly.

As of 1 January 2020, for the intra-Community supply of goods to be zero-rated, the inclusion in the ESL of the correct VAT identification number of the recipient of the goods (in the Member State of arrival) has become a substantive requirement.

Penalties may apply to missing and late ESL reports and to errors in reporting.

Further information on the requirements for ESL reporting is provided in the chapters dealing with the individual Member States of the EU.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
• The supply of goods or services made in Fiji by taxable persons
• The importation of goods from outside Fiji
• The importation of services from outside Fiji

Effective use and enjoyment. To avoid instances of non-taxation or double taxation, jurisdictions can apply "use and enjoyment rules" that allow a service that is "used and enjoyed" in the jurisdiction to be taxed or prevent a service that is "used and enjoyed" outside the jurisdiction from being taxed. If a service is taxed in the jurisdiction under the "use and enjoyment" provisions, a non-established supplier of the service may be required to register for VAT in that jurisdiction where it has customers that are not taxable persons. In Fiji, the following services are subject to the "use and enjoyment" provisions (for both business-to-consumer [B2C] and business-to-business [B2B] supplies): fringe benefits and appropriation for private use. They are deemed supplies and treated as including VAT.

Transfer of a going concern. Normally the sale of the assets of a VAT-registered or VAT-registrable business will be subject to VAT at the appropriate rate. However, a transfer of a business as a going concern (TOGC) may be outside the scope of the tax under certain conditions. A TOGC is the sale of a business or part of a business capable of separate operation, including assets. Where the sale meets these conditions, the supply is treated as outside the scope of VAT. In Fiji, a TOGC is treated as outside the scope of VAT, where both parties to the transfer are registered for VAT, and the business (or part of a business) will continue in the same operations, before during and after the transfer.

Transactions between related parties. In Fiji the open market value is required for VAT transactions between related parties.

C. Who is liable

A taxable person is any individual, incorporated entity, trust or partnership that is required to be registered for VAT. VAT registration is compulsory if annual turnover from a trade or profession exceeds FJD100,000. This threshold is for the upcoming 12 months. Generally, the taxable person must register in the next calendar month. This means that there is a requirement to register for VAT at the commencement of any month where there are reasonable grounds for believing that the total value of the supplies (not being exempt supplies) to be made in Fiji in that month and the 11 months immediately following that month will exceed the registration threshold, or where the taxable person is certain that the threshold will be exceeded or when the Commissioner makes this determination.

Exemption from registration. The VAT law in Fiji does not contain any provision for exemption from registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. A person may register for VAT voluntarily if its taxable turnover is below the VAT registration threshold. A person may also register for VAT voluntarily in advance of making taxable supplies.

Group registration. Group VAT registration is not allowed in Fiji.

Fixed establishment. A foreign business is deemed to have a fixed establishment for VAT purposes in Fiji, by way of reference to a usual place of residence. If the supply of services is made to an individual and received by that person other than for the purposes of any taxable activity carried on by that person, that person shall be deemed to belong in whatever country that person has their usual place of residence, provided that this does not apply to any individual who is present in Fiji at the time the services are supplied, other than when the goods in respect of which the supply is being made are situated outside Fiji.

Non-established businesses. Non-established businesses that don't have a taxable establishment cannot be registered in Fiji. This means that if a non-established business makes supplies of taxable goods or services in Fiji, the permanent establishment or a tax representative in Fiji is required to register and account for the VAT due on its behalf.

In the case of supplies of services made by a non-established business, the VAT due can be self-accounted for by the customer by way of the reverse-charge mechanism (see the Reverse-charge subsection below).

Tax representatives. Tax representatives are not required in Fiji. However, they are allowed, but not mandatory. If appointed, a tax representative must be a registered tax agent with the Fiji Revenue Customs Service (FRCS).

Reverse charge. If a non-established business supplies services that are performed or used in Fiji to a customer that is a non-VAT-registered person (i.e., B2C), the customer must self-account for the VAT via the reverse-charge mechanism when making payments offshore. The VAT is required to be paid when the recipient in Fiji makes the said payment for purposes of acquiring a tax clearance certificate. From 1 August 2022, this rule has been extended to also include supplies to persons registered for VAT (i.e., B2B) in Fiji. This means that for both B2B and B2C supplies of services by a non-established business, the customer is required to self-account for the VAT due by way of the reverse-charge mechanism.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Fiji.

Digital economy. Nonresident providers of electronically supplied services for both B2C and B2B supplies are not required to register and account for VAT on supplies in Fiji. Instead, the customer is required to self-account for the VAT due by way of the reverse-charge mechanism (see the Reverse-charge subsection above).

There are no other specific e-commerce rules for imported goods in Fiji.

At the time of preparing this chapter, the VAT law outlining clarification and changes to the rules for the digital economy are not finalized or made public.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules for online marketplaces and platforms in Fiji.

Registration procedures. An application for VAT must be made online with the taxpayer online system (TPOS), under the separate VAT registration module. Depending on the legal structure of the taxable person registering for VAT, certain documents must be provided with the application. For companies, the documents required include an incorporation certificate and a directors tax number. A trust deed is required for a trust and a partnership agreement is required for a partnership. The documents required for individuals include a birth certificate and identifications, such as a driving license, etc. The VAT registration process usually takes three to five working days.

Deregistration. A taxable person may deregister when they cease to carry on taxable activities or if their turnover was less than FJD100,000 in the previous 12 months or, based on reasonable grounds, is expected to be less than FJD100,000 in the upcoming 12 months. A taxable person can also deregister if its full taxable supplies become exempt.

The application for deregistration is done online with the TPOS system. A formal application is required to be uploaded on to the module. The taxable person will ordinarily be deregistered with effect from the last calendar day of the tax period in which all such taxable activities ceased or from such other time as the FRCS may determine.

The FRCS is not required to cancel the registration of a taxable person where the FRCS has reasonable grounds to believe that the person will carry on any taxable activity at any time within 12 months from that date of cessation.

Changes to VAT registration details. A taxable person must notify the CEO of FRCS online of any changes in their VAT registration details, via the TPOS system. Such notification must be made within 15 days of any change in the name, address, place of business, constitution, name of partners, or nature of the principal activity or activities of the taxable person; any change of address from which, or name in which, any taxable activity is carried on by the taxable person; and any changes in circumstances if the taxable person ceases to operate or close on a temporary basis, except where it closes due to a cessation of carrying on a taxable activity.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero-rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 15%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods and services, unless a specific measure provides for the zero-rate or an exemption.

A reduced rate of 9% was in effect until 1 August 2023.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Exports (and related transportation), except goods that have been or will be re-imported into Fiji by the supplier
- Services of a consultant provided to a nonresident person
- Basic food items (including sugar, sugar cane, flour, rice, canned fish, cooking oil, potato, onion, garlic, dhal, tea, salt)
- Certain milk products (including baby milk, powdered milk, liquid milk)
- Personal hygiene products (soap, soap powder, toilet paper, sanitary pads, toothpaste)
- Domestic fuel (kerosene, cooking gas)
- Services provided physically outside of Fiji
- Supply of goods by a registered person to an inbound passenger in the international disembarkation concourse of the airport (e.g., duty free supplies, as well as meals)

Examples of goods and services taxable at 9%

- Non-white goods (no longer subject to the reduced rate with effect from 1 August 2023)
- Construction services (no longer subject to the reduced rate with effect from 1 August 2023)
- Rental of commercial property (no longer subject to the reduced rate with effect from 1 August 2023)
- Fuel and power (no longer subject to the reduced rate with effect from 1 August 2023)

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Rental of residential dwellings
- Ministry of Education-approved educational institutions
- Financial services
- Sale and acquisition of shares and securities
- Supply and provision of the right to partake in any gambling
- Supply by any nonprofit body of donated goods and services
- Supply of employment services to the government whereby payment is of salary and wages from Standard Expenditure Group 6 under a government grant

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Fiji.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply." In general, the time of supply for goods and services supplied by a taxable person is the earliest of the following events:
- A tax invoice is issued by the supplier or the recipient
- Any payment is received by the supplier
- The delivery of the goods and services takes place

Deposits and prepayments. Where deposits and payments are inclusive of the contract price, the payment made is deemed to be the time of supply.

Continuous supplies of services. Goods supplied under a rental agreement, or services supplied under an agreement that provides for periodic payments, are treated as successively supplied for successive parts of the period of the agreement, and each of the successive supplies occurs when a payment becomes due or is received, whichever is the earlier.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. The time of supply for goods sent on approval for return is when a credit note is passed. There are no special time of supply rules for supplies of goods sent on approval for sale. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

Reverse-charge services. The time of supply for reverse-charge services is upon payment.

Leased assets. Goods supplied under a rental agreement are treated as successively supplied for successive parts of the period of the agreement, and each of the successive supplies occurs when a payment becomes due or is received, whichever is the earlier.

Imported goods. The time of supply for imported goods is at the time when import VAT is paid at the ports.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

VAT paid by a taxable person is recoverable as input tax if it relates to goods and services acquired solely for the purposes of making taxable supplies. Input tax is recovered by offsetting it against output tax (that is, tax charged on supplies made) in the VAT return for each tax period.

If input tax exceeds output tax in a tax period, the excess will be refunded in the month following the submitted refund claim, or within 30 days of the filing the VAT return. At the time of preparing this chapter, amendments to the VAT bill (which include more clarification on the refund process) have not been passed or released.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes, and that are not wholly used for the furtherance of making taxable supplies.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Private use of business assets
- Not part of your taxable activity (for example, where nonprofits are registered for commercial reasons, the input tax paid for the nonprofit activities cannot be claimed)

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to taxable business use)

- Business gifts
- Business entertainment
- Mobile phones
- Travel expenses

Partial exemption. Input tax directly related to exempt supplies of goods or services is not generally recoverable. If a taxable person makes both exempt and taxable supplies, it may not recover input tax in full. This situation is referred to as "partial exemption."

Where a taxable person makes taxable and exempt supplies and is unable to separately identify the input tax paid/payable relating to both, it is entitled to claim as a credit the proportion of the input tax that is attributable to the taxable supplies based on the formula taxable supplies/total supplies X total input tax creditable.

Approval from the FRCS is not required to use the partial exemption standard method in Fiji. Special methods are not allowed in Fiji.

Capital goods. Input tax incurred on the purchase of capital goods may be deductible subject to the general input tax deduction rules (see above). Accordingly, if the goods are used for taxable supplies, input tax may be fully deducted, subject to the general VAT rules. If the goods are used for both taxable and nontaxable or exempt transactions, a partial deduction may apply. Examples of capital goods in Fiji include equipment, motor vehicles, plant and machinery, furniture, and tools.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax exceeds the amount of output tax in a reporting period, this can be included on the VAT return and filed online. FRCS will first allocate the refund to payable taxes, such as income tax, etc., and any remaining balance will then be refunded to the taxable person.

Any excess amount will be refunded in the month following the submitted refund claim, or within 30 days of the filing the VAT return. A refund can be obtained by submitting the periodic VAT report, the additional detailed digital report and copies of the tax invoices exceeding the relevant amount if requested by the FRCS. The FRCS may postpone the refund and conduct an examination or audit.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax incurred on pre-registration costs is generally deductible in Fiji. While there are no set rules around this, in practice the FRCS allows input tax incurred on pre-registration costs to be recovered.

Bad debts. VAT paid by a taxable person in connection with bad debts (i.e., if a supply was made and the output tax was declared, but the recipient did not pay the consideration agreed) may be recoverable provided all the below are met:
- Sufficient evidence of recovery was made
- The debtor is bankrupt
- A credit note is passed

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred on purchases that are used for noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Fiji.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Input tax incurred by non-established businesses that are not registered for VAT in Fiji is not recoverable.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A taxable person must provide a full VAT invoice for all taxable supplies made to registered taxable persons that exceed FJD10. A tax invoice is necessary to support a claim for input tax recovery. A tax invoice must include such particulars as prescribed by the VAT Act.

Credit notes. A registered taxable person may issue a debit or credit note in circumstances including, but not restricted to, the following: to reflect an alteration in the supply or correction of the tax rate that was applied, correction of the terms of a transaction or a return of goods or services to the supplier, etc. An explanation is required to be indicated on the debit or credit note for its issuance. Credit and debit notes must contain broadly the same information as a tax invoice.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is allowed in Fiji, but it is not mandatory.

Scope of electronic invoicing. For B2B, B2C and business-to-government (B2G) supplies, electronic invoicing is allowed but not mandatory in Fiji. There is no threshold beyond which taxable persons are required to adopt electronic invoicing in Fiji. The requirements related to electronic invoicing are the same as those for paper invoicing.

There are currently no separate requirements for the format of electronic invoices; however, they must contain the relevant information as required for a normal VAT invoice and the original invoice should be available in case the FRCS requests it.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified VAT invoicing is not allowed in Fiji. As such, full VAT invoices are required.

However, a supplier, unless requested by the recipient, is not required to issue a full VAT invoice if the consideration in money for the supply does not exceed FJD10 or such amount as the Minister may from time to time, by Legal Notice, declare.

Self-billing. Self-billing is allowed in Fiji, either for one particular transaction or for issuing invoices on a general basis. In Fiji, self-billing is known as "buyer-created invoices." The following conditions apply:

- The parties (i.e., the supplier and the customer or a third-party agent who intends to issue the invoices) should conclude a written agreement in advance on the self-billing process that details the terms and conditions of the invoice issuance.
- If the customer issues the invoice, the words "self-billing" must be indicated in the invoice.
- The parties' liability is joint and several with respect to the compliance with the provisions relating to the invoice issuance.
- The parties must obtain approval from the Commissioner to use self-billing.

Proof of exports. VAT is not charged on exports. To qualify as zero-rated, exports must be accompanied by evidence that the goods have left Fiji. Suitable documentary evidence includes a copy of the single administration document (SAD) (normally referred to as the customs importation document) or customs entries. Another general condition is that the export proceeds are required to be received by the supplier. A grace period of six months is granted, and the Reserve Bank of Fiji (RBF) usually provides confirmation on this.

Foreign currency invoices. Invoices may be issued in a foreign currency. However, the amounts must be converted to the domestic currency, which is the Fijian dollar (FJD) for VAT reporting purposes (i.e., in the VAT return). The conversion must be made using the RBF weighted average exchange rate, which can be found on the RBF's website (http://www.rbf.gov.fj).

Supplies to nontaxable persons. A supplier, unless requested by a recipient, is not required to issue a tax invoice if the consideration in money for the supply does not exceed FJD10 or such amount as the Minister may from time to time, by Legal Notice, declare.

Records. Registered taxable persons are required to keep accounts and records as prescribed by the VAT Act. In Fiji, examples of what records that must be held for VAT purposes include financial statements, trial balance, invoices, etc.

In Fiji, VAT books and records can be kept outside of the country. However, if records are held outside of Fiji, such records must be available in a timely manner at the request of FRCS.

Record retention period. Registered taxable persons must keep books and records for at least seven years from the end of the taxable period to which they relate.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is allowed in Fiji. Records and books of accounts can be kept in an electronic format, as long as they are retrievable when requested by FRCS. They must be held for at least seven years from the end of the taxable period to which they relate.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. The VAT reporting period is monthly. Returns must be filed by the end of the following month.

Periodic payments. Any VAT due for the VAT reporting period must be remitted to the FRCS by the end of the following month. The VAT due is mainly paid by direct transfer via wiring, and cash or cheque in person at the FRCS. For wiring purposes, the payment must be made online with the FRCS (https://www.frcs.org.fj/), and the payment details must also be sent via email (onlinepayments@frcs.org.fj or suvairsdespatch@frcs.org.fj).

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is mandatory in Fiji for all taxable persons. All registered taxable persons are required to file their VAT returns online with the FRCS (www.frcs.org.fj/).

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Fiji. However, a taxable person may optionally make advance payments that can sit on ledgers before filing the VAT returns.

Special schemes. Annual accounting. For small and medium enterprises, they can opt for annual filing periods and file VAT returns annually, if their annual income threshold is less than FJD300,000.

Secondhand goods. To avoid double taxation on goods that have previously borne VAT when sold as new, a business can opt to charge VAT on the profit margin on supplies of works of art, antiques or collectors' items; motor vehicles; secondhand goods; and goods through a person who acts as an agent, but in their own name, in relation to the supply. This applies only for VAT-registered persons that sell secondhand goods, and the VAT applies only to the difference in the sales price less the cost of acquiring the goods secondhand.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Fiji.

Supplementary filings. There are no supplementary filings required in Fiji.

Correcting errors in previous returns. If a taxable person discovers an error or an omission from a previous periodic declaration, this can be corrected online via the VAT portal with the FRCS.

Digital tax administration. There are no transactional reporting requirements in Fiji.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. There is no specific penalty in Fiji for the late registration of VAT.

Penalties for late payment and filings. The penalty for late payment of VAT and late filing of a VAT return in Fiji is 25% of the tax due.

Penalties for errors. The penalties that would apply are dependent on the impact of the error on the VAT payable for the relevant period. If there is additional VAT payable, the regular charges (described above) would apply.

There are no specific penalties associated with the late notification or failure to notify the FRCS of changes to a taxable person's VAT registration details. For further details, see the subsection Changes to VAT registration details above.

Penalties for fraud. The penalty for fraudulent conduct is equal to "A × r × t" where A is the tax benefit arising from the overstatement of input tax, r is the rate of penalty at 15% and t is the number of years after the year of assessment for the tax return. Criminal penalties can also apply here.

Personal liability for company officers. Company officers can be held personally liable for errors and omissions in VAT declarations and reporting in Fiji. The penalty for such errors and omissions is FJD25,000 or jail term not exceeding 10 years, but for tax agents this increases to FJD50,000 and jail term not exceeding 10 years. However, in practice the penalty and jail term are usually dependent on the size of the error.

A director of a private company is answerable for anything done by that company under the VAT law. In case of default of the company, a director is liable to the same penalties and to account for the VAT debts of that company, provided that a director is not liable for any tax liability of the company where the FRCS is satisfied that the director was not at the material time or times involved in the executive management of the company.

Where a company that becomes insolvent or liquidated and owes VAT and all associated penalties, each person who is a director of the company is liable to pay to the FRCS such VAT owed and all the associated penalties.

Statute of limitations. The statute of limitations in Fiji is seven years. However, for serious omissions it may extend further back. But where there are no serious omission issues then the Commissioner can only audit from the period of the last audit onward.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:

- The supply of goods or services made in Finland by a taxable person
- The intra-Community acquisition of goods and acquisition of services (as provided in Article 196 of EU Directive 2008/8/EC) from another EU Member State by a taxable person (see the chapter on the EU)

- Reverse-charge services received by a taxable person in Finland (i.e., services for which the recipient is liable for the VAT due)
- Reverse-charge goods purchased by a taxable person in Finland
- The importation of goods from outside the EU, regardless of the status of the importer

For VAT purposes, Finland does include the insular province of Ahvenanmaa (Åland Islands). Åland Islands are not, however, part of the EU VAT territory, which brings a number of special VAT provisions and practices regarding the trade related to the Åland Islands, specifically in regards to the supplies of goods. However, the province is part of the Finnish and EU customs territory.

Quick Fixes. Pending introduction of a "definitive" system for the VAT treatment of intra-Community supplies of goods to taxable persons, the EU has adopted Quick Fixes for intra-Community trade in goods. For an overview of the Quick Fixes rules, see the chapter on the EU. For documentary requirements, see Section H. Invoicing, subsection Proof of exports and intra-Community supplies.

The Quick Fixes have been adopted by Finland from 1 January 2020. However, the Quick Fixes provision did not have an effect on the documentation necessary as proof for zero rating the intra-Community supplies of goods, and documentation proving the transportation is accepted as proof. One document as proof of the transportation is considered sufficient. There are no other local rules or derogations of the Quick Fixes in Finland.

Effective use and enjoyment. To avoid instances of non-taxation or double taxation, EU Member States can apply use and enjoyment rules that allow a service that is "used and enjoyed" in the EU to be taxed or prevent a service that is "used and enjoyed" outside the EU from being taxed. If a service is taxed in the EU under the use and enjoyment provisions, a non-EU supplier of the service may be required to register for VAT in every Member State where it has customers that are not taxable persons. For information regarding the rules relating to VAT registration, see the chapters on the respective countries of the EU.

In Finland, no services are subject to the "use and enjoyment" provisions.

Transfer of a going concern. The supply of goods or services in connection with the transfer of a going concern (TOGC) or a part thereof is not considered a VAT-taxable sale, provided that the goods or services transferred will be used as part of the transferee's VAT-taxable business activities. If the transferee's business activities result in a partial VAT deduction, this provision only applies to the extent of the VAT-taxable business activities.

Transactions between related parties. If a consideration excluding the tax portion is considerably below the open market value, and the transaction is between related parties where the purchaser does not have the right to deduct the VAT in full, the output tax is calculated based on the open market value.

C. Who is liable

A taxable person is any business entity or individual that makes taxable supplies of goods or services, intra-Community acquisitions or distance sales in the course of a business.

The VAT registration threshold of EUR15,000 applies to businesses that are established in Finland or that have a fixed (permanent) establishment in Finland. The law also includes a tax relief for small businesses with a turnover between EUR15,000 and EUR30,000 during the financial year. The tax relief is gradual. As a result, the amount of the relief decreases as turnover increases. According to information received from the Finnish Ministry of Finance, the Council Directive (EU) 2020/285 amending Directive 2006/112/EC on the common system of value-added tax, as it regards the special scheme for small enterprises, and Regulation (EU) No 904/

2010, as it regards administrative cooperation and the exchange of information to monitor the correct application of the special scheme for small enterprises, are implemented. Key changes include the abolition of the tax relief and extending the application of the VAT registration threshold to cover also small businesses that are not established in Finland. The changes will enter into force on 1 January 2025.

Under the main rule, the place of supply of services is determined by the location of the fixed establishment of the purchaser to which the services are supplied. If no such fixed establishment of a purchaser exists, the place of supply is the purchaser's domicile. If the supplier does not have a domicile in Finland and does not have a fixed establishment in Finland that would intervene in the rendering of the service in the country of the purchaser, the supplier must invoice the purchaser for the sale of the service without VAT. Based on the reverse-charge mechanism, the purchaser reports and pays the VAT on the supplier's behalf. The main rule regarding the place of supply of services (Article 44 of Directive 2008/8/EC) is similar to the treatment of intangible services before 2010. However, for certain services (for example, services relating to immovable property, passenger transport, arranging of events and catering services), exceptions to the main rule exist.

Exemption from registration obligation. As a general rule, VAT registration obligations concern all entrepreneurs and companies supplying goods and/or services in the form of economic/business activities. There is generally no exemption to this obligation, unless supplies made are under the EUR15,000 threshold. This threshold applies to businesses established in Finland only. It does not apply to non-established businesses. For further details see the subsection above.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. An entrepreneur that is not required to register for VAT as a result of its turnover being below the small business threshold may still choose to voluntarily register for VAT. The voluntary VAT registration may be applied at the earliest from the date the application arrives at the Finnish Tax Administration. The voluntary VAT registration is possible under the precondition that the entrepreneur conducts activities for business purposes. The consideration is made based on all circumstances at hand. Voluntary VAT registration is allowed for both established and non-established businesses.

Group registration. Group registration may be granted to taxable persons that supply exempt financial or insurance services and to other taxable persons controlled by financial or insurance companies. Group members must have close "financial, economic and administrative relationships." All members of the VAT group must be established in Finland. However, Finnish fixed establishments of foreign entities may belong to a VAT group.

Group members are treated for VAT purposes as a single taxable person. No VAT is charged on transactions between group members. Members are jointly responsible for all VAT liabilities of the group.

There is no minimum time period for the duration of a VAT group.

Holding companies. A pure holding company, as set out in the Finnish Act on Credit Institutions (Chapter 1, Article 15), and is aligned with the EU's Capital Requirements Regulation (Article 4, Paragraph 1, Sections 20-21), may be included in a VAT group. From 1 January 2023, the wording of the VAT Act concerning VAT groups has been amended so that an insurance holding company (referred to in the Insurance Companies Act and the Insurance Associations Act) and an ownership entity (referred to in the Investment Services Act) may be included in a VAT group. The amendment corrected the outdated reference to the Accounting Regulation and updated the regulation to reflect developments in financial regulations.

Cost-sharing exemption. The VAT cost-sharing exemption (in accordance with VAT Directive 2006/112/EEC Article 132(1)(f)) has been implemented in Finland. This provides an option to exempt support services that the cost-sharing group supplies to its members, providing certain conditions are met (in accordance with specific requirements laid out in Finnish VAT law, Article 60a of the Finnish VAT Act).

An independent group of persons may be granted a VAT exemption on services that the group supplies to its members, subject to several conditions, among them that the provision of those supplies does not cause any distortion of competition. The legal form of the group of persons or the member is not restricted in the VAT Act. It is recommended that the group requests an advance ruling from Finland's VAT authorities before launching a cost-sharing arrangement.

Fixed establishment. The legal definition of a fixed establishment no longer exists in the Finnish VAT Act, as the fixed establishment is regulated by the EU Council Implementing Regulation. Accordingly, a fixed establishment shall be any establishment that has a sufficient degree of permanence and a suitable structure in terms of human and technical resources to enable it to receive and use the services supplied to it for its own needs or to enable it to provide the services that it supplies.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that has no fixed establishment in Finland. A non-established business that makes taxable supplies in Finland is not required to register for VAT if the reverse-charge rule applies to all its transactions. If the reverse charge does not apply, the non-established business must register for VAT in Finland. The VAT registration threshold does not apply to supplies made by a non-established business that does not have a fixed establishment in Finland.

When registering for VAT in Finland, a foreign business must fill in an explanatory form concerning the business activities conducted by it in Finland. The explanatory form is an enclosure to the VAT registration. The Finnish tax authorities are likely to use the information provided on the form in determining whether the foreign business has a permanent establishment in Finland.

A non-established business that is involved in intra-Community trade in Finland must notify the Finnish VAT authorities of its activities (see the chapter on the EU). Consequently, even if the business does not have to register for VAT (for example, because the reverse charge applies to its sales), it must still notify the Finnish VAT authorities of the fact that it has begun activities. It must also report details of its intra-Community trade to the VAT authorities on a monthly basis. The procedure for registering for the "notification duty" is the same as for general VAT registration.

Alternatively, a non-established business may opt to register for VAT. If a non-established business opts to register for VAT, it may recover Finnish input tax more quickly through its periodic tax returns. The taxable person must file a periodic tax return that contains VAT information and information regarding other taxes reported through the MyTax portal.

Tax representatives. A non-established business that must register for VAT in Finland is not required to appoint a tax representative, but it may choose to do so. In practice, many non-established businesses appoint tax representatives to deal with correspondence from the Finnish VAT authorities, because it is normally written in Finnish or Swedish.

However, if a non-established business opts to register for VAT in Finland when it is not required to do so (for example, because the reverse charge would apply to its transactions), it must appoint a tax representative resident in Finland. This obligation applies only to businesses that do not have a domicile or a fixed establishment in the EU. The Finnish VAT authorities must approve the tax representative. The representative is not liable for any VAT due.

Reverse charge. Under the reverse-charge rule, the Finnish customer is responsible for accounting for the VAT. However, a non-established taxable person may opt to register for VAT purposes in Finland, and the reverse-charge rule no longer applies, except for certain supplies of construction services or sales of metal scrap or metal waste.

The reverse-charge rule applies to most supplies of goods and services. The reverse-charge rule does not apply to the following transactions:
- Supplies of goods and services to private individuals
- Supplies of goods and services to a non-established business that does not have a fixed establishment in Finland or a VAT registration in Finland
- Distance sales of goods
- Supplies of passenger transport, supplies of the right of admission to educational, scientific, cultural, entertainment or sporting events and other similar events, as well as services directly related to the admission to such events

Domestic reverse charge. The reverse-charge mechanism is also applied to the following domestic sales:
- Sales of emission rights
- Sales of construction services
- Sales of investment gold
- Sales of scrap metal and metal waste

The reverse charge is applied to the domestic supply of construction services (also labor leasing for construction work). The reverse-charge mechanism is applied to supplies of construction work with respect to immovable property in accordance with specific requirements. The nature of the service and the status of the buyer are decisive in determining whether the supplied service falls under the reverse-charge mechanism. The condition is that the buyer is a business engaged in the rendering of construction services on an ongoing basis.

The reverse-charge mechanism applies to local supplies within Finland between taxable businesses provided that the goods supplied meet the specific requirements.

Digital economy. Specific VAT rules apply to cross-border supplies of goods and services sold via the internet (e-commerce) in all EU Member States with effect from 1 July 2021. These new rules apply to all direct sales to nontaxable persons (in practice, these are mostly private individuals), but we refer to these rules as e-commerce VAT rules because most of these transactions are conducted via the internet. In general, the place of supply is in the country of consumption, i.e., where the goods are shipped to or where the buyer of the goods or services resides, subject to any "use and enjoyment" provisions that may override this rule (see Section B, Effective use and enjoyment subsection above). Therefore:
- For supplies of services made by a nonresident supplier to a business customer (B2B), the business customer is responsible for accounting for the VAT due, using the reverse charge.
- For supplies of goods made by a nonresident supplier to a business customer (B2B), where the goods are transported from another EU Member State, the business purchasing the goods is responsible for accounting for the VAT due, as an intra-Community acquisition. If the goods come from outside the EU, the purchaser may have to report an importation of goods.
- For supplies of goods or services made by a nonresident supplier to a final consumer (B2C), the supplier is generally responsible for charging and accounting for the VAT due at the rate applicable in the customer's country (unless the supplier's sales fall beneath the distance selling threshold of EUR10,000 with effect from 1 July 2021). This VAT can be reported using a single VAT registration, using a "One-Stop-Shop" mechanism.

For more details about intra-EU distance sales, see the chapter on the EU.

Effective 1 July 2021, an e-commerce supplier may have a choice of how to account for VAT on its B2C supplies.

Local VAT registration. A nonresident supplier may choose to register for VAT in each Member State and account for VAT on all supplies made and recover input tax in accordance with local rules (see the Non-established businesses subsection above).

In Finland, the registration for VAT is done by filing a startup notification in paper format. It is not yet possible for foreign businesses to file their startup notifications online.

One-Stop Shop. Effective 1 July 2021, a supplier can choose to account for the VAT due under the EU One-Stop Shop (OSS), which can be used for intra-EU cross-border supplies of goods and all cross-border supplies of services made to final consumers in the EU. Unlike the previous Mini One-Stop-Shop (MOSS) scheme that applied until 30 June 2021, the OSS is not limited to cross-border supplies of electronic services, telecommunication services and broadcasting services.

The OSS is an electronic portal that allows businesses to:
- Register for VAT electronically in a single Member State for all intra-EU distance sales of goods and for B2C supplies of services
- Declare and pay VAT due on all supplies of goods and services in a single electronic quarterly return

The OSS can be used by businesses established in the EU and outside the EU. If a supplier or a deemed supplier decides to register for the OSS, it must declare and pay VAT for all supplies (goods as well as services) that fall under the OSS.

In Finland, registration for the OSS can be done electronically in the MyTax portal. The OSS consists of three parts; the Union scheme, the non-Union scheme and the Import One-Shop Stop (IOSS).

The Union scheme covers all the services sold to consumers in the EU and the distance selling of goods to consumers in the EU. A supplier can use the Union scheme to file and pay VAT if: 1) The supplier has its domicile or has a fixed establishment in the EU, and the supplier sells services to private consumers in EU countries, or 2) A supplier conducts distance sales from one EU country to another. Goods are sold to private consumers. It is not necessary for a supplier to have its domicile or a fixed establishment in an EU country.

A supplier can file and pay VAT through the non-Union scheme if the supplier has no domicile and no fixed establishment in the EU territory, and the supplier sells services to private consumers in EU countries.

The quarterly tax period is applied for the Union and non-Union schemes. Corrections will be made subsumed in the tax returns that are filed after perceiving the error, i.e., a corrective replacement return shall not be filed for the tax period where the error occurred. For more details about the operation of the OSS, see the chapter on the EU.

Import One-Stop Shop. Effective 1 July 2021, the Import One-Stop-Shop (IOSS) scheme applies for B2C distance sales of goods from outside the EU.

Effective 1 July 2021, VAT is due on all commercial goods imported into the EU, regardless of their value. The actual supply is subject to VAT in the country where the goods are imported (the country of destination). The IOSS facilitates the declaration and payment of VAT due on the sale of low-value goods (i.e., consignments valued at less than EUR150 per consignment). It allows suppliers selling low-value goods dispatched or transported from a non-EU country to customers in the EU to collect, declare and pay the VAT due. If the IOSS is used, the importation into the EU is exempt from VAT. For more details about the IOSS, see the chapter on the EU.

In Finland, registration for the IOSS can be done electronically in the MyTax portal. The monthly tax period is applied for the IOSS.

The use of the IOSS special scheme is not mandatory. If VAT is not collected via the IOSS scheme, the importation of goods into the EU is subject to import VAT in the country of final destination, and the Member State can decide freely who is liable to pay the import VAT, which could be the customer or the seller (or an electronic interface).

Postal Services and Couriers Scheme. If the IOSS is not used and the customer is liable for the import VAT due on the supply (and importation) of consignments with a small intrinsic value (i.e., less than EUR150), the VAT can be collected using the special scheme for postal services and couriers.

In Finland, the special scheme for postal services and couriers can be used by a transport company that acts as a representative for the consignee, who is a private individual or some other operator not registered for VAT and submits import declarations on behalf of this individual or operator. Before the transport company can use the special scheme for postal services and couriers, it must first register by sending a free-form notification to the Customs Authorization Centre. For more details about the special scheme for postal services and couriers, see the chapter on the EU.

Online marketplaces and platforms. Under the new EU VAT e-commerce rules, effective 1 July 2021, taxable persons that "facilitate" certain B2C sales of goods are deemed to have purchased and then supplied those goods themselves. This means that the single supply from the "underlying" supplier to the final consumer is split into two deemed supplies:

- A supply from the supplier to the facilitator (deemed B2B supply).
- A supply from the facilitator to the final customer (deemed B2C supply). Any intermediation service provided by the facilitator is disregarded for VAT purposes.

This provision does not cover all sales facilitated via the facilitator. It only covers distance sales of goods imported from non-EU jurisdictions in consignments with an intrinsic value not exceeding EUR150. The jurisdiction of residence of the supplier using the facilitator is irrelevant. The supply to the facilitating platform is VAT exempt and the supplies made by that platform follow the e-commerce VAT rules as described above. In addition, the provision also covers sales of goods within the EU, if the supplier is not established within the EU. This applies to both local shipments within one Member State, as well as intra-Community shipments (distance sales). In both cases, the final customer must be a nontaxable person.

In Finland there are no additional specific local rules that apply. For more details about the rules for online marketplaces, see the chapter on the EU.

Vouchers. Finland has, as of 1 January 2019, implemented the EU Directive 2016/1065 amending VAT Directive (2006/112/EC) as regards treatment of vouchers.

A "voucher" means an instrument where there is an obligation to accept it as consideration or part consideration for a supply of goods or services and where the goods or services to be supplied or the identities of their potential suppliers are either indicated on the instrument itself or in related documentation, including the terms and conditions of use of such instrument.

A "single-purpose voucher" (SPV) means a voucher where the place of supply of the goods or services to which the voucher relates, and the VAT due on those goods or services, are known at the time of issue of the voucher.

A "multi-purpose voucher" (MPV) means a voucher, other than a single-purpose voucher.

In short, where the VAT treatment attributable to the underlying supply of goods or services can be determined with certainty when the SPV is issued, VAT should be charged on each transfer, including on the issue of the SPV. The actual handing over of the goods or the actual provision of the services in return for an SPV should not be regarded as an independent transaction. For MPVs, VAT should be charged when the goods or services to which the voucher relates are supplied.

Registration procedures. In the case of mandatory VAT registration, retrospective VAT registration is required, provided that the business activities, causing the Finnish VAT registration obligation, have commenced in the past. In the case where a foreign entity opts to register voluntarily for VAT purposes in Finland, the earliest possible point of VAT registration is the date of the filing of the VAT registration form.

In Finland, the VAT registration form must be filed in paper format, including the company's trade register extract with an English translation attached. The form and its enclosures must be sent to the Finnish Tax Administration by post. On average, the completion of the VAT registration procedure takes two to four weeks after the filing of the VAT registration application.

Starting on 1 January 2024, according to Article 175, the tax administration must issue a decision to the person concerned for the VAT registration and the formation and dissolution of a VAT group referred to in Article 13a.

Deregistration. A taxable person that ceases to be eligible for VAT registration must deregister by filing a notification in paper format.

Where the original VAT registration was voluntary, the deregistration can be done at the earliest from the date when the deregistration form arrives at the tax administration.

Where the original VAT registration was mandatory, the deregistration can be effective retroactively from the date the VAT taxable activities have ended. If a VAT-registered company submits nil VAT declarations for several consecutive months, it is possible that the tax administration will deregister that taxable person from the VAT register.

Changes to VAT registration details. A taxable person is obliged to notify the tax administration when there is a change in its VAT registration details (change of name of company, address, type of business, VAT status, etc.). The change notification is filed in paper format or through the MyTax portal.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 24%
- Reduced rates: 10%, 14%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services, unless a specific measure allows for a reduced rate, the zero rate or an exemption.

Zero-rate supplies can also be classified as "exempt with credit," which means that no VAT is chargeable, but the supplier may recover related input tax. Examples of exempt-with-credit supplies include intangible services supplied to another taxable person established in the EU or to a recipient outside the EU.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Exports of goods
- Sale, leasing and chartering of sea-going vessels with prescribed characteristics, as well as work performed on such vessels
- Sales of goods or services to the EU Commission or another EU body to react for COVID-19, when certain preconditions are met

Examples of goods and services taxable at 10%

- Cinema
- Sporting services
- Books (printed and digital versions)
- Medicine
- Passenger transport
- Accommodation
- Compensation from copyrights received by a copyright organization that represents the copyright holders
- Newspapers and periodicals (printed and digital versions)

The Finnish government has plans to amend the VAT rates so that the changes would become effective as of 1 January 2025. According to these plans, the goods and services that are currently subject to 10% reduced VAT rate would be subject to 14% VAT rate, with the exception that newspapers and magazines would remain under 10%. Furthermore, the VAT rate on incontinence and menstrual protection and diapers would be reduced from current 24% to 14%.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 14%

- Most foodstuffs, including restaurant and catering services (food served at restaurants)
- Animal feed
- Drinking water

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Land and buildings
- Financial transactions
- Insurance
- Education
- Health and welfare
- Transfers of copyright ownership
- Universal postal services supplied by universal postal service providers

Option to tax for exempt supplies. Leasing of land and buildings is generally exempt. However, provided that the certain preconditions are met, the lessor may opt to register for VAT when leasing immovable property and consequently, charge leases with the standard VAT rate. This is possible only provided that the land and or building in question is used continuously for a taxable purpose, or in certain other separately prescribed situations. There are also some additional requirements for mutual real estate companies.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point." The basic time of supply is the month in which the goods are delivered, or the services are performed.

During the accounting year, a taxable person may account for VAT on the basis of invoices issued and received. At the end of the accounting year, the VAT reporting must be adjusted to follow the basic time of supply (i.e., on the basis of goods delivered and services performed).

Deposits and prepayments. The time of supply for an advance payment or prepayment is when the payment is received by the supplier (even if the supplier has not yet issued an invoice or made the supply).

Continuous supplies of services. The time of supply of the continuous supplies of services is the month in which a settlement period ends. A service for which invoicing is based on time spent rather than on amounts received is considered to be continuous.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules in Finland for supplies of goods sent on approval for sale or return. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

Reverse-charge services. There are no special time of supply rules in Finland for supplies of reverse-charge services. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

Leased assets. Usually, the (operational) lease of assets is seen as continuous supplies of services as the invoicing is based on time spent. The time of supply of continuously delivered services is the month in which a settlement period ends.

Imported goods. The tax point for importation of goods is the date of the written customs clearance confirming that the imported goods are in "free circulation" in the EU following their direct importation or their release from a customs regime. This is not necessarily the date on which the goods are imported.

Intra-Community acquisitions. The tax point for an intra-Community acquisition of goods is the month following the month in which the goods are received, but this is superseded if an invoice is issued in the month of receipt of the goods, where the tax point is the month of receipt of the goods.

Intra-Community supplies of goods. The time of supply of intra-Community supplies of goods reflects the time of supply of intra-Community acquisition. As a consequence, the basic time of supply for an intra-Community supply of goods is the month in which the goods are delivered to the purchaser. The tax point for an intra-Community supply of goods is the month following the one in which goods are delivered to the customer, but this is superseded if an invoice is issued in the month that the goods are delivered.

Distance sales. The time of supply for supplies of distance sales is the month in which the goods have been delivered to the recipient of the goods.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax, which is VAT charged on goods and services supplied to it for business purposes. The taxable person generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax, which is the VAT due on supplies made.

Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services supplied within Finland, VAT paid on imports of goods and VAT due on the intra-Community acquisition of goods and VAT self-assessed on acquisition of services or goods.

The time limit for a taxable person to reclaim input tax in Finland is three years. If a taxable person notices erroneously non-deducted input tax related to an earlier period, it may recover the input tax within three years, calculated from the beginning of the calendar year that follows the end of the fiscal year in question. For example, if a taxable person notices that input tax has not been recovered for November 2023, the input tax must be recovered and the VAT return corrected either by the end of 2026 (if fiscal year equals to calendar year) or by the end of 2027 (if the fiscal year would be ending for example 31 March 2024).

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use). In addition, input tax may not be recovered for some items of business expenditure.

The following lists provide some examples of items of expenditure for which input tax is not deductible and examples of items for which input tax is deductible if the expenditure is related to a taxable business use.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Business entertainment
- Purchase, lease, hire and maintenance of passenger cars and cars for mixed purposes (i.e., cars designed and equipped for carrying passengers and goods), unless used exclusively for VAT-deductible business use
- Private use of trucks and vans
- Fuel for private cars
- Private expenditure

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Hotel accommodation (VAT on hotel breakfast is not deductible)
- Books
- Advertising
- Staff entertainment (subject to limitations)
- Home and mobile telephone bills (portion of private use is nondeductible)
- Attendance at conferences, seminars and training courses
- Fuel and maintenance of vans, to the extent used for business purposes
- Public transport and taxis

Partial exemption. Input tax directly related to the making of exempt supplies is not generally recoverable. If a Finnish taxable person makes both exempt supplies and taxable supplies, it may not recover input tax in full. This is referred to as "partial exemption."

In Finland, the amount of input tax that a partially exempt business may recover is calculated in the following two stages:

- In the first stage, companies should identify whether the purchase may be directly allocated to either exempt or taxable supplies. Exempt-with-credit supplies are treated as taxable supplies for these purposes. Input tax directly allocated to exempt supplies is not deductible. Input tax directly allocated to taxable supplies is recoverable in full.
- The second stage apportions the remaining input tax, i.e., the input tax that relates to both taxable and exempt supplies, in order to allocate a portion to taxable supplies (which may then be recovered). The deductible part of a purchase that is used as both VAT taxable and exempt business activities is determined based on its usage. Thus, the pro rata calculation should demonstrate how the purchase is used in business activities subject to VAT. For example, this treatment applies to the input tax related to general business overhead costs.

There is no "standard method" for partial exemption in Finland. Any method that gives a reliable or precise calculation of the partial exemption may be used. Approval from the tax authorities is not required to use any method.

Capital goods. Capital goods are items of capital expenditure that are used in a business over several years. Input tax is deducted in the VAT year in which the goods are acquired. In Finland, special treatment for capital goods is restricted to purchases of land and buildings and to construction and fundamental improvements.

Special rules apply to deductions on real estate investments, including:

- Input tax on real estate investments is deducted in the VAT year in which the goods or services are acquired for taxable business purposes. The amount of input tax recovered depends on the use of the immovable property for taxable business activity. If the use of the property for taxable business activity increases or decreases, the amount of input tax recovered is adjusted. The right or obligation to adjust relates only to real estate used for business purposes.

- The adjustment period is 10 years, beginning with the year in which the construction or renovation work is completed. This period also applies to certain cases in which the real estate is taken into use after the completion of the real estate investment (that is, cases in which the real estate is not taken into use immediately after the real estate investment has been completed). Each year, 1/10 of the input tax paid for the real estate investment is subject to adjustment.
- The annual adjustment may result in either an increase or a decrease of deductible input tax, depending on whether the portion of taxable use of the property has increased or decreased compared with the year in which the investment was made. The annual adjustment is reported in the last periodic tax return of the calendar year in question (i.e., the periodic tax return for December). Adjustments do not apply to operating costs or maintenance costs.
- If the immovable property is sold to a business, the right or liability for adjustments is transferred to the acquiring business if not otherwise agreed. In some cases, a full adjustment must be made instead of annual adjustments.
- The adjustment and monitoring rules also apply to tenants that have made real estate investments with respect to the leased premises. Consequently, the status of the tenant is comparable to the status of the owner of the immovable property, with respect to the transfer of the adjustment obligation.

Other rules may also apply to specific situations, such as a sale of the real estate that is under construction. According to the Finnish Ministry of Finance, the effects of the judgment given by the Court of Justice of the European Union in the matter of C-787/18 (Sögård Fastigheter AB) shall be examined. This case refers to the transferability of the VAT adjustment liability. At the time of preparing this chapter, the government has proposed amending the Value Added Tax Act, and this is due to be submitted in 2024, but it is not clear when the changes will be introduced.

In Finland, the capital goods adjustment applies to construction services only. It does not apply to any other services.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax recoverable in a monthly period exceeds the amount of output tax payable in that period, the taxable person has an input tax credit.

Under the so-called MyTax procedure, the amount of VAT that has not been used for the payment of VAT due during the tax period (i.e., the input tax credit) is set off against other taxes due if needed or otherwise refunded to the taxable person after the tax period. Alternatively, the taxable person can allocate the amount of VAT into the tax account. This amount can be used for the payment of the VAT and other taxes due in the future. As a result of the introduction of the tax account procedure, two earlier practices are, in general, no longer applicable: the VAT advance refund procedure that applied during the accounting period and the VAT refund procedure that applied after the accounting period. For further information, see Section I. Returns and payment.

Pre-registration costs. In general, costs related to the starting up of a taxable business are deductible. A taxable person may deduct VAT on such acquisitions that have been purchased for the purposes of the upcoming business. The input tax on such costs should be allocated to the (first) calendar month during which the actual business activities and VAT liability start.

Bad debts. Bad debt relief is available for both established businesses and non-established businesses registered for VAT in Finland. The amount does not need to be final based on bankruptcy or enforcement procedures, but it must be considered to be accrued in accordance with good accounting practice.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred on purchases that are used for noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Finland.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Input tax incurred by non-established businesses that are not registered for VAT in Finland is recoverable. The Finnish VAT authorities refund VAT incurred by businesses that are neither established in Finland nor registered for VAT in Finland. Non-established businesses may claim Finnish VAT to the same extent as a VAT-registered business.

EU businesses. For businesses established in the EU, refunds are made under the terms of EU Directive 2008/9. The VAT refund procedure under EU Directive 2008/9 may be used only if the business did not perform any taxable supplies in Finland during the refund period (excluding supplies covered by the reverse charge). For full details, see the chapter on the EU.

Find below specific rules for Finland:
- Under EU Directive 2008/9, a claim form must be filed electronically with the domestic tax authorities of the taxable person's country. According to the Finnish tax authority guidelines, applicants should use the electronic portal maintained by the tax authority in their Member State of establishment to reclaim Finnish VAT. The Finnish Tax Administration processes the electronically submitted applications in Finland.
- The section of the tax.fi website called "ALVEU" has an electronic question/answer service, called "Contact User Support" (tax.fi/ALVEU).
- The claim form may have to contain a closer specification of the invoices and importation documents (among others, the nature of the purchased goods or services itemized to different codes).

Non-EU businesses. For businesses established outside the EU, refunds are made under the terms of the EU 13th VAT Directive. For full details, see the chapter on the EU.

Finland does not exclude claimants from any non-EU country from the refund process and does not require reciprocity.

Find below specific rules for Finland:
- The deadline for refund claims is 30 June of the year following the year in which the supply was made. The date of supply may be earlier than the date of the invoice. The deadline for claims is strictly enforced.
- Claims must be submitted in Finnish, English or Swedish. The refund application must be accompanied by the appropriate documentation.
- The minimum claim period is three consecutive months during the same calendar year. The maximum claim period is one year. The minimum claim amount for a period of less than a year is EUR400. For an annual claim, the minimum amount is EUR50.
- According to the Finnish tax authority guidelines, refunds must be requested in writing. Form 9550 must be submitted, and the completed form should be sent to:

  Finnish Tax Administration
  P.O. Box 560
  FI-00052 VERO
  Finland

Late payment interest. In Finland, interest is not paid on late refunds to non-established businesses (for both EU and non-EU non-established businesses).

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A Finnish taxable person must generally provide a VAT invoice for all supplies made to other taxable persons and to all legal entities, including exports and intra-Community supplies. There are no obligations to issue invoices for advance payments for intra-Community supplies. Invoices are required for supplies to private persons regarding intra-Community supplies of new means of transport and distance sales.

Both sales and purchase invoices must be in accordance with the Finnish VAT invoicing rules. A purchaser of goods and services may recover the input tax on the purchase only if it retains an invoice that fulfills the requirements. If purchase invoices do not fulfill all the requirements, the purchaser may lose the right to recover the input tax, unless the inadequate invoice is replaced with a new (corrected) invoice.

An invoice for intra-Community supplies of goods carried out in accordance with the conditions specified in Article 138 or for supplies of services for which VAT is payable by the customer pursuant to Article 196 must be issued on the 15th day of the following month at the latest.

Credit notes. A VAT credit note may be used to reduce the VAT charged and reclaimed on a supply. An invoice must be issued for annual discounts, rebates, etc. The credit note must include a reference (e.g., invoice number) to the original invoice to which the credit applies. If the credit does not apply to a specific invoice, but is, for example, a discount for a certain period of time, then the invoice can be marked with additional information about the period of discounts.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is allowed in Finland, but not mandatory.

Scope of electronic invoicing. For B2B, B2C and business-to-government (B2G) supplies, electronic invoicing is allowed but not mandatory. This is in line with EU Directive 2010/45/EU and 2014/55/EU (see the chapter on the EU).

There are no provisions in Finland that would unambiguously require electronic invoicing to be mandatory as such. However, the law stipulates that for B2G supplies the business must have the right to use electronic invoicing (government entities must accept electronic invoices). Furthermore, it is stipulated that for B2B and B2C supplies the purchaser has the right to require electronic invoices from its vendors. The law is not applied to entrepreneurs whose turnover is EUR10,000 or less.

For the EU VAT in the Digital Age (ViDA) proposals, refer to the chapter on the European Union.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified VAT invoices may be issued in the following cases:
- Invoices for amounts up to EUR400 (including VAT)
- Invoices relating to supplies made by certain businesses whose clients are principally private persons, such as retailers and kiosks and hairdressers
- Invoices regarding passenger transport or restaurant services and receipts concerning parking meters and vending machines

Self-billing. Self-billing is allowed in Finland. There must be an agreement (written or oral) between the supplier and the purchaser on applying the self-billing arrangement. The general invoicing requirements apply also in self-billing cases and the supplier is responsible for the accuracy of the invoice.

Proof of exports and intra-Community supplies. Finnish VAT is not chargeable on supplies of exported goods or on the intra-Community supply of goods. However, to qualify as VAT-free, exports and intra-Community supplies must be supported by evidence, such as proof that the goods have left Finland. For an export, acceptable proof includes a copy of the export document, officially validated by customs. The authorities may also approve the use of other documentation such as consignment notes (or other commercial evidence) or the import declaration of the customs destination. Depending on the party that arranges the transportation, other requirements may need to be satisfied for the VAT exemption to be allowed.

For an intra-Community supply, proof of transportation of the goods movement from Finland to another EU Member State and valid VAT number of the customer in the other EU Member State is required.

No special documentation applies in Finland for evidencing the application of the Quick Fixes. In Finland, a supplier submits export and re-export declarations in the Export Declaration Service of the Finnish Customs. An electronic export declaration must be submitted to Customs for all goods exported from the EU, but for a few exceptions. The most common exceptions are the following:

- Postal parcels with a maximum value of 1,000 euros
- Personal goods carried by passengers

Foreign currency invoices. A valid Finnish VAT invoice may be issued in a foreign currency, but the VAT amount must be converted to euros (EUR) using the latest selling rate of the Bank of Finland or the rate published by the European Central Bank at the time the tax becomes chargeable.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. Finnish suppliers are not specifically required to issue tax invoices to nontaxable customers, but in practice, an invoice may often be required.

Distance selling. For intra-Community distance sales made B2C, a full VAT invoice must be issued. However, if the supplier operates the OSS regime, then no full VAT invoice is required unless requested.

Records. In Finland, examples of what records must be held for VAT purposes include bookkeeping materials (bookkeeping, financial statements, annual report, etc.) and tax invoices. In Finland, VAT books and records can be kept outside of the country. As of 1 January 2023, the provisions of the VAT Act concerning the storage location of invoices was amended in line with the amendment to the Accounting Act, so that taxable persons can now determine the storage location of invoices themselves. The review of invoices must be possible in Finland for the tax authority without undue delay, and it is also required that there is a complete real-time computer connection to the invoices stored electronically abroad.

Record retention period. The retention period for bookkeeping materials is 10 years. As a general rule, invoices must be kept for six years. In certain specific situations, longer retention periods apply, e.g., 13 years for invoices and documents related to real estate investments subject to the VAT monitoring liability.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is allowed in Finland. This documentation can be stored abroad provided that the storage is arranged by electronic means and real-time access from Finland is guaranteed.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. Finnish periodic VAT returns are submitted monthly or, in certain cases, quarterly or annually.

The taxable person files self-assessed tax returns, such as VAT returns, and EU Sales Lists in the Finnish Tax Administration's online portal, MyTax.

In general, the periodic VAT return must be filed electronically by the 12th day of the second month following the return period. For example, the due date for the January 2024 VAT return is 12 March 2024.

If the taxable person's tax period is a calendar year, the due date for the VAT return and payment of the tax due is the 28th day of the second month following the return period. The periodic VAT return is considered to be filed on time when the Finnish tax authorities receive the VAT return within the prescribed period.

Voluntary extensions of VAT reporting and payment periods to a quarter or a year are available for small companies (turnover not more than EUR100,000 or EUR30,000 per calendar year, respectively).

Periodic payments. Under the MyTax procedure, all taxes and payments are entered into a tax account maintained by the tax authority. The taxable person must pay all taxes due, in euros, by the 12th day of the month by using a certain reference number to one of the bank accounts indicated by the Finnish Tax Administration for VAT payments. The amount of VAT that is not used for the payment of VAT due during the tax period is set off against other taxes due if needed or otherwise refunded to the taxable person after the tax period. Alternatively, the taxable person can retain the VAT in the tax account and use it for the payment of the VAT (or other taxes) due in the future.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is mandatory in Finland for all taxable persons. However, the Finnish Tax Administration may temporarily allow taxable persons to file a paper VAT return if the taxable person does not have access to electronic filing. Non-Finnish users can also have access to electronic filing services. E-filing of documents, such as VAT returns and EU Sales Lists, is organized through a so-called Suomi.fi identification (the formerly used Katso ID has been replaced from 1 August 2021 by the Suomi.fi identification). Consequently, in order to be able to make electronic filings, taxable persons should set up Suomi.fi credentials for electronic filing. The setup of an e-filing procedure is rather complex, especially for foreign companies with no Finnish citizens as employees.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Finland.

Special schemes. Cash accounting. Small companies with turnover less than EUR500,000 per financial year can notify and pay the VAT on a cash basis. This simplification only concerns fully domestic transactions.

Margin scheme. A special VAT margin scheme also applies for transactions carried out by travel agents and for transactions concerning secondhand goods, works of art, collectors' items and antiques.

Reindeer herding. For the purposes of VAT on reindeer husbandry, the herd and its reindeer owners form one taxable person, i.e., a reindeer owners' association. This means, among other things, that within the association, purchases and sales related to reindeer husbandry are exempt from VAT (from the association to a shareholder and vice versa, and from one shareholder to another). Sales are subject to VAT when reindeer meat or other reindeer products are sold outside the reindeer owners' association, either through the association or as the reindeer owner's own direct sales.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Finland.

Supplementary filings. Intrastat. A Finnish taxable person that trades with other EU countries must complete statistical reports, known as Intrastat, if the value of its sales or purchases exceeds certain thresholds. Separate reports are required for intra-Community acquisitions (Intrastat Arrivals) and for intra-Community supplies (Intrastat Dispatches).

The threshold for Intrastat Arrivals and Intrastat Dispatches for 2023 is EUR800,000. At the time of preparing this chapter, the thresholds for 2024 have not been announced.

Finnish taxable persons must complete Intrastat declarations in EUR.

The Intrastat return period is monthly. The submission deadline is the 10th business day following the return period.

EU Sales Lists. If a Finnish taxable person makes intra-Community supplies, it must submit an EU Sales List (ESL; also called an EU recapitulative statement) to the Finnish tax authorities. An ESL is not required for any period in which a taxable person does not make any intra-Community supplies. Supplies falling under Article 44 of the EU VAT Directive must be reported on an ESL if the purchaser is located in the EU and is liable to pay the VAT on behalf of the supplier in the country where the purchaser is established.

The reporting period for an ESL is one month. The due date for filing the ESL is the 20th day of the month following the month of the transaction. The ESL must be filed electronically. Subject to certain conditions, the tax authorities can allow the taxable person to file the ESL in paper format if a request is made.

Correcting errors in previous returns. An error in a VAT return is corrected by submitting a replacement VAT return for the period containing the error. Minor errors, where the value of VAT due is less than EUR500, may be corrected for the period in which the error was discovered.

Digital tax administration. There are no transactional reporting requirements in Finland.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. There is no specific penalty in Finland for the late registration of VAT. However, if the late registration results in the late submission of VAT returns or the late payment of VAT, penalties are imposed.

Penalties for late payment and filings. For the late payment of VAT, interest at an annual rate of 7% is assessed for 2023 beginning with the day following the due date to the date of payment. If the periodic tax return is filed late, a penalty payment of EUR3 per day is assessed until the tax return is filed, up to a maximum of EUR135 per return. If the tax return is filed more than 45 days late, the penalty payment is EUR135 plus 2% of the VAT payable on the return in question. The maximum amount of the penalty payment dependent on the tax payable is EUR15,000 per type of tax per tax period.

For Intrastat, a penalty is assessed for late filing or for a failure to submit a return or for the submission of an incorrect Intrastat return in an amount ranging between EUR10 and EUR2,500.

For ESL, the tax authorities may impose a penalty fee of EUR100 if the ESL is filed up to 45 days late, or EUR200 if the ESL is filed more than 45 days late.

Penalties for errors. A punitive tax increase will be imposed in case of submitting incorrect or erroneous tax returns, any other returns/declarations, as well as any other required information or clarification, or in case any of the aforementioned documents or information have not been submitted at all. As a main rule, the amount of punitive tax increase is 10% of the amount of tax payable. However, the amount of tax increase may vary and be between 15%–50% depending, e.g., on the degree, extent and recurrence of the neglect.

Failure to notify or late notification to the tax authorities of changes to a taxable person's VAT registration details may result in penalties for noncompliance. Such penalties may be charged where such changes have an effect on the VAT status of the taxable person. If, for example, VAT is not accounted for correctly, the tax administration may impose a penal tax increase, which is normally 10%. For further details, see the subsection above Changes to VAT registration details.

Penalties for fraud. Both minor VAT misdemeanors and VAT/tax offenses are punishable under the Finnish penal code. Respectively, VAT fraud is punishable under provisions of criminal legislation.

Personal liability for company officers. Company directors can be held personally liable for errors and omissions in VAT declarations and reporting if they are personally liable for tax, for example, in the case of a limited partnership.

Statute of limitations. The statute of limitations in Finland is three years. If a taxable person notices an error in its VAT returns, the error must be corrected within three years from the accounting period or tax year in which the tax concerns. The three-year time limit is calculated from the beginning of the next calendar year.

The same three-year time limit concerns the tax authorities who can go back to review a taxable person's VAT returns and identify errors and impose penalties. Additionally, the tax authorities may continue the reassessment period for one year due to information received from other authorities, information received exceptionally late from a third party, or taxable persons' late filing or other actions that aim at delaying the process. An extended six-year period is applicable in case of information received from international exchange of information between tax authorities other than automatic exchange of information.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- The supply of goods or services performed in France by a taxable person
- The intra-Community acquisitions of goods from another European Union (EU) Member State by a taxable person or, under certain circumstances, by a nontaxable legal person (see the EU chapter)
- The intra-Community acquisition of new means of transport from another EU Member State by any person
- Reverse-charge services received by a taxable person in France (i.e., services for which the recipient must account for the VAT due)
- The importation of goods from outside the EU, regardless of the status of the importer

For VAT purposes, the territory of France includes Corsica and Monaco. The Overseas Dependencies of the islands of Guadeloupe, Martinique and Réunion are considered to be export territories with respect to the other EU Member States, as well as with respect to mainland France (see the EU chapter), although French VAT is applicable in these territories (with specificities). VAT does not apply in French Guiana (Guyane) and Mayotte.

Quick Fixes. Pending introduction of a "definitive" system for the VAT treatment of intra-Community supplies of goods to taxable persons, the EU has adopted Quick Fixes for intra-Community trade in goods. For an overview of the Quick Fixes rules, see the EU chapter. For documentary requirements see Section H. Invoicing, subsection Proof of exports and intra-Community supplies.

The Quick Fixes rules have been implemented in France and in force as of 1 January 2020. Outlined below is a summary of the new system.
- A reinforcement of the conditions of VAT exemption relating to intra-EU deliveries of goods. To benefit from the VAT exemption of these supplies two new conditions must be met:
  - The customer must be identified for VAT purposes in a Member State other than that of the departure or dispatch of the goods.
  - The customer must communicate to the supplier their VAT ID in the arrival country before the shipment of goods occurs. Where it is established that the customer is a taxable person acting as such at the time of acquisition and subsequently provides its vendor with a VAT identification number issued by the Member State of destination, and there is no indication of fraud or abuse, the vendor must issue a corrective invoice.
- VAT exemption may be challenged by the FTA whether or not the supplier files a recapitulative statement.
- The presumption of transport of goods regarding intra-EU deliveries. Article 45a of the Implementing Regulation 2018/1912 of 4 December 2018 provides that goods are presumed to have been transported from one Member State to another Member State referring to intra-EU deliveries. In this respect, proofs of transport must be kept by the supplier and those differ depending on whether the dispatch/intra-EU delivery is carried out by the seller/a third party on their behalf/the buyer/a third party on their behalf. Specific proofs are listed, but the list is not exhaustive (e.g., written confirmation by the purchases of the receipts of the goods). Note that the FTA allows economic operators to prove by any means that goods left EU departure country.
- A clarification of the rules for the taxation of chain sales. When the same goods are subject to subsequent supplies and are dispatched/transported from one Member State to another Member State directly from the first supplier to the last customer of the chain, the VAT exempt transport/dispatch should be allocated to:
  - The supplies between the supplier and the intermediate operator (the latter being defined as a taxable person in the chain, other than the first supplier, who dispatches or transports the goods themselves or through a third party acting on their behalf)

  - The supply made by the intermediate operator, by derogation, when they have communicated to their supplier the VAT identification number allocated by the Member State of departure of the dispatch or transport of the goods
- The introduction of a simplification measure for stocks under a contract of deposit; this simplification measure avoids the need for the seller to be registered for VAT in the country of arrival of the goods and allows an intra-Community supply to be considered only at the time of collection by the buyer from the seller's stocks – if specific conditions are met

Effective use and enjoyment. To avoid instances of non-taxation or double taxation, EU Member States can apply use and enjoyment rules that allow a service that is "used and enjoyed" in the EU to be taxed or prevent a service that is "used and enjoyed" outside the EU from being taxed. If a service is taxed in the EU under the use and enjoyment provisions, a non-EU supplier of the service may be required to register for VAT in every Member State where it has customers that are not taxable persons. For information regarding the rules relating to VAT registration, see the chapters on the respective EU countries.

In France, the following services are subject to the "use and enjoyment" provisions:
- Article 59a of Directive 2006/112/EC allows Member States to consider the place of supply of telecommunications, broadcasting and/or electronic services provided to non-VAT taxable persons (private individuals):
  - If situated within their territory, as being outside the EU if the service is effectively used and enjoyed outside the Community
  - If situated outside of the European Union, as being situated within their territory if the service is effectively used and enjoyed in their territory

Article 59a has been implemented in France and it is currently in force.

Transfer of a going concern. The definition of a transfer of a going concern (TOGC) given by EU case law (CJEC–C-497/01–Zita Modes) and implemented by the French administrative doctrine is rather extensive: the transfer must concern "a business or an autonomous part of an undertaking, including tangible and, where appropriate, intangible elements that together constitute an undertaking or part of an undertaking capable of pursuing an autonomous economic activity."

However, to benefit from the VAT relief scheme within the meaning of Article 257 bis of the French Tax Code (FTC), two additional conditions must be met: (i) the acquirer must continue to carry on the activity of the undertaking or the autonomous part of the transferred undertaking; this means, e.g., that transferred assets must not subsequently be retransferred again by the acquiring entity; however, the recipient is not required to continue exactly the same activity as that previously carried on by the transferor; and (ii) both parties must be taxable persons liable for VAT. In this context, the FTA usually requires both parties to be VAT registered in France due to French capital scheme.

Transactions between related parties. In France, there are no specific rules for the value for VAT purposes for transactions between related parties.

C. Who is liable

A taxable person is any business entity or individual that performs taxable supplies of goods or services, intra-Community acquisitions, imports or distance sales, in France in the course of a business.

Under the franchise regime, the following thresholds apply to small French-established businesses:
- Sales of goods: EUR91,900 during the previous year (or EUR101,000 when the turnover did not exceed the EUR91,900 threshold during the year before the previous year)
- Supplies of services: EUR36,800 during the previous year (or EUR39,100 when the turnover did not exceed the EUR36,800 threshold during the year before the previous year)

A taxable person that begins business activity in France must notify the French VAT authorities and register for VAT within 15 days.

Exemption from registration. The VAT law in France does not contain any provision for exemption from registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. Taxable persons that are established in France have the option to voluntarily register for VAT through voluntarily waving the application of the franchise regime, which is for small French-established businesses, such that they can be taxable and can register for VAT.

For foreign taxable persons, there is one specific scenario where they will be able to voluntarily register for VAT in France. This is in the case of renting an immovable property on an unfurnished basis. If the taxable person wants to opt to tax the renting of an immovable property on an unfurnished basis, it will have to be VAT registered before it makes this option. See more detail on the option to tax in the Section D. Rates below.

At the time of preparing this chapter, the Finance Bill 2024 proposes changes to the franchise regime. However, the Finance Bill 2024 has not been adopted. If the provisions relating to the franchise regime are adopted, the new rules will only apply from January 2025. The proposed rules focus on the transposing of the provisions of Directive (EU) 2020/285 of 18 February 2020 on the special VAT regime for small businesses (i.e., franchise regime). The Finance Bill for 2024 provides for reform of the VAT exemption regime as follows:

- Concerning the scope of the scheme, taxable persons established in an EU Member State would be able to benefit from the exemption not only in their state of establishment but also in other Member States, provided they do not exceed an overall European sales ceiling of EUR100,000; thus:
- Taxable persons established in France may operate in other Member States and benefit from the exemption system applicable there, provided they have identified themselves in France and send their tax department, on a quarterly basis, the sales achieved in each Member State
  - Conversely, taxable persons whose head office is located in another Member State would benefit from the exemptions applicable in France, provided they complete the same formalities in their State of establishment.
  - Taxable persons established in a third country would benefit from the same system, provided they have identified themselves in a Member State of their choice where they have a permanent establishment.

Group registration. Law No 2020-1721 of 29 December 2020 introduced Article 256 C of the FTC, pre-setting out the single taxable person regime that is effective from 1 January 2023.

The VAT group allows the creation of a single taxable person within a group of financially, economically and organizationally linked companies. The main advantage of the VAT group is the simplification that results from the creation of a single taxable person, with a single identification number and filing a single return. Its aim is to simplify the tax management of groups by allowing intra-group economic transactions to be completely offset for VAT purposes.

The scheme is optional and flexible in that the scope is freely chosen and can be adapted later under conditions.

All members of a VAT group in France are jointly and severally liable for VAT debts and VAT penalties. This includes the payment of the tax and for any adjustments up to the amount they would have been liable for in the absence of a VAT group.

The option for the VAT group must be formulated by the latest on 31 October of the year preceding its application. It takes effect on 1 January of the year following the year in which it was made. The minimum time period required for the duration of a VAT group is three years.

Consolidated payment of VAT. Consolidated payment of VAT allows the parent company of a group to pay the VAT and the taxes, contributions and fees declared on the Annex of the French VAT return, due by all the members of the group. The option for centralized VAT payment must be distinguished from the optional VAT group scheme.

The parent company is therefore required to pay the amount of VAT equal to the difference between the amounts of VAT due and the tax credits enjoyed by the members of its group for the same month.

If at the end of this difference a VAT credit is established, only the parent company of the group will be able to deduct it from the amount of VAT due for the following months or to claim its reimbursement. In the latter case, the amount of VAT reimbursed will have to be distributed among the subsidiaries, according to the terms of the integration agreement concluded within the group.

Thus, the parent company becomes the sole taxable person of its group, and all other taxable persons of the group will be exempt from their obligation to pay VAT, as well as from any duties, late payment interest and penalties incurred as a result of the infringements committed by the group members. However, the consolidation regime only concerns the payment of VAT, and the subsidiaries remain taxable persons for VAT purposes, subject to all other obligations inherent to such status.

Each member remains liable for its own tax obligations and will therefore continue to file its own VAT returns. The parent company, on the other hand, will only file, in addition to its own French VAT return (CA3), a monthly recapitulative return that should be presented as a simple statement summing up the net VAT due by the members of the group, as well as the VAT credits from which they benefit.

Any accounting audits will be carried out on each entity of the group, as each member will continue to complete and file its VAT returns independently with respect to its own accounting.

Although the parent company becomes, once the option for the consolidation regime comes into force, the only person liable for VAT for the group, the subsidiaries are not exempt from any payment obligation toward the Treasury. Indeed, each of them remains jointly and severally liable with the parent company for the payment of VAT, as well as any duties, late interest and penalties for which it would be liable if the option for consolidation had not been exercised.

Holding companies. In France, a pure holding company cannot be a member of a VAT group since it cannot be considered a taxable person for VAT purposes within the meaning of Article 256 A of the FTC.

Cost-sharing exemption. The VAT cost-sharing exemption (in accordance with VAT Directive 2006/112/EEC Article 132(1)(f)) has been transposed into Article 261 B of the FTC. This provides an option to exempt support services that the cost-sharing group supplies to its members, providing certain conditions are met (in accordance with specific requirements laid out in France VAT law).

Services rendered to their members by groups formed by natural or legal persons exercising an activity that is exempt from VAT or for which they do not have the status of taxable person are exempt from this tax on the condition that they contribute directly and exclusively to the carrying out of these transactions that are exempt or excluded from the scope of value-added tax and that the sums claimed from the members correspond exactly to their share of the common expenses.

Fixed establishment. As preliminary remarks, the concepts of "permanent establishment" for corporate income tax (CIT) purposes and "fixed establishment" for VAT purposes are two independent notions, based on different criteria, which should not be mixed.

Indeed, the concept of fixed establishment relates exclusively to VAT matters and is used to determine VAT registration and VAT collection obligations.

According to the guidelines of the French tax authorities, a VAT fixed establishment is characterized by a sufficient degree of permanence, as well as the human and technical resources necessary to do the following:
- To independently perform supplies of goods or services ("supplier" VAT establishment)
- To use supplies of goods or services that are provided to it ("recipient" VAT establishment)
- To be involved in supplies of goods or services rendered in France by the headquarters ("participant" VAT establishment)

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that has no statutory seat nor fixed establishment for VAT purposes in the territory of France. If a non-established taxable person exclusively performs supplies that are subject to the reverse-charge mechanism, it does not need to register for VAT in France.

Tax representatives. Businesses established outside the EU in countries not having signed a convention regarding mutual assistance in tax matters with France (except some listed countries, for example the United Kingdom and Northern Ireland) must appoint a tax representative to register for VAT. The tax representative for VAT must be known and accepted by the French tax authorities and is jointly and severally liable with the non-established businesses represented by it for all French VAT liabilities.

Foreign businesses established within the EU or in countries having signed a convention regarding mutual assistance in tax matters with France (except some listed countries) may either register for VAT directly or appoint a VAT agent who files the registration form and the periodic VAT returns on behalf of the foreign company. In contrast to a VAT representative, the VAT agent acts under the responsibility of the foreign entity. The same rules apply to businesses established in countries that have concluded a tax treaty with France covering mutual assistance.

Reverse charge. Under a mandatory reverse-charge mechanism, the recipient of goods or services holding a French VAT number is liable to settle the French VAT incurred on the (local) supply of goods or services performed by a taxable person not established in France, regardless of where the recipient is established. An entity is considered VAT-established in France if it holds a sufficient degree of permanence and a suitable structure in terms of human (French resident employees) and technical resources (e.g., leased cars) in France enabling it to receive the supply of goods or services in France.

From 1 January 2022, the import reverse-charge mechanism is mandatory and import VAT is now self-assessed on the VAT return. In this context, the management and collection of import VAT has been transferred to the General Directorate of Public Finance (Direction générale des Finances publiques [DGFiP]) instead of the customs administration.

Taxable persons who declare imports for which the chargeable event occurs on or after 1 January 2022 benefit from a postponement of the date for submitting the VAT return to the 24th of the month following the period (month or quarter) during which the import was carried out.

Domestic reverse charge. In addition, specific domestic reverse-charge rules apply to the following:
- Delivery of natural gas and electricity
- Supplies of gold or golden products with a purity of more than 325/1000
- Supplies and work performance on new industrial waste and recoverable material
- Transfer of allowances to emit greenhouse gases
- Electronic communications services
- Construction work, including repair, cleaning, maintenance, reconstruction and demolition services related to immovable property carried on by a subcontractor

Digital economy. Specific VAT rules apply to cross-border supplies of goods and services sold via the internet (e-commerce) in all EU Member States with effect from 1 July 2021. These new rules apply to all direct sales to nontaxable persons (in practice these are mostly private individuals), but we refer to these rules as e-commerce VAT rules because most of these transactions are conducted via the internet. In general, the place of supply is in the country of consumption, i.e., where the goods are shipped to or where the buyer of the goods or services resides, subject to any "use and enjoyment" provisions that may override this rule (see Section B. Effective use and enjoyment subsection above). Therefore:

- For supplies of services made by a nonresident supplier to a business customer (i.e., B2B), the business customer is responsible for accounting for the VAT due, using the reverse charge.
- For supplies of goods made by a nonresident supplier to a business customer (i.e., B2B), where the goods are transported from another EU Member State, the business purchasing the goods is responsible for accounting for the VAT due as an intra-Community acquisition. If the goods come from outside the EU, the purchaser may have to report an importation of goods.
- For supplies of goods or services made by a nonresident supplier to a final consumer (i.e., B2C), the supplier is generally responsible for charging and accounting for the VAT due at the rate applicable in the customer's country (unless the supplier's sales fall beneath the distance selling threshold of EUR10,000 with effect from 1 July 2021). This VAT can be reported using a single VAT registration, using a "One-Stop-Shop" mechanism.

For more details about intra-EU distance sales, see the EU chapter.

Effective 1 July 2021, an e-commerce supplier may have a choice of how to account for VAT on its B2C supplies.

Local VAT registration. A nonresident supplier may choose to register for VAT in each Member State and account for VAT on all supplies made and recover input tax in accordance with local rules (see the Non-established businesses subsection above). Non-EU businesses may be required to appoint a fiscal representative for accounting for the VAT due on these transactions.

In France, the appointment of a fiscal representative is mandatory for taxable persons established in a non-EU country that have not signed an agreement on mutual assistance in the recovery of tax debts with France and who carry out transactions in France for which they are liable to pay tax (or for which they are required to fulfill reporting obligations in France without being liable to pay VAT).

One-Stop Shop. Effective 1 July 2021, a supplier can choose to account for the VAT due under the EU One-Stop Shop (OSS), which can be used for intra-EU cross-border supplies of goods and all cross-border supplies of services made to final consumers in the EU. Unlike the previous Mini One-Stop-Shop (MOSS) scheme that applied until 30 June 2021, the OSS is not limited to cross-border supplies of electronic services, telecommunication services and broadcasting services.

The OSS is an electronic portal that allows businesses to:

- Register for VAT electronically as a single Member State for all intra-EU distance sales of goods and for B2C supplies of services
- Declare and pay VAT due on all supplies of goods and services in a single electronic quarterly return

The OSS can be used by businesses established in the EU and outside the EU. If a supplier or a deemed supplier decides to register for the OSS, it must declare and pay VAT for all supplies (goods as well as services) that fall under the OSS.

In France, the OSS does not apply to territorialized overseas transactions, whether they involve the supply of goods, services or imports, including when VAT applies (i.e., as with the islands of Guadeloupe, Martinique and Reunion).

Whether it is the EU or non-EU scheme, the taxable person who wishes to be covered (or is covered) by a particular scheme must inform the administration of the Member State of identification of the moment when it starts its activity as a taxable person, ceases it or modifies it in such a way that it no longer fulfills the conditions required to be able to avail itself of that scheme.

The VAT return must be filed by the last day of the month following each calendar quarter, even if no transactions were carried out during that period.

The payment of the VAT due is made at the time of filing the relevant return and at the latest on the last day of the month following each calendar quarter. Each payment must indicate the reference number of the return to which it relates.

Taxable persons may not make any deduction of VAT in the OSS. The tax borne in connection with the transactions declared in the OSS is, depending on the case, deducted on the ordinary VAT return if the taxable person is identified for VAT purposes in France for transactions other than those declared in the OSS or according to the special procedure for reimbursing foreign taxable persons in the opposite case.

For more details about the operation of the OSS, see the EU chapter.

Import One-Stop Shop. Effective 1 July 2021, the Import One-Stop-Shop (IOSS) scheme applies for B2C distance sales of goods from outside the EU.

Effective 1 July 2021, VAT is due on all commercial goods imported into the EU regardless of their value. The actual supply is subject to VAT in the country where the goods are imported (the country of destination). The IOSS facilitates the declaration and payment of VAT due on the sale of low-value goods (i.e., consignments valued at less than EUR150 per consignment). It allows suppliers selling low-value goods dispatched or transported from a non-EU country to customers in the EU to collect, declare and pay the VAT due. If the IOSS is used, the importation into the EU is exempt from VAT.

In France, for this scheme, the intrinsic value means the price of the goods contained in the shipment, excluding transport and insurance costs (unless these are included in the price and are not indicated separately on the invoice) and all other taxes and charges. The operation of this scheme is similar to that of the OSS EU and non-EU schemes detailed above, in particular with regard to the declaration and payment procedures and the deduction rules.

For more details about the IOSS, see the EU chapter.

The use of the IOSS special scheme is not mandatory. If VAT is not collected via the IOSS scheme, the importation of goods into the EU is subject to import VAT in the country of final destination, and the Member State can decide freely who is liable to pay the import VAT, which could be the customer or the seller (or an electronic interface).

Postal Services and Couriers Scheme. If the IOSS is not used and the customer is liable for the import VAT due on the supply (and importation) of consignments with a small intrinsic value (i.e., less than EUR150), the VAT can be collected using the special scheme for postal services and couriers.

In France there are no additional specific local rules that apply.

For more details about the special scheme for postal services and couriers, see the EU chapter.

Online marketplaces and platforms. Under the new EU VAT e-commerce rules effective 1 July 2021, taxable persons that "facilitate" certain B2C sales of goods are deemed to have purchased and then supplied those goods themselves. This means that the single supply from the "underlying" supplier to the final consumer is split into two deemed supplies:

- A supply from the supplier to the facilitator (deemed B2B supply)
- A supply from the facilitator to the final customer (deemed B2C supply); any intermediation service provided by the facilitator is disregarded for VAT purposes

This provision does not cover all sales facilitated via the facilitator. It only covers distance sales of goods imported from non-EU jurisdictions in consignments with an intrinsic value not exceeding EUR150. The jurisdiction of residence of the supplier using the facilitator is irrelevant. The supply to the facilitating platform is VAT exempt and the supplies made by that platform follow the e-commerce VAT rules as described above. In addition, the provision also covers sales within the EU, if the supplier is not established within the EU. This applies to both local shipments within one Member State as well as intra-Community shipments. In both cases, the final customer must be a nontaxable person.

In France, a facilitating taxable person is one who:
- Directly or indirectly lays down any of the general conditions under which the supply of goods is made
- Who intervenes, directly or indirectly, in the authorization of the invoicing to the purchaser with regard to the payment made
- Which intervenes, directly or indirectly, in the order or delivery of the goods

When more than one electronic interface is involved in the ordering process, the "facilitating" taxable person is the one who operates the one on which the order is registered and through which the transaction is finalized.

For more details about the rules for online marketplaces, see the EU chapter.

Vouchers. Article 256 ter, 3-a of the French Tax Code implemented the EU Directive 2016/1065 regarding VAT treatment of vouchers. A voucher is an instrument where there is an obligation to accept it as consideration or part consideration for a supply of goods or services and where the goods or services to be supplied or the identities of their potential suppliers are either indicated on the instrument itself or in related documentation, including the terms and conditions of use of such instrument.

Vouchers are classified as a "single-purpose voucher" (SPV) or "multi-purpose voucher" (MPV). SPVs are vouchers where the place of supply of the goods or services to which the voucher relates, and the VAT due on those goods or services is known at the time of issue of the voucher. The VAT on SPVs becomes due upon the time of issuance. MPVs are vouchers, other than SPVs, triggering the fact that the VAT due is unknown at the time of issue of the voucher.

Registration procedures. Registration requires completing a specific form and specific documents (e.g., articles of association). The registration form must indicate the address of the company, its main activity and the address where the company keeps its accounting records. Moreover, the company must attach a certificate of registration in the Trade and Companies registry in its country as well as the original of a certificate of taxable person status delivered in its EU Member State, the article of association, as well as the French translation of the main articles and in certain cases, an original proxy (i.e., if EY is appointed as representative). Finally, the applicant must justify its intention to perform taxable activities in France.

Businesses established outside the EU must include with their applications the "proxy" appointing the fiscal representative (see above).

The complete file is to be sent to the following tax office for EU businesses:

Service des Impôts des Entreprises Etrangères
10, rue du Centre
93465 Noisy-Le-Grand Cedex, France

The VAT registration is free of charge and no guarantee is required. It generally takes six to eight weeks to obtain a VAT number, provided a complete VAT application file is sent and no further questions are raised.

The application must be sent by the postal service to the relevant tax service and/or by email.

Deregistration. When ending economic activities, a company must file a specific form (i.e., a Form M4 for non-EU businesses or a déclaration de cessation for EU businesses), within 30 days (extended to 60 days under certain circumstances) following the date of the end of activity. This form must list the transactions performed by the company during this period and the ending date of the activity.

The company is required to regularize its position before the tax authorities, depending on whether it is in a VAT credit position (i.e., net input tax to be refunded) or in a VAT debit position (i.e., net output tax due). In the first case, the company can apply for a refund of its VAT credit within a period of 30 days running as from the date of the end of activity. In the second case, the company must settle the remaining VAT due through the filing of its VAT return.

Usually, the company will not be allowed to deduct the input tax due on costs incurred after the date of the end of activity.

For a change in the VAT status and/or change of activities, a taxable person should complete Form M4 and submit to the tax authorities accordingly.

Changes to VAT registration details. The cessation of the activity, the change of the company's name, as well as the change of address of the registered office or the change of correspondence address must be notified to the FTA as soon as possible. Depending on the changes to be communicated to the FTA, a specific form may be required. Also, changes can be notified to the FTA through the online account of the registered company and by email to the FTA's relevant office.

Regarding VAT number, the FTA may request additional information to attribute or not the French VAT ID. This information shall be provided within 30 days of receipt of the request. The French VAT ID is not granted in principle; it may be suspended/erased if changes to VAT registration details have not been duly and timely communicated.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 20%
- Reduced rates: 2.1%, 5.5%, 10%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate, the zero rate or an exemption.

Some supplies are classified as "exempt with credit" (i.e., zero-rated), which means that no VAT is chargeable, but the supplier may recover related input tax.

On the island of Corsica, the standard rate is 20%. However, rates of 0.9%, 2.1%, 10% and 13% apply to specified goods or services. The 0.9% rate applies to the first performance of certain theatrical performances and circuses, as well as the sale of live animals for butcher and meat to nontaxable person. The 2.1% rate applies to the supplies of certain goods and services that are subject to the reduced rate of 5.5% in mainland France. The 10% rate applies to work on immovable property, to agricultural equipment and to sales of restaurant food for consumption on the premises. The 13% rate applies to petroleum products.

In the overseas dependencies of Guadeloupe, Martinique and Réunion, the standard rate is 8.5%. A reduced rate of 2.1% applies to the supplies of goods and services that are subject to the 5.5% rate in mainland France. A special VAT rate of 1.05% applies to periodicals. A special VAT rate of 1.75% applies to the sale of livestock to nontaxable persons.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%
(i.e., exempt with credit)

- Specified financial transactions
- Exports of goods outside the EU and related services
- Intra-Community supplies of goods

Examples of goods and services taxable at 2.1%

- Pharmaceuticals (under conditions)

Examples of goods and services taxable at 5.5%
(2.1% in Corsica, Guadeloupe, Martinique and Réunion)

- Foodstuffs

Examples of goods and services taxable at 10%

- Accommodation

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are within the scope of VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Land under specific conditions
- Financial transactions
- Buildings completed for more than five years
- Insurance
- Education
- Health and welfare
- Betting and gaming

Option to tax for exempt supplies. Taxable persons performing economic activities that are exempt of VAT may, under express legal provision, be able to apply VAT on such activities. As a result, the taxable person will be able to recover the VAT credit incurred on the goods or services. An option to tax for VAT may exempt the taxable person from payroll tax if at least 90% of its turnover becomes taxable.

The following are examples of exempt supplies of goods and services, for which there is an option to tax available:

- Leasing of unfurnished buildings to professionals (who are VAT-registered in France)
- Leasing of agricultural assets
- Specific public services provided by local public authorities
- Supplies of undeveloped lands between taxable persons
- Supplies of buildings completed for more than five years
- Certain transactions of bank establishments

E. Time of supply

In France, the time when the legal conditions necessary to determine the VAT liability are fulfilled is called the "chargeable event," while the time when VAT becomes due and recoverable is called the "tax due point" (chargeability of VAT). Different tax event rules and tax due point rules apply to supplies of goods and supplies of services.

The general rule is that the tax event and the tax due point for goods occur at the same time. They occur when the right to dispose of the goods as owner is transferred. In practice, this corresponds to the issuance of the invoice. If the sale contract stipulates that the supplier retains ownership of the goods, the tax is due at the moment of the physical transfer of the goods from the supplier to the buyer.

The tax event for services is the moment when the services are performed, while the tax due point is the date of the effective payment. However, the supplier may opt to account for VAT on an accrual basis; that is, when the services are supplied, and the invoice is issued (i.e., the option for the debit [l'option pour les débits] rule). In principle, if the consideration for a supply of services is paid in installments, VAT is due on the receipt of each installment.

Deposits and prepayments. From 1 January 2023, the collection of advance payments (i.e., prepayments) for supplies of goods gives rise to VAT. The tax due point for advance payments for services occurs on collection of the payment.

Continuous supplies of services. In the case of installment payments or continuous payments with respect to continuous supplies of services, the chargeable event occurs at the end of the periods to which such installments or payments refer. However, for continuous supplies of services over a period of more than one calendar year, subject to the non-domestic reverse charges, which do not give rise to installments or continuous payments during that period, the tax event occurs on expiry of each calendar year until such time as the supply of services comes to an end.

In the case of installments or frequent payments with respect to continuous supplies of goods, the chargeable event occurs at the end of the period to which such installments or payments refer. However, for continuous intra-Community supplies or acquisitions of goods over a period of more than one calendar month, which do not give rise to installments or payments during that period, the tax event occurs on expiry of each calendar month until such time as the supply or acquisition of goods comes to an end.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. The time of supply rules for goods sent on "approval" or for "sale return" is in principle when the transfer of the ownership has occurred. It could be different under the assumption where the agreement has been contracted under a suspensive condition. Therefore, under said scenario, the tax due point will occur when the condition is realized, leading to the transfer of the ownership. Under a resolutive condition, the tax point will be the transfer of the ownership, at the conclusion of the agreement, but the latter can be retroactively resolved if said condition is realized.

Reverse-charge services. The time of supply for a domestic reverse-charge service received by a French taxable person is the date of payment for the service unless the recipient of the service has opted to account for VAT on an accrual basis. With regard to a cross-border reverse charge, the tax point is when the service is supplied, without options.

Leased assets. A leasing contract of goods is an agreement whereby the lessor (i.e., the owner) contracts the use of the good to the lessee (i.e., the person who leases) in return for a consideration. At this stage, lease incomes received by the lessor during the period of the lease agreement are taxable pursuant to the collection rules applicable to the supplies of services.

At the end of the lease period, should the lessee opt for the purchase of the good, VAT is chargeable upon the transfer of the right to dispose of the asset.

Imported goods. The time of supply for imported goods is either the date of importation or the date on which the goods leave a duty suspension regime.

Intra-Community acquisitions. The tax event for an intra-Community acquisition of goods is the moment of the introduction of the goods in France. The tax due point is the 15th day of the month following the month in which the acquisition occurred. If the supplier issues an invoice before this date but after the tax event, the tax due point is the date of the invoice.

Intra-Community supplies of goods. The tax event for an intra-Community supply of goods is the moment of the shipment of the goods from France. The tax due point is the 15th day of the month following the month in which the shipment occurred. If the supplier issues an invoice before this date but after the tax event, the tax due point is the date of the invoice. However, specific rules might be applicable in respect of tax due point. For instance, for a contract of sale with a retention-of-title clause, VAT is due when the good is physically delivered.

Distance sales. There are no special time of supply rules in France for supplies of distance sales. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above). This means that the time of supply for distance sales is the same as for supplies of goods: when the delivery occurs – provided that the transaction is taxable in France.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax charged on goods and services supplied to it for business purposes. A taxable person generally recovers input tax by offsetting it against output tax charged on supplies made. Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services supplied in France, VAT paid on imports of goods and VAT self-assessed by the taxable recipient under the reverse-charge mechanism.

A valid tax invoice or customs document is compulsory for a VAT refund claim.

The time limit for a taxable person to reclaim input tax in France is by 31 December of the second year following the VAT due point of the underlying transaction.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recoverable on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes (e.g., goods acquired for private use). Furthermore, input tax may not be recoverable on certain business expenditures.

The following lists provide some examples of items of expenditure for which input tax is not recoverable and examples of items for which input tax is recoverable, except in specific cases.

Examples of items for which input tax is not recoverable

- Hotel accommodation for employees
- Petrol
- Transport of passengers
- Purchase, lease and maintenance of passenger cars
- Business gifts valued at more than EUR73, including VAT, per person per year

Examples of items for which input tax is recoverable (if related to a taxable business use)

- Restaurant meals and entertainment for employees and clients
- Hotel accommodation for clients
- Attending conferences, exhibitions and training seminars
- Books
- Motorway tolls
- Liquefied petroleum gas (LPG)
- Purchase, lease and maintenance of vans and trucks
- Diesel fuel (up to 80%); petrol used in vehicles excluded from deduction rights (up to 10%)

- Advertising
- Business use of a home telephone

Partial exemption. Input tax directly related to exempt supplies is, in principle, not recoverable. If a French taxable person performs both exempt supplies and taxable supplies, it may only recover a portion of input tax. This situation is referred to as "partial exemption."

In France, the amount of input tax that may be recovered is calculated in two stages:
- The first stage identifies the input tax that may be directly allocated either to exempt or to taxable supplies. Exempt-with-credit supplies are treated as taxable supplies for these purposes. Input tax directly allocated to exempt supplies is not deductible. Input tax directly allocated to taxable supplies is fully recoverable.
- The second stage prorates the input tax on mixed expenditures (relating to both taxable and exempt supplies) to allocate a portion to taxable supplies (which may be recovered). For example, this treatment applies to the input tax on general business overhead expenses.

Alternatively, a taxable person may apply the recovery ratio to all expenditures for the acquisition of goods and services.

Other pro rates can be used in France, but these are only based on turnover realized for both taxable and exempt activities. Such special methods (and the calculation outline above) do not need to be approved or notified to the tax authorities.

A taxable person that performs within the same business entity different types of business activities that are subject to different VAT rules (i.e., Separate Business Units) must maintain separate accounts for each branch of activity and compute its recovery rights separately for each business unit.

Approval from the tax authorities is not required to use the partial exemption standard method in France.

Special methods are allowed in France. However, use of any special methods must be approved in advance by the FTA on a case-by-case basis.

Capital goods. Capital goods are items of capital expenditure that are used in a business over several years and thus qualify as fixed assets. Input tax is recoverable in the VAT year in which the goods are acquired. The amount of input tax recoverable depends on the VAT recovery ratio in the year of acquisition. However, the amount of input tax for capital goods initially deducted might have to be adjusted over a reference period if the VAT recovery ratio varies by more than 10 percentage points over the adjustment period, depending on the effective use of the fixed assets.

In France, the capital goods adjustment applies to the following assets for the number of years indicated:
- Buildings: for 19 years following the year in which they are acquired (that is, 20 years in total). This rule applies to buildings acquired on or after 1 January 1996.
- All other fixed assets: for four years after the year in which they were purchased, acquired under an intra-Community acquisition, imported or used for the first time (that is, five years in total).

Adjustment is required each year following the acquisition, to a fraction of the total input tax (1/20) for land and buildings and 1/5 for other fixed assets). The adjustment may result in either an increase or a decrease of recoverable input tax, depending on whether the ratio of taxable supplies made by the business has increased or decreased compared with the year in which the fixed asset was acquired.

Further adjustments might be required upon the disposal of fixed assets (or similar events) within the adjustment period.

The tax authorities consider that fixed services (for example, installation of a fixed asset) must follow the same input tax recovery rules as fixed assets, as outlined above.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax recoverable in a monthly period exceeds the amount of output tax payable in that period, the taxable person has an input tax credit. The input tax credit may be carried forward to offset output tax in subsequent return periods, until it is used up.

A refund of the input tax credit may be requested at the end of the calendar year if the total amount refundable is at least EUR150. A refund may also be requested at the end of a calendar month or quarter if the amount refundable is at least EUR760.

VAT refund claims must be reported on Form 3519 for persons VAT-registered in France. Non-VAT-registered EU taxable persons seeking a refund of French VAT should apply online.

Pre-registration costs. Newly created companies may claim a refund of input tax paid on expenses incurred before registration, back to the point in time when they expressed their intention to perform economic activities. Documentation useful to show such an intention may include a statement of existence, a VAT registration certificate, evidence of market investigation and marketing expenses, etc.

Bad debts. A taxable person may recover input tax paid on unpaid invoices when the debt is officially unrecoverable, which occurs when the supplier has exhausted all legal remedies against the debtor. However, VAT may be recovered further to a judgment of liquidation or a judgment granting a recovery plan. Therefore, a mere default of recovery does not enable the supplier to qualify the debt as definitely unrecoverable and to claim a refund. Certain formalities are to be followed depending on the nature of the judgment that stated the debts are unrecoverable. However, in principle, a duplicate invoice should be issued.

Bad debt relief rules are applicable only to supplies for which the tax point arises before the receipt of payment. Consequently, VAT refund difficulties mostly arise regarding supplies of goods. For supplies of services, the tax point occurs at the date of the effective payment, so bad debt relief rules are only applicable when the taxable person has opted to pay VAT under the invoice dates regime (i.e., l'option pour les débits) under which VAT is due at the time when the debt is recorded.

Noneconomic activities. Noneconomic activities shall be taken into account in the computation of the VAT recovery ratio that will enable a taxable person to determine its deductible input tax, specifically as to the assessment of the first and second of the three relevant ratios.

The first relates to the direct allocation of purchased goods or services to the execution of economic activities falling within the scope of VAT (i.e., le coefficient d'assujettissment). The second ratio concerns the operation opening a VAT deduction right (i.e., le coefficient de taxation). The third ratio addresses specific rules that might limit the input tax deduction right (i.e., le coefficient d'admission).

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Input tax incurred by non-established businesses that are not registered for VAT in France is recoverable. The French VAT authorities refund VAT by businesses that are neither established nor registered for VAT in France. Non-established businesses may claim French VAT to the same extent as VAT-registered businesses.

EU businesses. For businesses established in the EU, refunds are made in principle under the terms of EU Directive 2008/9/EC. The VAT refund procedure under the EU Directive 2008/9 may be used only under the following two conditions:
- The business does not have, in France, the seat of their economic activity or a permanent establishment from which the transactions were carried out or, failing this, their domicile or habitual residence.
- The business has not made any supplies of goods or services where the place of supply is located in France.

For full details, see the EU chapter.

Find below specific rules for France:
- The minimum amount to claim for a quarterly period is EUR400. For an annual claim, the minimum amount is EUR50
- These applications for reimbursement must be submitted by 30 September of the calendar year following the reimbursement period

In this respect, note that a VAT refund claim might be filed via the 8th VAT Directive even if the business customer has a French VAT ID – if specific conditions are met (e.g., the business customer is VAT registered in France for Intrastat purposes only).

Non-EU businesses. For businesses established outside the EU, refunds are made under the terms of the EU 13th Directive. For full details see the EU chapter.

France does not exclude any non-EU countries from the refund process.

Find below specific rules for France:
- The deadline for refund claims is 30 June of the year following the calendar year in which the tax is incurred. This deadline is strictly enforced.
- The minimum claim period is three months. The maximum claim period is one year. The minimum claim for a quarterly period is EUR400. For an annual claim, the minimum amount is EUR50.
- Claims must be submitted in French.
- Taxable persons established outside the EU are required to have a taxable representative in France accredited by the abovementioned tax department, who undertakes to fulfill the obligations incumbent on them.
- From 1 July 2021, such claims may only be submitted electronically.

Late payment interest. Interest on arrears is due by the tax authorities where the repayment has not been made before the expiry of the period of six months from the date on which the application is considered complete or where repayment was made after a previous decision rejecting the application. The arrears interest amounts to 0.20% per month.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A French taxable person generally must provide a VAT invoice for all taxable supplies performed for the benefit of other taxable businesses or nontaxable legal entities, including exports and intra-Community supplies. Invoices are not automatically required for retail transactions, unless requested by the customer. An invoice must be issued as soon as the supply has taken place. A VAT invoice is required to support a claim for input tax deduction.

Credit notes. A VAT credit note may be used for transactions involving French customers to correct the VAT amount charged and reclaimed on a supply. The VAT amount credited must be separately itemized and it must be cross-referenced to the original VAT invoice.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is mandatory in France for certain taxable persons.

Scope of electronic invoicing. For business-to-government (B2G) supplies, electronic invoicing is mandatory in France. This is in line with EU Directive 2014/55/EU (see the EU chapter). This is with effect from 1 January 2018 for large companies and 1 January 2019 for small and medium-sized enterprises.

For B2B and B2C supplies, electronic invoicing is allowed in France, but not mandatory. This is in line with EU Directive 2010/45/EU (see the EU chapter).

All formats of electronic invoices are accepted, but authenticity of the origin, integrity of content and legibility must be satisfied from the invoice's date of issuance through the end of the archiving period.

In the case of invoices not issued in the Electronic Data Interchange (EDI) format or electronically signed with a qualified certificate, business controls must be put in place that demonstrate the existence of a reliable audit trail between the invoice and the underlying transaction. This would apply notably to e-invoices sent by e-mail. In a press release dated 28 July 2023, the government announced that it was postponing the timetable for rolling out digital invoicing between businesses (i.e., B2B supplies).

At the time of preparing this chapter, new legislation is due to be adopted in December 2023 that will make electronic invoicing mandatory for all taxable persons (B2B supplies).

The introduction of electronic invoicing will take place in two stages from 2026:
- 1 September 2026 for all taxable persons for receiving e-invoices and large and intermediate-sized companies for the transmission of e-invoices
- 1 September 2027 for small and medium-sized enterprises and micro-enterprises issuing e-invoices

Definitions of the company sizes, are as follows:
- A microenterprise is a company with fewer than 10 employees and annual sales or a balance sheet total not exceeding EUR2 million.
- A small-and-medium-sized enterprise (SME) is a company with fewer than 250 employees and an annual turnover not exceeding EUR50 million or a balance sheet total not exceeding EUR43 million.
- An intermediate-sized company is a company that does not fall into the SME category, with fewer than 5,000 employees and an annual turnover not exceeding EUR1.5 billion or a balance sheet total not exceeding EUR2 billion.
- A large company is a company that cannot be classified in any of the above categories.

Membership of a category is assessed at the level of each legal entity on 1 January 2025, on the basis of the last financial year ending before that date or, in the absence of such a financial year, on the basis of the first financial year ending after that date.

The obligation to issue e-invoices concerns only taxable persons established in France and affects domestic sales and purchase of goods and services between taxable persons (i.e., B2B) or between a company and the public authorities (i.e., B2G). It also applies to credit notes and advance payment invoices.

For e-reporting, the obligation will follow the same schedule as e-invoicing (as outlined above), and the obligation is for data to be transmitted electronically via a dedicated platform used for the invoicing data. Such an obligation is applicable for the following:
- Taxable persons established in France for sales and purchases made to professionals located abroad (i.e., B2B, where the customer is a foreign company) and sales made in France to individuals (i.e., B2C)
- Non-established taxable persons registered for VAT in France for sales for which they are liable for VAT in France (excluding transactions declared by one of the three OSSs)

Invoices and data can be shared with the French tax authorities via a public billing platform called Chorus Pro or to a dematerialization platform operator.

For the EU VAT in the Digital Age (ViDA) proposals, refer to the EU chapter.

Simplified VAT invoices. Invoices whose total amount excluding tax is less than or equal to EUR150 may not include the following information:

- The individual identification number allocated to the taxable person pursuant to Article 286b of the French Tax Code and under which they have carried out the supply of goods or services
- The reference to the relevant provision of the French Tax Code or to the corresponding provision of Council VAT Directive 2006/112/EC of 28 November 2006 or any other statement indicating that the transaction benefits from a VAT exemption

However, the invoicing simplification rule does not apply to all transactions; and as such further analysis is necessary on a case-by-case basis.

Self-billing. Self-billing is allowed in France. Article 289, I§1 of the French Tax Code states that every taxable person must ensure that an invoice is issued by themselves or, in their name and on their behalf, by their client or by a third party for taxable transactions.

A written agreement between the supplier of goods/services and the issuer of the invoice, in principle, is not required. However, in the event that the French tax administration requested the proof of the self-billing, a written agreement is the best way to demonstrate that parties have agreed to self-bill the invoices.

Furthermore, even if a self-billing agreement has been subscribed, each party remains responsible of its declarative and invoicing obligations.

Proof of exports and intra-Community supplies. French VAT is not chargeable on supplies of exported goods or on intra-Community supplies of goods (see the EU chapter). However, to qualify as VAT-free, exports and intra-Community supplies must be supported by evidence indicating that the goods have left France. Acceptable proof includes the following documentation:

- For an export, a copy of the export document, officially validated by customs and showing the supplier as the exporter. Other acceptable proof of export may be provided. The sales invoice must include specific wording.
- For an intra-Community supply, the proof of the dispatch of the goods can be provided by any means. No special documentation applies in France for evidencing the application of the Quick Fixes. Normal intra-Community documentation rules apply. The tax authorities accept written confirmation by the purchaser of the receipt of the goods. In addition, the French guidelines give a non-exhaustive list, including, for example, the following documents: CMR letter, carrier's invoice, insurance contract for the international transport of the goods, contract concluded with the purchaser, commercial correspondence, written order form issued by the purchaser indicating that the goods are to be dispatched or transported to another Member State, delivery note etc. Regarding invoicing obligations, the supplier must include the purchaser's EU VAT identification number on the sales invoice and specific wording (it is sufficient to include a statement why the transaction is exempt from VAT and no reference to the legal provision).

It should be noted that the compulsory statements on invoices relating to exports and intra-Community supplies are not conditions for exempting these transactions.

Foreign currency invoices. If a French VAT invoice is issued in a foreign currency, the VAT amount to be paid for which the place of supply is within France must be converted into the domestic currency, which is the euro (EUR), using the rate published by the European Central Bank for the date of the supply. For intra-Community transactions, the customs rate (published monthly) may be used. If a taxable person chooses to use the customs rate, such rate must be used for all intra-Community trade, for at least one calendar year for both VAT returns and Intrastat returns.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. French VAT rules do not set requirements as to the issuance of invoices for supplies of telecommunications, broadcasting or electronic services to nontaxable private individuals. However, requirements are defined by the Commercial Law. The invoice should include additional information on these services:

- The total amount including VAT and the corresponding VAT basis
- The total amount including VAT of the services rendered by the service provider and corresponding VAT basis
- Total amount including VAT of the services rendered by third parties and corresponding VAT basis

The invoice shall comprise two sections, one referring to the services rendered by the operator and another one to the services delivered by third parties. The first section shall be organized in three parts:

- The subscription, all-inclusive packages and options
- Communications
- Other services and product of the operator

The second section shall be organized in two parts:

- Subscriptions with third parties
- Temporary services from third parties

These five parts must show detailed information on the services such as reference periods, quantities of goods or services, rebates, communications included in the subscription or not. For prepaid electronic communication, a simplified document can be issued.

For other B2C supplies, the issue of a VAT invoice is not mandatory, but if a VAT invoice is issued it must comply with the general VAT invoicing rules.

Distance selling. For intra-Community distance sales made B2C, a full VAT invoice must be issued. However, if the supplier operates the OSS regime, then no full VAT invoice is required unless requested.

Records. In France, examples of what records must be held for VAT purposes include balances, annual accounts, balance sheet, profit and loss account and notes, and supporting documents (i.e., customer and supplier invoices, purchase orders, delivery and receipt slips, bank documents).

In France, VAT books and records can be kept outside the country. Such documentation can be stored outside France but within the EU (i.e., by entity, subsidiary, third party) and the access shall be granted to the FTA. However, such documentation cannot be stored outside the EU (e.g., Switzerland).

Record retention period. Record retention period is, in principle, six years according to fiscal legislation. The six-year period shall run from the date of the last operation mentioned in the books or registers or from the date on which the documents or records were drawn up. According to commercial regulations, the accounting documents (e.g., accountancy books, invoices) must be kept for a period of 10 years.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is mandatory in France, for certain records. It is mandatory to electronically archive electronic invoices. Records must be held on a computer medium or on any medium of the company's choice for a period of at least six years.

It is optional to electronically archive paper invoices issued (i.e., sales) and received (i.e., purchases). Companies that receive or issue paper invoices may, under certain conditions, digitize them at any time and keep them in electronic form for six years. In this context, the transfer of invoices originally issued on paper to a computer medium must be carried out under conditions that guarantee their identical reproduction. The result of this digitization must therefore be a true copy of the original in image and content.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. The applicable VAT return period depends on the taxable person's turnover. The following criteria apply:

- Companies following the normal regime (le régime réel normal) file returns monthly. There are two categories of taxable person that must follow the normal regime:
  - Companies whose turnover exceeds EUR818,000 (for goods) or EUR247,000 (for services)
  - Companies whose output tax due exceeded EUR15,000 the preceding year
- Companies following the simplified regime (le régime réel simplifié) file returns quarterly and annually. There are two categories of companies that can follow the simplified regime:
  - Companies whose turnover is between EUR85,800 and EUR818,000 (for goods) or between EUR34,400 and EUR247,000 (for services), and whose output tax due the previous year was less than EUR15,000
- Companies that are not required to file a VAT return are those whose turnover is less than EUR85,800 (for goods) or EUR34,400 (for services)

For French and non-EU companies, monthly VAT returns are due between the 15th and the 24th day of the month following the end of the return period. The due date depends on several factors including the type of legal entity involved and where the taxable person is established.

For EU entities, monthly or quarterly VAT returns are due on the 19th day of the month following the end of the return period.

Periodic payments. For French and non-EU companies, monthly VAT payment is due between the 15th and the 24th day of the month following the end of the return period. The due date depends on several factors including the type of legal entity involved and where the taxable person is established.

For EU entities, monthly or quarterly VAT payment is due on the 19th day of the month following the end of the return period.

VAT payments must be made electronically (except small companies and auto-entrepreneurs under certain circumstances). For companies not established in France but VAT-registered in France, electronic payment is not required, and it can be carried out by a bank transfer within the deadline. See the subsection Electronic filing below for more detail.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is mandatory in France for all taxable persons. Businesses (including foreign businesses, but except small companies and auto-entrepreneurs under certain circumstances) must file their VAT returns electronically. For companies not established in France but VAT-registered in France, electronic filing is also required.

A notice is currently available on the official website in French (http://www.impots.gouv.fr). The TéléTVA process can be used through one of these two methods:

- The Electronic Data Interchange (EDI) procedure using UN-EDIFACT standards (l'échange de données informatisées): the data will be transmitted to the tax office by the intermediary of an "EDI partner" accredited as such by the tax administration. The EDI partner can be the taxable person itself provided the accreditation has been granted.
- The "EFI" procedure (l'échange de formulaires informatisés): the taxable person declares and settles the VAT due through the tax authorities' official website http://www.impots.gouv.fr. The taxable person must have previously connected to this website and, by filling in the required information, created an account in the trader subscription section (Espace professionnel). When that is done properly, an activation code is sent to the taxable person. Once the account is activated, the taxable person has access to the VAT filing space. For foreign businesses, it is necessary to have a Single Euro Payments Area (SEPA) account to be able to settle the VAT due electronically (no need for a French bank account).

The taxable person must first approach the tax administration to be registered on a compulsory or voluntary basis.

Payments on account. Payments on account are optional in France. In certain circumstances, taxable persons may opt to file VAT returns and pay VAT due under the installment payment scheme, pursuant to which the deadline for filing is extended. See the subsection Special schemes below for more detail.

Special schemes. Installment payment scheme. If certain conditions are met (e.g., Régime simplifié de TVA), taxable persons may opt to file VAT returns on a yearly basis and pay VAT due under the installment payment scheme, pursuant to which the deadline for filing is extended. However, an installment shall be approved by the tax authorities before the initial deadline. The installment payment scheme is applicable to taxable persons meeting the following thresholds:

- Turnover of between EUR82,800 and EUR789,000 for the sale of goods, objects, supplies and foodstuffs to be taken away or consumed on the spot; provision of accommodation (excluding furnished rentals, furnished tourist accommodation, self-catering cottages and bed and breakfast)
- Between EUR33,200 and EUR238,000 for the provision of services

Franchise regime. The franchise regime allows small French-established businesses to avoid both the filing of French VAT returns and the payment of VAT if the following thresholds are not exceeded:

- Sale of goods:
  - EUR91,900 in the previous calendar year
  - EUR101,000 in the previous calendar year, when the turnover of the penultimate year did not exceed the amount mentioned in a)
- For provisions of services, excluding sales for consumption on the premises and accommodation services:
  - EUR36,800 the previous calendar year
  - EUR39,100 in the previous calendar year, where in the penultimate year it did not exceed the amount mentioned directly above

Real estate operations. Deliveries of buildings and similar transactions should be in principle taxable in France if they relate to buildings located in France (i.e., mainland France, Corsica, the Principality of Monaco, French overseas departments – with the exception of French Guiana and Mayotte).

Agricultural activity. Agricultural producers are likely to be subject to two different VAT tax regimes depending on the nature of the taxable transactions they carry out:

- Those who carry out agricultural activities are either obligatorily or optionally subject to VAT under the Simplified Agriculture Scheme (SAS).
- Operators who are not subject to taxation under the SAS are automatically placed under the flat-rate refund scheme, which is designed to offset the VAT on their purchases, unless they opt for SAS.

Operators subject necessarily to this scheme are those whose average income from all their holdings, calculated over the previous two consecutive calendar years, exceeds EUR46,000. Taxation takes effect from 1 January of the following year.

Annual returns. Businesses falling into the scope of the simplified regime (le régime réel simplifié) are obliged to file an annual return (Form CA12). In contrast, businesses subject to le régime réel normal scheme do not have to file annual VAT returns.

Supplementary filings. Intrastat. A taxable person that trades goods from and within France with other EU countries must complete statistical reports, known as Intrastat, if the value of its sales or purchases exceeds certain thresholds. Separate reports are required for intra-Community acquisitions (i.e., Intrastat Arrivals) and for intra-Community supplies (i.e., Intrastat Dispatches).

Taxable persons must complete Intrastat declarations in EUR.

The Intrastat return period is monthly. The submission deadline is the 10th business day following the return period.

As of 1 January 2022, the Intrastat return has been replaced by two returns, with no threshold applicable. These two returns are the statistical declaration and the recapitulative VAT statement.

The statistical declaration is intended to provide data on foreign trade.

The recapitulative VAT statement is intended to check the compliance of taxable persons with the intra-Community VAT rules. The filing of such declaration is a condition for exemption for intra-EU deliveries of goods. The recapitulative statement shall be produced within 10 working days of the month in which VAT became chargeable in respect of intra-Community supplies of goods or the month in which the movement of goods took place for other transactions.

A taxable person should not declare a response to a statistical survey if it has not received the request form the tax administration. In case of no supplies in a given month, the taxable person will have to submit a nil return (les mois sans réponse statistique).

As there is no threshold, the statistical declaration will report data as per the first euro of purchases and/or sales. The data to be reported in this declaration are set out in Article 289 B, II of the FTC.

EU Sales List. An ESL for services must, in principle, be filed with respect to services provided by French suppliers to customers registered for VAT in the EU in specified circumstances. The ESL for services must be submitted electronically on the web portal of the French customs administration on a monthly basis.

Correcting errors in previous returns. Where a taxable person has, in good faith, omitted to enter taxable revenue on a turnover declaration showing a non-attributable tax credit, it may rectify its error by adding the undeclared revenue to the revenue for the month in which the omission was discovered, provided that in respect of the period following this omission, the enterprise has not obtained a refund of nontaxable deductible tax credits. In this case, the regulatory provisions setting the conditions and modalities of reimbursement, as well as the minimum amounts to be reimbursed, necessarily imply, for their implementation, the re-examination of each of the declarations subsequently filed.

When, in other cases, taxable persons will be able to rectify the error made by adding the undeclared revenue to the revenue for the month in which the omission was discovered, they will have to enter it in the box reserved for correspondence on the turnover form:
- The amount of revenue omitted broken down by rate
- The corresponding VAT
- The period of completion of the transactions to allow the calculation of the interest for late payment legally due

As regards omissions of taxable receipts relating to an initial VAT return for a previous accounting year, the abovementioned reporting arrangements apply when the corrected VAT amount for that year is less than or equal to EUR4,000. Above this amount, the correction of these omissions is made by filing a rectifying declaration relating to the period to which the error is attached under the same conditions as the initial declaration.

Corrections can be made online as well as the initial filing of declarations.

Digital tax administration. Reliable audit trail (piste d'audit fiable [PAF]). To prevent any risk of VAT fraud and to make the invoicing system more secure, European Directive 2010/45/EU introduced the PAF regulation. Any entity, regardless of its form, must demonstrate that it has put in place a documented procedure to prove the reality of invoicing flows and to ensure the conformity of invoices.

Accounting Entry File (fichier des écritures comptables [FEC]). Taxable persons holding a computerized accounting system for accounting purposes must provide the FTA with the electronic file detailing the accounting entries for the period subject to the tax audit

Penalties for late registration. There is no specific penalty in France for the late VAT registration. However, interest and penalties apply if a return is absent and if a late registration results in the late payment of French VAT.

Penalties for late payment and filings. The following penalties are assessed for the late submission of VAT and late payment of VAT:
- Late payment: 5% of the tax due
- Late submission: 10% of the tax due if the French VAT authorities have not yet issued a formal notice
- Payment more than 30 days after the first formal notice of a late submission: 40% of the tax due
- Second formal notice of a late submission: 80% of the tax due

In addition to the penalty, interest accrues at a rate of 0.2% per month. This rate applies as of 1 January 2018. Before this date the rate was 0.4%.

In case electronic filing and payment obligations are not respected, a 0.2% penalty (assessed on the VAT due) is applicable.

For Intrastat, the penalty for late filing is EUR750, increased to EUR1,500 if the report is not filed within 30 days after the French customs authorities have issued a warning notice. In addition, every omission or inaccuracy on an Intrastat return is punishable by a fine of EUR15. The fine cannot exceed EUR1,500 per Intrastat return. A penalty of EUR1,500 may also apply if a taxable person refuses to provide information or documents to the French customs authorities.

Penalties for errors. The following penalties are assessed for errors associated with electronic filing:
- Failure to declare VAT by electronic means: 0.2% of the VAT due (minimum EUR60)
- Failure to pay VAT by electronic means: 0.2% of the VAT due

For inaccurate invoices, a penalty of EUR15 per missing mandatory information per invoice applies

There are no specific penalties associated with the late notification or failure to notify the tax authorities of changes to a taxable person's VAT registration details. For further details, see the subsection Changes to VAT registration details above.

Penalties for fraud. Any inaccuracies or omissions in a declaration or deed containing information to be withheld for the assessment or settlement of the tax, as well as the repayment of a tax claim that has been wrongly obtained from the tax authorities, shall give rise to the application of a surcharge of the following:

- 40% in the event of deliberate failure to comply
- 80% in the event of abuse of rights within the meaning of Article L. 64 of the Livre des procedures fiscales (LPF)
- 80% in the event of fraudulent practices or concealment of part of the price stipulated in a contract or in the event of the application of Article 792 bis of the FTC

Personal liability for company officers. In principle, any person who has fraudulently evaded or attempted to evade the establishment or payment of all or part of the taxes referred to in this codification (e.g., VAT), either by willfully failing to make its declaration within the prescribed time limits or by willfully concealing part of the sums subject to tax, either by arranging insolvency or otherwise hindering tax collection, or by acting in any other fraudulent manner, is liable, irrespective of the applicable tax penalties, to five years' imprisonment and a fine of EUR500,000, which may be increased to twice the proceeds of the offense.

The penalties are increased to seven years' imprisonment and a fine of EUR3 million, which may be increased to twice the proceeds of the offense, when the acts were committed in an organized gang.

Statute of limitations. The statute of limitations in France is three years. In principle, it is by 31 December of the third year following the year during which the tax became due.

The three-year period may be extended to 10 years for taxable persons carrying out covert/fraudulent activity.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:

- Supply of goods or services in Georgia, in exchange for consideration within the scope of economic activities
- On termination of VAT registration, the balance value of the goods for which a taxable person has obtained a full or partial VAT credit
- Use of self-constructed buildings as fixed assets, if a taxable person would not be able to obtain a full VAT credit in case of purchasing these buildings from another person
- Transfer of ownership of goods or services in exchange for shares in an enterprise or partnership
- Import of goods into Georgia

- Transfer of ownership of property or services in exchange for consideration by decision of the state/local self-government body
- Actual delivery of goods under the terms of a rental, leasing or a similar agreement on condition of redemption
- Supply of goods under an agreement, according to which a commission fee is paid for the purchase or sale of goods
- Supply of electric or thermal energy, natural gas, water, cooling energy
- Free supply of goods if a taxable person supplying the goods has obtained a full or partial VAT credit for these goods or expenses incurred on them
- Supply of goods or services by a taxable person to its employee for his/her personal use, or supply/use of goods for a purpose different from the purpose of a taxable person's own activities, if the taxable person has obtained a full or partial VAT credit for these goods or expenses incurred on them
- Goods remaining in the taxable person's possession after the termination of an economic activity carried on by the taxable person or its legal successor, if the taxable person has obtained a full or partial VAT credit for these goods or expenses incurred on them
- Shortages in inventory or fixed assets
- Transfer of intangible property
- Repair of own fixed assets (buildings) for the purpose of a taxable person's activities, if the taxable person would not be able to obtain a full VAT credit if it were to purchase this service from another person

Effective use and enjoyment. To avoid instances of non-taxation or double taxation, jurisdictions can apply "use and enjoyment" rules that allow a service that is "used and enjoyed" in the jurisdiction to be taxed or prevent a service that is "used and enjoyed" outside the jurisdiction from being taxed. If a service is taxed in the jurisdiction under the "use and enjoyment" provisions, a non-established supplier of the service may be required to register for VAT in every jurisdiction where it has customers that are not taxable persons. In Georgia, no services are subject to the "use and enjoyment" provisions.

Transfer of a going concern. Normally the sale of the assets of a VAT-registered or VAT-registrable business will be subject to VAT at the appropriate rate. However, a transfer of a business as a going concern (TOGC) may be outside the scope of the tax under certain conditions. A TOGC is the sale of a business or part of a business capable of separate operation, including assets. Where the sale meets the conditions, the supply is treated as outside the scope of VAT. In Georgia, a TOGC is treated as outside the scope of VAT where the following conditions are met:

- Assets are transferred as a unit that allows the continuation of the supplier's economic activity
- Assets are transferred on the basis of a single written agreement, which provides for an exhaustive list of the assets being transferred
- A supplier and a buyer have reflected the transfer in the VAT return of the relevant reporting period

Transactions between related parties. In Georgia, for a transaction between related parties, the value for VAT purposes is calculated at the market price. The market price of goods/services is the price formed as a result of interaction of demand for and supply of identical (in the absence of such – similar) goods/services on the market on the basis of a transaction between the persons who are not related parties. The market price is determined on the basis of information on transactions on identical (similar) goods/services at the moment of supply (in the absence of such, on the calendar day closest to the moment of sale that precedes or follows, the moment of sale of such goods/services by maximum 30 calendar days).

C. Who is liable

Enterprises or individuals are considered to be VAT-taxable persons if any of the following circumstances exists:
- They are registered or required to be registered for VAT.
- They carry out taxable imports of goods into Georgia. Such persons are considered taxable persons with respect to such imports only, without the obligation to register.
- They are tax agents for the operations subject to reverse charge, without the obligation to register.
- They are taxable persons that are not established, or do not usually live in Georgia, or do not have a fixed establishment in Georgia who participate in the rendering of services or making taxable supply of services in Georgia that are not subject to the reverse charge. Such persons are considered taxable persons with respect to such services only, without the obligation to register.

Taxable persons must register for VAT if they satisfy any of the following conditions:
- They conduct economic activities, and the total amount of VAT taxable transactions carried out in any continuous period of 12 calendar months exceeds GEL100,000. Such persons must register within two working days after exceeding the threshold.
- They produce goods subject to excise tax (excisable goods) in Georgia. Such persons must register before making a supply of such goods.
- An entity is established as a result of a reorganization and at least one of the parties to the reorganization is a taxable person. The entity must register before any taxable transaction is carried out, but no later than 10 calendar days following the completion of the reorganization.
- A taxable person contributes goods or services to the capital of an enterprise or partnership. Registration of the latter is required before any taxable transaction is carried out, but no later than 10 calendar days following the date of the contribution.
- They have a fixed establishment in Georgia and supply goods or services. Such persons must register no later than the last day of the reporting period in which the supplies were made.

In determining whether the threshold required for VAT registration is reached, exempt VAT taxable supplies are not considered, except the following:
- VAT-exempt operations related to financial or real estate, if these operations are the primary activity of the taxable person
- Export operations
- Some supplies of goods/services that are exempt from VAT with the right of deduction

Exemption from registration. The VAT law in Georgia does not contain any provision for exemption from registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. Enterprises or individuals may register for VAT voluntarily. VAT registration is effective from the submission date of the application but no later than the date when the obligation of mandatory VAT registration arises.

Group registration. Group VAT registration is not allowed in Georgia.

Fixed establishment. A foreign business is deemed to have a fixed establishment for VAT purposes in Georgia, for any place that is not the place of establishment of a taxable person but is characterized by a sufficient degree of consistency, and by a proper structure in terms of human and technical resources, thus allowing it to provide or receive services and use them for its own need.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that does not have a fixed establishment in Georgia. The reverse-charge VAT generally applies to business-to-business (B2B) supply of services made by non-established businesses in Georgia. For business-to-consumer (B2C) supplies of certain services a non-established business pays VAT without the obligation to register. The obligation to calculate and pay VAT without the obligation to register for VAT arises for non-established businesses who supply "digital services" (i.e., telecommunication services, radio and television broadcasting services and electronically rendered services) to consumers in Georgia.

Such foreign suppliers undergo a simplified online registration procedure through the special platform created on the website of the Georgian Revenue Service. To complete the registration procedure, the foreign supplier has to submit some basic information, such as the legal name of the organization, the headquarters' address, its website, country of residence for tax purposes, tax ID and contact persons, among other information. There is no requirement to present any documents. VAT returns can be submitted through the same online platform. The VAT reporting period is quarterly. A non-established business that carries out taxable transactions in Georgia must, through the platform created on the Revenue Service website, submit a tax return for each reporting period no later than the 20th of the month following the reporting period and pay the tax no later than the last day of the same month.

A non-established business can settle VAT liabilities in US dollars (USD), Euros (EUR) or Georgian lari (GEL). Since foreign currency payments are accepted, a supplier can transfer the VAT amount from its regular foreign bank account.

The taxable base is compensation received for delivery of digital services to consumers in the territory of Georgia. The VAT rate is 18%.

Non-established businesses are required to maintain their accounting records for a period of three years from the end of the year when the taxable service was rendered.

Tax representatives. Tax representatives in Georgia are only required for VAT-registered businesses of EU Member States. Such taxable persons need to meet certain criteria and appoint an authorized representative to obtain a refund of VAT paid when purchasing goods and/or services in Georgia or when importing goods to Georgia. For VAT-registered businesses of non-EU Member States, tax representatives are not required in Georgia, as the refund of VAT is not available for them.

Reverse charge. The reverse-charge mechanism applies to the following:

- Supplies of services to a tax agent in Georgia by a taxable person that is not established, or does not usually live in Georgia, or does not have a fixed establishment in Georgia participating in the rendering of the services
- The importation of foreign goods purchased at a customs warehouse
- The importation of foreign goods purchased from a Free Industrial Zone Enterprise

Under the reverse-charge mechanism, any persons established in Georgia (except for individuals who do not carry out entrepreneurial activities and Free Industrial Zone Companies) or having fixed establishment in Georgia, through which the services were purchased, are responsible for the calculation and payment of VAT.

Domestic reverse charge. A domestic reverse charge applies in Georgia to the transfer of collateral objects to the ownership of a creditor, within the measures to ensure fulfillment of contractual terms. In other words, it applies to the instances where items are pledged to guarantee the performance of contractual obligations and then are transferred to the creditor, e.g., when a debtor fails to repay the loan and must transfer their property to the creditor that was pledged as a collateral under the loan agreement.

Digital economy. As a general rule, in B2B transactions, the place of rendering services is the place where the customer is established. In B2C transactions (where the consumer is a natural person who does not engage in economic activities for VAT purposes), the place of rendering services is the place where the supplier is established. However, as an exception "digital services" (i.e., telecommunication services, radio and television broadcasting services, and electronically rendered services) are treated as rendered in the territory of Georgia if any one of the following criteria is met:
- The bank account used by recipient is with a financial institution located in Georgia.
- The recipient is physically located in Georgia.
- The IP address of the device used by recipient is in Georgia
- The telephone code used by the recipient belongs to Georgia.

Nonresident providers of B2B digital services are not required to register and account for VAT on supplies in Georgia. Instead, the customer is required to self-account for the VAT due via the reverse-charge mechanism (see the Reverse-charge subsection above).

Nonresident providers of B2C digital services are liable to pay VAT without the obligation to register (see the Non-established business subsection above for details).

There are no other specific e-commerce rules.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Georgia.

Registration procedures. The VAT registration procedure is straightforward, and a taxable person may register for VAT in one working day. An authorized official of the company or its officially designated representative shall appear in person at the tax office to sign and submit the application. A taxable person may also register for VAT online via the official website of the electronic services of the Revenue Service. In case of mandatory registration, the taxable person must submit a statement including information about the date when the obligation for registration has arisen and about the reason for the obligatory registration.

Deregistration. The VAT registration of a taxable person is canceled in the following cases:
- An enterprise/organization is liquidated.
- An individual passes away.
- A taxable person applies to the tax authorities through a written request or approves a request from the tax authorities to deregister.
- A bankruptcy proceeding is initiated in accordance with the procedure prescribed under the Law of Georgia on Insolvency Proceedings.

A taxable person may request deregistration within one year of the most recent VAT registration if the value of taxable transactions carried out during the preceding 12 calendar months did not exceed GEL100,000. The tax authorities may also request that the taxable person deregister without requiring to meet any conditions if the taxable person approves to deregister. For example, if a taxable person registers as a VAT payer by mistake, they cannot deregister for at least one year. For such cases, the tax authority has a right to deregister the VAT payer without any conditions, if, of course, the taxable person approves of such deregistration

The VAT registration is canceled from the date the state registration is canceled, the date the individual passes away or the first day of the month following the application by a taxable person, the date a court's statement on bankruptcy is published or an approval of the request from the tax authorities is granted.

Changes to VAT registration details. Every business entity in Georgia is registered at the National Agency of Public Registry and changes in registration details (company name, address, etc.) are made in the Public Registry. The Public Registry and Revenue Service exchange information, and subsequently every change in registration detail is automatically reflected in the Revenue Service database. Therefore, a taxable person has no additional/separate obligation to notify the Revenue Service about such changes and no penalties apply thereon.

Changes in the registration information at the Public Registry are made through submission of original copies of certain documentation. The Public Registry has no deadline for presenting such documents. After a taxable person decides to make changes, it must gather the necessary documents and bring them in person to the registry. Changes in registration details will only be made after such documents have been provided.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 18%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for the zero rate or an exemption.

The term "exempt" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Supply of fuel or groceries to the aircraft
- Supply, remake, repair, servicing or lease of aircraft and equipment installed or used on an aircraft
- Supply of goods outside Georgia (export, re-export)
- Supply of goods or services intended for the official use of foreign diplomatic missions and equivalent representative offices as well as for the personal use of the members of such diplomatic missions and representative offices (including family members residing with them)
- Transportation of goods under export, re-export, external processing, and transit arrangements (i.e., foreign goods moving through the customs territory of Georgia) and related services
- Transportation of goods not yet declared into import, warehouse, temporary import, internal processing or free-zone operations between points located in Georgia and related services (except for storage services)
- Transportation of goods declared into import, warehouse, temporary import, internal processing or free-zone operations before entering the territory of Georgia from the customs border of Georgia to the destination point and related services (except for storage services)
- Transportation of passengers and cargo and related services if the departure or arrival point is located outside Georgia and if a unified transportation document is issued for such transportation
- Import and supply of products to be provided on board for international flights or international sea passages
- Transportation, loading, unloading and storage services provided for the purpose of sending (returning) empty transport facilities (including containers and wagons) outside Georgia
- Supply of natural gas to thermoelectric power stations
- Withdrawal of assets by the state or a local governing body from an entity's capital if more than 50% of the shares are owned by the state or the local governing body
- Free supply of goods or services to the state or a local governing authority
- Supply of Georgian goods to a duty-free outlet for sale, and sale of goods and provision of catering services in a duty-free zone
- Supply of gold to the National Bank of Georgia

- Organized foreign tours into Georgia by tour operators and the supply of tourist packages to foreign tourists
- Rendering of services to ships on carrying goods into the customs territory of Georgia
- Supply of goods or services or import of goods that qualify for VAT exemption in accordance with the framework of international agreements ratified by the parliament of Georgia
- Supply of unprocessed agricultural products produced in Georgia (except for eggs and chickens)
- Supply/import of books and e-books, also, rendering of sales and printing services for the goods

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Supply or import of certain medicines
- Supply or import of passenger cars
- Import of publications and mass media
- Import of baby products
- Supply of land plots
- Supply of goods and services between Free Industrial Zone Companies
- Conduct of financial operations or supply of financial services
- Supply of medical services
- Supply of educational services
- Supply of assets under finance leases if the assets are exempt without the entitlement to credit
- Supply of betting and gaming services
- Import of gold for supply to the National Bank of Georgia
- Supply or import of goods and services needed for the oil and gas industry under the Law of Georgia "on Oil and Gas"
- Import of natural gas for electricity production
- Import of goods by an issuer or a recipient of a grant as defined by the grant agreement
- Import or temporary import of goods or services intended for the official use of foreign diplomatic missions and equivalent representative offices, as well as for the personal use of the members of such diplomatic missions and representative offices (including family members residing with them)
- Import or temporary import of goods intended for the personal use of the citizens of foreign countries employed at oil and gas exploration and extraction works
- Import of natural gas for electricity production
- Import of goods by an issuer or a recipient of the grant as defined by the grant agreement
- Supply of property by partnerships to their members if all the members are individuals, the partnership is not a taxable person, and the members have not changed since the moment of establishment of partnership

Option to tax for exempt supplies. A VAT-registered taxable person may apply to pay VAT on certain transactions that qualify for exemption without the right to reclaim input tax (namely financial transactions and/or financial service and the supply of a land). This option gives the taxable person the right to reclaim input tax against output tax.

After applying to the tax authorities to use this option, it becomes effective from the first day of the reporting month following submission of the application and is valid for 12 calendar months for all transactions.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point." The "basic" tax point is the moment when goods are supplied, or services are rendered. However, the "actual" tax point is the moment of receipt of advance payment if the latter occurs earlier than the basic tax point.

A range of other situations have different time of supply rules that do not fit naturally into the above scheme. The following are some of these special time of supply rules:
- In case of VAT deregistration, the moment when registration is canceled
- The moment of discovering inventory and/or fixed asset shortage
- The moment of completing the repair of own fixed assets (buildings)
- In case of bringing self-constructed buildings into use as fixed assets, the starting point of their use in economic activity
- In case of regular or continuous supplies of goods (electrical or thermal energy, gas or water), the last day of the reporting period

Deposits and prepayments. If a deposit/prepayment is made as an advance payment for subsequent supply of goods/services, then the time of supply is the moment such payment is received.

Continuous supplies of services. For telecommunication services, the time of supply is the last day of the reporting period. For continuous supplies of other services, the same time of supply rule applies, provided no advance payments are made.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules in Georgia for supplies of goods sent on approval for sale or return. As such, the general time of supply rules apply.

Reverse-charge services. The time of supply for services subject to the reverse-charge mechanism is determined in accordance with the standard rules discussed above.

Leased assets. In the case of delivery of goods under the terms of a rental, leasing or a similar agreement on condition of redemption, the time of supply is the moment of actual delivery of goods.

Imported goods. The time of supply for imported goods is the date on which the commodity declaration is filed at the border and the goods are accordingly placed into release for free circulation procedure.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

VAT-registered taxable persons may recover input tax, which is VAT charged on expenses related to the supply of goods and services. Taxable persons generally recover input tax by deducting it from output tax, which is VAT charged on supplies made. Recoverable input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services acquired in Georgia, VAT paid on imports into the customs territory of Georgia and VAT self-assessed for reverse-charge services received from outside Georgia, provided that respective goods/services are intended for use in taxable operations. VAT-registered taxable persons may also recover input tax, which is charged on expenses related to the supply of goods/services outside Georgia.

The time limit for a taxable person to reclaim input tax in Georgia is three years. No input tax credit is allowed if three years have passed from the end of calendar year in which the taxable transaction took place.

Nondeductible input tax. No VAT credit is allowed in the following circumstances:
- VAT paid on goods and services intended for use in exempt supplies without the right to reclaim input tax
- VAT shown on tax invoices that do not make the identification of the seller of the goods or services possible or are not issued according to the law
- VAT shown on tax invoices, if three years have passed from the end of the calendar year in which the taxable transaction took place.
- VAT shown on tax invoices issued with respect to bogus operations or fictitious agreements

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- VAT paid on representative expenses (which refer to expenses incurred by a person within the scope of economic activity) including:
  - Expenses (for juices, mineral waters, soft drinks, tea, coffee, breakfast, lunch, dinner, banquet) related to events (presentations, receptions) arranged on behalf of a person
  - Expenses for excursions and cultural and entertainment events
  - Souvenir expenses
  - Guest service expenses
- VAT paid on expenses incurred for entertainment events

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Any item that is not specifically defined as nondeductible by the Tax Code of Georgia is deductible, if it is related to a taxable business use. Examples include:
  - Leased property
  - Fixed assets wholly used in taxable transactions
  - Office inventory

Partial exemption. Input tax directly related to exempt supplies with the right to reclaim input tax is recoverable in full, while input tax directly related to exempt supplies without the right to reclaim input tax is not recoverable. If a taxable person makes both exempt supplies (with and without the right to reclaim input tax) and taxable supplies, it may not recover input tax in full and must be apportioned. This situation is referred to as "partial exemption."

The statutory method of apportionment is a pro rata calculation. The portion of input tax to be recovered is calculated by fraction and is fixed as a percentage, where the numerator is the value of supplies with the right to reclaim input tax and the denominator is the total turnover of the business. The recoverable VAT for each reporting period is calculated in accordance with the fixed annual percentage of the previous tax year and is adjusted in the last reporting period according to the annual percentage of the current tax year.

The following shall not affect the calculation of the fixed annual percentage:

- The turnover related to the supply of fixed assets used for taxable person's own activity
- The turnover related to immovable property or financial transactions if these are not the primary activity of the taxable person

Approval from the tax authorities is not required to use the partial exemption standard method in Georgia.

Special methods are not allowed in Georgia.

Capital goods. Capital goods are items of capital expenditure that are used in the business for more than one year.

The recovery of input tax on capital goods is similar to the other goods described above with one exception. This exception applies if fixed assets are used in both taxable and exempt supplies (with and without the right to reclaim input tax) and the input tax cannot be directly attributed to either of these types of supplies. In these circumstances, the input tax is recoverable in full in the first reporting period if exempt supplies without the right to reclaim input tax account for less than 20% of the total turnover of the preceding tax year of the business. The recoverable VAT is adjusted at the end of each calendar year based on the value of exempt supplies without the right to reclaim input tax as compared to the total turnover of the business for the respective calendar year.

If the abovementioned 20% threshold is not met, the input tax is recoverable only in the last VAT return of a calendar year in the proportion of supplies with the right to reclaim input tax to total turnover of the business during the calendar year.

The following adjustments must be made to the value of input tax for capital goods:
- For an immovable property, an adjustment of 1/10 of total input tax applies annually for 10 calendar years from the year of bringing the property into use.
- For other fixed assets, an adjustment of 1/5 of total input tax applies annually for five calendar years from the year of bringing the asset into use.

Refunds. The excess of input tax over output tax in the reporting period must first be used to offset other taxes payable. If the amount of VAT credit exceeds all taxes payable, the excess can be used to cover future VAT and other tax liabilities, or a refund may be claimed. In certain cases, excess VAT may be refunded to a taxable person automatically.

Pre-registration costs. The recovery of VAT incurred before VAT registration is allowed on the balance of inventory acquired for business purposes outstanding at the moment of VAT registration.

Bad debts. Output tax accounted for on supplies that do not get paid by the recipient (i.e., bad debts) cannot be recovered in Georgia.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for economic activities.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Input tax incurred by non-established businesses that are not registered for VAT in Georgia is not recoverable. Non-established businesses, except EU taxable persons, cannot recover VAT in Georgia, because generally only entities registered for VAT in Georgia may claim recovery of input tax.

EU taxable persons have a right to refund the VAT amount paid on purchased goods (except real estate), services or the importation of goods to Georgia. In order to enjoy the above tax relief, an EU taxable person must satisfy the following conditions:
- The person must not have a fixed establishment in Georgia, or its place of business activity or permanent residency must not be in Georgia.
- Goods/services purchased in Georgia or goods imported into Georgia must be used for taxable transactions.
- If the operations were carried out by a Georgian taxable person, the VAT paid would be recoverable in accordance with the Tax Code of Georgia.

To obtain a refund of VAT, EU taxable persons are required to appoint a tax representative for this purpose (see Section C. Who is liable).

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A VAT-registered taxable person must issue a VAT invoice upon supply of goods/services to another taxable person. VAT invoices can be issued according to the supply cycles for electrical or thermal energy, gas or water supplies if the taxable person accounts for the supplies based on cycle accruals and payment is usually made periodically and not according to the calendar months. A VAT Invoice is issued electronically.

Credit notes. The amount of VAT may be adjusted if the circumstances on which this amount was determined have changed. Any adjustment is made in the reporting period when the change in circumstances occurs. The rules for making adjustment to VAT invoices are defined by the Minister of Finance of Georgia.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is allowed in Georgia, but not mandatory.

Scope of electronic invoicing. For B2B, B2C and business-to-government (B2G) supplies, electronic invoicing is allowed but not mandatory in Georgia. There is no threshold beyond which taxable persons are required to adopt electronic invoicing in Georgia. The requirements related to electronic invoicing are the same as those for paper invoicing.

However, note that Georgia has not implemented any international standards for electronic invoicing. For purposes of strictly local tax administration, Georgian VAT payers may issue VAT invoices electronically. Electronic VAT invoicing is done through the Revenue Service web portal. Paper-based invoicing is also allowed, though it is used very rarely in practice.

All VAT payers in Georgia who have to issue a VAT invoice can do so electronically through the Revenue Service web portal. It is permissible for B2B, B2C and B2G transactions involving exchange of goods or services. The information outlined in the invoices and overall process remains consistent regardless of the recipient of the goods or services.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified VAT invoicing is allowed in Georgia. As of 1 January 2021, simplified invoicing was approved in the Georgia VAT law. However, at the time of preparing this chapter, detail around when simplified VAT invoices can be issued and what information must be reported for simplified VAT invoices has not been issued by the tax authorities.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Georgia.

Proof of exports. Goods exported from Georgia are exempt from VAT with the right to reclaim input tax. To confirm the applicability of this exemption, the supplier must collect and provide to the tax authorities all relevant supporting documents: sales invoice, sales contract, transportation document, license/certificate, etc.

Foreign currency invoices. No foreign currency invoices are allowed for VAT purposes. VAT invoices must be issued in the domestic currency, which is the Georgian lari (GEL).

Supplies to nontaxable persons. When a VAT-registered taxable person delivers goods or services to a consumer (B2C), a VAT invoice is issued only upon request. Where the customer does not request an invoice, no invoice is required to be issued.

Records. There are no specific requirements related to record keeping for indirect tax in Georgia. In Georgia, examples of what records must be held for VAT purposes include primary documents, accounting registers and other documents on the basis of which taxable objects are defined and tax liabilities are established. For VAT purposes, such documents may include VAT invoices, commodity declarations, contracts and other transaction-related documentation.

In Georgia, VAT books and records can be kept outside the country. While there is no provision in the Georgia VAT law on where to hold such records, in practice, records may be held in or outside Georgia. If the records are held outside Georgia, the taxable person must be able to provide the records to the tax authorities upon request within five days, though the deadline may be extended upon written request.

Record retention period. Generally, all records relevant to indirect tax need to be kept for the statute of limitations period, which is three years.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is allowed in Georgia. It is not mandatory, and as such physical archiving (i.e., paper) is also allowed. In practice, documents are archived and provided to tax authorities upon request in either form (i.e., electronic and paper).

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. The VAT reporting period for businesses established in Georgia, is monthly. Taxable persons must file VAT returns by the 15th day of the month following the reporting period. VAT returns must be completed in GEL and filed electronically.

The VAT reporting period for non-established businesses that provide digital services to be used in the territory of Georgia by natural persons is quarterly. A non-established business that carries out such transactions in Georgia must, through the platform created on the Revenue Service website, submit a tax return for each reporting period (quarter) no later than the 20th of the month following the reporting period. A non-established business can settle VAT liabilities in US dollars (USD), euros (EUR), or GEL.

Periodic payments. The VAT amount payable to the budget is the difference between output and input tax. Payment in full is required by the due date for the VAT return, i.e., by the 15th day of the month following the reporting period. VAT liabilities must be settled in GEL through bank transfer to the State Treasury Account.

VAT on imports is paid at the moment the goods are imported into Georgia. Reverse-charge VAT must be paid by the 15th day of the month following the reporting period.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is mandatory in Georgia for all taxable persons. VAT returns must be completed and filed electronically through the Revenue Service web portal (https://eservices.rs.ge/). Prior registration with the Revenue Service is required to access the taxable person's account on the web portal.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Georgia.

Special schemes. Secondhand items, works of art, collectibles, antiques. Supplies of secondhand items, works of art, collectibles and antiques are subject to a special scheme for VAT. Under the special scheme, the taxable amount is determined by dividing the seller's profit margin by 1.18. If the seller is applying the special scheme, neither the seller, nor the buyer have the right to reclaim input tax.

To apply the special scheme, a taxable person must notify the tax authority indicating the period of application of the scheme, which may not be less than 24 months.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Georgia.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in Georgia.

Correcting errors in previous returns. Any errors in previous returns can be corrected by submitting an adjusted return electronically. The adjustment of the taxable transaction amount is made in the reporting period when the circumstances causing the adjustment occurs. The taxable amount should be adjusted if the circumstances/factors based on which the taxable amount was determined have changed. From 1 January 2021, the Minister of Finance of Georgia determines the cases of adjustment of the amount taxable with VAT, as well as the procedure for subscribing and submitting the document. According to the order of the Minister of Finance of Georgia, the amount of the taxable transaction is adjusted in the following circumstances:

- The taxable transaction was canceled.
- The type of taxable transaction has changed (including the tax regime).
- Parties agreed to change the amount of remuneration determined at the time of taxation, except for changes caused by changes in exchange rates.
- The goods/services were fully or partially returned to the supplier.

If a VAT invoice was incorrectly issued for a taxable transaction, a taxable person should issue a corrected VAT invoice. A corrected VAT invoice has the same requirements as an ordinary VAT invoice.

Digital tax administration. There are no transactional reporting requirements in Georgia.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. The penalty for late registration equals 5% of the VAT taxable turnover (except for exempt operations) for the entire period of operating without VAT registration.

Penalties for late payment and filings. Late payment interest is calculated from the day following the payment due date. Late payment interest is imposed at a rate of 0.05% of the overdue tax amount for each overdue day. The payment day is considered an overdue day in case of delay.

If the submission of a tax return is delayed for up to two months, the penalty is 5% of the tax payable based on this tax return. If submission of a tax return is delayed for more than two months, the penalty is 10% of the tax payable based on this tax return.

Penalties for errors. If understated tax does not exceed 5% of the reported tax, a penalty equaling 10% of the understated amount is imposed. The same penalty applies if the understatement results from a change of a tax point by the tax authorities. If understated tax amounts to 5%–20% of the reported tax, a penalty equaling 25% of the understated amount applies. In any other case, a penalty equaling 50% of the understated amount is imposed.

No penalty is imposed for incorrect information presented in the return or calculation form filed by the taxable person if the latter files an amended return or calculation form before receiving the notification regarding the tax audit or the tax violation from the tax authorities.

There are no specific penalties associated with the late notification to the tax authorities of changes to a taxable person's VAT registration details. For further details, see subsection Changes to VAT registration details above.

Penalties for fraud. If input tax credit is claimed based on bogus operations, fictitious agreements or fake documents, a penalty of 200% of the credited tax amount is imposed.

For the issuance of a fake invoice or the issuance of an invoice based on bogus operations or fictitious agreements, a penalty equal to 200% of the VAT amount indicated in this VAT invoice is imposed.

Personal liability for company officers. Company officers cannot be held personally liable for errors and omissions in VAT declarations and reporting in Georgia. However, in case of intentional evasion of taxes in the amount exceeding GEL100,000, criminal proceedings are instituted.

Statute of limitations. The statute of limitations in Georgia is three years. The statute of limitations for conducting a tax audit, assessing taxes and imposing sanctions on a taxable person is three years from the end of the calendar year in which the taxable transaction was performed. Taxable persons have the same time limit to voluntarily correct errors in previous tax returns. Notably, if less than a year remains before the expiry of the three-year period and the taxable person files a tax return (including an adjusted tax return) for the relevant period, the statute of limitation is extended for one year.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- The supply of goods or services made in Germany by a taxable person
- The intra-Community acquisition of goods from another European Union (EU) Member State by a taxable person (see the chapter on the EU)
- Reverse-charge supplies, including supplies of services and supplies of goods with installation services
- The self-supply of goods and services by a taxable person
- The importation of goods from outside the EU, regardless of the status of the importer

For VAT purposes, the territory of Germany does not include the Island of Helgoland, the territory of Buesingen and a free zone of control type I, as defined in Article 1 (1), first sentence of the Customs Administrative Act; this mainly covers the free ports of Bremerhaven and Cuxhaven, as well as certain other special territories.

Services rendered for foreign businesses are taxable in their home countries instead of Germany.

Quick Fixes. Pending introduction of a "definitive" system for the VAT treatment of intra-Community supplies of goods to taxable persons, the EU has adopted Quick Fixes for intra-Community trade in goods. For an overview of the Quick Fixes rules, see the chapter on the EU. For documentary requirements see Section H. Invoicing, subsection Proof of exports and intra-Community supplies.

In Germany, the Quick Fixes have been implemented as of 1 January 2020. These include regulations regarding consignment stock, chain supply, intra-Community supply and its documentation. Documentation of intra-Community supplies according to Quick Fixes is required in addition to those under national regulations. In Germany, the rules on chain supplies are broader than the EU law. They also include the allocation of the moved/unmoved supply for local and export sales, as well as chain supplies where the transport is arranged by the first or last party of the supply chain.

Effective use and enjoyment. To avoid instances of non-taxation or double taxation, EU Member States can apply use and enjoyment rules that allow a service that is "used and enjoyed" in the EU to be taxed or prevent a service that is "used and enjoyed" outside the EU from being taxed. If a service is taxed in the EU under the use and enjoyment provisions, a non-EU supplier of the service may be required to register for VAT in every Member State where it has customers that are not taxable persons. For information regarding the rules relating to VAT registration, see the chapters on the respective countries of the EU.

In Germany, the following services are subject to the "use and enjoyment" provisions:
- Freight transport services and other similar transport services of objects
- Work on movable objects
- Certain travel services (Reisevorleistung)
- Services in connection with exhibitions and events
- Hire of means of transport
- Hire of goods
- Broadcasting services
- Telecommunication services
- Advertising services
- Financial services
- Certain consultancy services

Transfer of a going concern. A supply under the transfer of a going concern (TOGC) regime is not subject to VAT. Transferred assets as a whole must qualify as a going concern. That requires that the entirety enables to render supplies/services. The acquirer must use the acquired entirety to continue rendering the same supplies/services. Partial TOGCs are possible, i.e., part of a single asset deal might be a TOGC (e.g., transfer of rented property where the acquirer continues the renting of the property) while other parts are not.

Transactions between related parties. The VAT taxable amount for transactions between related parties is calculated under the regular regime (remuneration is the tax basis). If the remuneration is, however, below a certain threshold, the threshold serves as the taxable amount instead. For supplies of goods, the threshold consists of the costs of acquisition. For supplies of services, the threshold is determined by the sum of all costs incurred for rendering the service, if input tax on these costs could be (entirely or partially) deducted.

C. Who is liable

A taxable person is any business entity or individual that independently carries out any economic activity in any place.

There is no VAT registration threshold in Germany. Therefore, a taxable person that begins an activity in Germany must provide certain information connected to the enterprise to the German VAT authorities.

The following two distinct types of numbers are used in Germany:
- General tax number (Steuernummer)
- VAT Identification Number (USt-IdNr.)

The tax number is the number under which the taxable person is registered at the local tax office that is responsible for the person's tax affairs. The tax authorities use the tax number for internal management and coordination purposes. The tax number must be used for all preliminary VAT returns, annual VAT returns and all correspondence with the local tax authority.

On receipt of the tax number, a taxable person may apply to the Federal Office of Finance in Saarlouis (BZSt) for a VAT Identification Number. This number is used for intra-Community transactions and EU taxable persons selling products from, within or to Germany including the usage of electronic interfaces.

Exemption from registration. The VAT law in Germany does not contain any provision for exemption from registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. The VAT law in Germany does not contain any provision for voluntary registration, nor special VAT registration rules for small businesses. This is because there is no registration threshold (i.e., all entities that make taxable supplies are obliged to register for VAT).

Group registration. Germany allows group registration for subsidiaries that are "financially, economically and organizationally integrated" into the business of a parent entity. The following general conditions apply:

- The parent (or controlling) member of the VAT group may be any type of legal entity, including a corporation, a general partnership or a sole entrepreneur (natural person). However, it must carry out taxable activities to be able to act as the parent company of the VAT group.
- A subsidiary (or controlled) member of a VAT group must be a corporation or a general partnership. A sole entrepreneur (i.e., a natural person) is ruled out as a controlled member. National jurisdiction has positively admitted general partnerships only if they fulfill additional certain requirements, though. A decree of the tax authorities mainly – if not entirely – follows the rulings regarding the requirements for admitting a general partnership. The European Court of Justice (ECJ) (C-868/19, 15 April 2021) ruled that the certain tighter requirements for general partnerships in Germany (compared to the regular requirements to corporations) are not in line with the EU Directive. At the time of preparing this chapter, the national jurisdiction reacted only partially to this ruling (Federal Fiscal Court, V R 14/21 (V R 45/19); still pending: Lower Fiscal Court Berlin-Brandenburg, 5 K 5044/19). The tax authorities have not reacted to the ECJ's ruling.

The VAT authorities apply the following criteria to determine whether entities are eligible for integration:

- "Financial integration" means, according to rulings of the national jurisdiction and national tax authorities' opinion, that the parent has the majority of voting rights in the subsidiaries. The ECJ has ruled, however, that financial integration does not require the majority of voting rights. Instead, the majority of shares is sufficient as long as the parent is able to enforce its will (ECJ, C-141/20, 1 December 2022). For a general partnership, national jurisdiction and tax authorities require that the parent holds all its shares (directly and/or indirectly). The ECJ disputed that (see above).
- "Economic integration" means that the subsidiaries act like departments of one entity or like divisions with respect to the overall business of the group.
- "Organizational integration" exists if the parent has the means to exercise management power in the subsidiaries. For example, this requirement is met if the parent and the subsidiary have the same person acting as the Managing Director, whereas legislation requires this person to be employed at the parent and not at the subsidiary.

If the integration conditions are met, the subsidiaries and the parent are automatically treated as a group for VAT purposes. The effect of grouping is that the subsidiary is no longer considered to be an entrepreneur or separate taxable person. As a result, intragroup transactions are outside the scope of VAT and accordingly, no VAT is charged. The subsidiary is no longer required to file separate VAT returns and its transactions are reported through the parent's VAT return. These effects apply only to domestic supplies between the group entities (that is, supplies within the scope of German VAT). In addition, the effects of the VAT grouping are limited to Germany.

VAT grouping does not apply to certain intra-Community compliance obligations. Each subsidiary must have its own separate VAT Identification Number and must file its own European Sales List, if it carries out intra-Community supplies. Intrastat returns may be filed either on an aggregate group basis by the parent or by each subsidiary separately.

Generally, the representative member is liable for VAT debts and penalties. However, other VAT group members can be held liable partially.

There is no minimum time period required for the duration of a VAT group.

Holding companies. In Germany, a pure holding company cannot be a member of a VAT group. This is because a pure holding company does not qualify as a taxable person. They might, however, serve as link to established financial integration between their parent company and their subsidiaries.

Cost-sharing exemption. The VAT cost-sharing exemption, in accordance with VAT Directive 2006/112/EEC Article 132(1)(f), has been implemented in Germany. This provides an option to exempt support services that the cost-sharing group supplies to its members, providing certain conditions are met (in accordance with specific requirements laid out in German VAT law).

Fixed establishment. A legal definition of a fixed establishment for VAT purposes does not exist in Germany. It requires a facility or other fixed place, which is equipped with a minimum of personnel and assets to provide the respective services/supplies.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that has no fixed establishment in Germany. A non-established business is not required to register for German VAT if all of its supplies are covered by the reverse-charge procedure (under which the recipient of the supply must self-assess VAT). The reverse-charge procedure applies to most services. It does not apply to supplies of goods located in Germany (except supplies of installed goods) or to supplies of goods or services made to private persons. In principle, if the reverse charge does not apply, a non-established business must register for German VAT. As such, no threshold applies for non-established businesses.

Tax representatives. In principle, a non-established business that is required to register for VAT in Germany may not appoint a tax representative. A tax representative may be appointed only if the non-established business does not have any German VAT to reclaim and exclusively makes supplies that are either exempt from German VAT or exempt with credit.

Reverse charge. Applying the reverse-charge mechanism shifts the liability for payment of the tax from the supplier to the recipient of the supply. The recipient must self-assess the VAT due.

The recipient is allowed to reclaim the reported VAT in the same preliminary VAT return as input tax to the extent it is allowed for input tax deduction. The supplier must issue invoices without German VAT. Therefore, the taxable person only invoices the net amount. Furthermore, it is mandatory for the entrepreneur to state on the invoice that the reverse charge applies and that the recipient is liable for German VAT with the following phrase: "Steuerschuldnerschaft des Leistungsempfängers" or "Transactions subject to reverse-charge mechanism."

Domestic reverse charge. The reverse-charge procedure applies in principle to the following supplies and services (if further criteria are met):

- Supplies of services performed by entrepreneurs based in other EU Member States or third states to a German-based taxable person
- Services and the supply of goods with installation provided by non-established businesses
- Certain supplies in connection with immovable property
- Certain supplies in connection with the real estate transfer tax law
- Certain supplies of gas and electricity and emission certificates
- Goods supplied as part of the execution of security outside of an insolvency procedure
- Supply of rights to emit greenhouse gases and of gas and electricity certificates
- Certain supplies of heat and cooling
- Supply of scrap and discarded metal as defined by a special annex
- Facility cleaning under certain conditions
- Supplies of integrated circuits, mobile phones, tablet computers and games consoles for a remuneration of EUR5,000 or more
- Supplies of base metals as defined by a special annex
- Telecommunication services

The reverse-charge procedure does not apply to certain supplies of passenger transportation or to services with respect to fairs or exhibitions.

Digital economy. Specific VAT rules apply to cross-border supplies of goods and services sold via the internet (e-commerce) in all EU Member States with effect from 1 July 2021. These new rules apply to all direct sales to nontaxable persons (in practice, these are mostly private individuals), but these rules are referred to as e-commerce VAT rules because most of these transactions are conducted via the internet. In general, the place of supply is in the country of consumption, i.e., where the goods are shipped to or where the buyer of the goods or services resides, subject to any "use and enjoyment" provisions that may override this rule (see Section B, Effective use and enjoyment subsection above). Therefore:

- For supplies of services made by a nonresident supplier to a business customer (B2B), the business customer is responsible for accounting for the VAT due, using the reverse charge.
- For supplies of goods made by a nonresident supplier to a business customer (B2B), where the goods are transported from another EU Member State, the business purchasing the goods is responsible for accounting for the VAT due, as an intra-Community acquisition. If the goods come from outside the EU, the purchaser may have to report an importation of goods.
- For supplies of goods or services made by a nonresident supplier to a final consumer (B2C), the supplier is generally responsible for charging and accounting for the VAT due at the rate applicable in the customer's country (unless the supplier's sales fall beneath the distance selling threshold of EUR10,000 with effect from 1 July 2021). This VAT can be reported using a single VAT registration, using a "One-Stop-Shop" mechanism.

For more details about intra-EU distance sales, see the chapter on the EU.

Effective 1 July 2021, an e-commerce supplier may have a choice of how to account for VAT on its B2C supplies.

Local VAT registration. A nonresident supplier may choose to register for VAT in each Member State and account for VAT on all supplies made and recover input tax in accordance with local rules (see the Non-established businesses subsection above). Non-EU businesses may be required to appoint a fiscal representative for accounting for the VAT due on these transactions.

In Germany, the registration and application process follows the normal rules (see the Registration procedures subsection below).

One-Stop Shop. Effective 1 July 2021, a supplier can choose to account for the VAT due under the EU One-Stop Shop (OSS), which can be used for intra-EU cross-border supplies of goods and all cross-border supplies of services made to final consumers in the EU. Unlike the previous Mini One-Stop-Shop (MOSS) scheme that applied until 30 June 2021, the OSS is not limited to cross-border supplies of electronic services, telecommunication services and broadcasting services.

The OSS is an electronic portal that allows businesses to:

- Register for VAT electronically in a single Member State for all intra-EU distance sales of goods and for B2C supplies of services
- Declare and pay VAT due on all supplies of goods and services in a single electronic quarterly return

The OSS can be used by businesses established in the EU and outside the EU. If a supplier or a deemed supplier decides to register for the OSS, it must declare and pay VAT for all supplies (goods as well as services) that fall under the OSS.

In Germany, if the taxable person chooses to use the OSS, it must declare and register with the Federal Central Office for Taxes (Bundeszentralamt für Steuern). The OSS cannot be used retroactively. Instead, the taxable person can only declare to OSS for a future assessment period.

Declaration and payment of VAT under the OSS must be made within one month after the end of the respective assessment period (quarter).

For more details about the operation of the OSS, see the chapter on the EU.

Import One-Stop Shop. Effective 1 July 2021, the Import One-Stop-Shop (IOSS) scheme applies for B2C distance sales of goods from outside the EU.

Effective 1 July 2021, VAT is due on all commercial goods imported into the EU, regardless of their value. Furthermore, the former threshold for the VAT exemption regarding goods with a value less than EUR22 has been lifted. The actual supply is subject to VAT in the country where the goods are imported (the country of destination). The IOSS facilitates the declaration and payment of VAT due on the sale of low-value goods (i.e., consignments valued at less than EUR150 per consignment). It allows suppliers selling low-value goods dispatched or transported from a non-EU country to customers in the EU to collect, declare and pay the VAT due. If the IOSS is used, the importation into the EU is exempt from VAT. For more details about the IOSS, see the chapter on the EU.

The use of the IOSS special scheme is not mandatory. If VAT is not collected via the IOSS scheme, the importation of goods into the EU is subject to import VAT in the country of final destination, and the Member State can decide freely who is liable to pay the import VAT, which could be the customer or the seller (or an electronic interface).

In Germany, if the taxable person chooses to use the IOSS, it must declare and register with the Federal Central Office for Taxes (Bundeszentralamt für Steuern). The IOSS cannot be used retroactively. Instead, the taxable person can only use the IOSS from the day onward at which the taxable person's individual identification number has been issued.

Declaration and payment of VAT under the IOSS must be made within one month after the end of the respective assessment period (month).

Postal services and couriers scheme. If the IOSS is not used and the customer is liable for the import VAT due on the supply (and importation) of consignments with a small intrinsic value (i.e., less than EUR150), the VAT can be collected using the special scheme for postal services and couriers.

In Germany the taxable person may apply for the optional scheme before the competent customs authority. The scheme can only be used for goods that are transported into Germany. The taxable person must declare monthly the goods for which this scheme was used until the 10th day after the respective month.

For more details about the special scheme for postal services and couriers, see the chapter on the EU.

Online marketplaces and platforms. Under the new EU VAT e-commerce rules, effective 1 July 2021, taxable persons that "facilitate" certain B2C sales of goods are deemed to have purchased and then supplied those goods themselves. This means that the single supply from the "underlying" supplier to the final consumer is split into two deemed supplies:

- A supply from the supplier to the facilitator (deemed B2B supply).
- A supply from the facilitator to the final customer (deemed B2C supply). Any intermediation service provided by the facilitator is disregarded for VAT purposes.

This provision does not cover all sales facilitated via the facilitator. It only covers distance sales of goods imported from non-EU jurisdictions in consignments with an intrinsic value not exceeding EUR150. The jurisdiction of residence of the supplier using the facilitator is irrelevant. The supply to the facilitating platform is VAT exempt and the supplies made by that platform follow the e-commerce VAT rules as described above. In addition, the provision also covers sales within the EU, if the supplier is not established within the EU. This applies to both local shipments within one Member State as well as intra-Community shipments. In both cases, the final customer must be a nontaxable person.

In Germany, there are no additional specific local rules that apply. The taxable person must declare these supplies within its regular preliminary VAT declarations.

For more details about the rules for online marketplaces, see the chapter on the EU.

Vouchers. In Germany, the rendering of a single-purpose voucher (SPV) is taxed at the VAT rate of the supply itself. In that case the actual supply/service is not taxed. The rendering of a multi-purpose voucher (MPV) is not taxed. Instead, the supply/service paid with that voucher is taxed regularly (i.e., the voucher is taxed on redemption). The voucher classifies as SPV if the place of supply as well as the VAT amount are already certain upon issuing of the voucher.

Registration procedures. There is no VAT registration threshold in Germany. All taxable persons that carry out taxable transactions in Germany that are subject to German VAT must register for VAT purposes in Germany. It normally takes four to six weeks to obtain a (general) tax number from the responsible local tax authority. The entrepreneur may apply for a VAT ID number for intra-Community transactions or services supplied where received from the Federal Central Office for Taxes (Bundeszentralamt für Steuern).

The entrepreneur can apply for the (general) tax number at the responsible local tax authority by explaining in writing why they need to register for VAT in Germany. No special form is required, but the entrepreneur generally must complete a questionnaire issued by the relevant local tax authority. Furthermore, they must submit a certification of status of taxable person as well as an excerpt from their local trade register. Online registration is not possible. To obtain the VAT ID number, a separate application is required to be submitted to the Federal Central Office for Taxes (Bundeszentralamt für Steuern).

Deregistration. There is no special procedure or form required to deregister. The entrepreneur informs the tax office and states the reason for the deregistration.

Changes to VAT registration details. A taxable person must report changes to its VAT registration details to the tax authorities without any undue delay. No fixed deadline exists for such notifications. However, any delay that hampers the duly taxation might trigger penalties or might even be regarded as fraudulent behavior.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 19%
- Reduced rate: 7%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services, unless a specific provision allows a reduced rate or exemption.

Some supplies are classified as "exempt-with-credit" (i.e., zero-rated), which means that no VAT is chargeable, but the supplier may recover related input tax. Exempt with credit supplies include exports of goods outside the EU and related services, and intra-Community supplies of goods.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 7%

- (e-)Books and (e-)newspapers
- Cultural services
- Food
- Passenger transport (under certain conditions)
- Agricultural products
- Hotel stays
- Supply of gas via the natural gas network and supply of heat via a heating network for the period from 1 October 2022 (retroactive) to 29 February 2024

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Land and buildings
- Financial transactions
- Insurance
- Education
- Medical services
- Supply, intra-Community acquisition, import and installation of certain photovoltaic systems and electricity storage systems (with effect from 1 January 2023).

Option to tax for exempt supplies. For some exempt supplies, such as land, buildings and financial transactions, there is an option for the supplier to treat a transaction as taxable, and if certain requirements are met, related input tax can be recovered. The supply or service must be rendered to an entrepreneur for business purposes, and further requirements might apply.

E. Time of supply

The general time of supply rule for goods is upon completion (generally transfer of power of disposition). However, based on the decisions by the German Federal Fiscal Court and the tax authorities, the time of supply of a supply of transport (i.e., a moved supply) would be the time when the transport begins (not when it is completed). In the case of a supply not linked with transport (i.e., an unmoved supply), the time of supply is the time when the right to dispose of the goods passes from the seller to the buyer.

The general time of supply rule for services is when the service is completely rendered.

The VAT falls due at the end of the filing period in which a supply takes place (tax point). However, some taxable persons are permitted to account for VAT on a cash basis (cash accounting). If cash accounting is used, the tax point is the end of the filing period in which payment is received.

Deposits and prepayment. The time of supply for advance payments or prepayments is the end of the VAT return period in which payment is received.

Continuous supplies of services. Continuous supplies of services are deemed to be rendered upon completion of delivery. If such services can be divided into parts and separate payments for these parts are agreed, such as monthly payments for an ongoing lease, VAT arises for these partial supplies.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules in Germany for supplies of goods sent on approval for sale or return. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above). In general, VAT accrues when the recipient receives the power of disposition or if the taxable person acts/uses the goods as if it has already been received. Terms of agreements and facts of the given case are decisive.

If goods are returned, the VAT can generally be reclaimed, but not retroactively. This refers to the point in time in which the VAT amount due can be reduced. This means if goods are returned (meaning the supply has been canceled), the supplier can lower the VAT on that supply (to zero), which has been declared upon the supply. The lowering of the VAT is (regarding its point in time) allocated to the return of the goods and not to the point in time in which the supply has been rendered. Deducted input tax on the returned goods must be repaid to the tax authorities accordingly.

Reverse-charge services. The tax point for a supply taxed under the reverse-charge procedure (self-assessment by a German taxable person) is the end of the month following the month in which the supply takes place. If the supplier issues an invoice before this date, the tax point is the date on which the invoice is issued. For most services under the reverse-charge procedure, the tax point is the month in which the services are rendered, regardless of the date on which the invoice is issued. For most services under the reverse-charge procedure that last longer than a year, the tax point is once a year (for the yearly part of the service).

Leased assets. A regular lease (letting) is a service. It is rendered either upon completion of the lease term or upon end of a defined period of the lease term for which a separate payment is agreed (e.g., monthly payments for an ongoing lease). If an asset is leased (leasing) it may be classified either as a service or as a supply. If classified as a supply, it is deemed to be rendered upon completion of delivery (lease term). If it is classified as a service, it is taxed like the regular lease (letting).

Imported goods. The tax point for imported goods is the date on which the goods clear customs or the date on which the goods leave a duty suspension regime and are released for free circulation. The date on which import VAT becomes due depends on how the goods clear customs. The following are the applicable rules:

- If the goods are cleared without using a payment-simplification regime, in general, the import VAT payment is due within 10 days.
- If the goods are cleared using a payment-simplification regime, payment is postponed for up to 45 days.

Intra-Community acquisitions. The tax point for an intra-Community acquisition of goods is the end of the month following the month when the acquisition occurred. If the supplier issues an invoice before this date, the tax point is the date on which the invoice is issued.

Intra-Community supplies of goods. There is not technically a "tax point" for intra-Community supplies of goods, as the supplies are generally zero-rated. However, intra-Community supplies must be reported in the tax period following the period in which the supply took place (i.e., where the transport began). However, if the supply was invoiced in the period in which the supply took place, it must be reported in the tax period of invoicing. For example, an intra-Community supply took place in January and was invoiced in March. The transaction must be reported in the VAT period for February (same applies if the invoice was raised in February). If the supply would have been invoiced in January (i.e., the month the supply took place), it must be reported in the VAT return for January.

The same applies for intra-Community B2B services and supplies under the triangulation simplification.

Distance sales. There are no special time of supply rules in Germany for supplies of distance sales. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax, which is VAT charged on goods and services supplied to it for taxable business purposes (used for taxable (output) services or supplies). Exceptions to this rule exist. A taxable person generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax, which is VAT charged on supplies made.

The time limit for a taxable person to reclaim input tax in Germany is the period to which the input tax is allocated. Input tax must be claimed for the period to which it is allocated. Retroactively this is only possible as long as the tax assessment for the previous period can still be procedurally amended. Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services supplied in Germany, VAT paid on imports of goods and VAT self-assessed on the intra-Community acquisition of goods (see the chapter on the EU) and VAT on purchases of goods and services taxed under the reverse-charge procedure.

A valid tax invoice or customs document must generally accompany a claim for input tax. A tax invoice that is not fulfilling all formal requirements may be corrected/amended retroactively under certain conditions.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use). The following specific rules apply in Germany to the input tax deduction:

- The 10% rule. If an asset is used for less than 10% business purposes, no input tax recovery is allowed. This rule applies to all assets.
- Private use. For corporations (for example, a GmbH or an AG) that are taxable persons, any purchase of goods or services is treated as being made for business purposes. Consequently, input tax recovery is allowed in full (if used for taxable output services or supplies). If the goods or services are used for private purposes, the legal entity is deemed to make a supply of goods or services and output tax is due. However, if the taxable person already intends to use the goods or services for private purposes when it acquires them, the legislation does not grant input tax recovery. Consequently, no output tax is due upon use for private purposes.
- Luxury goods and services. Input tax may not be deducted for some items of business expenditure. In general, if an item of expense is allowable for German income tax purposes, the input tax may be deducted.

The following lists provide some examples of items of expenditure for which input tax is not deductible and examples of items for which input tax is deductible if the expenditure is related to a taxable business use.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Business gifts (if valued over either EUR35 or EUR60, depending on the recipient)
- Employees' home telephone bills and private mobile telephone bills

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Hotel accommodation
- Restaurant meals for employees on business trips
- 100% purchase, lease or hire of cars by corporations, partnerships or sole proprietors (with VAT chargeable on employee private use)
- Advertising
- Books
- Transport services

Partial exemption. Input tax directly related to making exempt supplies is generally not recoverable. If a German taxable person makes both exempt and taxable supplies, it may not recover input tax in full. This situation is referred to as "partial exemption." Note "exempt with credit" supplies are treated as taxable supplies for these purposes.

The amount of VAT recoverable is calculated using the following two-stage calculation:
- The first stage identifies the input tax that may be directly allocated to taxable and to exempt supplies. Input tax directly allocated to taxable supplies is fully deductible. Input tax directly related to exempt supplies is entirely not deductible (exceptions apply).
- The second stage identifies the amount of the remaining input tax (for example, business overheads) that may be allocated to taxable supplies and recovered.

Approval from the tax authorities is not required to use the partial exemption standard method in Germany. Special methods are not allowed in Germany.

Capital goods. Capital goods are items of capital expenditure that are used in a business over several years. Input tax is deducted in the VAT year in which the goods are acquired. The amount of input tax recovered depends on the taxable person's (partial exemption) recovery position in the VAT year of acquisition. However, the amount of input tax recovered for capital goods must be adjusted over time, if the taxable person's partial exemption recovery percentage deviates from the intended use during the adjustment period.

In Germany, the capital goods adjustment applies to the following assets for the number of years indicated:
- Land and buildings (adjusted for a period of 10 years)
- Other assets (adjusted for a period of five years)

The adjustment is applied each year following the year of acquisition, to a fraction of the total input tax (1/10 for land and buildings and 1/5 for movable capital assets). The adjustment may result in either an increase or a decrease of deductible input tax, depending on whether the ratio of taxable supplies made by the business has increased or decreased compared with the year in which the capital goods were acquired. This provision also applies to current assets and services.

For goods that are used only once, the adjustment takes place at the time the transaction (for example, their resale) is carried out. No adjustment period applies.

The initial input tax deduction for services that are not performed on goods but that are used for transactions within the scope of VAT (for example, software licenses, cleaning services, consulting services for a business concept and prepayments for long-term leasing) must be adjusted to the extent that the initial deduction ratio changes.

For goods that are integrated in other goods and for services performed on goods, the capital goods scheme applies in the same way; that is, the additional supply has its own capital-goods adjustment scheme, but the adjustment period is the same as the period that applies to the basic good (for example, if new windows are added to a house, the adjustment period for the windows begins with their first use and the adjustment period lasts 10 years, because the windows become part of the immovable property).

No adjustment need be made in the following situations:
- The total input tax on the purchase or the production cost of the goods or service is less than EUR1,000.
- The correction amount for the year does not exceed EUR1,000, and the adjustment is less than 10%.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax recoverable in a monthly period exceeds the amount of output tax payable in that period, the taxable person has an input tax credit. The credit is generally refunded. Exceptionally, the tax authorities may make the refund conditional on the taxable person making a deposit (for example, a bank guarantee) that is subsequently refunded.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax on costs incurred before registration is deductible. No special rules apply. Status as a taxable person does not depend on registration. However, recovery of input tax on such costs requires (retroactive) registration.

Bad debts. A taxable person is entitled to recover any VAT already accounted to the tax authorities in respect of unpaid debts. VAT on a bad debt is recovered at the VAT rate that was applied to the original transaction.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred on purchases that are used for noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Germany.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Input tax incurred by non-established businesses that are not registered for VAT in Germany is recoverable. The German Federal Tax Office (Bundeszentralamt für Steuern, or BZSt) refunds VAT incurred by businesses that are neither established nor registered in Germany. Non-established businesses may claim German VAT to the same extent as VAT-registered businesses.

EU businesses. For businesses established in the EU, refunds are made under the terms of the EU Directive 2008/9/EC. The VAT refund procedure under the EU Directive 2008/9 may be used only if the business did not perform any taxable supplies in Germany during the refund period (excluding supplies covered by the reverse charge). For full details, see the chapter on the EU.

Find below specific rules for Germany:
- EU businesses must file their refund claims to the competent tax authorities (usually with scanned documents, e.g., invoices) in their home states via an electronic form. These tax authorities pass on the form to the BZSt. Any further correspondence with the BZSt must be completed in German.
- The original invoices must be retained because the BZSt may review the original invoices or copies of them under certain circumstances. The BZSt must generally repay VAT within four months after the date on which the claim was submitted for refund. The refunded amount yields interest of 0.15% per month, i.e., up to 1.8 % per year, beginning generally four months and 10 workdays after the claim is received by the BZSt.

Non-EU businesses. For businesses established outside the EU, refunds are made under the terms of the EU 13th Directive. For full details, see the chapter on the EU.

Germany applies the principle of reciprocity; that is, the country where the claimant is established must also provide VAT refunds to German businesses. The German VAT authorities have published a list of countries to which refunds are granted and a list of those to which they are not granted. The current list can be obtained online from the Federal Ministry of Finance (Bundesministerium der Finanzen).

A non-established business is generally allowed to claim German VAT to the same extent as a VAT-registered business. However, businesses established outside the EU may not recover German VAT on fuel costs.

Find below specific rules for Germany:
- The deadline for refund claims by non-EU businesses is 30 June of the year following the year in which the invoice was received by the claimant. The date of supply may be earlier than the date of the invoice. The claims deadline is strictly enforced.
- Claims must be submitted in German.
- The claimant must submit a Certificate of Taxable Status, which confirms that the claimant is registered as a taxable person under a tax number. The certificate may not be older than one year. In addition, the German VAT authorities may send an additional questionnaire to confirm that the claimant should not be registered for VAT in Germany, as opposed to using the EU 13th

Directive procedure. According to the tax authorities, the application must be signed by the legal representative and other representatives are not allowed to sign the application. Consequently, they may reject an application on this ground.
- For all claimants, the minimum claim period is three months, while the maximum period is one year. The minimum claim for a period of less than a year is EUR1,000, while the minimum amount for an annual claim or for the remainder of a year is EUR500.
- Applications of non-EU businesses for refunds of German VAT must be sent to the following address:

  Bundeszentralamt für Steuern
  Dienstsitz Schwedt/Oder
  Passower Chaussee 3b
  D-16303 Schwedt/Oder
  Germany

Late payment interest. For late (refund) payments to both EU and non-EU non-established businesses, the regular interest rate applies. It is 0.15% per completed month. For further details on the recent legislative changes for interest rates, see the section "EU businesses" above.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A German taxable person must generally provide VAT invoices for supplies made to other taxable persons and to legal entities, including exports and intra-Community supplies. This obligation generally does not exist for supplies that are exempt. Invoices are not automatically required for supplies made to private persons. A German taxable person is required only to issue invoices to private persons for certain supplies in connection with real estate.

Invoices must be issued within six months. Invoices for intra-Community supplies as well as services subject to reverse charge and rendered by taxable persons resident in the EU must be issued within 15 days following the month in which said supplies or services have been rendered.

A VAT invoice is required to support a claim for input tax deduction or a refund under the EU refund schemes (see the chapter on the EU).

Credit notes. A VAT credit note may be used to reduce the VAT charged and reclaimed on a supply. It is also possible to cancel an incorrect invoice and issue a revised one.

For intra-Community supplies of goods and exports, the invoice must include the statement that the supply is VAT-free. In addition, the customer's valid VAT Identification Number (issued by another EU Member State) must be mentioned in the invoice for all intra-Community supplies of goods.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is mandatory in Germany, for certain taxable persons.

Scope of electronic invoicing. For business-to-government (B2G) supplies, electronic invoicing is mandatory for all taxable persons in Germany. This is in line with EU Directive 2014/55/EU (see the chapter on the EU).

For B2B and B2C supplies it is allowed but not mandatory. This is in line with EU Directive 2010/45/EU (see the chapter on the EU). There is no threshold beyond which taxable persons are required to adopt electronic invoicing in Germany. The requirements related to electronic invoicing are the same as those for paper invoicing.

However, at the time of preparing this chapter, for local B2B supplies the following is currently under legislative review:
- Electronic invoicing will be mandatory for B2B supplies, if the supplier and recipient are both established in Germany (i.e., domestic local B2B supplies)
- Electronic invoicing will be required to have certain formats, either:

- EU VAT Directive 2014/55/EU (CEN EN 16931)
  Or
- Compatible or interoperable format to EU VAT Directive 2014/55/EU (CEN EN 16931)
- Introduction is scheduled as of 1 January 2025
- Various transition periods may be in place until either 1 January 2027 or 1 January 2028
- Alterations and amendments at this stage of the legislative procedure are still possible

For the EU VAT in the Digital Age (ViDA) proposals, refer to the chapter on the European Union.

Simplified VAT invoices. A Simplified VAT invoicing scheme is available in Germany for invoices with a gross amount not exceeding EUR250. For such invoices, reduced formal requirements apply. In general, only the name and address of supplier, date of invoice, description and quantity of rendered supply/service, gross amount and tax rate must be stated.

Self-billing. Self-billing is allowed in Germany. A self-billed invoice must state "Gutschrift" "Self-billing" or the respective word in other languages as stated in the VAT Directive. Self-billing must be agreed in advance between the supplier and customer before the first self-billed invoice is issued. No special form for the agreement is required. Nonetheless, a written agreement is favorable. A self-billed invoice becomes invalid upon the supplier's veto.

Proof of exports and intra-Community supplies. VAT is not chargeable on supplies of exported goods or on the intra-Community supply of goods (see the chapter on the EU). However, to qualify as VAT-free, exports and intra-Community supplies must be supported by evidence that proves the goods have left Germany.

The Automated Tariff and Local Customs Clearance System (ATLAS) proof of export is considered to be the standard documentary proof. Alternative proof, such as bills of lading, airway bills or freight forwarder certificates, is accepted only if an export has not been declared in the electronic ATLAS procedure or if, in special cases, the electronic export procedure could not be completed as required.

For intra-Community supplies, the standard proof – the so-called Gelangensbestätigung (confirmation of arrival) – is required. The confirmation must contain the following information:
- The name and address of the customer
- The amount and customary description of the supplied goods
- In case of transport by the supplier or on behalf of the supplier or customer, the place and date of receipt of the delivered goods in another EU Member State
- In the case of transport by the customer, the date and place of the end of the transport in another EU Member State

Other types of proof are allowed. However, the tax authorities are more likely to challenge alternative proofs than to challenge the Gelangensbestätigung.

No special documentation applies in Germany for evidencing the application of the Quick Fixes. Normal intra-Community documentation rules apply (the so-called Gelangensbestätigung). However, from 1 January 2020, proofs as stated in the VAT Directive as amended under the "Quick Fixes" scheme are recognized in addition to the proofs stipulated by national law. See the Quick Fixes subsection above for more detail.

Foreign currency invoices. If a German VAT invoice is issued in a foreign currency, the value must be converted to the domestic currency, which is the euro (EUR) using an official exchange rate. The following conversion rates may be applied:
- The actual bank-selling rate for the date of the supply (not the date of the invoice) (see Section E. Time of supply above). The rate used must be evidenced by documentation issued by the bank (this must be allowed by the German tax authorities).
- The average monthly exchange rates published by the Federal Ministry of Finance shortly after the end of the month.

German law provides that the use of the official Ministry of Finance rates is the standard method of currency conversion for VAT purposes. Alternatively, the tax authorities may accept the use of bank selling rates by a taxable person. However, neither the law nor any official guidelines specify how this acceptance is to be achieved. In addition, no formal obligation to ask for approval exists. In practice, many companies simply use bank selling rates, while others inform their tax office in advance and ask for acceptance.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. There are no special invoicing rules for supplies to nontaxable persons in Germany. As such, full VAT invoices are required.

Distance selling. For intra-Community distance sales made B2C, a full VAT invoice must be issued. However, if the supplier operates the OSS regime, then no full VAT invoice is required unless requested.

Records. In Germany, examples of what records must be held for VAT purposes include all records and data that are relevant for VAT. This includes invoices, records regarding export or intra-Community supplies, business letters, agreements, proof of status of recipient as VAT-taxable person.

In Germany, VAT books and records must be held within the country. Generally, all records (electronic or on paper) must be kept in Germany. However, electronic storage outside of Germany is possible but requires permission by the tax authorities in advance. Storage of paper documents abroad is generally not possible.

Record retention period. Taxable persons must retain invoices for 10 years. Private persons who receive invoices for certain supplies in connection with real estate must retain the invoices for two years. Otherwise, private persons are not required to retain invoices.

Taxable persons must furthermore keep their bookkeeping records under regular bookkeeping regulations pursuant to the German Fiscal Code (Abgabenordnung). However, all aforementioned retention periods may be extended under certain conditions.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is allowed in Germany. It is mandatory for data received or produced electronically. Electronic archiving must meet the "GoBD" standard, e.g., the taxable person must be able to provide electronic real-time access to all tax-relevant data with all functions of the system and for unrestricted processing, as well as providing such data on a data medium. Data must be stored in Germany. Exceptions are possible but must be granted by the competent tax authorities.

Archiving of documents on paper is also allowed but must meet certain requirements. For example, access to the original must be possible without delay.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. In general, preliminary VAT returns are filed quarterly, but monthly returns must be filed if the VAT payable for the preceding year exceeded EUR7,500. However, if the VAT payable for the preceding year did not exceed EUR1,000, the taxable person may be exempted from filing preliminary returns. Newly established taxable persons must file monthly VAT returns for the first and second year of registration.

In general, preliminary VAT returns must be filed electronically.

The preliminary VAT return must be submitted by the 10th day after the end of the filing period. The VAT authorities must receive payment in full by the same day.

Periodic payments. VAT payment periods follow the period for the submission of the preliminary and annual VAT returns. Basically, a preliminary VAT return as well as any VAT payable must be submitted monthly or quarterly to and must be received by the tax authorities until the 10th day of the following month.

Payments are made by regular bank transfer. Cash payments are not allowed.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is mandatory in Germany for all taxable persons. German VAT returns must be filed electronically with authentication verified by an electronic certificate that the taxable person receives by registering on the ELSTER Online-Portal (http://www.elsterformular.de/).

Following the successful transmission of data, the transmission protocol needs to be retained for the taxable person's files to fulfill the documentation requirements of Sec. 147 AO (Abgabenordnung, the German Fiscal Code).

Payments on account. Payments on account are generally not required in Germany, except for certain taxable persons. As the regular filing deadline is relatively short, the VAT authorities allow a permanent, one-month filing and payment extension on a written application. However, taxable persons that must submit monthly preliminary VAT returns must pay a special prepayment equal to 1/11th of the preceding year's VAT liability by the due date. This special prepayment is deducted from the VAT payable in the preliminary VAT return submitted for the month of December. Taxable persons that file returns on a quarterly basis are not required to make a special prepayment when they apply for a permanent filing extension.

Special schemes. Secondhand goods. A special scheme applies to supplies of secondhand goods, e.g., if a commercial car dealer acquires a car from a private person. If a taxable person sells goods or services he previously purchased for taxable purposes in his business, he must charge VAT on the resale of such goods or services.

Tour Operator's Margin Scheme. A special scheme also applies for EU-based tour operators, the Tour Operator's Margin Scheme (TOMS). On 1 December 2021, the German Federal Ministry of Finance declared via a decree that non-EU travel operators will no longer be subject to TOMS from 1 January 2023. The transitional period has been extended. As such, for non-EU tour operators, the TOMS is granted until 31 December 2026.

Cash accounting. Small businesses with a taxable turnover of not more than EUR600,000 in the prior year may account for VAT on a cash basis (Istbesteuerung). The same applies to small businesses that have been exempted from the obligation to keep books and records (Article 148 of the Fiscal Code) as well as to freelancers mentioned in Article 18(1)(1) of the Income Tax Act. This method of VAT calculation must be approved by the tax office.

Farmers and foresters. Not a special scheme as such, but for farmers and foresters special tax rates apply.

Annual returns. All taxable persons must file an annual VAT return by 31 July of the year following the end of the VAT year. If a German tax advisor is engaged to prepare the VAT returns, the filing deadline is the end of February of the second year after the end of VAT year. As a consequence of the COVID-19 pandemic, various extensions apply for the tax years 2020 and 2023.

Essentially, the annual return must contain the same information that is required to be stated in the monthly preliminary returns, but on an annual and partially more detailed basis. Annual tax returns must be filed electronically.

Supplementary filings. Intrastat. A taxable person that trades with other EU countries must complete statistical reports, known as Intrastat, if the value of its sales or purchases exceeds certain thresholds. Separate reports are used for intra-Community acquisitions (Intrastat Arrivals) and intra-Community supplies (Intrastat Dispatches). Apart from deemed intra-Community supplies, any movement of goods to or from other Member States is also subject to Intrastat reporting (for example, goods sent for repair).

The threshold for Intrastat Arrivals in 2023 is EUR800,000. The threshold for Intrastat Dispatches in 2023 is EUR500,000. At the time of preparing this chapter, the thresholds for 2024 have not been announced.

The Intrastat returns are generally filed monthly, but they may be submitted more frequently. The submission deadline is the 10th working day of the month following the month in which the intra-Community movement of goods takes place. Intrastat returns must be filed in EUR.

EU Sales Lists. If a German taxable person carries out intra-Community supplies, it must submit an EU Sales List (ESL) in addition to its VAT return. No ESLs are required for periods in which no intra-Community supplies are made. ESLs must be filed for supplies of both intra-Community goods and intra-Community services. Under prior law, ESLs were required only for supplies of goods.

The filing period for the ESL for supplies of goods is changed from quarterly filing to monthly filing. For supplies of services, the filing period is quarterly. For entrepreneurs who must file monthly ESLs for supplies of goods, an option is available to also file monthly ESLs for intra-Community supplies of services.

In addition, the possibility of a one-month extension of the filing deadline is abolished. However, the due date for filing is changed from the 10th day of the following month to the 25th day of the following month.

A taxable person that is exempt from filing preliminary VAT returns and has taxable turnover not exceeding EUR200,000 a year may request permission to file annual ESLs if its intra-Community supplies do not exceed EUR15,000 and do not include supplies of new means of transport to purchasers using VAT identification numbers. In this case, the submission deadline is the 10th day of the month following the calendar year.

Correcting errors in previous returns. Detected errors in previous returns must be corrected without undue delay. Corrections can be made via amended (electronic) tax returns or on paper stating the corrections.

As errors in previous returns can be regarded as tax fraud, a voluntary self-disclosure of acting persons should be considered depending upon the single case at hand. A valid voluntary self-disclosure can protect the said persons from punishment under criminal law.

Digital tax administration. There are no transactional reporting requirements in Germany.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. There is no specific penalty in Germany for the late registration of VAT. However, if as a result of the late registration, a taxable person submits VAT returns belatedly, late-filing penalties may apply.

Penalties for late payment and filings. If VAT return liabilities are paid late, penalty interest is charged at a rate of 1% per month of the rounded amount of outstanding tax liability, rounded down to the nearest amount dividable by EUR50.

If a VAT return is filed late, a surcharge of up to 10% of the assessed tax amount may be imposed, up to a maximum of EUR25,000. In addition, an enforcement fine of up to EUR25,000 may be charged.

Late filing penalties may be assessed up to 10% of the VAT due, and late-payment penalties amount to 1% of the VAT due per month.

In addition, the tax authorities can enforce additional fines against acting persons for a late filing or late payment of the entity's VAT.

Penalties for errors. Apart from penalties for fraud, no specific penalties for errors within a filed return apply. Regular interest of 0.15% per month will accrue for any tax payable filed as late. For further details on the recent legislative changes for interest rates, see Section G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses, under the subsection Late payment interest above.

The late notification or failure to notify the tax authorities of changes to a taxable person's VAT registration details (that effectively hampers the duly taxation payment), may trigger penalties or may even be regarded as fraudulent behavior. In that case, the interest rate is 0.5% per month. For further details, see the subsection Changes to VAT registration details above.

Penalties for fraud. In the case of a voluntary disclosure to prevent punishment of tax fraud, a surcharge applies as follows:
- 10% of the tax amount if the respective amount exceeds EUR25,000 up to EUR100,000
- 15% if the amount exceeds EUR100,000 up to EUR1 million
- 20% if the amount exceeds EUR1 million

These penalties can be levied per natural person deemed to have acted fraudulently.

Furthermore, interest of 0.5% per month on any amount subject to such fraud will be levied. Alternatively, regular interest of 0.15% per month may accrue.

Personal liability for company officers. Company officers can only be held personally liable for errors and omissions in VAT declarations and reporting in Germany for fraudulent activities. Refer to the subsection above Penalties for fraud for penalties levied under voluntary self-disclosure. Punishment under criminal law is imprisonment up to 10 years or a fine. Persons acting fraudulently, furthermore, can be held liable for the missing tax amount itself. In addition, legal representatives can be held liable for missing tax amounts if they neglected their legal duties such as obligatory supervision (even without behavior punishable under criminal law). Otherwise, directors cannot be held liable.

Statute of limitations. The statute of limitations in Germany is four, five or 10 years. It is generally four years but extends to five or 10 years if tax is subject to fraudulent behavior. The assessment period generally starts with the calendar year that follows the calendar year in which the tax return has been filed. At the latest, it starts with the end of the third year that follows year in which the tax accrued.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- Taxable supplies made in Ghana
- Imported goods or imported services other than goods or services that are exempt

A "taxable activity" is defined as an activity carried on by a person wholly or partly in Ghana that involves or is intended to involve, in whole or in part, the supply of goods or services to another person for consideration, whether or not for a pecuniary profit.

Effective 1 January 2023, the acceptance of a wager or stake in any form of betting or gaming, including lotteries and gaming machines is excluded from being a taxable activity under the VAT Act.

Effective 1 August 2018, the Ghana Education Trust Fund (GETFund) Levy of 2.5% has been separated from VAT and made a straight levy. The National Health Insurance Levy (NHIL), which also moved together with VAT, has been made a straight levy. The GET Fund Levy and NHIL incurred by a person are not recoverable through the input/output mechanism.

On 12 September 2022, the Value Added Tax (Amendment) Act, 2022, Act 1082 was passed. The Act provides, amongst others, that a person who imports taxable goods, but is not registered for VAT, is required to make an up-front payment of 12.5% of the customs value of the taxable goods in addition to any penalty to be paid. A person may recover an up-front payment made after the person registers and files a return. Notwithstanding the above, the tax authority issued an administrative guideline on 30 May 2023 stating that the effective date of implementation for the up-front VAT would be 6 June 2023.

Effective use and enjoyment. To avoid instances of non-taxation or double taxation, jurisdictions can apply "use and enjoyment rules" that allow a service that is "used and enjoyed" in the jurisdiction to be taxed or prevent a service that is "used and enjoyed" outside the jurisdiction from being taxed. If a service is taxed in the jurisdiction under the "use and enjoyment" provisions, a non-established supplier of the service may be required to register for VAT in that jurisdiction where it has customers that are not taxable persons. In Ghana the following services are subject to the "use and enjoyment" provisions (for both business-to-business [B2B] and business-to-consumer [B2C] supplies):

- An unregistered, nonresident person who provides telecommunication services or electronic commerce to persons for use or enjoyment in Ghana, other than through a VAT-registered agent, is required to register and pay for VAT if that person makes a taxable supply
- Digital service includes social networking, online gaming, cloud services, video or audio streaming, digital marketplace operations and online advertisement services
- Electronic commerce includes a business transaction, including a digital service, that takes place through the electronic transmission of data over a communication network such as the internet
- Telecommunication services include those related to (i) the transmission, emission or reception of signals; (ii) writings, images and sounds of information of any nature by wire, radio, optical or other electromagnetic systems, including the provision of access, transmission, emission, or reception; and (iii) political, social, cultural, artistic, sporting, scientific or entertainment broadcasts, or events

The place of supply of a digital service is the place where the service is supplied, used or enjoyed in Ghana if any two of the following circumstances exist:

(a) The recipient of the service is a resident person.
(b) The payment, including mobile money, credit card, debit card or bank account, for the supply of a digital service originates from a payment platform in Ghana or a registered or authorized financial institution as provided for under the Banks and Specialized Deposit-Taking Institutions Act, 2016 (Act 930).
(c) The recipient of the supply of a digital service has either a business, residential or postal address, internet proxy address or phone number in Ghana.
(d) The service is received on a terminal located in Ghana, including a computer, tablet, mobile phone or similar device.

Transfer of a going concern. Normally, the sale of the assets of a VAT-registered or VAT-registrable business will be subject to VAT at the appropriate rate. However, a transfer of a business as a going concern (TOGC) may be zero-rated under certain conditions. A TOGC is the sale of a business or part of a business capable of separate operation including assets. Where the sale meets the conditions, the supply is treated as zero-rated. In Ghana, the application of a TOGC is subject to the following conditions:

- The business being transferred must not be a dormant or prospective business but an income generating activity capable of separate operation that is, in fact, operational and capable of operating without interruption after the transfer.

- The transfer must constitute the entire taxable activity of the person or a portion of such taxable activity capable of being carried on as a going concern.
- The supply is not zero-rated unless a notice in writing in the prescribed form, signed by both the transferor and transferee, is filed with the Commissioner-General (CG) within 14 calendar days prior to the date of the transfer. The notification should be done at least 14 calendar days before the (1) sale closes, (2) purchaser acquires any legal interest in the assets to be acquired or (3) assets of the going concern are transferred; whichever date is earliest.

Transactions between related parties. In Ghana, for a transaction between related parties, the value for VAT purposes is calculated at an arm's-length value. Ghana's Transfer Pricing Regulations require that transactions between related parties must accord with the arm's-length principle. A related-party transaction accords with the arm's-length principle if the terms of that arrangement do not differ from the terms of a comparable arrangement between independent persons. Supply of goods means an arrangement under which the owner of the goods parts with possession of the goods by way of sale, barter, lease, transfer, exchange, gift or similar disposition. Supply of services means a supply that is not a supply of goods or money and, in the nature of the performance of services for another person, the making available of a facility or advantage or tolerating a situation or refraining from doing an activity. Both types of supply are required to be arm's-length when dealing with a related party.

C. Who is liable

Persons liable to pay VAT are as follows:
- In the case of taxable supplies made in the country, the person making the supply
- In the case of imported goods, the importer
- In the case of imported services, the recipient of the services

In general, all taxable persons who engage in a taxable activity wholly or partly in Ghana in the course of a business are liable to register for VAT if they meet the VAT registration threshold. The Ghana Revenue Authority (GRA) has instituted an 11-digit common taxable person identification number (TIN) for all tax types (C000XXXXXXX).

Upon registering a taxable person, the CG must notify the taxable person that it has been registered for VAT and must issue a certificate of registration to the taxable person.

Exemption from registration. The VAT law in Ghana does not contain any provision for exemption from registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. Where a person is not registrable for VAT purposes, the law generally permits a taxable person to apply to the CG of the GRA for voluntary registration, subject to the satisfaction of certain conditions. The CG may refuse to voluntarily register a person where the person has no fixed place of business or has reasonable grounds to believe that the person may not:
- Keep proper accounting records related to its business activity
- Submit regular and reliable returns

  Or
- Is not a fit and proper person to be registered

Group registration. Ghana allows for group registration where the following conditions are satisfied:
- Each member of the group is a registered corporate body in Ghana and has an established place of business in Ghana
- One of the group members controls the others in the group, or one company controls all of the members of the group

There is no minimum time period required for the duration of a VAT group.

Each group member is jointly and severally liable for any VAT debts and penalties that may arise.

Fixed establishment. In Ghana, there is no legal definition of a fixed establishment for VAT purposes. There is also no requirement for a fixed establishment to trigger a VAT registration. However, the carrying out of any taxable supply in Ghana will trigger a VAT registration requirement. Once a taxable supply is made in Ghana and the threshold for registration is satisfied, the person is required to register and charge VAT. Thus, the place of supply rules determine whether a person has a VAT registration obligation in Ghana rather than a fixed establishment.

In addition to the above, having a permanent establishment in Ghana may result in a VAT registration where the person engages in a taxable activity and satisfies the threshold for registration. A Ghanaian permanent establishment includes the following:

- A place in Ghana where a nonresident person carries on business or that is at the disposal of the person for that purpose
- A place in Ghana where a person has, is using or is installing substantial equipment or substantial machinery
- A place in Ghana where a person is engaged in a construction, assembly or installation project for 90 days or more, including a place where a person is conducting supervisory activities in relation to that project
- The provision of services in Ghana
- A place in Ghana where an agent performs any function on behalf of the business of a nonresident person
  - Including, in the case of an insurance business, the collection of premiums or the insurance of risks situated in Ghana
  - Excluding a case involving a general agent of independent status with its own legal personality acting in the ordinary course of business

Non-established businesses. Except as stated herein, a "non-established business," which is a business that does not have a fixed establishment in Ghana, cannot register for VAT purposes in Ghana. A nonresident person is not required to register for VAT unless it undertakes a taxable activity in Ghana and satisfies the threshold for registration and, in the case of a nonresident person that provides telecommunication services or electronic commerce services, provides those services through a VAT-registered agent who makes taxable supplies of goods and services in Ghana.

VAT on imported goods is generally paid by the importer of record at the point of customs clearance.

Tax representatives. Ghana provides for the appointment of a representative by a taxable person. The representative so appointed shall be responsible for payment of any tax payable by the taxable person and take responsibility for other duties of the taxable person. The CG, where he deems it necessary, may also declare a person to be a representative of a taxable person.

Where a taxable person appoints a representative, the appointment shall not relieve the taxable person from performing any duty that the representative fails to perform.

Reverse charge. The reverse-charge mechanism of accounting for VAT is applicable to importation of services into Ghana. A VAT-registered person that imports services from a nonresident person is required to reverse-charge itself VAT at a rate of 15%. However, there is no requirement to reverse charge where the imported services are to be used to make taxable supplies.

The output tax charged shall be paid to the CG within 21 days after the end of the month within which the transaction occurred. The payment shall accompany a service import declaration in a prescribed form stating the details of the import. The input tax on imported services is not claimable.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Ghana.

Digital economy. A nonresident person who is not registered for VAT and supplies telecommunication services or electronic commerce (e-commerce) to persons for use or enjoyment in Ghana is required to register where the threshold for registration is satisfied. However, where the services are provided through a VAT-registered agent, the nonresident person is not required to register.

An unregistered, nonresident person who provides telecommunication services or electronic commerce to persons for use or enjoyment in Ghana (other than through a VAT-registered agent) must register for VAT. The GRA commenced the enforcement of the above from 1 April 2022. Nonresident persons who provide telecommunication services or electronic commerce for use in Ghana must submit a return to the Commissioner General (CG) not later than the last day of the month immediately following the month to which the return relates, whether or not tax is payable for the period, and pay the tax due to the CG by the same day that the return is due. A nonresident person who contravenes a provision of the VAT Act and Regulations made under the Act is (in addition to any other penalty imposed under the VAT Act or Regulations) liable to a restriction of access in the country until the person fulfills the obligations under the VAT Act and VAT Regulations. The Act defines "digital service" to include:

- Social networking
- Online gaming
- Cloud services
- Video or audio streaming
- Digital marketplace operations
- Online advertisement services

"Electronic commerce" is defined in the Act to include a business transaction, including a digital service, that takes place through the electronic transmission of data over a communication network such as the internet.

"Telecommunication services" include services that relate to:

- The transmission, emission or reception of signals
- Writings, images and sounds of information of any nature by wire, radio, optical or other electromagnetic systems, including the provision of access, transmission, emission or reception
- Political, social, cultural, artistic, sporting, scientific or entertainment broadcasts, or events

In addition, effective 12 September 2022, the place of supply of a digital service is the place where the service is supplied, used or enjoyed in the country if any two of the following circumstances exist:

- The recipient of the service is a resident person.
- The payment, including mobile money, credit card, debit card or bank account, for the supply of a digital service originates from a payment platform in the country or a registered or authorized financial institution as provided for under the Banks and Specialized Deposit-Taking Institutions Act, 2016 (Act 930).
- The recipient of the supply of a digital service has either a business, residential or postal address, internet proxy address or phone number in the country; and
- The service is received on a terminal located in the country, including a computer, tablet, mobile phone or similar device. There are no other specific e-commerce rules for imported goods in Ghana.

Online marketplaces and platforms. A nonresident person who is not registered for VAT and supplies electronic commerce to persons for use or enjoyment in Ghana is required to register where the threshold for registration is satisfied. However, where the services are provided through a VAT-registered agent, the nonresident person is not required to register.

Registration procedures. A person who qualifies as a taxable person and meets the registration threshold is required to submit an application for registration within 30 days of becoming a registrable person to the CG. The taxable person shall complete the requisite VAT form and submit it to the CG along with copies of the following documents:
- Certificate of Incorporation issued by the Registrar of Companies
- Form 3 and Form 4 delivered to the Registrar of Companies for registration
- Regulations of the company delivered to the Registrar of Companies for registration

The application for registration and the accompanying documents must be submitted to the CG in hard copies.

Deregistration. A VAT-registered person may apply in writing to the CG for cancellation of registration as a taxable person. The CG may cancel the registration of the person where he is satisfied that the taxable person:
- No longer exists
- Is not carrying on a taxable activity
- Is not required or entitled to apply for registration
- Has no fixed place of business or abode
- Has not kept proper accounting records related to a business activity carried on by that person
- Has not submitted regular and reliable tax returns required under the Act

A taxable person who voluntarily registers for VAT can only apply for cancellation of registration after two years of registration as a taxable person.

Changes to VAT registration details. A taxable person is required to notify the CG in writing where any of the following take place:
- The taxable person ceases to operate, sells or relocates the business engaged in the taxable activity
- There is a change in the ownership of the business engaged in the taxable activity
- There is a change in the name or address of the taxable person
- There is a change in the circumstances that disqualify the taxable person for registration
- There is a change in the taxable activity or in the nature of taxable supplies being made

The notice shall be given within 14 calendar days after the cessation, sale, relocation, change in ownership or any other change as the case may be.

The notification must be filed physically at the GRA.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 15% (increased from 12.5% to 15% as of 1 January 2023)
- Reduced rate: 3%, 5% (proposed)
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate, the zero rate or an exemption. The 2023 Budget Statement enacted an increase in the standard VAT rate from 12.5% to 15%. VAT is calculated based on the taxable value of the supply, that is, inclusive of levies. The levies are not deductible input tax. The levies are the National Health Insurance Levy (2.5%), the Ghana Education Trust Fund Levy (2.5%) and the COVID-19 Health Recovery Levy (1%).

The COVID-19 Health Recovery Levy is imposed on the supply of goods and services and imports to raise revenue to support COVID-19 expenditures and provides for related matters. The levy is chargeable at a rate of 1% and is applicable in the same manner as the NHIL and GET Fund Levy. It is applicable to taxable persons operating under both the standard rate and flat rate schemes.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Exports of taxable goods
- Exports of taxable services
- Goods and services supplied to Free Zone Enclaves or a Free Zone Company
- Goods shipped as stores (stocked for own use) on a vessel or aircraft leaving the territories of Ghana.
- Supply of locally assembled vehicles under the Ghana Automotive Development Program from 1 September 2022 to 31 December 2023 (effective 12 September 2022). At the time of preparing this chapter, the Minister of Finance indicated in the 2024 Budget Statement that an extension of two years will be made to the deadline of 31 December 2023. However, the proposed extension is subject to approval by Parliament.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 3%

- A taxable person who is a retailer of goods with annual turnover of GHS200,000 to GHS500,000 (including importers) is required to account for VAT at a flat rate of 3%. This means that taxable persons covered by the VAT Flat Rate Scheme (VFRS) cannot claim input tax deduction on purchases. It must form part of their costs. The application of the flat rate of 3% does not apply to the supply of any form of heat, refrigeration or ventilation.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 5%

- Supply of commercial property. At the time of preparing this chapter, the 2024 Budget Statement and Economic Policy of the Government of Ghana was presented to Parliament on 15 November 2023 and indicated that a flat VAT rate of 5% would be applicable to persons engaged in the supply of commercial property. Parliament is expected to pass an Act to bring this into effect in 2024.

The term "exempt" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Unprocessed agricultural and aquatic products in a raw state, including agricultural and aquatic food products that undergo preservation, such as freezing, chilling, smoking, stripping, polishing, etc.
- Domestic transportation by bus and similar vehicles, and by train or boat
- Medical services and supplies
- Agricultural inputs, animals, livestock and poultry
- Provision of accommodation in a residential property
- Acceptance of a wager or stake in any form of betting or gaming, including lotteries and from gaming machines

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Ghana.

E. Time of supply

In Ghana, the time when VAT becomes due is referred to as the "time of supply" or the "tax point." The following rules apply to the determination of the time of supply:

- If the goods or services are applied to the taxable person's own use, the tax point is the date on which the goods or services are first applied to the taxable person's own use.
- If the goods or services are supplied by way of a gift, the tax point is the date on which ownership of the goods passes or the performance of the service is completed.

For all other cases, the time of supply is the earliest of the following events:
- The goods are removed from the taxable person's premises or from the premises where the goods are under the taxable person's control.
- The goods are made available to the taxable person to whom they are supplied.
- The services are supplied or rendered.
- Payment is received.
- A tax invoice is issued.

Deposits and prepayments. The time of supply for which deposits and prepayments are made is when the deposit or prepayment is forfeited unless the goods/services are returnable. Where the goods/services are returnable, the tax point follows rules outlined in the Goods sent on approval for sale or return subsection below. This time of supply rule is the same if the deposits and prepayments are refundable or nonrefundable and also if the supply does not take place. The time of supply rules for deposits and prepayments are the same for goods and services.

Continuous supplies of services. The time of supply for continuous supplies for each successive supply is the earlier of the date for which payment is due or received or the invoice is issued. This applies to both goods and services.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. The tax point is the earliest of the following:
- The date when the purchaser chooses to keep the goods
- The issue of tax invoice by the seller
- The receipt of payment by the seller, other than a deposit
- The expiry of the period within which the customer may return the goods
  Or
- 12 months after the date of dispatch by the seller.

Reverse-charge services. A taxable person who buys a service from outside Ghana is required to account for VAT by way of the reverse-charge mechanism, unless the services are used to make taxable supplies. The tax point is the earlier of the date the supply occurs, an invoice is issued, or payment is made for the services. The VAT is required to be paid within 21 calendar days after the month in which the services were imported.

The reverse-charge mechanism does not apply on the purchase of goods from outside Ghana.

Leased assets. The supply of goods under a finance lease, hire purchase or operating lease agreement occurs on the date the goods are made available under the agreement or lease. The time of supply for goods supplied under a rental agreement is the date payment is due or received or the invoice issued for each successive supply, whichever date is earlier.

Imported goods. The time of supply for imported goods is either the date on which customs clear or the date on which the goods leave a bonded warehouse (in the case of goods warehoused without the payment of duty).

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may usually recover input tax incurred on goods and services purchased for business purposes. Input tax is claimed by deducting the input tax credits from output tax, which is VAT charged on taxable supplies. Taxable persons must claim input tax within six months after making an expenditure.

The input tax credit includes VAT charged on goods and services purchased in Ghana and VAT paid on imports of goods.

The time limit for a taxable person to reclaim input tax in Ghana is six months.

Nondeductible input tax. A taxable person may not usually recover VAT on the purchase of goods and services that are not used exclusively for business purposes. In addition, input tax may not be recovered with respect to certain business expenditure. If necessary, an apportionment of input tax between taxable goods and services and nontaxable goods and services is made. The following lists provide some examples of items of expenditure for which input tax is not deductible and examples of items for which input tax is deductible if the expenditure is for purposes of making a taxable supply.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- The supply or import of a motor vehicle or spare parts, unless the taxable person is in the business of dealing in or hiring motor vehicles or selling vehicle spare parts
- Entertainment including restaurants, meals and hotel expenses, unless the taxable person is in the business of providing entertainment
- A taxable supply to, or an import of goods by, a taxable person partly for business use and partly for personal or other use (the amount of input tax allowed as credit is restricted to that part of the supply that relates to business activity)
- The payment of subscriptions or fees by a taxable person for membership in a club, association or society of a sporting, social or recreational nature
- A supply of immovable property by estate developers
- A nonresident person who provides telecommunication service or electronic commerce and registers does not qualify for deductible input tax for the supply of a digital service (this is effective from 12 September 2022); the CG may, however, determine the procedure for the deduction of input tax by a resident person who uses or enjoys a digital service from a nonresident person
- Effective 1 January 2023, an amount equal to the tax fraction of an amount paid during the tax period by the taxable person as a prize or winnings to the recipient of services of the taxable person operating the game of chance has been excluded from being a deductible input tax

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Business expenditure incurred in the production process (for example, VAT paid on material purchased for resale)
- Raw material that is used for production
- Office equipment
- Advertising

Partial exemption. VAT paid that relates directly to goods and services that are exempt is not recoverable. If a taxable person makes both exempt and taxable supplies, the VAT incurred in respect of the exempt supply cannot be recovered. This situation is referred to as "partial exemption."

The VAT Act provides the following rules with respect to partial exemption:

- A taxable person that makes both taxable and exempt supplies may deduct the input tax on its taxable purchases and imports that can be directly attributed only to the taxable supplies made.
- Where a taxable person makes both taxable and exempt supplies but cannot directly attribute the input tax to the taxable and exempt supplies, it may deduct as input tax an amount that bears the same ratio as the taxable supplies bear to the total supplies, applying an apportionment formula provided by the VAT Act.
- If the percentage calculated using the above formula is less than 5%, the taxable person may not claim credit for any input tax for the period.
- If the percentage calculated using the above formula is more than 95%, the taxable person may claim credit for all input tax for the period.

Approval from the tax authorities is not required to use the partial exemption standard method in Ghana. There are no special methods available in Ghana.

Capital goods. There are no special rules for the recovery of input tax on capital goods. As such, normal input tax recovery rules apply. The VAT law in Ghana does not define what capital goods are. Where goods are used for both taxable and exempt supplies, input tax deduction is allowed on the taxable purchases and imports that can be directly attributed only to the taxable supplies made. Where it is difficult to directly attribute taxable purchases and imports to taxable supplies made, an amount that bears the same ratio as the taxable supplies bear to the total supplies shall be allowed, using an apportionment formula.

Refunds. A taxable person who has a VAT credit with the GRA is permitted to apply for a refund of the excess VAT subject to the conditions that:
- The credit is attributable to exports
- The exports exceed 25% of the total supplies within the tax period
- The total export proceeds have been repatriated by the importers' banks to the taxable person's authorized dealer banks in the country

The application for a refund must be made within three years of the date the event that led to the overpayment of the VAT occurred.

The CG is required to decide on the application within 60 days of receiving the application. The CG may reject the application when they are of the opinion that the applicant has not overpaid VAT. The CG is also empowered to request for additional information from the applicant when they deem it necessary for the purpose of deciding. The decision on whether the application is accepted or not or whether further information is required by the CG is required to be communicated to the taxable person within 30 days.

Where the CG is satisfied that a taxable person is entitled to a refund, they may apply the amount involved to reduce any outstanding tax liability of that taxable person and pay the remainder (if any) to the taxable person within 90 days of making the decision.

Pre-registration costs. Generally, a taxable person cannot recover VAT that it incurs prior to registration. However, a newly registered taxable person can claim or recover input deduction for non-capital goods acquired, supplied or imported within four months prior to being registered. For capital goods, the taxable person can claim the input tax within six months prior to being registered for the purpose. To be allowed, however, the goods must be on hand at the effective date of registration.

Bad debts. A taxable person is allowed an input tax deduction for bad debt where the taxable person issues a tax invoice for the supply of taxable goods or services and the whole or part of the consideration for the supply was not received by the taxable person and subsequently treated as a bad debt. The amount of the deduction allowed is the amount of the tax paid in respect of the taxable supply that corresponds to the amount of the debt treated as a bad debt. The amount of the deduction in respect of bad debts becomes due on the date on which the bad debt was written off in the accounts of the taxable person and is available only if the taxable person satisfies the CG that reasonable efforts have been made to recover the amounts due and payable.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred on purchases that are used for noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Ghana.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Input tax incurred by non-established businesses that are not registered for VAT in Ghana is not recoverable. Registration is not available to such entities for the purpose of recovering input tax incurred in Ghana. Ghana does not have a regime for the recovery of VAT paid by nonresidents leaving the country. However, the VAT Regulations provide that a refund of VAT charged on goods purchased by a taxable person not resident or domiciled in Ghana for consumption outside Ghana may be authorized by the CG subject to such written conditions that the CG may impose.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. On making a supply of goods and services, a taxable person must issue to the recipient of the goods or services a preprinted VAT invoice in a form prescribed by regulations, unless the CG permits otherwise. A taxable person that issues VAT invoices must retain copies of them in serial order for inspection by the GRA. The invoice must contain specific information detailed in the VAT Act.

Certified invoicing system. Effective 12 September 2022, a taxable person is required to issue a tax invoice through a certified invoicing system (CIS) and to ensure that the CIS of the taxable person is integrated into the invoicing system of the CG. The CG may access the CIS of a taxable person to ensure compliance with the provisions of the VAT Act.

A taxable person is required to issue only one tax invoice or sales receipt for each taxable supply. Where a recipient who is a taxable person has not received a tax invoice, the recipient may, within 48 hours after the date of the supply, obtain a copy of the invoice from the CIS of the taxable person. A taxable person is required, within 24 hours, to inform the CG and ensure that the CIS of the taxable person is restored online and accessible by the CG where the CIS of a taxable person goes offline or is inaccessible by the CG.

Where a recipient who is a taxable person has lost a tax invoice for a taxable supply, the recipient may obtain a copy of the tax invoice from the invoicing system of the CG.

Effective 29 December 2022, a taxable person is required, to comply with the provisions relating to the CIS.

Credit notes. A VAT credit note may be issued where any of the following circumstances leads to the output tax actually accounted for exceeding the output tax that should have been properly charged for the supply:

- When the supply is canceled.
- The nature of the supply has been fundamentally varied or altered.
- The previously agreed consideration for the supply has been altered by agreement with the recipient of the supply, whether due to an offer of a discount or for any other reason.
- The goods or services or part have been returned to the supplier.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is mandatory in Ghana for all taxable persons.

Scope of electronic invoicing. For B2B, B2C and business-to-government (B2G) supplies, electronic invoicing is mandatory for all taxable persons in Ghana. There is no threshold beyond which taxable persons are required to adopt electronic invoicing in Ghana. E-invoicing is mandatory for all taxable persons making taxable supplies.

Electronic invoicing is being implemented in three phases. Phase one, for large taxable persons, has been rolled out. Phase two focuses on 600 large taxpayers and more than 2,000 small and medium taxable persons. Phase three is expected to be completed by the end of 2024 and will cover all other taxable persons. However, at the time of preparing this chapter, a taxable person may apply to the CG to be signed onto the CIS voluntarily.

The definitions of the size of the taxable persons are as follows:
A large taxable person is a company or individual that has an annual turnover of GHS5 million (approx. USD434,500) and above

- A medium taxable person is a company or individual with annual turnover between GHS90,000 and GHS5 million (approx. USD7,800 to USD434,500)
- A small taxable person is a company or individual with annual turnover of less than GHS90,000 (approx. USD7,800)

Taxable persons are required to issue a tax invoice through a CIS and to ensure that the CIS of the taxable person is integrated into the invoicing system of the CG. All VAT-registered persons are required to comply with e-invoicing (or CIS). The CIS approved by the CG include the following:

- E-invoicing software (certified ERPs or POS) – which applies to persons who have their own accounting software in place
- Free invoicing software (mobile, online, desktop) – applies to persons who do not have an accounting software of their own

A taxable person may make an application to the CG for their permission to use the business's own computer-generated VAT invoice. This application will trigger an inspection of the company's accounting generating invoicing system. Permission may only be given upon the CG satisfying themselves of the robustness of the system.

Once the application is made to the CG, the CG shall reply to the application acknowledging receipt of the said application. Thereafter, the CG shall send a letter indicating the time period for the inspection and the appointed officer to carry out the assignment. Where the CG is satisfied, they shall grant the business permission in writing to proceed with the use of its own computer-generated VAT invoices.

Taxable persons issuing the manual VAT invoices will be provided with the CG's free invoicing software at no cost. The CG will access the online invoicing system through the taxable person's own internet and devices such as desktops, laptops and smart electronic devices, such as phones, iPads, etc.

Simplified VAT invoices. The CG may authorize a taxable person who makes a taxable supply to issue a sales receipt instead of a tax invoice. The dispensation is available to taxable persons who make low-value, high-volume supplies; supplies are paid for in cash and taxable persons who use electronic devices approved by the CG for the issue of the sales receipt. The authorization shall be for a period determined by the CG and may be renewed. A sales receipt does not qualify for input tax deduction.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Ghana.

Proof of exports. Exports are zero-rated. To zero-rate exports, all exports must be supported by evidence proving that the goods have left Ghana. The GRA requires detailed documentation for exports. Documentation required includes:

- Customers' orders
- Sales contracts
- Intercompany correspondence
- Export invoices
- Advice notes/consignment notes/packing lists
- Insurance and freight charges
- Evidence of payment
- Evidence of receipt of goods abroad

This is without prejudice to checks on any other business records.

Foreign currency invoices. Ghana does not have a mandatory rule regarding foreign currency invoices that have been converted into the domestic currency, which is the Ghanaian cedi (GHS). The general practice is to use the interbank exchange rate prevailing on the date of the transaction for the conversion. The tax office may check the exchange rate used to convert the GHS into the foreign currency or vice versa if some doubt exists. If no doubt exists, the tax office accepts the taxable person's conversion of a foreign currency-denominated invoice into GHS.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. There are no special invoicing rules for supplies to nontaxable persons in Ghana. As such, full VAT invoices are required.

Records. In Ghana, a taxable person is required to maintain all necessary records in Ghana to provide information in respect of documents to be filed and for the determination of tax payable and for such other purposes that may be prescribed by regulations or by the CG.

In Ghana, examples of what records must be held for VAT purposes include underlying documents, such as receipts, invoices, vouchers and contracts. Additionally, VAT documents, such as filed returns, VAT booklets and VAT Relief Purchase Orders (VRPOs) are also required to be retained. In Ghana, VAT books and records must be held within the country.

Record retention period. VAT documents are required to be retained for a period of at least six years from the relevant date or such other longer period up to the following:
- The determination of an objection to a decision or of an appeal against a tax decision by the taxable person
- The determination of an application made by the taxable person
- The refund of tax applied for by the taxable person
- The date the CG notifies the taxable person that an investigation being conducted is completed

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is allowed in Ghana. Records may be kept and archived electronically but are subject to rules prescribed by the CG. At the time of preparing this chapter, no rules regarding electronic archiving have been put in place by the CG. However, electronic records are required to be in a medium in which information can easily be extracted.

That said, even though the Electronic Transactions Act, 2008, Act 722 permits documents stored electronically to be used as evidence of a transaction, the CG is not amenable to the use of electronically stored VAT invoices as evidence of VAT payment. Therefore, even though electronic documentation can be maintained, the original copies must not be destroyed.

Records may be maintained in paper form so long as they are kept in good condition.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. VAT returns must be filed on a monthly basis. All returns other than those for imported services and nonresident persons providing e-commerce services are due by the last working day of the month following the one in which the tax point occurred. Nonresident persons filing e-commerce VAT returns are required to file the returns by the last day of the month immediately following the month to which the returns relate. The return for imported services is due within 21 days after the end of the month in which the tax point occurred. Payment is due in full by the date on which the respective return is due.

Nil returns must be filed if no VAT is payable or claimable.

If the normal filing date falls on a public holiday or on a weekend, the VAT returns must be filed on the last working day before that day. This excludes nonresident persons filing e-commerce VAT returns, as they can file on all days, including Saturdays, Sundays and public holidays.

Periodic payments. Payment of the VAT due must be made in full by the date on which the respective return is due, i.e., no later than the last working day of the month immediately following the month to which the return relates. This applies for all cases, except for imported services, which must be made within 21 days after the end of the month in which the tax point occurred.

Payment of VAT can be made through any of the following means:
- Bank transfer
- Automatic clearing house (ACH) transfer
- Debit or credit cards
- Mobile money

- USSD mobile
- Mobile apps
- Internet banking

Where a taxable person pays through a bank transfer, a copy of the bank advice must be submitted to the designated tax office. Official receipts are issued when payment is received by the GRA.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is mandatory in Ghana for all taxable persons. Taxable persons are required to file their tax returns through an online portal. Taxable persons are required to register an account with the GRA to enable them to file their returns online.

The legislation in respect of electronic filing was enacted in 2016 and is now being implemented. The GRA indicated that certain categories of taxable persons are required to file their returns via the online portal effective from 1 April 2022. However, in practice, all taxable persons are required to file their tax returns electronically.

The online portal can be accessed via www.taxpayersportal.com. Once registered, a taxable person may file its returns as they fall due. Acknowledgement receipts and payment receipts may be downloaded from the portal as proof of filing and proof of payment respectively.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Ghana.

Special schemes. Flat rate scheme. Retailers (including importers) of goods account for VAT at a flat rate of 3%, plus the COVID-19 Levy of 1%. The government reviewed the existing VAT Flat rate scheme in 2022. Thus, the VAT Flat rate scheme of 3% is restricted to retailers of goods with annual turnover of GHS200,000 to GHS500,000. According to the Minister, this policy is intended to address the inequalities that domestic producers of local substitutes face vis-à-vis importers of similar products. Wholesalers of goods will now be required to charge and account for VAT at the standard rate of 15%.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Ghana.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in Ghana.

Correcting errors in previous returns. Generally, a taxable person may not correct a filed tax return without the permission of the CG. Where a taxable person discovers that information submitted to the CG in a tax return is incorrect or misleading in any material particular, the taxable person shall submit further information to the CG in respect of the matter. The CG may take into account the information received in making an assessment or adjusted assessment.

A taxable person who is not satisfied with a submitted return may apply to the CG in writing for authority to make an addition to or alteration to the return. The application shall state in detail the grounds on which the application is made and be submitted not more than three months after the submission of the original return.

Digital tax administration. There are no transactional reporting requirements in Ghana.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. A taxable person that is not registered but is required to apply to be registered under the VAT Act is considered to be a taxable person from the beginning of the tax period immediately following the period in which the duty to register arises. A taxable person that fails to apply for registration commits an offense.

A taxable person that fails to register is liable to a penalty of not more than two times the amount of tax on the taxable supplies payable from the time the taxable person is required to apply for registration until the taxable person files an application for registration.

Penalties for late payment and filings. A taxable person who fails to submit tax returns to the CG without justification by the due date is liable to a pecuniary penalty of GHS500 and a further penalty of GHS10 for each day after the due date that the return is not submitted.

A taxable person who fails to pay tax by the due date on which the tax is payable is liable to pay interest for each month or part of a month for which any part of the tax is outstanding. The interest is calculated as 125% of the statutory rate, compounded monthly, applied to the amount outstanding at the start of the period.

Nonresident persons. A nonresident person who contravenes a provision of the VAT Act and Regulations made under the Act is (in addition to any other penalty imposed under the VAT Act or Regulations made under the Act) liable to a restriction of access in Ghana until the person fulfills the obligations under the VAT Act and Regulations.

Penalties for errors. Failure to issue a VAT invoice may result in a penalty not more than GHS1,440 or a term of imprisonment of not more than six months or both.

A taxable person who makes a statement to an officer of the GRA that is false or misleading, omits from a statement any matter or item without which the statement is misleading, is liable to a penalty of:
- 100% of the tax shortfall where the statement was made without reasonable excuse
  Or
- 30% of the tax shortfall in any other case

Effective 1 January 2023, in addition to the above penalty for failing to issue a tax invoice, a taxable person who meets any of the below conditions for the CIS will be subject to pay a penalty of an amount of no more than GHS50,000 or three times the amount of tax involved, whichever is higher:
- Issues a false tax invoice or sales receipt
- Fails to issue a tax invoice or sales receipt
- Fails to issue a tax invoice through a CIS
- Tampers, manipulates or interferes with the proper functioning of a CIS
- Fails to integrate the CIS of the taxable person into the invoicing system of the CG
- Fails to reconnect the CIS of that person to the invoicing system of the CG

For further details on the CIS, see the subsection Section H. Invoicing, VAT invoices, Certified invoicing system above.

The late notification or failure to notify the tax authorities of changes to a taxable person's VAT registration details may result in a penalty. Such penalty would fall under the general penalty provision, i.e., the failure to comply with the tax law. This is an offense and, where a specific penalty is not provided for, a fine of no less than GHS12,000 and no more than GHS30,000 shall be payable upon summary conviction. The taxable person may also be sentenced to a term of imprisonment of between two to five years, or to both a fine and a term of imprisonment. For further details, see the subsection Changes to VAT registration details above.

Penalties for fraud. Making a statement to an officer of the GRA that is false or misleading, omitting from a statement any matter or item without which the statement is misleading, may result in a penalty where the inaccuracy if undetected, would have resulted in an underpayment of tax exceeding GHS50, to a fine of not less than GHS300 and not more than GHS2,400 or to a term of imprisonment of not less than three months and not more than two years or to both. In any other case, the taxable person shall be liable to a fine of not less than GHS60 and not more than GHS600 or to a term of imprisonment of not less than one month and not more than three months or to both.

Falsification and alteration of documents may result in a penalty where the inaccuracy if undetected, would have resulted in an underpayment of tax exceeding GHS50, to a fine of not less than GHS300 and not more than GHS2,400 or to a term of imprisonment of not less than three months and not more than two years or to both. In any other case, the taxable person shall be liable to a fine of not less than GHS60 and not more than GHS600 or to a term of imprisonment of not less than one month and not more than three months or to both.

Evasion of tax payments may result in a fine not exceeding three times the tax that is being evaded or imprisonment for a term not exceeding five years or both.

Obstruction of officer of the GRA, where the offense involves fraud or undue force, to a fine of twice the amount sought to be evaded or recovered or GHS2,400, whichever is greater or a term of imprisonment not less than two years and not more than four years or to both. In any other case, to a fine of not less than GHS120 and not more than GHS2,400 or to a term of imprisonment not less than three months and not more than two years or to both.

Personal liability for company officers. Where an entity commits an offense, a manager (which includes directors) of the entity is also treated as having committed the same offense and vice versa.

However, this does not apply to a manager who has exercised the degree of care, diligence and skill that a reasonably prudent taxable person in the position of the manager would have exercised in preventing the commission of the offense.

In addition, as outlined above under the subsection Penalties for errors, a taxable person who makes a statement to an officer of the GRA that is false or misleading or omits from a statement any matter or item without which the statement is misleading, is liable to a penalty of:

- 100% of the tax shortfall where the statement was made without reasonable excuse
  Or
- 30% of the tax shortfall in any other case

In extreme cases, prison terms may be imposed with or without the fine.

Statute of limitations. The statute of limitation in Ghana is six years. The CG may, however, go beyond the said period where there is fraud, willful default or serious omission by or on behalf of a taxable person. For taxable persons, there is no statute of limitation to correct a return. For VAT purposes, however, it should be noted that the six-month limitation in respect of claiming an input deduction remains.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- The supply of goods or services made in Greece by a taxable person
- Reverse-charge services received by a taxable person in Greece

- The intra-Community acquisition of goods from another European Union (EU) Member State by a taxable person (see the chapter on the EU)
- The importation of goods and certain services from outside the EU, regardless of the status of the importer

For VAT purposes, the territory of Greece excludes Mount Athos.

Quick Fixes. Pending introduction of a "definitive" system for the VAT treatment of intra-Community supplies of goods to taxable persons, the EU has adopted Quick Fixes for intra-Community trade in goods. For an overview of the Quick Fixes rules, see the chapter on the EU. For documentary requirements see Section H. Invoicing, subsection Proof of exports and intra-Community supplies.

The Quick Fixes scheme has been transposed into Greek legislation with a retrospective effect as of 1 January 2020. The areas the rules have impacted are as follows:
- Call-of-stock arrangements – The transport by a taxable person of their business goods to another EU Member State is not considered as a supply of goods, in the context of the stock arrangements at the disposal of an identified purchaser, under certain conditions (Article 7a of the Greek VAT Code).
- Chain transactions – In case of a successive supply of the same goods, which are dispatched or transported from one Member State to another, directly from the first supplier to the last customer in the chain, then the dispatch or transport is ascribed only to the supply made to the intermediary operator (Article 13 par. 6a of the Greek VAT Code).
- VAT exemption of intra-Community supplies of goods – Holding a valid VAT identification number by the acquirer of the goods in another Member State, as well as the accurate submission of the recapitulative statement by the supplier of goods, are considered as substantive conditions for the application of the VAT exemption in intra-Community supplies of goods (Article 28 of the VAT Code as amended and currently in force).
- Rules for the proof of transport of goods – The Greek tax authorities have issued Circular E.2019/2022, per which the rules for the proof of physical transport of goods by transportation means of public use are harmonized with Article 45a of the VAT Implementing Regulation No. 282/2011.

Effective use and enjoyment. To avoid instances of non-taxation or double taxation, EU Member States can apply use and enjoyment rules that allow a service that is "used and enjoyed" in the EU to be taxed or prevent a service that is "used and enjoyed" outside the EU from being taxed. If a service is taxed in the EU under the use and enjoyment provisions, a non-EU supplier of the service may be required to register for VAT in every Member State where it has customers that are not taxable persons. For information regarding the rules relating to VAT registration, see the chapters on the respective countries of the EU.

In Greece, the following services are subject to the use and enjoyment provisions:
- Short-term lease of means of transport services.
- Telecommunication services or electronically supplied services or radio or television broadcasting services provided on a B2C basis.
- Lease of movable goods provided on a B2C basis. In such cases, the place of taxation shifts back to Greece when the use and enjoyment of the services takes place in Greece.

In the case of short-term leasing of professional pleasure boats, which are made available to (taxable or nontaxable) customers in Greece, the place of taxation is outside the European Union, insofar as those pleasure boats are used outside the European Union.

Transfer of a going concern. A transfer of a going concern (TOGC) is not considered a transfer/supply within the scope of VAT to the extent that the business is transferred as a whole, unit/segment or part of it between taxable persons with full right of deductions, and the recipient continues the business of the transferor.

Transactions between related parties. The Greek VAT Code has incorporated Article 80 of the EU VAT Directive, regarding the imposition of VAT at the open market value for transactions performed between related parties, using as criteria whether the consideration is lower or higher than the open market value in conjunction with the supplier's and recipient's right to input tax deduction.

C. Who is liable

A taxable person is any entity or individual that makes taxable supplies of goods or services, intra-Community acquisitions, imports of goods into Greece or distance sales (if the relevant annual threshold is exceeded), in the course of business in Greece.

Exemption from registration. The VAT law in Greece does not contain any provision for exemption from registration, as there is no registration threshold.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. The VAT law in Greece does not contain any provision for voluntary registration, nor special VAT registration rules for small businesses.

Group registration. Group VAT registration is not allowed in Greece.

Holding companies. In Greece, a pure holding company cannot be a member of a VAT group, as group VAT registration is not allowed in Greece. A pure holding company will still be required to be registered for VAT in Greece, even if it makes no taxable supplies. This would be declared at the time of registration. A VAT registration must be made irrespective of the level of taxable supplies.

Cost-sharing exemption. The VAT cost-sharing exemption, in accordance with VAT Directive 2006/112/EEC Article 132(1)(f), has not been implemented in Greece.

Fixed establishment. The Greek tax authorities have not issued any guidelines as to the concept of a fixed establishment for VAT purposes; thus, reference is made only to the VAT Implementing Regulation No 282/2011 as in force.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that does not have an establishment in Greece. A foreign or non-established business should register for VAT in Greece, if it engages in any of the following taxable activities:
- Supply of goods that are located in Greece at the time of supply
- Intra-Community acquisitions
- Distance sales in excess of the annual threshold (EUR10,000)
- Imports
- Services, to which the reverse charge does not apply

Apart from the above cases, the reverse charge generally applies to supplies of services made by non-established businesses to taxable persons (subject to the default business-to-business (B2B) rule). Under this measure, the taxable person that receives the supply should account for the Greek VAT due. If the reverse charge applies, the non-established business is not required to register for Greek VAT.

The reverse charge does not apply to supplies of goods or services made to private persons.

Tax representatives. A foreign business, non-established and non-registered in Greece, should obtain a Greek VAT registration number before making taxable supplies in Greece.

In general, a non-EU business must appoint a tax representative, called locally a VAT fiscal representative, to register for VAT. (An exemption applies for registration under the non-Union scheme of OSS.) The VAT fiscal representative should be given, among other documents required by law, a power of attorney to act on behalf of the non-established business.

The VAT fiscal representative should be appointed and obtain registration before the non-established business begins to make taxable supplies. The VAT fiscal representative may be any person engaged by the business who is a resident and VAT liable in Greece, such as a legal entity or an accountant. The VAT fiscal representative undertakes compliance procedures and may be held jointly liable for VAT debts with the foreign business that it represents.

An EU business is not required to appoint a VAT fiscal representative to register for VAT in Greece but may opt to do so. If a VAT fiscal representative is appointed at the foreign EU business's option, such VAT representative undertakes compliance procedures and may be held jointly liable for VAT debts of the foreign EU business.

Reverse charge. In general, VAT due on cross-border B2B supplies of services shall be due at the place where the customer is situated. Where the reverse-charge procedure applies, the Greek recipient must act as both supplier and recipient of the services for VAT purposes. That is, the Greek customer should account for both output and input tax on the VAT return.

Domestic reverse charge. Domestic reverse charge applies in case of supplies of scrap, recyclable goods and gas emission rights pursuant to Article 39a of the Greek VAT Code on certain conditions.

Moreover, a domestic reverse-charge mechanism applies to construction works on real estate provided by private contractors to local municipalities or other public bodies, where the latter are acting as taxable persons for VAT purposes. In some of these cases, no Greek VAT is charged on the invoice issued by the private contractor (supplier) to the municipality or other public body, and the supplier is not required to account for VAT but is required to indicate on the invoice a special wording indicating application of this regime as follows: "Article 39A of the Greek VAT Code – domestic reverse charge." The supplier has a full right to deduct input tax incurred in relation to such supplies.

In addition, a domestic reverse charge applies to B2B supplies of mobile phones, game consoles, PC tablets and laptops. For such supplies, the Greek supplier must issue an invoice as a domestic supply and not charge VAT and include special invoice wording indicating application of this regime. The buyer must account for VAT via the reverse-charge mechanism. The identity of the buyer as taxable person with the right to deduct input tax should be verified through a specific online process powered by the Independent Authority of Public Revenues.

Digital economy. Specific VAT rules apply to cross-border supplies of goods and services sold via the internet (e-commerce) in all EU Member States with effect from 1 July 2021. These rules apply to all direct sales to nontaxable persons (in practice these are mostly private individuals), but we refer to these rules as e-commerce VAT rules because most of these transactions are conducted via the internet. In general, the place of supply is in the country of consumption, i.e., where the goods are shipped to or where the buyer of the goods or services resides, subject to any "use and enjoyment" provisions that may override this rule (see Section B, Effective use and enjoyment subsection above). Therefore:

- For supplies of services made by a nonresident supplier to a business customer (B2B), the business customer is responsible for accounting for the VAT due, using the reverse charge.
- For supplies of goods made by a nonresident supplier to a business customer (B2B), where the goods are transported from another EU Member State, the business purchasing the goods is responsible for accounting for the VAT due, as an intra-Community acquisition. If the goods come from outside the EU, the purchaser may have to report an importation of goods.
- For supplies of goods or services made by a nonresident supplier to a final consumer (B2C), the supplier is generally responsible for charging and accounting for the VAT due at the rate applicable in the customer's country (unless the supplier's sales fall beneath the distance selling threshold of EUR10,000 with effect from 1 July 2021). This VAT can be reported using a single VAT registration, using a "One-Stop-Shop" mechanism.

For more details about intra-EU distance sales, see the chapter on the EU.

Effective 1 July 2021, an e-commerce supplier may have a choice of how to account for VAT on its B2C supplies.

Local VAT registration. A nonresident supplier may choose to register for VAT in each Member State and account for VAT on all supplies made and recover input tax in accordance with local rules (see the Non-established businesses subsection above). Non-EU businesses may be required to appoint a fiscal representative for accounting for the VAT due on these transactions.

In Greece, the competent authority for the registration of persons in the special schemes is "Section C2 – Special VAT schemes of the Tax Office of Foreign Residents and Alternative Taxation of Domestic Tax Residents".

Non-Greek residents are obliged to submit, by electronic means, a declaration of the commencement and cessation of their activities under the special schemes described below or of a change thereof, in such a way that it no longer fulfills the conditions for their inclusion in these special schemes. Online applications are provided for the fulfilment of this purpose by the Independent Authority of Public Revenue (IARP).

One-Stop Shop. Effective 1 July 2021, a supplier can choose to account for the VAT due under the EU One-Stop Shop (OSS), which can be used for intra-EU cross-border supplies of goods and all cross-border supplies of services made to final consumers in the EU. Unlike the previous Mini One-Stop-Shop (MOSS) scheme that applied until 30 June 2021, the OSS is not limited to cross-border supplies of electronic services, telecommunication services and broadcasting services.

The OSS is an electronic portal that allows businesses to:
- Register for VAT electronically in a single Member State for all intra-EU distance sales of goods and for B2C supplies of services
- Declare and pay VAT due on all supplies of goods and services in a single electronic quarterly return

The OSS can be used by businesses established in the EU and outside the EU. If a supplier, or a deemed supplier, decides to register for the OSS, it must declare and pay VAT for all supplies (goods as well as services) that fall under the OSS.

In Greece, the non-Union OSS is a special scheme for services supplied to nontaxable persons who are established or have their place of residence or habitual residence in Greece or in any other Member State by taxable persons non-established within EU; the provisions are stated by Article 47B of the Greek VAT Code.

In Greece for suppliers that fall under the scheme of non-Union OSS, the information to be provided upon the time of registration, must include the following:
- Name or surname
- Postal address
- Email addresses and websites it makes available on the internet
- Tax identification number (TIN) allocated to them in their country, if the legislation of their country provides for the issuance of a TIN
- Statement that it does not have the head or registered office of economic activity nor has a permanent establishment in a Member State; a VAT number is issued in this case

After submitting the declaration of commencement of the taxable activity, a VAT number is issued with the prefix EU, for the application of this scheme, which is notified by electronical means. These persons are registered in a special register of the OSS scheme.

In Greece, the OSS is a special scheme for intra-Community distance sales of goods for supplies of goods within a Member State made by electronic interfaces facilitating those supplies and for services supplied by taxable persons established within EU, but not in the Member State of consumption; provisions are stated by the Article 47C of the Greek VAT Code.

In the case of suppliers that fall under the scheme of OSS, they are registered by using the VAT number that is already granted to them by an EU Member State.

Those not allowed to register under the above special schemes are taxable persons and intermediaries who:
- Are registered in the corresponding special scheme of another Member State
- Have been registered in OSS of other Member States and their mandatory commitment period for the selection of a Member State of registration has not expired
- Are in a period of exclusion from the use of all special schemes, in all Member States, in accordance with the provisions of Article 58b of Implementing Regulation (EU) 282/2011, as in force from 1 July 2021.
- Are small enterprises subject to the special scheme of Article 39 of the VAT Code either directly or through tax intermediaries, unless they choose to be deleted from the special scheme of small enterprises

The Greek tax authorities may reject the application for registration if the conditions are not met and specifically where:
- The information provided at the time of application is incomplete.
- The information provided cannot be verified.
- The taxable person or intermediary is not allowed to apply for the special arrangements.
- The Greek VAT number of the taxable person who wishes to register in the Union OSS of the VAT Code is invalid or deactivated or is suspended or is in a state of inactivity. The same applies in cases where the taxable person or the intermediary wishes to register in the special scheme of IOSS.

The application of the OSS schemes is optional.

For more details about the operation of the OSS, see the chapter on the EU.

Import One-Stop Shop. Effective 1 July 2021, the Import One-Stop-Shop (IOSS) scheme applies for B2C distance sales of goods from outside the EU.

Effective 1 July 2021, VAT is due on all commercial goods imported into the EU regardless of their value. The actual supply is subject to VAT in the country where the goods are imported (the country of destination). The IOSS facilitates the declaration and payment of VAT due on the sale of low-value goods (i.e., consignments valued at less than EUR150 per consignment). It allows suppliers selling low-value goods dispatched or transported from a non-EU country to customers in the EU to collect, declare and pay the VAT due. If the IOSS is used, the importation into the EU is exempt from VAT.

In Greece, the following may be entered under the special scheme of IOSS of the Article 47d of the VAT Code:
- Taxable persons established in Greece who sell goods imported from outside the EU
- Taxable persons not established within the Union and established in a non-EU country with which the EU has concluded an agreement on mutual assistance of a similar extent to that of the Council Directive 2010/24/EU and by Council Regulation (EU) No 904/2010
- Intermediaries established in Greece who wish to join the scheme to act as intermediaries
- Taxable persons, whether established within the EU or not, and are represented by an intermediary established within the territory of the country

The use of the IOSS special scheme is not mandatory. If VAT is not collected via the IOSS scheme, the importation of goods into the EU is subject to import VAT in the country of final destination and the Member State can decide freely who is liable to pay the import VAT, which could be the customer or the seller (or an electronic interface).

The taxable person who uses this special scheme is granted a unique individual VAT tax registration number for the application of the special scheme with the prefix IM, which is notified by electronic means.

The intermediary is granted a unique individual tax registration number with the prefix IN, by electronic means and a unique individual VAT tax registration number with the prefix IM for the application of this special regime for each taxable person for whom it has been set. The VAT tax registration number or tax registration number issued shall be used exclusively for the purposes of this special scheme.

The user of the OSS and IOSS submits, by electronic means, a VAT return for each calendar quarter, whether supplies under this special regime have been provided or not. The VAT return is submitted by the end of the month following the end of the tax period covered by the return. Required modifications of the declared data are included in the next VAT return, within three years from the expiration of the deadline for submission of the initial return.

The tax is paid simultaneously with the submission of the return and at the latest at the expiration of the deadline for its submission, in euros, to a bank account designated specifically for this purpose and kept at the Bank of Greece, with reference to the relevant VAT return. There is no right to deduct the input tax paid in Greece, but there is a right to refund. Exceptionally, if the subject in question is required to account for VAT in Greece for activities not covered by this scheme, then it is entitled to a deduction of input tax paid in Greece and relates to their taxable activities under this scheme.

For more details about the IOSS, see the chapter on the EU.

Postal Services and Couriers Scheme. If the IOSS is not used and the customer is liable for the import VAT due on the supply (and importation) of consignments with a small intrinsic value (i.e., less than EUR150), the VAT can be collected using the special scheme for postal services and couriers.

In Greece, the Postal Services and Couriers Scheme is known as "Special Arrangements" scheme can be used when the IOSS scheme is not used and only if the Member State of destination of the goods coincides with the Member State of import.

- The parcel consignee becomes liable to pay the respective import VAT. However, VAT is paid by the person who brings the goods before the customs office on behalf of the consignee, i.e., as a rule, the international courier companies and the domestic postal service provider (ELTA).
- The VAT payment is deferred until the 16th day of the month following the one when it was assessed, whereas no special permission and/or guarantee is required.
- Persons using Special Arrangements are obliged to maintain import records for a period of 10 years.

For more details about the special scheme for postal services and couriers, see the chapter on the EU.

Online marketplaces and platforms. Under the new EU VAT e-commerce rules, effective 1 July 2021, taxable persons that "facilitate" certain B2C sales of goods are deemed to have purchased and then supplied those goods themselves. This means that the single supply from the "underlying" supplier to the final consumer is split into two deemed supplies:

- A supply from the supplier to the facilitator (deemed B2B supply).
- A supply from the facilitator to the final customer (deemed B2C supply). Any intermediation service provided by the facilitator is disregarded for VAT purposes.

This provision does not cover all sales facilitated via the facilitator. It only covers distance sales of goods imported from non-EU jurisdictions in consignments with an intrinsic value not exceeding EUR150. The jurisdiction of residence of the supplier using the facilitator is irrelevant. The supply to the facilitating platform is VAT exempt and the supplies made by that platform follow the e-commerce VAT rules as described above. In addition, the provision also covers sales within the EU, if the supplier is not established within the EU. This applies to both local shipments within one Member State as well as intra-Community shipments. In both cases, the final customer must be a nontaxable person.

In Greece, there are no additional specific local rules that apply.

For more details about the rules for online marketplaces, see the chapter on the EU.

Vouchers. As of 1 January 2019, vouchers, which can have physical or electronic form, are acceptable as consideration in exchange for the supply of goods or services.

The goods or services to be supplied or the identities of their potential suppliers are either indicated on the instrument itself or in related documentation, including the terms and conditions of use of such instrument.

Vouchers are distinguished between "single-purpose vouchers" (SPVs), where the place of supply of the goods or services to which the voucher relates and the VAT due on those goods or services are known at the time of issue of the voucher, and "multi-purpose vouchers" (MPVs), which are vouchers other than SPVs.

The essential difference between the two categories of vouchers is their VAT treatment. In SPVs, the taxable event is their distribution and not the subsequent supply of goods or services. In MPVs, VAT is due at the time of their redemption, when the goods or services to which the voucher relates are supplied, whereas any prior transfer of them should not be subject to VAT.

Intermediary services for the distribution of vouchers that are supplied by taxable persons should be subject to VAT.

Transport tickets, admission tickets to cinemas and museums, postage stamps and instruments entitling the holder to a discount upon purchase of goods or services but carryingm c no right to receive such goods or service should not be treated as vouchers.

Registration procedures. Businesses established in the EU that are required to register locally in Greece can do so and obtain a Greek VAT registration number:

- By directly applying electronically in a simplified process aimed at EU businesses with no prior registration or establishment in Greece, in which case the appointment of a VAT fiscal representative is not required
  Or
- By filing in hard copy an application form along with all required documents (power of attorney, standard tax forms provided by the Greek tax office, a memorandum of association and a certificate of taxable status) and by appointing locally a VAT fiscal representative.

Businesses established outside the EU that are required to register locally for VAT purposes in Greece are required to appoint a local VAT fiscal representative. No electronic registration is available.

In some cases, the appropriate local tax office shall not grant the requested Greek VAT registration number to the applicant (foreign business), for example, if the business had already obtained a Greek VAT registration number.

Deregistration. A taxable person that ceases to be required to account for Greek VAT may opt to deregister. If such taxable person is not deregistered, he must continue complying with all relevant filing obligations.

Changes to VAT registration details. Changes relating to the VAT registration details must be notified before the Registry Department of the competent tax office within 30 days from the time the change was made.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 24%
- Reduced rates: 4%, 6%, 13%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate, the zero rate or an exemption.

Super reduced VAT rates (by 30% compared to the standard VAT rates) apply to the islands of Lesvos, Chios, Samos, Kos and Leros all affected by the refugee crisis without time limitation, subject though to revocation by Ministerial Decision. As of 2020, Greece has a temporary reclassification of specific products and services from the standard rate to the reduced VAT rate in the context of the measures undertaken for COVID-19. These are noted below under the applicable VAT rate sections.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0% (i.e., exempt with credit)

- Exports of goods outside the EU and related services
- Intra-Community supplies of goods
- Services supplied to a taxable person established in and outside the EU under the B2B default rule in the provision of services
- Vaccines against COVID-19, approved by the EMA or the EU Member States (a temporary zero-rating from 1 July 2021 and until 31 December 2023)

Examples of goods and services taxable at 4%

- The supply of services under contract for works exclusively intended to overcome or remove architectural barriers that limit the mobility of disabled people in public or private buildings or buildings of a public interest (applicable as of 1 November 2023)

Examples of goods and services taxable at 6%

- Books and music books, under the tariff code classification 4904
- Newspapers
- Magazines
- Theater and concert tickets
- Cinema tickets
- Supply of electricity and gas, as well as district sales
- Protective masks and gloves, antiseptic products, wipes and relevant products, soap and other products used for personal hygiene purposes, ethyl alcohol, if used as raw material for the production of antiseptics
- Residues and waste of industrial foodstuffs and animal feed, excluding dog or cat food (applicable from 1 October 2021)
- Defibrillators
- Dialysis, hemofiltration, hemodiafiltration and plasmapheresis filters, and hemodialysis, hemofiltration, hemofiltration and plasmapheresis (tariff code 9018)
- Electronic publications of visual and audio books, except for publications intended solely or primarily for advertising purposes and publications consisting entirely or exclusively of video or audio music content (applicable from 1 July 2021)

Examples of goods and services taxable at 13%

- Hotel accommodation services
- Food services supplied by restaurants, grills, taverns, coffee shops, cafeterias, patisseries and other related businesses (other than entertainment centers)
- Provision of services for boarding schools, structures for disabled persons and structures providing accommodation to people with mental disabilities, mental disorders and use of drugs
- Oil types
- Meat and fish preparations
- Sugars and sugar confectionery
- Miscellaneous edible preparations based on cereal, flour, starch or milk
- Preparations of vegetables, fruit, nuts, and fruit and vegetable juices
- Coffee, cocoa, tea, chamomile, and other preparations based on these products and coffee substitutes until 30 June 2024
- Pastes, preparations for sauces and sauces, preparations for soups and broths, ice creams, vinegar and salt
- Bathroom seats, iron deficiency pump for Mediterranean anemia, tracheostomy system tracheal tubes filters, walker, tripod, A.G. or K.G. socks, colostomy socks, filters for blood purification, blood donation, blood transfusion, and plasma exchange, blood purification lines, blood donation, blood transfusion, and plasma exchange, bags for collecting liquid filter preparation, Y-connectors, sets for vein puncture during blood purification, carbon dioxide cartridges, titanium connector, connection and drainage line, drainage bags, connection cassettes, Clamp (clamps), peritoneal cleansing case (SMART PD CASE), consumables for colostomies, intended for the service of people with disabilities.
- Nonalcoholic beverages, without addition of alcohol in any proportion (tariff code classification 2202) and gaseous water (tariff code classification 2201)
- Services provided by cafes, confectioneries, restaurants, grills, wineries and other related businesses (except for entertainment businesses) with the exception of beverages containing alcohol in any proportion (a temporary reduction applies to the supply of coffee, cocoa, tea, chammile, and other preparations based on these products and coffee substitutes until 30 June 2024)
- Transportation of persons and their luggage carried out by Public Passenger Vehicles (TAXI) (a temporary reduction, applicable from 1 June 2020 to 30 June 2024)
- Imported art objects, associations or antiquities and objects of artistic value when delivered by their creator or successors
- Zoo tickets
- Services from gyms
- Services from dance schools and provided that they are not exempt
- Agricultural tractors and forestry tractors, motors, devices and tools, pumps for liquids, air pumps and air compressors for fish tanks, mobile silos, greenhouses, fish farms made of glass, accumulator shells, floating fish farming structures intended mainly or exclusively for agriculture, animal husbandry or forestry (applicable as of 1 November 2023)

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Postal services
- Finance
- Insurance
- Certain sales and rental of immovable property under conditions
- Medical services supplied by public law and other not-for-profit organizations
- Health care

Option to tax for exempt supplies. Optionally, commercial lease of real estate may be subject to VAT instead of stamp duty, upon mutual agreement of the lessor and the lessee. The lessor must submit a specific request to the appropriate tax office.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point."

The basic time of supply for goods is when the goods are put at the purchaser's disposal. If the supplier undertakes the obligation to forward the goods to the buyer, the time of supply is at the beginning of the transportation. For installed goods, the time of supply is when installation is completed. If the supplier issues an invoice before the basic time of supply, the time of supply becomes the invoice date.

In general, the time of supply for services is when they are performed. If the supplier issues an invoice before the basic time of supply, the time of supply is the invoice date.

Deposits and prepayments. Payments received before the supply of goods or services, or the issuance of a VAT invoice are known as advance payments. Advance payments do not generally create a tax point (they create a tax point only in the event of an intra-Community supply of services).

Continuous supplies of services. If services are provided continuously, the tax point is the time that any amount is considered as payable.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. The tax point for a local supply of goods sent on approval for sale or return is when the goods are approved for receipt and sold. If the goods are returned, there is no supply.

Reverse-charge services. There are no special time of supply rules in Greece for supplies of reverse-charge services. As such, the general time of supply rules applies (as outlined above). This means that the time of supply of services is when the services are performed unless an invoice is issued before the basic time of supply.

By way of derogation in case any advance payment is collected prior to the completion of the EU cross-border services, the tax point is considered to be at that time. A special tax record (titled "special tax record for VAT purposes in case of intra-EU supplies of services") is issued at the time of the advance payment collection and has the same content as a VAT invoice.

For continuous supplies of intra-EU cross-border services, the VAT becomes due by the end of the tax year, to the extent that no installments have been paid during the period of the supply. A special tax record should be issued.

The reverse-charge mechanism only applies to B2B cross-border services, not goods. For intra-EU acquisition of goods, refer to the Intra-Community acquisitions of goods subsection below.

Leased assets. Lease of assets is considered to be a supply of services; thus, the tax point is the time that any amount is considered to be payable. If at the expiration of the lease agreement, the lessee takes ownership of the assets, this should be considered to be a supply of goods and the tax point shall be the time when the sale is performed.

Imported goods. The time of supply for an importation is when the importation occurs or when the goods leave a duty suspension regime.

Intra-Community acquisitions. For intra-Community acquisitions, the time of supply is when the goods are put at the purchaser's disposal. If the supplier undertakes the obligation to forward the goods to the buyer, the time of supply is the beginning of the transportation. VAT is due on the issuance of an invoice or by the 15th day of the month following the month in which the supply took place, whichever is the earlier.

Intra-Community supplies of goods. For intra-Community supplies, VAT is due upon the issuance of the respective invoice and at the latest on the 15th day of the month following the one on which the supply was affected.

Distance sales. The time of supply rule for the supply of distance sales is at the beginning of the transportation.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax, which is VAT charged on goods and services supplied to it for business purposes. A taxable person generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax, which is VAT charged on supplies made.

Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services supplied within Greece, VAT paid on imports of goods and VAT self-assessed on the intra-Community acquisition of goods, reverse-charge services and domestic reverse charge of goods.

A valid tax invoice or customs document should generally accompany an input tax refund claim.

The time limit for a taxable person to reclaim input tax in Greece is five years.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use). In addition, input tax may not be recovered for some items of business expenditure.

The following lists provide some examples of items of expenditure for which input tax is not deductible and examples of items for which input tax is deductible if the expenditure is related to a taxable business use.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Hotel accommodation
- Business gifts valued at more than EUR10
- Lease, purchase, hire and maintenance of cars
- Fuel for cars
- Business entertainment
- Home telephone bills
- Taxis
- Public transport
- Food, drink and tobacco

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Books
- Attending conferences and seminars
- Lease, purchase, hire and maintenance of vans and trucks
- Fuel for vans and trucks
- Mobile telephones
- Utilities

Partial exemption. Input tax directly related to making exempt supplies is not generally recoverable. If a Greek taxable person makes both exempt and taxable supplies, it may not recover input tax of common expenses in full. This situation is referred to as "partial exemption." Exempt with credit supplies are treated as taxable supplies for these purposes.

The amount of input tax that may be recovered is calculated in the following two stages:
- The first stage identifies the input tax that may be directly allocated to taxable supplies and exempt supplies. Input tax directly allocated to taxable supplies is deductible, while input tax directly related to exempt supplies is not deductible.
- The second stage identifies the amount of the remaining input tax (for example, on general business overhead) that may be allocated to taxable supplies and recovered. The calculation is based on the value of taxable supplies made compared with total turnover. The partial exemption recovery percentage is rounded up to the nearest whole number (for example, a recovery percentage of 75.1% is rounded up to 76%).

Approval from the tax authorities is not required to use the partial exemption standard method in Greece. Special methods are allowed in Greece but require approval from the Head of the Tax Office, upon meeting certain conditions. However, it is not common for taxable persons to use a special method in Greece.

Capital goods. Capital goods are items of capital expenditure that are used in a business over several years. Input tax is generally deducted in the tax year in which the goods are acquired. The amount of input tax recovered depends on the taxable person's partial exemption recovery position in the tax year of acquisition. However, the amount of input tax recovered for capital goods should be adjusted over time, if the taxable person's partial exemption recovery percentage changes during the adjustment period.

In Greece, the capital goods adjustment applies to the following assets for a period of five years:
- Buildings (in case of leased buildings, the adjustment period expands to 10 years at the level of the lessor).
- Other movable capital assets and certain intangible goods (i.e., the rights to use patents, designs, trademarks).
- Capitalized expenses, which are considered to be, inter alia, the expenses for the services related to the construction of capital goods, which are added to the value of the capital good (i.e., they are capitalized) and they are subject to adjustment together with the initial value of the goods. Note that for VAT purposes, the granting of use of an intangible asset is considered as provision of services.

In the tax period of first use, the input tax is deducted according to whether, and to what extent, the goods are used for taxable activities. One fifth of the total input tax is attributed to each year of the adjustment period. At the end of each year, an adjustment of the input tax has to be made according to the use of the goods (exempt/taxable) in that particular year. When the use of the goods in an adjustment year has changed compared to the use of the goods in the tax period of first use, part of the input tax must be paid to or can be recovered from the authorities.

The final input tax adjustment is performed annually on the basis of the overall data of the tax year, derived from the respective VAT returns filed throughout the year.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax recoverable in a period exceeds the amount of output tax payable in that period, the taxable person has an input tax credit. If a VAT return results in an input tax credit, the amount may be carried forward to offset output tax payable in subsequent periods. Alternatively, the taxable person may request for the VAT refund by completing the relevant tax box in the VAT return (no separate filing of an application is required in this respect).

Theoretically, a tax audit is not a prerequisite for the refund. However, under certain circumstances, a taxable person may be selected for a tax audit prior to being granted the refund, based on a risk analysis performed by the Directorate of the Ministry of Finance. Input tax amounts claimed for refund as of 1 July 2017 by taxable persons who have been granted an "authorized economic operator" license or a "simplified procedure license" or taxable persons engaged in exports or intra-EU deliveries of goods, may be refunded, under certain conditions, without any VAT audit to be performed.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax incurred on pre-registration costs in Greece is not recoverable.

Bad debts. Generally, no adjustment can be made concerning bad debts. Any amount of VAT charged must be paid to the Greek State, even if it has not been collected by the taxable person from their customer. As an exception to this general rule, relief may be sought by taxable persons in case the customer has been subject to a special "rehabilitation" or "special liquidation" or "bankruptcy" procedures as provided by Greek Insolvency Code bankruptcy legislation and provided that a court order has been issued beforehand; however, this exception has rarely been applied in practice.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred on purchases that are used for noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Greece.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Input tax incurred by non-established businesses that are not registered for VAT in Greece is recoverable. Greek VAT authorities refund VAT incurred by businesses that are neither established nor registered for VAT in Greece. Non-established businesses may claim Greek VAT to the same extent as VAT-registered businesses.

EU businesses. For businesses established in the EU, refunds are made under the terms of the EU Directive 2008/9/EC. The VAT refund procedure under the EU Directive 2008/9 may be used only if the business did not perform any taxable supplies in Greece during the refund period (excluding supplies covered by the reverse charge). For full details, see the chapter on the EU.

Find below specific rules for Greece:

- Claims should be submitted electronically in either Greek or English and should be accompanied by scanned copies of relevant invoices placed in an electronic archive or file.
- The appropriate Greek authority for this purpose is the following:

  Independent Authority for Public Revenue
  General Directorate of Tax Administration
  Directorate for the Implementation of Indirect Taxation Section C – VAT Refund to companies having their registered office within and outside the EU.
  Sina Street 2-4
  10672 Athens
  Greece

- If the refund application is approved, refund of the approved amount should be paid within 10 working days after the expiration of the deadline to respond. Interest is payable to the applicant on the amount of the refund to be paid if the refund is paid after the last date for payment. Interest due is calculated according to the rules applicable for payment of default interest to Greek taxable persons.

Non-EU businesses. For businesses outside the EU, Greece does not refund VAT under the terms of the EU 13th Directive. This includes the United Kingdom (UK). However, this is with the exception of businesses established in Norway, Switzerland and Northern Ireland. A Norwegian or Swiss business may claim Greek VAT refunds to the same extent as a Greek taxable person. Transactions involving the movement of goods between Northern Ireland and the EU Member States are treated as intra-Community acquisitions and supply of goods, for a four-year period from 1 January 2021.

Find below specific rules for Greece:
- The refund application must relate to the supply of goods and services or imports covering a period of at least three months and not exceeding one calendar year.
- The period may be less than three months when it represents the remainder of a calendar year.
- Refund claim is submitted in the Member State of establishment by 30 September of the calendar year following the return period.
- Claims relating to UK, Norwegian and Swiss businesses must be filed in hard copies before the VAT Division of the Greek Ministry of Finance.

Late payment interest. In Greece, interest is not paid on late refunds to non-established businesses (for both EU and non-EU non-established businesses).

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A taxable person should generally provide a VAT invoice for all taxable supplies made, including exports and intra-Community supplies. For retail transactions, retail receipts should be issued.

A valid original VAT invoice is required to support a claim for input tax deduction or a refund under the EU 8th Directive refund scheme (see the chapter on the EU).

Credit notes. A VAT credit note may be used to reduce the VAT charged and reclaimed on a supply. A credit note should be cross-referenced to the original VAT invoice. It is possible to issue a credit invoice only for the VAT amount in cases where VAT has been erroneously charged under certain conditions.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is mandatory in Greece for certain taxable persons.

Scope of electronic invoicing. For business-to-government (B2G) supplies, electronic invoicing is mandatory for all taxable persons in Greece. This is in line with EU Directive 2014/55/EU (see the chapter on the EU). This is with effect from 2020.

For B2B and B2C supplies, electronic invoicing is allowed but not mandatory in Greece. This is in line with EU Directive 2010/45/EU (see the chapter on the EU).

For B2G supplies, the obligation of contracting authorities and contracting bodies was extended to receive and process e-invoices issued in the context of Public Procurement Contracts of L.3978/2011, L.4412/2016, and L.4413/2016 regardless of their estimated value. The obligation of the economic bodies for e-invoicing applies to:
- Contracts concluded in the sectors of defense and security, in accordance with L.3978/2011
- Public procurement contracts and contracts relating to works, designs, technical and other related scientific services as well as supplies and general services, in accordance with L.4412/2016
- Concession agreements, in accordance with L.4413/2016
- Any expense category incurred by contracting authorities or bodies

As a general rule, the time point for the commencement of the mandatory regime of e-invoicing appears to be the date by when the process for the conclusion of the relevant contract commences (said time point is determined on a case-by-case basis by the provisions of L. 3978/2011, 4412/2016 and 4413/2016) and not the date of issuance of the invoice.

A gradual inclusion to the mandatory e-invoicing regime is provided depending on the body to which the contracting authorities belong, as well as the legal framework governing the relevant expenses, starting from 12 September 2023.

An explicit provision referring to the economic body's obligation for issuance of e-invoices should be included in the relevant contract.

There is no obligation for e-invoicing for:
- Public contracts of minor value, i.e., value equal to or less than EUR2,500 excluding VAT
- Public contracts concluded between entities of the public sector, when these entities are acting in a noncompetitive manner and outside of any procedure addressed to the market (i.e., when they are not acting as economic bodies)
- Other general government expenditure up to EUR2,500, which do not fall within the scope of L.3978/2011, L.4412/2016 and L.4413/2016
- Contracts that fall within the scope of L.3978/2011 (procurements related to defense and security) and are classified as secret

For electronic invoices in general, the authenticity of the origin and the integrity of the content may be safeguarded in various ways, which are provided indicatively and not restrictively and are the following:
- An advanced electronic signature created by a secure signature creation device based on a qualified certificate for electronic signatures within the meaning of P.D. 150/2001
- Electronic Data Interchange (EDI), as defined in Article 2 of Annex 1 to Commission's Recommendation 1994/820/EC of 19 October 1994, where the agreement relating to the interchange provides for the use of procedures guaranteeing the authenticity of the origin and integrity of the data
- The use of a licensed service provider
- The use of Special Electronic Secured Registration Mechanisms "black box," mainly used in B2C sales

In addition, the readability of the electronic invoices should also be safeguarded. Greek-established companies shall ensure by any appropriate means that the content of an invoice is in a readable format by a person, without the need of excess investigation or interpretation, for the time of its issuance until the end of the retention period required by law. In particular for electronic invoices, that condition is fulfilled when upon request and with appropriate conversion process they can be presented in a format that can be read either on screen or in printed format in due time. This process should permit verification that the information of the original electronic file and the item presented in a format that can be read is not modified.

The readability of invoices is deemed to be ensured where an appropriate and reliable access mechanism of the electronic format is available during the retention period.

From the tax year 2021, Greek established taxable businesses are liable to use electronic maintenance of their accounting books (e-books).

In a nutshell, all Greek established taxable persons are liable to digitally transmit their transactions' data (revenues invoices/sales receipts), as well as the classification of both their revenues and expenses, to the Independent Authority of Public Revenues (IAPR) through a specific digital platform (myDATA) as of 1 January 2021. The deadlines for the data transmission and for the classification thereof are defined in Decision A.1138/2020. The data transmission deadlines vary depending on the type of the suppliers, the transactions, etc., and should be examined on a case-by-case basis. However, this is not applicable for foreign taxable persons that have acquired solely a Greek VAT number (without operating through a Greek permanent establishment).

For the EU VAT in the Digital Age (ViDA) proposals, refer to the chapter on the European Union.

Simplified invoices. Simplified invoices are allowed when either the amount of the invoice does not exceed EUR100, or the issued invoice is a document that modifies and refers specifically and indisputably to an original invoice. The main difference with the regular invoice is that the simplified invoice does not contain the recipient's/customer's data. Simplified invoices must contain at least the following details:
- The date of issue
- Identification of the taxable person supplying the goods or services

- Identification of the type of goods or services supplied
- The amount of VAT payable or the information needed to calculate it
- If the simplified invoice intends to amend an initial invoice, a reference to the initial invoice and the specific details that are amended must be made

Self-billing. Self-billing is allowed in Greece. The seller is allowed, subject to prior (written or oral) agreement, to ensure the issuance of an invoice from the recipient of the goods or services (self-billing) or by a third party on behalf of the seller. The agreement to issue an invoice by the recipient of goods or services or from another third party does not exempt the taxable person from the legal obligation to ensure that an invoice is issued, as well as from any relevant liability.

Proof of exports and intra-Community supplies. VAT is not chargeable on supplies of exported goods or on intra-Community supplies of goods. However, to qualify as VAT-free exports and intra-Community supplies, they should be supported by evidence confirming that the goods have left Greece. Acceptable proof includes the following documentation:

- For an export, copies of the export document reporting the electronic message "IE 599: Export Completion Notification" indicating the supplier as the exporter, the bill of lading issued by the transporter, the sales invoice and bank proof of payment (if applicable).
- For an intra-Community supply, a range of commercial documentation, such as dispatch notes, the bill of lading and proof of payment.

No special documentation applies in Greece for evidencing the application of the Quick Fixes. Normal intra-Community documentation rules apply. However, for goods transported via means of transport of public use, article 45a of the VAT Implementing Regulation No. 282/2011 applies. As per this article, a written statement from the acquirer, stating that the goods have been dispatched or transported by the acquirer, or by a third party on behalf of the acquirer, and identifying the Member State of destination of the goods is one of the documents that evidence the VAT exemption for intra-EU supplies. However, there is no official template for this document, published by the Greek tax authorities.

Foreign currency invoices. If an invoice is received in a foreign currency, the VAT amounts should be converted into the domestic currency, which is the euro (EUR). The exchange rate to be used is issued by the IAPR. An invoice may be issued in foreign currency if Greece is the place of supply of goods or services and if the amount of VAT payable is indicated at least in euros.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. For supplies to nontaxable persons, a sales receipt must always be issued. Sales receipts (as well as any other tax records issued in the framework of B2C sales) must be issued through use of Special Electronic Secured Registration Mechanisms (SESRMs)/ black box, as provided by L.1809/1988 or through the use of third-party licensed service providers. However, the Greek legislation provides for specific exemptions in this respect, for example, in cases of toll receipts or electricity and telephone bills.

Distance selling. For intra-Community distance sales made B2C, a full VAT invoice must be issued (to the extent the seller operates under a Greek VAT number). However, if the supplier operates the OSS regime, then no full VAT invoice is required unless requested. Persons registered to IOSS scheme in Greece shall issue the relevant documents for the sale of goods in accordance with the invoicing rules of Greek Accounting Standards (L. 4308/2014).

Records. In Greece, examples of what records must be held for VAT purposes include tax records, accounting books and relevant supporting documents. This applies for Greek established entities. In Greece, VAT books and records can be kept outside of the country. This is on the condition that they can be submitted to the Greek tax authorities, in case of an audit, within a reasonable time period.

Non-established businesses operating in Greece through a Greek VAT number should ensure to maintain all the tax records issued and received through its Greek VAT number, signed CMRs and transport documents, bank statements, and import and export documents, as well as any other supporting document that could be used in case of a VAT audit by the Greek tax authorities. Such records can be kept outside the country; however, in case of an audit, the records must be submitted to the Greek tax authorities, within a reasonable time period.

Record retention period. The records retention period is linked to the statute of limitations period, within which the tax authorities can lawfully impose taxes. Tax Procedures Code (law 4174/2013) sets out a five-year statute of limitation period, commencing from the end of the tax year in which the deadline to submit tax return expires.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is allowed in Greece. It is allowed as long as there is a system for searching, displaying and printing or reproducing the records, in order to assist a potential audit by the tax authorities. Records created in a printed format can be digitized and stored in the new format even during the current tax year. For each invoice, the data that ensures the authenticity and integrity of the content of the document must be safeguarded.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. The VAT return due should be filed by the last business day of the month following the end of the return period. Greek periodic VAT returns are submitted electronically as follows:

- Monthly, if the taxable person maintains double entry accounting books
  Or
- Quarterly, if the taxable person maintains single entry accounting books (this is also the case of foreign VAT-registered persons)

No VAT return is required if a taxable person has suspended its business activity and has declared such suspension with the appropriate tax office. This refers to either the termination of the business activity or the "deactivation" of a non-established business' Greek VAT number. If said taxable person wishes to perform in the future taxable transactions in Greece, it may "reactivate" the same Greek VAT number.

Periodic payments. In principle, filing of VAT returns and full payment of the VAT due should be made by the last business day of the month following the end of the return period. However, in the case of VAT returns filed on time, taxable persons have the option of paying the VAT due in two equal installments provided that the total VAT amount payable exceeds EUR100. If they choose installments, the first installment is due by the last business day of the month during which the VAT return was submitted, and the second installment is due by the last business day of the following month. Payment of VAT must be made electronically (see the Electronic filing subsection below).

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is mandatory in Greece for all taxable persons. VAT returns should be filed electronically through TAXISnet (that is, the electronic application of the IAPR). This is mandatory for all VAT taxable persons, Greek-established companies and foreign VAT-registered companies.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Greece.

Special schemes. Small enterprises. Taxable persons whose turnover exclusive of VAT during the previous tax year did not exceed the EUR10,000 threshold are exempted from the obligation to file VAT returns and from VAT payment, provided that they apply for and are registered as "small enterprises falling under the regime of Article 39 of Greek VAT Code." The EUR10,000 threshold must neither include disposals of capital assets nor exempt supplies with no right of deduction.

Newly Greek VAT-registered businesses may also apply for the special scheme. In addition, it is also no longer obligatory to retain the special scheme for two years.

This exemption shall not apply to special scheme farmers, non-established taxable persons or supplies of new means of transport.

Application of this special regime requires filing of a relevant declaration to the tax office registry.

Tax records issued by these enterprises are issued with no VAT and must display prominently: "Without VAT: special scheme for small enterprises." Taxable persons under this special scheme have no right to deduct input tax.

Upon exceeding the threshold, the business is immediately (and not as of the next tax year) obliged to charge VAT on their supplies and apply the regular VAT regime, regardless of the time when notification to the tax authorities is filed.

Cash accounting. A "cash accounting system" has been introduced in Greece for local taxable supplies of goods or services and is aimed at businesses with an annual turnover not exceeding the EUR2 million threshold.

Application of this regime is only optional and can be activated after filing an application to the tax authority before the beginning of the tax year concerned. For businesses registered under this new regime:
- Output tax shall become due upon collection of the consideration or part thereof.
- Input tax incurred is deductible at the time when the taxable person pays the consideration or a part thereof for goods or services received.

The tax records issued by entities applying this scheme should indicate the following: "Cash accounting scheme: Article 226.7a Directive 2006/112/EC – Article 39B VAT Code." Issuance of a special record for prepayments is provided for, in cases of prepayments' collection in the context of special scheme's transactions.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Greece.

Supplementary filings. Intrastat. A Greek taxable person that trades with other EU countries should complete statistical reports, known as Intrastat, if the value of its intra-Community sales or purchases exceeds certain thresholds. Separate reports are used for intra-Community acquisitions (Intrastat Arrivals) and intra-Community supplies (Intrastat Dispatches).

The threshold for Intrastat Arrivals in 2023 is EUR150,000. The threshold for Intrastat Dispatches in 2023 is EUR90,000. At the time of preparing this chapter, the thresholds for 2024 have not been announced.

The Intrastat return is filed electronically through the website of the Hellenic Statistical Authority on a monthly basis. The submission deadline is by the 26th day of the month following the end of the Intrastat return period (i.e., the same deadline as the EC Listings filing obligation). It is not necessary to file nil Intrastat for a month in which no cross-border transfer take place. Intrastat returns must be filed in EUR.

EC Listings. EC Listings for cross-border supplies of both goods and services within the EU are filed on a monthly basis.

Separate forms should be filed for intra-Community dispatches (sales or supplies of services or goods) and for intra-Community acquisitions or receipt of services. EC Listings should be filed electronically through TAXISnet (that is, the electronic application of the IAPR) by the 26th day of the month following the reporting period.

It is not necessary to file nil EC Listings for a month in which no intra-Community transactions take place. EC Listings should include B2B services supplied on a cross-border basis only if these services are taxable in the country of the recipient.

On the contrary, EC Listings should not include services that are exempt from VAT in the country of the recipient business. Taxable persons required to file EC Listings should verify through the VAT Information Exchange System (VIES) the VAT identification number of their customers before engaging in intra-Community transactions.

Correcting errors in previous returns. Corrections can be made through the electronic submission of an amended VAT return. Administrative penalties and interest in excess VAT payable amounts may arise depending on the case (see the section Penalties below for further details).

Digital tax administration. Electronic bookkeeping. The Greek State has implemented the mandatory electronic bookkeeping obligation to all Greek established companies as of January 2021. For further details see the subsection Electronic invoicing above. However, this is not applicable for a non-established taxable person that has acquired solely a Greek VAT number (without operating through a Greek permanent establishment).

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. In the case of a business operation commencing without the appropriate registration with the tax authority, a penalty equal to 50% of the VAT amount that should have been paid to the tax authority during the operation of the business is imposed.

Penalties for late payment and filings. Penalties are charged for late or inaccurate VAT returns, for the failure to file VAT returns and for the failure to account for VAT properly, as follows:

Procedural violation penalties in the EUR100–EUR500 range may be imposed for late VAT return.

In the case of filing of an inaccurate VAT return or failing to file a VAT return, which results in a full or partial failure to account for VAT or results in the deduction or refund of additional input tax, a penalty equal to 50% of the unpaid VAT amount or of the relevant difference (i.e., additional input tax amount deducted or refunded) is imposed.

Finally, in cases of late payment, inaccurate underpayment or nonpayment of VAT, the taxable person is obliged to pay interest in arrears calculated on this amount on a monthly basis for the time period from the end of the payment deadline until the date of the payment. At the time of preparing this chapter, the current monthly rate is 0.73%.

For Intrastat, a penalty amounting to EUR100 may be incurred for inaccurate or late or missing filings.

For EC listings, a penalty amounting to EUR100 may be incurred for inaccurate or late or missing filings.

Penalties for errors. In the case of failure to issue an invoice or in the case of issuance or acceptance of inaccurate invoices for a transaction that should have been burdened with VAT, a penalty equal to 50% of the unpaid VAT amount or of the relevant difference (i.e., additional input tax amount deducted) is imposed.

The late notification or failure to notify the tax authorities of changes to a taxable person's VAT registration details may result in a penalty of EUR100. For further details, see the subsection Changes to VAT registration details above.

Penalties for fraud. Criminal sanctions may be imposed in cases where the crime of tax evasion is committed by persons who intentionally avoid the payment taxes by virtue of inaccurate payment or set-off or VAT. The respective punishment varies from 2 to 20 years depending on the amounts involved in the tax evasion. In particular:

- Imprisonment of at least two years and up to five years is imposed in case the annual non-paid VAT amount is up to EUR50,000.
- Imprisonment for at least 5 years and up to 20 years is imposed in case the annual non-paid VAT amount exceeds EUR100,000.

In addition, the law states that any person who knowingly signs an inaccurate tax return as a proxy or any other person who knowingly contributes or provides direct support to the commission of tax evasion (including company's officers) is punished as a direct accomplice.

Personal liability for company officers. The penal sanctions stated above can also apply to a company's officers if an intention of fraud is identified.

Statute of limitations. The statute of limitations in Greece is five years. This commences from the end of the tax year in which the deadline to submit tax return expires.

Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses	No

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- The sale or exchange of movable goods or rights derived from movable goods
- The rendering of services within Guatemala
- Imports
- Leasing of movable and immovable property
- The award (transfer) of movable and immovable goods as a payment

- Consumption by the taxable person and consumption by the employees, executives, directors and shareholders of a company or their family members
- Certain shortages of inventory such as those derived from missing goods (e.g., shrinkage) or damaged goods, as well as destruction of inventory, if complied with the legal requirements
- The first sale or exchange of immovable assets
- Certain donations
- Contributions of immovable property to legal entities if the assets have been previously contributed to a real estate entity

Effective use and enjoyment. To avoid instances of non-taxation or double taxation, jurisdictions can apply "use and enjoyment" rules that allow a service that is "used and enjoyed" in the jurisdiction to be taxed or prevent a service that is "used and enjoyed" outside the jurisdiction from being taxed. If a service is taxed in the jurisdiction under the "use and enjoyment" provisions, a non-established supplier of the service may be required to register for VAT in every jurisdiction where it has customers that are not taxable persons. In Guatemala, no services are subject to the "use and enjoyment" provisions.

Transfer of a going concern. Transfer of going concern rules do not apply in Guatemala. As such, VAT applies to all sales of a business or part of a business capable of separate operation including assets.

Transactions between related parties. In Guatemala, there are no specific rules that indicate the value for VAT purposes for transactions between related parties. However, the Income Tax Law (ITL) will apply for VAT, and as such transactions between related parties should be valued using the arm's-length principle. In addition, transfer pricing obligations may arise when two entities are considered as related parties.

According to the ITL, the following scenarios must be analyzed to determine if entities are considered as related parties:

A. Two persons are considered related parties, between a person resident in Guatemala and a person resident abroad, when the following cases occur:
   1. When one of them directs or controls the other, or owns, directly or indirectly, at least 25% of its capital stock or voting rights, whether in the national or foreign entity.
   2. When five or fewer persons direct or control both related parties, or own as a whole, directly or indirectly, at least 25% of participation in the capital stock or voting rights of both persons.
   3. In the case of legal entities, whether resident in Guatemala or foreign, that belong to the same business group. In particular, it is considered for these purposes that two companies are part of the same business group if one of them is a partner or participant of the other and is in relation to it in any of the following situations:
      a) Holds the majority of the voting rights.
      b) Has the power to appoint or dismiss the members of the administrative body or, through its legal representative, decisively intervenes in the other entity.
      c) Can dispose, by virtue of agreements entered into with other partners, of the majority of the voting rights.
      d) Has appointed exclusively with its votes the majority of the members of the administrative body.
      e) The majority of the members of the administrative body of the dominated legal entity are officers, managers or members of the administrative body of the dominant company or of another company dominated by the latter.

When two companies each form part of a corporate group with respect to a third company in accordance with the provisions of this subsection, all these companies form a corporate group.

A natural person is also considered to have an interest in the capital stock or voting rights when the ownership of the interest or shares, directly or indirectly, corresponds to the spouse or person related by blood up to the fourth degree or by affinity up to the second degree.

B. The following are also considered related parties:
   1. A resident in Guatemala and a distributor or exclusive agent of the same resident abroad
   2. A distributor or exclusive agent resident in Guatemala of an entity resident abroad and the latter
   3. A resident in Guatemala and its permanent establishments (PEs) abroad
   4. A PE in Guatemala and its parent company resident abroad, another PE of the same or a person related to it

In this sense, the ITL determines that the scope of application of the valuation rules for transactions between related parties reaches any transaction between the person resident in Guatemala and the person resident abroad and that has effects on the determination of the taxable income for the period in which the transaction is carried out and in the following periods. Additionally, TP regulations do not establish a difference between supplies of goods and services.

C. Who is liable

Any business entity or self-employed individual that carries out taxable activities on a regular or periodic basis must register for VAT. Taxable persons whose annual turnover does not exceed GTQ150,000 (approx. USD19,380) may elect to be taxed under a simplified VAT regime.

Exemption from registration. The VAT law in Guatemala does not contain any provision for exemption from registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. The VAT law in Guatemala does not contain any provision for voluntary VAT registration, as there is no registration threshold (i.e., all entities that make taxable supplies are obliged to register for VAT).

Small taxable persons with annual turnover of up to GTQ150,000 (approx. USD19,380) may apply for a simplified regime. Under the simplified regime, taxable persons pay tax at a rate of 5% based on their gross taxable sales without a right to credit or deduct input tax (see Section F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons below). Small taxable persons will be subject to VAT withholding when engaging in commercial activities with VAT withholding agents. In all cases where VAT is not withheld, small taxable persons must declare and pay the VAT within the next calendar month. In addition, taxable persons operating under this regime are exempt and shall not declare or pay income tax.

Group registration. Group VAT registration is not allowed in Guatemala.

Fixed establishment. In Guatemala there is no legal definition of a fixed establishment for VAT purposes. However, the ITL determines PE rules would also apply for VAT as follows:

It is understood that an individual, legal person, international organization, entity or property specified operates with a PE in Guatemala when the following are met:
1. In any capacity or form performs within the country, from a fixed place of business, facility or workplace of any kind, any or part of its activities. The definition of the preceding paragraph encompasses, in particular:
   a) Management headquarters
   b) Branches
   c) Offices
   d) Factories
   e) Workshops
   f) Stores, departments, shops or other establishments

g) Agricultural, forestry or livestock exploitation
h) Mines, oil or gas wells, quarries or other place of extraction or exploration of natural resources

2. Any work, construction or installation project or supervisory activities in connection with are included in the definition, but only if the that work, project or supervisory activities are performed during a period greater than six months.
3. Notwithstanding the above, when a person other than an independent agent is acting in Guatemala on behalf of a nonresident enterprise, that enterprise shall be deemed to have a PE in Guatemala in respect of any activities that person undertakes for the enterprise, if that person holds and habitually exercises in Guatemala an authority to conclude contracts on behalf of the company, or does not hold such powers, but habitually maintains in Guatemala, stocks of goods for delivery on behalf of the nonresident.
4. Except for activities related to reinsurance or counter guarantee, an insurance company is considered to have a PE if it collects premiums within the territory or insures risks situated therein through a Guatemalan resident.
5. A nonresident is deemed to have a PE when more than 51% of the activities of an agent are carried on behalf of the nonresident and the conditions accepted between the nonresident and the agent and imposed in its ordinary course of business differ from those which would occur between independent parties.
6. An enterprise shall not be deemed to have a PE in a Guatemala merely because it carries on business in Guatemala through a broker, general commission agent or any other agent of an independent status, provided that such persons are acting in the ordinary course of their business.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that has no fixed establishment in Guatemala. A non-established business must register for VAT if it supplies goods or services in Guatemala. To register for VAT, a non-established business must take the following actions:

- Appoint a tax representative.
- Provide the tax authorities with a copy of its Articles of Incorporation, legalized by a Guatemalan consulate or duly apostilled, together with an official translation in Spanish to obtain registration before the Mercantile Registry.

Tax representatives. To register for VAT, non-established businesses must appoint a tax representative.

Reverse charge. If a non-domiciled individual renders an occasional, temporary service in Guatemala (or performs another taxable activity) without being registered for VAT, the local beneficiary of the service may be able to issue a "special invoice" for VAT withholding.

Large taxable persons may be designated as VAT withholding agents for payments made relating to the acquisition of goods and services. This measure also applies to other special taxable persons expressly qualified as withholding agents (for example, exporters, government entities and credit card operators). VAT withholding generally applies to the following (exemptions regarding minimum amounts may apply):

- Regular exporters (minimum monthly average exports of GTQ100,000 [approx. USD12,920]): 65% of VAT generated from the purchase of agricultural and cattle products, and 15% of VAT generated for other acquisitions
- Drawback entities: 65% of the VAT generated
- Government entities (excluding municipalities): 25% of the VAT generated
- Credit and debit card operators: 15% of the VAT generated on transactions carried out by affiliated entities
- Gas stations: 1.5% withholding on the gross amount of acquisitions of gasoline
- Special taxable persons: 15% of the VAT generated
- Other withholding agents: 15% of the VAT generated

In principle, the VAT withholding mechanism does not apply to transactions between withholding agents, unless the acquisition is made by credit or debit card (in such a case, the taxable person applies the VAT withholding as described above).

Domestic reverse charge. Taxable persons that acquire goods or services from local taxable persons who do not issue an invoice for such transactions (i.e., if the supplier is not registered for VAT or by any other reason), are able to issue "special invoices" on behalf of said individuals to document the operations and should withhold the applicable VAT rate. The customer then self-accounts for the VAT.

Special invoices should not be issued when the local individuals are duly registered as Guatemalan taxable persons, nor in transactions of habitual nature that are performed between individuals. Notwithstanding, an exception exists over the aforementioned prohibition when the issuer of the "special invoice" determines in such document that the seller of goods or services refused to issue the corresponding invoice.

Additionally, such domestic reverse-charge mechanism should also apply in cases where taxable persons have been designated as VAT withholding agents in the local acquisition of goods and services, except in transactions between withholding agents.

Digital economy. There are no specific rules regarding the taxation of digital economy for VAT purposes in Guatemala. The general taxable events indicated in Section B. Scope of the tax should be observed whether or not they are transacted by digital means.

For electronically supplied services, supplied by a non-established business, for both business-to-business (B2B) and business-to-consumer (B2C), place of supply would not be in Guatemala, and as such no obligation for the customer to account for VAT.

For the supply of a license, no VAT is expected to apply if it is not considered as granted within the Guatemalan territory. However, the tax authorities have issued official criteria for licenses over software, which provide that such licenses granted abroad to be used in Guatemala should be subject to VAT and customs duties.

Guatemalan legislation does not distinguish between B2B vs. B2C transactions. In this regard, the same considerations are expected to apply, irrespective of whether the customer is an individual or an entity. For both types of supply, there would be no VAT due on electronically supplied services in Guatemala.

Online marketplaces and platforms. The Guatemalan tax legislation does not provide specific provisions or rules regarding the application of VAT over online marketplaces and platforms. In any case, to the extent goods are located or services are rendered within Guatemala, VAT should apply.

In June 2021, the tax authorities presented the new Digital Economy Tax Compliance Software, through which it is intended that taxable persons who engage in electronic commerce (streaming services, transport through digital applications, etc.) can have the mechanisms to fulfill their tax obligations in Guatemala, mainly from the perspective of consumption taxes (i.e., VAT). This is based on the Digital VAT Toolkit for Latin America and the Caribbean, which was developed by the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD), the Inter-American Development Bank (IDB), the Inter-American Center of Tax Administrations (CIAT) and the World Bank Group. However, at the time of preparing this chapter, this platform is under development and in the implementation phase, therefore, taxable persons who perform e-commerce activities are not currently obliged to register.

Registration procedures. The VAT registration process varies for entities that are newly incorporated or are branches of entities incorporated abroad.

Newly incorporated legal entities. Registration with the tax authorities should be performed simultaneously to registration before the Mercantile Registry. The tax ID certificate should be issued along with the certificate of registration. This process should be carried out directly by the notary public engaged for the incorporation of the entity, either in person at the Mercantile Registry or electronically online (https://minegocio.gt/). A tax ID number should be assigned once the new entity has been registered, a process that takes approximately five business days once a complete application has been filed.

Also, newly incorporated legal entities can register personally or electronically before the tax authorities and, to that effect, the following documents are required:
- Personal identification document (documento personal de identificación [DPI]) of the legal representative or passport in case that they are non-established
- Notarized copy of the public deed that contains the articles of incorporation
- Appointment of the legal representative

Branches of entities incorporated abroad. Registration should be carried out directly at one of the agencies authorized by the tax authorities. The following documents are required:
- Document that proves a minimum assigned capital of USD50,000
- Certified copy of the last balance sheet and profit and loss statement of the company
- ID of a legal representative of the company
- Letter signed by the accountant accepting their registration with the tax authorities as the taxable person's accountant
- Document that proves the individual's authority to represent the company
- Notarized copy of the articles of incorporation of the company
- Information regarding the income tax regime election, inventory method, Solidarity Tax election and quarterly payments election, if applicable

Whenever the information in these documents or any information that is part of the VAT registration changes, the taxable person must amend its registration within 30 days.

Deregistration. Taxable persons that will no longer develop commercial activities in Guatemala should, after the legal procedure to liquidate the entity has been completed, deregister for VAT purposes by filing form SAT-2175 and any other required documentation with the tax authorities.

Changes to VAT registration details. Per the Guatemalan Tax Code, Decree 6-91 of the Guatemalan Congress, any modification to the general tax registration details should be notified to the tax authorities in person or electronically, depending on the type of change, within the 30 days following the corresponding modification.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 12%
- Reduced rate: 4%, 5%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate, the zero rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Exports of goods and services

Examples of goods and services taxable at 4%

- A 4% rate applies to taxable persons under the electronic scheme for small taxable persons and special electronic scheme for agricultural taxable persons (for further information, see the subsection Special schemes below)

Examples of goods and services taxable at 5%

- A 5% rate on gross sales applies to small taxable persons and for taxable persons registered under the regime for agricultural contributions (for further information, see the subsection Special schemes below)

Examples of goods and services taxable at 12%

- Sales of vehicles and motorcycles when the transaction and the model of the vehicle or motorcycle corresponds to one of the following:
  - The current year
  - The year prior to the current year
  - The year following the current year

For used vehicles, including motorcycles, a fixed amount of VAT applies ranging from GTQ200 to GTQ1,000 (approx. USD26 to USD129), depending on the year of manufacture. The first registered sale of a real estate property is subject to 12% VAT, but not to a stamp tax; the second and subsequent sales are exempt from VAT but subject to a 3% stamp tax.

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Transfer of assets in a merger
- In-kind contributions of movable property to a legal entity
- In-kind contributions of immovable property if the property had not been previously contributed to a real estate entity
- Supplies by cooperatives to their members
- Low-value retail sales of meat, fish, seafood or shellfish, fresh fruits and vegetables, cereals and basic grains in cantonal and municipal markets with a maximum sale value of GTQ100 (approx. USD13)
- Certain financial services
- Education
- Certain insurance and reinsurance transactions

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Guatemala.

E. Time of supply

The time when the taxable event is considered to be completed and VAT becomes due is called the "tax point." For a supply or exchange of goods, the tax point is the earlier of the issuance of the invoice or the delivery of goods. For a supply of services, the tax point is when the invoice, receipt or other document related to the transaction is issued. If no invoice is issued, the tax point is at the time of payment.

The tax point for insurance and bonds is when the premiums or quotas are received, and for shortages of inventory, it is when the shortage is discovered.

Deposits and prepayments. There are no special time of supply rules in Guatemala for deposits and prepayments. As such, the general time of supply rules apply, and the time of supply is when any payment is made from the purchaser to the supplier.

Continuous supplies of services. For leasing and a continuous supply of services for which the customer pays periodically, the tax point is the due date for each periodic payment.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. For goods sent on approval, the tax point is when the goods are effectively delivered. If goods are returned to the seller after being sold, the seller is required to issue a credit note to reverse the sale operation, provided that the credit note is issued within the time frame permitted by the VAT law (i.e., two months).

Reverse-charge services. The time of supply rules for supplies of reverse-charge services, i.e., the case of special invoices (see the subsection Reverse charge above) is when the invoice is issued by the local acquirer of goods or beneficiary of the services.

Leasing assets. For leased assets, the tax point is the due date for each periodic payment.

Imported goods. The time of supply for imported goods is when the goods clear all customs formalities for importation.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

Input tax is the VAT paid on the purchase of goods and services used to generate other goods and services subject to tax. A taxable person can generally recover input tax, subject to certain rules. Input tax is generally offset against output tax, which is VAT charged or collected on the sale of goods and the rendering of services. To deduct or credit input tax, certain conditions must be met.

The time limit for a taxable person to reclaim input tax in Guatemala is the month when the invoice is received or in the following two months. This is when the input tax should be recognized and reported to the tax authorities for the VAT credits to be recoverable. In this sense, duly recognized VAT credits should be recoverable until their exhaustion.

In general, input tax paid on imports or purchases of goods and services is creditable when directly related to the taxable person's business activity.

A valid tax invoice or customs document must generally accompany a claim for input tax credit. Purchases supported by invoices issued by small taxable persons do not generate input tax credits.

Payments greater than GTQ30,000 (approx. USD3,875) must be made through the banking system or using a deed from a notary public in which the payer and the beneficiary are clearly identified.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on imports or purchases of fixed assets not directly related to the taxable person's business activity.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Items (expenses or purchases) without proper supporting documentation
- Items (expenses or purchases) not registered in the VAT purchases book

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Any item that is related to the taxable person's taxable business activities, which is duly documented with the proper legal documents that comply with local requirements, provided the purchase has been included in the VAT purchases book, the balance of the tax credit has been registered in the accounting books as an account receivable, and the payment in excess of GTQ30,000 (approx. USD3,875) for the purchase has been made through a financial/banking institution.

Partial exemption. Special regulations regarding the treatment of overhead expenses are not provided by the VAT law. However, in cases where a business performs both taxable and exempt activities, input tax may be fully credited against output tax generated by taxable activities. Any remaining credit may be refundable if the legal conditions are met.

Approval from the tax authorities is not required to use the partial exemption standard method in Guatemala. However, the taxable persons should keep an organized record of taxable and exempt activities performed to avoid risk of questioning or inconveniences with such authorities over the compensation of input tax with output tax.

Special methods are not allowed in Guatemala.

Capital goods. In Guatemala, there are no specific provisions regarding the definition of capital goods for indirect tax purposes. However, the VAT law determines that VAT credits generated by the acquisition, import or construction of fixed assets should be recognized and subject to compensation with VAT debits, to the extent that such assets (i.e., capital goods) are duly linked to the process of production or marketing of goods or services of the taxable person.

In this sense, if capital goods will be used for both taxable and exempt activities, VAT credits should be recognized for both activities, and the taxable person should submit VAT refund requests with the tax authorities over any excess VAT credits.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax recoverable in a month exceeds the amount of output tax payable, the taxable person obtains an input tax credit. The credit may be carried forward to offset output tax in subsequent VAT periods.

Qualified exporters may claim a refund of VAT paid on inputs. The Bank of Guatemala (central bank) maintains a registry of qualified exporters.
- To qualify for the registry of exporters, the taxable person must provide the Bank of Guatemala with documents that prove it satisfies one of the following conditions:
- It exports 50% or more of its gross sales.
- It exports less than 50% of its gross sales, but it is not able to fully offset its input tax credit related to its exports against its output tax generated from domestic supplies.

Taxable persons registered as exporters may file a refund request with the Bank of Guatemala within 30 business days following the end of the period for which the refund is claimed. No refunds are granted for amounts of up to GTQ10,000 (approx. USD1,292). For refund requests greater than GTQ10,000, the Bank of Guatemala partially refunds the VAT paid by exporters in the following percentages:
- 75% of refund amounts of up to GTQ500,000 (approx. USD64,600)
- 60% of refund amounts greater than GTQ500,000

The remaining 25% or 40% is carried forward to the future periods, or the exporter may request a refund directly from the tax authorities.

Qualified taxable persons may also request VAT refunds based on an opinion issued by a registered certified public accountant.

A nonqualified exporter may request a 100% VAT refund from the tax authorities directly if the exporter is not able to credit VAT on inputs against VAT on outputs. This method is applied to VAT refunds requested by service exporters.

An "electronic refund regime" entails the presentation of monthly VAT refunds requests for 100% of the accrued VAT credit. The business should comply with the following requirements:
(i) Carries out export activities
(ii) Adheres to the electronic invoice regime (Factura Electrónica en Linea [FEL])
(iii) Transfer accounting information to the tax authorities regarding the 100% of its activities
(iv) Obtains qualification to apply for this regime

Pre-registration costs. Input tax incurred on pre-registration costs in Guatemala is not recoverable.

Bad debts. Output tax accounted for on supplies that do not get paid by the recipient (i.e., bad debts) cannot be recovered in Guatemala.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred on purchases that are used for noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Guatemala.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Input tax incurred by non-established businesses that are not registered for VAT in Guatemala is not recoverable.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A taxable person must generally provide a VAT invoice for all taxable supplies made. VAT invoices, credit notes and debit notes must be authorized by the tax authorities. An invoice is generally necessary to support a claim for an input tax credit. If the nature of the business makes it impractical for a taxable person to issue tax invoices, the tax authorities may authorize the use of cash registers and other computerized systems to issue invoices in which the goods or services acquirer may insert its name and tax ID for tax purposes.

Credit notes. A VAT debit note must be used to increase the VAT chargeable if the value of a supply increases for any reason. A VAT credit note must be used to reduce the VAT charged and claimed on a supply if the value is reduced for any reason (e.g., the granting of a discount, a change in the price or a return of the goods). A debit note or credit note must include the same information as a tax invoice. Credit notes and debit notes only modify VAT charged when issued within the two months following the issuance of the invoice it modifies.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is mandatory in Guatemala, for certain taxable persons.

Scope of electronic invoicing. For B2B, B2C and business-to-government (B2G) supplies, electronic invoicing is mandatory for certain taxable persons in Guatemala.

The tax authorities have enabled an online electronic invoicing regimen (i.e., FEL) that allows the tax authorities to obtain invoicing and VAT information in real time. Taxable persons may be required to adhere to said regime; however, they may also voluntarily apply and implement as desired.

Specifically, the agreement provides the following procedures for taxable persons to use the FEL regime:

- Taxable persons required by the tax authority: Progressively, the tax authority will define the taxable person segments and the deadline for their mandatory incorporation into FEL through the issuance of administrative dispositions, which will be duly notified to the taxable persons. Upon expiration of the deadline established in the administrative provision for such taxable persons, the current authorizations of other resources or forms other than issuance of tax documents will no longer be valid.
- Voluntary incorporation: Taxable persons may voluntarily apply to join the FEL regime using the Virtual Agency (Agencia Virtual), in which case they have six months to comply with the FEL requirements provided in the agreement. Once this period has expired, the authorizations of other resources or forms of issuing tax documents will no longer be valid.

The regulations of the VAT law determine that as of 1 July 2021, the FEL regime will be the only authorized mechanism for the issuance of tax documents to legal entities or individuals who register for the first time as a taxable person, which means that taxable persons duly registered before 1 July 2021 should be already incorporated to the FEL regime on such date. Also, resolutions issued by the tax authorities indicate that taxable persons operating under the previous electronic invoice regime, FACE, should migrate to the FEL regime before 31 December 2020. With effect from 1 July 2022, individuals and legal entities registered in the General VAT Regime must join the FEL. Incorporation of taxpayers to the FEL is mandatory when taxpayers are notified by the tax administration either directly or through the publication of resolutions.

The obligation for small taxpayers to issue electronic invoices came into effect on 2 June 2023. During a meeting with certain commercial sectors and the tax authorities, they agreed that the use of paper invoices will continue as long as taxpayers demonstrate "material inability for electronic invoicing". It was emphasized that this extension is for one year and only applies to small taxpayers that comply with the condition of having material impossibility to issue electronic invoices.

In accordance with Section 30 of the Regulations of the VAT Law, Governmental Agreement Number 5-2013, invoices, special invoices, debit and credit notes, must comply at least with the following requirements, data and characteristics:

- Identification of the type of document
- Series and correlative number of the document
- As applicable to each type of document, according to the legislation in force, the following phrases:
  - It does not generate right to tax credit
  - Direct payment, resolution number and date
  - Subject to quarterly payments
  - Subject to definitive withholding
  - For the special agricultural taxpayer regime, as applicable, the phrases:
    - "With form of payment on gross sales"
    - "With form of payment on profits, not withholding"
  - For the small taxpayer electronic regime and the special agricultural taxpayer electronic regime, the phrase: "Do not withhold" and the number of the resolution of incorporation to the regime. Full name and surname and trade name of the issuing taxpayer, if any, in the case of an individual; corporate name and trade name, in the case of a legal entity
- Tax identification number (Número de Identificación Tributaria [NIT]) of the issuing taxpayer
- Address of the establishment or office where the document is issued
- Date of issuance of the document
- Full name and surname of the acquirer, if an individual; name or company name, if a legal entity
- NIT of the acquirer; if the latter does not have a NIT, the issuer must include the unique identification code (Código Único de Identificación [CUI]) of the personal identification document (DPI) or the identification number of a foreign natural person or foreign legal entity; the words final consumer or the acronym "CF" may be included in documents evidencing sales of goods or rendering of services of less than Q2,500. In cases of force majeure and duly justified by the issuers, upon their request, the tax authorities may authorize that the application of the provisions of this numeral may be carried out progressively, establishing for such purpose the corresponding mechanisms and terms
- Details or description of the sale, service rendered or leases and their respective values
- Discounts granted, if any
- Charges applied in connection with the transaction
- Total price of the transaction, including tax where applicable

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified VAT invoicing is not allowed in Guatemala. As such, full VAT invoices are required.

Self-billing. Self-billing is allowed in Guatemala. Taxable persons that acquire goods or services from local individuals who do not issue an invoice for such transactions are able to issue "special invoices" on behalf of said individuals to document the operations and should withhold the applicable VAT rate.

Special invoices should not be issued when the local individuals are duly registered as Guatemalan taxable persons, nor in transactions of a habitual nature that are performed between individuals. Notwithstanding, an exception exists over the aforementioned prohibition when the issuer of the "special invoice" determines in such document that the seller of goods or services refused to issue the corresponding invoice.

Due to the nature of the operations subject to the issuance of "special invoices," it is not required to perform a written agreement between the seller and the buyer.

Proof of exports. Exports of goods and services are exempt. However, to qualify as exempt, exports must be supported by customs documents that give evidence of the outbound process. Suitable evidence also includes export invoices and bills of lading.

Foreign currency invoices. VAT invoices must be issued either in the domestic currency, which is the Guatemalan quetzal (GTQ) or in US dollars (USD). However, invoices issued in USD must show the exchange rate used on the date of the transaction. The exchange rate to be used is the one that is issued on a daily basis by the Guatemalan Central Bank.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. There are no special invoicing rules for supplies to nontaxable persons in Guatemala. As such, full VAT invoices are required.

Records. In Guatemala, examples of what records must be held for VAT purposes include transactions in the book of sales, book of purchases and other applicable accounting books. Also, taxable persons must file invoices and other tax documents through physical and electronic means (when applicable) to support their operations in case of audits by the tax authorities.

In Guatemala, VAT books and records can be held outside the country. The records must be kept within the country of the tax domicile that is duly registered before the tax authorities or in the offices of the taxable person's accountant, which should also be registered before such authorities.

Record retention period. The Guatemalan Tax Code indicates that the tax authorities have a four-year period to make audits, adjustments and verifications over the operations of all taxable persons, which means they should keep records over such a period of time to be prepared for possible audits by the tax authorities. Furthermore, records should be kept for as long as they are having tax effects even when the four-year period has elapsed.

The Guatemalan Commerce Code also provides that traders/merchants should retain legal correspondence and records for a period of five years.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is allowed in Guatemala. For VAT purposes, the book of purchases and book of sales may be kept and archived physically or electronically through the electronic system of the tax authorities (i.e., AsisteLibros). Also, tax documents (i.e., invoices) could be archived physically or by electronic means when applicable.

Under the Online Electronic Invoice regime (FEL for its Spanish acronym), registered taxable persons will be obliged to use the electronic system for the registration of their accounting books, purchasing and sales books, and other auxiliary records determined by the tax administration for 100% of their operations. However, the authorities are currently working on the mechanisms and regulations to determine the requirements and procedures to keep the electronic accounting, and they will be progressively incorporating taxable persons to such e-accounting scheme.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. VAT returns should be submitted on a monthly basis through Form SAT-2237, using the electronic system of the tax authorities (i.e., Declaraguate) within the month that follows the expiration of each monthly tax period.

VAT generated through special invoices should be reported through Form SAT-2085 within the month that follows the expiration of each tax period.

Periodic payments. VAT due must be paid in full by the end of the month following each tax period. Exceptions to this rule apply for real estate and vehicle supplies, in which case the supply should be documented through a public deed and VAT should be paid in cash or through the means made available to the taxable person by the tax authority within the next 15 days following the date of the transaction.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is mandatory in Guatemala for all taxable persons. Tax forms must be prepared and filed through the electronic system of the tax authorities (Declaraguate) (https://declaraguate.sat.gob.gt/declaraguate-web/). Once tax returns are filed, the payment can be made either through an online banking system tool (i.e., BancaSAT) or physically through authorized banks.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Guatemala.

Special schemes. Small taxable persons. The Guatemalan legislation provides a special regime for "small taxable persons." In this sense, taxable persons with an annual turnover of up to GTQ150,000 (approx. USD19,380) may apply for a simplified "small taxable person regime," in which they pay tax at a rate of 5% based on their gross taxable sales without a right to credit or deduct input tax. Small taxable persons will be subject to VAT withholding when engaging in commercial activities with VAT withholding agents. In all cases where VAT is not withheld, small taxable persons must declare and pay the VAT within the next calendar month. In addition, taxable persons operating under this regime are exempt and shall not declare or pay income tax.

A 4% rate applies to taxable persons under this scheme but for the electronic option. In addition to the lower rate, the taxable person must register a bank account and authorize the tax authorities to automatically debit from such account on the 10th business day of each calendar month the amount equivalent to applying the tax rate of 4% on the total income reported in the immediately preceding month, in accordance with the electronic invoices issued for such purpose.

Agricultural taxable persons. The Guatemalan Congress recently enacted several amendments to the VAT law, through the new Decree 7-2019. The new special regime for agricultural taxable persons and its specific regulations were created. This new regime applies to all taxable persons that develop production and commercialization activities in the agricultural sector and whose annual income does not exceed GTQ3 million within a fiscal year. For cattle breeders the tax rate of 5% is on gross sales; and for traders of cattle a 5% on profits, being in turn relieved from the payment of income tax.

A 4% rate applies to taxable persons under this scheme but for the electronic option. In addition to the lower rate, the taxable person must register a bank account and authorize the tax authorities to automatically debit from such account on the 10th business day of each calendar month the amount equivalent to applying the tax rate of 4% on the total income reported in the immediately preceding month, in accordance with the electronic invoices issued for such purpose.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Guatemala.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in Guatemala.

Correcting errors in previous returns. Errors contained in previous VAT returns must be rectified or amended electronically through the online system of the tax authorities (i.e., Declaraguate) and a fine of GTQ100 (approx. USD13) should apply. Also, any subsequent rectification to the same VAT return should be subject to a fine of GTQ100 (approx. USD13).

Digital tax administration. Electronic invoicing. In Guatemala, the tax authorities have enacted an online electronic invoicing regime (i.e., FEL) through Directorate Agreement 13-2018. The FEL allows the tax authorities to obtain invoicing and VAT information in real time. Taxable persons may be required to adhere to said regime; however, they may also voluntarily apply and implement as desired.

Also, the FEL regime establishes the obligation for registered taxable persons to use the electronic system for the registration of their accounting books, purchasing and sales books, and other auxiliary records determined by the tax administration for 100% of their operations. For further details, see the subsection Electronic invoicing above.

Purchases and sales report. Section 57 "D" of the VAT law determines that taxpayers classified by the tax authorities as special must submit electronically at least every six months a detailed report in chronological form of the purchases and sales made in said six-month period. Said report shall contain, at least, the following requirements:
- NIT of the buyer or seller
- Name of the buyer or seller
- Amount of the purchase or sale stated in the invoices
- Date of the purchases or sales stated in the invoices

To support these regulations, the tax authorities previously implemented the electronic tool (i.e., AsisteLibros).The purpose of which is to carry out the operation and electronic delivery of books of purchases and services acquired, and sales and services rendered. The tool automatically registers invoices issued to local taxpayers and must be used by taxpayers qualified as: large special, medium special and regional special. However, the tool has recently been modified and no longer allows the segmentation or separation of invoices that are considered as belonging or not to such taxpayers.

Regarding this issue, the tax authorities acknowledge that the AsisteLibros tool is still under development and have recognized that several day-to-day scenarios of taxpayers were not considered, such as segmenting invoices that do not correspond to them, for certain reasons. For this reason, the tax authorities have unofficially communicated to some taxpayers that currently it is not relevant or necessary that there is congruence between what is indicated in the tax returns and the report of purchases and sales of AsisteLibros. In this sense, the tax authorities stated that temporarily taxpayers must only comply with submitting such report of purchases and sales through the tool and receive the proof of submission of the corresponding information, to support compliance with this formal obligation.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. A taxable person that fails to register for VAT on a timely basis cannot offset VAT credits generated from purchases that are included in inventory at the time of registration. The tax authorities may impose penalties and interest for late VAT registration.

Penalties for late payment and filings. Nonpayment of VAT results in a penalty equal to 100% of the unpaid amount. If the penalty is paid voluntarily by the date required by the VAT authorities, the penalty is reduced to 50%.

The late filing of VAT returns is subject to a penalty ranging from GTQ50 (approx. USD6.50) per day, up to a maximum of GTQ1,000 (approx. USD129). If the return is filed voluntarily, the late-filing penalty may be reduced to 85% of the original amount.

Penalties for errors. If the tax authorities detect that the taxable person made an error in the determination of its tax liability, they could summon such taxable person to remedy the corresponding mistake by paying the omitted tax plus interest at the maximum rate determined by the Monetary Board. The penalties for late payment should be calculated by applying the amount of tax to be paid, per the 0.0005 factor, per the days of delay. This is the formula used by the tax authorities to determine the factor of tax due. Such penalties are for late payments of VAT and any other errors at the time of reporting.

If the taxable person accepts the calculation error, a 40% discount will apply over interest payments and an 80% discount will apply over the late payment penalty.

The late notification or failure to notify the tax authorities of changes to a taxable person's VAT registration details will be subject to a fine equivalent to GTQ50 (approx. USD6) for each day of delay, with a maximum penalty of GTQ1,500 (approx. USD190). For further details, see the subsection Changes to VAT registration details above.

Penalties for fraud. Tax fraud occurs when information has been altered in a manner that causes the tax authorities to incorrectly compute the amount of tax due. The penalty consists of 100% of the amount of the tax plus imprisonment from one to six years.

The tax fraud penalty may not be imposed together with penalties for late payment.

Personal liability for company officers. For tax purposes, company officers or directors cannot be liable for errors and omissions in VAT declarations and reporting. However, the legal representative, partners and other officers of a company could be subject to criminal implications and penalties for tax fraud if they are duly convicted by judicial authorities.

Statute of limitations. The statute of limitations in Guatemala is four years. This is the period during which the tax authorities may be able to review and audit the tax information and documentation of a taxable person (tax returns, invoices, etc.) and identify errors or payment omissions.

Additionally, there is no time limit regarding voluntary error correction in tax returns. However, fines and penalties may be reduced if the errors are corrected before an inspection or audit process is carried out by the tax authorities. On the contrary, if the tax authorities determine such errors during an inspection or audit process, fines and penalties should be higher as previously provided.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- Deliveries or sales of goods
- Supplies of services or assimilated operations carried out or used in Guinea, even if the taxable person is not located in Guinea
- Importations of goods in Guinea

Effective use and enjoyment. To avoid instances of non-taxation or double taxation, jurisdictions can apply "use and enjoyment" rules that allow a service that is "used and enjoyed" in the jurisdiction to be taxed or prevent a service that is "used and enjoyed" outside the jurisdiction from being taxed. If a service is taxed in the jurisdiction under the "use and enjoyment" provisions, a non-established supplier of the service may be required to register for VAT in every jurisdiction where it has customers that are not taxable persons. In Guinea, no services are subject to the "use and enjoyment" provisions.

Transfer of a going concern. Transfer of going concern rules do not apply in Guinea. As such, VAT applies to all sales of a business or part of a business capable of separate operation including assets.

Transactions between related parties. In Guinea, there are no specific rules that indicate the value for VAT purposes for transactions between related parties. However, Guinean legislation provides that companies are required to maintain documentation to justify the transfer pricing methods used.

C. Who is liable

Individuals or legal entities that usually or occasionally realize taxable operations with an annual turnover equal or superior to Guinean franc (GNF) 1 billion (approx. USD105,000) for the sales of goods and supplies of services are subject to VAT. A taxable person that reaches this threshold must register itself for VAT purposes.

Exemption from registration. In Guinea, the following are exempted from VAT registration:
- Entity or person with a turnover of less than GNF1 billion during the previous year
- Entity or person who, having realized a turnover equal to or greater than GNF1 billion, has recorded a decrease in their GNF1 billion and has recorded a decline in their turnover below this threshold for two consecutive years.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. When companies' turnover does not reach the mandatory registration threshold, companies may, with the authorization of the Head of the Tax Office, place themselves in the scope of VAT if their annual turnover, or that their investments made or estimated for the current fiscal year reach a turnover of GNF500 million.

Group registration. Group VAT registration is not allowed in Guinea.

Fixed establishment. In Guinea there is no legal definition of a fixed establishment for VAT purposes. However, the Guinean tax code specifies the conditions necessary to determine the presence of a permanent establishment (PE) with regard to corporate income tax in Guinea (which also applies for VAT). The presence of a PE, within the framework of the usual exercise of an activity, is characterized by two noncumulative criteria as follows:
- The exercise of its activities through a place of business
- Carrying out transactions in Guinea through a dependent agent

A dependent agent is an agent who acts on behalf of a resident taxable person for tax purposes in another state and who has powers in Guinea that it usually exercises there allowing it to conclude contracts in the name of the taxable person or without having these powers usually operates in Guinea a stock of goods or merchandise on behalf of the taxable person.

Moreover, a set of criteria (beam of indices) makes it possible to qualify the existence of a PE (i.e., fixed installation, exercise of activities, permanence of the installation). So, the law provides that the following may constitute a PE:
- A place of management
- A branch
- An office
- A factory
- A workshop

- A mine, an oil or gas well, a quarry or any other place of extraction of natural resources
- A construction site, an assembly or installation project or supervision activities related to the project, when the construction site, the project or the activities last more than six months
- The provision, by a taxable person, of services, including consultancy services, through employees or personnel engaged by the taxable person for this purpose, when activities of this nature are continuing (for the same project or a related project) in Guinea for a period or periods totaling more than 183 days in any 12-month period commencing or ending in the relevant year.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that has no PE in the territory of Guinea. All the transactions performed in Guinea are subject to VAT, even if the taxable person is not domiciled in Guinea. In this respect, transactions are deemed performed in Guinea with regard to services when they are carried out (performed) or used in Guinea, even if the supplier does not have a PE in Guinea.

As such, a non-established business must register for VAT through a tax representative when it exceeds the registration threshold (see above). The exemption from registration rules also applies for non-established businesses.

Tax representatives. Non-established businesses must appoint a Guinean tax representative. Failing that (meaning if no tax representative is appointed), it is the Guinean or local client that shall be considered as tax representative and shall be liable for the VAT and corresponding penalties.

A tax representative must meet the following requirements:
- Subject to and registered for VAT
- Established in Guinea
- Up to date with their tax obligations
- Duly authorized by the taxable person represented by a written mandate

The sole tax representative must:
- Draw up invoices in the name and on behalf of the foreign company represented
- Indicate on the invoices that it acts as a tax representative
- File VAT returns in the name and on behalf of the taxable person represented
- Complete all other tax formalities of the taxable person represented

In addition, the sole tax representative is jointly and severally liable with the person liable for the payment of VAT. In the absence of the designation of a tax representative, the VAT and the related penalties must be paid by the beneficiary of the taxable transaction.

Reverse charge. For services provided by non-established businesses, VAT is paid through the reverse-charge mechanism. The reverse-charge mechanism is only used if the supplier has no permanent establishment in Guinea.

The nonresident service provider will establish its invoices, VAT excluded, and it will be up to the tax representative or local client to then calculate the corresponding VAT amount, declare and pay it on behalf of the service provider.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Guinea.

Digital economy. Nonresident providers of electronically supplied services in Guinea for business-to-consumer (B2C) supplies are required to register and account for VAT on the supplies in Guinea.

Nonresident providers of electronically supplied services in Guinea for business-to-business (B2B) supplies are not required to register and account for VAT on the supplies in Guinea. Instead, the customer is required to self-account for the VAT due by way of the reverse-charge mechanism (see the Reverse charge subsection above).

There are no other specific e-commerce rules for imported goods in Guinea.

Online marketplaces and platforms. The tax code outlines provisions regarding a regime for services performed via e-commerce platforms. The regime outlines that, when a service is provided via an e-commerce platform, whether or not the provider is established in Guinea, where the service provider is in contact with the customer, whether or not they are a taxable person (i.e., for both B2B and B2C supplies), and the customer is established in Guinea, the platform is deemed to act as both purchaser and seller of the service provided, even if it acts as a transparent intermediary. This means that the platform and service providers are jointly and severally liable for the VAT due on the supply made. The platform is therefore required to register and account for VAT in Guinea. However, where the supplier is not established in Guinea and the platform is established in Guinea, the latter is liable for the VAT on this transaction through the reverse-charge mechanism (see the Reverse charge subsection above).

Registration procedures. The application for the VAT registration should be made by a written request accompanied by a copy of the following documents: The opening balance sheet or copy of its financial statements, company's articles of association, the last three-monthly tax returns and corresponding receipts of payment, the tax registration certificate, the registration certificate with the Trade Register and the proof of the company's location or address. Moreover, it must prove to have realized during the previous or current year a turnover of at least GNF500 million.

Deregistration. Taxable persons must notify to the tax administration the termination of their activities and proceed with the cancellation of their tax registration number in the register of the tax office after compliance of the legal formalities.

Changes to VAT registration details. The taxable person that modifies its registration details (name, address, business activity, etc.) must report it in writing (paper) to the tax administration.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a VAT rate, including the zero-rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 18%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for the zero rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Exports
- International transport of goods and persons from or to foreign countries
- Certain operations involving commercial vessels
- Operations on aircraft used by airlines whose services to or from foreign countries represent at least 80% of the services they operate (i.e., deliveries, repairs, alterations, maintenance, charters and rentals of such aircraft, etc.)

The term "exempt" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to tax and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Sales and imports of stamps
- Operations within the scope of the tax on financial activities

- Operations within the scope of the tax on insurance• Operations relating to the transmission of real properties and tangible personal properties subject to registration fees, except from the operations of the same nature conducted by the real estate merchants of goods or those of leasing
- Sale of used goods
- Transfers of shares, stocks and bonds
- Rental of buildings for residential use excluding, among others, accommodation operations carried out within the hotel sector.
- Sales, imports, prints and compositions of periodical publications printed whatever their names (newspaper or magazine) mainly composed of text relating to news and information of general interest excluding the advertising incomes
- Services or operations of a social, educational, sporting, cultural, philanthropic or religious character delivered by non-lucrative organizations of which the management is voluntary and selfless. However, the operations conducted by these organizations are taxable when they are in a competitive sector
- Certain foodstuffs:
  - Rice
  - Wheat
  - Flour and additives used in its production
  - Bread
  - Nutritious oils
  - Palm oil
  - Non-frozen fish
  - Heavy fuel oil used in boilers for the production of electricity
  - Inputs for the production of fertilizers and the packaging used for their conditioning
  - The social slice of water and electricity consumption charged to households
  - Sales by their authors of original works of art
- Pharmaceutical products
- Fertilizers and pesticides
- Books and school supplies
- Sales of used goods made by the people who have used them for the needs of their exploitation
- Care services provided to persons by members of the medical and paramedical professions approved by the Minister of Health
- Hospitalization and medical care provided by public or private hospitals or similar organizations, provided that such establishments or organizations are approved by the Minister of Health
- Transportation of sick or injured persons, by means of specially equipped vehicles, by professions licensed by the Minister of Health of Health
- Delivery of human organs, blood and milk
- Sale of specialized equipment for medical activities
- School or university teaching services provided by public or private establishments or similar bodies, provided that these establishments or bodies are approved by the Minister of Education
- Agricultural materials and equipment, the list of which is established by joint order of the Ministers of Finance and Agriculture, with the exception of vehicles for transporting people or for mixed use

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Guinea.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point." As a general rule in Guinea, VAT tax point occurs for:

- Goods – at the delivery time for sales and deliveries

- Services and business carried out with the state or local authorities – at the time of payment of the price or installments
- Discount of a negotiable instrument/commercial bill – on the expiry date of the bill

The new general tax code provided details on the liability for VAT for certain categories of transactions, such as the discounting of commercial bills (the tax point is the due date), transfer of receivables (the tax point is the payment of the receivable) and services provided against payment in kind (the tax point is at the time of the chargeable event), etc.

Deposits and prepayments. For advance payments and deposits, the tax point is the date on which the advance payment is received for services.

Continuous supplies of services. There are no special time of supply rules in Guinea for continuous supplies of services. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules in Guinea for supplies of goods sent on approval for sale or return. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

Reverse-charge services. The time of supply for reverse-charge services is at the time of payment.

Leased assets. There are no special time of supply rules in Guinea for supplies of leased assets. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

Imported goods. The time of supply for imported goods is at the time of release for consumption in Guinea.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax incurred in relation to the acquisition of goods and services necessary for the business. In this respect, VAT amounts paid to suppliers (including under the reverse-charge mechanism) are deductible the month following their occurrence and are offset against output tax. So, a taxable person recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax charged on the supplies of goods or services carried out, as well as tax paid on the import of goods. The right to deduct arises when the tax becomes chargeable to the taxable person.

The time limit for a taxable person to reclaim input tax in Guinea is no later than 31 December of the year following the date of the omission. The new tax code states that the taxable person who has forgotten to report the VAT invoiced to it on its return, can regularize the situation on subsequent returns no later than 31 December of the year following that of the omission, provided it provides proof of payment of the invoices in support of its claim.

Nondeductible input tax. The Guinea tax code outlines the detail for what input tax is nondeductible in Guinea. Any of the VAT related to the expenses listed below cannot be recovered for VAT purposes.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Expenditure on housing, accommodation, catering, reception, entertainment, car rentals, passenger transport (except for the expenses incurred in respect of their taxable activity by the professionals in hotels, catering and entertainment)
- Goods transferred without compensation or for fees that are lower than the normal price
- Services relating to goods excluded from the deduction right
- The services of renting vehicles for the transport of people or for mixed use
- The services of transport of persons
- Purchases of petroleum products. However, the VAT borne on petroleum products is deductible up to 90% when the latter are used for the needs of the transactions entitling the taxable person to deduction as fuel by fixed appliances or as manufacturing agents in an industrial process.

Also, VAT on petroleum products imported by authorized distributors and intended for resale in the same state is fully deductible
- The delivery to oneself under certain conditions
- Telephone and internet expenses, with the exception of businesses and companies whose purpose is directly related to telephone and internet services
- The tax charged on vehicles or machine whatever their nature, designed or adapted for the carriage of persons or for mixed uses, as well as the spare parts and accessories of such vehicles and equipment with the exception of:
  – Road vehicles, including also the driver's seat, more than eight seats used by companies exclusively for the carriage of their staff
  – Fixed assets of companies performing vehicle rental or public transport of persons

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Cars intended for business use only (i.e., company cars)
- Office supplies or equipment
- Petroleum products used by fixed appliances such as fuels or processing agents in industrial enterprises (up to 90%)
- Fixed assets of companies performing vehicle rental or public transport of persons
- Imported goods

Partial exemption. Input tax directly related to supplies of goods or services not subject to VAT is not generally recoverable. If a Guinean taxable person makes both exempt and taxable supplies, it may not recover input tax in full. This situation is referred to as "partial exemption." This fraction is determined via a pro rata method according to which VAT is only deductible in the same ratio as the total transactions subject to VAT (whether they are actually taxed or exported) vs. the total turnover realized by the company (composed by taxable and exempt operations).

The deduction percentage is as follows:
- 100% if the ratio is greater than 0.90
- 80% if the ratio is greater than 0.70 or equal to 0.90
- 60% if the ratio is greater than 0.50 or equal to 0.70
- 40% if the ratio is greater than 0.30 or equal to 0.50
- 0% if the ratio is less than 0.30

Approval from the tax authorities is not required to use the partial exemption standard method in Guinea. Special methods are not allowed in Guinea.

Capital goods. Capital goods for VAT purposes are defined under Guinean tax code as follows:
- The goods must be necessary for the exploitation and used exclusively for its needs
- The goods acquired must be allocated to operations subject to VAT (effectively taxed or exempted)

Failing this (if the goods are also used for operations that are outside the scope of VAT), the tax will not be recoverable or deductible. There is no specific time limit provided by the law for input tax recovery.

To monitor input tax recovery claims on capital goods, taxable persons are required to submit at the same time as the single monthly tax return, a VAT deduction summary table, which includes the following items:
- The date and reference of the capital goods and services invoices
- The identification of the suppliers
- The nature of the goods or services provided
- The following amounts: VAT excluded, VAT and VAT included
- And the payment date of the invoices

Refunds. When, for a given tax period, the input tax exceeds the output tax, it results in a VAT credit repayable by the tax authorities. Only certain companies are entitled to a refund of their VAT credit (mining companies, oil companies, exporting companies and all companies subject to the 0% rate)

Pre-registration costs. Input tax incurred on pre-registration costs in Guinea is not recoverable.

Bad debts. There is no specific provision in the Guinean tax code that relates to the write off of bad debts. However, in practice, in the case of deliveries of goods (which the tax point is the time of delivery), some taxable persons regularize the VAT amount declared and keep all the supporting documents justifying that the debt has not been recovered and the corresponding VAT amount has been already paid.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred on purchases that are used for noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Guinea.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Input tax incurred by non-established businesses that are not registered for VAT in Guinea is not recoverable.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. It is a legal requirement for a taxable person to issue a VAT invoice for each sale or supply that they make to a customer. The VAT invoice should be issued in duplicate. The original must be given to the recipient and a copy of the invoice retained by the supplier.

In addition, the invoice must clearly state, among other information, which items are taxed, the tax rate and the amount of tax being charged.

Credit notes. A credit note is sent by the supplier to notify the customer that he has been credited a certain amount due to an error in the original invoice; or decrease the agreed amount of the supply previously agreed. The information given on the credit note is the basis for establishing the adjusted VAT amount on the invoice. It also enables to adjust the figures for VAT that has been billed.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is allowed in Guinea, but not mandatory.

Scope of electronic invoicing. For B2B, B2C and business-to-government (B2G) supplies, electronic invoicing is allowed but not mandatory in Guinea. There is no threshold beyond which taxable persons are required to adopt electronic invoicing in Guinea. The requirements related to electronic invoicing are the same as those for paper invoicing.

There is no formal prohibition of electronic invoicing in Guinea, however, Guinean tax law does not make any specific reference to the implementation rules of electronic invoicing. As such, generally only paper invoices are allowed in Guinea. However, in the event of a tax audit, Guinean tax authorities may exceptionally use electronic invoices (i.e., scanned copies in this instance) when the company carries out a very large number of transactions.

At the time of preparing this chapter, the 2024 Finance Act is expected to provide more clarity on the electronic invoicing rules in Guinea and what supplies it will specifically cover. No further updates have been released.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified VAT invoicing is not allowed in Guinea. As such, full VAT invoices are required.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Guinea.

Proof of exports. VAT is not chargeable on exports of goods or services. To qualify as VAT-free, exports must be supported by evidence that the goods have left Guinea. However, the Guinean Tax Code does not describe the required document information.

Based on the provisions of the customs code, the documents required for exports are copies of contracts, invoices, goods registration books and dispatch slips.

Foreign currency invoices. For the provision of services and the supply of goods on Guinean territory, a currency conversion requirement is in place in accordance with the local exchange regulations under which payments must be only made in the domestic currency, which is the Guinean franc (GNF), at the daily rate of the Guinean Central Bank.

When invoices are linked to transactions with foreign countries, payments in a foreign currency are allowed, subject to bringing proof of such transactions.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. There are no special invoicing rules for supplies to nontaxable persons in Guinea. As such, full VAT invoices are required.

Records. In Guinea, examples of what records must be held for VAT purposes include accounting documents, and the supporting documents (notably, purchase invoices and customs documents) of the operations carried out by the taxable person. There are no specific record-keeping requirements for VAT in Guinea.

In Guinea, VAT books and records must be held within the country. While there are no specific provisions provided by the law for where the records should be held, it is advisable to keep them local in Guinea to address any requests from the local tax authorities.

Record retention period. Records must be kept for a period of 10 years after the year in which the transactions were recorded in the books.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is allowed in Guinea. However, the law does not refer to specific record keeping requirements for VAT for Guinea. However, the law mentions that the data can be archived digitally on the condition of ensuring the tax authorities, for audit purposes, have online access to download and use the stored data.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. VAT is reported on a monthly basis (by the 15th of the month following the transaction) via the single unified tax return (Déclaration Unique des Impôts et Taxes).

Periodic payments. VAT amount due should be paid in local currency (Guinean franc) via bank transfer and the payment proof lodged together with the monthly tax return, i.e., by the 15th of the month following the transaction.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is allowed in Guinea, but not mandatory. The VAT return can be submitted via the e-tax platform. It can also still be submitted in paper through the form "Single unified tax return." For electronic filing, the taxable person must complete the requested information related to the following sections: output tax, input tax, VAT credit of the previous month, third party VAT (output and input) and the net VAT amount payable. Also, the recapitulative statement of the input tax must be joined to the tax return.

Payments on account. Payments on account are generally not required in Guinea, except for certain taxable persons. An advance payment is only required for the supply of goods to the State, local authorities and public institutions. This means that the VAT is due for these supplies at the time of the partial or total collection of the price or the down payments, even if this collection occurs before the realization of the generating event.

Special schemes. The new tax code outlines details on new special regimes relating to traders in secondhand goods, the regime for distance selling of goods imported into Guinea and the regime for the provision of services rendered via electronic commerce platforms. These special schemes are subject to VAT on a case-by-case basis.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Guinea.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in Guinea.

Correcting errors in previous returns. In practice, errors or omissions in declarations from prior periodic filings can be spontaneously corrected on the tax returns of the following months. Corrections should be submitted via the e-tax platform.

Digital tax administration. There are no transactional reporting requirements in Guinea.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. The taxable person must start accounting for VAT the first day of the month following the issuance date of tax registration number. Also, the VAT declaration must be filled within the 15 days of the following month. However, there are no penalties for late filling registration provided by the tax legislation in force.

Penalties for late payment and filings. VAT returns not submitted in time nor VAT payments made on time trigger penalties for late filings and late payment.

Penalties for errors. Inaccuracies or omissions in a VAT return shall result in the application of the following:

- 40% in the case of deliberate failure to comply, where the taxable person could not normally have been unaware of the inaccuracies or omissions of which it is accused
- 80% in case of abuse of rights, but this penalty is reduced to 40% when it is not established that the taxable person was as follows:
  - Had the principal initiative of the act or acts constituting the abuse of law
    Or
  - Was the principal beneficiary of the act or acts constituting the abuse of the law
- 80% in the case of fraudulent maneuvers, where the taxable person intentionally resorts to procedures or actions likely to mislead the tax authorities in order to evade taxes or to obtain unjustified refunds from the State
- 80% in the case of concealment of a portion of the price stipulated in a contract

There are no specific penalties associated with the late notification or failure to notify the tax authorities of changes to a taxable person's VAT registration details. For further details, see the subsection Changes to VAT registration details above.

Penalties for fraud. Notwithstanding the tax penalties and interest on arrears, the offense of tax fraud is punishable by a fine of GNF1 billion and imprisonment for one to three years, to be imposed by the competent court.

The amount of the fine is increased to GNF3 billion- and five years' imprisonment when:

- The fraud has been committed in an organized gang
- The fraud was carried out or facilitated by means of:
  - Accounts opened or contracts taken out with organizations established abroad
  - A false identity or false documents
  - Purchases or sales without an invoice or invoices that do not relate to real transactions
  - A fictitious tax domicile abroad
  - A fictitious act
  - The interposition of a fictitious entity
  - The interposition of a natural or legal person abroad

Personal liability for company officers. Company officers cannot be held personally liable for errors and omissions in VAT declarations and reporting in Guinea.

Statute of limitations. The statute of limitations in Guinea is three years. The tax administration has three years to go back and review the returns to identify the errors. Taxable persons have 15 days to voluntarily correct errors in VAT returns.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the supply of goods and services by a taxable person in Guyana and to the importation of goods and services. The term "taxable supplies" is defined in the VAT Act as a supply of goods or services in Guyana in the course or furtherance of a taxable activity, other than an exempt supply.

Effective use and enjoyment. To avoid instances of non-taxation or double taxation, jurisdictions can apply "use and enjoyment" rules that allow a service that is "used and enjoyed" in the jurisdiction to be taxed or prevent a service that is "used and enjoyed" outside the jurisdiction from being taxed. If a service is taxed in the jurisdiction under the "use and enjoyment" provisions, a non-established supplier of the service may be required to register for VAT in every jurisdiction where it has customers that are not taxable persons. In Guyana, no services are subject to the "use and enjoyment" provisions.

Transfer of a going concern. Normally the sale of the assets of a VAT-registered or VAT-registrable business will be subject to VAT at the standard rate. However, a transfer of a business as a going concern (TOGC) may be zero-rated in Guyana where a notice in writing signed by the transferor and transferee is provided to the Commissioner General within 15 days after the supply takes place and such notice includes the details of the supply.

Transactions between related parties. Where a supply is made by a taxable person for no consideration or for a consideration that is less than the fair market value of the supply and the supplier and the recipient are related persons, the value of the supply for VAT purposes is the fair market value of the supply. This is the consideration in money for which the supply or import or a similar supply or import of goods or services would generally fetch if supplied or imported in similar circumstances at that date in Guyana, being a supply or import freely offered and made between persons who are not related persons. Where the fair market value cannot be determined based on the above, the fair market value is determined in accordance with any method approved by the Commissioner General that provides a sufficiently objective approximation of the consideration in money that could be obtained for that supply or import had the supply or import been offered and made between persons who are not related persons.

C. Who is liable

In Guyana, the VAT law imposes a registration requirement on every person who carries on a taxable activity in Guyana making taxable supplies greater than GYD15 million in a 12-month period.

A person that expects to make taxable supplies greater than GYD15 million at the beginning of any period of 365 calendar days can also apply for VAT registration in Guyana. However, the application must be supported by additional information indicating that the value of the person's taxable supplies will exceed GYD15 million in a 12-month period. Suitable evidence includes incorporation documents, contracts showing evidence that the VAT registration threshold will be met, and invoices issued.

Exemption from registration. Generally, a person that makes only exempt supplies in Guyana is not required to register for VAT. Also, if a person makes or will make taxable supplies during a 12-month that will not exceed GYD15 million, then that business will not be required to be registered.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. A person who makes or intends to make taxable supplies in Guyana may voluntarily register for VAT in Guyana where their taxable turnover is below the VAT registration threshold. However, at the time of preparing this chapter, voluntary registration is not allowed in practice.

Group registration. Group VAT registration is not allowed in Guyana.

Fixed establishment. There is no definition of a fixed establishment in the VAT Act. A nonresident business that carries on a taxable activity would be required to register for VAT purposes if it meets the registration threshold as outlined below.

Non-established businesses. A non-established business is a business that does not have a fixed establishment in Guyana. A non-established business must register for VAT in Guyana where it carries on a taxable activity in Guyana and meets the registration requirements as outlined above (i.e., exceeds the registration threshold). However, to register for VAT, a non-established business must set up an external company or branch in Guyana. A branch of a non-established business is registered in the same manner as a resident taxable person.

Tax representatives. Where a non-established business is registered for VAT in Guyana any person controlling the non-established business entity's affairs in Guyana, including any manager

(e.g., whoever is physically in Guyana who is responsible for the activities of the non-established business' activities in Guyana), is treated as the tax representative in relation to the taxable person. The tax representative is responsible for performing any duties imposed by the VAT Act on the taxable person. The Commissioner General may also declare a person to be agent of a taxable person where the Commissioner General considers it necessary to do so. Where this is done, the agent is deemed to be a representative of the non-established business.

A tax representative can be held responsible where the VAT registrant fails to perform its obligations required under the Act. The Commissioner General will ultimately determine whether to pursue the representative and/or the registrant. Note that there is no provision in the VAT Act stipulating that the appointment of a tax representative is mandatory in Guyana. Rather, the reference in the Act to a tax representative is solely with respect to the fact that the Commissioner General may hold a representative responsible for taxes not recovered from a taxable person, whether resident or nonresident.

Reverse charge. The reverse charge applies to the importation of taxable services if the imported service is used to make exempt supplies or is used for a private or domestic purpose. Where this occurs, the taxable person importing the service is responsible for the payment of the VAT chargeable to the service. Otherwise, the non-established business must register for VAT and charge VAT locally.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Guyana.

Digital economy. Nonresident providers of electronically supplied services for both business-to-business (B2B) and business-to-consumer (B2C) supplies are not required to register and account for VAT in Guyana where such nonresident providers are not carrying on a taxable activity in Guyana. Where this is the case, no VAT is accounted for on the supplies.

The test is whether the nonresident provider is carrying on a taxable activity. The term "taxable activity" is defined as follows: an activity carried on continuously or regularly by a person in Guyana or partly in Guyana, whether or not for profit, that involves or is intended to involve, in whole or in part, the supply of taxable goods or services to any other person for consideration. Therefore, where a nonresident provides services to customers electronically and does so wholly outside Guyana, it is highly unlikely that the entity would be treated as carrying on a taxable activity. Therefore, there would be no need to be VAT registered.

If a nonresident provider has no taxable activity in Guyana the supply would fall outside the scope of VAT and the nonresident provider would not be required to be registered and account for VAT. Note that the reverse-charge mechanism could apply where the purchaser acquires the services for a purpose other than the making of taxable supplies. In such a case, the purchaser could be required to account for VAT related to the supply. However, at the time of preparing this chapter, there is currently no mechanism to monitor and collect this for electronically supplied services and as such, is not applied in practice.

There are no other specific e-commerce rules for imported goods in Guyana.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Guyana.

Registration procedures. Taxable persons are required to register in the prescribed form (by paper) with the Guyana Revenue Authority (GRA). The application must be supported by evidence to show that the value of taxable supplies will exceed GYD15 million in a 12-month period. Such evidence may include incorporation documents, contracts, invoices and other documents as may be required by the GRA.

An applicant will be VAT registered within two to four weeks after the receipt of the application, provided that all the relevant documentation has been provided.

Deregistration. A taxable person who has ceased to carry on taxable activities may apply to the GRA to have their registration canceled. The GRA may refuse to cancel the registration on the grounds that the person will, within a 12-month period, make supplies requiring them to be registered.

A registrant should be deregistered where the registrant ceases to carry on all taxable activities in Guyana.

Changes to VAT registration details. A taxable person is required to notify the tax authorities in writing within 15 days of the occurrence of the following:
- Any change in the name, address, place of business, constitution, or nature of the principal taxable activity or activities of the person
- Any change of address from which, or name in which, any taxable activity is carried on by the taxable person
- Any change in circumstances if the person ceases to operate or closes on a temporary basis

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero-rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 14%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods and services unless a specific measure provides for the zero-rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Exported goods and services
- Medical supplies
- Utilities – supplies of electricity and water for consumption
- Certain poultry and farming supplies (e.g., uncooked birds' eggs; uncooked fresh, chilled or frozen chicken; hatching eggs; baby chicks and live chicks; a supply of poultry feed and ingredients of poultry feed; a supply of packaging material for use in the poultry industry; fertilizers; agrochemicals and pesticides)

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Financial services
- International transport services
- Gasoline
- Residential accommodation
- Certain basic food stuffs (e.g., raw brown sugar, baby formula, cooking oil (vegetable, corn and coconut oil) and fresh fruits (not including apples, grapes, dates, prunes, peaches, plums, strawberries and other assorted berries)

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Guyana.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point." In general, the tax point for goods and services supplied by a taxable person is the earliest of the following events:

- The date on which the goods are delivered or made available, or the performance of services is completed
- The date on which an invoice for the supply is issued by the supplier
- The date on which any consideration for the supply is received

A taxable person must account for VAT in the VAT period in which the tax point occurs, regardless of whether payment is received. A taxable person may recover input tax indicated on the tax invoices received.

Deposits and prepayments. For deposits and prepayments, the tax point occurs when payment is made or an invoice is issued, whichever is earlier. The rule does not vary for refundable or nonrefundable amounts or if the supply does not take place.

Continuous supplies of services. Goods supplied under a rental agreement or services supplied under an agreement that provides for periodic payments are treated as having been successively supplied for successive parts of the period of the agreement. As such, the tax point for each successive supply occurs when a payment becomes due or is received, whichever is earlier.

Where supplies of thermal or electrical energy, heat, gas, refrigeration, air conditioning or water are made or goods or services are supplied directly in the construction, major reconstruction, manufacture or extension of a building or engineering work and the consideration for such supplies are made by installment or periodically, the goods or services are treated as successively supplied for each period to which a payment of goods or services relates. As such the tax point for each successive supply occurs when payment in respect of the supply becomes due, or is received, or any invoice relating only to that payment is issued, whichever is the earliest.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. Where goods are supplied to a person under an agreement whereby the recipient has an option to return the goods to the supplier, the tax point is the earliest of when the goods are delivered or made available to the recipient, the invoice is issued or the payment is received.

Reverse-charge services. There are no special time of supply rules in Guyana for supplies of reverse-charge services. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

Leased assets. Where goods are supplied under an agreement for hire purchase or under a lease with an option to purchase, the tax point is the date of the commencement of the agreement.

Imported goods. VAT on the entry of imported goods becomes due and payable at the time when the goods are entered for the purposes of the Customs Act. The importer is liable to account for the tax and must pay it.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

The VAT paid by a taxable person on goods and services that are acquired for the purpose of making taxable supplies is deductible as input tax. Input tax is offset against output tax, which is charged on making taxable supplies. Input tax credits may be carried forward and offset against any output tax payable in a subsequent tax period.

Invoices must meet the VAT invoicing requirements as set out in the law, to be valid for input tax recovery.

The time limit for a taxable person to reclaim input tax in Guyana is five years. This is from the date the taxable person has the right to apply for the refund.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for taxable or business purposes.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Entertainment
- Fees for membership in recreational clubs
- Passenger vehicles

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to taxable business use)

- Rental of premises used in the business
- Inventory used to make finished goods
- Equipment used in the business
- Professional and other services provided to the business

Partial exemption. If all supplies made by a taxable person during a tax period are taxable supplies (i.e., standard-rated and zero-rated supplies), the input tax incurred in the period is deductible in full. However, if some, but not all, of the supplies made by the person during the tax period are taxable supplies, a partial recovery calculation may be required.

1) All the input tax for the period that is directly related to the making of taxable supplies (regardless of whether the supplies are made during that tax period) is recoverable.
2) None of the input tax for the period that is directly related to the making of exempt supplies (regardless of whether the supplies are made during that tax period) is recoverable.
3) A proportion of the input tax for the period that relates to making both taxable and exempt supplies is recoverable based on the formula specified below. Based on the formula, the recoverable portion is calculated based on the value of taxable supplies made during the period compared with the value of total supplies made during the period.

The formula prescribed is (A*B/C) where A, B and C represent the following:

A = The total amount of input tax payable in respect of supplies and imports received during the period for which a credit allowed, less the input tax related directly to taxable and exempt supplies mentioned under points 1 and 2 above.

B = The total amount of taxable supplies made by the taxable person during the current month of the taxable person.

C = The total amount of all supplies made by the taxable person during the current month of the taxable person.

Nevertheless, note that where exempt supplies made by the taxable person is less than 10% of total supplies, the taxable person may deduct the total amount of input tax on supplies and imports.

If a taxable person makes both taxable and exempt supplies during a tax period, the Commissioner General may determine the amount of input tax allowed for the tax period on such other basis as the Commissioner considers reasonable.

Approval from the tax authorities is not required to use the partial exemption standard method in Guyana. Special methods are not allowed in Guyana.

Capital goods. In Guyana, capital goods are defined as an asset, or a component of an asset, which is of a character subject to an allowance for depreciation or comparable deduction for income tax purposes, and which is used in the course of a taxable activity. In Guyana there are no special input tax recovery rules for capital goods. The normal rules outlined above apply.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax recoverable in a VAT period exceeds the amount of output tax payable for that VAT period, the excess may be carried forward and set off against output tax in a subsequent period. An application for a refund may be made after the excess credit has been carried forward and used as input tax creditable in six consecutive tax periods (i.e., six months). Nevertheless, where at least 50% of the taxable supplies of the taxable person are zero-rated supplies, they may apply for a refund prior to the expiration of the above referenced six-month period. Thereafter, the GRA will ordinarily perform an audit of the claim and refund input tax accordingly, subject to set off against any other outstanding tax liability.

It should be noted that a refund claim must be made within five years after the date the taxable person has the right to apply for the refund.

Pre-registration costs. A credit for input tax incurred prior to registering for VAT is allowed in respect of 1) any taxable supplies of goods, including capital goods, made to the person and 2) any import of goods, including capital goods, by the person. The recovery of input tax incurred on pre-registration costs may only be allowed subject to the following requirements:

- The supply or import must not have occurred more than three months prior to the date the registration takes effect
- The goods are on hand at the date the registration takes effect
- The taxable person has obtained a tax invoice or customs document in relation to the supply or import
- The taxable person is holding the document at the time the VAT return is lodged in respect to the supply or import

Bad debts. Output tax accounted for on supplies that do not get paid by the recipient (i.e., bad debts) cannot be recovered in Guyana.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred on purchases that are used for noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Guyana.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Input tax incurred by non-established businesses that are not registered for VAT in Guyana is not recoverable.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A taxable person must generally provide a tax invoice for all taxable supplies made, including exports. A tax invoice is necessary to support a claim for input tax recovery.

Credit notes. A credit note may be used to reduce the VAT charged and reclaimed on a supply of goods and services. A credit note generally includes the same information as a tax invoice.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is allowed in Guyana, but not mandatory.

Scope of electronic invoicing. For B2B, B2C and business-to-government (B2G) supplies, electronic invoicing is allowed but not mandatory in Guyana. There is no threshold beyond which taxable persons are required to adopt electronic invoicing in Guyana. The issuing of an electronic invoice is not limited to a particular category of taxable persons nor a particular category of supplies.

There are no provisions in the VAT Act for electronic invoicing in Guyana. However, in practice electronic invoicing can be used if an electronic invoice meets the same requirements as the standard paper invoice and can be transposed into a format required by the GRA during its audit process.

Simplified VAT invoices. A sales invoice can be issued instead of a tax invoice if the total supply is less than GYD10,000 and is in cash. The sales invoice should contain the name, address and registration number of the supplier, a description sufficient to identify the good supplied or services rendered, the date of the invoice and the consideration inclusive of VAT.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Guyana.

Proof of exports. VAT is charged at the zero-rate (0%) on supplies of exported goods. However, to qualify as zero-rated, exports must be supported by evidence that the goods have left Guyana. Such evidence includes:

- The commercial invoice, which includes a description of the goods exported, quantum and price
- Seaway bill/airway bill as applicable
- Completed Customs Declaration Form, signed and stamped by Customs authorities

Foreign currency invoices. In certain circumstances, tax invoices may be issued in a foreign currency. However, in accounting for the tax payable, the taxable person must account for the tax in the domestic currency, which is the Guyana dollar (GYD). In converting the amounts, the exchange rate used must be the rate applying between the currency and the Guyana dollar at the time the amount is taken into account under the VAT Act.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. There are no special invoicing rules for supplies to nontaxable persons in Guyana. As such, full VAT invoices are required.

Records. In Guyana, examples of what records must be held for VAT purposes include original tax invoices, tax credit notes and customs documentation.

Every taxable person is required to maintain in Guyana such books and records as are appropriate to enable the GRA to ascertain the liability of that taxable person to tax.

In Guyana, VAT books and records must be held within the country.

Record retention period. Books and records are to be kept for seven years after the end of the VAT period to which they relate.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is not allowed in Guyana. Archiving must be made in paper form only.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. The VAT period in Guyana is the calendar month. The VAT return must be filed by the 21st day of the following month after the end of the tax period. This deadline applies whether or not tax is payable in respect of that period. The deadline also applies to import declarations, which must be aggregated and filed for the period and attached with the respective VAT return.

VAT returns are generally submitted in hard copy (via a drop box system) or electronically where the business is registered for the GRA's online services. A "drop box system" is where the GRA maintains a physical box at its location to facilitate the filing of VAT returns. Otherwise, returns should be filed online.

Periodic payments. Any VAT due for the VAT period must be remitted by the same date as the return deadline, i.e., within 15 business days after the end of the tax period.

The tax payable on imports of services by the purchasers of such services during the period must be aggregated and paid on or before the 21st of the following month.

Payment of the VAT to the GRA can be made by bank/wire transfer, check or cash.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is allowed in Guyana, but not mandatory. VAT returns can be submitted electronically online (https://eservices.gra.gov.gy/Home) once the taxable person is registered for the GRA's online services.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Guyana.

Special schemes. No special schemes are available in Guyana.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Guyana.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in Guyana.

Correcting errors in previous returns. If a taxable person discovers an error or an omission from a previous VAT return, the taxable person is required to file an amended return. The amended VAT return must be submitted manually (i.e., by paper) and not electronically. The reasons for the amendments may be requested by the GRA.

Digital tax administration. There are no transactional reporting requirements in Guyana.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. A taxable person who fails to apply for registration may be liable to a civil penalty equal to double the amount of output tax payable from the time the person is required to apply for registration until the person files an application for registration with the GRA.

A person who knowingly or recklessly fails to apply for VAT registration commits an offense and is liable on conviction to a criminal penalty not exceeding GYD25,000 and imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years. Note that the VAT Act provides that the civil penalties (as outlined above) should first be utilized before resort is had to provisions for criminal offenses.

Penalties for late payment and filings. A taxable person who fails to file a VAT return within the stipulated deadline is liable for a penalty which is the greater of GYD1,000 per day for each day or part thereof that the return remains outstanding or an amount equal to 10% of the tax payable for the period of such return, for each month or part thereof that the return remains outstanding.

The penalty shall not exceed the amount of tax payable in respect of the return and no penalty is payable where the person has been convicted of an offense of knowingly or recklessly failing to lodge a return and is liable on conviction to a fine not exceeding GYD15,000.

The penalty for late payment of tax payable on importation of goods or services is an amount equal to the greater of GYD1,000 per day or part thereof that the tax remains outstanding or an amount equal to 10% of the tax outstanding for each month or part thereof that the tax remains outstanding. The penalty must not exceed the amount of unpaid tax.

Note that interest is chargeable for failure to pay VAT by the due date at the rate of 2% simple interest for each month or part of a month that the payment due remains unpaid.

Penalties for errors. There are no specific penalties in Guyana for errors. However, where the taxable person decides to correct the error, an amended return can be prepared and submitted to the GRA.

Failure to notify, or late notification to the tax authorities of changes to a taxable person's VAT registration details could result in a fine not exceeding GYD50,000 and imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years. A failure to notify for any other reason may give rise to a fine not exceeding GYD25,000. For further details, see the subsection Changes to VAT registration details above.

Penalties for fraud. A person who knowingly or recklessly makes a statement to a taxation officer that is false and misleading in a material particular or omits any matter from a statement that may be misleading to the tax officer, and the tax properly payable by the person exceeds the tax that would be payable if the person were assessed on the basis that the statement is true, the person is liable for a penalty equal to an amount determined by the Commissioner. Nevertheless, this penalty is not payable where the person is convicted of an offense for the same act or omission so as to have been liable to a fine of GYD15,000 and to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years.

A person who knowingly and recklessly uses a VAT registration number of another person on a return, notices or other documents prescribed for the purpose of the VAT Act is guilty of an offense and is liable on conviction to a fine not exceeding GYD50,000 and imprisonment not exceeding two years.

A person who knowingly or recklessly makes a false claim for a refund commits an offense and is liable on conviction to a fine not exceeding GYD50,000 and imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months.

A person who obstructs a taxation officer in the performance of the taxation officer's duties commits an offense and is liable on conviction to a fine not exceeding GYD15,000 and imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years.

Personal liability for company officers. Where an offense under the VAT Act is committed by a company, every person who at the time of the commission of the offense was a representative officer, director, general manager, secretary, or other similar officer of the company or was acting or purporting to act in such capacity is deemed to have committed the offense unless they prove that the offense was committed without their consent or connivance and that they exercised all such diligence to prevent the commission of the offense.

A person aiding and abetting the commission of an offense is also guilty of that offense and is liable to the same penalties as the person committing the offense.

Statute of limitations. The statute of limitations in Guyana is five years. However, an assessment can be made at any time by the GRA where the Commissioner General is not satisfied with a VAT return filed by a taxable person and has reasons to believe that such default was due to fraud, or gross or willful neglect committed by or on behalf of the person who furnished the return or import declaration. Any other assessment on the basis of the GRA not being satisfied with a VAT return filed must be made within five years after the date the return or import declaration was furnished.

An assessment may be made at any time by the Commissioner General where:
- There has been a failure to lodge a return or import declaration
- The Commissioner has reason to believe that the person will become liable for the payment of an amount of tax but is unlikely to pay such amount
- A person makes supplies of goods and services without being a taxable person or the person charges VAT at the rate of 14% when not qualified to do so
- The Commissioner is satisfied that the taxable person entered into an arrangement and has obtained a tax benefit in a manner that constitutes a misuse of the provisions of the VAT Act

B. Scope of the tax

ST applies to the following transactions:
- The supply of taxable goods or services made in Honduras by a taxable person
- Self-consumption
- The importation of goods or services from outside Honduras, regardless of the status of the importer, with the exception of exempt goods or services and taxable persons using a special tax regime

Effective use and enjoyment. To avoid instances of non-taxation or double taxation, jurisdictions can apply "use and enjoyment" rules that allow a service that is "used and enjoyed" in the jurisdiction to be taxed or prevent a service that is "used and enjoyed" outside the jurisdiction from being taxed. If a service is taxed in the jurisdiction under the "use and enjoyment" provisions, a non-established supplier of the service may be required to register for ST in every jurisdiction where it has customers that are not taxable persons. In Honduras, no services are subject to the "use and enjoyment" provisions.

Transfer of a going concern. Normally the sale of the assets of a ST-registered or ST-registrable business will be subject to ST at the appropriate rate. However, a transfer of a business as a going concern (TOGC) may be outside the scope of the tax under certain conditions. A TOGC is the sale of a business or part of a business capable of separate operation including assets. Where the sale meets the conditions, the supply is treated as outside the scope of ST. In Honduras, a TOGC is treated as outside the scope of ST, which includes the sale of a mercantile establishment and the sale of the assets of the mercantile establishment. The sale of the mercantile establishment would be subject to the real estate tradition tax, a rate which is 1.5% on the value of the transaction. However, in the event of a transfer of inventory, the transaction may be subject to sales tax at a rate of 15% of the transaction value.

Transactions between related parties. In Honduras, there are no specific rules that indicate the value for ST purposes for transactions between related parties. However, under local law, transfer pricing rules are applicable in Honduras. The provisions established in the transfer pricing law and its regulations follow in general terms the principles of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) and are applicable to national or transnational transactions carried out between related entities.

C. Who is liable

A taxable person for ST purposes is any entity or individual that supplies taxable goods or services in Honduras in the ordinary course of a trade or business. Taxable persons that deal primarily with final consumers may be designated as withholding agents for ST. All businesses must register as taxable persons; no separate registry for ST taxable persons exists. The national tax registry number (i.e., Registro Tributario Nacional [RTN]) is used for ST purposes.

Exemption from registration. The ST law in Honduras does not contain any provision for exemption from registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. The ST law in Honduras does not contain any provision for voluntary ST registration. However, a simplified sales tax regime is established for natural or legal persons that have a single commercial establishment and whose taxable sales do not exceed HNL250,000 per year; they will not be responsible for the collection of the ST, remaining only obliged to file an annual sales return no later than 31 January of the following fiscal year. Further details can be found under the Special schemes subsection below.

Group registration. Group ST registration is not allowed in Honduras.

Fixed establishment. In Honduras, there is no legal definition of a fixed establishment for ST purposes. However, a permanent establishment (PE) definition was included in the transfer pricing regulations issued in 2014 and it was supplemented in September 2015, which also applies to ST. A PE is a fixed place of business where an individual or an entity, resident or domiciled in another country, engages in business activities within Honduras. Note that further to the recent modification of the PE rule, a fixed place of business should be understood as:

- Any place of management of a nonresident
- Branches, agencies or offices acting on behalf of a nonresident
- Factories, workshops, immovable property or other similar installations
- Mines, mineral deposits, quarries, forests, factories, or any other center of exploitation or extraction of natural resources

- Warehouses for domestic trade and not only for shows and exhibitions
- Offices to provide financial, technical or any other kind of advice to develop projects in connection with agreements or contracts performed within or outside Honduras
- Offices to provide services used by people that work on public performances or events

Furthermore, a PE is deemed to exist where a person or an entity is acting on behalf of the nonresident, or habitually carries out a business activity in Honduras, and such person or entity is not acting within the framework of its ordinary trade or business in any of the following circumstances:

- It has the authority to conclude contracts on behalf of the nonresident or to legally bind it
- Activities linked through a contract to carry out business activities on behalf of a nonresident
- It pays on behalf of a nonresident the leasing of premises, services or expenses connected with the performance of a business activity

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that has no fixed establishment in Honduras. A non-established entity is required to register as a taxable person if it engages in business activities within Honduras. Foreign taxable persons must fill out and sign the Return of Registration, Start of Activities and Update the National Tax Registry (Form SAR-410-PJ). They must also complete the National Taxpayer Registration "Annex A Professional Relations" Form SAR-410-PJ-A (including the telephone number and email of the legal representative which are mandatory).

In addition, the following documents are also required to be submitted to register in Honduras:

- Fill out and sign the Return of Registration, Start of Activities and Updating of the National Tax Registry, "An-nex B Professional Relations," Form SAR-410-PJ-B (it is mandatory to include telephone number and e-mail of all members)
- Document certifying the creation of the company in Honduras, duly registered in the Mercantile Registry (original and photocopy)
- National Taxpayer Registration "Annex A Professional Relations," Form SAR-410-PJ-A (telephone number and e-mail of the legal representative are mandatory)
- Fill out and sign the Return of Registration, Start of Activities and Updating of the National Tax Registry, "Annex B Professional Relations," Form SAR-410-PJ-B (it is mandatory to include telephone number and e-mail of all members)
- Document certifying the creation of the company in Honduras, duly registered in the Mercantile Registry (original and photocopy)
- National Identification Document (Documento Nacional de Identidad [DNI]), passport or residence card of the legal representative and/or other subsidiary of the administration, which must be previously registered in the National Tax Registry (photocopy)
- Document proving the exact address (original and photocopy):
  - In case of own assets: (i) receipt of a public service, (ii) receipt of subscription of private services (e.g., Internet, TV, phone)
  - In case of lease: rental or commercial lease agreement

In case it is requested by a procedural representative or legal proxy, it must accompany the original and photocopy of the following:

- Power of attorney duly authenticated indicating whether it has the following faculties:
  - If it has the authority to carry out the procedure
  - If it has the authority to sign
  - If it has authority only to file and not to sign, it must submit the Form SAR-410 signed by the taxable person
- DNI for Hondurans
- Passport or resident card for foreigners

Tax representatives. Non-established businesses must fill out and sign the Return of Registration and Updating to the National Tax Registry (Form SAR-410-PJ) and include a special power of attorney granted to a legal representative in Honduras, its DNI or passport or resident card for foreigners when registering in the National Tax Registry.

Reverse charge. There is no reverse charge applicable for importation of services in Honduras. A non-established entity is required to register as a taxable person if it engages in business activities within Honduras.

Domestic reverse charge. A domestic reverse charge is applicable for certain transportation services. Additionally, in the case of large taxable persons, they should act as withholding agents for ST purposes when the following payments are made: freight transport; cleaning and fumigation services; printing services; research services; security services; and the rental of offices, machinery and equipment.

Digital economy. There are no specific rules regarding the taxation of the digital economy for ST purposes. However, generally taxable events are treated the same whether or not they are transacted by digital means. The normal ST registration rules apply for such supplies by non-established businesses.

Nonresident providers of electronically supplied services for business-to-consumer (B2C) supplies will not be required to register and account for ST in Honduras. No ST is accounted for on the supplies.

Nonresident providers of electronically supplied services for business-to-business (B2B) supplies will be required to register an account for ST in Honduras.

There are no other specific e-commerce rules for imported goods in Honduras.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Honduras.

Registration procedures. Entities or individuals that are subject to any type of tax must register as taxable persons using Form SAR-410. This form must contain the following information: complete name of taxable person, company address, date of incorporation, company registration number, legal representative tax ID, shareholders' names and tax IDs, company's main business activity, expected operating start date, company's year-end closing date, tax obligations and withholding agents, registry on a special scheme, tax exemptions and its current resolution.

Taxable persons must also notify the tax authority of the use of printed invoices or receipts.

Deregistration. For ST purposes: The taxable person must present a written notification (it must contain the statement where the reasons and the fiscal period from which the cancellation of the obligation is notified, as well as the file number where the non-use of tax documents was notified, if applicable). The taxable person must also submit a copy of the last five tax documents used, and the two subsequent ones not used, from the range of documents authorized in the last application. The written notification must be accompanied by supporting documentation (e.g., lease contracts, deed or purchase contract, change of economic activity) if applicable. In addition, the taxable person must provide proof of data update from the National Tax Registry. Finally, the taxable person must present an official receipt of payment for HNL200.

Changes to ST registration details. A taxable person must notify the tax authorities of any change that may result in a modification of its tax liability (e.g., changes to the company's name, address, company's main business activity or whether the company is eligible for tax exemptions).

Such notifications can be made online (on the SAR website, by clicking on the "RTN Update Request" option or by paper (or personally at the tax authorities' offices by filing Form SAR-410-PJ). Such notifications must be made within 10 days of the change taking place.

In addition, the tax administration may exercise its powers of data verification in compliance with the formal obligations of the tax obligors. The data update service in the National Tax Registry through the SAR website allows the tax obligors or representatives to make the pertinent modifications to comply with their formal tax obligation of always keeping their data updated.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of ST.

The ST rates are:
- Standard rate: 15%
- Special rate: 18%

The standard rate of ST applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for a special rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 18%

- Alcoholic beverages
- Cigarettes
- Domestic and international air transportation tickets in executive class, first class, business class or similar standards

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not subject to ST and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Goods that form part of the essential items of popular use
- Pharmaceutical products for human use
- Calcium hypochlorite, sodium hypochlorite and chlorine
- Raw materials and tools for agricultural and agro-industrial production; major and minor poultry species and fish, herbicides, insecticides, pesticides, rodenticides and other anti-rodents, live animals; means of animal reproduction; seed and vegetative material for the sowing and sexual and asexual spreading; raw material for the elaboration of balanced food in its final presentation, except that destined for pets
- Medical services
- Personal insurance and reinsurance
- Gasoline, diesel, bunker "C," kerosene, LPG gas, Av-jet, crude oil or reconstituted oil
- Books, newspapers, scientific, technical and cultural magazines
- Bovine leather and skins destined for small industry and handicraft use
- Electric energy services except for consumption exceeding seven hundred and fifty kilowatts/hour
- Education services
- Passenger land transportation services
- Banking and financial services

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Honduras.

E. Time of supply

The time when ST becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "taxable event."

For the supply of goods, the time of supply is on the date of issuance of the invoice and, in the absence of this, at the time of delivery of the goods. For a supply of services, the time of the supply is the issuance of the invoice or the rendering of services or the payment or credit on account, depending on which occurs first.

Deposits and prepayments. There are no special time of supply rules in Honduras for deposits and prepayments. As such, the general time of supply rules apply, and the taxable event occurs at the issuance of the invoice, the delivery of the goods, the rendering of the service or the payment or credit on account, depending on which occurs first.

Continuous supplies of services. There are no special time of supply rules in Honduras for continuous supplies of services. As such, the general time of supply rules apply, and the taxable event is the issuance of the invoice or the date of rendering of services or the payment or credit on account, depending on which occurs first.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. The taxable event for goods sent on approval or "for sale or return" should be when they are actually sold. If the goods are not sold or returned, ST should not be due.

Reverse-charge services. The reverse charge is not applicable in Honduras, and as such there are no special time of supply rules.

Leased assets. There are no special time of supply rules in Honduras for supplies of leased assets. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above), and the tax point is the earlier of the issuance of the invoice or the rendering of services or the payment or credit on account, depending on which occurs first.

Imported goods. The time of supply for imported goods is at the time of nationalization of the asset (i.e., when the goods clear all customs formalities for importation) or settlement and payment of the corresponding policy For the importation of services, the time of supply is the earlier of the issuance of the invoice or the rendering of services or the payment or credit on account, depending on which occurs first.

F. Recovery of ST by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax, which is ST charged on goods and services supplied that are used to generate taxable income. Input tax is generally recovered by a deduction from output tax, which is ST charged on supplies made. Input tax may be deducted in the month in which the invoice is received or in the following three months.

Input tax includes ST charged on goods and services supplied in Honduras, ST paid on imports of goods and reverse-charge ST on domestic self-consumption of services. The input tax credit is available only for goods and services acquired to generate income and for the purchase of machinery and equipment.000

A valid tax invoice or customs document must generally accompany a claim for an input tax credit.

Input tax credits cannot be transferred in any case, except in the case of a merger or absorption of companies when the new or surviving company continues the line of business or activity of the original ones. The time limit for a taxable person to reclaim input tax in Honduras is three months.

Nondeductible input tax. No deduction is allowed on input tax charged on goods self-consumed or services rendered for the taxable person's own benefit. Also, the deduction is not allowed when the purchases are not properly documented with the corresponding invoices or receipts that comply with the format requirements established in the Billing Regime and its amendments.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- ST paid on items or services for personal consumption
- ST paid on gifts or presents

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- ST paid on purchases of goods or fixed assets to produce sales subject to ST
- ST paid for services needed to produce goods or other services subject to ST and repair services

Partial exemption. Proportionality rules are applicable according to the Honduran legislation. In this sense, when individuals and entities sell both goods or services exempt and subject to ST, the ST paid in the acquisition of goods and services directly associated with the subject activity should give rise to the right of input tax. In the cases that the acquisition of goods and services cannot be directly linked only to a subject activity from the taxable person, it should give right to input tax in the corresponding percentage of the subject activity, for its part, the credit related to exempt operations will constitute a cost or expense.

Approval from the tax authorities is not required to calculate the input tax deduction credit in Honduras. The guidelines stipulated in the sales tax law must be followed to calculate the tax credit. Special methods of calculation are not allowed in Honduras.

Capital goods. The input tax incurred on the acquisition of a capital good should give rise to the right of input tax, as long as it is associated to an activity subject to ST for the taxable person. If the capital good is used for both subject and exempt activities, the taxable person should have the right of input tax in the percentage correspondent to subject activities. The Honduran legislation does not establish a definition of capital goods. If the ST paid on the acquisition of the capital good is used as input tax, such amount should not be included as part of the cost of the asset for depreciation.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax recoverable in a month exceeds the amount of output tax payable, the taxable person obtains an input tax credit. It should be noted that the right to request a transfer or refund is time-barred. The right to claim the tax credit expires in five years, pursuant to the Section 144 from the Tax Code, therefore the credit may be carried forward to offset output tax in subsequent ST periods, when claimed to be refunded.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax incurred on pre-registration costs in Honduras is not recoverable.

Bad debts. Output tax accounted for on supplies that do not get paid by the recipient (i.e., bad debts) cannot be recovered in Honduras.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred on purchases that are used for noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Honduras.

G. Recovery of ST by non-established businesses

Input tax incurred by non-established businesses that are not registered for ST in Honduras is not recoverable. However, diplomatic consular delegations, international organizations and agencies are entitled to reimbursement for ST paid in Honduras. Depending on the claimant's status, the claimant may request a refund of the ST or exercise the right to offset the ST credit by making subsequent purchases subject to ST.

H. Invoicing

ST invoices. Taxable persons who transfer goods and/or provide services of any nature are obliged to issue a ST invoice. An invoice is generally necessary to support a claim for input tax credit.

In the event that invoices cannot be issued, the taxable person may use other tax receipts duly authorized by the tax authorities.

The Honduran invoicing regulations establish that the taxable persons who are interested in printing authorized ST invoices will be able to do so in two methods:
- Printing through printing houses duly registered at the Tax Registry of Printers
- Self-printing through cash registers or computer systems

Self-printed invoices or receipts include a barcode that contains graphic representation of the information contained in the invoice or receipts and/or supplementary documents.

It is important to note that invoices must comply with the requirements established in the Billing Regime to allow the input tax incurred to be deductible.

Credit notes. A credit note can be used to support an accounting adjustment, cancel transactions, accept returns and grant discounts made after the issuance of the corresponding ST invoice (e.g., the granting of a discount or bonus, a change in price or the return of the goods). A credit note must include the same information as the invoice to be modified.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is allowed in Honduras, but not mandatory.

Scope of electronic invoicing. For B2B, B2C and business-to-government (B2G) supplies, electronic invoicing is allowed but not mandatory in Honduras. There is no threshold beyond which taxable persons are required to adopt electronic invoicing in Honduras. The requirements related to electronic invoicing are the same as those for paper invoicing. While electronic invoicing is allowed in Honduras, in practice it is not used.

Simplified ST invoices. Simplified ST invoicing is not allowed in Honduras. As such, full ST invoices are required.

Self-billing. Self-billing is allowed in Honduras. It can only be used for costs and expenses incurred for the purchase of goods and/or rendering of services of unskilled labor and may not be used to support a ST credit. The total amount of the transactions supported by the purchase receipt may not exceed 5% of the total operating expenses deductible from the gross taxable income, excluding financial expenses.

Proof of exports. ST does not apply on supplies of exported goods. However, to qualify as ST-free, exports must be supported by customs documents that prove the goods have left Honduras. Suitable evidence includes invoices and bills of lading.

Foreign currency invoices. ST invoices are generally issued in the domestic currency, which is the Honduran lempira (HNL). However, a taxable person can issue invoices with another currency denomination, but to do so it must indicate the exchange rate in effect on the date of issuance.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. There are no special rules for invoices issued for supplies made by taxable persons to private consumers. Full ST invoices are required to be issued.

Records. In Honduras, examples of what records must be held for ST purposes include accounting books, invoices or equivalent receipts as supporting documents for the activities carried out and supporting documents authorized by the tax authorities.

In Honduras, ST books and records must be held outside of the country. However, there is no provision in the Honduras ST law outlining where records should be held. In practice, copies of records can be held outside of Honduras. However, note that records must be available to be provided to the tax authorities upon request during a tax audit, in a timely manner.

Record retention period. The records and accounting information should be kept for five years by the taxable person that corresponds to the statute of limitations in Honduras.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is allowed in Honduras. It is not mandatory, whereas physical archiving is mandatory.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. ST returns are submitted monthly by the 10th day of the month following the end of the return period. Taxable persons included in the simplified sales tax regime (see further details below in the Special schemes subsection) are not required to file monthly returns, but instead are required to file an annual ST return by 31 January of the following fiscal year.

Periodic payments. Payment in full is due the same date as the return submission deadline (by the 10th day of the month following the end of the return period). Payment must be made in Honduran lempira (HNL). Payments can be made by Banco de Crédito y Securitización S.A. (BACS), check, cash or online transfer.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is allowed in Honduras, but not mandatory.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Honduras.

Special schemes. Simplified sales tax regime. This scheme is for natural or legal taxable persons with a single commercial establishment and taxable turnover that does not exceed HNL250,000 per year (approx. USD10,094). Users will not be liable for ST collection and are only obliged to file an Annual Sales Return no later than 31 January of the following fiscal year.

Secondhand goods. Taxable persons who sell used goods should only pay taxes upon importation and not ST. There are special taxes on certain secondhand goods, including tires, clinical waste and vehicles.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Honduras.

Supplementary filings. Monthly purchases sales tax return. Taxable persons that file monthly ST returns must also report purchases and imports (taxable or exempt) through a separately monthly purchases' sales tax return (Form SAR 527).

Taxable persons subject to this reporting obligation are those categorized (as defined in the official gazette) as medium and large-sized taxable persons, including those:
- Operating under special tax regimes
- Carrying out ST exempt business transactions; the return must be filed through the tax authorities' DET Live web-based platform during the first 20 days of each month

Taxable persons are required to separate and identify purchases that generate sales tax credits from those considered as part of the company's costs and expenses.

Monthly withholding return. All taxable persons that withhold taxes must file the monthly withholding return that covers ST in addition to payroll taxes, local professional fees and any others withheld. The Form SAR-547 (Declaración Jurada Mensual de Retenciones), the monthly withholding return, is also due to be submitted by the 10th day of the month following the end of the return period.

Correcting errors in previous returns. In case of an error in a previous return (for example, when the amount of tax to be paid was not correctly stated), a rectifying return must be submitted. This can be filed online (via the Virtual Office system). There is no requirement to submit a letter to the tax authorities outlining the errors. Depending on the corrective return, further payment may be required to be made at the same time or a separate request for additional input tax credit. The law does not specify any deadline for the taxable person to file the corrective return; however, in practice it would be advisable to do so as soon as possible. Penalties may be imposed if such errors are noted during a tax audit and were not corrected by the taxable person, resulting in a request for an adjustment by the tax authorities.

Digital tax administration. There are no transactional reporting requirements in Honduras.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. A taxable person that fails to register before the tax authorities on a timely basis is subject to penalties. Penalties are computed based on a taxable person's gross income and generally range from 10% of a minimum wage to 10 times a minimum wage.

Penalties for late payment and filings. The penalty assessed for the late submission of a ST return is 1% if filed within five days after the filing date. If the tax liability is not paid within these five days, a 2% monthly penalty applies up to a maximum of 24%.

The surcharge assessed for the late filing of an ST return is 5% per month, up to 60% if the tax liability is not paid by the 10th day of the month following the end of the return period.

Penalties for errors. The following infractions may be subject to the temporary closure of the business establishment:

- Failure to issue invoices (or other valid tax documents) when required or issuing tax documents that don't comply with the legal requirements
- If an issued tax document is not duly recorded in the taxable person's accounting registries
- If the taxable person's records are not presented to the tax or customs authorities when required

If a taxable person incurs in one of the abovementioned infractions for the first time, a fine is imposed based on its annual gross income. In case of recurrence, the fine will be increased by 50%. Furthermore, the recurrence of the same infraction may lead the tax authorities to proceed with a temporary closure of the business establishment, which will last until the situation has been rectified. The law clarifies that a taxable person engages in recurrence when an infraction is breached two or more times in the same fiscal year.

The late notification or failure to notify the tax authorities of changes to a taxable person's ST registration details may result in a penalty between HNL0.01 to HNL1 million, which depends on the company's annual gross income. For further details, see the subsection Changes to ST registration details above.

Penalties for fraud. Tax fraud is deemed to occur if a taxable person files a return that results in the underpayment of taxes as a result of illegal actions. The Penal Code provides the following prison terms for tax evasion:

- Three to six years of imprisonment and a fine equivalent to 120% of the value of the defrauded, if said value does not exceed HNL250,000
- Six to 10 years of imprisonment and a fine equivalent to 140% of the value of the defrauded, if said value exceeds HNL250,000

In addition, a fine equal to 50% of the underpaid ST applies. If the underpaid ST cannot be calculated, the applicable fine is calculated based on the assessment issued by the tax authorities.

Personal liability for company officers. Company officers can be held personally liable for errors and omissions in ST declarations and reporting in Honduras. The ST law doesn't make distinction between the owner of the company, managers, administrative personal, accountant, etc. It outlines that if whoever is responsible for the company's commercial accounting, books or tax records disregards said obligation, keeps different accounts that hide the true situation of the company, does not record economic operations or does so falsely or reflecting fictitious operations, must be punished by imprisonment from six months to two years, if this facilitates the commission of a crime of tax fraud or subsidy fraud or a crime against social security or the pension system.

Statute of limitations. The statute of limitations in Honduras is five years. This only applies for obligations relating to taxable persons registered in the National Tax Registry. The tax authorities should be able to go back to review returns for a five-year period for registered taxable persons. In the other cases (i.e., non-registered taxable persons), the statute of limitations should be seven years.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- The supply of goods or services provided in Hungary by taxable persons
- The intra-Community acquisition of goods in Hungary for goods coming from another EU Member State by a taxable person (see the chapter on the EU)
- Reverse-charge services and reverse-charge goods received by a Hungarian taxable person
- The importation of goods into Hungary, regardless of the status of the importer

Special rules apply to intra-Community transactions involving new means of transport and distance sales (see the chapter on the EU).

Quick Fixes. Pending introduction of a "definitive" system for the VAT treatment of intra-Community supplies of goods to taxable persons, the EU has adopted Quick Fixes for intra-Community trade in goods. For an overview of the Quick Fixes rules, see the chapter on the EU. For documentary requirements see Section H. Invoicing, subsection Proof of exports and intra-Community supplies.

In Hungary the Quick Fixes rules are applicable as of 1 January 2020, an overview of the changes below:
- Call-off stock – Hungary implemented the respective EU law without any local changes.
- Chain transactions – Hungary followed the approach of the respective Quick Fix already in the past; no practical change has been made in this respect.
- Proof of cross-border transactions – No specific legal provision has been implemented, as the Implementing Regulation is also directly applicable in Hungary. The Ministry of Finance and the Hungarian tax authority jointly issued an official communication according to which – besides the provisions of the Implementing Regulation – they still accept the proofs they previously requested from taxable persons for evidencing the physical transportation of the goods (e.g., duly signed consignment notes (CMRs)), with the note that it needs to be evaluated on a case-by-case basis whether the entirety of the documents provided by the taxable person is sufficient proof for evidencing the cross-border transportation of the goods.
- Valid customer VAT ID – VAT exemption related to intra-Community supply of goods cannot be applied if the respective EU Sales and acquisition listings are missing or not completed properly (whether the mistake is connected to the EU VAT ID of the customer or to other numerical or timing difference).

Effective use and enjoyment. To avoid instances of non-taxation or double taxation, EU Member States can apply use and enjoyment rules that allow a service that is "used and enjoyed" in the EU to be taxed or prevent a service that is "used and enjoyed" outside the EU from being taxed. If a service is taxed in the EU under the use and enjoyment provisions, a non-EU supplier of the service may be required to register for VAT in every Member State where it has customers that are not taxable persons. For information regarding the rules relating to VAT registration, see the chapters on the respective countries of the EU.

In Hungary, the following services are subject to the "use and enjoyment" provisions:
- Admission to cultural, artistic, scientific and sports events (as of 1 January 2025, the place of supply for virtual events held in the online space will be the location of the nontaxable consumer)
- Hiring of means of transport
- Catering and accommodation services
- Passenger transport services
- Services related to immovable property

In the case of business-to-customer (B2C) supplies, the provisions also apply specifically to the following:
- Ancillary activities relating to the transport of passengers and goods (including loading, unloading, handling and similar activities as well)
- Valuations of movable tangible property, exclusive of immovable property
- Works on movable tangible property, exclusive of immovable property, services and ancillary services relating to cultural, artistic, scientific, educational, entertainment, sporting or similar activities (such as fairs, exhibitions and presentations), including the supply of services of the organizers of such activities
- Telecommunication services
- Radio and broadcasting services
- Electronically supplied services

In addition, for B2C transactions where the customer is established or has its residence or habitual abode outside the EU, the provisions apply to the following:
- Temporary or permanent transfers and assignments of copyrights, patents, licenses, trademarks and similar rights
- Advertising services
- The services of consultants, accountants, lawyers, tax experts, IT experts, translators and interpreters, engineers and other similar services
- Data processing and the provision of information
- Banking, financial and insurance transactions, including reinsurance, with the exception of the hire of safes
- Assignment and or hiring out of workers, the supply of staff
- The hiring-out of movable tangible property, with the exception of immovable property and all means of transport
- The provision of access to a natural gas system situated within the EU Community or to any network connected to such a system, to the electricity system or to heating or cooling networks, or the transmission or distribution of natural gas, electricity, heating or cooling energy through these systems or networks, and the provision of other services directly linked thereto

Transfer of a going concern. A going concern is defined as an existing unit of a company that is capable to function independently and able to carry out economic activity on a long-term basis using its own assets.

In Hungary, a transfer of a going concern (TOGC) is not a taxable transaction, in the following circumstances:
- The customer intends to continue the business taken over.
- The customer must be registered in Hungary as a taxable person at the time of acquisition or in direct consequence thereof.
- The customer ensures that the rights and obligations are conferred upon it at the time of acquisition.

- The customer shall not have any legal status that hinders acting as successor.
- The going concern is limited to supply of goods and services giving rise to VAT deduction (i.e., the going concern cannot relate to VAT exempt or out of scope activities).
- Joint and several liabilities arise on the recipient and transferor of the business line with respect to VAT.

The wording of the law is not specific enough to be able to safely determine whether a transaction can indeed be regarded as a TOGC. Therefore, it is highly recommended to request a binding ruling from the Ministry of Finance on the VAT implications of the transaction up front.

Transactions between related parties. For a transaction between related parties, the tax base adjustment may only be applied if any of the parties does not have a right to full input tax deduction and the consideration of the goods or the services are disproportionately high or low compared to the arm's-length price. In such cases, the tax base should be at arm's length.

C. Who is liable

A taxable person is any business or individual that makes taxable supplies of goods or services for consideration in the course of its business in its own name.

Every entity or individual that undertakes a business activity in Hungary must register for VAT before beginning the activity in question. Retroactive VAT registration is possible but may trigger significant penalties. Obtaining Hungarian VAT numbers for intra-EU transaction purposes with retroactive effect is not allowed.

Exemption from registration. The following types of taxable persons may be exempted from registering for VAT in Hungary:

- Any importer who employs an indirect customs representative in connection with the importation of goods and the subsequent intra-Community supply of goods, shall be exempted from the obligation of registration if it is not engaged in any other taxable activities in Hungary.
- Taxable persons that are considered non-established according to the Hungarian VAT Act, and the taxable persons to whom the requirement of establishment does not apply, shall be exempted from the obligation of registration if engaged in Hungary solely in the supply of goods under VAT warehousing arrangements as provided for in the Hungarian VAT Act. The condition is that the goods have not ceased to be covered by these arrangements as a direct consequence of such supply, or that the goods are exited by the state tax and customs authority from the territory of the EU.
- Any non-established taxable person who provides telecommunications, broadcasting and electronically supplied services in Hungary to nontaxable persons shall be exempt from the obligation of registration, provided that it is entitled to apply the Mini One-Stop Shop regime.
- Non-established taxable persons (including those where the requirement of establishment does not apply in Hungary, but who are established in another EU Member State) shall be exempted from the obligation of registration. This is only where the taxable person wholly makes supplies of exempt goods in Hungary under the VAT warehousing arrangements.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. If a taxable person's turnover did not exceed HUF12 million in the preceding VAT year, it may request VAT exemption status. The request for exemption must be filed before the end of the VAT year preceding the year in which the exemption is to take effect. A new business may request exemption from registration if its anticipated turnover is not expected to exceed HUF12 million a year. The request for exemption must be filed at the time of registration.

If exempt status is granted, the business must still register for VAT, although it may not charge VAT on its supplies and it may not recover input tax on its expenses and purchases. In addition, such businesses are generally not required to file any VAT returns.

The uniform EU VAT scheme for small businesses proposed by the EU VAT Action Plan has been implemented in Hungary and will be effective as of 1 January 2025. For further details, see the subsection Special schemes, then Small enterprises below. For supplies of goods or services made by a nonresident supplier to a final consumer (B2C), the supplier is generally responsible for charging and accounting for the VAT due at the rate applicable in the customer's country (unless the supplier's sales fall beneath the distance selling threshold of EUR10,000 with effect from 1 July 2021). This VAT can be reported using a single VAT registration, using a "One-Stop-Shop" mechanism (voluntary VAT registration is applicable to taxable persons supplying goods or services to nontaxable persons).

Taxable persons not established in the EU also can use the One-Stop-Shop system, provided that they already hold an EU VAT number for other reasons (see the One-Stop-Shop subsection below). Taxable persons using the One-Stop-Shop system should issue their invoices in accordance with the rules in their country of establishment.

Group registration. VAT group registration is available for all industries. Companies that qualify as related parties and that have a fixed establishment in Hungary from a VAT point of view may opt for VAT grouping when the participating entities are regarded as being a single taxable person and the group regime applies to all transactions performed by every group member. Practically, this means that the supplies performed between the group members fall out of the scope of VAT, whereas any supplies performed outside the group are subject to VAT. In addition, the group members are obliged to file joint VAT returns with the tax authority.

As outlined above, companies that qualify as related parties can opt for VAT grouping. Every company that is considered as a related company has the option not to join to the VAT group (i.e., a nonmember). However, if the company is not a member of the VAT group, it still needs to accept certain liabilities, and if the nonmember does not accept the liabilities, the VAT group cannot be formed).

There is no minimum time period required for the duration of a VAT group. It exists until withdrawal, provided that the relevant conditions are continuously met by the members.

All members of a VAT group in Hungary are jointly and severally liable for VAT debts and penalties. In the period of the existence of the VAT group and also subsequently, the members and nonmembers (related parties) are jointly responsible for the members' tax liabilities indicated in the closing VAT returns (incurred before the establishment of the VAT group), and all tax liabilities determined by the VAT Act incurred during the existence of the VAT group.

Holding companies. In Hungary, a pure holding company can be a member of a VAT group, as long as the holding company is established in Hungary and is a related party to the group members. It should be noted that the VAT deduction ratio of the VAT group can change if the holding company is involved.

Cost-sharing exemption. The VAT cost-sharing exemption, in accordance with VAT Directive 2006/112/EEC Article 132(1)(f), has been implemented in Hungary. This provides an option to exempt support services that the cost-sharing group supplies to its members, providing certain conditions are met (in accordance with specific requirements laid out in Hungarian VAT law).

However, the Ministry of Finance (unofficially) declared that they would not like any taxable person to apply this scheme. Consequently, in practice, no taxable person meets the criteria outlined in the VAT law, and as such the exemption is not applied.

Fixed establishment. In Hungary the term "fixed establishment" means a geographically isolated and durable facility away from the registered office established or intended for conducting economic activities, where the conditions for the economic activity are in fact available independent from the registered office, including the taxable person's commercial representations insofar as the taxable person's commercial representation is most directly involved in the supply of services, except if otherwise provided for by any binding legislation of the EU.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that has no fixed establishment in Hungary. A non-established business that makes supplies of goods or services in Hungary must register for VAT if it is liable to account for Hungarian VAT on its supplies or if it makes intra-Community supplies or acquisitions of goods.

Consequently, non-established businesses must register for Hungarian VAT if they make any of the following supplies:
- Intra-Community supplies
- Intra-Community acquisitions
- Supplies of goods and services that are not subject to the reverse charge (for example, goods or services supplied to private persons)
- Importation of goods
- Purchase of services from other countries

Tax representatives. Businesses established inside the EU may register for VAT without appointing a tax representative. However, EU businesses may opt to appoint a tax representative under certain conditions.

In general, businesses established outside the EU must appoint a resident tax representative to register for Hungarian VAT. The tax representative is jointly liable for VAT debts and obligations with the business it represents.

All non-established businesses must register with the office for foreign taxable persons at the following address:

NAV Kiemelt Ügyek Adó- és Vámigazgatósága
Dob utca 75-81
1077 Budapest
Hungary

Reverse charge. The reverse charge applies generally to supplies of services made by non-established businesses to businesses in Hungary (i.e., a B2B supply). This includes installation supplies made in Hungary by non-established businesses and certain transactions relating to real estate.

To fall under the reverse charge, the supplies must be made to taxable persons in Hungary that file periodic VAT returns. Under this measure, the taxable person that receives the supply must account for the Hungarian VAT due. If the reverse-charge applies, the non-established business is not required to register for Hungarian VAT.

Domestic reverse charge. The concept of a reverse charge also applies to the following transactions in Hungary, i.e., between businesses that are established in Hungary and registered for VAT in Hungary:
- Transfer of immovable property on the basis of a construction contract
- Certain services relating to immovable property
- The supply of certain scrap materials
- The supply of immovable property if taxation is opted for
- The supply of goods provided as security in execution of that security
- Trading in greenhouse gas emission rights
- Goods and services provided by taxable persons under liquidation or insolvency proceedings, provided the value exceeds HUF100,000
- The supply of cereal and certain metal products
- Staff leasing services in case it relates to construction, expansion, remodeling or any other form of alteration of an immovable property

Digital economy. Specific VAT rules apply to cross-border supplies of goods and services sold via the internet (e-commerce) in all EU Member States with effect from 1 July 2021. These new rules apply to all direct sales to nontaxable persons (in practice, these are mostly private individuals), but we refer to these rules as e-commerce VAT rules because most of these transactions are conducted via the internet. In general, the place of supply is in the country of consumption, i.e., where the goods are shipped to or where the buyer of the goods or services resides, subject to any "use and enjoyment" provisions that may override this rule (see Section B, Effective use and enjoyment subsection above). Therefore:

- For supplies of services made by a nonresident supplier to a business customer (B2B), the business customer is responsible for accounting for the VAT due, using the reverse charge.
- For supplies of goods made by a nonresident supplier to a business customer (B2B), where the goods are transported from another EU Member State, the business purchasing the goods is responsible for accounting for the VAT due, as an intra-Community acquisition. If the goods come from outside the EU, the purchaser may have to report an importation of goods.
- For supplies of goods or services made by a nonresident supplier to a final consumer (B2C), the supplier is generally responsible for charging and accounting for the VAT due at the rate applicable in the customer's country (unless the supplier's sales fall beneath the distance selling threshold of EUR10,000 with effect from 1 July 2021). This VAT can be reported using a single VAT registration, using a "One-Stop-Shop" mechanism.

For more details about intra-EU distance sales, see the chapter on the EU.

Effective 1 July 2021, an e-commerce supplier may have a choice of how to account for VAT on its B2C supplies.

Local VAT registration. A nonresident supplier may choose to register for VAT in each Member State and account for VAT on all supplies made and recover input tax in accordance with local rules (see the Non-established businesses subsection above). Non-EU businesses may be required to appoint a fiscal representative for accounting for the VAT due on these transactions.

For detail on the application process in Hungary, refer to the subsection Registration procedures below.

One-Stop Shop. Effective 1 July 2021, a supplier can choose to account for the VAT due under the EU One-Stop Shop (OSS), which can be used for intra-EU cross-border supplies of goods and all cross-border supplies of services made to final consumers in the EU. Unlike the previous Mini One-Stop-Shop (MOSS) scheme that applied until 30 June 2021, the OSS is not limited to cross-border supplies of electronic services, telecommunication services and broadcasting services.

In Hungary, taxable persons can register themselves to the OSS electronic portal online (https://oss.nav.gov.hu/index.xhtml).

The OSS is an electronic portal that allows businesses to:

- Register for VAT electronically in a single Member State for all intra-EU distance sales of goods and for B2C supplies of services
- Declare and pay VAT due on all supplies of goods and services in a single electronic quarterly return

The OSS can be used by businesses established in the EU and outside the EU. If a supplier or a deemed supplier decides to register for the OSS, it must declare and pay VAT for all supplies (goods as well as services) that fall under the OSS.

For more details about the operation of the OSS, see the chapter on the EU.

Import One-Stop Shop. Effective 1 July 2021, the Import One-Stop-Shop (IOSS) scheme applies for B2C distance sales of goods from outside the EU.

Effective 1 July 2021, VAT is due on all commercial goods imported into the EU regardless of their value. The actual supply is subject to VAT in the country where the goods are imported (the country of destination). The IOSS facilitates the declaration and payment of VAT due on the sale of low-value goods (i.e., consignments valued at less than EUR150 per consignment). It allows suppliers selling low-value goods dispatched or transported from a non-EU country to customers in the EU to collect, declare and pay the VAT due. If the IOSS is used, the importation into the EU is exempt from VAT.

In Hungary, taxable persons can register themself to the OSS electronic portal online (https://oss.nav.gov.hu/index.xhtml).

For more details about the IOSS, see the chapter on the EU.

The use of the IOSS special scheme is not mandatory. If VAT is not collected via the IOSS scheme, the importation of goods into the EU is subject to import VAT in the country of final destination, and the Member State can decide freely who is liable to pay the import VAT, which could be the customer or the seller (or an electronic interface).

Postal services and couriers scheme. If the IOSS is not used and the customer is liable for the import VAT due on the supply (and importation) of consignments with a small intrinsic value (i.e., less than EUR150), the VAT can be collected using the special scheme for postal services and couriers.

For more details about the special scheme for postal services and couriers, see the chapter on the EU.

Online marketplaces and platforms. Under the new EU VAT e-commerce rules, effective 1 July 2021, taxable persons that "facilitate" certain B2C sales of goods are deemed to have purchased and then supplied those goods themselves. This means that the single supply from the "underlying" supplier to the final consumer is split into two deemed supplies:

- A supply from the supplier to the facilitator (deemed B2B supply).
- A supply from the facilitator to the final customer (deemed B2C supply). Any intermediation service provided by the facilitator is disregarded for VAT purposes.

This provision does not cover all sales facilitated via the facilitator. It only covers distance sales of goods imported from non-EU jurisdictions in consignments with an intrinsic value not exceeding EUR150. The jurisdiction of residence of the supplier using the facilitator is irrelevant. The supply to the facilitating platform is VAT exempt and the supplies made by that platform follow the e-commerce VAT rules as described above. In addition, the provision also covers sales within the EU, if the supplier is not established within the EU. This applies to both local shipments within one Member State as well as intra-Community shipments. In both cases, the final customer must be a nontaxable person.

In Hungary, online marketplaces and platforms can register themself to the OSS electronic portal online (https://oss.nav.gov.hu/index.xhtml).

For more details about the rules for online marketplaces, see the chapter on the EU.

Vouchers. According to the Hungarian VAT Act, there are two types of vouchers. There are "single-purpose vouchers" (SPV), issued when the place of supply of the goods and/or services to which these vouchers relate, and the VAT due on those goods and/or services is known at the time of issuance of the voucher.

Additionally, the Hungarian Act on VAT provides for "multi-purpose vouchers" (MPV), which are vouchers other than a SPV.

For SPV, the tax point is the issuance date of the voucher – as it is already known by the issuance date, for which goods/services the vouchers can be applied, and as such the consideration paid at each transfer is VAT inclusive. For the MPV, the tax point is the date of the voucher's redemption – the date when the voucher is accepted by the supplier as consideration for the supplied goods/services.

The transfer of the different types of vouchers is also treated differently from a VAT point of view. Whereas each transfer made for consideration of an SPV made by a taxable person acting in their own name shall be regarded as a supply of the goods or services to which the voucher relates, the transfer of a MPV for consideration shall not be regarded as a supply of the goods and/or services.

Registration procedures. To register for VAT purposes in Hungary, two copies of the application form (available only in the Hungarian language) should be submitted on paper together with several corporate documents (translated into Hungarian). The following documents are required for the VAT registration application process:

- Copy of the passport of the person(s) authorized to sign documents on behalf of the taxable person
- Up-to-date excerpt from the Court of Registry in the taxable person's country of incorporation (no older than 30 days)
- Original and stamped VAT registration certificate issued by the foreign tax authority justifying that the Company is registered for VAT purposes (no older than three months)
- Original notarized specimen(s) of the signature of the company's authorized representative(s)

Beside these required documents, the tax authority may also request additional proofs, depending on the quality of the documents and the legislation of the country where the taxable person has its registered seat.

Deregistration. Foreign entities that cease to perform transactions subject to Hungarian VAT can deregister, canceling their Hungarian VAT number. The necessary steps for deregistration are the following:

- Checking the tax account statement of the company and paying any underpayments or reclaiming any overpayments
- Preparation and submission of the deregistration form within 15 days from the effective date of the deregistration
- Preparation and submission of a closing VAT return covering the period not covered by previous tax returns within 30 days from the effective date of the deregistration (submission together with the deregistration form is advisable)

The tax authority usually performs a tax audit related to the deregistration.

Changes to VAT registration details. Taxable persons must notify the tax authorities of any changes affecting their tax liability, within 15 days of the effective date of such changes on a designated form. In most cases, this form should be filed electronically (with very few exceptions).

The following changes should be reported:

- Company data (name, registered seat) change
- Change of authorized representatives
- Place of archiving accounting data
- Change in business activity
- Application to specific VAT schemes

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 27%
- Reduced rates: 5%, 18%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate, the zero rate or an exemption.

Some supplies are classified as "exempt with credit," (i.e., zero-rated), which means that no VAT is chargeable, although the supplier may recover related input tax. Exempt with credit supplies include, but are not limited to, exports of goods outside the EU and related services (for example, related to transport) and intra-Community supplies of goods.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 5%

- Human medicines and certain medical products.
- Books (on paper)
- Live specimens or slaughtered and chopped (to some extent) meat of certain large animals (pigs, cattle, sheep, goats)
- Poultry meat, eggs and milk (i.e., fresh milk and both UHT and ESL)
- Internet services
- Catered meals
- Nonalcoholic beverages made on the spot
- Hotel services
- Sale of new immovable property for residual purposes, provided that its size does not exceed 150 square meters in the case of flats and 300 square meters in the case of detached houses (with effect from 1 January 2021)
- Import of artworks

Examples of goods and services taxable at 18%

- Basic foodstuffs
- Entrance to certain open-air public music festivals

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not subject to VAT and that do not give rise to the right to deduct input tax.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Financial services
- Insurance
- Public postal services
- Approved education
- Lease of property
- Sale of securities
- Sale or lease of land
- Human medical care (including dental services and supply of dental prosthesis)
- Transport services for sick or injured persons
- Folk arts and crafts

Option to tax for exempt supplies. A taxable person may opt to pay VAT on transactions that would otherwise be exempt from VAT. This decision should be reported to the tax authority before beginning the exempt activity. The taxable person who exercises the option to pay VAT is required to continue paying VAT for the following five calendar years. After the five years, it can again choose VAT exemption by submitting a notification form to the tax authority by 31 December of the preceding year.

The following supplies are eligible for the option to apply VAT:
- The rental or leasing of immovable property or parts thereof (either only for commercial property or both commercial and residential property)
- The sale of immovable property and sale of land (either only for commercial property or both commercial and residential property)

E. Time of supply

The time at which VAT becomes due in Hungary is called the "date of supply" or "tax point." With some exceptions, the date of supply is deemed to be when the supply is made or when an invoice is issued.

Deposits and prepayments. A prepayment or deposit creates a tax point when the payment is received. The amount is considered to be inclusive of VAT. When a reverse charge applies between taxable persons, the prepayment shall not be deemed as a tax point if it is with intra-Community acquisitions and supplies of goods.

If a Hungarian taxable person makes a prepayment with respect to services purchased from other EU Member States or third countries (that fall under the general reverse-charge mechanism), the amount shall be regarded as being exclusive of VAT and the Hungarian taxable person is required to self-charge the VAT on the advance payment it paid.

Continuous supplies of services. Parties may agree that a supply of goods and services may be invoiced periodically or paid in installments.

The following date-of-supply rules apply concerning such transactions:
- In general, the date of supply is the last day of the period in question.
- If the date on which the invoice (receipt) was issued and the payment deadline both fall before the last day of the period concerned, the issue date of the invoice (receipt) is the date of supply.
- If the payment deadline falls on a later date than the last day of the period in question, but not later than the 60th day following the last day of that period, the payment deadline is the date of supply.
- If the payment deadline is later than the 60th day following the last day of the period in question, the date of supply is the 60th day following the last day of the period in question.

Invoices relating to intra-Community supplies of goods cannot refer to a period longer than one calendar month. In other cases, the period can be up to 12 months. However, in the case of services purchased from other EU Member States or third countries, the period is deemed as ending on 31 December each year, provided the agreed period exceeds 12 months.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. VAT shall become chargeable upon the occurrence by virtue of which the legal conditions necessary for VAT to become chargeable are fulfilled. In the case of a supply of goods, the supply occurs where the right to dispose of the goods is transferred from the supplier to the customer. It is the wording of the agreement that determines whether the supply takes place if the goods are sent on approval.

In the case of return goods, the reason of the return and other contractual arrangements must be analyzed to establish the proper VAT treatment. For instance, return of defective goods where the supplier provides the customer with a new product from the same type is a non-supply for Hungarian VAT purposes. However, in the case of a resale, the transaction can qualify as a taxable event.

Reverse-charge services. If the reverse-charge mechanism applies to a transaction, the tax point date is the earliest of the following dates: (i) the receipt of the invoice, (ii) payment of the consideration or (iii) the 15th day of the month following the month in which the supply takes place.

Leased assets. Open-end financial leasing transactions (when buyers can decide whether or not they want to obtain the title of the leased assets at the end of the lease contracts) qualify as rented assets, so each installment should be invoiced with VAT. Closed-end financial leasing transactions (when it is fixed in advance that the buyer will automatically obtain the title of the assets upon the payment of the last installment) qualify as sale of goods where the tax point is the delivery date of the asset, i.e., the total value including VAT has to be invoiced at the beginning and no separate invoices have to be issued on the installments (that are not subject to VAT).

Imported goods. The tax point for imported goods is either the date of acceptance of the customs declaration or the date on which the goods leave the duty suspension regime, if the taxable person is not entitled to self-account import VAT.

Intra-Community acquisitions. The tax point for intra-Community acquisitions of goods is the date of issuance of the invoice or the 15th day of the month following the month in which the supply takes place, whichever is earlier. For services, generally, it is the date on which the supply is made.

Intra-Community supplies of goods. The date of supply for intra-Community supplies of goods is the date of issuance of the invoice or the 15th day of the month following the month in which the supply takes place, whichever is earlier. For services, it is the date on which the supply is made.

Distance sales. There are no special time of supply rules in Hungary for supplies of distance sales. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above). According to the general time of supply rule, VAT shall become chargeable when the legal conditions prescribed for the occurrence of the transaction are fulfilled.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax, which is VAT charged on goods and services supplied to it for a taxable business purpose. A taxable person generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax, which is VAT charged on supplies made.

Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services supplied in Hungary, VAT paid on intra-Community acquisitions and imports of goods, and VAT self-assessed for reverse-charge services received from outside Hungary and for certain reverse-charge domestic transactions.

The amount of VAT reclaimed must be supported with a valid VAT invoice.

Under the general rule, input tax is deductible from output tax charged in the same VAT period. If the amount of input tax exceeds the amount of output tax in the period, the excess can be carried forward to the next filing period, offset against the taxable person's other Hungarian tax liabilities or refunded to the taxable person's bank account.

The time limit for a taxable person to reclaim input tax in Hungary is five years, following the last day of the calendar year in which the given tax return is due or the tax liability should be settled. However, without self-revision, the input tax deduction right can be exercised in the year they arise and during the next calendar year based on the decision of the taxable person.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are used for nonbusiness purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use) or exempt transactions (for example, assets used for providing financial services). In addition, input tax may not be recovered for some items of business expenditure.

The following lists provide some examples of items of expenditure for which input tax is not deductible and examples of items for which input tax is deductible if it relates to a taxable business use.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Nonbusiness expenditure
- Purchase of cars (private use)
- Taxi services
- 50% of car maintenance service costs
- 30% of telecommunication services

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related exclusively to a taxable business use)

- Transport
- Purchase, lease or hire of cars, vans and trucks
- Books related to business activities
- Conferences
- Advertising
- Accommodation
- Attending exhibitions

Partial exemption. Input tax directly related to making exempt supplies is generally not recoverable. If a Hungarian taxable person makes both exempt supplies and taxable supplies, it may not deduct input tax in full. This situation is referred to as "partial exemption."

The amount of input tax that may be deducted is calculated in the following two stages:

- The first stage is the direct allocation of VAT to exempt and taxable supplies. Input tax directly allocable to exempt supplies is not deductible, while input tax directly allocable to taxable supplies is deductible. Exempt with credit supplies are treated as taxable supplies for these purposes.
- The second stage is the proration of the remaining input tax that relates to both taxable and exempt supplies based on the percentage of taxable supplies to total supplies made (called the deduction ratio). This treatment may apply, for example, to input tax on business overhead. The deduction ratio is calculated up to two decimal places. The amount of VAT recoverable must be rounded up to units of HUF1,000.

There is no requirement to report the pro rata to the tax authority. There is a "standard" method of calculation for the pro rata, but taxable persons can deviate from that if the deductible input tax can be determined more precisely by using another calculation method. Approval from the tax authorities is not required to use the partial exemption standard method or special methods in Hungary. However, the use of a special method is strongly recommended to be discussed and approved by the tax authority up front. It is also possible to ask for a binding ruling on the calculation method.

When calculating the proration, a taxable person may initially use the deduction ratio amounts for either the current tax year or for the preceding tax year. However, if the preceding year's amounts are used, the calculation must be adjusted at the end of the VAT year, using the relevant information for the year in question.

Capital goods. Capital goods are tangible items of capital expenditure that are used in a business over several years. Input tax is deducted in the VAT year in which the goods are acquired. The amount of input tax recovered depends on the taxable person's partial exemption deduction ratio in the VAT year in which the acquisition took place. However, the amount of input tax recovered for capital goods must be adjusted over time if the taxable person's partial exemption deduction ratio changes during the year under review and if the difference with respect to a particular capital asset exceeds HUF10,000.

In Hungary, the capital goods adjustment applies to the following assets for the number of years indicated:
- Land and buildings: adjusted for a period of 20 years
- Tangible capital assets: adjusted for a period of 5 years
- Intangible rights related to capital goods: the same adjustment period as the underlying capital asset

The adjustment is applied each year following the year of acquisition, to a fraction of the total input tax (1/20 for land and buildings and 1/5 for other tangible capital assets). The adjustment may result in either an increase or a decrease in the deductible input tax, depending on whether the ratio of taxable supplies made by the business has increased or decreased compared with the year in which the capital goods were acquired.

If a Hungarian taxable person sells an asset on which no input tax was deducted, a proportion of the input tax becomes deductible. The qualifying period for this treatment is the same as the capital goods adjustment period, which is 60 months (5 years) for tangible assets and 240 months (20 years) for land and buildings.

In Hungary, the capital goods adjustment also applies to rights in rem, provided that the right is in the taxable person's books for at least one year.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax recoverable in a monthly period exceeds the amount of output tax payable in that period, the taxable person has an input tax credit. A taxable person may request a refund of the credit if this excess exceeds the following amounts:
- HUF50,000 if the taxable person files VAT returns annually
- HUF250,000 if the taxable person files VAT returns quarterly
- HUF1 million if the taxable person files VAT returns monthly

If a taxable person is not allowed to request a repayment, the excess input tax may be carried forward to the following period to offset output tax payable.

Taxable persons significantly not complying with tax rules (risky taxable persons) will receive the VAT refund within 75 days; taxable persons properly complying with the tax rules (trusted taxable persons) will receive the VAT they reclaim within 30 days.

Taxable persons not qualifying as either risky or trusted will continue to receive the VAT refund based on the following rules: If a repayment is claimed, the VAT authorities must pay it within 75 days after the due date of the return. However, if all the supplier invoices that are recorded as deductions on a given VAT return have been paid by the time of filing of the VAT return and this fact was indicated on the filed VAT return, the tax authority must refund VAT repayment claims that exceed HUF1 million within 45 days. Repayment claim amounts under HUF1 million will be transferred within 30 days (if all supplier invoices have been paid).

If the repayment is not made within the time limits indicated above, the VAT authorities must also pay late payment interest, calculated from the due date of the repayment.

The late payment interest from 2019 equals the prime rate of the Hungarian National Bank plus five percentage points, which should be prorated on a daily basis. The late payment interest applicable for the periods before 2019 equals the double of the prime rate prorated on a daily basis.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax on pre-registration costs is deductible as long as the (future) taxable person can demonstrate that the goods or services were issued in preparation of a future economic activity. In practice, this means that the VAT on these costs can be deducted in the first VAT return of the taxable person becoming VAT registered.

Bad debts. As a result of a legislative change, recovery of output tax related to bad debts becomes possible under certain conditions from 2020. This applies to B2B invoices in which the date of supply falls after 31 December 2015. From 1 January 2021, recovery can also apply to B2C invoices under certain conditions.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred on purchases that are used for noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Hungary.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Input tax incurred by non-established businesses that are not registered for VAT in Hungary is recoverable. The Hungarian VAT authorities refund VAT incurred by businesses that are neither established nor registered for VAT in Hungary. Non-established businesses may claim Hungarian VAT to the same extent as VAT-registered businesses, assuming VAT refund reciprocity applies.

EU businesses. For businesses established in the EU, refunds are made under the terms of the EU Directive 2008/9/EC. The VAT refund procedure under the EU Directive 2008/9 may be used only if the business did not perform any taxable supplies in Hungary during the refund period (excluding supplies covered by the reverse charge and certain VAT-exempt transportation services). This is because if a non-established business performed any taxable activity in Hungary in the period in question, they should have been registered for VAT and requested the VAT refund in their Hungarian VAT returns instead of foreign VAT refund procedure. For full details, see the chapter on the EU.

Find below specific rules for Hungary:
- Refunds are paid in Hungarian forints into the bank account notified by the claimant. This account may be either a bank account in Hungary or in the country in which the claimant is registered. If the claimant provides the tax authority with a foreign bank account number, the costs related to the bank remittance and exchange are the claimant's responsibility and the refunded amount is reduced accordingly.
- Hungarian law provides that repayments must generally be made within four months of the date on which the claim is submitted, in line with the provisions of the EU Directive 2008/9/EC. The refund procedure cannot be made any longer than eight months. If the VAT authorities do not repay the claim within this time limit, the claimant is entitled to interest. The late payment interest from 2019 equals the prime rate of the Hungarian National Bank plus five percentage points, which should be prorated on a daily basis. The late payment interest applicable for the periods before 2019 equals the double of the prime rate prorated on a daily basis.

Non-EU businesses. For businesses established outside the EU, refunds are made under the terms of the EU 13th Directive. For full details, see the chapter on the EU.

Hungary applies the principle of reciprocity; that is, the country where the claimant is established must also provide VAT refunds to Hungarian businesses. Hungarian VAT is only refunded on the condition of reciprocity to taxable persons of the Principality of Liechtenstein, Switzerland, Norway, Serbia, Türkiye (with certain restrictions) and the United Kingdom.

Find below specific rules for Hungary:
- The deadline for submitting applications is 30 September following the claim year.
- Non-EU claimants must file a form issued by the Hungarian VAT authorities together with the relevant documents, including the original invoices.
- The claimant must also submit a certificate issued by the VAT authorities in the country in which it is established, certifying its status as a taxable person.
- The applicant must prove that it paid the gross amount of the invoices. Hungarian suppliers may also provide a declaration that the invoices have been paid in full.

- The minimum claim period is three months, and the maximum claim period is one calendar year (except if the period is less than the last three months of a calendar year).
- The form may be completed in Hungarian, English, German or French. However, all correspondence with the tax authorities must be in Hungarian.
- A non-established claimant may appoint a lawyer, legal advisor or tax consultant resident in Hungary to represent it in any dealings with the VAT authorities. If a representative is used, the original power of attorney appointing the representative must accompany the repayment claim form.
- All documents relating to the VAT reclaim must be sent to the tax authorities and can be done via the official email address of the authority or via post to the following address:

NAV Kiemelt Ügyek Adó- és Vámigazgatósága
1077 Budapest
Dob Utca 75-81
Hungary

Late payment interest. The Hungarian tax authority is liable for late payment interest if the refund is not processed in a timely manner (for both EU and non-EU businesses). The late payment interest rate charged (with effect from 2019) equals the prime rate of the Hungarian National Bank, plus 5 percentage points, which should be prorated on a daily basis.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. Generally, a Hungarian taxable person must provide VAT invoices for all Hungarian taxable supplies made, including exports and intra-Community supplies, in line with the Hungarian invoicing provisions. If the supplier is not established in Hungary and (i) the supply is subject to the reverse-charge mechanism or (ii) the place of supply is outside the EU, Hungarian invoicing standards are not applicable (except for cases falling under option (i) if the invoices are issued by the buyer within the self-billing process).

Invoices must be issued no later than eight days after the date of supply (or, for intra-Community supplies, no later than the 15th day of the month following the month in which the supply took place) (see Section E). If the consideration is paid by the date of supply, the supplier is obliged to issue the invoice immediately.

Credit notes. A VAT credit note may be used to reduce the VAT charged and reclaimed on a supply. The document must be clearly marked "credit note" and refer to the original invoice. A credit note must also indicate the date on which it was issued, the reason for and the numerical result of the correction and any new items arising from the correction.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is mandatory in Hungary for certain taxable persons.

Scope of electronic invoicing. For B2G supplies, electronic invoicing is mandatory in Hungary. This is in line with EU Directive 2014/55/EU (see the chapter on the EU). This has been in effect from 18 April 2019.

For B2B and B2C supplies, electronic invoicing is allowed but not mandatory in Hungary. This is in line with EU Directive 2010/45/EU (see the chapter on the EU).

There is no threshold beyond which taxable persons are required to adopt electronic invoicing in Hungary. The requirements related to electronic invoicing are the same as those for paper invoicing. Electronic receipts will be introduced as of 1 January 2025. The issuance and distribution of receipts will only be allowed to be done electronically. An electronic receipt will be deemed to be issued when it is received by the receipt depository operated by the tax authority.

For the EU VAT in the Digital Age (ViDA) proposals, refer to the chapter on the European Union.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified VAT invoicing is allowed in Hungary in the following cases:
- When the customer is a taxable person or a nontaxable legal person, who makes advance payment (except for VAT-exempt EU supplies of goods) and the amounts are expressed in HUF on the invoice layout
- When the customer is a nontaxable person (other than in the above point), who makes advance payment and the payment exceeds HUF900,000, or does not exceed this threshold but the customer asks to issue an invoice (except for VAT-exempt EU supplies of goods) and the amounts are expressed in HUF on the invoice layout
- If the full consideration is provided until or on the date of supply/tax point date at the latest, and the customer asks to issue an invoice and the amounts are expressed in HUF on the invoice layout
- When the transaction is performed in an EU or third-country supply of goods or services
- When the total gross amount of the invoice does not exceed the equivalent of EUR100, provided that the underlying transaction is other than VAT-exempt EU supply of goods or out-of-scope transaction or distance sale

Self-billing. Self-billing is allowed in Hungary. It is allowed for either for one particular transaction or for issuing invoices on a general basis. In the case of self-billing:
- The parties (i.e., the supplier and the customer or a third-party agent who intends to issue the invoices) should conclude a written agreement in advance on the self-billing process that details the terms and conditions of the invoice issuance.
- If the customer issues the invoice; the word "önszámlázás" (self-billing) must be indicated in the invoice.
- The parties' liability is joint and several with respect to the compliance with the provisions relating to the invoice issuance.

Proof of exports and intra-Community supplies. VAT is not charged on exports and intra-Community supplies. To qualify as exempt, exports and intra-Community supplies must be accompanied by evidence that the goods have left Hungary (in the case of exports, within 90 days). Suitable documentary evidence includes the following:
- For export, a copy of the single administrative document or other export declaration endorsed by the customs office of exit on the actual exit of the goods
- For an intra-Community supply, a shipping document (especially a CMR signed by the recipient) or any other credible evidence

No special documentation applies in Hungary for evidencing the application of the Quick Fixes. Normal intra-Community documentation rules apply. Normal documentation rules apply.

Foreign currency invoices. If an invoice is issued in any currency other than the domestic currency, which is the Hungarian forint (HUF), the taxable value must be converted into HUF using the foreign exchange rate on the date of supply of any domestic credit institution that has a foreign-exchange permit to the extent the place of supply is Hungary. (For continuous supplies, the exchange rate effective on the issue date of the invoice should be applied.) The taxable person may use the official exchange rate quoted by the National Bank of Hungary or the European Central Bank (ECB), provided it has reported this decision to the tax authorities in advance. Once a taxable person has exercised this option, it cannot be changed until the end of the following calendar year. If the domestic credit institution in question does not quote the foreign currency used, the Hungarian National Bank or the ECB rate must first be used for conversion into euros. The conversion is based on the euro exchange rate for the quarter preceding the date of supply of the transaction.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. There are no special invoicing rules for supplies to nontaxable persons in Hungary. As such, full VAT invoices are required. In addition, B2C invoice data should also be reported in real time to the tax authority's invoice data reporting system. However, if certain conditions are met, simplified VAT invoices may be issued in Hungary (see the subsection above Simplified VAT invoices).

Distance selling. For intra-Community distance sales made B2C, a full VAT invoice must be issued. However, if the supplier operates the OSS regime, then no full VAT invoice is required unless requested.

Records. Record-keeping obligation applies to each accounting document based on which of the transactions performed can be identified and verified. In Hungary, examples of what records that must be held for VAT purposes include invoices, contracts, purchase orders, proofs of supply, transportation documents, customs documents, etc.

In Hungary, VAT books and records can be kept outside of the country. However, the taxable person needs to report the place of record keeping to the tax authority in advance and it needs to make sure that upon request these documents can be presented to the tax authority within three working days.

Record retention period. Records (including invoices and the related supporting documentation based on which the VAT can be assessed) should be kept until the end of the statutory limitation period, which – from a tax perspective – is five years from the last day of the calendar year in which the VAT return related to the given invoice was due. The statutory limitation can rest or can be interrupted under certain conditions. For accounting purposes, the statutory limitation is eight years.

In the case of paper-based documents, the record keeping obligation applies to the copies of invoices in the case of the issuer, and to the original document in the case of the recipient, or in the absence of the original, to the authentic copies of the invoices.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is allowed in Hungary. Paper-based invoices may also be stored in electronic format. Electronically issued documents must be stored in electronic format. Decree nr. 1/2018 issued by the Ministry of Innovation and Technology determines the specific archiving rules that the taxable person should fulfill in this regard (image quality, meta-data to be indicated in the copy to guarantee the authenticity of origin and the integrity of the content, etc.).

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. In general, Hungarian taxable persons must file quarterly tax returns. However, the below categories of taxable persons must file monthly returns (and EC listings):

- Newly registered taxable persons during the first two calendar years after registration
- Taxable persons whose net VAT payable in the tax year in question, or in the second year before the year in question, exceeds HUF1 million
- VAT groups
- VAT warehouse operators and indirect customs representatives in special cases

Taxable persons whose VAT payable or reclaimable for the second year preceding the year in question does not exceed HUF250,000 may file VAT returns annually if they were not given an EU VAT identification number and the consideration received in relation to their taxable supplies does not exceed HUF50 million. However, they may opt to file quarterly returns.

Monthly and quarterly VAT returns must be filed by the 20th day of the month following the tax period. If the taxable person meets the requirements to file VAT returns on an annual basis, the due date is 15 February in the year following the tax year in question. Note that annual returns are not to be filed in addition to the monthly/quarterly VAT returns. It is just an additional filing frequency option, based on certain criteria (see above).

Periodic payments. Payment of VAT due is required in full on the same date as the VAT return submission deadline, i.e., by the 20th day of the month following the tax period. VAT liabilities must be paid in HUF. Payment should be made via bank transfer to the tax authority's designated bank account. In the case of domestic payments, the payment can be initiated by the latest on the submission deadline. In the case of international transfers, the VAT amount needs to be credited at the tax authority's bank account by the submission deadline.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is mandatory in Hungary for certain taxable persons. If a taxable person performs any intra-Community transactions or is required to submit Domestic Summary Reports in Hungary, it must file all its tax returns electronically with the tax authority. To be able to file the tax returns electronically, a tax representative or employee of the taxable person must fill out a special registration in Hungarian and submit it in person in Hungary. Tax representatives can also be authorized to file the tax returns electronically on behalf of the taxable person.

Even though the current return filing procedure will remain valid, as of 1 January 2024 eVAT returns will be introduced in Hungary. The tax authority will auto-generate draft VAT returns using already available data. The auto-generated draft VAT returns may be modified on the tax authority's website or via an application programming interface (API). The submission of the draft VAT return is not automatic; the taxable person should provide confirmation.

Intrastat reports should be filed with the official system of the Central Statistics Office (website based).

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Hungary.

Special schemes. Small enterprises. This is for businesses who have an annual threshold of turnover of less than HUF12 million. Domestic taxable persons with an expected net sales revenue below HUF12 million can opt for VAT exemption (previous two tax years also need to be taken into account). This means that they do not have to charge VAT on their supplies (with certain exceptions). In turn, they do not have to deduct input tax either. Application needs to be made up front before the beginning of the calendar year and can no longer be applied if the taxable person exceeds this threshold during the calendar year. The application needs to be renewed annually. The uniform EU VAT scheme for small businesses proposed by the EU VAT Action Plan has been implemented in Hungary and will be effective as of 1 January 2025.

Investment gold. By investment gold, the VAT exemption applies by the supply, intra-Community acquisition, importation of investment gold, including:
- Investment gold represented by certificates (documents) referring to allocated or unallocated gold or trades on gold accounts
- Gold loans and swaps ensuring the right of ownership or claim in respect of investment gold
- Transactions concerning investment gold involving futures and forward contracts leading to a transfer of right of ownership or claim in respect of investment gold

Exemption shall also be granted for the services of agents who act in the name and on behalf of another person, when they take part in the supply of investment gold.

Taxable dealer of secondhand goods, works of art, collector's items and antiques. A taxable dealer should mean a taxable person who, with a view to resale, purchases, owns or imports secondhand goods, works of art, collectors' items or antiques or acts as a commissionaire for the same purpose. Taxable dealers can opt for applying a margin scheme for trading with the above listed goods. Under this scheme, the taxable person only pays VAT on the difference (margin) between the purchase and sales price of the goods. In this case, the margin must be considered as a gross amount (i.e., which already includes the VAT) and the taxable person cannot indicate the VAT amount separately in its sales invoice, while the taxable person is not entitled for deducting the input VAT (if any) on its purchases either. The application of this margin scheme is mandatory if the goods are purchased from nontaxable persons. Nevertheless, the taxable person can choose not to apply the scheme to its entire business activity; this choice must be reported to the tax office in advance before 31 December of the previous calendar year. Taxable dealers have special record keeping obligations.

Sales by public auction. Very similar rules apply as to the taxable dealers, with the exception that in this case, the taxable person (the organizer of the auction) does not get the legal ownership of the goods. For this purpose, the VAT rules apply a fiction that the taxable person gets title to the goods (deemed supplier), similarly to a commissionaire. Organizers of public auctions have special record keeping obligations.

Travel agents. Travel agency services are services provided by a taxable person to its traveler in its own name that are considered exclusively, or chiefly as touristic services based on their key characteristics. These services are ordered in its own name but on behalf of the traveler and are comprising services and goods (such as passenger transport, lodging services, accommodation, guided tours) provided by other taxable persons. The VAT base is the margin of the travel agent, which must be considered as a gross amount, already including the VAT (the travel agent should not indicate VAT on its invoice). The place of supply of these services is the place where the travel agent resides. However, if the services include services provided in third countries, the services are exempt from VAT. Travel agents have special record-keeping obligations.

Flat rate scheme for farmers. Hungarian resident taxable persons engaged in agricultural activity (further specified by the Hungarian VAT rules), acting as such:
- Does not have to charge VAT
- Does not have the right for VAT deduction

The taxable person should not charge VAT on its supplies in relation to its agricultural activity, but should charge compensatory surcharge instead of VAT. The rate of the compensatory surcharge is 12% by supply of organic goods and 7% by supply of goods of animal origin (The referred goods and services are listed in Annex 7 to the Hungarian VAT Act). The buyer should add the compensatory surcharge to the net sales price of the goods, and like the VAT, the buyer can deduct this compensatory surcharge.

Cash accounting. The cash accounting taxation method may be applied by the following taxable persons:
- Taxable persons that qualify as small enterprises on the first day of the year based on the relevant act or that would qualify as small enterprises if they were subject to the relevant act
- Taxable persons that have a fixed establishment in Hungary or, in the absence of a fixed establishment, a permanent address or place where they usually reside
- Taxable persons for whom the sum of both the expected and the actual consideration in a given year (and in the previous year) does not exceed the equivalent of HUF125 million (approx. EUR330,000)

Taxable persons may opt for cash-based taxation for domestic transactions subject to VAT, but considerations for supplies that are outside the scope of Hungarian VAT and for supplies subject to the reverse-charge regime are also included in the threshold. Revenue deriving from the sale of tangible assets, from the assignment of intangible property on a permanent basis, from intra-Community supply, from certain exempt supplies and from services ancillary to financial services is not considered when applying the threshold.

New companies must meet the financial conditions proportionately in the first calendar year.

Taxable persons may apply this taxation method based on the calendar year. Taxable persons that apply cash-based taxation must refer to this special taxation method and indicate it on their invoices.

Taxable persons that opt for cash-based taxation:
- Will have to pay output tax when they receive the consideration, including the VAT for their supply
- Will be entitled to deduct input tax when they pay the total gross amount of the invoice to their suppliers

Taxable persons may decide to terminate the application of cash-based taxation from the year following the year in question or during the suspension of their activities.

Taxable persons whose suppliers apply the cash-based accounting scheme are entitled to deduct the input tax charged by the supplier at the time they pay the consideration (including the VAT) to the supplier.

Cash-based taxation will be terminated automatically if a taxable person's revenue exceeds the threshold or if the taxable person is subject to insolvency or discontinuation of operations proceedings. The termination of this taxation method must be announced to the tax authority within 15 days.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Hungary.

Supplementary filings. Intrastat. A taxable person that trades with other EU countries must complete statistical reports, known as Intrastat.

The threshold for Intrastat Arrivals in 2023 is HUF250 million. The threshold for Intrastat Dispatches in 2023 is HUF400 million. At the time of preparing this chapter, the thresholds for 2024 have not been announced.

Intrastat filing is to be filed on a monthly basis due the 15th of every month following the calendar month that they relate to. The method of the filing is electronic, through the website of the Hungarian Statistical Office. Intrastat returns must be filed in HUF.

EU Sales Lists and EU Acquisitions Lists. A taxable person must also file EU Sales Lists and EU Acquisition Lists (i.e., recapitulative statements) for both goods and services.

Domestic Summary Report. Taxable persons must file reports on domestic purchases of goods or services at the invoice level. This obligation concerns those invoices on which the taxable person deducts input tax in the tax period in question

Electronic control system on the movement of goods on the road (EKAER). Under this system, taxable persons have a reporting obligation in relation to the road transportation of goods for certain transactions prior to the start of the transportation. From 2021 onward, the EKAER reporting obligation only arises in connection with products named "notifiable products" (previously named "risky goods"). Only notifiable products fall under the scope of the new EKAER regulation, however, based on the classification rules of the Commercial Customs Tariff, the list of the notifiable goods is exactly the same compared to the list of the previously known risky goods. The EKAER Decree allows taxable persons to voluntarily report goods that are not considered as notifiable goods, however, in this case, ensuring the correctness of the data reported is the taxable persons' responsibility.

The tax authority continually performs on-road audits by stopping trucks to check whether taxable persons have met this reporting obligation. In the case of noncompliance, the goods transported can be confiscated, a customs seal can be placed on the truck and a 40% penalty may be assessed based on the value of the goods. Carriers are obliged to keep the authority seal unbroken until the tax authority removes it. In the event of a road accident or other vis major events, the carrier must immediately report the damage of the seal to the National Tax and Customs Authority.

BIREG. As of 1 January 2021, a new obligation was introduced that primarily targets carriers. BIREG is an electronic registration system for international transportations. However, other parties in the transport transaction, such as senders on the loading place and receivers on the unloading place are also affected by the new BIREG obligation.

Correcting errors in previous returns. Retroactive correction of the VAT returns is possible in Hungary. In this case, the taxable person can file the same tax return (in most of the cases electronically) via ticking a specific box in the return and reporting the corrected data. Depending on the nature of the mistake, the correction can be regarded as a "self-revision" (usually, where the correction has a numerical impact on the taxable person's VAT position) or can be a simple correction.

In the case of self-revision, a self-revision surcharge should also be paid if the correction results in additionally payable VAT. The self-revision surcharge is the prime rate of the Hungarian National Bank, apportioned per day. In the case of a second self-revision of the same period, the surcharge is already higher; it is 1.5 times the prime rate.

Digital tax administration. Invoicing software. Taxable persons using invoicing software should possess detailed documentation of the software in Hungarian, English, German or French (such as a user manual) and retain it until the expiry of the software license. The manual does not have to be submitted to the tax authority but must be available for review during a tax audit. The documentation should contain a detailed description of the software's operation and functions. The invoicing software should be able to perform only those functions detailed in the user documentation.

The invoicing software should furthermore comply with Hungarian invoicing rules, and the user documentation should contain descriptions accordingly, even if the issuer of the invoice is a foreign enterprise having only a VAT number in Hungary or uses the company group's invoicing software developed abroad.

Invoicing software and ERP systems of taxable persons with Hungarian VAT numbers must have a special data export function. Taxable persons will need to use this function to perform data queries concerning invoicing-related information upon the request of the tax authority. The range of data to be included in the report created by the ERP system or invoicing software and the data structure of the report are predefined by law.

Live invoice data reporting. Taxable persons have to provide the tax authority with prescribed invoice data electronically and in real time, directly from their own invoicing system. Since 1 April 2021, the data of practically all invoices issued under a HU VAT number must be reported to the tax authority in real time (except for outgoing OSS invoices and invoices reported via online cash registers). This obligation is mandatory for all taxable persons.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. If a taxable person fails to register for VAT, a default penalty up to HUF1 million applies. In addition, the VAT authorities may notify the taxable person of its obligation to register. The fine is doubled if the taxable person fails to register within the deadline specified by the tax authority.

Penalties for late payment and filings. A default penalty (maximum of HUF500,000) applies to the late submission of a VAT return, Intrastat return, Recapitulative Statement or Domestic Summary Report. Penalties of similar amount can be levied for other mistakes as well (e.g., for not complying with the invoicing rules; for a missing or inaccurate VAT return or Domestic Summary Report).

If the VAT liability is paid late, late-payment interest is charged. The interest rate is the prevailing prime rate of the Hungarian National Bank plus 5% multiplied by 1/365 for each day late.

If the VAT liability is not reported by the due date and this is discovered during a tax audit, the tax penalty is 50% of the tax arrears, plus late-payment interest.

Late-payment interest is not imposed if the taxable person is able to justify the default. Based on the circumstances of the individual case, the default penalty may be reduced or canceled by the tax authorities.

Taxable persons significantly not complying with tax rules (risky taxable persons) are subject to higher penalties, whereas taxable persons properly complying with the tax rules (trusted taxable persons) are eligible for lower penalties.

For the late filing of Intrastat returns, the Statistics Office can impose a penalty up to HUF2 million.

Penalties for errors. The failure to notify or late notification to the tax authorities of changes to a taxable person's VAT registration details can result in a maximum administrative fine between HUF200,000 (approx. EUR530) for private individual taxable persons to HUF500,000 (approx. EUR1,300) for other taxable persons. For further details, see the subsection above Changes to VAT registration details.

Late payment interest. In the event of late payment of VAT or unlawful VAT deduction, late payment interest should be paid for the period between the due date of the respective return and the minutes issued by the tax authority closing the corresponding tax audit, but for a maximum of three years.

The late payment interest shall be calculated at a rate of 1/365 of the central bank daily base rate plus five percentage points for each calendar day of the above period.

Self-revision surcharge. If the taxable person retroactively corrects its VAT liability by filing self-revision to the tax authority, it is subject to a self-revision surcharge, provided that the correction results in additional VAT liability. The self-revision surcharge should be paid at the time of filing, and it should be calculated at a rate of 1/365 of the central bank daily base rate for the period between the original due date and the filing of the self-revised VAT return (except for certain special cases).

In the case of a repeated self-revision, the payable surcharge is 1.5 times the amount calculated according to the above detailed way.

Tax penalty. In the case of tax shortage, a tax penalty should be paid that is 50% of the tax shortage.

Default penalty. Default (administrative) penalty up to HUF500,000 may be imposed in the case of taxable legal persons in the following situations (it is HUF200,000 in the case of taxable individuals):
- Improper document retention
- Late filing of (or missing to file) tax returns or reports
- Incorrect tax returns
- Missing registration or data providing obligations

Default penalty up to HUF1 million may be imposed in the following situations:
- The taxable person fails to comply with its obligation to issue an invoice, simplified invoice or receipt, or if the invoice, simplified invoice or receipt includes false value
- The taxable person conducts business activity without having a valid VAT identification number

Default penalty up to HUF500,000 per invoice may be imposed in the case of missing or incorrect live invoice data report.

EKAER. Missed EKAER reporting and the erroneous reporting of the amount or value data might result in a default penalty up to 40% of the net value of the goods transported. If the report contains errors not related to the amount or the value data (a typo in the plate number, etc.), then the general default penalties as defined in the Hungarian Act on Rules of Taxation should be applied, which is capped at HUF500,000 (approx. EUR1,300).

Qualification of taxable persons. The tax authority qualifies taxable persons on a quarterly basis. There are three categories: reliable taxable persons, general taxable persons and risky taxable persons.

In case of reliable taxable persons, the upper limit of tax penalty and default penalty is 50% of the maximum tax penalty under the general rules (with a few exceptions).

Penalties for fraud. The tax penalty is 200% of the tax shortage if it relates to the concealment of revenues, production and the use of falsified documents, ledgers or records, or the falsification or destruction of documents, ledgers or records.

Personal liability for company officers. As a general rule, the personal liability of the executive/company officers can only arise if the event relates to a criminal offense.

In the case of a criminal offense, two separate proceedings take place. One is a public administration procedure, which aims to uncover and restore the financial damages. In this case there is no individual liability, and the above listed fines are imposed on the legal entity, depending on the nature of the breach. The other one is the criminal proceeding, which aims to investigate the personal liability of the executive/company officers. If they are found guilty based on the criminal law, the penalty can be imprisonment up to three or even 10 years and prohibition on participating in public affairs, depending on the seriousness of the financial damage.

Statute of limitations. The statute of limitations in Hungary is five years. This is following the last day of the calendar year in which the given tax return is due or the tax liability should be settled.

B. Scope of the tax

A dual GST model is implemented in India where taxes are levied by both central and state governments on a common base.

GST levied by the Center is known as central tax (CGST) and that levied by states or union territories is known as state tax (SGST) or union territory tax (UTGST). Intrastate supply of goods and services attract CGST and SGST/UTGST in equal proportion.

Further, integrated tax (IGST) is levied by the Central Government on interstate supply of taxable goods and services. It is equivalent to sum of CGST and SGST.

Additionally, to compensate the states for the loss in tax revenue on account of subsuming some of the state taxes in GST, compensation cess is levied on certain specified supplies, such as luxury and sin products.

The CGST and SGST/UTGST or IGST applies to all supplies of goods and services except the exempt supplies and the supplies that are outside the purview of GST, like alcohol for human consumption and petroleum products.

The scope of supply for levy of GST is very wide. It includes all forms of supply such as sale, transfer, barter, exchange, etc., made or agreed to be made for a consideration by a person in the course or furtherance of business. Import of services for a consideration is considered a supply, whether or not it is in course or furtherance of business. Certain prescribed activities are treated as supply even if they are made without consideration. Examples of such activities include the supply of goods or services between related or distinct persons, between principal and agent, permanent transfer or disposal of business assets on which input tax credit has been availed. Certain transactions are specified to be treated as a supply of goods or a supply of services. A few transactions are specified to be neither treated as a supply of goods nor supply of services, thus making them nontaxable. Such transactions include services by an employee to the employer in course of employment, sale of land or completed buildings.

Alcoholic liquor for human consumption has been kept out of the scope of GST. Instead, it attracts state excise duty and VAT. In addition to GST, tobacco continues to attract Central excise duty. GST will be levied on petroleum products, namely, crude petroleum, high speed diesel, motor spirit, natural gas and aviation turbine fuel, following recommendation by the GST Council; until such recommendation, these products will continue to attract Central excise duty and VAT.

There are also special supplies that are treated as zero-rated supplies. See Section D. Rates below for further detail.

Effective use and enjoyment. To avoid instances of non-taxation or double taxation, jurisdictions can apply "use and enjoyment rules" that allow a service that is "used and enjoyed" in the jurisdiction to be taxed or prevent a service that is "used and enjoyed" outside the jurisdiction from being taxed. If a service is taxed in the jurisdiction under the "use and enjoyment" provisions, a non-established supplier of the service may be required to register for GST in that jurisdiction where it has customers that are not taxable persons.

In India, to avoid double taxation or non-taxation, the place of supply of services in case of 1) maintenance, repair and overhaul (MRO) services in respect of aircrafts, vessels and its parts and 2) research and development services related to pharmaceutical sector, has changed from performance based to the location of the recipient. However, there is no requirement for a non-established supplier to register for GST in India, because the Indian resident recipient will self-account the tax under reverse-charge mechanism.

Transfer of a going concern. Normally the sale of the assets of a GST-registered or GST-registrable business will be subject to GST at the appropriate rate. However, a transfer of a business as a going concern (TOGC) may be exempt from GST under certain conditions. A TOGC is the sale of a business or part of a business capable of separate operation including assets. Where the sale meets the conditions, the supply is treated as exempt from GST. The Indian GST law doesn't prescribe any specific conditions to treat a TOGC as exempt from GST. However, based on previous judicial pronouncements and other jurisdictional guides, the following criteria must be applied in to qualify a transaction as TOGC:

- The assets must be sold as part of the transfer of a "business" as a "going concern."
- Not all assets and liabilities are required to be transferred. If enough assets and liabilities are transferred so that the buyer can continue the business, it will suffice.
- The assets are to be used by the purchaser with the intention of carrying on the same kind of "business" as the seller.

Transactions between related parties. In cases where the supplier and the recipient are related persons or the price is not the sole consideration for the supply, the taxable value is to be determined under the prescribed valuation rules.

Persons are deemed to be "related" for these purposes if the following conditions apply:

- The persons are officers or directors of one another's businesses
- The persons are legally recognized partners in business
- The persons are employer and employee
- Any person directly or indirectly owns, controls or holds 25% or more of the outstanding voting stock or shares of both of the entities
- One of them directly or indirectly controls the other
- Both of them are directly or indirectly controlled by a third person
- Together they directly or indirectly control a third person
- They are members of the same family

Persons who are associated in the business of one another, in which one is the sole agent or sole distributor or sole concessionaire, are also deemed to be related.

If a person with the same PAN has two or more GST registrations (whether in the same state or different states), each such registered establishment must be treated as establishments of distinct persons.

There are specific provisions to value supplies between related or distinct persons. The same is as follows:
- Open market value of such supply
- If the open market value is not available, the value of supply of goods or services of like kind and quality
- If the value is not determinable as above, 110% of the cost of production/provision of such services or by using reasonable means consistent with the principles and the general provisions of valuation under GST

However, where the goods are intended for further supply as such by the recipient, the value shall, at the option of the supplier, be 90% of the price charged for the supply of goods of like kind and quality by the recipient to his customer not being a related person. Also, where the recipient is eligible for full input tax credit, the value declared in the invoice shall be deemed to be the open market value.

Valuation and discounts. Generally, the transaction value is considered as the taxable value for applying GST. Certain items that must be included in the taxable value are prescribed under the GST legislation. They include any interest or penalty for delayed payment of the consideration for a supply, and incidental expenses, including commission and charges for packing, charged by the supplier to the recipient of supply.

Discounts are not included in the taxable value if they are duly recorded in the invoice. Any post-sale discount should be in accordance with the contractual terms and be specifically linked to the relevant invoice.

C. Who is liable

A person who is registered under GST is liable to pay tax. The liability to pay tax is generally the obligation of the supplier. However, in certain specific cases prescribed under the GST law, the recipient of goods or services is obliged to pay the tax.

All suppliers whose aggregate turnover in a financial year exceeds the prescribed turnover threshold are required to register for GST.

In case of persons exclusively engaged in the supply of goods, the threshold limit is INR4 million. In some states that have not opted for higher threshold, the limit of INR2 million is applicable. Further, in specified special category states, the threshold limit is INR1 million.

In case of all other supplies, the threshold limit is INR2 million. However, in specified special category states, the threshold limit is INR1 million.

The following persons are required to register, irrespective of their turnover:
- Casual taxable persons making taxable supplies; a casual taxable person is any person who occasionally undertakes transactions of supply in a state or a union territory where the person has no fixed place of business
- Persons who are required to pay tax under the reverse-charge provisions
- Persons making interstate supplies of goods (except handicraft goods)
- Nonresident taxable persons making taxable supplies Thus, any person who has no fixed place of business or residence in India, but who occasionally undertakes transactions of supply of goods or services in India, must mandatorily obtain GST registration.

- Persons who are required to deduct tax at source
- Persons who make taxable supplies of goods or services, or both, on behalf of other taxable persons whether as an agent or otherwise
- Input service distributors
- Electronic commerce operators who are required to collect tax at source
- Persons supplying online information and database access or retrieval services from a place outside India to an unregistered person in India
- Persons supplying online money gaming from a place outside India to a person in India

Exemption from registration. The following persons are not liable to register for GST:

- Any person engaged exclusively in the business of supplying goods or services that are not liable to tax or that are wholly exempt from tax
- An agriculturist (farmer), to the extent of the supply of produce resulting from the cultivation of land
- Persons who are only engaged in making supplies of taxable goods or services, the total tax on which is liable to be paid via the reverse-charge mechanism
- Any other category of persons that may be notified by the government

Voluntary registration and small businesses. An entity that has turnover below the threshold may apply to register for GST voluntarily.

Group registration. Group GST registration is not allowed in India. However, a single registration can be obtained for all business units of the same legal entity within a state. Different legal entities under the same group cannot register as a single person.

Unless the taxable person obtains separate registration for a place of business in the state, all places of business in a state will be covered under single registration.

There is no minimum time period required for the duration of a single registration for all business units of the same legal entity within a state. Because there is no concept of group GST registration in India, there is no joint and several liabilities between group members. Each legal entity is responsible for its own GST debts and penalties.

Fixed establishment. The term "fixed establishment" is defined for GST purposes as a place (other than the registered place of business) that is characterized by a sufficient degree of permanence and suitable structure in terms of human and technical resources to supply services, or to receive and use services for its own needs. The same is used to determine location of the supplier and recipient of services.

Non-established businesses. A nonresident taxable person means any person who occasionally undertakes transactions involving the supply of goods or services or both, whether as principal or agent or in any other capacity, but who has no fixed place of business or residence in India. The law has not defined the term "occasionally." Practically, a view has been formed that if the taxable person has undertaken business on a regular or frequent basis, then normal GST registration may be required to be taken in India. Such a person can register for GST on its own, or it can appoint a tax representative to register it on its behalf. Appointing a tax representative is optional and not mandatory for the non-established business.

Non-established suppliers providing online information and database access or retrieval (OIDAR) services to any unregistered person in India (i.e., business-to-consumer (B2C)), are required to register and account for GST. An "unregistered person" for the above purpose will also include a person registered solely for the purpose of deducting tax at source.

In addition, non-established suppliers providing online money gaming to any person in India (B2C) are also required to register and account for GST. "Online money gaming" means online gaming in which players pay or deposit money or money's worth in the expectation of winning money or money's worth in any event including game, scheme, competition or any other activity or process. This is irrespective of whether the outcome or performance is based on skill or chance and whether the same is permissible or otherwise under any other law in India.

Tax representatives. Practicing chartered accountants, advocates, employees of a taxable person and other persons set out in the law can be authorized to represent a taxable person before the tax administration and courts of law. However, in India it is not mandatory to appoint a tax representative. A nonresident business can directly register for GST or can also appoint a tax representative. Hence, both the options are available.

Reverse charge. For certain supplies of goods and services, the tax due is payable by the recipient, instead of supplier, under the reverse-charge mechanism. In the case of import of services, the recipient importer is required to discharge the GST on reverse-charge basis.

Domestic reverse charge. The domestic reverse charge is applicable for prescribed domestic supplies. Examples of such supplies include services performed by a goods transport agency for the transportation of goods by road, services provided by an advocate, sponsorship services and renting of motor vehicle. There is also a provision requiring the recipient procuring goods or services from any unregistered person to pay tax under the reverse charge. At present, this provision has been made applicable for certain category of supplies in real estate sector.

Digital economy. For online information and database access or retrieval services provided by a person located in a nontaxable territory to an unregistered recipient in India (B2C), the tax is payable by such nonresident supplier by registering for GST in India, regardless of the turnover. For business-to-business (B2B) supplies of such services, tax is payable by the GST registered recipient, under the reverse-charge mechanism.

A nonresident supplier supplying online money gaming to any recipient in India (B2C) is also required to register and pay GST in India. This is regardless of the recipient being registered or unregistered in India (see the "Non-established businesses" subsection above).

There are no other specific e-commerce rules for imported goods in India.

Online marketplaces and platforms. Online marketplaces/platforms (referred in the GST law as "e-commerce operators") are required to collect tax at source at 1% of value of taxable supplies made through it by other suppliers. The requirement to collect tax at source is applicable only in cases where the consideration with respect to such supplies is collected by the e-commerce operator. They are required to register for such collection of tax at source, regardless of their turnover.

Further, GST in respect of certain notified categories of services supplied by other suppliers through e-commerce operators (viz., accommodation, housekeeping, transport of passengers by motor vehicle and restaurant services) shall be paid by such operators as if it is the supplier liable for paying tax in relation to supply of such services.

Registration procedures. The application for GST registration must be completed online. Scanned copies of the documents prescribed by law must be submitted along with the application for registration. The documents required to be submitted for GST registration include:
- Constitution of business (e.g., certificate of incorporation)
- Proof of principal place of business
- Bank account-related proof
- Authorization form and board resolution appointing authorized signatory

The applicant will also have to undergo Aadhar authentication, failing which, the tax authorities will do a physical verification of the place of business of the applicant. After undertaking a review of the application and the documents submitted with it, the relevant authorities grant a GST registration certificate to the applicant.

Aadhar is a 12-digit unique identity number allotted by the Government to the citizens of India and resident foreign nationals, based on their biometric and demographic data. Once the Aadhar number is submitted along with the application for registration, the applicant will be required to electronically verify its details on the GST Portal using the authentication link sent to the mobile number and the e-mail-id linked to the Aadhar. It consists of a one-time password (OTP) that must be entered on the Portal, and it gets electronically validated. Aadhar authentication is mainly to verify the identity of the taxable person to avoid any false registrations.

Deregistration. A GST registration can be canceled if the business is discontinued or transferred fully or if there is a change in the constitution of the business or if the person is no longer liable for compulsory registration.

Changes to GST registration details. If there is any change in a taxable person's GST registration details, the registered person should submit an application online for an amendment in registration particulars. The application needs to be submitted within 15 days of the time the change took place.

When there is a change in constitution of the registered person, resulting in change in the Permanent Account Number (PAN), then application for new registration should be made.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of GST, including the zero rate.

The GST rates for goods and services are 0.25%, 3%, 5%, 12%, 18% and 28%. Some goods and services are exempt from tax, while items of gold and precious stones attract lower GST rates of 3% and 0.25%, respectively. GST compensation cess (see Section B. Scope of the tax) at varying rates is levied on supplies of certain specified goods and services.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0.25% and 3%

- Diamonds and other precious stones
- Gold
- Silver

Examples of goods and services taxable at 5%

- Coal and biogas
- Air transport of passengers in economy class
- Restaurants
- Construction services of residential apartment

Examples of goods and services taxable at 12% and 18%

- Electrical apparatus for radio and television broadcasting
- Hotel accommodation
- Intellectual property rights
- Construction services (other than residential apartments)
- Banking services

Examples of goods and services taxable at 28%

- Motor cars
- Air conditioners
- Aerated drinks
- Access to race clubs and casinos
- Online money gaming

Examples of goods attracting compensation cess

- Tobacco and tobacco products
- Motor cars

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to tax and do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Fruits and vegetables
- Access to a road or a bridge by payment of toll charges
- The transfer of a going concern

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0% (i.e., zero-rated supplies)

- Exports
- Supplies to a special economic zone (SEZ) unit of SEZ developer

The tax rate of such supplies is not zero as such, but they are so termed because the net incidence of tax in such cases is nil.

A registered person may make zero-rated supplies without payment of tax under a bond or Letter of Undertaking. Subsequently, the supplier can claim refund of unutilized input tax credit. Alternatively, a zero-rated supply can be made on payment of tax, which can be claimed as a refund subsequently. Presently, this option is not available for the supply of specified tobacco related products.

Exports should be free of taxes, as per the government policy, and therefore all the taxes that are paid in relation to exports are ultimately refunded. In some cases, either the exporter or the supplier to a SEZ may not want to get into the process of filing a bond or Letter of Undertaking, in which case, they may prefer to pay tax on export (or supply to a SEZ) by way of utilization of the input tax credit on procurements and then claim the cash refund of tax so paid.

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in India.

E. Time of supply

The time of supply for goods is the date on which an invoice is issued or the last date on which invoice is required to be issued. However, time of supply in respect of a specified actionable claim shall be the earlier of the date on which the invoice is issued/required to be issued or the date of receipt of consideration. A "specified actionable claim" means an actionable claim involved in betting, casinos, gambling, horse racing, lottery or online money gaming.

For services, the time of supply is the date of the invoice or receipt of the consideration, whichever is earlier. However, if the invoice is not issued within a prescribed time limit, the time of supply is the date of provision of the service or receipt of the consideration, whichever is earlier.

Deposits and prepayments. A deposit given in respect of a supply of goods or services, or both is not considered as payment made for that supply unless the supplier treats the deposit as consideration for the supply. Prepayment for a supply of goods does not trigger tax payment (except for specified actionable claim). However, prepayment for a supply of service triggers a tax payment (as discussed in the sections above).

Continuous supplies of services. There are no separate provisions for determining the time of supply for the supply of continuous supply of services. However, the time of supply is linked to the issuance of invoices, and there are separate provisions for the issuance of invoices in the case of continuous supply of services. If the due date for payment is ascertainable from the contract for continuous supply of services, then the invoice should be issued on or before the due date of payment. If the due date of payment is not ascertainable from the contract, then the invoice should be issued before or at the time when the supplier of the service receives the payment. If the payment is linked to the completion of an event, the invoice must be issued on or before the date of completion of that event.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no separate provisions for determining the time of supply for the supply of goods sent on approval for sale or return. However, the time of supply is linked to the issuance of invoices and the invoice in this scenario shall be issued before or at the time of supply (actual supply) or six months from the date of removal, whichever is earlier.

Reverse-charge services. For taxable services provided by a supplier located outside India and received in India, IGST must be paid by the recipient in India under the reverse charge. The time of supply is the date when payment is made to the foreign supplier. If the payment is not made within 60 days of the date of invoice, the time of supply is the date immediately following the end of the 60-day period.

For transactions with associated enterprises, the time of supply is the date of entry in the books of account of the recipient or the date of payment, whichever is earlier.

Leased assets. There are no special time of supply rules in India for supplies of leased assets. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

Imported goods. IGST and compensation cess (if applicable) are levied at the time of importation of goods and they are collected as a part of customs duty.

Vouchers. If the supply is identifiable at the time of issuance of the voucher, the time of supply is the date of issue of the voucher, otherwise, the time of supply is the date of redemption of the voucher.

F. Recovery of GST by taxable persons

A registered person is entitled to take credit for tax charged on goods or services procured by it, provided they are procured in the course or furtherance of business; this is called input tax credit (ITC). IGST and compensation cess (if applicable) paid at the time of import are also available as input tax credit. Such input tax credit can be utilized to discharge the taxable person's liability for GST on sales (output tax).

A valid tax invoice and the actual receipt of the goods or services are mandatory conditions for claiming input tax credit.

The recipient of a supply is not eligible to claim input tax credit if the supplier has not paid the output tax on that supply to the Government.

Further, input tax credit shall not be allowed to a taxable person if the corresponding invoices are not reported by the supplier in its returns, thus restricting the input tax credit to the extent of matched invoices.

The input tax credit cannot be claimed beyond a stipulated time frame. This time frame is the earlier of:

- 30 November following the end of financial year to which the invoice relates
  Or
- Submission of the relevant annual return for the financial year to which the invoice relates

If the recipient fails to pay the value of the supply and GST charged thereon to the supplier within a period of 180 days from the date the invoice was issued, the credit that has been taken needs to be reversed along with payment of interest (in case credit has been utilized). However, the credit can be reclaimed subsequently when payment is made to the supplier and the above time limit shall not apply.

Input tax credit for IGST should be first utilized to discharge output tax on account of IGST. The remaining IGST credit can be utilized towards payment of CGST and SGST, in any order.

After utilizing the IGST credit fully, the ITC of CGST can be utilized against output tax of CGST and then IGST. In the same manner, SGST credit can be utilized for payment of SGST first and then IGST.

CGST credit cannot be utilized for payment of SGST and vice versa.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax credit is not available for goods and services used for making exempt supplies or for a nonbusiness purpose. For this purpose, the value of exempt supplies includes supplies on which the recipient is liable to pay tax on the reverse-charge basis, transactions in securities and the sale of land or completed buildings and excludes interest on loans and deposits (other than in the case of banks and financial institutions).

Further, the GST law specifies a list of goods and services for which no input tax credit is available.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Motor vehicles for transportation of persons with seating capacity up to 13 persons (except in specified circumstances)
- Goods or services received by a taxable person, which are used or intended to be used for activities relating to its obligations under corporate social responsibility
- Membership of a club, health or fitness center
- Goods or services for the construction of immovable property (except plant and machinery) on own account; for this purpose, plant and machinery excludes land, building or any other civil structure, telecommunication tower and pipelines laid outside a factory
- Goods or services used for personal consumption
- Goods lost, stolen, destroyed, written off or disposed of as a gift or free sample

In addition, tax charged by a taxable person who has opted for the composition scheme is not eligible as input tax credit.

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Hotel accommodation of employees
- Lease rentals for office premises
- Motor vehicles for transportation of persons with seating capacity of more than 13 persons

At the time of booking the invoice, the taxable person must check whether the expense relates to the cases for which input tax is not deductible.

Partial exemption. If the goods or services acquired by a business are used for making both taxable and exempt supplies, the input tax credit is allowed proportionately to the extent of the value of the taxable supplies made. A formula has been prescribed for apportioning the credit, based on turnover of taxable and exempt supplies. A banking company or a financial institution engaged in supplying services by way of accepting deposits, extending loans or advances has the option to either claim a proportionate credit as above or take 50% of the eligible input tax credit.

Capital goods. Goods whose value is capitalized in the accounts of the business are treated as capital goods for GST purpose.

Input tax credit on capital goods can be claimed fully once the goods are received by the recipient. However, credit is not available if the capital goods are used for nonbusiness purpose or for making exempt supplies. If the capital goods are used partly for taxable and partly for exempt supplies, the credit attributable to exempt supplies has to be reversed every month for a period of five years. A formula has been prescribed for determining such an amount of reversal.

On sale of capital goods, the higher of the following amounts is payable:
- An amount equal to the input tax credit taken on the capital goods reduced by prescribed percentage points
- Tax on the transaction value of supply

Refunds. Refunds can be claimed for tax paid on zero-rated supplies or deemed export supplies. Refunds of unutilized input tax credit can be claimed if the purchases are used in making zero-rated supplies or if the credit has been accumulated because the tax rate on inputs acquired by the taxable person is higher than the tax rate on the person's output supplies.

Certain supplies (such as the supply of goods to an export-oriented unit) are treated as deemed exports. For deemed exports, either the recipient or the supplier can claim a refund of the tax paid.

Pre-registration costs. A registered person who is newly registered for GST is entitled to take credit for input tax in respect of inputs held in stock and inputs contained in semi-finished or finished goods held in stock on the day immediately preceding the date the registration is granted.

Bad debts. Output tax accounted for on supplies that do not get paid by the recipient (i.e., bad debts) cannot be recovered in India.

Noneconomic activity. Input tax incurred on purchases that are not used in the course or furtherance of business is not recoverable in India.

G. Recovery of GST by non-established businesses

Input tax incurred by non-established businesses that do not have any presence in India is recoverable in certain instances. Where a non-established business is registered as a nonresident taxable person, only the IGST and cess paid on import of goods by such person can be recovered.

In addition, input tax can be recovered by non-established businesses that are registered for the purpose of paying tax on the provision of online information and database access or retrieval services and online money gaming provided by it.

H. Invoicing

GST invoices. A registered taxable person must issue a tax invoice for all supplies of taxable goods or services. For exempt supplies or supplies made by a person who has opted for the composition scheme, a "bill of supply" must be issued instead of a tax invoice. A registered person making both taxable as well as exempt supplies to an unregistered person may issue a consolidated invoice-cum-bill of supply.

While no standard format has been prescribed for invoices and bills of supply, certain details must be included in the relevant document, such as a description of the supply, the value, details of the recipient and the Harmonized System of Nomenclature (HSN) code, etc.

The time limit for issuing an invoice depends on the nature of the supply, specifically, whether it is a supply of goods or services.

For a supply of goods, a tax invoice should be issued before or at the time of:
- Removal of goods (where supply involves movement of goods)
  Or
- Delivery or making goods available to the recipient

For services, a tax invoice should be issued within 30 days of provision of the services. Banking and insurance companies need to issue invoice within 45 days from the date of the supply of service.

For a continuous supply of goods, where successive statements of account or successive payments are involved, the invoice should be issued before or at the time when the periodic statement is issued, or payment is received.

For a continuous supply of services, if the due date for payment is ascertainable from the contract, the invoice should be issued on or before the due date for payment. If the due date of payment is not ascertainable from the contract, the invoice should be issued before or at the time when the supplier of the service receives the payment. If the payment is linked to the completion of an event, the invoice should be issued on or before the date of completion of that event.

For goods sent on approval for sale or return, the invoice should be issued before or at the time of supply or six months from the date of removal, whichever is earlier.

Whenever a registered person receives an advance payment with respect to any supply of goods or services or both, it must issue a receipt voucher evidencing the receipt of the payment. If a receipt voucher is issued, but subsequently no supply is made and no tax invoice is issued, a registered person who has received an advance payment can issue a refund voucher against the payment.

Credit notes. Adjustments such as an increase or reduction in the taxable value can be done through debit notes and credit notes. Any credit notes should be issued no later than 30 November of the year following that in which the supply was made or by the date of filing of the relevant annual return, whichever is earlier.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is mandatory in India for certain taxable persons.

For B2B and B2G supplies, from 1 August 2023, all taxable persons whose aggregate turnover in any financial year exceeds INR50 million must follow the procedure prescribed for electronic invoicing with respect to supplies made to registered persons and for exports. Such invoices should contain an invoice reference number (IRN), which should be obtained by uploading specified information on the Common GST Electronic Portal. Note that government departments, local authorities, insurers, banking companies, financial institutions, goods transport agencies, suppliers engaged in passenger transportation services and SEZ units are exempt from the above requirement.

For B2C supplies, taxable persons that have an aggregate turnover of more than INR5 billion in any preceding financial year from 2017-18 onward are required to provide a dynamic quick response (QR) code on invoices issued to unregistered customers (B2C invoices). The dynamic QR code must contain details of the supplier, invoice, the payee's bank account and the GST amount. The dynamic QR code should be capable of being scanned to make a digital payment.

In case of exhibition of cinematograph films in multiplex screens, it is mandatory to issue an electronic ticket (which will be considered as tax invoice).

Where invoices are generated and issued electronically, signature of supplier or its authorized representative is not required.

Simplified GST invoices. For insurance companies, banking or financial institutions, multiplexes and suppliers of passenger transport services, certain requirements for invoicing have been relaxed. The relaxation is mainly with respect to details of service recipient and serial number of documents. Insurance companies, banking or financial institutions also have the option to issue consolidated tax invoice at the end of the month.

Self-billing. Self-billing is allowed in India. It is allowed where the tax due is payable by a customer for a supply subject to the reverse-charge mechanism, and the supplier is not registered for GST; then the customer is required to operate a type of self-billing. This is done by the customer issuing an invoice in respect of the goods or services received from the unregistered supplier.

Proof of exports. Export invoices must carry an endorsement indicating the option exercised by the exporter and must contain the name and address of the recipient, address of delivery and the name of the country of destination.

In case of exports without payment of tax, goods must generally be exported within three months from the date of invoice.

Foreign currency invoices. Generally, invoices are issued in the domestic currency, which is the Indian rupee (INR). However, for exports, the invoices may be issued in foreign currency. In such cases, GST rules provide for adopting a rate of exchange for determining taxable value.

For goods, the rate of exchange will be the rate notified by Central Board of Indirect Taxes and Customs under the Customs Act. For services, the rate of exchange will be the rate determined as per generally accepted accounting principles on the date of time of supply of such services..

Supplies to nontaxable persons. A registered person is not required to issue a tax invoice if the value of the supply to unregistered persons is less than INR200 and the recipient does not require an invoice. For a supply made by a registered person to an unregistered person below the value of INR50,000, the supplier is allowed to issue a document without the name and address of the recipient of the supply and the address of delivery. However, in above case, where the transaction involves taxable supply of services by or through online marketplace/platforms or supply of online information and database access or retrieval services or online money gaming, the invoice shall contain the name of the state of the recipient.

Records. Every GST-registered person is required to maintain the prescribed accounts and records. In India, examples of what records that must be held for GST purposes include details of inward and outward supplies, stock of goods, input tax credit availed, GST paid on outward supplies. Relevant documents like invoices, bills of supply, delivery challans, credit notes, debit notes, receipt vouchers, payment vouchers and refund vouchers are to be preserved.

In India, VAT books and records can be kept outside of the country. This is only allowed if the taxable person does not have any place of business in India. Such records are required to be maintained at the principal place of business (i.e., this can be physically in India or outside). Where there are additional places of business mentioned in the registration certificate, the accounts relating to each additional place of business should be kept at such place.

Record retention period. The accounts and records are required to be retained for 72 months (i.e., 6 years) from the due date of furnishing of annual return for the year pertaining to such accounts and records.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is allowed in India. The records can be kept and archived electronically, subject to certain conditions. However, invoices received from supplier in physical form need to be maintained in their original form if input tax credit is taken with respect to such invoices.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. A return containing a summary of inward and outward transactions must be filed and GST payment is to be made on a monthly basis by the 20th of the next month. Also, a return containing invoice details of outward supplies is to be filed on monthly or quarterly basis, as applicable by 11th of the next month.

Taxable persons with turnover of less than INR50 million can file returns on a quarterly basis with tax payments to be done monthly.

Persons who have opted for the composition scheme have to file returns annually and make payment of tax quarterly.

Periodic payments. The tax liability pertaining to a specific month must be paid by the 20th of the succeeding month. However, taxable persons with an aggregate turnover up to INR50 million in the previous financial year must pay tax on or before the 22nd/24th of the succeeding month, depending on the state of registration.

The tax due can be paid using internet banking, credit or debit cards, national electronic fund transfer, real-time gross settlement or any other prescribed method.

Interest is levied with respect to nonpayment or late payment of tax. The rate of interest for a delay in payment of tax is 18% per annum.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is mandatory in India for all taxable persons. The returns are to be filed on the common online portal at www.gst.gov.in. Before filing the return for a tax period, the return for all previous tax periods must also be filed with the tax authorities.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in India.

Special schemes. Composition scheme. Manufacturers, traders and restaurants with turnover of up to INR15 million may opt for taxation under the "composition scheme." Under this scheme, suppliers pay tax at a flat rate on all their supplies, with no right of input tax credit for the tax paid on their purchases. The flat rate for manufacturers and traders is 1%. For restaurants, the tax rate is 5%. Certain conditions are prescribed for opting for the composition scheme, such as the supplier is not engaged in making interstate supplies of goods or supplies not subject to tax. A manufacturer or trader opting for this composition scheme can provide services only up to the specified limit.

Flat rate scheme for other small businesses. Other businesses can opt to pay tax at a flat rate of 6% if their turnover in the preceding financial year is up to INR5 million, subject to certain conditions.

Secondhand goods. Traders dealing in buying and selling of secondhand goods have an option to pay tax on the margin, i.e., the difference between the selling price and the purchase price, without recovery of input tax on purchase of goods.

Similarly, there are specific schemes for taxing the transactions of money exchange bureaus, air travel agents, and life insurance businesses.

Annual returns. Every registered person must submit an annual GST return for each financial year by 31 December following the end of the financial year. This is in addition to the monthly/quarterly GST returns (see the Periodic returns subsection above). Taxable persons with an aggregate turnover up to INR20 million have been exempted from filing annual return for FY 2022-23.

Supplementary filings. Taxable persons that have an aggregate turnover exceeding INR50 million are required to submit a self-certified reconciliation statement, along with the annual return (external certification in earlier periods).

Correcting errors in previous returns. Any omission or incorrect particulars should be disclosed or rectified in the return for the subsequent period during which the same was noticed. However, rectification is not allowed after 30 November following the end of relevant financial year or after the annual return for that financial year has been filed, whichever is earlier. There are no separate provisions for submitting corrections in paper or in person by approaching tax authorities.

Digital tax administration. There are no transactional reporting requirements in India.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. A penalty of INR20,000 may apply for failure to obtain a registration.

Penalties for late payment and filings. Nonpayment of tax, an incomplete tax payment, an incorrect refund or incorrect use of input tax credit is liable to a penalty of INR20,000 or 10% of the tax due, whichever is higher.

The late filing of periodic returns also attracts a penalty calculated on a daily basis with maximum cap of INR10,000.

Relief from the penalty due is provided if the defaulter pays the tax due with interest as and when a "show cause" notice is issued by the appropriate authority. The penalty must be paid only in cash (i.e., input tax credit cannot be used to pay the penalty).

Penalties for errors. A penalty is imposed on other offenses including the following: issuing incorrect or fake invoices, noncompliance while transporting goods, distribution of input tax credits by an input service distributor by not following prescribed provisions and non-maintenance of books that must be maintained by law. Most of these offenses attract a penalty at INR20,000 or an amount equivalent to the tax amount involved, whichever is higher.

Penalties for fraud. If any offense is carried out with fraudulent intention, the penalty is INR20,000 or an amount equivalent to the tax due, whichever is higher.

Personal liability for company officers. If any offense is committed by a company under the GST law, proceedings can be initiated against every person who, at the time of the offense, was in charge of and was responsible to the company for the conduct of its business. If it is found that an offense has been committed with the consent or due to the negligence of any director, manager, secretary or other officer of the company, then such persons would also be deemed guilty, and proceedings can be initiated against them as well.

If the person proves that the offense was committed without their knowledge or that they had exercised all due diligence to prevent the commission of such offense, then they shall not be liable for punishment.

If any tax, interest or penalty due from a private company cannot be recovered, then, every person who was a director of the company during such period is jointly and severally liable for such payment unless they prove that the non-recovery cannot be attributed to any gross neglect, misfeasance or breach of duty on their part in relation to the affairs of the company.

Statute of limitations. The statute of limitations in India is three years. In case of nonpayment or underpayment of the tax, an incorrect refund or an incorrect recovery of input tax, the tax authorities can issue a demand order within three years from the due date of the filing of the relevant annual return or the date of erroneous refund.

In cases involving fraud, the tax authorities have a period of five years, instead of three years, to issue the demand order.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:

- Deliveries of taxable goods and taxable services within the Indonesia Customs Area done in the course of business by a taxable entrepreneur
- Imports of taxable goods into Indonesia, regardless status of the importer

- The use of taxable services and intangible goods from overseas within the Indonesia Customs Area
- Export of taxable goods (tangible or intangible) and/or taxable services by a taxable entrepreneur
- Self-construction activities performed outside the course of business or work by an individual or company if the results are for the person's own use or for the use of others
- Deliveries of assets not originally acquired for sale; an exemption applies if the input tax on the acquisition cannot be credited because the purchase was not related to business or because it was a purchase of a sedan or station wagon
- The definition of delivery of taxable goods excludes delivery of taxable goods under a consignment
- The delivery of taxable goods as equity contribution shall not be regarded as a taxable delivery if:
  - Both transferor and the transferee are registered as a taxable person (i.e., a "VAT-able entrepreneur")
  - The purpose of taxable goods is "delivery for a capital contribution to a company" as defined by the VAT law

Effective use and enjoyment. To avoid instances of non-taxation or double taxation, jurisdictions can apply "use and enjoyment" rules that allow a service that is "used and enjoyed" in the jurisdiction to be taxed or prevent a service that is "used and enjoyed" outside the jurisdiction from being taxed. If a service is taxed in the jurisdiction under the "use and enjoyment" provisions, a non-established supplier of the service may be required to register for VAT in every jurisdiction where it has customers that are not taxable persons. In Indonesia, no services are subject to the "use and enjoyment" provisions.

Transfer of a going concern. Normally the sale of the assets of a VAT-registered or VAT-registrable business will be subject to VAT at the appropriate rate. However, a transfer of a business as a going concern (TOGC) may be outside the scope of the tax under certain conditions. A TOGC is the sale of a business or part of a business capable of separate operation, including assets. Where the sale meets the conditions, the supply is treated as outside the scope of VAT. In Indonesia, a TOGC is referred to as a transfer of taxable goods, and when to the effect of a merger, amalgamation, expansion, demerger and business takeover, as well as transfer of taxable goods for the purpose of paying for capital in lieu of shares, provided that the transferor and the transferee are taxable persons, the transaction is excluded in the definition of delivery of taxable goods (i.e., is treated as outside the scope of VAT). A "demerger" is defined as a separation of businesses as referred to in the law that governs limited liability companies.

The specific VAT treatment of a transfer of taxable goods to the effect of a merger, amalgamation, expansion, demerger and business takeover, as well as a transfer of taxable goods for the purpose of paying for capital in lieu of shares, is as follows:

- Where the transaction is between a taxable person and another taxable person, it is excluded from the definition of delivery of taxable goods; thus no VAT is payable.
- An entrepreneur who has not been, or is not confirmed to be, a taxable person is included in the definition of delivery of taxable goods; thus, VAT is payable but not collected by that entrepreneur because it has not been, or is not confirmed to be, a taxable person.
  Or
- A taxable person to an entrepreneur who has not been, or is not confirmed to be, a taxable person is included in the definition of the delivery of taxable goods; thus VAT is payable and must be collected by the taxable person. In the event that the transferred taxable goods are in the form of assets, which according to their original purpose are not for sale, then the VAT to be imposed on the transfer of taxable goods is in accordance with the provisions that govern the delivery of taxable goods in the form of assets, which according to their original purpose are not for sale.

Transactions between related parties. In Indonesia, for a transaction between related parties, the value for VAT purposes is calculated on the basis of the fair market price at the time the delivery of taxable goods or taxable services is made. If the effect of the special relationship is the possibility of the price being set to be lower than the market price, then in this case, the Director General of Taxes has the authority to adjust the selling price or reimbursement that becomes the tax imposition base with the fair market price applicable in the free market.

C. Who is liable

All businesses engaged in supplies of goods or services subject to VAT are required to register for VAT as "taxable entrepreneurs," unless they qualify as small entrepreneurs (i.e., they do not meet the minimum criteria of gross turnover of IDR4.8 billion as mandated in the regulation). This requirement also applies to any permanent establishment of a nonresident business located in Indonesia.

Exemption from registration. The VAT law in Indonesia does not contain any provision for exemption from registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. It is possible for a taxable business that is not required to register for VAT under the VAT law in Indonesia (e.g., because it makes supplies within the scope of VAT, but its turnover is lower than any registration threshold) to register for VAT on a voluntary basis (e.g., because all its supplies are made to other businesses and it wants to recover input tax on its purchases).

A business qualifies as a small entrepreneur if its gross annual turnover (from supplies of goods or services) does not exceed IDR4.8 billion.

Group registration. Group VAT registration is not allowed in Indonesia.

Fixed establishment. In Indonesia there is no legal definition of a fixed establishment for VAT purposes. The income tax law defines permanent establishment, but does not apply for VAT.

Non-established businesses. Non-established businesses cannot register for VAT in Indonesia. They must have a permanent establishment located in Indonesia to register for VAT. However, non-established businesses that sell digital goods and/or services could be appointed by the Director General of Taxes (DGT) as VAT Collectors on delivery of digital goods and/or services.

Tax representatives. A legal requirement to appoint a fiscal representative in Indonesia by a non-established business is not imposed. However, the business may appoint a proxy to satisfy VAT compliance requirements in Indonesia.

Reverse charge. VAT is imposed on utilization of taxable services and intangible taxable goods provided by overseas entities inside the Indonesia Customs Area. The VAT shall be self-assessed by the party that receives the taxable services and intangible taxable goods.

Utilization of intangible taxable goods and taxable services shall occur at the earliest of the following moments:

- The acquisition price is declared as debt by the party that receives them.
- The selling price of intangible taxable goods or reimbursement for taxable services is collected by the party who delivers them.
- The acquisition price of intangible taxable goods or taxable services is paid, entirely or in part, by the party who utilizes them.

Depending on the status of the party who utilizes the taxable service or intangible taxable goods, the paid self-assessed VAT shall be claimed as a tax credit or claimed as a cost. Provided certain conditions are met, the self-assessed VAT assessed by the tax auditor and reflected in the VAT assessment can still be credited.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Indonesia.

Digital economy. Effective 1 July 2020, Perdagangan Melalui Sistem Elektronik [PMSE]) VAT (i.e., trading through an electronic system) is liable to VAT at a rate of 11% and shall be imposed on imported digital goods and/or services in the context of business-to-business (B2B) and business-to-consumer (B2C) transactions. A customer is an individual or entity that provides an Indonesian billing address or mailing address for its account with the seller, uses payment facilities such as credit or debit cards issued by Indonesian financial institutions, and/or places orders using Indonesian internet protocol addresses or country calling codes.

Digital goods are any intangible goods in the form of electronic or digital information, including goods that are converted in this format and goods that are originally in an electronic format, but are not limited to software, multimedia and/or electronic data.

Digital services are any services sent through the internet or an electronic network, automatization or involve little human intervention, and are impossible to be conducted without information technology, and are not only limited to software-based services.

However, for the use of intangible goods and/or services that are not subject to VAT or exempt from VAT imposition, are excluded from PMSE VAT collection.

The following taxable persons may be appointed by DGT as a VAT Collector (i.e., must register and account for VAT on their supplies in Indonesia):
- Overseas entrepreneurs or online retailers who supply digital products to Indonesian customers (B2B and B2C)
- Overseas operators of online marketplaces who supply digital products to Indonesian customers (B2B and B2C)
- Indonesian operators of online marketplaces who supply foreign digital products to Indonesian customers (B2B and B2C)

For all those meeting the threshold and appointed as VAT Collector by the Director General of Taxes (DGT), the threshold is as follows:
- The value of transactions with buyers in Indonesia exceeds IDR600 million (approx. USD42,850) in one year or IDR50 million (approx. USD3,570) in one month
  And/or
- The amount of traffic or access in Indonesia exceeds 12,000 in one year or 1,000 in one month

PMSE businesses meeting the threshold but not appointed by the DGT can choose to be appointed as PMSE VAT Collectors by submitting notification to the DGT.

The DGT appoints PMSE Entrepreneurs who have met the criteria threshold as PMSE VAT Collectors by issuing the DGT Decree that takes effect at the beginning of the following month after the date of the decision. PMSE Entrepreneurs may choose to be appointed as PMSE VAT Collectors through notification to the DGT. This notification will be taken into consideration for the appointment of PMSE VAT Collectors.

A PMSE VAT Collector will be given a tax ID number as a means of tax administration used as identification of a PMSE VAT Collector in exercising their rights and fulfilling their tax obligations.

Invoicing, price display and record-keeping are in the form of commercial invoices, billing, order receipts or similar documents that state the collection of VAT and VAT payment.

PMSE VAT Collectors are required to deposit VAT for each tax period at the bank/perception post or other perception institution by the end of the month following the month after the tax period ends. PMSE VAT Collectors are required to report the collected and paid VAT on a quarterly basis, no later than the end of the month following the month after the quarterly period ends. At the request of the DGT, PMSE VAT Collectors are required to report details of VAT transactions collected for each individual calendar year period, i.e., the PMSE VAT annual report.

There are no other specific e-commerce rules for imported goods in Indonesia.

Online marketplaces and platforms. Overseas and domestic operators of online marketplaces who supply digital goods/services to Indonesian customers (B2B and B2C) that are meeting the threshold could be appointed by or submit notification to the DGT to be appointed as VAT Collectors on digital goods and/or services.

For physical goods sold by an overseas online marketplace to an Indonesian customer, import duty for a shipment of goods is exempt if total import value is up to customs value of free-onboard USD3 per shipment. This regulation is in effect from 30 January 2020.

Registration procedures. Taxable persons who meet the definition of "taxable entrepreneur" must register with one of these two tax authorities:
- The tax office whose jurisdiction includes the taxable person's residence or domicile or place of business.
- Another tax office assigned to that taxable person by the provisions of tax laws and regulations.

In the event that a taxable person's business is resident in two or more tax office jurisdictions, the DGT can stipulate where the taxable person must register.

The application should be directly submitted to the tax office using the hard copy form prescribed by the DGT. For individual entrepreneurs, they have to bring an ID card (for Indonesian citizens) or copy of their passport, a limited stay permit (Kartu Izin Tinggal Terbatas [KITAS]) or a permanent stay permit (Kartu Izin Tinggal Tetap [KITAP]) (for foreign nationals). For corporate entrepreneurs, they have to bring the deed of establishment or document of establishment and the amendments (for domestic entity) or statement letter of appointment from the head office (for permanent establishment) and documents of identity of all administrators.

During the verification process, the tax office may conduct a visit to the taxable person's office.

Deregistration. The DGT ex officio or upon application of the taxable person can revoke the VAT registration number in the event that one of the following circumstances arises:
- The taxable entrepreneur has noneffective taxable person status.
- The taxable entrepreneur undergoes a temporary deactivation of a taxable entrepreneur account and is not conveying clarification or conveying clarification but rejected.
- The taxable entrepreneur who, based on field examination, results in the context of the activation of a taxable entrepreneur account that there is no conformity of the information.
- The taxable entrepreneur who doesn't submit a request for activation of taxable entrepreneur account within three months.
- The individual taxable entrepreneur who has passed away and did not leave any inheritance.
- The taxable entrepreneur of permanent establishment has ceased business activity in Indonesia.
- The taxable entrepreneur's place of VAT payment has been centralized in other places.
- The taxable entrepreneur misuses the VAT registration number.

The revocation of a VAT registration number shall be performed by tax audit, and it shall not eliminate any VAT obligation of the taxable entrepreneur.

Changes to VAT registration details. If there is a change in taxable person's registration details (e.g., name of company, address, type of business, change of director or commissioner), the taxable person has to submit a taxable person data change form that has been prescribed by the DGT. There is no time limit for this taxable person data change form submission, but it is suggested to submit it immediately when the change happens. In the event that the change relates to the change of the authorized person for signing the tax invoices, the taxable person must submit a notification letter to inform the tax office of the new authorized person who is to sign the tax invoices. This letter should be submitted at the latest by the end of following month since the new authorized person starts signing the tax invoice.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including at the zero-rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 11%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for the zero rate or an exemption.

The Harmonization of Tax Regulations (Harmonisasi Peraturan Perpajakan [HPP]) law was signed by the Indonesian president and officially enacted on 29 October 2021. The law announced that the standard VAT rate is increased from 10% to 11% (effective from 1 April 2022) and from 11% to 12% (at a point in the future no later than 1 January 2025). Certain taxable goods/services may also be subject to a specific VAT rate. At the time of preparing this chapter, further detail on the standard rate increase from 11% to 12% has not been announced.

Note that the VAT rate can be changed to a minimum of 5% and a maximum of 15% regulated by a government regulation after being submitted by the government to the House of Representatives of the Republic of Indonesia.

In addition to the above, also in the HPP law, there is a broadening of the VAT base to remove the exemptions for a number of previously exempt services (e.g., medical, financial services). Certain previously exempt essential goods and mined minerals will now also be subject to VAT. However, there is a possibility for the implementing regulations to provide VAT concessions for certain of the aforementioned goods and services. At the time of preparing this chapter, further detail on the specific goods and services have not been announced.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Exported taxable services subject to zero-rated VAT:
  - Activities that are inherently related to the exported movable goods, which will be used outside Indonesian Customs Area (ICA); under this type of activities are:
    - Toll manufacturing services
    - Repair and maintenance services
    - Freight forwarding service on an export transaction
  - Activities that are inherently related to the immovable properties that are located outside ICA; under this category are construction consulting services, which cover feasibility study, planning and construction designing of a building or building master plan that is located outside ICA
  - Activities other than the above for which the result is delivered to be utilized outside ICA, by way directly or indirectly delivered, among others, by post and electronic channel; or the provision of rights to be used/accessed outside of the ICA, based on the request from the recipient of taxable services; under this type of services are:
    - Technology and information services
    - Research and development services
    - Transportation rental services in the form of rental of aircraft and/or vessel for international aviation or shipping activity

- Business and management consulting services, legal consulting services, architecture and interior design consulting services, human resources consulting services, engineering consulting services (engineering services), marketing consulting services (marketing services), accounting or bookkeeping services, financial statement audit services and tax services
- Trading services in the form of procurement to find suppliers within the ICA for export transaction
- Interconnection, satellite providers and/or communication/data connectivity services

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

The VAT exemption also applies to supplies or importation of goods that fall under the category of "strategic goods."

Examples of exempt supplies of "strategic goods"

- Capital goods in the form of plant machinery and equipment, in either built-up or knock-down condition, which are used directly in the process of producing taxable goods by the taxable entrepreneurs who produce the taxable goods, including those whose acquisitions are carried out by parties doing integrated construction work, excluding spare parts
- Livestock, poultry, fish feed and raw materials for the manufacture of livestock, poultry and fish feed
- Agricultural produce (i.e., goods produced from business activities in the sectors of agriculture, plantations, forestry, livestock farming, hunting or trapping, or breeding fisheries, whether from fishing or cultivation)
- Seeds or sperm of agricultural, plantation, forestry, livestock, breeding or fishery products
- Raw materials of silver crafts in the form of silver granules and/or in the form of silver bars
- Housing units of Rumah Susun Sederhana Milik, whose acquisition is financed through subsidized home ownership credit/financing that meets the provisions of certain requirements
- Electricity, except for residences with power greater than 6,600 watts
- Liquified natural gas

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Official textbooks
- Religious books
- Vaccines
- Certain ships, aircraft and trains
- Some real estate transactions
- Services supplied to local shipping companies
- Services supplied by the national army

The Free Trade Zone (FTZ) regimes provide a VAT exemption for the delivery of goods or services within the FTZ and the non-collection of VAT for the delivery of taxable goods or services to the FTZ. The areas that have been confirmed as FTZs are Batam Island, Sabang Island, and Bintan and Karimun Islands.

Nontaxable goods include food and beverages served in hotels, restaurants, food courts and such other places (dine-in or take-away, including catering), and money, gold bars and valuable documents.

Nontaxable services include the following:
- Religious services
- Commercial art and entertainment services that are subject to regional entertainment tax
- Hotel services
- Public services provided by the government

- Parking space services
- Catering services

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Indonesia.

E. Time of supply

In Indonesia, VAT becomes payable at the earlier of the date on which the taxable goods or services are supplied or the date of receipt of advance payments. Tax invoices must be issued when the delivery of goods or services takes place, or on receipt of payment for a supply of goods or services, whichever is earlier.

Deposits and prepayments. In Indonesia, there is no requirement to account for VAT on deposits. For prepayments, the time of supply rules are the same as the normal time of supply rules. The delivery of the goods is considered to take place when the title of the goods is transferred to the customer, or when the invoice is issued, whichever is earlier. Whereas the supply of services is considered to take place when the invoice is issued. However, the tax invoice should be issued on the date of receipt of prepayments, as in the case of prepayments, the payment for a supply of goods or services happens earlier.

Continuous supplies of services. There are no special time of supply rules for continuous supplies of services. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above), i.e., the time of supply is considered to take place when the invoice is issued.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules for goods sent on approval for sale or return. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above), i.e., the delivery of the goods is considered to take place when the title of the goods is transferred to the customer, or when the invoice is issued, whichever is earlier.

Reverse-charge services. There are no special time of supply rules for supplies of reverse-charge services. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above), i.e., the supply of services is considered to take place when the invoice is issued.

Leased assets. For leased assets, the time of supply is considered to take place when the invoice is issued or when the payment is received, whichever is earlier.

Imported goods. The time of supply for imported goods is either the date of importation, or, for goods imported by companies determined to be bonded zone companies, the date on which the goods leave the bonded zone area.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax, which is VAT charged on taxable goods and taxable services supplied to it for business purposes to the extent that costs corresponding to the input tax are for sales that are subject to VAT. A taxable person generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax, which is VAT charged on supplies made. If the input tax exceeds output tax due, this excess tax can be claimed as a refund.

A valid standard tax invoice or customs document must generally accompany a claim for input tax.

Input tax for the acquisition of taxable goods and/or services, importation of taxable goods and utilization of intangible taxable goods and/or taxable services utilization from outside the Indonesian Customs Area or within the Indonesian Customs Area before the entrepreneur is confirmed as a taxable entrepreneur, can be credited by the taxable entrepreneur using the input tax's crediting guidelines of 80% of the output tax that should be levied.

Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services supplied in Indonesia, VAT paid on imports and self-paid VAT on the use of taxable services and intangible goods provided by overseas entities inside the Indonesia Customs Area (under the self-paid method, the party who utilizes the intangible goods or services should pay the 11% VAT directly to the state treasury on behalf of the overseas party).

The time limit for a taxable person to reclaim input tax in Indonesia is three months. Input tax that can be credited, but has not been credited with output tax in the same tax period, may be credited in the next tax period no later than three months after the end of the relevant tax period, as long as it has not been charged as a cost.

Input tax on taxable goods and services purchased or imported that were credited and refunded during the preproduction stage by a taxable firm must be repaid if the enterprise is unable to produce taxable goods within three years since the taxable person credited the input tax for the first time. The period can be extended for certain industries up to five years (for industries that produce taxable goods) or up to six years (for industries such as the National Strategic Project that obtain assignment from the government).

Input tax that is not reported in the VAT return when being identified in a tax audit can be credited referring to the provisions and law in the taxation field. Crediting the input tax can be done by disclosing the relevant tax invoice during the tax audit period to be included in the assessment letter that would be issued. The additional input tax can be credited, as long as the notification of tax audit result is not issued.

Input tax that is collected through the issuance of a tax assessment can be credited by the taxable person (i.e., the tax principal amount not including tax sanction) as being stated in the tax assessment, provided that:
- The tax assessment is issued only to collect input tax on taxable goods and/or services.
- The taxable person approves the entire audit results on tax assessments.
- The VAT payable and tax sanctions as stated in the tax assessment should have been settled.
- No legal remedy is made on the tax assessment.
- It is in accordance with the provisions of laws and regulations in the field of taxation.

The export of "strategic goods" (including animal feed, raw materials for production of animal feed, agricultural products and seeds), is subject to 0% VAT. A taxable person exporting "strategic goods" may claim an input tax credit relating to export sales. This can be claimed as a tax refund if it results in a VAT credit (that is, the balance of the input tax credit is greater than the amount of output tax).

Nondeductible input tax. In general, a credit may not be claimed for input tax on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes (e.g., goods acquired for private use by an entrepreneur).

The following lists provide some examples of items of expenditure for which input tax is not creditable and examples of items for which input tax is creditable.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Purchases used for nonbusiness purposes
- Business gifts
- Purchase, lease or hire of benefits in kind (such as employee accommodation or personal cars)

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Advertising
- Attending conferences and seminars
- Purchase, lease or hire of cars, vans or trucks

- Maintenance and fuel for vans and trucks
- Business travel expenses

Partial exemption. Where a business makes supplies of taxable and nontaxable goods and services, the input tax should be recalculated/proportionated to reflect the percentage of supplies that are taxable, at the latest at the third month after the end of a book year. Approval from the tax authorities is not required to use the partial exemption standard method or special methods in Indonesia. Special methods are not allowed in Indonesia.

Capital goods. In Indonesia, capital goods are classified as tangible assets with a useful life of more than one year, including expenses relating to the acquisition of capital goods that are capitalized into the acquisition price of the capital goods. Input tax incurred on capital goods can be recovered in line with the normal recovery rules (see above). There are no special rules in respect to timing and lifespan of the goods.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax credits in a period exceeds the output tax in the same period, the excess amount is refundable. In general, refund claims must be made at the end of the year. However, certain taxable persons may claim refunds on a monthly basis. The Indonesian tax authorities conduct audits to ensure that the validity of VAT refund claims. The tax audit must be concluded within one year after the date of the request for a refund.

If the tax audit confirms that the VAT refund claim is valid, the taxable person may recover the overpaid tax within one month after the date of the tax audit assessment letter.

The Indonesian tax authorities must pay an interest penalty for delays in making valid repayments, calculated at the rate per month (i.e., the benchmark interest rate applicable on the date the interest compensation is calculation, divided by 12) of the tax refundable.

An accelerated refund process through a tax examination is provided for certain taxable entrepreneurs who meet the criteria for a compliant taxable person meeting certain conditions (i.e., request for refund no more than IDR1 billion), or a low-risk taxable person. The VAT overpayment is refunded within one month after the request for a refund is submitted to the local tax office. Any VAT underpayment assessed in a post-VAT audit should be paid back, plus a penalty of 100%.

Pre-registration costs. Generally, input tax incurred before a taxable person is registered for VAT cannot be deducted in Indonesia. However, where a taxable person is late in registering for VAT, the taxable person must report output tax due on the supply of taxable goods/services taking place during that tax period (prior to VAT registration) with an input tax credit amounting to 80% of the output tax that can be credited/offset.

Bad debts. Output tax accounted for on supplies that do not get paid by recipients (i.e., bad debts) cannot be recovered in Indonesia.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred on purchases that are used for noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Indonesia.

G. Recovery of VAT by nonresident businesses

Input tax incurred by non-established businesses that are not registered for VAT in Indonesia is not recoverable.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A standard tax invoice for all taxable supplies made must be provided by Indonesian taxable entrepreneurs except those who are engaged in retail business or are the end-users of the goods.

The tax invoice number is determined by the DGT. Indonesian taxable entrepreneurs are required to request the tax invoice number from the DGT before issuing tax invoices.

Regarding the use of tax invoice serial numbers and the procedure for issuing a tax invoice, the rules are as follows:

- A taxable entrepreneur shall issue a tax invoice using the tax invoice serial number, which is determined by the DGT.
- The tax invoice serial number provided by the DGT should be used to issue the tax invoice on or after the date of the tax invoice serial number granting letter, within the calendar year indicated by the year code in the tax invoice serial number.
- If the date of the tax invoice precedes the date of the tax invoice serial number granting letter, the tax invoice is considered incorrect and thus incomplete.
- A taxable entrepreneur that does not issue tax invoice or issues an incomplete tax invoice is subject to an administrative penalty of 1% of the VAT base.
- To replace the incomplete tax invoice as defined in bullet three above, the taxable entrepreneur may do the following:
  - Cancel the incomplete tax invoice.
  - Make a new tax invoice using the new tax invoice serial number.
  - Ensure that the date of the new tax invoice does not precede the date of the tax invoice serial number granting letter. Although in practice, when a taxable entrepreneur issues a tax invoice where the date precedes the date of the tax invoice serial number granting letter, it automatically will be rejected by the system.
- If the tax invoice as described in bullet five above is issued before the date of the tax invoice serial number granting letter, the tax invoice is considered a late issued tax invoice.
- If an invoice is issued more than three months after the date of the tax invoice, the invoice is considered to not have been issued.
- The cancellation of an incomplete tax invoice and the issuance of a new tax invoice as described in bullets five and six above can be done if the monthly VAT return submitted has not been audited, an examination of open preliminary evidence has not been conducted and the taxable entrepreneur has not received notification of verification results.
- The late issued tax invoice as described in bullet six above can be credited as input tax as long as it meets the requirements in accordance with the prevailing regulations.

Indonesian taxable entrepreneurs are also required to submit a specimen of the signature of the authorized person who will sign tax invoices.

Indonesia has adopted e-tax invoices that are prepared through an application and system provided by the Directorate General of Taxes, called e-Faktur. The e-Faktur provides electronic signatures in the form of QR codes.

A complete and correct standard tax invoice is generally necessary to support a claim for input tax credit.

Credit notes. A purchaser who returns goods to a supplier or cancels services may issue a credit note or cancellation note. A credit note or cancellation note must refer to the original tax invoice and clearly indicate details of the returned goods or canceled services. A credit note or cancellation note may be used to adjust the amount of VAT due for a taxable supply of goods or services.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is mandatory in Indonesia for all taxable persons.

Scope of electronic invoicing. For B2B, B2C, and business-to-government (B2G) supplies, electronic invoicing is mandatory for all taxable persons in Indonesia. There is no threshold beyond which taxable persons are required to adopt electronic invoicing in Indonesia.

The use of an electronic tax invoice is mandatory, and noncompliance will result in a defective tax invoice subject to a fine equaling 1% of the VAT base. It is compulsory for all tax invoices to be processed and issued electronically via the government hosted e-Faktur platform.

Electronic invoices must be created and uploaded using the e-Faktur platform to obtain DGT approval. The uploading of electronic tax invoices to the e-Faktur platform must be carried out no later than the 15th of the following month after the date of the electronic tax invoice. An electronic tax invoice that does not obtain DGT approval is not considered as a tax invoice.

Taxable persons who supply taxable goods and/or taxable services are obliged to collect the VAT payable and prepare tax invoices as proof of VAT collection. Tax invoices must include information regarding the delivery of taxable goods and/or taxable services. Tax invoices issued by taxable persons upon delivery of taxable goods and/or taxable services must be in electronic form. Taxable persons who deliver taxable goods and/or taxable services to taxable goods' buyers and/or taxable services' recipients with final consumer characteristics can issue a tax invoice without including information regarding the identity of the buyer and the name and signature of the seller.

Tax invoices must be issued by taxable persons for:
- Deliveries of taxable goods and/or taxable services within the Indonesia Customs Area done in the course of business by a taxable person
- Export of taxable goods (tangible or intangible) and/or taxable services by a taxable person

Tax invoices must be made at the following times:
- Delivery of when supplying taxable goods and/or taxable services
- Receipt of payment if that receipt of payment occurs before delivery of taxable goods and/or taxable services
- Receipt of term payment in case of partial delivery of work stages
- Exporting tangible taxable goods, intangible taxable goods and/or taxable services
- Other times regulated by the provisions of laws and regulations in the field of VAT

Taxable persons can issue one tax invoice that includes all deliveries of taxable goods and/or taxable services made to the same taxable goods' buyer and/or taxable services' recipient for one calendar month. The tax invoice is called a combined tax invoice. The combined tax invoice must be made no later than the end of the month of delivery of the taxable goods and/or taxable services.

Simplified VAT invoices. A (standard) tax invoice without detailed information of a buyer is like the invoice previously known as a simplified tax invoice. These are permitted, normally, in retail businesses. Retail businesses are defined as taxable entrepreneurs that supply goods (also includes e-commerce businesses), as follows:
- Through a retail sale place, such as stores and kiosks or direct visits to end consumers.
- By means of retail sales made directly to the end consumer, without being preceded by a written offer, a written booking, a contract or an auction.
- In general, delivery of taxable goods or sale and purchase transactions is made in cash and the seller directly delivered the goods or the buyer directly carries the goods that it buys.

The code and serial number for a simplified tax invoice are also different from tax invoices. The code and serial number of a simple tax invoice can be in the form of invoice numbers, invoice codes or determined by the taxable entrepreneur.

Self-billing. Self-billing is allowed in Indonesia. It is only allowed in relation to the usage of self-produced goods or services and free gifts.

Proof of exports. Exports of goods are subject to VAT at the zero-rate. However, to zero-rate the supply of exports, such supplies must be supported with evidence that the goods were exported outside Indonesia. Valid evidence of export includes "Notification of Export Goods"

(Pemberitahuan Ekspor Barang [PEB]) documents, issued by the customs office, for goods that have been approved for loading. The identity of the exporter stated in the PEB documents shall be the identity of the party who actually conducts the export activity, not the forwarding company, for the output tax to be creditable against the input tax.

Foreign currency invoices. For supplies denominated in a foreign currency, the amounts of output tax shown must be stated in the domestic currency, which is the Indonesian rupiah (IDR). The official exchange rate, issued by the Minister of Finance on the date on which the tax invoice is issued must be used to convert the currency.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. There are no special rules for tax invoices issued for supplies made by taxable persons to private consumers (e.g., no tax invoice is required unless requested by the purchaser). However, there are special rules on supplies made to the public (e.g., toll receipts, tickets and supplies made through vending machines). The receipt and tickets issued may be deemed as a tax invoice.

Records. In general, records are to be prepared in IDR and be in the Bahasa Indonesia language. English language and USD currency are permitted, provided approval from the DGT has been obtained through submitting a request using a format prescribed by the DGT. Bookkeeping is a recording process that is carried out regularly to collect the financial data and information, including assets, liabilities, capitals, incomes and costs, as well as the total acquisition and delivery prices of goods or services, which is closed by preparing the financial statements in the form of balance sheets, and the income statements for the period of the relevant fiscal year.

In Indonesia, examples of what records must be held for VAT purposes include books, records, and documents on which the bookkeeping or recording is based, and other documents including the results of data processing from the electronically managed bookkeeping or by online application programs.

In Indonesia, VAT books and records must be held within the country. This should be at the place of activity or the residential place of individual taxable person, or at the place of domicile of corporate taxable person.

Record retention period. VAT documents (both hard copy and electronic documents) must be archived for 10 years in Indonesia. In case of a VAT audit, the tax auditors may request and check the hard copy documents.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is allowed in Indonesia. Records can be kept and archived electronically. However, in the event of tax audit or other dispute process, the DGT may request the original hard copy of the records/documents, only the tax invoice is acceptable as a printout of electronic form.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. The due date for the submission of monthly VAT returns is the end of the following tax period. VAT returns should be submitted electronically.

Periodic payments. The VAT payable, if any, must be settled before the submission deadline of the monthly VAT returns, i.e., end of the following tax period.

VAT liabilities must be paid in IDR through an ID billing created in the DGT's website. The payment can be settled by bank transfer using the billing code written in the ID billing or the taxable person can settle the payment through a bank teller by informing the teller of the billing code.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is mandatory in Indonesia for all taxable persons. The VAT return submission platform has been integrated with the electronic invoicing platform. The VAT return must be submitted electronically via the DGT online or the Application of Service Providers (ASPs) appointed by the DGT for period(s) of/before August 2020 and via e-Faktur (electronic tax invoice) web-based for period(s) of/after September 2020. The ASP must comply with the following requirements:

- It must be a legal entity.
- It must have a processing business license to be an ASP.
- It must have a processing tax ID number and already be stipulated as a taxable entrepreneur.
- It must sign an agreement with the DGT.

For electronic filing purposes, taxable entrepreneurs must apply for an Electronic Filing Identification Number (e-FIN) and obtain a digital certificate from the DGT. The local tax office must reply no later than one working day after receiving a correctly completed application.

A VAT return completed according to regulations shall be signed manually and submitted electronically through e-Faktur web-based, DGT online and ASP. Taxable entrepreneurs will receive proof of electronic receipt for every completed VAT return.

If there are additional documents that should be attached to the VAT return but cannot be delivered electronically, the taxable entrepreneur is required to deliver them to the correct tax office (where it is registered) manually or by mail or via courier with a proof-of-delivery receipt.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Indonesia.

Special schemes. VAT not collected. Other VAT regimes technically eliminate the payment of VAT due. These include the following:
- The non-collection of VAT payable to companies in bonded zone areas and to manufacturers of goods for export
- The non-collection of VAT payable arising from goods or services supplied by principal contractors of projects financed by foreign aid loans or grants

In this context, non-collection refers to the tax facility under which the VAT due is not collected for certain taxable goods and services. Under such tax facility, the related input tax can still be claimed as a tax credit.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Indonesia.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in Indonesia.

Correcting errors in previous returns. A taxable person can correct the information recorded in the VAT return by amending the VAT return. The amendment can be conducted through the same steps of creating the initial VAT return and submitted through Direktorat Jenderal Pajak (DJP) Online and ASP (for the period(s) of or before August 2020) and e-Faktur web-based (for the period(s) of or after September 2020). However, in the case that the amendment resulting in overpayment of VAT, the amendment can only be submitted at the latest two years before the expiration (i.e., within three years after the ending period). Furthermore, the amendment, either resulting in an under or overpayment, can only be conducted if the monthly VAT return submitted has not been audited, an examination of open preliminary evidence has not been conducted, and the taxable entrepreneur has not received notification of tax audit.

Digital tax administration. There are no transactional reporting requirements in Indonesia.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. If a taxable entrepreneur registers late, penalties may be imposed on the supplies of taxable goods and services made before the date of registration.

Penalties for late payment and filings. A penalty is charged at the rate of once per month, which is issued by the Minister of Finance, (the benchmark interest rate applicable on the date the interest compensation is calculated +5% and then divided by 12) on late payments of VAT. In the case of a tax audit, the maximum period is 24 months. An additional penalty of IDR500,000 is assessed for each VAT return submitted late.

Penalties for errors. A penalty of 1% of the VAT base amount is imposed for the failure to issue a tax invoice or for the issuance of a tax invoice that is considered defective (including a tax invoice that is issued late).

There are no specific penalties associated with late notification or failure to notify the tax authorities of changes to a taxable person's VAT registration details. For further details, see the subsection Changes to VAT registration details above.

Penalties for fraud. For severe evasion or fraud, criminal penalties apply. Criminal offenses related to general tax administration other than the issue related to the tax invoice that cause losses to the revenue of the state are punishable by imprisonment from six months to six years and a fine of twice the amount of the unpaid or underpaid taxes (minimum fine) or of four times the amount of unpaid or underpaid taxes (maximum fine). This criminal sanction may be doubled if the taxable person commits another criminal tax offense before one-year elapses from the date of completion of the taxable person's jail term.

Criminal offenses related to the issuance of a tax invoice are punishable by imprisonment from two years to six years and a fine ranging from two times to six times the amount of tax declared in the tax invoice.

Personal liability for company officers. In the case there is a criminal offense committed by the taxable person, there is a possibility that the directors will be held personally liable for the offenses committed by the taxable person, as the directors act as the representatives of the taxable person. The punishment may be in the form of imprisonment and/or a fine depending on the case.

Statute of limitations. The statute of limitations in Indonesia is five years. The right to collect tax, including interest, fine, surcharge and tax collection expense by the tax authorities shall expire after five years from the taxable period. However, the expiration of tax collection right may be deferred as a result of:

- The issuance of a distress warrant
- There is a recognition of tax debt from the taxable person either directly or indirectly
- The issuance of a notice of tax underpayment assessment
- An investigation on tax crime is conducted

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- The supply of goods or services made in Ireland by a taxable person
- The intra-Community acquisition of goods from another European Union (EU) Member State by a taxable person (see the EU chapter)
- Reverse-charge services received by a taxable person in Ireland
- The importation of goods from outside the EU, regardless of the status of the importer

Quick Fixes. Pending introduction of a "definitive" system for the VAT treatment of intra-Community supplies of goods to taxable persons, the EU has adopted Quick Fixes for intra-Community trade in goods. For an overview of the Quick Fixes rules, see the the EU chapter. For documentary requirements see Section H. Invoicing, subsection Proof of exports and intra-Community supplies.

The four "VAT Quick Fixes" in relation to intra-EU trade took effect beginning 1 January 2020. The local law has been transposed directly from the EU Directive. The four VAT Quick Fixes concern the following areas:
- Treatment of call-off stock
- Mandatory VAT identification number to apply the zero VAT rate to intra-EU supplies
- Evidence of intra-EU supplies
- Chain transactions

Effective use and enjoyment. To avoid instances of non-taxation or double taxation, EU Member States can apply use and enjoyment rules that allow a service that is "used and enjoyed" in the EU to be taxed or prevent a service that is "used and enjoyed" outside the EU from being taxed. If a service is taxed in the EU under the use and enjoyment provisions, a non-EU supplier of the service may be required to register for VAT in every Member State where it has customers that are not taxable persons. For information regarding the rules relating to VAT registration, see the chapters on the respective EU countries.

In Ireland, the following services are subject to the "use and enjoyment" provisions:
- Hiring out of movable goods by a taxable person established outside the EU is treated for VAT purposes as being hired in the country in which the goods are actually used and therefore Irish VAT arises if the goods are used within Ireland.
- Leasing of means of transport outside the EU by a taxable person established in Ireland is treated for VAT purposes as being used and enjoyed outside the EU and therefore no Irish VAT arises.
- Supply of banking, financial and insurance services by a supplier established in Ireland to a nontaxable person outside the EU, where the services are effectively used and enjoyed within Ireland for Irish VAT purposes, the place of supply is Ireland.
- Supply of money transfer intermediary services to a non-EU principal that are used and enjoyed in Ireland for Irish VAT purposes, the place of supply is Ireland (the supply is still exempt from VAT, however).
- Supply of telecommunications, radio or television broadcasting services and phone calls by an operator or broadcaster established outside the EU to a nontaxable person who uses the services in Ireland, the place of supply is Ireland. Supply of such services by an operator or broadcaster established in Ireland to a nontaxable person outside the EU who uses and enjoys the service in Ireland is treated for Irish VAT purposes as the place of supply is Ireland.

Transfer of a going concern. Normally the sale of the assets of a VAT-registered or VAT-registrable business will be subject to VAT at the appropriate rate. However, a transfer of a business as a going concern (TOGC) may be outside the scope of the tax under certain conditions. A TOGC is the sale of a business or part of a business capable of separate operation including assets. Where the sale meets the conditions, the supply is treated as outside the scope of VAT. In Ireland, a TOGC, known as a transfer of business relief [TOB]), is treated as outside the scope of VAT where the following conditions are met (note this is not an exhaustive list):

- The new owner uses the same premises for the same or similar trade
- The new business has a strong likelihood of taking up the majority of the previous trade
- Staff are transferred from the old to the new business
- The new business acquires the order and customer records of the old business
- The stock-in-trade transfers, plant and machinery are part of the deal
- The business was closed for a short period, or the fact of the closure is irrelevant
- The relief does not cover transfer of intangible assets (services). This is covered by a separate relief in the VAT Act

Note that each transaction should be examined on a case-by-case basis to determine whether it comes within the provisions of a TOB.

Transactions between related parties. For a transaction between related parties, the value for VAT purposes is calculated as follows: open market value may be applied to transaction between related parties, should the Revenue Commissioners consider it necessary to ensure the correct collection of tax is applied; and in instances where there is no entitlement by a related party to deduct VAT.

C. Who is liable

The term "accountable person" refers to any individual or entity that is or should be registered for VAT. A liability to register arises from making "taxable supplies," which include the supply of goods or services, intra-Community acquisitions and distance sales made in the course of a business in Ireland. An entity that exclusively makes exempt supplies is generally not treated as an accountable person.

The VAT registration thresholds in Ireland depend on the type of supplies made. For an Irish resident business or a fixed establishment of a foreign business, the following are the thresholds:
- EUR40,000 for persons supplying services
- EUR80,000 for persons supplying goods
- EUR10,000 for persons making mail order or distance sales into Ireland
- EUR41,000 for persons making intra-Community acquisitions

A business is required to register for VAT as soon as its turnover is likely to exceed the relevant threshold.

Exemption from registration. The VAT legislation in Ireland does not contain any provision for exemption from registration where a business is obliged to register for VAT on the basis of its turnover.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. A business established in Ireland whose turnover does not exceed the registration threshold is not required to register for VAT. However, a business that makes taxable supplies may opt to register in these circumstances.

Similarly, a new business may request registration in advance of making taxable supplies as soon as it is clear that it will become an accountable person.

Group registration. The Revenue Commissioners may grant group registration status to companies in Ireland that are closely bound by "financial, economic and organizational links."

A VAT group is treated as a single taxable person. Both VAT-registered and non-VAT-registered persons can join a VAT group, provided at least one member of the VAT group is a taxable person (in business). One entity is nominated and treated as if all transactions of the group were carried out by them and is known as the "group remitter" of the VAT group.

To apply to form a VAT group the following criteria must be met:
- The VAT group entities are established for VAT purposes in Ireland.
- The entities are closely linked by financial, economic and organizational links, which typically means being subject to the same common overall ownership and corporate group.
- Group registration seems necessary or appropriate to the Revenue Commissioners for the purpose of efficient and effective administration (including the collection) of VAT.

VAT is not charged on supplies between group members, with the exception of certain supplies of real estate. All members of a VAT group in Ireland are jointly and severally liable for VAT debts and penalties.

It is the responsibility of the VAT group members to ensure that the conditions for a VAT group continue to be met. Where a member of a VAT group ceases to meet the conditions for inclusion as a member of a VAT group, the Revenue Commissioners should be informed so that the member can be removed from the VAT group. If not so notified, a penalty will apply for each taxable period in which they were not notified.

There is no minimum time period required for the duration of a VAT group.

Holding companies. In Ireland, a pure holding company (that does not perform any taxable activities) can be a member of a VAT group, as long as they are established in Ireland. No special conditions under VAT grouping apply to pure holding companies.

Cost-sharing exemption. The VAT cost-sharing exemption, in accordance with VAT Directive 2006/112/EEC Article 132(1)(f), has been implemented in Ireland in line with Paragraph (3)(1) of Schedule 1, VATCA10. The Revenue has confirmed that the exemption should be read strictly, i.e., it only applies where such activity is carried out in the public interest.

Fixed establishment. A foreign business is deemed to have a fixed establishment for VAT purposes in Ireland in the following circumstances: an entity has an establishment that has the characteristics of a sufficient degree of permanence and a suitable structure in terms of human and technical resources to enable it to receive and use services supplied for its own needs or to supply services to customers.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that has no fixed establishment in Ireland. A "nil" VAT registration threshold applies to supplies made in Ireland by a non-established business. VAT registration is required if a non-established business makes any of the following:
- Supply of goods where the goods are located in Ireland at the time of supply
- Supplies of certain services deemed for VAT purposes to have taken place in Ireland (e.g., services connected with immovable property or the admission to events that take place in Ireland)
- Intra-Community acquisitions greater than the annual threshold
- Distance sales greater than the annual threshold (see the EU chapter)

A non-established business must apply electronically to register for VAT in Ireland, and send the application to the following email address: BusinessTaxesRegistrations@revenue.ie

Tax representatives. Tax representatives are not required in Ireland. Irish VAT legislation does not currently impose a requirement on non-established traders to appoint a tax representative.

Reverse charge. If a non-established business supplies services to an Irish taxable person, the taxable person may be required to account for the VAT due under reverse-charge accounting. This means that the taxable person charges itself VAT. The self-assessed VAT may be deducted as input tax (that is, VAT on allowable purchases) depending on the taxable person's VAT recovery status. This measure applies only if the place of supply of the services is in Ireland.

Domestic reverse charge. The application of the domestic reverse charge in Ireland is limited to services connected with the following activities:
- Construction services subject to relevant contractors' tax (RCT) in Ireland
- Certain property transactions
- Greenhouse gas emissions allowances
- Scrap metal dealers
- Wholesale supplies of electricity and gas
- Supply of electricity and gas certificates

Digital economy. Specific VAT rules apply to cross-border supplies of goods and services sold via the internet (e-commerce) in all EU Member States with effect from 1 July 2021. These new rules apply to all direct sales to nontaxable persons (in practice these are mostly private individuals), but we refer to these rules as e-commerce VAT rules because most of these transactions are conducted via the internet. In general, the place of supply is in the country of consumption, i.e., where the goods are shipped to or where the buyer of the goods or services resides, subject to any "use and enjoyment" provisions that may override this rule (see Section B. Effective use and enjoyment subsection above). Therefore:
- For supplies of services made by a nonresident supplier to a business customer (B2B), the business customer is responsible for accounting for the VAT due, using the reverse charge.
- For supplies of goods made by a nonresident supplier to a business customer (B2B), where the goods are transported from another EU Member State, the business purchasing the goods is responsible for accounting for the VAT due, as an intra-Community acquisition. If the goods come from outside the EU, the purchaser may have to report an importation of goods.
- For supplies of goods or services made by a nonresident supplier to a final consumer (B2C), the supplier is generally responsible for charging and accounting for the VAT due at the rate applicable in the customer's country (unless the supplier's sales fall beneath the distance selling threshold of EUR10,000 with effect from 1 July 2021). This VAT can be reported using a single VAT registration, using a "One-Stop-Shop" mechanism.

For more details about intra-EU distance sales, see the the EU chapter.

Effective 1 July 2021, an e-commerce supplier may have a choice of how to account for VAT on its B2C supplies.

Local VAT registration. A nonresident supplier may choose to register for VAT in each Member State and account for VAT on all supplies made and recover input tax in accordance with local rules (see the Non-established businesses subsection above).

In Ireland, where a supplier wishes to register for VAT purposes, a VAT registration application can be made via a TR2/TR2(FT) form. See the Registration procedures subsection below for further detail.

One-Stop Shop. Effective 1 July 2021, a supplier can choose to account for the VAT due under the EU One-Stop Shop (OSS), which can be used for intra-EU cross-border supplies of goods and all cross-border supplies of services made to final consumers in the EU. Unlike the previous Mini One-Stop-Shop (MOSS) scheme that applied until 30 June 2021, the OSS is not limited to cross-border supplies of electronic services, telecommunication services and broadcasting services.

The OSS is an electronic portal that allows businesses to:
- Register for VAT electronically in a single Member State for all intra-EU distance sales of goods and for B2C supplies of services
- Declare and pay VAT due on all supplies of goods and services in a single electronic quarterly return

The OSS can be used by businesses established in the EU and outside the EU. If a supplier or a deemed supplier decides to register for the OSS, it must declare and pay VAT for all relevant supplies (goods as well as services) under the OSS.

Where Ireland is chosen as a supplier's Member State of Identification, the supplier will need to register for OSS and submit returns on a quarterly basis electronically through the tax authorities' online portal, Revenue Online Service (ROS). The due date for such returns is the last working day of the month following the quarterly tax period in question (i.e., for the January-March return, the OSS return would be due by 30 April).

For more details about the operation of the OSS, see the the EU chapter.

Import One-Stop Shop. Effective 1 July 2021, the Import One-Stop-Shop (IOSS) scheme applies for B2C distance sales of goods from outside the EU.

Effective 1 July 2021, VAT is due on all commercial goods imported into the EU regardless of their value. The actual supply is subject to VAT in the country where the goods are imported (the country of destination). The IOSS facilitates the declaration and payment of VAT due on the sale of low-value goods (i.e., consignments valued at less than EUR150 per consignment). It allows suppliers selling low-value goods dispatched or transported from a non-EU country to customers in the EU to collect, declare and pay the VAT due. If the IOSS is used, the importation into the EU is exempt from VAT and customs duties should not apply. It is important to note, however, that under the IOSS there is no longer any exemption from VAT for low-value goods (value less than EUR22).

In Ireland there are no additional specific local rules that apply.

For more details about the IOSS, see the the EU chapter.

The use of the IOSS special scheme is not mandatory. If VAT is not collected via the IOSS scheme, the importation of goods into the EU is subject to import VAT in the country of final destination and the Member State can decide freely who is liable to pay the import VAT, which could be the customer or the seller (or an electronic interface).

Postal Services and Couriers Scheme. If the IOSS is not used and the customer is liable for the import VAT due on the supply (and importation) of consignments with a small intrinsic value (i.e., less than EUR150), the VAT can be collected using the special scheme for postal services and couriers.

In Ireland there are no additional specific local rules that apply.

For more details about the special scheme for postal services and couriers, see the EU chapter.

Online marketplaces and platforms. Under the new EU VAT e-commerce rules, effective 1 July 2021, taxable persons that "facilitate" certain B2C sales of goods are deemed to have purchased and then supplied those goods themselves. This means that the single supply from the "underlying" supplier to the final consumer is split into two deemed supplies:

- A supply from the supplier to the facilitator (deemed B2B supply).
- A supply from the facilitator to the final customer (deemed B2C supply). Any intermediation service provided by the facilitator is disregarded for VAT purposes.

This provision does not cover all sales facilitated via the facilitator. It only covers distance sales of goods imported from non-EU jurisdictions in consignments with an intrinsic value not exceeding EUR150. The jurisdiction of residence of the supplier using the facilitator is irrelevant. The supply to the facilitating platform is VAT exempt (with credit) and the supplies made by that platform follow the e-commerce VAT rules as described above. In addition, the provision also covers sales within the EU, if the supplier is not established within the EU. This applies to both local shipments within one Member State as well as intra-Community shipments. In both cases, the final customer must be a nontaxable person.

In Ireland there are no additional specific local rules that apply.

For more details about the rules for online marketplaces, see the EU chapter.

Vouchers. Effective 1 January 2019, vouchers (for example prepaid telecom cards, gift cards, price discount coupons, etc., for the purchase of goods or services) will fall into two categories: single-purpose vouchers (SPV) and multi-purpose vouchers (MPV).

An SPV is defined as a voucher where the place of supply of the goods/services to which the voucher relates and the VAT due on those goods or services is known at the time of the issue of the voucher (e.g., a voucher issued for specific use for hotel accommodation in Ireland).

An MPV is defined as a voucher other than an SPV. It includes vouchers that can be redeemed for goods/services that are subject to different VAT rates (e.g., a voucher that can be redeemed in multiple stores in a shopping center for items at a variety of VAT rates). VAT must be accounted for at the point of issue of an SPV (rather than at the point of redemption, which is the current practice) and at the time of redemption of an MPV.

Also, from 1 January 2019, persons that sell prepaid phone cards will no longer be eligible to recover VAT when these cards are used outside the European Union, which is linked to the voucher changes.

Registration procedures. Taxable persons must apply for VAT registration through the submission of form TR1 or TR2. The application for registration must be made online, except in exceptional services. Applicants whose business is not established in Ireland should submit a paper version of form TR1(FT) or TR2(FT). A two-tier system exists such that companies can apply for domestic-only registration or a registration that includes supplies made to or received from other EU Member States, an intra-EU registration. Obtaining VAT registration typically should take six to eight weeks. Registration is effective from a date agreed by the local tax district and the taxable person.

Deregistration. An accountable person that ceases to be eligible for VAT registration must cancel its registration. An accountable person may also request cancellation of its registration if the level of its taxable turnover falls below the annual registration threshold or if the accountable person previously opted for registration and no longer wishes to be registered.

Changes to VAT registration details. If any of the information supplied to the Revenue Commissioners changes, the taxable person must notify their Revenue Commissioner office within 30 days of the change. Such changes can be notified by paper or online.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable for VAT at any rate, including supplies made at the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 23%
- Reduced rates: 9%, 13.5%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services, unless a specific provision allows a reduced rate, the zero rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Books, e-books and audio books

- Most foodstuffs (excluding confectionery)
- Oral medicine
- Exports
- Children's clothing and footwear
- Goods and services supplied to frequent exporters under the "VAT 56 Scheme"
- Newspaper publications (both paper and digital format)

Examples of goods and services taxable at 9%

- Magazines
- Electronic magazines
- Admission to sporting facilities
- Hairdressing services
- Gas and electricity (extended until 31 October 2024)

Examples of goods and services taxable at 13.5%

- Gas and electricity (with effect from 1 November 2024)
- Restaurant and catering services (previously subject to the 9% rate until 31 August 2023)
- Repair, cleaning and maintenance services
- Developed immovable property
- Building services

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable for VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction. However, as regards the latter, an exception applies to certain exempt services supplied outside the EU for which VAT recovery does exist.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Postal services
- Finance
- Insurance
- Leasing of immovable property (unless option to tax exercised by landlord)

Option to tax for exempt supplies. A landlord can generally opt to tax a letting (with certain exceptions such as residential property and lettings to connected parties with less than 90% VAT recovery). A vendor of immovable goods and the purchaser of those immovable goods can jointly agree to tax the sales.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point." The following is a general summary of the rules for determining when VAT is due:

- For supplies made to nontaxable persons, the due date is the date on which the supply is completed.
- For supplies made to taxable persons, the due date is the date on which the invoice is issued or the date on which the invoice should have been issued, whichever is earlier.

Deposits and prepayments. A prepayment is deemed to be consideration for a taxable supply, up to the value of the prepayment. The invoice for a prepayment must be issued within 15 days after the end of the month in which the prepayment is received.

A supplier that accounts for VAT on an invoice basis must account for VAT on a prepayment from a VAT-registered customer when the invoice is issued or when it should have been issued (that is, within 15 days after the end of the month in which the prepayment is received), whichever is earlier.

A supplier that accounts for VAT on a cash receipts basis must account for VAT on a prepayment from a VAT-registered customer when the payment is received.

Due date for a prepayment received from a nontaxable person is when the payment is received.

Where there is a supply of goods, services or a prepayment, an invoice should be issued by 15 days after the end of the month in which the supply or prepayment is made.

Continuous supplies of services. The time of supply for continuously supplied services is the date of the tax invoice or when payment or prepayment is received.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules in Ireland in relation to goods sent on approval for sale or return. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

Reverse-charge services. The time of supply for reverse-charge services is either the date on which the service performed is completed or the date of the tax invoice, whichever is earlier.

Leased assets. Finance and operating leases are treated in the same fashion in Ireland. Basically, both are treated as a supply of a service subject to VAT. The time of supply in relation to the lease of assets is as outlined above for a continuous supply of services. VAT becomes due where an invoice is issued in respect of the periodic leasing charges or payment is received in relation to the leased assets received.

The time of supply for assets sold under hire purchase agreements is when the goods have been handed over to the purchaser.

Imported goods. The due date for accounting for VAT on imported goods is the date of importation or the date on which the goods leave a duty suspension regime.

Intra-Community acquisitions. The due date for accounting for VAT on an intra-Community acquisition of goods is the 15th day of the month following the month in which the goods arrive or the month in which the invoice is received, whichever is earlier.

Intra-Community supplies of goods. The time of supply for intra-Community supplies of goods is either the date of shipment/delivery or the date of the tax invoice, whichever is earlier.

Distance sales. There are no special time of supply rules in Ireland for supplies of distance sales. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax, which is VAT charged on goods and services supplied to it for business purposes. An accountable person generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax, which is VAT charged on supplies made.

The time limit for a taxable person to reclaim input tax in Ireland is four years. Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services supplied within Ireland, VAT paid on imports of goods and VAT that is self-assessed on the intra-Community acquisition of goods and reverse-charge services.

A valid tax invoice or customs document must generally accompany a claim for input tax.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not made for business purposes, such as goods acquired for private use. If expenditure relates to business and private use, the input tax must be apportioned, and the amount related to business activities may be deducted.

In addition, input tax may not be deducted for some items of business expenditure, including the following items:

- The provision of food, drink and accommodation except for accommodation incurred in connection with attendance at a qualifying conference. A qualifying conference is a conference undertaken in the course or furtherance of business, organized to cater to 50 or more delegates.

VAT may be claimed for a maximum period beginning with the night before the conference and ending on the date when the conference ends.
- Other personal services for taxable persons or their agents or employees.
- Entertainment expenses incurred by the taxable persons or their agents or employees.
- The purchase, hire or importation of passenger motor vehicles. However, 20% of VAT is recoverable on the purchase, hire or importation of certain cars that have a low level of carbon dioxide emissions CO2 emissions of less than 156g/km) and that are used primarily for business purposes.
- The purchase of petrol (gasoline). However, diesel is deductible.

The following lists provide some examples of items of expenditure for which input tax is not deductible and examples of items for which input tax is deductible.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Hotel accommodation
- Food and drink
- Petrol
- Business entertainment

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Car maintenance costs
- Partial VAT recovery on lease, purchase and hire of most passenger cars subject to certain conditions
- Attendance at qualifying conferences and seminars
- Lease, purchase, hire and maintenance of vans and trucks
- Diesel for business use
- Business use of mobile telephones
- Parking
- Gas and electricity

Partial exemption. Input tax directly related to making exempt supplies is not generally recoverable. However, input tax related to making certain exempt supplies to non-EU customers (qualifying activities) is deductible. If an accountable person makes both exempt supplies and taxable supplies, it may not recover all the input tax incurred on goods or services acquired for both purposes.

Input tax that directly relates to making exempt supplies is not recoverable. Input tax that directly relates to making taxable supplies is recoverable in full. For these purposes, the term "taxable supplies" includes zero-rated supplies and qualifying activities. Input tax that relates to taxable supplies and to exempt supplies is considered to have a dual use and must be apportioned between taxable supplies and exempt supplies. The percentage of dual-use input tax that is attributable to making taxable supplies is recoverable. The recoverable percentage is rounded up to the nearest whole number. For example, a recovery percentage of 79.2% would be rounded up to 80%, where a turnover based method is applied.

An Irish accountable person may use any calculation method to determine the recoverable percentage of dual-use input tax if the chosen method satisfies the following conditions:
- It results in a proportion of tax deductible that correctly reflects the extent to which dual-use inputs are used for the purposes of the person's deductible supplies or activities.
- It has due regard to the range of the accountable person's total supplies and activities.
- Examples of possible apportionment methods include calculations based on the following:
- The ratio of turnover from taxable and qualifying activities to turnover from exempt activities
- The ratio of taxable transactions to exempt transactions
- The number of people involved in various activities

Approval from the tax authorities is not required to use the partial exemption standard method or special methods in Ireland. The default position is that the turnover method should apply. However, an entity, as outlined above, may choose an alternative method that produces a VAT recovery percentage that best reflects its proportion of tax deductible to which dual-use inputs are used. It is not a requirement to seek preapproval from the Revenue Commissioners to use such a method. However, should an entity change its methodology, it is advisable to seek approval.

The Revenue Commissioners may require that a partially exempt accountable person uses a different calculation method if, in their view, the method adopted does not adequately reflect how input tax was used in the business or the activities undertaken.

Capital goods. Capital goods are items of capital expenditure that are used in a business over several years. Input tax is deducted in the VAT year in which the goods are acquired and first used. The amount of input tax recovered depends on the accountable person's partial exemption recovery position in the VAT year of acquisition and first use. In Ireland, the only item defined as a capital good is developed immovable property. In Ireland, the capital goods adjustment does not apply to any services.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax recoverable in a period exceeds the amount of output tax payable in that period, the accountable person is due a refund of the excess input tax credit. An accountable person may claim a refund of the credit by submitting the VAT return for the period. If an accountable person normally receives refunds of VAT, it may request permission to submit monthly returns to improve cash flow.

Pre-registration costs. VAT paid on costs incurred before commencement of trading is generally recoverable. Taxable persons should seek to register for VAT from a date prior to when the costs were incurred and recover the VAT through its periodic VAT returns.

Bad debts. The process of accounting for VAT on bad debts depends on whether the VAT was already paid to the supplier or if it was deducted but not yet paid.

In cases where VAT was already paid, the bad debt is allowable as a deduction for VAT if the following conditions are satisfied:
- The VAT paid was properly paid.
- The taxable person has taken all reasonable steps to recover the debt.
- The bad debt has been written off in the financial accounts of the taxable person.
- The person from whom the debt is due is not connected with the taxable person.

Where a person deducts VAT in a taxable period but has not, within six months of the end of that taxable period, paid the supplier for the goods or services, then the amount of VAT deductible will be reduced by the amount of VAT relating to the unpaid consideration, i.e., the VAT deducted relating to the unpaid consideration must be repaid to Revenue. A readjustment is provided for in the event of subsequent payment or part payment for the goods or services. The corresponding (re)adjustments should be declared on the corresponding periodic VAT return(s).

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred on purchases that are used for noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Ireland.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Input tax incurred by non-established businesses that are not registered for VAT in Ireland is recoverable. The Revenue Commissioners refund VAT incurred by businesses that are neither established nor registered for VAT in Ireland. Non-established businesses may claim Irish VAT to the same extent as a VAT-registered business, provided the general VAT deductibility criteria is met.

EU businesses. For businesses established in the EU, applications for refunds are made under the terms of the EU Directive 2008/9/EC. The VAT refund procedure under the EU Directive 2008/9 may be used only if the business did not perform any taxable supplies in Ireland during the refund period (excluding supplies covered by the reverse charge). For full details, see the EU chapter.

Find below specific rules for Ireland:
- For Irish VAT recovery claims from EU-based entities, in certain circumstances, interest is paid on repayments at a rate of 0.011% per day if the payment falls outside specific legislative time limits.

Non-EU businesses. For businesses established outside the EU, refunds are made under the terms of the EU 13th Directive. For full details see the the EU chapter.

Ireland applies the principle of reciprocity, that is, the country where the claimant is established must also provide VAT refunds to Irish businesses. In practice, there are no countries known that are excluded.

Find below specific rules for Ireland:
- The deadline for refund claims is 30 June of the year following the year in which the tax was incurred.
- The claim must be for a period of not less than a calendar quarter, unless it is for the final part of a year, and the period may not be longer than a calendar year. For claims covering a period of between three months and one year, the minimum claim amount is EUR400. The repayment is made by a check issued in EUR or by direct deposit into a bank account.
- Applications for refunds of Irish VAT by non-EU claimants may be sent to this address:

  VAT (Unregistered) Repayments
  Office of the Revenue Commissioners
  3rd Floor
  River House
  Charlotte's Quay
  Limerick
  Ireland

- Claims are normally paid within three to six months after submission of the claim. For Irish VAT recovery claims by non-EU entities, interest is not paid by the Irish tax authorities on late repayments.

Late payment interest. In Ireland, interest is not paid on late refunds to non-established businesses (for both EU and non-EU non-established businesses).

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. An Irish accountable person must issue a VAT invoice for taxable supplies made to taxable customers, exempt persons, government departments, local authorities and bodies established by statute. An Irish accountable person must also issue an invoice with respect to intra-Community supplies to businesses in other EU Member States and to sales to private individuals in other EU Member States under distance selling arrangements. A VAT invoice must be issued within 15 days after the end of the month in which either the goods or services were supplied or an advance payment was received.

A VAT invoice is necessary to support a claim for input tax deduction or an Irish VAT refund application under the EU 13th Directive for non-EU businesses or under the VAT refund procedure applicable to EU businesses.

Credit notes. A VAT credit note must be used if the VAT payable on a supply is reduced because of a subsequent allowance or discount unless the supplier and taxable customer agree that the VAT need not be adjusted. The credit note must be cross-referenced to the original VAT invoice and contain the same information.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is allowed in Ireland, but not mandatory

Scope of electronic invoicing. For B2B, B2C and business-to-government (B2G) supplies, electronic invoicing is allowed, but not mandatory in Ireland. This is in line with EU Directive 2010/45/EU and 2014/55/EU (see the chapter on the EU).

There is no threshold beyond which taxable persons are required to adopt electronic invoicing in Ireland. The requirements related to electronic invoicing are the same as those for paper invoicing.

At the time of preparing this chapter, it is expected that amendments to implement the B2G requirement will likely be passed into law. In addition, the Minister for Finance announced in the annual budget on 17 October 2023 a consultation process will take place in respect to the introduction of real-time digital reporting and electronic invoicing. No further details have been announced.

A taxable person may choose to issue an invoice in an electronic format. The issue of electronic invoices is subject to the following conditions:
- There is prior agreement between the issuer and the recipient in relation to the issue and acceptance of electronic invoices.
- The electronic system must be able to produce, retain and store invoices in such form and containing such particulars as are required for VAT purposes.
- The system must be able to reproduce in paper or electronic format any electronic record or message required to be produced, retained or stored.
- The issuer and recipient of an electronic invoice have an obligation to ensure the authenticity of origin, the integrity of content and a reliable audit trail between the invoice and the supply. For the EU VAT in the Digital Age (ViDA) proposals, refer to the EU chapter.

Simplified VAT invoices. A simplified invoice, credit note, settlement voucher or debit note may be issued if the following conditions are met:
- The amount of the invoice is not greater than EUR100
  Or
- When commercial, technical or administrative practices in a particular business sector make it difficult to comply with general invoicing requirements

A simplified invoice cannot be used in relation to an intra-Community supply of goods and or services.

Self-billing. Self-billing is allowed in Ireland. For self-billing to apply, the following conditions should be met:
- There is prior agreement with the supplier that the customer may draw up and issue the invoice.
- All conditions relating to the content or issue of the invoice are met by the customer.
- Agreed procedures are in place for acceptance by the supplier of the validity of the invoice.
- The invoice is endorsed with "self-billing."

An invoice issued under these arrangements is regarded as having been issued when the supplier accepts it in accordance with the procedures in place.

Proof of exports and intra-Community supplies. VAT is chargeable at a zero rate on the supply of exported goods or on the intra-Community supply of goods (see the EU chapter). However, to qualify for a zero rate, exports and intra-Community supplies must be supported by evidence that confirms the goods have left Ireland. Acceptable proof includes the following documentation:

- For an export, a copy of the export document officially validated by customs showing the supplier as the exporter, together with shipping or air freight documents and copies of commercial documentation (for example, orders, copy invoices, dispatch notes and delivery notes).
- For an intra-Community supply, a range of commercial documentation, including purchase orders, transport documentation, proof of payments received from abroad and contracts. The EU VAT registration number of the customer must also be quoted on the sales invoice.

No special documentation applies in Ireland for evidencing the application of the Quick Fixes. Normal intra-Community documentation rules apply. Note that the criteria for the call-off stock simplification must be met.

Foreign currency invoices. A VAT invoice may be issued in a foreign currency, but the actual VAT amount must be converted to the domestic currency, which is the euro (EUR), and included on all VAT invoices issued. The invoice amounts must be converted using the latest selling rate recorded by the Irish Central Bank at the time of supply.

It is possible to agree on a different exchange rate method with the Irish VAT authorities. If an alternative method is used, the accountable person must use it for all foreign currency transactions.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. For domestic B2C sales, there are no requirements to issue any documentation (i.e., no need to issue full VAT invoices). For distance sales supplies, full VAT invoices must be issued.

Distance selling. For intra-Community distance sales made B2C, a full VAT invoice must be issued. However, if the supplier operates the OSS regime, then no full VAT invoice is required unless requested.

Records. In Ireland, examples of what records that must be held for VAT purposes include full and true records of all business transactions that affect their liability to VAT, including business books and records, invoices, credit notes, debit notes, receipts, accounts, cash register tally rolls, vouchers, VIES records, Intrastat returns, stamped copies of single administrative documents and bank statements.

In Ireland, VAT books and records can be kept outside of the country. However, paper records must be kept in Ireland, but electronic records may be stored outside of Ireland (see the subsection below Electronic archiving for more detail).

Record retention period. A VAT-registered entity should retain all books, records and documents relevant to its business for a period of six years. A VAT registered entity should obtain written permission from the relevant Revenue office to be permitted retention of documents for a shorter period.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is allowed in Ireland. However, where a VAT-registered entity issues invoices in paper form, these must be retained in paper form. Exceptions to this require a Revenue agreement and are subject to conditions.

Electronic records must be recorded and stored in accordance with the electronic invoicing rules.

It is not required to retain the paper originals of any third-party record where an electronic copy of the original record is generated, recorded and stored, and the person is able to certify the following:

- The stored records were not damaged or amended.
- Proper security procedures were in place to prevent tampering.
- Programs are in place that will reproduce accurately the documents that are stored.

- A proper systems audit takes place annually to ensure that the instructions on the use of the system have been followed correctly and are in accordance with operational requirements.
- Copies of records must be accessible to Revenue in the way and format they may request.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. Irish VAT returns are generally submitted electronically on a bimonthly basis. Returns must be made online and by the 23rd day of the month following the return period.

However, the following taxable periods may be authorized by the Revenue Commissioners:
- Monthly basis if you are in a constant repayment position
- Annual return if you are making equal installments by direct debit
- Four-monthly returns if your annual VAT liability is between EUR3,001 and EUR14,400
- Six-monthly returns if your annual liability is EUR3,000 or less

Periodic payments. Full payment of the VAT due must be made by the VAT return deadline, i.e., by the 23rd day of the month following the end of the return period. The VAT should be submitted electronically by direct debit payment linked to a taxable person's account on Revenue's online platform ROS.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is mandatory in Ireland for all taxable persons. This is done by using the ROS section in www.revenue.ie.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Ireland.

Special schemes. Farmers. Farmers who are not VAT registered can charge a flat rate addition of 4.8% (reduced from 5% with effect from 1 January 2024) to VAT-registered purchasers on supplies including, for example, livestock and greyhounds.

Frequent exporters. A business that exports goods to persons outside the EU or to taxable persons in other EU Member States does not charge VAT on these transactions. However, it pays VAT on the goods and services it purchases locally or acquires from other EU Member States and on imports. Consequently, a business that predominantly trades with other countries would generally be in a net VAT repayment position for each period. This may have a negative impact on its cash flow position.

To help ease cash flow for businesses involved in international trade, exporters benefit from a special treatment for purchases. This provision is commonly known as the "VAT 56 Scheme." For these purposes, a qualifying exporter is an accountable person that derives at least 75% of its turnover from exports of goods from Ireland and from intra-Community supplies of goods from Ireland to persons registered for VAT in other EU Member States. Qualifying exporters may apply for certification of their entitlement to relief. Copies of the certification must be provided to suppliers that are required to supply most goods and services to qualifying exporters at the zero-rate.

The VAT 56 zero rating applies to most domestic purchases of goods and services, imports and intra-Community acquisitions. The zero-rating does not apply to the supply or hire of passenger cars, petrol (gasoline) for cars, food, drink, accommodation, nonbusiness purchases or any other expenses for which the input tax is not deductible.

Cash accounting. Some accountable persons are authorized to account for VAT on the basis of payments received rather than on the basis of invoices issued. This system is called "cash accounting." A person may avail of this if more than 90% of their turnover is derived from sales to unregistered persons or should the value from their annual turnover be under EUR2 million. For accountable persons using cash accounting, the liability to account for VAT arises on the date when payment is received for the supply. However, this does not change the basic tax point for the supply itself. The VAT rate applicable to a supply of goods or services is the rate in force on the date of the supply, not the rate in force on the date when payment is received.

Annual accounting. Some accountable persons are permitted to submit VAT returns on an annual basis. This facility is granted at the discretion of the Irish VAT authorities. Accountable persons that submit annual returns must also complete the annual return of trading details.

An accountable person that is permitted to use the annual accounting may align its annual VAT return date with its commercial accounting year.

An accountable person that is permitted to submit annual returns must make monthly VAT payments by direct debit throughout the year. Interest may be chargeable if the sum of the monthly payments made is less than 80% of the total VAT payable for the year.

Charities. Charities can benefit from a VAT compensation scheme to reduce their VAT burden and partially compensate for VAT incurred in the daily running of the charity. The scheme is capped at EUR5 million annually, and charities are entitled to claim a refund of a proportion of their VAT costs based on the level of nonpublic funding they receive. Claims are paid on a pro rata base if the total amount of claims exceeds EUR5 million. To qualify for the scheme, a charity at the date and time that the qualifying expenditure was incurred should be registered with the Revenue Commissioners and hold a charitable tax exemption and be registered with the Charities Regulatory authority.

Annual returns. All accountable persons must submit an annual return (known as an "Annual Return of Trading Details"), which outlines sales and purchases for the year, broken down by VAT rate. It is a statistical return. Consequently, no VAT liability is attached to such return. The return is due to be filed 23 days following the financial year-end of the taxable person, for example, a taxable person with a financial year-end of 31 December 2023 is due to file the return by 23 January 2024.

Supplementary filings. Intrastat. An accountable person that trades in goods with other EU countries must complete statistical reports, known as Intrastat, if the value of its intra-Community sales or purchases of goods exceeds certain thresholds. Separate reports are required for intra-Community acquisitions (Intrastat Arrivals) and intra-Community supplies (Intrastat Dispatches).

The threshold for Intrastat Arrivals for 2024 is EUR500,000. The threshold for Intrastat Dispatches for 2024 is EUR635,000.

The Intrastat return period is monthly. The submission deadline is the 23rd business day of the month following the return period. Intrastat returns must be filed electronically through the Revenue Commissioners Online System (ROS). Returns must be completed in EUR.

EU Sales Lists. If an Irish accountable person makes intra-Community supplies of goods and/or services, it must submit an EU Sales List (ESL). No threshold applies to ESLs. If no intra-Community supplies are made in a period, a "nil" statement must be submitted for that period.

ESLs are also known as "VAT Information Exchange System (VIES) statement" in Ireland.

ESLs are submitted quarterly if the quarterly amount of intra-Community supplies of goods does not exceed EUR50,000. Otherwise, ESLs are submitted monthly. An accountable person that is entitled to submit ESLs on a quarterly basis may apply to submit ESLs monthly if it is more convenient to do so. The submission deadline is the 23rd day of the month following the end of the return period, and ESLs must be filed electronically.

Correcting errors in previous returns. There are different mechanisms to correct errors in VAT returns including the following:
- Supplementary VAT returns
- Amended VAT returns

- Self-corrections in a current return period (only where the VAT due is less than EUR6,000)
- Disclosure regimes

The applicable method is dependent on various factors, such as value of the VAT error, the dates when the error occurred and whether the Revenue Commissioners have intervened prior to the taxable person correcting the error.

To mitigate penalties, a disclosure can be made to the Revenue Commissioners where tax is underpaid. The penalty can be reduced to as low as 3%, depending on the specific circumstances of the taxable person and the disclosure is made to the Revenue Commissioners in advance of an audit notification.

Digital tax administration. Real-time digital reporting and electronic invoicing. At the time of preparing this chapter, the Minister for Finance announced in the annual budget on 17 October 2023 a consultation process will take place in respect to the introduction of real-time digital reporting and electronic invoicing. No further details have been announced. For further details, see the subsection Electronic invoicing above.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. A penalty of EUR4,000 can be assessed for a failure to register for VAT.

Penalties for late payment and filings. The basic penalty for the late submission of a VAT return is EUR4,000 per return. Interest may also be levied on the amount of tax due at the rate of 0.0274% per day.

The penalty for a late or incorrect submission of an Intrastat return is EUR1,265 plus EUR60 per day that the return is outstanding.

The penalty for a late or incorrect submission of an ESL is EUR4,000.

Penalties for errors. If the Irish VAT authorities determine that an error was made as a result of the taxable person acting carelessly or deliberately defaulting, penalties may be imposed based on the amount of VAT underpaid or overclaimed. Such penalties can be between 3% and 100% of the VAT liability at issue, depending on the circumstances such as if a disclosure of the error is made to Revenue.

There are no specific penalties associated with the late notification or failure to notify changes to a taxable person's registration details. For further details, see the subsection Changes to VAT registration details above.

Penalties for fraud. The penalty for fraud is 100% of the VAT liability.

Personal liability for company officers. Company directors/officers are not held personally liable for errors and omissions in VAT declarations and reporting, provided fraudulent activities are not included. For fraudulent activities, this would be very case-specific, and a range of penalties and possible criminal charges may apply.

Statute of limitations. The statute of limitations in Ireland is four years. Generally, the time limit for Irish tax authorities to assess any VAT due is four years. However, in certain circumstances, the authorities can go back further than this period if it is deemed that a prior return did not contain a full and true disclosure of relevant facts.

B. Scope of the tax

The Isle of Man is an international financial center that is part of the territory of the UK for indirect tax purposes. However, the Customs and Excise Division in the Isle of Man operates independently from that of the UK, and the Isle of Man has its own VAT legislation. The UK and Isle of Man are considered one for VAT purposes, and the VAT laws of the two jurisdictions are very similar. This means that a single VAT registration in either Great Britain or Isle of Man would cover both Great Britain and Isle of Man activities.

For VAT purposes, the UK consists of Great Britain (GB) (England, Scotland and Wales) and Northern Ireland (NI). It does not include the Channel Islands or Gibraltar.

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- The supply of goods or services made in the Isle of Man or the UK by a taxable person
- Reverse-charge services received by a taxable person in the Isle of Man
- The importation of goods from outside the UK/Isle of Man, regardless of the status of the importer

Early termination fees had a change in VAT liability from outside the scope of VAT to subject to VAT at 20%. The change was originally due to take effect from 2 September 2020 or retrospectively for some businesses. In January 2021, implementation of the change in VAT treatment was deferred until a later date. Effective from 1 April 2022 when a customer terminates a contract early this will be regarded as further consideration for the contractual supply.

Brexit. The UK left the European Union (EU) on 31 January 2020. The transition period came to an end at 11 p.m. UK time on 31 December 2020. Thereafter, the UK-EU TCA governs the economic and trading relationship between the UK and the EU. However, for NI a "dual"/"mixed" VAT regime operates that follows EU VAT rules for goods and UK VAT rules for services. The Isle of Man will follow the arrangements employed by GB with NI and the EU. See the UK chapter for further details of such arrangements.

Movement of goods. From 31 December 2020 at 11 p.m. UK time, the Isle of Man is a third country in relation to the remaining EU 27 Member States and therefore no longer has the concepts of EU acquisitions or dispatches for goods. Goods leaving and entering the Isle of Man (excluding those to/from the UK) will be treated as imports and exports. Customs and excise duties and import VAT may apply.

Imports. To continue moving goods from EU countries after 31 December 2020 at 11 p.m. UK time, Isle of Man businesses need to complete a number of actions, including deciding how to make customs declarations, checking whether imported goods are eligible for staged import controls and obtaining an Economic Operator Registration Identification (EORI) number.

An EORI number is used by tax authorities to identify a business for customs purposes. Businesses may need more than one EORI number depending on where they are moving goods. Businesses will require a GB EORI number (separate to its EU EORI number) to import into or export from GB/Isle of Man and will require an EU EORI number (separate to its GB EORI number) to import into or export from the EU 27.

Postponed import VAT accounting. Postponed import VAT accounting (PVA), where import VAT is accounted for on the VAT return, is available if a business imports goods into GB/Isle of Man from anywhere outside the UK/Isle of Man. Businesses do not need to be authorized to use postponed import VAT accounting.

A single VAT registration in either GB or Isle of Man would cover both GB and Isle of Man activities. If a business is approved to use PVA, this would cover both GB and Isle of Man.

Tax representatives. If a business is not established in the Isle of Man, a third party established in the Isle of Man must deal with customs on behalf of the business. Non-established taxable persons can have their nominated intermediary account for import VAT on the intermediary's VAT return.

In addition, a non-established taxable person can nominate an intermediary who will be able to account for the import VAT on its VAT return.

Exports. To export goods to EU countries, Isle of Man businesses must have a GB EORI number.

Services. The Isle of Man is a non-EU country and the application of use and enjoyment rules, which vary by Member State, will apply differently.

VAT registration. Certain VAT registrations are no longer available post-Brexit, including UK Mini One-Stop Shop registrations for Isle of Man businesses and distance selling registrations for Isle of Man businesses.

Input tax recovery. Effective from 31 December 2020 at 11 p.m. UK time, businesses (subject to the normal rules) are able to reclaim input VAT attributable to the export of certain financial services products to the EU (as was already the case for those exports to non-EU countries).

Case law. Post-Brexit, lower Courts in the UK (First-tier Tribunal, Upper Tribunal and High Court) remain bound by European case law. However, the Court of Appeal of England and Wales, and equivalent courts and upwards across the UK, have the power to depart from retained EU case law. The test for doing so is one that is currently applied by the Supreme Court as to whether to depart from one if its own judgments, namely whether it is right to do so. In practice, this power has been exercised very sparingly by the Supreme Court. Following agreement by both Houses on the text of the Retained EU Law (Revocation and Reform Bill), it received Royal Assent on 29 June 2023. The bill is now an Act of Parliament – Retained EU Law (Revocation and Reform) Act 2023. 31 December 2023 will mark the beginning of the UK's divergence from EU law. Under this Act, around 600 pieces of legislation across 16 government departments will be revoked and some key EU law principles will no longer be applicable. Note that although the Isle of Man has its own laws/courts, it relies on the UK system in relation to VAT judgments.

Effective use and enjoyment. To avoid instances of non-taxation or double taxation, jurisdictions can apply "use and enjoyment rules" that allow a service that is "used and enjoyed" in the jurisdiction to be taxed or prevent a service that is "used and enjoyed" outside the jurisdiction from being taxed. If a service is taxed in the jurisdiction under the "use and enjoyment" provisions, a non-established supplier of the service may be required to register for VAT in that jurisdiction where it has customers that are not taxable persons.

In the Isle of Man, the following services are subject to the "use and enjoyment" provisions:
- The letting on hire of goods (including means of transport)
- Electronically supplied services (business-to-business [B2B] only)
- Telecommunications services (B2B only)
- Repairs to goods under an insurance claim (B2B only)
- Radio and television broadcasting services

Effective use and enjoyment rules apply to the aforementioned services when they are either supplied by an Isle of Man supplier but consumed outside the UK/Isle of Man; or, supplied by a non-UK/Isle of Man supplier but consumed in the UK/Isle of Man.

Transfer of a going concern. Normally the sale of the assets of a VAT registered or VAT registrable business will be subject to VAT at the appropriate rate. However, a transfer of a business as a going concern (TOGC) is the sale of a business, including assets that must be treated as "neither a supply of goods nor a supply of services" by virtue of meeting certain conditions. Where the sale meets the conditions, the supply is mandatorily outside the scope of UK/Isle of Man VAT.

For there to be a TOGC for VAT purposes in the Isle of Man, all of the following conditions must apply:

- The assets, such as stock-in-trade, machinery, goodwill, premises and fixtures and fittings, must be sold as part of the TOGC
- The buyer must intend to use the assets in carrying on the same kind of business as the seller
- Where the seller is a taxable person, the buyer must be a taxable person already or become one as the result of the transfer
- In respect of land or buildings that would be standard rated if they were supplied, the buyer must notify Isle of Man Customs and Excise that they have opted to tax the land by the relevant date and must notify the seller that their option has not been disapplied by the same date
- Where only part of the business is sold, it must be capable of operating separately
- There must not be a series of immediately consecutive transfers of the business

Transactions between related parties. In the Isle of Man, there are no specific rules that indicate the value for VAT/GST purposes for transactions between related parties. However, where a supply is made below market value, Treasury may direct that the value of the supply shall be taken to be its open market value.

C. Who is liable

A taxable person is any entity or person that is required to be registered for VAT. It includes any entity or individual that makes taxable supplies of goods or services in the Isle of Man in the course or furtherance of a business greater than the turnover thresholds.

The VAT registration threshold is GBP85,000; this threshold generally increases annually, however, this rate is currently set until 31 March 2026. This threshold applies to businesses established in the Isle of Man or the UK. A nil registration threshold applies for non-established businesses. As a result, any non-established business that makes taxable supplies in the Isle of Man is required to register for VAT.

Exemption from registration. A taxable person whose turnover is wholly or principally zero-rated may request exemption from registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. A business may register for VAT voluntarily if its taxable turnover is below the VAT registration threshold. A business may also register for VAT voluntarily in advance of making taxable supplies.

Businesses with a taxable turnover of GBP150,000 or less (excluding VAT) may apply to the Customs and Excise Division to use the VAT Flat Rate scheme. Refer to the Special schemes section for further details.

Businesses with annual taxable turnover (excluding VAT) of less than GBP1.35 million may apply to complete an annual VAT return rather than quarterly returns. Refer to the Special schemes section for further details.

Group registration. VAT grouping is a facilitation measure by which two or more eligible persons can be treated as a single taxable person for VAT purposes. Eligible persons are bodies corporate, individuals, partnerships and Scottish partnerships. Bodies corporate include companies of all types.

Corporate bodies and certain noncorporate entities that are under "common control" and are established or have a fixed establishment in the Isle of Man or the UK may apply to register as a VAT group.

The control condition is met where all members of the group are controlled either by one member of the group, which can be a body corporate, an individual, a partnership or a Scottish partnership, or a single other "person" who is not one of the members of the group. Where control is exercised by a person that is a partnership, control must be exercised through the partnership and not by the partners as individuals. The company shares will normally be assets of the partnership.

When a VAT group is registered, any previous VAT registration numbers individual members may have had will be canceled and a new number will be issued to the group as a whole. For EORI purposes, all members of a VAT group are treated as legal entities in their own right. But it is only group members who import or export commercial goods that will require an EORI number.

A VAT group is treated as a single taxable person. The group members share a single VAT number and submit a single VAT return. VAT is not charged on supplies made between group members.

All members of a VAT group in the Isle of Man are jointly and severally liable for VAT debts and penalties.

There is no minimum time period for the duration of a VAT group.

Holding companies. A pure holding company may be included in a VAT group to the extent that it meets the eligibility criteria. VAT recovery on costs will depend on whether any taxable supplies are made and either, the direct link that exists between those costs and taxable supplies; or the link from those costs to the business activities of the VAT group as a whole.

Cost-sharing exemption. The VAT cost-sharing exemption (VAT Directive 2006/112/EEC Article 132(1)(f) has been implemented in the Isle of Man. This provides an option to exempt support services that the cost-sharing group supplies to its members, providing certain conditions are met (in accordance with specific requirements laid out in the Isle of Man VAT law).

The cost-sharing exemption can be used when two or more organizations with exempt and/or nonbusiness activities join together to purchase services on a cooperative basis, and in doing so, form a separate entity, a cost-sharing group (CSG), to supply themselves with qualifying services at cost.

There are two fundamental requirements that must be met to qualify for exemption:

- The CSG must consist only of operators carrying out an activity that is exempt from, or not subject to, VAT. The only businesses or organizations that can use the exemption are those that engage in exempt activities that fall within public interest exemptions, including postal services, education, health and welfare, subscriptions to trade unions, professional and other qualifying bodies, sports, sports competitions and physical education, fund raising by charities and cultural services.
- The group must not exist for the purposes of gain and must only charge its members for expenses incurred by it to meet their requirements.

Fixed establishment. A fixed establishment is an establishment other than the business establishment (a business establishment is usually a head office, headquarters or seat from which the business is run on a day-to-day basis and central administration takes place), which has the human and technical resources necessary for providing or receiving services. A business may have several fixed establishments, which may include a branch or agency. Where there are establishments in more than one country, it will be necessary to determine which one is most directly linked to a supply.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that has no fixed establishment in the Isle of Man or the UK. A non-established business must register for VAT if it makes any of the following supplies in the Isle of Man, regardless of the value of the supply:
- Goods located in the Isle of Man at the time of supply
- Services to which the reverse charge does not apply
- Supplies of telecommunication, broadcasting and electronic services (digital services) to non-taxable customers in the Isle of Man

A non-established business that registers for VAT may normally do so from its place of business outside the Isle of Man. Application form VAT 1 MAN should be sent to the following address:

Isle of Man Customs and Excise
P.O. Box 6
Custom House
North Quay
Douglas IM99 1AG
Isle of Man

Tax representatives. A non-established business may choose to appoint a tax representative or agent to act on its behalf in relation to Isle of Man VAT matters.

Customs and Excise Division may require that a non-established person appoint a tax representative. However, this condition may be imposed only if the business is established in a country outside the EU that has not agreed on mutual assistance provisions with the UK/Isle of Man.

Reverse charge. If a non-established business supplies services to an Isle of Man taxable person but does not register for VAT, the taxable person may be required to account for the VAT due under "reverse-charge" accounting. This means that the taxable person charges itself VAT. The self-assessed VAT may be deducted as input tax (that is, VAT on allowable purchases) depending on the taxable person's partial exemption status. This provision does not apply in all circumstances. For example, it applies only if the place of supply of the services is the Isle of Man.

Domestic reverse charge. Telecommunication services. The reverse charge applies to the services of routing telephone calls and associated data (text, images) over landlines, mobile networks and the internet. It does not apply to non-wholesale supplies or to businesses not registered or not liable to be registered for VAT. The supplier must show all the information normally required to be shown on a VAT invoice. The supplier must also annotate the invoice to make it clear that the reverse charge applies, and that the customer is required to account for the VAT.

Domestic supplies of mobile phones and computer chips. A domestic reverse charge with respect to specified goods is designed to combat missing trader fraud. The reverse charge applies, with some exclusions, to supplies of mobile phones and computer chips valued at GBP5,000 or more and that are supplied in the UK or Isle of Man by a VAT-registered business to another VAT-registered business. Under the reverse-charge accounting mechanism, it is the responsibility of the customer, rather than the supplier, to account for VAT on supplies of the specified goods. The supplier must show all the information normally required to be shown on a VAT invoice. The supplier must also annotate the invoice to make it clear that the reverse charge applies, and that the customer is required to account for the VAT.

Domestic supplies of emissions allowances. Purchasers of specified emissions allowances must account for VAT under a domestic reverse-charge accounting procedure, rather than paying VAT to the supplier. The supplier must show all the information normally required to be shown on a VAT invoice. The supplier must also annotate the invoice to make it clear that the reverse charge applies, and the customer is required to account for the VAT.

Domestic wholesale supplies of gas and electricity. Purchasers of wholesale supplies of gas and electricity are required to account for VAT under a domestic reverse-charge accounting procedure, rather than paying VAT to the supplier. VAT-registered businesses that do not resell or trade the gas or electricity are not affected. The supplier must show all the information normally required to be shown on a VAT invoice. The supplier must also annotate the invoice to make it clear that the reverse charge applies, and that the customer is required to account for the VAT

Domestic B2B supplies of construction services. The domestic reverse charge applies in the Isle of Man for the construction industry. The charge applies to standard (20%) or reduced rate (5%) building and construction services where payments are required to be reported through the Construction Industry Scheme (CIS). Therefore, supplies between subcontractors and contractors (i.e., B2B supply), as defined by the CIS, will be subject to the reverse charge unless they are supplied to a contractor who is an end user.

Digital economy. E-commerce changes. The Isle of Man introduced changes to the VAT rules relating to e-commerce sales effective from 1 January 2021. These changes are similar to the EU e-commerce VAT changes that were implemented on 1 July 2021. The Isle of Man changes coincided with the removal of the low-value consignment relief and the end of the Brexit transition period. For an overview of the e-commerce changes, see the chapter on the EU.

Import of low-value goods for sales to customers. From 1 January 2021, the low-value consignment relief (LVCR) that relieved import VAT on consignments of goods valued at GBP15 or less was removed for goods imported from outside the UK/Isle of Man. Further, the EU VAT distance selling regime no longer applies to sales of goods to customers in the Isle of Man from 1 January 2021.

As a consequence of the above changes, VAT is chargeable on all imports into the Isle of Man. However, different VAT rules apply to import of goods in consignments valued at GBP135 or less and consignments valued at more than GBP135.

For non-excisable goods imported in consignments not exceeding GBP135 in value, the goods will no longer be subject to import VAT. Instead, VAT will be applied at the point of sale. These rules apply irrespective of the place of establishment of the supplier. If the supplier making such imports is not registered for VAT in the UK/Isle of Man, from 1 January 2021 they would be required to obtain an Isle of Man VAT registration for such imports.

Similar rules apply to both B2B and B2C transactions involving imports. However, if the customer provides the supplier with a UK/Isle of Man VAT registration number, then the customer is required to self-assess VAT under the reverse-charge mechanism.

Import One-Stop Shop. The Import One-Stop Shop (IOSS) may be used by non-EU businesses making consignments to customers in the EU and NI, less than EUR150. Local VAT registrations may still be appropriate for consignments over EUR150 to facilitate returns and to avoid the need for the customer to act as importer.

Online marketplaces and platforms. If an online marketplace (OMP) facilitates the B2C sale of goods by sellers, the OMP is treated as the deemed supplier of the goods for VAT purposes under the following two scenarios:

- Goods imported from outside GB/Isle of Man into the Isle of Man in consignments not exceeding GBP135 in value for sales to customers
- Goods located in the Isle of Man at the point of sale and are owned by a supplier established outside the UK/Isle of Man

In the above scenarios, the OMP is liable to account for VAT as a deemed supplier, regardless of its place of establishment. In the above cases, if the customer is VAT registered and it has provided its UK/Isle of Man VAT registration number to the OMP, then the OMP is not viewed as a deemed supplier.

The term OMP has been defined as "a website or any other means by which information is made available over the internet, which facilitates the sale of goods through the website or other means by persons other than the operator (whether or not the operator also sells goods through the marketplace)." The term "operator" is defined as "the person who controls access to, and the contents of, the online marketplace," provided that the person is involved in all the following:

- Determining any terms or conditions applicable to the sale of goods
- Processing, or facilitating the processing, of payment for the goods
- The ordering or delivery, or facilitating the ordering or delivery, of the goods

Joint and several liability. Where an overseas trader who operates through a fulfillment house/online marketplace is liable to be registered and account for Isle of Man VAT, and they fail to do so, Isle of Man Customs and Excise has powers in place to hold the online marketplace jointly and severally liable for any Isle of Man VAT due.

Vouchers. The rules apply to vouchers issued on or after 1 January 2019 and refers only to single-purpose vouchers (SPV) and multi-purpose vouchers (MPV).

A SPV is one where the place of supply of the underlying goods or services is known (i.e., the country in which the supply will take place) and the relevant goods or services have a single liability to VAT (i.e., standard rate, zero rate, reduced rate or exempt) at the time the voucher is issued and transferred (such that the applicable VAT rate is known at the time the voucher is issued/transferred). Both the issue of a SPV and its subsequent transfer represent a supply of the underlying goods or services, and any VAT payable is due at this time. The consideration is the amount charged for the issue and transfer of the voucher.

Any voucher that is not a SPV will be a MPV. With a MPV, at the time the voucher is issued or transferred, the VAT rate of the underlying goods or services is not known (e.g., the place of supply and/or rate of the goods is unknown) and thus the underlying goods or services are only taxed when the voucher is redeemed. The issue or transfer of the voucher is disregarded (i.e., not a supply for Isle of Man VAT purposes).

Registration procedures. To register for VAT, form VAT 1 MAN should be completed, and the original signed form submitted along with supporting documentation. If submitted by post it should be sent to the following address:

Isle of Man Customs and Excise
P.O. Box 6
Custom House
North Quay
Douglas IM99 1AG
Isle of Man

Supporting documents would include copies of corporate registration, evidence of trade or intent to trade and an appropriate business plan. Additional supporting evidence may be required depending on the nature of the business activity.

A VAT registration can usually be processed within 7 to 10 working days.

Currently there is not an online VAT registration system in the Isle of Man. However, emailed applications will normally be accepted.

Note that one VAT registration covers both GB and Isle of Man activities. The registration is based on where the taxable person is established.

Deregistration. A taxable person that ceases to be eligible for VAT registration must deregister. A taxable person may also request deregistration if its taxable turnover drops below the deregistration threshold (currently GBP83,000) or if its taxable turnover is wholly or principally zero-rated. However, deregistration is not compulsory in these circumstances.

Changes to VAT registration details. A business must keep VAT registration details up to date and Isle of Man Customs and Excise must be advised of any changes in writing. This would include changes to corporate name, registered address, business activity, VAT liability of supplies and members of a partnership.

Isle of Man Customs and Excise must be notified about any material changes within 30 days, or a financial penalty may be applied.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero-rate.

If an Isle of Man company is not required to register for VAT but the beneficial owner is a non-Isle of Man or non-UK resident, look-through provisions may apply. In 1983, the Isle of Man reached agreement with the UK government to introduce measures to look through the fact that a company is resident in the Isle of Man and to consider the place of residence of the beneficial owner. Consequently, if a package of corporate administration services is provided to an Isle of Man company in these circumstances, the supply is not subject to VAT.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 20%
- Reduced rate: 5%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services, unless a specific measure provides for the zero-rate, the reduced rate or an exemption.

Some differences exist between the Isle of Man and the UK with respect to the supplies that are eligible for zero-rating and the reduced rate.

Some supplies are classified as "exempt-with-credit." Exempt-with-credit supplies are effectively treated as if they were zero-rated, but they are not within the scope of VAT. This means that no VAT is chargeable, but the supplier may recover related input tax. Exempt-with-credit supplies include services supplied to customers outside the UK/Isle of Man.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Books, newspapers and periodicals (from 1 May 2020, this also applies to digital formats of these publications)
- Certain foodstuffs
- Children's clothing and footwear
- Drugs and medicines supplied on prescription
- New housing
- Transport services
- Passenger transport (including yachts)
- Exports of goods and related services

Examples of goods and services taxable at 5%

- Fuel and power supplied to domestic users and charities

- Energy-saving materials
- Building materials for residential conversions
- Sanitary protection products
- Children's car seats
- Domestic property repairs
- Holiday accommodation

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Betting and gaming
- Education
- Finance
- Insurance
- Land and buildings (in most cases)
- Public postal services
- Human blood products
- Medical services

Option to tax for exempt supplies. An option to tax may be made in respect of commercial land and property. Where an option to tax is made, supplies of interest in the land and property will become taxable with VAT chargeable at the standard rate of VAT and in return, input tax in relation to the taxable supply will be recoverable subject to the normal rules. Certain supplies of land and buildings are not affected by an option to tax (generally buildings intended for residential use or a qualifying charitable use).

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point." The "basic" tax point under Isle of Man law is the point when the goods are either removed from the supplier's premises or made available to the customer, or when the services are performed.

The basic tax point may be overridden by the creation of an "actual" tax point. An actual tax point may occur before or after the basic tax point.

Before the basic tax point. If the supplier issues a VAT invoice or receives payment with respect to the supply, a tax point is created to the extent covered by the invoice or payment.

After the basic tax point. If an invoice is issued up to 14 days after the supply, the date of the invoice becomes the tax point. Taxable persons may request permission to extend the period for this invoicing tax point to up to a maximum of 30 days after the basic tax point.

Deposits and prepayments. The receipt of a deposit or prepayment normally creates an actual tax point if the amount is paid in the expectation that it will form part of the total payment for a particular supply. A tax point is created only to the extent of the payment received.

Continuous supplies of services. If services are supplied continuously, a tax point is created each time a payment is made, or a VAT invoice is issued, whichever occurs earlier. Where payments are made at regular intervals, a VAT invoice can be issued in advance. However, the customer cannot recover input tax until the first payment is due or has been paid. Where payments are not made at regular intervals, an invoice should be issued annually to create a tax point.

Goods sent on approval or for sale or return. The tax point for goods sent on approval or for sale or return is the earlier of when the goods are accepted by the customer or 12 months after their removal from the supplier. However, if a VAT invoice is issued before these dates, the invoice creates an actual tax point, up to the amount invoiced.

Reverse-charge services. The tax point for reverse-charge services is primarily when the service is performed. For single services, this is when the service is completed or when payment for the service is made, whichever is earlier. For a continuous supply of services, the tax point is the end of each periodic billing or payment period or when payment is made, whichever is earlier. For continuous supplies that are not subject to billing or payment periods, the tax point is 31 December each year unless a payment creates an earlier tax point.

Leased assets. The same general rules apply as with the continuous supply of services provided that legal title to the goods does not pass to the recipient and there is no express contemplation that title will transfer at some point in the future. Goods supplied on terms that expressly contemplate that title will transfer at some point in the future (e.g., under hire-purchase or conditional sale agreements) are treated in the same way as a normal sale of goods where title passes at the outset. Unless a VAT invoice is issued, the time of supply will be linked to the basic tax point (see above). This means the full amount of VAT becomes payable at the outset rather than being due on the installment payments.

Imported goods. The time of supply for imported goods is the date of importation or the date on which the goods leave a duty suspension regime. Postponed import VAT accounting may be used for imports by Isle of Man VAT registered businesses.

Intra-Community acquisitions. No longer applicable following the end of the transition period, on 31 December 2020 at 11 p.m. UK time.

Intra-Community supplies of goods. No longer applicable following the end of the transition period, on 31 December 2020 at 11 p.m. UK time.

Distance sales. No longer applicable following the end of the transition period, on 31 December 2020 at 11 p.m. UK time.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax, which is VAT charged on goods and services supplied to it for business purposes. Input tax is generally recovered by being deducted from output tax, which is VAT charged on supplies made. Where input tax exceeds output tax in any period, the taxable person will receive a refund.

Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services supplied in the Isle of Man or the UK, VAT paid on imports of goods into the Isle of Man or the UK and self-assessed VAT on reverse-charge services.

A valid tax invoice or customs document must generally accompany a claim for input tax. A Monthly Postponed Import VAT Statement (MPIVS) will form the primary evidence for input tax recovery for imports (C79 certificates will not be required to support recovery of import VAT accounted for via postponed import VAT accounting). The MPIVS will be published online via the taxable person tax account and the Isle of Man VAT-registered importer will have access to the statement as soon as it is published.

C79 certificates will continue to be required as evidence to support import VAT recovery only to the extent to which import VAT is accounted for at import.

The time limit for a taxable person to reclaim input tax in the Isle of Man is four years. The time limit for deducting input tax starts to run from the due date for the return that the business is liable to make after it has both incurred the input tax and received the VAT invoice. If the taxable person does not account for input tax in the appropriate period, this is an error, and the taxable person may be required to make an error correction notification. Input tax cannot be claimed more than four years after the date by which the return for the first period in which input tax could be claimed is required to be made.

Special rules apply to the recovery of input tax on expenditure incurred before registration and after deregistration.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use). In addition, input tax may not be recovered for some items of business expenditure.

The following lists provide some examples of items of expenditure for which input tax is not deductible and examples of items for which input tax is deductible if the expenditure is related to a taxable business use.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Purchase of a car (unless the car is available exclusively for business use)
- 50% of VAT incurred on the rental or lease of a car used for mixed business and private purposes
- Private expenditure
- Business entertainment and hospitality (except when provided to overseas customers)
- Import VAT where the taxable person is not the owner of the relevant goods

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Conferences, exhibitions, training and seminars
- Taxi services
- Restaurant expenses for employees
- Accommodation
- Motoring expenses and fuel for business purposes
- Business use of a home telephone

Partial exemption. Input tax directly related to making exempt supplies is generally not recoverable. If a taxable person makes both exempt and taxable supplies, it may not recover input tax in full. This situation is referred to as "partial exemption."

An Isle of Man taxable person that makes exempt supplies may calculate the amount of VAT that it may recover in several ways. The standard partial exemption calculation method is a two-stage calculation. The following are the two stages of the calculation:

- The first stage identifies the input tax that may be directly allocated to taxable and to exempt supplies. Input tax directly allocated to taxable supplies is deductible, while input tax directly related to exempt supplies is not deductible. Supplies that are exempt with credit are treated as taxable supplies for these purposes.
- The second stage identifies the amount of the remaining input tax (for example, input tax on general business overhead) that may be allocated to taxable supplies and recovered. The calculation of recoverable VAT may be performed using the general pro rata method based on the respective value of taxable and exempt supplies made.

If the standard calculation provides an unfair or distortive result, a special calculation method may be agreed with the Customs and Excise Division. Approval from the tax authorities is not required to use the partial exemption standard method in the Isle of Man. A business must use the standard method unless Isle of Man Customs and Excise has given approval for a special method. In some cases, the authorities may impose the use of a special calculation method.

Capital goods. Capital goods are items of capital expenditure that are used in a business over several years. A taxable person does not have to be partly exempt or have nonbusiness activities when costs are incurred for the capital goods scheme (CGS) to apply. The value of a capital item is the VAT-exclusive value of the item. Only the value of standard or reduced-rated taxable supplies is considered. The value is determined by reference to total expenditure on an asset. This includes both business and nonbusiness expenditure on an asset.

Input tax is deducted in the VAT year in which the goods are acquired. The amount of input tax recovered depends on the taxable person's business use in the VAT year of acquisition. The scheme requires adjustments to be made to the initial amount of VAT claimed. This reflects the differences in the use of capital items over a period of time. This period is known as the "adjustment period." If, during the adjustment period, there is any change in the proportion of taxable use, then the taxable person must make a corresponding adjustment to input tax.

In the Isle of Man, the capital goods adjustment applies to the following assets for the number of intervals (normally a year) indicated:

- Land and buildings and related property expenditure valued at GBP250,000 or more are adjusted for a period of 10 intervals.
- Individual computer hardware valued at GBP50,000 or more is adjusted for a period of five intervals.
- The CGS also includes ships and aircraft valued at GBP50,000 or more; the adjustment period is five intervals.

If, in any subsequent interval, the amount that the item is used to make taxable supplies increases or decreases compared with its use in the original deduction period, a CGS adjustment is required in that subsequent interval. No retrospective adjustments are made after the end of the first interval. The actual input tax adjustment (if any) required in a subsequent interval is calculated by dividing the total VAT on the capital item by the total number of intervals in the adjustment period (usually either 5 or 10) and then multiplying by the adjustment percentage.

In the Isle of Man, the capital goods adjustment does not apply to any services.

Refunds. If the amount of VAT recoverable (i.e., input tax) exceeds the amount of VAT payable (i.e., output tax) in a period, a refund may be claimed. This is done automatically through the submission of the periodic VAT return. A taxable person that receives regular repayments of VAT may request permission to submit monthly returns.

Note that Isle of Man-established businesses that have incurred VAT in the EU can still claim refunds of VAT from the EU after the end of the Brexit transitional period but need to refer to the local EU Member State, as each EU Member State has its own process for refunding VAT to non-EU businesses. For full details, see the chapter on the EU.

Pre-registration costs. VAT incurred on the purchase of goods for a taxable business still on hand at the time of VAT registration can be recovered, subject to the normal rules, up to four years prior to the effective date of VAT registration. VAT incurred on services purchased for a taxable business can be recovered, subject to the normal rules, up to six months prior to the effective date of VAT registration.

Bad debts. Where a business has made supplies to its customers and has not been paid, it can claim relief for the VAT on bad debts provided a number of conditions are met. The main conditions for claiming VAT bad debt relief are that the business must already have accounted for the VAT on the supplies and paid it to the Customs and Excise Division, the business must have written off the debt in its VAT accounts, and the debt must have remained unpaid for a period of six months after the date of the supply and the date payment was due, whichever is later. If, however, payment is subsequently received, VAT must once again be accounted for.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred upon purchases that are used for noneconomic activities is not recoverable in the Isle of Man.

VAT incurred on purchases that are used partly for business purposes and partly for nonbusiness purposes must normally be apportioned between economic and noneconomic use before dealing with any partial exemption calculation.

Government bodies, local authorities and similar organizations can recover VAT incurred on certain costs relating to their nonbusiness activities under sections 41 and 33 of the VAT Act 1996.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Input tax incurred by non-established businesses that are not registered for VAT in the Isle of Man is recoverable. Customs and Excise Division refunds VAT incurred by businesses that are neither established nor registered for VAT in the Isle of Man. Non-established businesses may reclaim Isle of Man VAT to the same extent as VAT-registered businesses.

Businesses established outside the Isle of Man may be entitled to recover VAT incurred on goods and services supplied in the Isle of Man.

The Isle of Man does not generally exclude businesses from any country from eligibility.

Find below specific rules for the Isle of Man:

- Refunds are based on the period from 1 July to 30 June (a prescribed year), and the final deadline for refund claims is 31 December following the end of the prescribed year in which the tax was incurred.
- The applications must be submitted in English.
- The minimum claim period is three months, unless a period of less than three months is all that remains of the prescribed year and the maximum period is one prescribed year. The minimum claim for a period of less than a year is GBP130. For an annual claim, or for a period of less than three months when that is all that remains of the prescribed year, the minimum amount is GBP16.

  Postal applications must be sent to the following address:

  HM Revenue and Customs
  Compliance Centres
  VAT Overseas Repayment Unit
  S1250
  Benton Park View
  Newcastle Upon Tyne
  NE98 1YX

Applications should be submitted using form VAT 65A (available online) and accompanied by a Certificate of Status, relevant invoices and other supporting documentation.

Claims may also be submitted electronically using HMRC's Secure Data Exchange Service (SDES) system. The system is optional and is still in the testing stage (as of October 2022). You need to register to use the system on or before 30 November ahead of the 31 December deadline.

Refunds will be made within six months of receiving a satisfactory application. If the application is in order, the invoices showing that VAT has been paid will be returned as soon as the application is authorized for payment.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. An Isle of Man taxable person must generally provide a VAT invoice for all taxable supplies made to other taxable persons, including exports. Invoices are not automatically required for B2C supplies, such as retail transactions, unless requested by the customer.

A VAT invoice is necessary to support a claim for input tax deduction or refund.

Credit notes. A VAT credit note may be used to reduce the VAT charged and reclaimed on a supply. The credit note must reflect a genuine mistake, an overcharge or an agreed reduction in the value of the original supply. A credit note must be issued within one month after the discovery of the mistake or overcharge, and it must be cross-referenced to the original VAT invoice.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is allowed in the Isle of Man, but not mandatory.

Scope of electronic invoicing. For B2B, B2C and business-to-government (B2G) supplies, electronic invoicing is allowed but not mandatory in the Isle of Man. This is in line with EU Directive 2010/45/EU and 2014/55/EU (see the chapter on the EU).

There is no threshold beyond which taxable persons are required to adopt electronic invoicing in the Isle of Man. The requirements related to electronic invoicing are the same as those for paper invoicing.

Isle of Man Treasury has not mandated B2G, B2B or B2C e-invoicing. However, as part of its VAT system there are legal requirements relating to the issuing, receiving and storing of e-invoices. Businesses need to adhere to these where they or their customers have agreed to receive e-invoices on a voluntary basis.

For the EU VAT in the Digital Age (ViDA) proposals, refer to the chapter on the European Union.

Simplified VAT invoices. A retailer does not have to issue a full VAT invoice unless a customer request one. Retailers can issue simplified invoices for supplies under GBP250. For businesses that are not retailers, but the total value of their supply does not exceed GBP250, it can issue its customer with a simplified invoice.

Self-billing. Self-billing is allowed in the Isle of Man. However, a written agreement must be in place between the customer and supplier. The agreement must have an expiry date, it must allow the customer to issue invoices on the supplier's behalf and contain confirmation that the supplier won't issue VAT invoices for goods/services covered by the agreement. Authorization is not required to operate self-billing as long as all the relevant conditions are met.

Proof of exports. Isle of Man VAT is not chargeable on supplies of exported goods. However, to qualify for VAT zero-rating, the goods must be exported from the Isle of Man within three months of the time of supply and valid evidence of export must be obtained.

Acceptable proof includes official customs documentation and commercial documentation, such as consignment notes and airway bills. In all cases, the evidence must clearly identify the supplier, the customer, the goods and the destination. The evidence must be obtained within three months of the time of supply and be retained for at least six years.

Foreign currency invoices. If a VAT invoice is issued in a foreign currency, the VAT value must be converted into the domestic currency, which is the British pound sterling (GBP), using an acceptable exchange rate and stated in the invoice. Suppliers may use any of the following rates:
- The UK market selling rate at the time of supply
- The UK tax authorities' published exchange rate for the period
- Any other acceptable commercial rate agreed to in writing with the Customs and Excise Division

Supplies to nontaxable persons. Full VAT invoices are not automatically required for supplies to nontaxable persons, such as retail transactions, unless requested by the customer.

Records. In the Isle of Man, the records that must be held for VAT purposes include a record of sales and purchases and a separate summary of VAT known as a VAT account. A taxable person must also keep copies of all invoices that it issues and those that it receives, plus import and export documents and other general business records. The type of additional records to be retained will depend on the nature of the business.

In the Isle of Man, VAT books and records can be kept outside of the country. However, whilst generally records must be retained at the principal place of business, this can be changed if agreed with the Customs and Excise Division. Records must be available for inspection locally on request.

Record retention period. Generally, business records for VAT purposes must be retained for at least six years.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is allowed in the Isle of Man. Taxable persons can maintain records on paper, electronically or as part of a software program. Electronic archiving is permitted with approval from Isle of Man Customs and Excise.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. VAT returns are generally submitted quarterly. VAT return quarters are staggered into three cycles to ease the Customs and Excise Division administration. The following are the cycles:

- March, June, September and December
- February, May, August and November
- January, April, July and October

At the time of registration, each taxable person is informed about the return cycle that it must use. However, the Customs and Excise Division may consider a request to use VAT return periods that correspond with a taxable person's financial year. In addition, a taxable person whose accounting dates are not based on calendar months may request permission to adopt nonstandard tax periods.

Taxable persons that receive regular repayments of VAT may request permission to submit monthly returns to improve cash flow.

VAT returns must generally be submitted by the last day of the month following the end of the return period. However, in most cases, taxable persons that submit their VAT returns electronically have an additional seven calendar days after the normal due date in which to file their returns and make payments. Businesses that use the annual accounting scheme or are required to make payments on account do not qualify for this seven-day extension.

Periodic payments. Payments of VAT due must be made electronically. Payment must generally be made by the last day of the month following the end of the return period. However, in most cases, taxable persons that submit their VAT returns electronically have an additional seven calendar days after the normal due date in which to file their returns and make payments (businesses that use the annual accounting scheme or are required to make payments on account do not qualify for this seven-day extension and must make a number of payments throughout the period).

VAT returns must be completed in GBP but return liabilities may be paid in GBP or euros (EUR).

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is mandatory in the Isle of Man for all taxable persons. To submit returns electronically, a taxable person must first register to use online services via the Isle of Man Government online service website. A taxable person must then select "Customs and Excise" from the available services and simply enroll following a few simple steps. An additional seven days are allowed for returns that are submitted online. A VAT agent may be used to submit VAT returns on behalf of a taxable person.

Payments on account. Payments on account are generally not required in the Isle of Man, except for certain taxable persons. Taxable persons whose annual VAT liability is greater than GBP2.3 million must make payments on account, which are interim payments made at the end of the second and third months of each VAT quarter. The balance of VAT payable for the period is made at the end of the quarter. The amount of the payment is generally based on the taxable person's VAT liability for the preceding 12 months. Electronic transfers must be used for all payments on account.

Special schemes. Cash accounting. Businesses with annual turnover of less than GBP1.35 million (excluding VAT) may apply to use cash accounting. Under the cash accounting scheme, businesses account for output tax and reclaim input tax on the basis of cash received and paid, rather than on the basis of invoices issued and received. However, if their annual taxable turnover subsequently exceeds GBP1.6 million (excluding VAT), they must stop using the scheme.

Annual accounting. Businesses with annual turnover less than GBP1.35 million (excluding VAT) may apply to complete an annual VAT return. Businesses that use annual accounting must make either three quarterly or nine monthly VAT payments, depending on the level of turnover. Any balancing payment must be made with the annual return. The annual return is due by the last day of the second month following the end of the taxable person's VAT year. However, if their annual taxable turnover subsequently exceeds GBP1.6 million (excluding VAT) they must stop using the scheme.

Special accounting. A Flat Rate Scheme (FRS) exists for businesses with an annual taxable turnover of less than GBP150,000 (excluding VAT). Under the scheme, eligible businesses may opt to calculate VAT due based on a fixed percentage of their total turnover. The percentages range from 4% to 16.5%, depending on the trade sector of the business. A business ceases to be eligible for the FRS if their annual taxable turnover exceeds GBP230,000 (including VAT) in the period of 12 months ending with the anniversary of joining or if they expect it to end in the next 12 months or if the total income in the next 30 days alone is expected to be more than GBP230,000 (including VAT).

Retailers. A retail business with an annual VAT-exclusive turnover over GBP130 million must agree a bespoke scheme with Isle of Man Customs and Excise. For other retail businesses, there are five standard retail schemes available to choose from, provided conditions are met and Isle of Man Customs and Excise has not disallowed its use.

Secondhand goods. To avoid double taxation on goods that have previously borne VAT when sold as new, a business can opt to charge VAT on the profit margin on supplies of works of art, antiques or collectors' items; motor vehicles; secondhand goods; and goods through a person who acts as an agent, but in their own name, in relation to the supply.

There is also a Global Accounting Scheme under which VAT is accounted for on the difference between the total purchases and sales of eligible goods in each VAT period rather than on an item-by-item basis.

Tour operators. The Tour Operators' Margin Scheme (TOMS) is a special scheme for businesses that buy in and resell travel, accommodation and certain other services as principals or undisclosed agents (i.e., that act in their own name). In many cases, it enables VAT to be accounted for on travel supplies without businesses having to register and account for VAT in every EU Member State in which the services and goods are enjoyed. Post transition, the Isle of Man introduced a version of TOMS that applies in a similar way to EU TOMS, except the scope of the zero-rate has been extended so the margin on all travel services enjoyed outside the UK/Isle of Man will be zero-rated. This puts travel services enjoyed in EU Member States in the same position as travel services enjoyed in the rest of the world.

Other schemes. There are also special schemes for gold traders and farmers.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in the Isle of Man.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in the Isle of Man.

Correcting errors in previous returns. In the Isle of Man, there are two methods for correcting errors from earlier VAT returns. For VAT errors of a net value that do not exceed GBP10,000, or errors of a net value between GBP10,000 and GBP50,000 that do not exceed 1% of the box 6 (net outputs) VAT return declaration due for the return period in which the errors are discovered, a taxable person may adjust its VAT account and include the value of that adjustment on its current VAT return. For VAT errors of a net value between GBP10,000 and GBP50,000 that exceed the above limit or for net errors greater than GBP50,000, or voluntarily for errors of any size, a taxable person must make a formal disclosure to Isle of Man Customs and Excise. The disclosure can be made using form VAT 652 MAN or by a letter containing details of the errors by VAT period.

Digital tax administration. There are no transactional reporting requirements in the Isle of Man. At the time of preparing this chapter, there are no plans to implement the Making Tax Digital regime in the Isle of Man, which is currently in place in the UK.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. A penalty is assessed for late VAT registration, which is calculated as a percentage of the VAT due (output tax less input tax) for the "relevant period." The "relevant period" begins on the date on which the business is required to be registered and ends on the date on which the Isle of Man VAT authorities became fully aware of this liability.

The penalty rate that applies may range from 30% (in most cases) to 100% (for deliberate and concealed acts) of the VAT due. However, measures exist for the reduction of such penalties if the business discloses the failure to register to the Customs and Excise Division. The degree of mitigation depends on the "quality" of the disclosure.

Penalties for late payment and filings. For VAT periods starting on or before 31 December 2022. If a business with a turnover of GBP150,000 or more submits a VAT return or payment late, the taxable person is in default and is issued a Surcharge Liability Notice. The surcharge liability period initially lasts for 12 months from the date of the notice. Any further default within this period triggers a penalty and extends the notice period. The penalty is a percentage of the VAT due.

The following are the percentage penalties:
- For the first further default in the notice period: a penalty of 2% of the VAT due
- For the second further default in the notice period: a penalty of 5% of the VAT due
- For the third further default in the notice period: a penalty of 10% of the VAT due
- For the fourth and subsequent further defaults in the notice period: a penalty of 15% of the VAT due (for each further default)

In the 2% and 5% penalty bands, penalties are not imposed on amounts of less than GBP400. A minimum penalty of GBP30 is imposed for the 10% and 15% penalty bands. If a nil or repayment return is submitted late or payment is made on time, but the return is submitted late, no penalty is levied. However, the surcharge liability notice period is extended.

For businesses with turnover of less than GBP150,000, a help letter is issued at the first default stage. If the business defaults again within the next 12 months, a Surcharge Liability Notice is issued, followed by the same penalties listed above for further defaults.

The above rules are in effect until 31 December 2022. A new points-based penalty regime will come into effect for VAT periods starting on or after 1 January 2023. The new regime will replace the existing default surcharge and interest regimes where VAT returns and/or payments are made late. Any nil or repayment VAT returns received late will also be subject to late submission penalty points and financial penalties.

For late filings penalties on or after 1 January 2023. If a VAT return is submitted late, a point is incurred. The taxable person will be notified of its points by Isle of Man Customs and Excise.

A fixed financial penalty of GBP200 is incurred after the relevant points threshold is reached and a further GBP200 penalty for each subsequent late submission. The level of threshold points depends on the taxable person's VAT return submission frequency: annual return submission is two points; quarterly return submission is four points and monthly return submission is five points.

Individual penalty points accrued will expire after 24 months, provided the taxable person remains above the relevant points threshold. After the relevant points threshold has been reached, all points will expire after the person has complied with their VAT return filing obligations for specified periods of time: for annual VAT returns, it is 24 months, for quarterly VAT returns, it is 12 months and for monthly VAT returns, it is 6 months.

If the taxable person continues to fail to submit VAT returns by the due date after the points threshold is reached and a penalty has been issued, a further fixed penalty will apply for each additional missed VAT return deadline unless a reasonable excuse applies, in which case, points and penalties can be appealed.

Late payment penalties on or after 1 January 2023. The new regime aims to introduce proportionate penalties according to how much and how late the payment is. To avoid a penalty, a taxable person must either pay the VAT due or agree to a time to pay (TTP) arrangement.

No penalty will be chargeable on tax paid in full or a payment plan agreed up to 15 days after the due date. A first penalty at 2% will be chargeable on tax paid in full or a payment plan agreed between 16 and 30 days after the due date. If the tax remains unpaid after 30 days, a first penalty will be chargeable at 2% of the tax owed at day 15, plus 2% on the tax owed at day 30, a second penalty will be chargeable calculated at a daily rate of 4% per year for the duration of the outstanding balance; this is calculated when the outstanding balance is paid in full or a payment plan agreed.

Period of familiarization. A first late payment penalty will not be charged for the first year from 1 January until 31 December 2023, if the tax is paid in full within 30 days of the payment due date.

Interest on or after 1 January 2023. From January 2023, the VAT interest rules will also change. When an amount of VAT is not paid by the due date, late payment interest will be charged to the taxable person from the date that payment was due up until the date the payment is received by Isle of Man Customs and Excise. Late payment interest will apply to VAT returns, VAT amendments, assessments and payments on account. Late payment interest is calculated at the Bank of England base rate plus 2.5%.

Repayment interest on or after 1 January 2023. Repayment supplement will be withdrawn for accounting periods starting on or after 1 January 2023. From that date, Isle of Man Customs and Excise will instead pay repayment interest on any VAT owed. This will be calculated from the day after the due date or the date of submission (whichever is later) until the day Isle of Man Customs and Excise pays the repayment VAT amount in full. Repayment interest will be calculated as the Bank of England base rate minus 1%. The minimum rate of repayment interest will always be 0.5%, even if the repayment interest calculation results in a lower percentage.

Penalties for errors. If a business makes an error on a VAT return despite taking "reasonable care," it should not be liable to a penalty. Otherwise, the penalty rate depends on the behavior giving rise to the error (rather than the size of the error) and may range from 30% (for "careless" errors) to 100% (for "deliberate and concealed" acts) of the VAT due. However, provisions exist for the reduction of such penalties if the business makes an unprompted disclosure to the Customs and Excise Division. The degree of mitigation also depends on the "quality" of the disclosure.

The late notification or failure to notify changes to a taxable person's VAT registration details to the tax authorities, may result in a range of potential penalties. The amount would depend on the nature of any regulatory breach and the business' compliance history. For further details, see the subsection Changes to VAT registration details above.

Penalties for fraud. A 30% penalty for participation in VAT fraud applies to businesses where they knew or ought to have known their transactions were connected with VAT fraud. The Isle of Man Treasury has the option to name those who are penalized, and no penalty reduction is given for prompted or unprompted disclosure.

Disclosure of tax avoidance schemes. Scheme promoters are primarily responsible for disclosing indirect tax avoidance schemes to the Treasury in the Isle of Man. The scope of the current regime includes all indirect taxes and moves the responsibility for disclosing VAT avoidance schemes to scheme promoters. The measure affects all those who promote schemes.

Any arrangements or proposals for arrangements are notifiable and must be disclosed to the Treasury where:

- They enable or might be expected to enable any person to get a tax advantage in relation to indirect taxes
- That tax advantage is, or might be expected to be, the main benefit or one of the main benefits
- They fall within any description (the "hallmarks") prescribed as detailed in HMRC VAT Notice 799

Penalties can apply if notifiable proposals or arrangements are not disclosed accurately and at the right time.

Personal liability for company officers. Company officers can be held personally liable for penalties arising from VAT fraud in the Isle of Man. The penalty is equal to 30% of the VAT lost through the fraud and can apply to company officers as well as businesses. The Isle of Man Treasury has the option to name those who are penalized, and no penalty reduction is given for prompted or unprompted disclosure.

Statute of limitations. The statute of limitations in the Isle of Man is four years. The time limit for tax authorities and taxable persons in respect of careless errors or errors made despite taking reasonable care is:

- Four years from the end of the prescribed accounting period in which the error occurred in respect of underdeclared and overdeclared output tax and overclaimed input tax
- Four years from the due date of the return for the prescribed accounting period in which the error occurred in respect of underclaimed input tax

In cases of deliberate inaccuracies, the time limit is 20 years.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT is charged on the following transactions:

- A sale of an asset, including real estate, by a taxable person in the course of its business, if the asset is located in, delivered in or exported from Israel (delivery from a location outside Israel to another location outside Israel is out of the scope of the Israeli VAT law; this has implications for the input tax deduction (see Section F)

- Sale of intangibles or the provision of services by a taxable person in the course of its business
- Sale of an asset if the input tax on its purchase or import has been deducted
- An occasional transaction with respect to real estate (depends on the status of the seller and the purchaser and the classification of the asset sold) and including incidental service or sale of goods for commercial purposes
- Provision of "services" by non-Israeli suppliers to Israeli customers
- Support benefit or subsidy – including those not directly linked to the price of any supply (this may even extend to debt forgiveness) – provided a taxable person unless an exemption applies
- Importation of goods (including intangible property) into Israel

The term "taxable person" refers to a person or an entity that sells assets or provides services in the course of its business, provided that it is not a nonprofit organization or a financial institution, which are subject to different tax regimes. (In general, a nonprofit organization is subject to salary tax at the rate of 7.5%, which is calculated based on its salary expenses. A financial institution is subject, in addition to salary tax at the rate of 17%, to profit tax at the rate of 17%, which is calculated based on its profits.)

Taxable persons also include entities that make occasional transactions. An entity that has annual turnover not exceeding NIS102,292 and that does not fall under the list of exceptions (for example, advisors and professionals) is not liable to VAT register as a trader but must nevertheless register as an exempt entity for VAT purposes.

The term "asset" includes real estate and goods. "Goods" include all kinds of tangible and intangible property and all kinds of rights or interests but not securities, shares or similar negotiable instruments.

The term "service" includes all types of services provided to others for a consideration – including, importantly, credit transactions and money deposits. It does not include services provided by an employee to their employer.

An occasional transaction is the supply of goods or services in the course of a commercial activity. For real estate, it includes the sale of real estate by entities that are not in the real estate business to taxable persons, as well as the sale of land (excluding certain residential properties) by such sellers to nonprofit organizations, financial institutions or to certain purchasers specified in the Real Estate Tax Act.

Effective use and enjoyment. To avoid instances of non-taxation or double taxation, jurisdictions can apply "use and enjoyment" rules that allow a service that is "used and enjoyed" in the jurisdiction to be taxed or prevent a service that is "used and enjoyed" outside the jurisdiction from being taxed. If a service is taxed in the jurisdiction under the "use and enjoyment" provisions, a non-established supplier of the service may be required to register for VAT in every jurisdiction where it has customers that are not taxable persons. In Israel, no services are subject to the "use and enjoyment" provisions.

However, there may be a circumstance under which a business can apply to the Israeli tax authorities to receive approval that it is not required to register for VAT in Israel. Such an approval depends on the specific circumstances and is given on a case-by-case basis.

Transfer of a going concern. Transfer of going concern rules do not apply in Israel. As such, VAT applies to all sales of a business or part of a business capable of separate operation including assets.

Transactions between related parties. In general, any international transaction between related parties is required to be on an arm's-length basis. For example, an intercompany loan is required to bear interest on an arm's-length basis. In addition, a transaction between related parties should be reported for VAT purposes based on the market value of similar transactions made between unrelated parties.

C. Who is liable

A taxable person is liable for VAT on the sale of assets or the supply of services.

Several exceptions to the above rule exist, such as the following (in which the reverse charge applies):
- For supplies of services or intangible property by non-Israeli suppliers to Israeli customers
- For certain supplies of services made by individuals, that their main income is derived from salary, allowance or pension
- Similarly, for certain purchases of real estate, the purchaser is liable to reverse charge the VAT

For imported goods, the importer of record is liable for VAT.

Exemption from registration. The Israeli VAT law does not contain any provision for exemption from registration. However, there might be a circumstance under which a business can apply to the Israeli VAT tax authorities to receive approval that it is not required to register for VAT in Israel. Such an approval depends on the specific circumstances and is given on a case-by-case basis.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. The VAT law in Israel does not contain any provision for voluntary VAT registration.

Group registration. Registration as a VAT group is possible for two or more VAT-registered entities that are the following:
- A company and its subsidiaries
- Two or more subsidiaries owned by the same parent company
- A partnership and a partner that holds 50% or more of the rights in the partnership
- Entities whose bookkeeping is done jointly

The group members share a group VAT number and submit a single monthly or bimonthly VAT report. In addition, each member must submit an annual detailed digital VAT report, detailing the annual sum of output tax and input tax with respect to intragroup supplies and the sum of output tax and input tax with respect to third parties. Invoices for intragroup supplies are not reported as part of the group's monthly/bimonthly report, unless the VAT is not deductible as input tax.

Group members are jointly and severally liable for each other's VAT liabilities. In practice, they may also be liable for other tax liabilities in certain circumstances.

There is no minimum time period required for the duration of a VAT group.

Fixed establishment. According to the VAT law, where a foreign corporation is required to be registered for VAT in Israel, it must appoint an Israeli representative if it carries out business in Israel. It is noted in the Circular that a foreign corporation may be regarded as carrying out business in Israel where the foreign company meets any of following conditions:
- The activities of the foreign corporation for the purpose of income tax constitute a permanent establishment (PE) in Israel.
- The foreign corporation has a branch in Israel and/or it employs Israeli employees and/or leases offices in Israel, etc.
- The foreign corporation has business activities for providing services in Israel with the assistance of or in cooperation with an Israeli representative/Israeli affiliate.
- The foreign corporation has a significant economic presence in Israel.

Non-established businesses. A foreign resident that makes transactions in Israel, as defined in the VAT law, or that acts as a financial institution or nonprofit organization in Israel must register for VAT in Israel and appoint a local representative (see below) to act on its behalf with respect to VAT matters within 30 days of beginning to carry on such activities in Israel. The term foreign resident means an individual who permanently resides outside Israel or a company that is registered or incorporated outside of Israel. For the purpose of zero-rate VAT for supplies made to foreign residents, additional requirements apply to meet the definition of "foreign resident."

Tax representatives. Where a foreign resident is liable to register for VAT in Israel, for example, because it plans to make taxable supplies, it also must appoint a local representative, being both an Israeli citizen and resident, which would be liable to the tax authorities jointly and severally with the foreign resident.

Reverse charge. Supplies of services received from overseas must be self-accounted by the Israeli recipient. As for supplies of intangible property from overseas, the VAT on this should generally be withheld by the Israeli bank transferring payment to the overseas supplier. Failing that, the VAT should be self-accounted.

Domestic reverse charge. The domestic reverse charge applies in various scenarios, such as where certain services are supplied by a nontaxable person to a taxable person and also where land is sold or leased by a nontaxable person, so as to amount to an occasional transaction, etc.

Digital economy. The Israeli tax authorities have published a circular regarding internet activity of foreign entities in Israel. According to the circular, if it has been established that where a foreign entity provides services via the internet to Israeli customers and the services are connected to Israel, it is required to register for VAT purposes in Israel. In these circumstances, the foreign entity will be subject to the provisions of the Israeli VAT law. Such a position may be established via certain indicators, such as the fact that the services are directed and aimed at Israeli customers, it has been established that the foreign entity has a permanent establishment in Israel for income tax purposes, the foreign entity has a business mechanism in Israel, economic presence in Israel, etc.

It should be noted that if a foreign entity that provides internet services to Israeli customers is required to register for Israeli VAT in accordance with the circular, it will not be considered as a "foreign resident" for certain VAT issues, and therefore services rendered to it by Israeli service providers, as well as intangibles sold to it by Israeli vendors, will be subject to VAT at the full rate.

In general, a foreign service provider that meets all the conditions specified in the circular is requested to register for VAT purposes is Israel. However, it should be noted that according to the Israeli Court ruling, the tax authorities currently do not enforce the registration duty.

In addition, the Israeli Ministry of Finance has published a draft bill to amend the Israeli VAT law, according to which foreign companies that provide "digital services" (as defined in the bill) to nontaxable persons, i.e., private consumers that are not business/nonprofit organizations/financial institutions (business-to-consumer (B2C) transactions), will be required to register in Israel. The registration will not be a "regular VAT registration" but rather a special designated registration only regarding this specific activity. Note that the bill has yet to pass and is not enacted and enforced. However, if the service is provided by the foreign supplier to the dealer, nonprofit or financial institution, the recipient of the service will be the taxpayer, in accordance with the current legal framework. There are no other specific e-commerce rules for imported goods in Israel.

At the time of preparing the chapter, the government plans to levy VAT at the standard rate on sales of electronic services to customers by nonresident businesses. The new tax is expected to be levied from 1 January 2024 and will also be applicable to the following e-services: (i) streaming, (ii) games, (iii) music applications, (iv) films, (v) e-books, (vi) e-journals and (vii) internet services. However, this legislation has not been passed and it is not known when and if it will be enacted.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Israel. As outlined above under the Digital economy subsection, the suggested regime will also apply to online marketplaces and platforms that provide digital services and/or intangible assets to private consumers (B2C).

Registration procedures. An application must be submitted within 30 days of exceeding the registration threshold to register for VAT. Failure to do so will result in a fine of 1% of missing VAT plus interest. To register as a business, the registration should be made at the local VAT office nearest to the company's office. Online registration is not possible for overseas taxable persons, though it is for Israeli taxable persons.

The application's relevant documents include, among other things, appropriate forms (VAT Form 821), certificate of incorporation/registration with the Israeli Registrar of Companies, articles of association, certain shareholders' minutes, information regarding company directors (including copy of ID/passport), proof of the existence of an Israeli bank account, lease agreement (or other sufficient documents, as applicable), etc. For foreign companies, an additional form is required (VAT Form 22) of the appointment of a fiscal representative.

For some documents, the original hard copy is required to be submitted.

Deregistration. Israel has no separate registration and deregistration thresholds. A business whose turnover falls below the registration threshold may be deregistered.

Changes to VAT registration details. Within 15 days from the date of the change, the taxable person (referred to as a "dealer") needs to notify the VAT office in which it is registered using Form 822, "Dealer details update form," or a letter stating the change.

Common changes include change of type of activity, change of address, change of means of communication, etc.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 17%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to supplies of goods and services unless a specific measure provides for the zero rate or an exemption.

Moreover, profit tax and salary tax at the rate of 17% apply to financial institutions, and salary tax at the rate of 7.5% applies to nonprofit organizations.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Exports of goods
- Supplies of intangibles to foreign residents
- Supplies of services to foreign residents, subject to broad use and enjoyment restrictions (for example, the services do not relate to assets in Israel, and the services are not also provided to an Israeli resident in Israel):
  - The term "foreign resident" is defined as an individual who permanently resides outside Israel or an entrepreneur that is registered or incorporated outside Israel, provided that the individual or entrepreneur is not engaged in a business activity in Israel
- Hotel accommodation for tourists
- Leasing private cars to tourists

- Tourist transportation
- Supply of monitor services, as well as inspection and coordination services, with regard to clinical trials conducted in Israel

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Leasing of apartments for residence purposes for a period that does not exceed 25 years
- Transactions made by a business that is below the registration threshold
- Sales of diamonds and precious stones

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Israel.

E. Time of supply

For the supply of goods, generally the chargeable event takes place upon delivery – except for qualifying small manufacturers; these use the cash basis.

For the supply of services, the cash basis generally applies. However, the chargeable event takes place when the services are supplied in the following circumstances:

- The consideration of services is affected by the fact that the transaction is between related parties.
- The consideration has not been agreed.
- At least some of the consideration is not in cash.
- The services are supplied by certain businesses whose annual turnover is over NIS15 million.

Where the services are supplied in parts, a chargeable event occurs in respect of each part. Where services cannot be said to be made up of different parts, a chargeable event takes place upon each payment being made, in respect of that amount, or on completion of the services, whichever happens first.

Deposits and prepayments. In general, an amount paid as a deposit or as a guarantee to return borrowed goods or to ensure the performance of a transaction or the rights of a person connected to a transaction will be deemed part of the transaction price after six months from the day they were paid, unless they have been returned or became part of the price of the transaction previously. However, if the parties agreed in writing that the deposit or guarantee will be for a period longer than six months, then they shall be deemed part of the price one month after the end of the agreed period.

Continuous supplies of services. Where the services are supplied in parts, a chargeable event occurs in respect of each part. However, where services cannot be said to be made up of different parts, a chargeable event takes place upon each payment made, in respect of the amount paid, or on completion of the services, whichever happens first.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules in Israel for supplies of goods sent on approval for sale or return. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above), and the time of supply is when the delivery of goods takes place.

However, in cases of consignment, if agreed in writing that not more than 10% of the consideration (or a higher percentage set by the Minister of Finance) shall be paid before the sale of the goods, and if not sold they can be returned, the time of supply will be deemed when the goods are sold by the consignee.

Reverse-charge services. Both for supplies of services received from overseas and those that fall within domestic reverse-charge rules, the chargeable event takes place upon each payment in respect of the amount paid, or on completion of the services, whichever happens first.

Leased assets. Leasing of assets is included within the definition of a "sale." However, the chargeable event takes place on a cash basis, i.e., upon each payment, in respect of the amount paid.

Imported goods. VAT on imported goods is due when the goods are cleared through customs. A tax clearance mechanism is in place between Israel and the Palestine Autonomous Areas for transfers of goods between their territories. VAT, purchase taxes and import taxes are based on the actual transfer of goods (not on the reported transfer of goods).

Real estate transactions. For real estate transactions, VAT is due when the possession of the asset is transferred to the purchaser or when the asset is registered in the name of the buyer, whichever is earlier. For construction work, the tax is due when the work is completed or when the possession of the asset is transferred to the customer, whichever is earlier.

In addition, with respect to the above rules, if a payment is made before the above dates, VAT is due for that payment on the date of payment.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax, which is the VAT charged on assets (purchased locally or imported) or services supplied to that taxable person for business purposes, if such items are used or will be used for taxable transactions. This excludes, for example, private expenditure and expenditure that is used for out-of-scope transactions or exempt transactions.

A taxable person generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax, which is the VAT charged on supplies made by it, provided that the proper tax invoices or importation documents are received in support of the input tax deduction and that the deduction is claimed within the time limit of six months after the date of issuance of these documents (a procedure for an extension is available).

The time limit for a taxable person to reclaim input tax in Israel is six months. However, there is an option to apply for an approval for late deduction up to five years (60 months).

Nondeductible input tax. As mentioned above, input tax can only be deducted if purchases are used for taxable transactions, provided all technical requirements are fulfilled. Accordingly, nondeductible input tax includes among other things, certain types of business and staff entertainment, and input tax attributable to particular transactions such as costs related to share transactions, out of scope transactions, certain pre-registration costs (see below), etc.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Certain employee benefits, e.g., gifts to the employees
- Purchase/import of a private vehicle, with the exception of certain types of dealers
- Accommodation and hospitality expenses, excluding expenses related to the accommodation of persons from abroad
- Expenses relating to the sale or purchase of shares, subject to exceptions

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Vehicle maintenance expenses if the vehicle does not leave the business premises. Note, there is a proposal to add a new regulation to the existing VAT regulation that determines that no input tax deduction will be allowed for fuel used for vehicles unless measuring fuel consumption has been installed in the vehicle for which the deduction was claimed. Also required is a monthly concentration report in respect of all refueling regarding the vehicle for that month. At the time of preparing this chapter, the proposal has not been confirmed or implemented.
- Accommodation and hospitality expenses related to the accommodation of persons from abroad
- Petty cash and certain refreshments

Partial exemption. Rules related to partial exemption may apply to expenses used for both taxable and nontaxable transactions, e.g., business and private use, a business that makes both taxable and exempt supplies, etc. In such cases, the partial exemption percentage is generally calculated on a pro rata basis according to the nonbusiness use of the expense. Unless the taxable person's calculation is rebutted or otherwise determined by the VAT Director, it is presumed that where most of the input tax is used for making taxable supplies, two-thirds of the input tax is deductible; whereas, where most of the input tax is used for making nontaxable supplies, only one quarter of the input tax may be deductible.

Approval from the tax authorities is not required to use the partial exemption standard method in Israel. However, the implementation of the standard method may be examined during a VAT audit. Special methods are not allowed in Israel.

Capital goods. Input tax incurred on the purchase of capital goods may be deductible subject to the general input tax deduction rules (see above). Accordingly, if the goods are used for taxable supplies input tax may be fully deducted, subject to the general VAT rules. If the goods are used for both taxable and nontaxable or exempt transactions, a partial deduction may apply.

Refunds. If the amount of VAT recoverable exceeds the amount of VAT payable in a reporting period, the excess amount may be refunded within 30 days. A refund can be obtained by submitting the periodic VAT report, the additional detailed digital report and copies of the tax invoices exceeding the relevant amount if requested by the authorities. The authorities may postpone the refund and conduct an examination or audit.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax on such costs is generally nondeductible. However, on application by a taxable person, the tax authorities may allow input tax incurred before registration to be deducted, where the authorities are satisfied that the relevant inputs are setup costs, i.e., inputs bought at a time when the business was being set up and used for that purpose.

Bad debts. VAT paid by a taxable person in connection with bad debts (i.e., if a supply was made and the VAT was declared, but the customer did not pay the consideration agreed) may be recoverable by issuing a credit note, provided all conditions and requirements stipulated in the VAT regulations as well as in the VAT authorities' guidelines are met.

The main conditions for issuing a credit note and reclaiming VAT paid on bad debts includes insolvency or liquidation of the customer, as well as proof of reasonable collection efforts. Such a reclaim requires notice to the authorities. Such a reclaim may be submitted not earlier than six months from the date on which a tax invoice was issued and not later than three years from that date (however, an extension is available under certain conditions).

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred on purchases that are used for noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Israel.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Input tax incurred by non-established businesses that are not registered for VAT in Israel is not recoverable. While Israeli law has no mechanism that allows for this per se, i.e., any equivalent to the EU's 13th Directive, the scope of certain types of relief under Israeli law is broader than under EU law, with the result that non-established businesses may not incur VAT on supplies that would attract VAT in their home jurisdictions. One example of this is hotel accommodation supplied to foreign resident persons, including incidental supplies such as catering.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. Only a taxable person may issue a tax invoice and it must do so if requested by the customer. A tax invoice is required to support a claim for input tax deduction. The invoice must be issued within 14 days. The authorities intend to assign invoice numbers to each VAT-registered entity.

Credit notes. A VAT credit note may be used to reduce the amount of VAT charged on a supply. The credit note must reflect a genuine mistake, an overcharge, an agreed reduction in the value of the original supply or cancellation of the transaction. A credit note may also be used in a case of bad debts if all reasonable efforts have been exhausted to collect the debt and if all the regulation requirements are fulfilled.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is allowed in Israel, but not mandatory.

Scope of electronic invoicing. For B2B, B2C and business-to-government (B2G) supplies, electronic invoicing is allowed but not mandatory in Israel. It may only be used subject to strict technical rules concerning digital signature, electronic delivery, record keeping, etc. A taxable person who wishes to send computerized documents must notify the tax authorities by registered mail, before sending the first computerized document, and receive the customer's approval before sending the first computerized document and save such approval as part of its bookkeeping. However, it is recommended that the taxable person examines whether the computerized documents meet all the tax authorities' requirements before it starts working with such documents.

As of 31 March 2024, each tax invoice (whether electronic or paper) above NIS25,000 (for 2024) will require an approval, as well as "authorized serial number" by the Israeli tax authorities. The authorized serial number is required to deduct the input tax included on the tax invoice, and therefore required for tax invoices that include VAT at the standard rate and are issued to dealers who wish to deduct such income tax, subject to the threshold mentioned. Note that by 2028 the authorities plan for this requirement to apply to invoices over NIS5,000, and the process will occur gradually.

Simplified VAT invoices. In general, simplified tax invoices are not permitted. However, for retail supplies, the cashier slip might be used as an invoice, subject to certain conditions.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Israel.

Proof of exports. The export declaration issued by Israeli Customs and the commercial invoice are generally sufficient evidence for export.

Foreign currency invoices. The taxable amount must generally be stated in the domestic currency, which is New Israeli shekel (NIS). A foreign currency may be shown in addition, provided that the exchange rate on the day the invoice is raised is also shown. Alternatively, taxable persons may apply to the authorities for permission to raise foreign currency-only invoices.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. There are no special rules regarding invoices issued for supplies made by taxable persons to private consumers.

Records. In Israel, examples of what records must be held for VAT purposes include invoices, receipts, inventory lists, fixed assets registrar and more. The Israeli tax regulations dictate the format, nature and timing of each document recorded in the books. The use of an electronic record system is permitted if the bookkeeping software is approved by the tax authorities. The accounting records language can be either Hebrew or Arabic but using English may be permitted if an approval is obtained in advance from the tax authorities. The accounting records should be maintained in the domestic currency (New Israeli shekel) unless a special approval is received from the tax authorities.

In Israel, VAT books and records must be held within the country. Records should be kept in Israel unless a special exemption is obtained by the tax authorities.

Record retention period. VAT invoices and other bookkeeping records must be kept for a period of seven years from the end of the year, to which the records relate, or six years from the day on which the tax return for the relevant year was submitted, whichever is later.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is allowed in Israel. Records may be stored electronically and must be updated quarterly. Note that there are specific requirements in this regard. The server on which the company's accounting records are recorded should be located physically in Israel; however, the tax authorities may grant an authorization to hold the server outside of Israel if an accessible online backup is available at the company's site for inspection purposes.

I. Returns and payments

Periodic returns. VAT reports must be submitted on a monthly basis if annual turnover exceeds NIS1.53 million or on a bimonthly basis if annual turnover does not exceed NIS1.53 million. Reports must be submitted by the 15th/19th/23rd day of the month following the end of the reporting period (the deadline depends on the taxable person's turnover and reporting obligations).

Periodic payments. Payment of VAT due in full is also due by the same date as the VAT return submission deadline, i.e., by the 15th/19th/23rd day of the month following the end of the reporting period (depends on the reporting date). Payment can be made using an Israeli bank account.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is allowed in Israel, but not mandatory. VAT reports are generally filled electronically via the Israeli tax authority's website. The reports are due by the 15th/19th/23rd day of the month following the end of the reporting period (depends on the taxable person's turnover and reporting obligations).

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Israel.

Special schemes. Profit margin. The taxable amount for certain types of supplies may only be the profit margin on the sale. This includes supplies of secondhand movable goods, works of art and certain residential properties where any of these supplies are made by a qualifying dealer.

Annual returns. Annual returns are only required for VAT groups. VAT group members must file a certain type of annual return as to taxable persons in the Eilat free trade zone.

Supplementary filings. Yearly VAT group report. This is only relevant for taxable persons who report in a VAT group (see above). It should be noted that if the VAT report is a return, additional information (e.g., copies of invoices) might be required.

Correcting errors in previous returns. If there is an error in the VAT report, it is possible to submit a "corrective report" and indicate the correct details. The corrective report should only be submitted to the regional VAT office where the dealer is registered. Such amendment may lead to additional charges (VAT, as well as interest, linkage differences, etc.).

Digital tax administration. VAT online detailed report. Certain taxable persons are required to provide a detailed electronic report, including all invoices issued and received in the relevant period including the following: dealers with an annual turnover over NIS2.5 million, nonprofit organizations with an annual turnover over NIS20 million and financial institutions with an annual turnover above NIS4 million. Taxable persons are required to keep their books in accordance with the dual accounting system. In addition, a nonprofit organization or a financial institution should submit an online digital report as well.

As outlined above, an online detailed digital report is required if a taxable person's annual turnover exceeds NIS2.5 million or if the taxable person is required to keep its books in accordance with the dual accounting system. Electronic reports must be submitted by the 23rd day of the month following the end of the reporting period. Payment in full is also due by the same date.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. For the late registration of VAT, penalties may be up 1% of the taxable turnover, on top of the VAT itself, plus interest, and adjusted for inflation.

Penalties for late payment and filings. A VAT-registered entity that fails to submit a report when required is liable to pay a fine of NIS214 for every two weeks of tardiness.

If a VAT-registered entity fails to pay an amount of tax when required, linkage differentials (such amount multiplied by the rate of increase of the consumer price index during the period in question) and interest are payable on the amount unpaid.

Penalties for errors. If there is an error in recording any amount required in the report, it is possible to file a corrective report to state the correct details. The corrective report must be submitted only to the regional VAT office where the file is being handled. As a result, the taxable person may be charged with interest, linkage differences and fines.

The late notification or failure to notify the tax authorities of changes to a taxable person's VAT registration details is treated as a violation of the VAT law and is subject to the general penalties listed in these sections.

Penalties for fraud. There are various offenses stipulated in the VAT law, such as making false statements submitted knowingly, or under circumstances amounting to gross negligence, omission of reporting, assistance in unlawful deduction of VAT, forgery, concealment or destruction of documents, the use of fictitious invoices, etc. These offenses may result in additional payment of interest, linkage differences and fines, including double tax, and may even result in imprisonment if the offense is characterized as criminal.

Personal liability for company officers. According to the VAT law, those who are liable for a company include: an active manager, secretary, trustee, proxy, active partner, accountant, bookkeeper and any other responsible clerk. Accordingly, a company's officers might be held responsible under certain circumstances, inter alia, according to the Israeli Companies Law. Penalties, as well as criminal sanctions, may be the same as the company's under certain circumstances.

Statute of limitations. The statute of limitations in Israel is five years. Generally, according to the Israeli VAT law, the period of limitation regarding VAT in Israel is five years, based on a monthly basis (i.e., 60 months).

However, it should be noted that there are no "close/final" VAT assessments, meaning that as long as the respective month is within the period of limitation, it can be reviewed and audited by the authorities, even if it was previously audited.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- Supplies of goods or services made in Italy by a taxable person
- Intra-Community acquisitions of goods from another European Union (EU) Member State by a taxable person (see the chapter on the EU)
- Reverse-charge services received by a taxable person in Italy (that is, services for which the recipient is liable for the VAT due)
- Imports of goods from outside the EU, regardless of the status of the importer

For VAT purposes, Italy consists of the territory of the Republic of Italy excluding the municipalities of Livigno and Campione d'Italia and the Italian waters of Lake Lugano. Special arrangements apply to goods exchanged between Italy and the Vatican City or Republic of San Marino, which do not form part of the territory of the Republic of Italy.

San Marino. The Italian Ministry of Economy and Finance issued a Ministerial Decree on 21 June 2021, enacting updated rules on supplies of goods and related services carried on between Italy and San Marino, including the newly introduced electronic invoicing obligation for qualifying taxable persons.

Under the Ministerial Decree, taxable persons established, resident or registered in Italy for VAT purposes will be required to issue invoices in the electronic format through the tax authorities' Interchange System (SdI) (sistema di interscambio) with respect to supplies of goods, and related services falling within the scope of Article 71 of the VAT Act, i.e., transactions with taxable persons resident or registered in San Marino. The tax authorities of Italy and San Marino will exchange relevant data to check if the VAT due is correctly paid at the moment of importation of the goods, and taxable persons will be able to verify the checks' outcome through a dedicated telematic channel. The new rules will also apply to credit notes. Transactions for which the issuance of electronic invoices is not mandatory under specific domestic provisions will be excluded from the scope of application of the new rules.

Under the Ministerial Decree, the transfer of goods to or from San Marino for processing or similar works will not be relevant for VAT purposes where the processed goods are returned back to the owner. Specific rules will also apply to supplies of goods to nontaxable persons (B2C), sales of new means of transportation and distance sales.

The new rules generally apply from 1 October 2021, but the rules on electronic invoicing entered into effect on 1 July 2022. However, qualifying taxable persons could opt for electronic invoicing from 1 October 2021. A non-established taxable person supplying goods to customers in San Marino and merely identified in Italy for VAT purposes is not obliged to issue e-invoices for these transactions (see Ruling 557/2022 of the ITA).

The Law No. 111, dated 9 August 2023 (better known as the Enabling Law for Tax Reform or, simply, the Enabling Law), published on 14 August 2023, delegates the Italian Government to issue, within the next 24 months, one or more legislative decrees providing a general review of the Italian tax system. This tax reform law includes a series of amendments to VAT rules and principles. These changes include reviews of VAT requirements, VAT-exempt transactions, VAT rates and VAT deduction rules. Taxable persons and practitioners will need to review their deduction plans based on these changes. At the time of preparing this chapter, no details have been published on this Enabling Law.

Quick Fixes. Pending introduction of a "definitive" system for the VAT treatment of intra-Community supplies of goods to taxable persons, the EU has adopted Quick Fixes for intra-Community trade in goods. For an overview of the Quick Fixes rules, see the chapter on the EU. For documentary requirements, see Section H. Invoicing, subsection Proof of exports and intra-Community supplies.

The Quick Fixes have been implemented into the domestic Italian regulation through Legislative Decree No. 192/2021, effective as of 1 December 2021, by amending Law Decree No. 331/1993. Specifically, the Quick Fixes in Italy cover:

- Intra-EU supplies of goods constitute nontaxable transfers, provided that the transferee has communicated to the transferor the VAT identification number assigned by another Member State, valid for VIES purposes, and that the transferor files the Intrastat lists or justifies their non-compilation (Article 41 paragraph 2-ter of Law Decree No. 331/1993)
- The EU harmonized discipline for transactions under the call-off stock regime is transposed in Italian regulation, both for purchases and for supplies of goods (Articles 38-ter and 41-bis of Law Decree 331/93)
- Chain supplies (i.e., subsequent supplies of goods subject to a single shipment or transport from one Member State to another) by an intermediate operator are regulated by new Article 41-ter of Law Decree No. 331/1993, according to which only the transfer made to the intermediate operator is considered a nontaxable, intra-Community transfer. However, if the intermediate operator communicates to the first transferor a VAT identification number attributed by the State of dispatch, the supply carried out by the intermediate operator is considered an intra-Community transfer.

As for the documentary evidence to prove the movement of goods from one Member State to another one, the Italian tax authorities issued some guidance stating that the national practice issued before 1 January 2020 continues to be valid, but to benefit from the presumption, the taxable persons should be in possession of a set of documents according to the EU Regulation.

Effective use and enjoyment. To avoid instances of non-taxation or double taxation, EU Member States can apply use and enjoyment rules that allow a service that is "used and enjoyed" in the EU to be taxed or prevent a service that is "used and enjoyed" outside the EU from being taxed. If a service is taxed in the EU under the use and enjoyment provisions, a non-EU supplier of the service may be required to register for VAT in every Member State where it has customers that are not taxable persons. For information regarding the rules relating to VAT registration, see the chapters on the respective countries of the EU.

In Italy, the following services are subject to the "use and enjoyment" provisions:

- The supply of short-term leasing, including financial leasing, rental and similar services, of means of transport when these are made available to the customer in Italy, and they are used within the European Union territory or when they are made available outside the EU but used within Italy.
- The supply of leasing, including financial leasing, rental and similar services, not on a short-term basis, of means of transport other than pleasure boats, when the customer is a nontaxable person resident in Italy, provided they are used within the EU, or when the customer is non-EU, provided they are used within Italy.
- The supply of leasing, including financial leasing, rental and similar services, not on a short-term basis, of pleasure boats, provided that the boat is actually made available in the territory of the State, the service is rendered by taxable persons established therein and the boat is used within the European Union territory.
- The supply of leasing, including financial leasing, rental and similar services, not on a short-term basis, of pleasure boats when the boat is made available in a country outside the EU, the supplier is established in the same country and the boat is used in Italy.
- The supply of leasing, including financial leasing, rental and similar services, not on a short-term basis, of pleasure boats when the supplier is established in a country different from the one where the boat is put at disposal of the customer, when the customer is a nontaxable person resident in Italy, provided they are used within the EU, or when the customer is non-EU, provided they are used within Italy.

According to the Budget Law for 2021, the effective use inside the Italian territory of pleasure boats should be attested by a declaration to be filed with the Italian tax authorities, and the protocol number indicated in the receipt should be indicated in the invoice for that provision of service. This rule is applicable with effect from 14 August 2021.

Transfer of a going concern. Normally the sale of the assets of a VAT-registered or VAT-registrable business will be subject to VAT at the appropriate rate. However, a transfer of a business as a going concern (TOGC) may be outside the scope of the tax under certain conditions. A TOGC is the sale of a business or part of a business capable of separate operation including assets. Where the sale meets the conditions, the supply is treated as outside the scope of VAT. In Italy, the VAT law does not provide for a definition of a TOGC, therefore, reference must be made to the Civil Code, to the principles set forth in the EU Court of Justice and Italian case law and to the guidance provided by Italian tax authorities. In particular, to qualify as a TOGC, the assets transferred must constitute an autonomous organization sufficient to allow the exercise of a business activity, although it is not necessary that all elements belonging to the supplier are transferred or that they should be integrated by supplementary resources of the purchaser.

Whilst the TOGC is outside the scope for VAT purposes in Italy, the transaction is still subject to registration tax for which the applicable rate depends on each type of asset transferred and can vary from 0.5% to 9%.

Transactions between related parties. When taxable transactions take place between related parties, (i.e., directly or indirectly controlling, controlled or under common control) the supply is deemed to take place at market value when it is carried out or received by a company able to recover VAT only partially.

C. Who is liable

The term "taxable person" refers to any individual or legal entity that makes supplies of goods or services in the course of a business, or that performs an artistic or professional activity in Italy.

The occasional supply of goods or services is not generally within the scope of Italian VAT. However, any supply of goods or services made by a corporate entity is regarded as a business activity, unless it is specifically treated as a nonbusiness activity by the Italian VAT law.

Exemption from registration. The VAT law in Italy does not contain any provision for exemption from registration. However, a special regime is provided for taxable persons whose turnover is no higher than EUR65,000 per year (see the below subsection Voluntary registration and small businesses)

Voluntary registration and small businesses. The VAT law in Italy does not contain any provision for voluntary VAT registration, as there is no registration threshold (i.e., all taxable persons are obliged to register for VAT purposes irrespective of their turnover). However, a special regime is provided for taxable persons whose turnover is less than EUR85,000 per year (the Budget Law 2023 increased the annual turnover threshold to be eligible for the application of the flat tax scheme to EUR85,000; until FY2022 the limit was EUR65,000). In this case, no VAT is applicable on supplies and no input tax on purchases is recoverable. These persons are subject to a 15% (or 5% in the first five years of activity) tax, substitute of VAT and income taxes.

Group registration. Two different VAT grouping arrangements are available in Italy.

The first one (hereinafter also "group VAT liquidation") is an optional administrative scheme, whereby group members retain separate VAT numbers and VAT is chargeable on supplies made between group members. The optional scheme allows the offsetting VAT payments and repayments among group members. A corporate body that controls one or more other companies may apply to form a VAT group. The controlling company must form part of the group, but it is not necessary for all the companies that it controls to be included. Under this scheme, the VAT group is not treated as a single taxable person. EU entities that are registered for VAT in Italy may be part of an Italian VAT group.

There is no minimum time period required for the duration of this type of VAT group (i.e., it is in place until revoked).

All members of a VAT group in Italy are jointly and severally liable for VAT debts and penalties. For a VAT group liquidation, the controlling company is liable only for omitted VAT payments, while each controlled entity is liable for all other substantial and formal errors and omissions.

The second one (hereinafter also "VAT group") is an optional scheme whereby all group members lose their distinct VAT status, and the group becomes a single taxable person for transactions with third parties. All transactions between group members are disregarded for VAT purposes.

The minimum time period required for the duration of this type of a VAT group is three financial years.

Relevant law provisions bring within the scope of VAT certain head office-to-branch and branch-to-branch transactions, where one or both are members of a VAT group. The provisions reflect the decision in the Skandia case, which held that VAT groups are separate taxable persons for VAT purposes.

This clarification forms part of the provisions related to Italian VAT grouping rules. Specifically:
- Transactions (both supplies of goods and services) made by an Italian VAT-grouped company (or branch) to its overseas branch (or head office) are treated as supplies made by the Italian VAT group to a third party. Likewise, supplies from the overseas branch (or head office) to its Italian VAT-grouped head office (or branch) are also within the scope of VAT.
- Transactions made by an Italian company or branch to its overseas branch (or head office) that is part of a VAT group in another EU Member State are supplies for VAT purposes. Similarly, supplies made by an overseas branch or company that is VAT grouped in another EU Member State to its Italian branch(es) or head office (whether grouped or not in Italy) are within the scope of VAT. This is commonly referred to as the "reverse Skandia" principle.

The provisions also state that if a consideration is not provided for the transactions, the taxable amount must be the fair market value pursuant to Article 13, paragraphs 1 and 2 of the Italian VAT Act Law implementing Article 80 of the EU VAT Directive.

Holding companies. In Italy, a pure holding company cannot be a member of a VAT group. This is because in Italy a pure holding company is not deemed a taxable person.

Cost-sharing exemption. The VAT cost-sharing exemption (in accordance with VAT Directive 2006/112/EEC Article 132(1)(f) has been implemented in Italy. This provides an option to exempt support services that the cost-sharing group supplies to its members, providing certain conditions are met (in accordance with specific requirements laid out in Italian VAT law).

According to Italian VAT law, an exemption is provided for the supply of services to consortia or members by consortia, including consortia and cooperative societies with consortia functions, set up between persons for whom, in the three preceding calendar years, the deduction percentage was not more than 10%. The supplies to members are exempt from tax provided that the consideration due by the consortia or members of qualifying consortia and companies does not exceed the costs attributable to the supply of the services.

Fixed establishment. The definition of a fixed establishment for VAT purposes is not provided for in the Italian VAT law. As such, to assess the presence of a fixed establishment in Italy, the Italian tax authorities make reference to the definition in Article 11 of Regulation 282/2011 and the ECJ case law. For further details see the chapter on the European Union.

In particular, a fixed establishment is any organization, other than a head office, characterized by:
- A sufficient level of permanence
- A suitable structure in terms of personnel and technical means to enable it "to receive and use the services supplied to it for its own needs" and "to provide the services to which it supplies"

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that has neither the main establishment nor a fixed establishment in Italy. A non-established business must register for Italian VAT if it makes certain supplies, such as the following:
- Supplies of goods located in Italy at the time of supply to nontaxable persons or other non-established businesses
- Intra-Community acquisitions in Italy or intra-Community sales from Italy
- Exports from Italy
- Distance sales to Italian B2C customers greater than the annual threshold (see the chapter on the EU)
- Supplies of services taxable in Italy to nontaxable persons or other non-established businesses

If a non-established business supplies goods or services to an Italian taxable person, the Italian-established taxable person is liable to account for the VAT due, under reverse charge. Under this type of accounting, the taxable customer must self-assess the tax due.

A non-established business that receives taxable supplies of goods or services in Italy may choose to register for Italian VAT even if registration is not compulsory.

In any case, non-established entities registered for VAT in Italy cannot issue invoices applying Italian VAT to Italian-established taxable persons (since reverse-charge applies).

Tax representatives. A foreign business that is established in another EU Member State or in a non-EU country that has suitable mutual-assistance provisions with the EU may directly register in Italy for VAT without the appointment of a VAT representative (i.e., the United Kingdom (UK) and Norway).

Foreign businesses established in countries other than the countries mentioned above must appoint a VAT representative to register for VAT. The representative must be granted a power of attorney to act on behalf of the non-established business.

Reverse charge. The reverse-charge mechanism applies to taxable supplies of goods and services by non-established persons to taxable persons established in Italy and to intra-Community acquisitions of goods and services.

Domestic reverse charge. Under the Italian VAT law, a domestic reverse charge applies in the following cases (i.e., the reverse charge applies to all affected transactions, irrespective of where the supplier or the recipient is established):
- Sale of industrial gold for which the seller opted for the application of VAT
- Services rendered under a subcontractor agreement in the construction industry
- Sale of residential buildings or commercial buildings for which the seller opted for the application of VAT
- Sale of mobile phones and microprocessors
- Sale of PCs, laptops, tablets and game consoles
- Sale of scrap, waste and residue of ferrous metals, shredded paper, bone waste, skin waste, glass waste, rubber and plastic waste deemed to include even those related to the aforementioned goods that have been recleaned, selected, cut, compacted, transformed into ingots or subjected to other treatments to facilitate their use, transport and storage without modifying their nature; and scrap, waste and residue of nonferrous metals included in specific categories such as refined copper and raw nickel

- The provision of cleaning services, building demolition services, provision of installation systems and the services related to the completion of a building
- Certain transactions in the energy sector
- The provision of services rendered by consortium members to consortiums acting as contractors toward public administrations (the effectiveness of this provision is subject to specific approval by the Council of the European Union)
- The provision of services performed through contract work, subcontracts, assignment to consortium or through other types of contracts, if such services are carried out through the prevalent use of labor (so-called labor intensive) at the premises of the customer with the use of capital goods owned by the customer or connected to it in any form. The effectiveness of this provision is subject to specific approval by the Council of the European Union

Under the reverse-charge mechanism, the supplier must issue an invoice without VAT, and the recipient must self-assess the VAT due.

Digital economy. Specific VAT rules apply to cross-border supplies of goods and services sold via the internet (e-commerce) in all EU Member States with effect from 1 July 2021. These new rules apply to all direct sales to nontaxable persons (in practice these are mostly private individuals), but we refer to these rules as e-commerce VAT rules because most of these transactions are conducted via the internet. In general, the place of supply is in the country of consumption, i.e., where the goods are shipped to or where the buyer of the goods or services resides, subject to any "use and enjoyment" provisions that may override this rule (see Section B, Effective use and enjoyment subsection above). Therefore:

- For supplies of services made by a nonresident supplier to a business customer (B2B), the business customer is responsible for accounting for the VAT due, using the reverse charge.
- For supplies of goods made by a nonresident supplier to a business customer (B2B), where the goods are transported from another EU Member State, the business purchasing the goods is responsible for accounting for the VAT due, as an intra-Community acquisition. If the goods come from outside the EU, the purchaser may have to report an importation of goods.
- For supplies of goods or services made by a nonresident supplier to a final consumer (B2C), the supplier is generally responsible for charging and accounting for the VAT due at the rate applicable in the customer's country (unless the supplier's sales fall beneath the distance selling threshold of EUR10,000 with effect from 1 July 2021). This VAT can be reported using a single VAT registration, using a "One-Stop-Shop" mechanism.

For more details about intra-EU distance sales, see the chapter on the EU.

Effective 1 July 2021, an e-commerce supplier may have a choice of how to account for VAT on its B2C supplies.

Local VAT registration. A nonresident supplier may choose to register for VAT in each Member State and account for VAT on all supplies made and recover input tax in accordance with local rules (see the Non-established businesses subsection above). Non-EU businesses may be required to appoint a fiscal representative for accounting for the VAT due on these transactions.

In Italy there are no additional specific local rules that apply.

One-Stop Shop. Effective 1 July 2021, a supplier can choose to account for the VAT due under the EU One-Stop Shop (OSS), which can be used for intra-EU cross-border supplies of goods and all cross-border supplies of services made to final consumers in the EU. Unlike the previous Mini One-Stop-Shop (MOSS) scheme that applied until 30 June 2021, the OSS is not limited to cross-border supplies of electronic services, telecommunication services and broadcasting services.

The OSS is an electronic portal that allows businesses to:
- Register for VAT electronically in a single Member State for all intra-EU distance sales of goods and for B2C supplies of services
- Declare and pay VAT due on all supplies of goods and services in a single electronic quarterly return

The OSS can be used by businesses established in the EU and outside the EU. If a supplier or a deemed supplier decides to register for the OSS, it must declare and pay VAT for all supplies (goods as well as services) that fall under the OSS.

In Italy, under the Union scheme, a taxable person can register in Italy if it is the relevant Member State of identification (i.e., if the business is established or has a fixed establishment in Italy or if Italy is the place of transport or dispatch of goods).

To access the OSS, EU businesses must be registered to Italian Revenue Agency online services

For more details about the operation of the OSS, see the chapter on the EU.

Import One-Stop Shop. Effective 1 July 2021, the Import One-Stop Shop (IOSS) scheme applies for B2C distance sales of goods from outside the EU.

Effective 1 July 2021, VAT is due on all commercial goods imported into the EU regardless of their value. The actual supply is subject to VAT in the country where the goods are imported (the country of destination). The IOSS facilitates the declaration and payment of VAT due on the sale of low-value goods (i.e., consignments valued at less than EUR150 per consignment). It allows suppliers selling low-value goods dispatched or transported from a non-EU country to customers in the EU to collect, declare and pay the VAT due. If the IOSS is used, the importation into the EU is exempt from VAT.

In Italy, for IOSS, it is possible to register via the dedicated portal in Italy and receive an Italian individual VAT identification number.

However, taxable persons not established in the EU or in a third country with which the EU has concluded a VAT mutual assistance agreement is required to appoint an Italian established intermediary to fulfill its VAT obligations under the IOSS regime. In such event, the VAT identification number will be allocated to the intermediary.

For more details about the IOSS, see the chapter on the EU.

The use of the IOSS special scheme is not mandatory. If VAT is not collected via the IOSS scheme, the importation of goods into the EU is subject to import VAT in the country of final destination, and the Member State can decide freely who is liable to pay the import VAT, which could be the customer or the seller (or an electronic interface).

Postal services and couriers scheme. If the IOSS is not used and the customer is liable for the import VAT due on the supply (and importation) of consignments with a small intrinsic value (i.e., less than EUR150), the VAT can be collected using the special scheme for postal services and couriers.

In Italy there are no additional specific local rules that apply.

For more details about the special scheme for postal services and couriers, see the chapter on the EU.

Online marketplaces and platforms. Under the new EU VAT e-commerce rules, effective 1 July 2021, taxable persons that "facilitate" certain B2C sales of goods are deemed to have purchased and then supplied those goods themselves. This means that the single supply from the "underlying" supplier to the final consumer is split into two deemed supplies:

- A supply from the supplier to the facilitator (deemed B2B supply)
- A supply from the facilitator to the final customer (deemed B2C supply). Any intermediation service provided by the facilitator is disregarded for VAT purposes

This provision does not cover all sales facilitated via the facilitator. It only covers distance sales of goods imported from non-EU jurisdictions in consignments with an intrinsic value not exceeding EUR150. The jurisdiction of residence of the supplier using the facilitator is irrelevant. The supply to the facilitating platform is VAT exempt and the supplies made by that platform follow the e-commerce VAT rules as described above. In addition, the provision also covers sales within the EU, if the supplier is not established within the EU. This applies to both local shipments within one Member State as well as intra-Community shipments. In both cases, the final customer must be a nontaxable person.

New obligations have been introduced by the Budget Law 2023 for e-commerce platforms (digital marketplaces). In particular, it is envisaged that taxable persons who facilitate, through the use of an electronic interface, the supply of goods, which will be identified by a decree of the Minister for the Economy and Finance, will have to transmit the data on suppliers and transactions carried out with final customers to the Revenue Agency. At the time of preparing this chapter, this decree, several months after the publication of the Budget Law 2023, has yet to be enacted. For more details about the rules for online marketplaces, see the chapter on the EU.

Central electronic system of payment information: new reporting obligation for PSPs. As of 1 January 2024, new reporting and archiving obligations will be introduced for payment service providers (PSPs) with reference to "cross-border" payments. These new obligations are part of the European Union's action plan to fight VAT fraud in e-commerce.

A new EU platform called Central Electronic System of Payment (CESOP) information was established for the reporting and storage of payment information and for further processing of this information by national anti-fraud officers. This data will be made available to the local tax authorities under specific conditions, including data protection aspects.

Local tax authorities have not yet published any documentation regarding technical specification/requirements for the submission of the relevant data. That said, the officer in charge, in a meeting, analyzes the procedure where the PSP will have to submit the relevant data to the Italian tax authorities either: (i) via the "Sistema di Interscambio flussi Dati" (SID, Italian tax authorities interchange system) or (ii) via certified email address (PEC address). Moreover, the PSP will have to be registered in the "Registro Elettronico degli Indirizzi" (REI).

Considering that the abovementioned fulfilment is in force starting from 1 January 2024, it is expected that the Italian legislator will enact a provision law within the end of the year 2023. At the time of preparing this chapter no provision has been enacted.

Vouchers. Effective 1 January 2019, Italy has implemented provisions of the Council Directive (EU) 2016/1065. Changes in the local legislation defined single-purpose vouchers (SPV) and multi-purpose vouchers (MPV) and set the VAT rules for taxation in both cases. SPVs are payments instruments for which the VAT treatment of the supply of goods/services for which the voucher has been issued is already known at the time it is issued. Any transfer of ownership of the voucher occurring before the supply of goods/services is carried out triggers the tax point, and the voucher is considered as used. MPVs are payment instruments for which the VAT treatment of the supply of goods/services is not known at the time it is issued. MPVs are only subject to VAT when the voucher is redeemed, i.e., no VAT is due when the voucher is transferred through the supply chain.

Registration procedures. Legal entities established in Italy or permanent establishments in Italy of foreign businesses must register for VAT purposes by submitting the AA7/10 Form at the tax office competent for their tax domicile. The form must be submitted within 30 days of the commencement of economic activities.

Form AA7/10 is included in the comprehensive form called "ComUnica," which has been compulsory since 1 April 2010 for the establishment of a company. The ComUnica Form must be submitted to the Italian Business Register electronically or in digital form. It includes all the forms necessary to satisfy all administrative requirements to be entered in the Italian Business Register, and it is valid for VAT registration.

This registration procedure usually takes one or two days.

Artists, professionals and individual businesses resident in Italy must fill in Form AA9/12 and file it in one of the following ways:
- In duplicate, submitted in person or by a duly delegated person, if necessary, to one of the tax authorities' offices, regardless of the tax domicile of the entity
- A single copy by registered post, enclosing a photocopy of an identity document of the declarant, to be sent to any one of the tax authorities' offices regardless of the tax domicile of the entity (deemed submitted on the date mailed)
- Electronically, submitted by the taxable person or by the person or entity entrusted with its electronic submission

The form must be submitted within 30 days of the commencement of economic activities, and the registration procedure usually takes one or two days.

To register for Italian VAT purposes, non-EU entities must appoint an Italian VAT representative.

To carry out the VAT registration procedure, the following documents are needed:
- Deed of appointment of the VAT representative signed by the company's legal representative and the signature must be legalized either by the local Italian consulate or by a notary public, in the latter case the signature of the notary shall be certified by the apostille according to The Hague convention
- AA7/10 Form for requesting the VAT registration in Italy, to be signed by the VAT representative and filed electronically

Direct VAT registration (only for taxable persons established in an EU Member State, plus Norway and UK – see above) is accomplished by submitting Form ANR/3 to the Italian Revenue Operational Centre in Pescara, which has exclusive competence in such matters:
- In person, to the office (by the taxable person or a duly delegated person) or by registered post and delivered to the following address:

  Agenzia delle Entrate – Centro operativo di Pescara
  Servizio identificazione soggetti non residenti
  Via Rio Sparto, n. 21
  65129 Pescara
  Italy

The following documents should be enclosed:
- A copy of an identity document of the declarant, together with a certificate demonstrating the taxable status held by the requesting person in the Member State of establishment
- Chamber of commerce certificate of the country of establishment
- A description of the business activity, the reason why a VAT registration is required and a self-certification on absence of a fixed establishment in Italy

The registration procedure must be completed before the commencement of economic activities and usually takes around one month.

A new measure has been included in the Budget Law 2023 to prevent VAT numbers from being opened and closed in short periods with the aim of evading tax. Following a risk analysis, the taxable person may be required to file a series of documents to prove that it is actually carrying out the said activity/activities. If taxable persons are unable to pass the required checks, the tax office may close the VAT number and charge the taxable person with an administrative penalty of EUR3,000. A new VAT number can only be obtained if a bank or insurance guarantee for a minimum of three years and not less than EUR50,000 is filed.

Deregistration. Taxable persons can cancel their registration for VAT purposes using the same forms used for obtaining a registration (see Registration procedures above). Taxable persons must deregister within 30 days of the end of business activity.

Changes to VAT registration details. A taxable person can change all registration details using the same form used for the original VAT registration.

The taxable person must use the ANR/3 Form for VAT identification. The declaration of variation of data must be submitted, pursuant to Article 35-ter, paragraph 4, within 30 days from the date on which the variation subject to communication occurred.

To allow the correct acquisition of the data, the form must always be filled in completely. It should be noted that several variations occurring on the same date may be communicated using a single form.

Split payment. For supplies of goods and services supplied to certain public bodies, although invoices are issued with VAT, the related VAT amount is paid to the tax authorities by the recipient. As a consequence, the public body does not pay the amount of VAT to the supplier, but directly to the Italian tax authorities. This procedure does not apply to transactions subject to the reverse-charge mechanism.

The split payment is applicable for supplies to:
1) National, regional and local economic public entities, including special companies and public service companies
2) Foundations owned by public administrations for an overall percentage of the endowment fund not lower than 70%
3) Companies controlled by the Government or by individual Ministries
4) Companies directly or indirectly controlled by public administrations or by companies under 1), 2), 3) and 5)
5) Companies owned, for an overall percentage of capital not lower than 70%, by public administrations or by entities and companies under 1), 2), 3) and 4)
6) Listed companies included in the FTSE MIB index of Borsa Italiana (i.e., the Italian stock exchange) identified for VAT purposes

Public bodies, as well as entities that should be subject to the split payment mechanism are listed in lists published online by the Ministry of Economics and Finance (http://www1.finanze.gov.it/finanze2/split_payment/public/).

The validity period of the split payment mechanism has been granted until 30 June 2026 by the European Council.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
• Standard rate: 22%

- Reduced rates: 4%, 5%, 10%
- Zero-rated: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate, the zero rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Intra-EU supplies of goods
- International transportation services (this does not include transport services rendered to parties other than: the exporter of the goods, the holder of the transit regime, the importer, the consignee of the goods and the supplier of dispatch services referred to under Article 9 paragraph 1 no. 4 of Presidential Decree 633/72.
- Export supplies
- Bunkering to high-sea vessels and to airlines chiefly engaged in international transports

Examples of goods and services taxable at 4%

- Books, newspapers and periodicals
- Certain foodstuffs
- E-books and all other e-publishing materials identified with codes ISBN (International Standard Book Number) and ISSN (International Standard Serial Number)
- Medical equipment

Examples of goods and services taxable at 5%

- Supply of social, health and education services (e.g., medical diagnostics, provision of hospital services and care) by Cooperative Sociali and their consortiums (i.e., special entities aimed at rehabilitation and care of socially disadvantaged persons) to certain categories of people, such as the elderly, the disabled, drug-addicted persons and AIDS patients
- Supply of anti-COVID-19 goods (with effect from 1 January 2021)
- Supply of natural gas used for combustion for civil and industrial uses: Italy published Decree-Law No. 131 on 29 September 2023, which extends the reduced VAT rate of 5% on natural gas for civil and industrial purposes. Previously extended for natural gas consumed in the months of July, August and September 2023, the reduced rate is now further provided for natural gas consumed in the months of October, November and December 2023. The Decree-Law entered into force on 30 September 2023. The reduced VAT rate of 5% will also apply to supplies in execution of "energy service" contracts and to the supply of district heating services accounted for in the invoices issued for estimated or actual consumption for the period October to December 2023 (reduction is only temporary for such months). At the time of preparing this chapter, no further changes have been released.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 10%

- Medicines
- Supplies of food and drink in restaurants, bars and hotels
- Supplies of electricity, methane and liquid petroleum, all for domestic use
- Electricity and gas for use by extraction enterprises and industrial enterprises
- Accommodation services rendered by marina resorts
- Supply of pellet (VAT rate reduced from 22% to 10% with effect from 1 January 2023)
- Supply of baby products such as powdered milk; preparations foodstuffs of flour, groats, meal, starch or malt extract for feeding infants or young children (note the VAT rate on such supplies increases from 5% to 10% with effect from 1 January 2024)
- Supply of feminine hygiene products, compostable according to the UNI EN 13432: 2002 standard or washable and menstrual cups and other different feminine hygiene products, not compostable or washable (note the VAT rate on such supplies increases from 5% to 10% with effect from 1 January 2024)

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Education (under certain conditions)
- Finance
- Insurance
- Postal services
- Medical services

Option to tax for exempt supplies. Under certain circumstances, the seller can opt for the application of VAT to supplies that are listed as exempt, such as:

- Sale of social housing
- Sale of residential buildings where the seller is a construction company that has built or renovated the relevant property more than five years prior to the sale
- Sale of commercial buildings where the seller is not a construction company that built or renovated the relevant property
- Sale of commercial buildings where the seller is a construction company that has built or renovated the relevant property more than five years prior to the sale
- Renting or leasing of residential buildings carried out by a construction company that has built or renovated the relevant properties
- Rental or leasing of commercial buildings
- Sale of industrial gold and related intermediation activities

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point." Time-of-supply rules vary according to the nature of the transaction.

For immovable property, the time of supply is the date on which the agreement to transfer the property is signed. For movable property, the time of supply is the date of delivery or dispatch of the goods. The time of supply may be an earlier date if an invoice is issued or if full or partial payment is received before the goods are supplied.

The time of supply for services is the date of full or partial payment of the consideration. The time of supply may be earlier if an invoice is issued before the services are supplied. No time of supply is triggered on the date of performance or completion of the service, in the absence of any payment or invoice.

If the services are performed on a continuous basis over a period longer than one year, and they do not entail advanced payments within the same period, even partial payments, the time of supply is at the end of each calendar year up to the completion of the services.

For purchases of services under Article 44 of the EU VAT Directive (implemented in Italy by Article 7-ter of Italian VAT Law) from a non-established taxable person, the time of supply is the date when the services are completed or, if the services are supplied periodically or on a continuous basis, when the consideration accrues.

If the consideration is wholly or partly paid in advance, i.e., before the services are completed or the consideration is accrued, VAT becomes chargeable at the time when the payment is made and for the amount of said payment. The same rule applies to cross-border services supplied by a taxable person established in Italy to a non-established taxable person, when not falling under derogation rules provided by Article 47 and following the EU Directive (implemented in Italy by Articles 7-I and 7-quinquies of Italian VAT Law).

Deposits and prepayments. The receipt of a deposit or prepayment for a particular supply of goods or services creates a time of supply for up to the amount paid.

Continuous supplies of services. For services supplied periodically or on a continuous basis, the time of supply is when the consideration accrues.

If the consideration is wholly or partially paid in advance, VAT becomes chargeable at the time when the payment is made and for the amount paid. If the services are performed on a continuous basis over a period longer than one year, and they do not entail advance payments within the same period, even partial, the time of supply is at the end of each calendar year up to the completion of the services.

Goods sent on approval or for sale or return. The time of supply for goods sent on approval or for sale or return is the date on which the goods are accepted by the customer or 12 months after their removal, whichever is the earlier.

Reverse-charge services. The time of supply for services purchased from a non-established person by an Italian taxable person is the date when the services are completed.

If the consideration is wholly or partly paid in advance, VAT becomes chargeable at the time when the payment is made and for the amount of said payment. The same rule applies to cross-border services supplied by a taxable person established in Italy to a non-established taxable person, when not falling under derogation rules provided by Article 47 and following the EU Directive (implemented by Articles 7-1 and 7-quinquies of Italian VAT law).

Leased assets. Leasing of an asset is regarded as a supply of services for VAT purposes. The time of supply is the same as per other services, i.e., if an invoice is issued or a consideration is wholly or partly paid, the transaction is deemed to be carried out, within the limits of the invoiced or paid amount, at the invoice date or at the date of payment.

For leasing of movable property, if the lease involves a non-established taxable person (this can be the lessor or lessee), the time of supply is the date when the consideration accrues, since leasing is a service typically supplied on a continuous basis. If the consideration is wholly or partly paid, the transaction is considered to be carried out, up to the amount of the payment, at the date of payment. This means that the normal tax point is when the consideration accrues, but if the payment comes before the consideration accrual, the tax point is then the time of payment.

Imported goods. The time of supply for imported goods is the date of importation or when the goods leave a duty suspension regime.

Intra-Community acquisitions. The time of supply for intra-Community acquisitions of goods is the date when transport or dispatch of the goods to the customer begins in the territory of the Member State of departure, whether Italy or another Member State.

The time of supply may be an earlier date if an invoice is issued before the transport or dispatch of the goods begins.

Continuous intra-Community acquisitions of goods lasting for periods longer than one calendar month shall be regarded as being completed at the end of each calendar month.

Intra-Community supplies of goods. The time-of-supply rule for intra-Community supplies of goods is the time when transport of goods or dispatch starts or, if earlier, when an invoice is issued.

Distance sales. There are no special time of supply rules in Italy for supplies of distance sales. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax, which is VAT charged on goods and services supplied to it for business purposes. Input tax is generally recovered by being deducted from output tax, which is VAT charged on supplies made.

Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services in Italy, VAT paid on imports of goods and VAT self-assessed on intra-Community/domestic acquisitions of goods and reverse-charge transactions (see the chapter on the EU).

A valid tax invoice or customs document must generally accompany a claim for input tax.

The time limit for a taxable person to reclaim input tax in Italy is within the annual VAT return for the year in which the invoice is received.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

Input tax may not be recovered for the following items of business expenditure unless these goods or services are incurred by a taxable person in order to supply them in the course of its business activity.

- Passenger transportation services
- 60% of the VAT paid on the lease, rental or purchase of a car used for business purposes, maintenance costs, lubricants and fuel
- Costs relating to aircraft and leisure yachts
- Residential dwellings
- Food and beverages
- Representation expenses
- Business gift of which the costs exceed EUR50

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- 100% VAT paid on the lease, rental or purchase of a car used for business purposes, including maintenance costs and fuel
- 100% VAT paid on mobile phones used for business purposes only

Partial exemption. Input tax directly related to making exempt supplies is generally not recoverable. If an Italian taxable person makes both exempt and taxable supplies, it may not recover input tax in full. This situation is referred to as "partial exemption." Exempt with credit supplies are treated as taxable supplies for these purposes.

In Italy, the standard partial exemption calculation method is based on the ratio of taxable turnover to total turnover. Recovery percentages are rounded up or down to the nearest whole number (for example, a recovery percentage of 77.5% is rounded down to 77%, while a recovery percentage of 77.6% is rounded up to 78%).

Approval from the tax authorities is not required to use the partial exemption standard method in Italy. Special methods are not allowed in Italy.

Capital goods. Capital goods are items of capital expenditure that are used in a business over several years. Input tax is deducted in the VAT year in which the goods are acquired. The amount of input tax recovered depends on the destination or use of the goods and/or on the taxable person's partial exemption recovery position in the VAT year of acquisition. However, the amount of input tax recovered for capital goods must be adjusted over time if the destination or use of the goods changes and/or the taxable person's partial exemption recovery percentage changes during the adjustment period by more than 10 percentage points.

In Italy, the capital goods adjustment applies to the following assets and services for the number of years indicated:
- Land and buildings (adjusted for a period of 10 years)
- Other capital assets as defined in the Italian civil code (adjusted for a period of five years)
- Services relating to the renovation of the capital goods
- Intangible assets defined as such according to the income tax legislation

The adjustment is also applied to non-depreciable goods and any kind of services depending on their actual first use.

The adjustment is applied each year following the year of acquisition to a fraction of the total input tax (1/10 for land and buildings and 1/5 for other capital assets). The adjustment may result in either an increase or a decrease of deductible input tax, depending on, for example, whether the ratio of taxable supplies made by the business has increased or decreased compared with the year in which the capital goods were acquired.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax recoverable in a monthly period exceeds the amount of output tax payable in that period, the taxable person has an input tax credit. A refund of the credit may be claimed annually or quarterly if specific conditions are met, and if a taxable person meets the conditions to claim both annually and quarterly, it may choose either. If the conditions for requesting a refund are not met, the input tax credit may be carried forward to offset output tax in the next VAT period.

Annual VAT refund. An annual VAT refund may be claimed if any of the following conditions are met:
- The average VAT rate paid by the taxable person on purchases exceeds the average VAT rate applied to its sales, increased by 10 percentage points.
- Exports, intra-Community supplies or international services make up more than 25% of the taxable person's total turnover.
- The VAT credit arises from purchases or imports of depreciable assets or purchases of goods and services for research and development (R&D) activities. However, the repayment is limited to the amount of VAT on purchased or imported depreciable assets and R&D goods and services.
- Most transactions are out of the scope of VAT under the place-of-supply rules.
- The taxable person is a non-established business registered for VAT in Italy.
- The taxable person has an input tax credit in the annual VAT return for three consecutive years. In this case, the repayment is limited to the lowest of the credit amounts in the three years.

Quarterly VAT refund. A quarterly refund may be claimed if any of the following conditions are met:
- The average VAT rate paid by the taxable person on purchases exceeds the average VAT rate applied to the taxable person's sales, increased by 10 percentage points.
- Exports, intra-Community supplies or international services make up more than 25% of the taxable person's total turnover.
- The VAT credit arises from the purchase or import of depreciable assets, which represents more than 2/3 of the total amount of purchases subject to VAT. The repayment is limited to the amount of purchased depreciable assets.
- The taxable person is a non-established business registered for VAT in Italy.
- The taxable person renders to non-established taxable persons, for an amount higher than 50% of its total turnover, services related to tangible moveable goods, transport of goods and related intermediation services, services ancillary to transport of goods and related intermediation services, supply of banking, insurance and financial services to non-EU persons or regarding goods for exportation.

The VAT credit refund procedure may trigger the requirement to file a bank/insurance guarantee with the tax authorities. Starting from 2015, the bank/insurance guarantee is not due if the VAT credit claimed for refund lower than EUR30,000.

For VAT refunds higher than EUR30,000, under certain conditions, the filing of the bank/insurance guarantee can be replaced by a "certification" of the VAT credit by the auditing body or other authorized professionals. These professionals shall assess the existence and amount of the VAT credit through a check of the annual VAT return and of the VAT ledgers and proper bookkeeping. Moreover, the taxable person should issue a self-declaration attesting to be an active business.

The obligation to file a bank/insurance guarantee for VAT refunds higher than EUR30,000 is still applicable in some specific cases:
- VAT refunds claimed by companies that started their business activity less than two years prior
- VAT refunds claimed by taxable persons that in the previous two years received a tax assessment regarding the amounts declared in the annual VAT return
- VAT refunds claimed by taxable persons that did not provide for the VAT credit certification or the self-declaration
- VAT refunds claimed by taxable persons in the last year of activity

In all the cases that require a bank/insurance guarantee, the legislation foresees that the taxable person asking for the VAT refund may receive a lump sum amount, as relief for costs sustained for the issuance of the bank/insurance guarantee itself, equal to 0.15% of the guaranteed amount for every year of validity of the bank/insurance warranty. This lump sum must be paid when it is recognized by the tax authorities that the taxable person is entitled to receive the VAT reimbursement. This provision applies with effect from the VAT claims made through the annual VAT return related to fiscal year 2018 and quarterly VAT refund requests related to the first quarter of 2018.

Taxable persons may use a VAT credit shown in the annual VAT return to offset other Italian tax liabilities and social security contributions:
- For offsets higher than EUR5,000, the VAT credit must be "certified."
- The offset may not exceed EUR2 million per year (threshold increased with effect from 1 January 2022).

Recovery of the VAT incorrectly charged. A procedure for recovering VAT incorrectly charged by the supplier has been introduced into the Italian VAT law. The new provision foresees that, in the case of a transaction that has been incorrectly subjected to VAT:
- The supplier can ask the tax authorities for a refund of the VAT wrongly charged and paid within two years:
  - From the payment date of the undue VAT; or, if subsequent
  - From the day when the VAT is repaid to a customer who has asked for restitution because it has received a definitive assessment from the tax authorities that VAT was wrongly charged and is therefore non-recoverable as input tax
- The customer can ask for the restitution of the VAT charged by the supplier within the ordinary time frame of 10 years.

For the sake of completeness, this reimbursement procedure does not apply in cases that may involve a tax fraud.

Taxable persons can exercise the right of deduction of the VAT into the VAT computation related to the period in which the transaction has been carried out, provided that the relevant purchase invoice has been received and duly booked within the 15th day of the month following the one in which the transaction is carried out. This rule does not apply when the invoices received refer to transactions performed in the previous year; in such case, the relevant VAT must be deducted in the year in which the invoice has been received. As a general rule, taxable persons can exercise the relevant right of deduction of VAT when both the following circumstances occur:

- The VAT has become chargeable.
- The relevant invoice has been received.

Once both the above conditions are met, the right of deduction of VAT can be exercised by the taxable person at the latest within the date of filing the annual VAT return for the financial year in which the relevant invoice has been received, provided that such document has been booked in the VAT ledgers within such term, in accordance with Article 25 of the Italian VAT law.

Pre-registration costs. Italian VAT law does not specifically provide for the recoverability of the VAT on preregistration costs. However, the recovery of VAT on pre-registration costs is accepted if it takes place within the terms provided by the Italian VAT law, i.e., with the submission of the annual VAT return relating to the year in which the purchase invoice is received.

Bad debts. In principle, the VAT on bad debts can be recovered by issuing a credit note, subject to certain conditions.

If the adjustment occurs as a result of an agreement between the parties, an adjustment VAT credit note cannot be issued later than one year after the transaction was carried out.

In the case of a bankruptcy procedure or an individual enforcement procedure, to recover the relevant VAT, the credit note had to be issued no later than the deadline to file the VAT return related to the year in which the right of deduction arises, i.e., the year in which the procedure was concluded.

However, Article 26 of Presidential Decree 633/1972 has been amended so that the supplier of the goods or service has the right to issue a credit note in the event of nonpayment of the consideration, in whole or in part, by the recipient of the supply starting from the date in which:
- The latter is subject to an insolvency procedure (i.e., from the beginning of the procedure)
- The decree approving a debt restructuring agreement referred to in Article 182-bis of Law 16 March 1942, n. 267 is published
- A certified plan pursuant to Article 67, third paragraph, letter d), of Law 16 March 1942 n. 267 is published

If in a later stage the consideration is paid, in whole or in part, the supplier must issue a debit note for the relevant amount and the recipient has the right to deduct the corresponding VAT.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred on purchases that are used for noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Italy.

Frequent exporters regime. The Italian VAT law provides that repayments are made within three months after the deadline for the claim. However, particularly for credit amounts higher than EUR2 million, long delays are common because refunds exceeding this amount are subject to an audit process by the tax authorities. This delay may cause a severe cash flow problem for businesses involved in international trade because they are frequently in a VAT credit position. To ease the situation, the Italian VAT law provides that "frequent exporters" may purchase, import and acquire goods and services without payment of VAT.

To qualify as a "frequent exporter," export supplies must exceed 10% of a taxable person's annual turnover. VAT-free purchases are limited to the value of the taxable person's export supplies either in the preceding calendar year or in the preceding 12 months (at the option of the taxable person). For these purposes, exports include exports of goods, zero-rated services and intra-Community supplies. The frequent exporter scheme is not applicable to the purchase of buildings, building areas, goods and services where the recovery of VAT is not allowed, petrol and fuel with the only exception of commercial diesel for some specific subjects.

To avoid fraud in relation to the use of the frequent exporter regime, the Italian tax authorities have strengthened their audits related to such transactions. If during an audit they find out that the letter of intent has been wrongly issued, they can invalidate the same.

In particular, in case of a negative outcome of the audit activities:
- The declarations of intent are invalidated through electronic confirmation of the filing to the Italian tax authority
- The taxable person is inhibited from the issuance of new declarations of intent through the electronic system of the Italian tax authority

In case of an indication of the protocol number of an invalidated letter of intent, the Interchange System will inhibit the supplier to the issuance of the electronic invoice bearing the title of non-taxability of VAT pursuant to Article 8 paragraph 1 letter c) of Presidential Decree No. 633/1972.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Input tax incurred by non-established businesses that are not registered for VAT in Italy is recoverable. The Italian VAT authorities refund VAT incurred by businesses that are neither established nor registered for VAT in Italy. Non-established businesses may claim Italian VAT to the same extent as VAT-registered businesses.

Entities not established in Italy, but with a fixed establishment in Italy or registered for VAT purposes either directly or through a tax representative, can exercise their VAT rights in the same way as established entities. Therefore, they can either offset their VAT credit or claim a refund through the VAT return.

Non-established taxable persons that are not registered for VAT in Italy may claim VAT refunds using specific procedures, differing depending on whether they are established in another EU Member State or in a third country.

In addition, non-established taxable persons may also voluntarily register for VAT in Italy just to recover input tax even if they do not carry out supplies of goods or services relevant for VAT purposes in Italy. For further details, see Section C. Who is liable, subsection Non-established businesses.

EU businesses. For businesses established in the EU, a refund is made under the terms of the EU Directive 2008/9/EC. The VAT refund procedure under the EU Directive 2008/9 may be used only if the business did not perform any taxable supplies in Italy during the refund period (excluding supplies covered by the reverse charge). For full details, see the chapter on the EU.

Find below specific rules for Italy:

Taxable businesses established in another EU Member State can claim the refund of VAT paid in Italy on imports and purchases of goods and services if they meet the following conditions:
- The taxable person does not have a fixed establishment in Italy
- The taxable person has not carried out any transactions within scope of Italian VAT or has only carried out transactions subject to reverse charge, zero rated transport and transport-related services or supplies of goods or services taxable in Italy for which the taxable person opted for OSS or IOSS.

Entities established in another EU Member State that meet the requirements can apply for the refund of the input VAT paid on the import of goods and the purchase of goods and services in Italy, if the tax is deductible under Italian legislation and they carry out transactions giving rise to the right of recovery in their country of establishment. In the case of partial exemption, the refund is made by applying the same pro rata applied by the country of establishment.

Nonresident entities established in another EU Member State must submit their refund application electronically to the tax authorities of the taxable person's state of establishment. The applications are then sent on to the Italian tax authorities that manages the refunds (Agenzia delle Entrate – Centro Operativo di Pescara).

Non-EU businesses. For businesses established outside the EU, a refund is made under the terms of the EU 13th Directive. For full details, see the chapter on the EU.

Italy applies the "principle of reciprocity," which means the country where the claimant is established must also provide VAT refunds to Italian businesses. Israel, Norway and Switzerland are included in this category. At the time of preparing the chapter, the UK has not been added to this list.

Non-EU entities established in the three countries mentioned above may claim VAT refunds on purchases and imports of movable property and services relating to the exercise of their business, art or profession, provided such VAT is deductible under the Italian VAT legislation.

Find below specific rules for Italy:
- Non-EU entities must submit Form VAT 79, drafted in Italian or English, to the address below:

  Agenzia delle Entrate – Centro operativo di Pescara
  Servizio identificazione soggetti non residenti
  Via Rio Sparto, n. 21
  65129 Pescara
  Italy

- The application can be submitted by hand delivery, post or express courier.
- The refund thresholds are the following: for quarterly applications, EUR400 or the equivalent amount in national currency; for annual applications, EUR50 or the equivalent amount in national currency.
- Applications must be submitted by 30 September of the calendar year following the reference year. Only quarterly and annual applications are allowed.
- Businesses established in other non-EU countries should appoint a VAT representative in order to be able to recover input tax.
- Italian VAT law provides that payment of recoverable VAT must be made no later than six months after the date on which the application is filed.

The same option applies to those entities that, while established in a non-EU country, have joined the OSS or IOSS scheme, even if they have carried out distance sales of goods or supplied services to final customers for which VAT is due in Italy.

Late payment interest. In case of late VAT refund payments for non-established businesses (for both EU and non-EU), interest accrues at a rate of 2% per year effective from 2010. The date when interest starts accruing varies, as it depends on whether additional documentation is requested and on the timing of its filing.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. An Italian taxable person must generally provide a VAT invoice for all taxable and exempt supplies made, including exports and intra-Community supplies. Invoices are not automatically required for retail transactions, unless requested by the customer. If an Italian taxable person that purchases goods or services from an Italian supplier does not receive a correct invoice by the end of the fourth month following the month when the acquisition occurred, it must regularize the purchase by disclosing it and paying VAT to the tax authorities by the end of the fifth month following the supply.

Invoices can be issued within 12 days from the date in which the transaction takes place, by giving evidence of the time of supply on the document (i.e., both the date of supply and the date of issuance of the invoice should be mentioned, if different). The VAT is still due with reference to the month in which the taxable event takes place.

A VAT invoice is necessary to support a claim for input tax deduction or a refund under the so-called 8th VAT Directive or EU 13th VAT Directive refund schemes.

Credit notes. A VAT credit note may be used to reduce the VAT charged and reclaimed on a supply. A credit note must reflect a genuine mistake or overcharge or an agreed reduction in the value of the original supply and must be issued only in the particular cases listed under Italian law. The document must be marked "credit note," it must be numbered, and it must refer to the original VAT invoice.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is mandatory in Italy, for certain taxable persons.

Scope of electronic invoicing. For B2B, B2C and business-to-government (B2G) supplies, electronic invoicing is mandatory for certain taxable persons in Italy. Electronic invoicing is currently only mandatory for supplies made by established taxable persons. Electronic invoicing is allowed but not mandatory for supplies made by non-established taxable persons.

The application for B2G supplies is in line with EU Directive 2014/55/EU (see the chapter on the EU). This is with effect from 31 March 2015. Italy has obtained EU authorization up to 31 December 2024. For other taxable persons (B2B, B2C), electronic invoicing is also mandatory in Italy, in line with EU Directive 2010/45/EU (see the chapter on the EU).

Starting from 2019, a general B2B and B2C electronic invoicing obligation applies; the electronic invoicing obligation only applies to transactions between established/resident persons.

Exclusion from issuing e-invoices has been extended to 2023 for those entities that: (i) are required to send data to the Health Card System, with reference to invoices relating to transactions whose data must be sent to such system ("Sistema tessera sanitaria") and (ii) although not required to send data to the Health Card System, issue invoices relating to health care services provided to individuals.

From 1 July 2022, the transmission of data relating to cross-border transactions via the Interchange System (SdI) will be mandatory with the format of the electronic invoice and the so-called Esterometro will be abolished.

Mandatory e-invoicing has been introduced for supplies between Italy and San Marino as from 1 July 2022. A transitional period is envisaged from 1 October 2021 to 30 June 2022, during which invoices may be issued in both electronic and paper format, while from 1 July 2022 invoices must only be issued in electronic format.

Law decree no. 36, dated April 30, 2022, (the so-called "PNRR 2") has extended the obligation of electronic invoicing also to the so-called "minor taxpayers" (those who fall under the minimum regime and those who apply the flat tax regime) and to amateur sports associations. In particular, the electronic invoicing obligation is mandatory from the following dates:

- From 1 July 2022, for taxable persons that in the previous year had a turnover exceeding EUR25,000; for such taxable persons there is also an exemption from penalties in the third quarter of 2022, provided that the electronic invoice is issued within the month following the tax point
- From 1 January 2024, for all other taxable persons

Invoices for cross-border transactions. Invoices for exports, intra-Community supplies of goods and exempt supplies must mention "zero-rated transaction" and "exempt transaction" to support the fact that VAT has not been charged. Invoices may indicate the applicable provision of the Italian or EU law. To account for Italian VAT on an intra-EU acquisition, the Italian purchaser (VAT-taxable person) must "integrate" the foreign invoice, i.e., the applicable Italian VAT rate and the corresponding Italian VAT must be written on the foreign invoice. The invoice must be booked into the taxable person's purchases and sales ledgers. If the supplier does not issue an invoice for the transaction, the Italian acquirer of the goods must self-invoice by the 15th day of the third month following the month in which the acquisition occurred.

From 1 July 2022, the transmission of data relating to cross-border transactions via the Interchange System (SdI) has become mandatory. For purchases of goods and services from non-established suppliers, the taxable person must communicate on a monthly basis each relevant transaction through single xml files within the 15th of the month following the one of receipt. For sales of goods and services to non-established customers, the taxable person shall communicate the transactions through an xml file to be transmitted through the SDI whose technical specifications are the same as the domestic e-invoicing procedure.

Sales invoices must be issued in euros, rounding up to the cent. Invoices received from foreign suppliers and issued in foreign currency must be converted to euros by the recipient using the exchange rate at the time of the supply. If this information is unknown at the date of invoice, the conversion into euros may be made based on the exchange rate published by the European Central Bank.

For the EU VAT in the Digital Age (ViDA) proposals, refer to the chapter on the European Union.

Simplified VAT invoices. A simplified invoice may be issued with respect to supplies for which the taxable basis is not higher than EUR400.

Also, a simplified credit note can be issued. For simplified invoices issued for adjustments (credit note or debit note), it is mandatory to mention the reference to the initial invoice issued and adjusted, as well as the date of the data adjusted as for the correction made.

Simplified invoices cannot be issued for intra-EU supplies and for any transaction made to a person liable for VAT in another EU Member State.

Self-billing. Self-billing is allowed in Italy. If an Italian established taxable person receives a supply of goods or services from a non-established person, a reverse charge applies, and it must issue a self-invoice, showing all the details of an Italian tax invoice and the correct VAT due. The self-invoice must mention "self-invoice" and must be recorded in both the purchases and sales ledgers of the taxable person.

For Article 44 services received from an EU supplier, instead of issuing a self-invoice, Italian taxable persons must apply the reverse-charge mechanism via the "integration" of the invoice. In practice, the taxable person must follow the same reverse-charge procedure that is applicable to intra-Community acquisitions of goods (see below).

Even though the supplier normally has the obligation to issue the invoice, the Italian VAT law provides the opportunity for the invoice to be issued directly by the customer ("self-invoice") or by a third party ("outsourced invoice") on behalf of the supplier who, in any case, remains liable for obligations to the Italian tax authorities (Article 21 of Presidential decree n. 633/1972). Based on the common commercial practice, the parties involved (the supplier and the third party issuing the invoice) agree their intention in a written contract (written agreement is not mandatory but strongly recommended) according to which the supplier grants to the third party a specific authorization to issue invoices on its behalf. In addition, both parties must expressly acknowledge the specific procedure to be adopted and their reciprocal rights and obligations.

To coordinate the e-invoicing obligation and the self-billing agreement, the technical specifications released by the Italian tax authorities for the filing of the XML file provide for specific rules.

Proof of exports and intra-Community supplies. Italian VAT is not chargeable on supplies of exported goods or on intra-Community supplies of goods (see the chapter on the EU). However, to qualify as VAT-free, exports and intra-Community supplies must be supported by evidence proving that the goods have left Italy. Acceptable proof includes the following documentation:

- For exports, copies of the export documents or invoices officially validated by customs or indicating the Movement Reference Number (MRN)
- For intra-EU supplies, the signed transport document or the validated copy of the "Convention des Merchandises par Route" (CMR) a bill of lading, an airway bill, an invoice issued by the freight forwarder, the relevant Intrastat forms, proof of payment

The Italian tax authorities issued specific guidance stating that the documents listed above shall still be deemed as valid for the purposes of the application of the zero-rated regime, even following the implementation of the Quick Fixes package. However, the supplier may also decide to collect and have at its disposal the documents under Article 45a of the Council Implementing Regulation (EU) 2018/1912 of 4 December 2018, i.e., documents for the application of the EU rebuttable presumption regarding intra-Community supplies. In addition, the zero-rated regime shall apply only if the recipient provides the supplier with its valid VAT ID for VIES purposes in advance and if the intra-Community supply is correctly reported in the Intrastat return of the supplier.

For the Quick Fixes, the Italian tax authority released Circular Letter 12/E (12 May 2020) to clarify the new proof of delivery requirements introduced by the VAT Quick Fixes regime. The proof of delivery rules, introduced by Council Implementing Regulation (EU) 2018/1912 amending Implementing Regulation (EU) No 282/2011, are applicable since 1 January 2020, without the need for implementing legislation. New Article 45a of Regulation (EU) No 282/2011 provides that the transport of the goods is presumed to have taken place if certain conditions are satisfied, depending on whether the transport is arranged by the supplier or the recipient of the goods. In instances when the transport is arranged by the recipient of the goods, the recipient must deliver a declaration to the supplier, confirming that the goods have arrived at their destination. There is no specific format required for this declaration. Where the goods are transported by the supplier, a transportation document (e.g., CMR) signed by the supplier, transporter and recipient is regarded as sufficient proof of transportation, but not legally binding.

Foreign currency invoices. In Italy, the amounts that appear on the invoice may be expressed in any currency, provided that the amount of VAT payable or to be adjusted is expressed in the domestic currency, which is the euro (EUR), using the official conversion rate for the date of supply.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. Some types of taxable persons (i.e., those who carry out retail and similar businesses) are exempted from the obligation to issue full VAT invoices, if not expressly requested by the customer. However, where a full VAT invoice is not issued, it is mandatory to electronically store and transmit daily receipts electronically. These obligations must be fulfilled by means of the instruments specifically identified by the tax authorities.

In any case, the taxable person should issue the commercial receipts/documents. The commercial receipt must include the following information:

- The progressive numbering by calendar year attributed to the fiscal receipt
- The date of issuance
- Company name or name and surname for physical persons, tax domicile, VAT number, location where the activity is carried out
- Nature, quality and quantity of the goods or services provided
- Amount including VAT

This receipt constitutes title for the exercise of warranty rights against defects in the item sold or rights arising from other types of warranty.

The data storage and transmission obligations (as well as the issuance of the commercial document) do not apply where receipts are documented by means of an invoice (ordinary or simplified).

Distance selling. For intra-Community B2C distance sales (over the threshold of EUR10,000), a full VAT invoice must be issued. However, if the supplier operates the OSS regime EU, then no full VAT invoice is required unless requested. If the invoice is issued, the Italian invoicing rules, in which the supplier is registered for the OSS regime EU, apply.

Records. In Italy, examples of what records must be held for VAT purposes include VAT ledgers, VAT purchase registers and VAT sales registers. Additional ledgers can be requested for specific transactions, invoices, credit notes, customs bills, and proof of transport for intra-EU supplies and of exports.

In Italy, VAT books and records can be kept outside the country. For Italian-established businesses such records can be held in or outside of Italy, in this latter case under certain conditions (i.e., access in Italy to the software and the possibility to print documents upon request). The place where the records are kept must be indicated in the declaration of the start of the activity or of a change in data. For non-established businesses that are directly VAT registered in Italy, such records can be kept abroad and submitted to the Italian tax authorities upon request by a certain deadline.

Record retention period. According to Italian law, invoices issued and received, credit notes and all the documents relevant for VAT purposes (documents of transport, etc.) must be kept for VAT purposes up to the end of the statute of limitation period:

- 31 December of the fifth year following the one of filing of the annual VAT return; (for years prior to 2016, the term was the fourth year)
- 31 December of the seventh year following the one in which the (omitted) annual VAT return should have been filed (for years prior to 2016, the term was the fifth year)

The retention period can be extended under certain circumstances (e.g., in case of tax litigation).

For civil law purposes, all the VAT relevant documents (books, ledgers, invoices, correspondence, etc.) must be kept for 10 years.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is allowed in Italy. It is mandatory for electronic invoices, according to the requirements of Italian law. The Italian tax authorities offers a free-of-charge archiving service. In particular, the e-invoice files are kept by the Italian tax authority's e-invoicing platform, "Sistema di Interscambio" (SDI) until 31 December of the eighth year following the one of submission of the related return or until the definition of eventual court trials. The same files could be used by the tax police in the performance of the economic and financial police tasks and by the tax authorities and by the tax police for risk analysis and the checks carried out for tax purposes.

Electronic storage of fiscal documents, including tax returns, is allowed provided that specific requirements are met, such as search criteria, a description of the archive and the archiving process, and a clear delegation plan for the responsibility of the archiving process.

The electronic archiving process must be completed within three months from the deadline for filing the related annual tax return.

Electronic archiving of electronic invoices is mandatory. The electronic archive can be located also in another jurisdiction, provided that such tax authorities have a legal instrument to regulate reciprocal assistance with Italy.

The taxable person established in Italy ensures, for control reasons, the automatic access to the archive and that all documents and information contained therein, including those related to the guarantee of the authenticity and the integrity of the documents, are printable and transferable onto other electronic storage media.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. All Italian taxable persons must submit an annual VAT return. The VAT return period is the calendar year. The annual VAT return must be filed from 1 February through 30 April of the following year.

Periodic payments. Italian taxable persons calculate VAT payments on a monthly or quarterly basis, depending on turnover, and pay the VAT. All taxable persons must communicate on a quarterly basis the data of periodic VAT liquidations, independent of their obligation to pay the VAT on a monthly or quarterly basis. VAT may be paid on a quarterly basis if the turnover realized during the previous year (or anticipated for the first year of activity) does not exceed EUR500,000 for supplies of services or EUR800,000 for supplies of goods. Interest at a rate of 1% must be added to quarterly VAT payments.

Monthly payments are due by the 16th day of the month following the month for which VAT is due.

Quarterly payments are due by the 16th day of the second month following the quarter for which VAT is due, except for the last quarter. The balance for the last quarter is due on 16 March of the following year if the taxable person spontaneously opts for quarterly payments (that is, a taxable person that has revenues under certain thresholds and that opts to calculate the VAT balance on a quarterly basis instead of a monthly basis).

Starting from 1 December 2012, taxable persons whose turnover did not exceed EUR2 million in the previous year can opt to account for VAT using cash accounting.

VAT is paid using the F24 Form and a specific tax code, which is different for each month. The F24 Form must be filed electronically, either through the tax authorities' website, provided the taxable person is registered to access Entratel/Fisconline (this requires a specific procedure to be completed) or through an authorized bank. A list of authorized banks is published online by the tax authorities.

Non-established businesses directly registered for VAT in Italy, who do not have an Italian bank account can pay VAT due by direct SWIFT transfer, using the TARGET system.

As from 1 July 2022, retailers using advanced systems to collect tax considerations through debit or credit cards, or other forms of electronic payment can store and transmit the data of the receipts through the same instruments

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is mandatory in Italy for all taxable persons. All VAT returns must be filed electronically directly by the taxable person, using the tax authorities' electronic services (i.e., Entratel or Fisconline services) or through authorized intermediaries such as business consultants and accountants. The filing receipt is transmitted electronically by the tax authorities to the user who filed it.

Payments on account. Payments on account are required in Italy. An advance payment is due by 27 December of the current year. Different methods are available to calculate the advance payments (i.e., forecast, historical or transactions actually carried out). The balancing payment of the VAT due for the month of December is due by the 16th of January.

Special schemes. Tour operator margin scheme. Travel agencies and tour operators who organize and sell tour packages comprising trips, holidays, "all-inclusive" packages, and related services for their own account or through an agent, benefit from a special VAT scheme. Output tax is applicable only on the margin, calculated as the difference between the amount received from the customer and the amount paid to the suppliers, gross of VAT. Businesses cannot recover, deduct or claim for refund the input tax charged on such travel services and goods.

Margin scheme for secondhand goods, works of art, antiques or collectibles. Output tax is applicable only on the margin calculated on the difference between the amount that the businesses receive from the customer and the amount they pay to their suppliers, including ancillary costs. Businesses cannot recover, deduct or claim for refund the input tax on purchases of goods.

VAT scheme for publishers. For sale of daily newspapers, periodicals, books and the related additional media and catalogs, the VAT is due by publishers on the basis of the sale price to the public, in relation to the number of the copies sold. The tax may optionally be applied in relation to the number of copies delivered or posted, reduced by 70% for books and 80% for daily newspapers and periodicals, excluding pornographic material and the ones supplied together with supplementary package.

VAT scheme for telecommunications providers. A special scheme is available for services rendered by public telephone service providers as well as for sales of any technical means, including the supply of access codes, for use of fixed or mobile telecommunication services, as well as electronic services. The VAT is due by the holder of the license or by the authorized service provider on the basis of the consideration due by the user or, if not already determined, on the basis of the average price for the sale to the public in relation to the amount of phone traffic made available by technical means.

The same provisions are applicable to nonresidents selling or distributing technical means in Italy through their permanent establishment or their tax representatives or through direct identification pursuant to Article 35-ter, as well as to agents, other intermediaries and third parties who sell or distribute in Italy technical means acquired from nonresidents.

Cash accounting. Taxable persons can opt for cash accounting under specific circumstances if turnover did not exceed EUR2 million in the previous year, with reference to transactions carried out with taxable persons.

Under cash accounting, rules for the supplier are as follows:
- VAT is due when the supplier receives payment for supplies of goods or services (but in any case, not later than one year from the date in which the goods are supplied or the services are performed).
- VAT on purchases is recoverable when the consideration has been paid.

The invoice shall make specific reference to cash accounting and the pertaining legal provision.

A taxable person that purchases goods or services from a supplier that opts for cash accounting can deduct the relevant VAT when the transaction is deemed to be performed for VAT purposes, even if the payment for the supply has not yet been made.

Some supplies and purchases from a supplier that uses cash accounting are excluded from this regime.

Other special schemes. Special schemes also available for the following activities:
- Trading salt and tobacco – VAT is paid only by the State Agency, i.e., the monopoly reseller, based on the final price to the public
- Trading matches – for the final part of the supply chain, VAT is paid by the industry association Consorzio Industrie fiammiferi based on the price to the public
- Entertainment activities, games and the other activities – under the tariff attached to Presidential Decree Nº 640 of 26 October 1972, under certain conditions a flat rate calculation of input VAT is applicable

- Sales of COVID-19 goods to the European Commission – a nontaxable VAT regime applies for sale of goods to the European Commission or to an agency or body established under European Union law, where such Commission or agency or body acquires such goods or services while carrying out the tasks conferred by European Union law to respond to the COVID-19 pandemic, unless the goods and services purchased are used, immediately or subsequently, for the purposes of further supplies or services for consideration by the Commission or that agency or body.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Italy. Aside from the general VAT return (which the period is the calendar year), a separate additional annual return is not required in Italy.

Supplementary filings. Communication of transactions with foreign counterparties. The so-called Esterometro has been abolished as from 1 July 2022. However, starting from 1 July 2022, the transmission of data relating to cross-border transactions will be mandatory via the Interchange System (SdI), with the format of the electronic invoices.

Frequent exporters. Frequent exporters must file declarations of intent with the Italian tax authorities.

Suppliers can issue zero-rated VAT invoices to frequent exporters only upon checking that the declaration has been electronically filed with the Italian tax authorities. Law Decree no. 34/2019 introduced relevant changes in the discipline regarding the declaration of intent effective as of 1 January 2020. The main changes are:

- Frequent exporters are no longer obliged to provide their suppliers or customs offices the declaration of intent and related filing receipt (the supplier is obliged to verify using the tax authorities' electronic services that the declaration of intent has been filed). In the absence of providing this check, penalties from 100% to 200% of the VAT not charged could apply.
- Frequent exporters and suppliers are no longer required to proceed with the progressive numbering of the declaration of intent or the annotation in a specific VAT book.
- The supplier must quote the protocol number attesting the receipt of the declaration on the invoice issued. Specific checks are carried out by the Italian tax authorities between the declaration, the available ceiling and the e-invoice issued.

If no declaration of intent is received, fines ranging between 100% and 200% of the VAT not charged could apply.

Intra-Community archive. Italian VAT taxable persons that make intra-Community acquisitions or sales of goods must be included in the "Archive of Entities Authorized to Perform Intra-Community Transactions."

An entity that registers for VAT when it begins a business activity in Italy must inform the Italian tax authorities in writing if it intends to perform intra-Community transactions. VAT registration is automatically included in the intra-Community archive, i.e., VIES; however, the VAT registration number is excluded from the VIES archive, upon communication from the Italian tax authorities, if the taxable person does not file any Intrastat listings for four continuous quarters.

Due to the implementation of the Quick Fixes package, the registration to VIES has become mandatory to apply the zero-rated regime for intra-Community transactions.

Intrastat. Italian taxable persons that trade with other EU Member States must complete fiscal and statistical reports, known as Intrastat. Separate reports apply to intra-Community supplies of goods and intra-Community supplies of services (Intrastat Dispatches) and simplifications for the completion of the Intrastat forms or exception from their submission apply.

The Intrastat return for the intra-EU acquisitions of goods is mandatory on a monthly basis only for statistical purposes and only if the total amount of acquisitions is greater than EUR350,000 for at least one of the four previous quarters.

No Intrastat return for intra-EU acquisitions of goods needs be filed by taxable persons who do not exceed the above threshold.

The Intrastat return related to the intra-EU purchases of services is mandatory only for statistical purposes on a monthly basis and only if the total amount of intra-EU purchases of services for at least one of the four previous quarters is equal or higher than EUR100,000.

No Intrastat return for purchases of services needs to be filed by taxable persons who do not exceed the above threshold.

The Intrastat return related to intra-EU dispatches of goods remains mandatory. However, the submission of statistical information is optional for taxable persons who submit an Intrastat return on a monthly basis with a total amount of intra-EU supplies of goods, during at least one of the four previous quarters, that is less than EUR100,000. In addition, starting from 1 January 2022, the data related to non-preferential origin of the goods must be included in the form.

The Intrastat return related to the intra-EU supplies of services remains mandatory. However, the service code necessary to identify the specific service supplied is related to a simplified list of codes, which means that it should be easier to connect services with the related codes than it was previously.

Statistical information is required from businesses that mainly file monthly reports. Columns (which is the section of the Intrastat return for the statistical value), regarding delivery conditions and transport conditions must be filled in if the threshold of EUR20 million is exceeded or in the case of a movement of goods without the transfer of property or similar rights.

Intrastat declarations must be filed in EUR. Returns, if due, are due on a monthly basis, by the 25th day of the month following the return period (the returns on a quarterly basis, under certain conditions, is no longer in force).

A new specific Intrastat form is introduced from 1 January 2022 for the communication of call-off stock transactions, pursuant to the Quick Fixes implementation.

In addition, a simplification has been introduced for Intrastat returns related to intra-EU dispatches of goods and for intra-EU acquisitions of goods, on which for transactions not higher than EUR1,000, no specific customs code shall be included, but rather a generic standard one.

EU Sales Lists. In Italy, all information related to intra-Community transactions is reported using the Intrastat form. No separate EU Sales List is used.

Quarterly communication of periodic VAT calculations. A taxable person must electronically file a communication of the periodic VAT computations on a quarterly basis, irrespective of its obligation to pay the VAT on a monthly or quarterly basis.

The form must be filed electronically though specific means accepted by the Italian tax authorities (i.e., Entratel and Fisconline).

Taxable persons are requested to file this communication on a quarterly basis by the end of the second month following the quarter of reference:
- By 31 May for the quarter January-March
- By 30 September for the quarter April-June
- By 30 November for the quarter July-September

- By the last day of the month of February of the following year for the quarter October-December

Correcting errors in previous returns. To correct errors in periodic filings, taxable persons should submit a supplementary return and pay the penalties, if applicable. Referring to penalties, they are reduced by an amount depending on the time period between the original filing and the voluntary disclosure. The supplementary return should be filed electronically.

Digital tax administration. Digital tax administration in Italy implies, among others, e-invoicing, communications of transactions to the tax authorities (e.g., shop sales data), prefilled VAT returns and ledgers prepared by the Italian tax authorities, e-audits, etc.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. Late registration for VAT may result in various penalties, depending on the errors committed. Penalties include the following:

- Failure to inform Italian VAT authorities regarding the beginning of activities: a penalty ranging from EUR500 to EUR2,000.
- Failure to issue and record invoices for taxable transactions: a penalty ranging from 90% to 180% of the VAT not invoiced or posted.
- Failure to issue and record invoices for exempt and exempt-with-credit transactions or certain transactions not subject to VAT: a penalty ranging from 5% to 10% of the amount not invoiced or posted. However, if the violation is not relevant for the assessment of the income, a penalty ranging from EUR250 to EUR2,000 applies.
- Failure to make payments of VAT: a penalty of 30% of the payment not made, plus interest on the late payment.
- Failure to maintain VAT records: a penalty ranging from EUR1,000 to EUR8,000.
- Failure to file the annual VAT return: a penalty ranging from 120% to 240% of the VAT due, a minimum amount of EUR250, applies. However, if the VAT return is filed within the legal term foreseen for the submission of the VAT return relevant for the following year and, in any case, before any audit is started, the penalty is reduced to half (i.e., ranging from 60% to 120% of VAT due), with a minimum amount of EUR200.

Penalties for late payment and filings. If the annual VAT return is omitted, the penalty is 120% to 240% of the VAT due. The minimum penalty is EUR250.

If the annual VAT return is submitted more than 90 days after the deadline but within one year from it, the penalty is 60% to 120% of the VAT due, if any. The minimum penalty is EUR200.

The penalty for the late payment of VAT is equal to 30% of the VAT paid late. However, if the late payment does not exceed a period of 90 days from the statutory deadline, the penalty is reduced by half; if the late payment does not exceed 15 days from the statutory deadline, the penalty is reduced to an amount equal to 1/15 for every day of delay. In addition, interest is accrued or charged at an annual rate of 5% (starting 1 January 2023) in the case of voluntary settlement and 3.5% in the case of settlement of the tax audit report and in certain other circumstances.

Penalties for errors. In the case of omitted, incomplete or inaccurate reports of the VAT calculations data, penalties ranging from a minimum of EUR500 to a maximum of EUR2,000 may apply.

In case of omitted or incorrect communication of transactions with foreign counterparties, a penalty of EUR2 for each invoice applies, with a maximum of EUR400 for each quarter of reference.

The penalty may be reduced to half (EUR1 per invoice, with a maximum amount of EUR200 for each quarter) if, within 15 days from the statutory deadline for the submission, a taxable person:
- Submits the previously omitted communication
  Or
- Amends the incorrect communication submitted in order to correct the mistakes made

If the annual VAT return is submitted with incorrect data, the penalty ranges from 90% to 180% of the amount of output tax incorrectly declared or the VAT credit incorrectly used.

Penalties for violations of the VAT reverse-charge mechanism are as follows:
- Taxable persons with full right of VAT deduction who omit application of the VAT reverse-charge mechanism are subject to penalties ranging from EUR500 to EUR20,000.
- In some circumstances, proportional penalties also apply. For example, where transactions subject to the reverse-charge mechanism are not even registered by taxable persons for general accounting purposes, penalties ranging from 5% to 10% of the taxable amount apply, with a minimum penalty of EUR1,000.
- Taxable persons who omit the payment of VAT as a consequence of an infringement in applying the reverse-charge mechanism (e.g., taxable persons with a limited right of VAT deduction) face the same penalties applicable for undue VAT deduction (90%) and for unfaithful annual VAT return filing (from 90% to 180%).
- The inappropriate application of the VAT reverse-charge mechanism by the supplier and/or the purchaser is subject to penalties ranging from EUR250 to EUR10,000 (except in the case of fraudulent intent of the parties, where penalties from 90% to 180% of relevant VAT may apply).

As from 1 January 2023, VAT deduction is not allowed in cases of nonexistent taxable transactions when it is proved that the recipient was aware of the fraud. In this case the proportional penalty applies to the transferee.

The terms of the statute of limitation rules are applicable to tax assessments issued by Italian tax authorities. A taxable person could be subject to a tax assessment up to the end of the fifth year following the year of filing of the relevant tax return and up to seven years from the failure to file the tax return.

Mistaken or missing Intrastat returns are subject to a penalty ranging from EUR500 to EUR1,000 per return, which may be reduced by half if the return is filed within 30 days from the issuance of an official request issued by the tax authorities. Penalties may not apply if a spontaneous regularization occurs under certain conditions.

Penalties for violations of a statistical nature apply only to taxable persons that performed, in the month of reference, transactions equal to or higher than EUR750,000. Penalties apply only once for each incorrect Intrastat form, regardless of the number of violations related to the Intrastat form.

However, if penalties apply, the taxable person could benefit from the spontaneous regularization mechanism (subject to conditions) to largely reduce these fines.

The late notification or failure to notify the tax authorities of changes to a taxable person's VAT registration details may result in a penalty of a minimum EUR500 and a maximum of EUR2,000. The penalty may be reduced by voluntary disclosure. To submit a voluntary disclosure, the taxable person must use the AA7/10 Form for the fiscal representative, fixed established or for a domestic taxable person. For further details, see the subsection Changes to VAT registration details above.

Penalties for fraud. Pursuant to Legislative Decree no. 742000, fraud and tax evasion are considered to be criminal offenses and are subject to the following criminal penalties:

- Omitted VAT return, when the amount of VAT evaded is higher than EUR50,000, is punished with detention from two to five years.
- Unfaithful return is punished with detention from two to four years and six months of detention with specific punishment thresholds (i.e., when the amount of evaded VAT is higher than EUR100,000 and the net amount of the assessed taxable transactions, is higher than 10% of the taxable amounts indicated in the VAT return or anyway is higher than EUR2 million).
- Omitted VAT payment based on the annual VAT return is punished with detention from six months to two years when the amount of omitted VAT is higher than EUR250,000.
- Tax consulting could expose tax advisors to the risk of participation in an offense performed by their client; nevertheless, it is not always easy to define the perimeters of the respective responsibilities also in light of Italian case law.

Personal liability for company officers. If the above criminal offenses are committed, the legal representative of the company is personally liable for the related penalties. Such penalties are outlined under the subsection Penalties for fraud above.

Statute of limitations. The statute of limitations in Italy is five years. As a general rule, a specific financial year (FY) shall be deemed time-barred under Italian tax law after the end of the fifth year after the one of filing of the relevant annual VAT return (i.e., FY + six years). For example, audit activities for FY2018 shall be deemed as time-barred at the end of 2024, as this is the sixth year after the relevant FY or fifth year after the year in which the annual VAT return for FY2018 was filed (2019).

The statute of limitation is extended by two years if the annual VAT return for the FY has not been filed, i.e., in such event, a FY shall be deemed time-barred after the end of the seventh year after the one in which the relevant annual VAT return should have been filed (therefore, FY + eight years).

It should be noted, however, that assessments for 2017 and 2018 can be notified with a delay of 85 days from the due date because of audit suspension during the COVID-19 period. This means that, for example, assessments for FY2017 can be notified up until 25 March 2024.The statute of limitation is also extended in case of request of information and documents by the tax authorities. In fact, if documents are not filed within 15 days from the receipt of the request, the ordinary statute of limitation is extended by the number of days of delay.

B. Scope of the tax

GCT applies to the supply of goods and services in Jamaica by a registered taxable person in Jamaica and to the importation of goods and services into Jamaica. Certain export services and business transfers are zero-rated for GCT purposes based on the rules below.

Effective use and enjoyment. To avoid instances of non-taxation or double taxation, jurisdictions can apply "use and enjoyment" rules that allow a service that is "used and enjoyed" in the jurisdiction to be taxed or prevent a service that is "used and enjoyed" outside the jurisdiction from being taxed. If a service is taxed in the jurisdiction under the "use and enjoyment" provisions, a non-established supplier of the service may be required to register for VAT in every jurisdiction where it has customers that are not taxable persons.

In Jamaica, services that are supplied to a recipient who uses or obtains the advantage or benefit of the service outside of Jamaica or services which are effectively used or enjoyed at the time and place where they are physically performed and the performance of the services takes place outside of Jamaica, are generally taxable at a rate of zero percent.

Transfer of a going concern. Normally the sale of the assets of a VAT-registered or VAT-registrable business will be subject to VAT at the appropriate rate. However, a transfer of a business as a going concern (TOGC) may be zero-rated under certain conditions. A TOGC is the sale of a business or part of a business capable of separate operation including assets. Where the sale meets the conditions, the supply is treated as zero-rated. In Jamaica, a TOGC is treated as zero-rated where the following conditions are met:

- The sale, transfer or other disposition of the activity is from one registered taxable person to another
- The activity is a going concern at the time of the sale, transfer or disposition
- The assets to be sold, transferred or otherwise disposed of are intended for use by the new owner in carrying on the same kind of business
- There shall not be a series of sales, transfers or other disposition of the business
- There is no significant break in the normal trading pattern before or immediately after the sale, transfer or disposition
- Both parties to the transaction agree in writing that there is a supply of a going concern
- Both parties of the transaction intend that the activity is capable of being carried on as a going concern by the purchaser
- There is a supply of all the assets that are central to the taxable activity or part thereof that is the subject of the sale, transfer or other disposition

Transactions between related parties. As a general rule, supplies between related/connected parties should be at market value. Where there is no consideration for such transactions, the value of the supply will be taken to be the open market value.

C. Who is liable

All persons engaged in a taxable activity in Jamaica whose annual turnover exceeds JMD10 million per year are required to register for GCT as a registered taxable person.

Exemption from registration. Anyone who is engaged solely in one or more of the following does not have to register for GCT in Jamaica:

- Persons whose annual turnover are below JMD10 million
- Persons whose activities are carried out essentially as a private recreational pursuit or hobby
- Any engagement (i.e., employment), occupation or employment under any contract of services or as a director of a company
- Persons who supply only goods and/or services that are exempt from the GCT

Voluntary registration and small businesses. A person with gross revenue of under JMD10 million may voluntarily apply for GCT registration.

A person who proposes to carry on a taxable activity (not under a partnership) may apply (using the prescribed form) to be provisionally registered for GCT as a registered taxable person. Note that the Tax Administration Jamaica (TAJ) may require other documents prior to approving such a registration, for example, the requirement to provide a deposit for security. If the application is approved, the taxable activity by the business, must begin within 24 months of being registered.

Group registration. Group GCT registration is allowed in Jamaica. The entities in the GCT group must also be Jamaican entities (including branches of overseas companies) and must be affiliated with every other entity within the GCT group. There are several other requirements.

All members of a GCT group in Jamaica are jointly and severally liable for GCT debts and penalties. Within the GCT group, each member is jointly and severally liable for any tax payable (inclusive of any GCT debts and/or penalties) by the representative entity of the GCT group and any other liability incurred while the entity was within the GCT group, unless an entity has ceased to be within the GCT group.

There is no minimum time period required for the duration of a GCT group.

Fixed establishment. A permanent establishment is defined in the GCT Act to mean a fixed place of business through which the business of a business organization is wholly or partly carried on and includes the following:

- A place of management
- A branch
- An office
- A factory
- A workshop
- A mine, an oil or gas well, a quarry or any other place of extraction of natural resources, but does not include a building site or construction or installation project that does not last for more than three months
- The use of facilities solely for the purpose of storage, display or delivery of goods or merchandise belonging to the business organization
- The maintenance of a stock of goods or merchandise belonging to the business organization solely for the purpose of storage, display or delivery
- The maintenance of a fixed place of business solely for the purpose of carrying on for the business organization
- The maintenance of a fixed place of business solely for the purpose of carrying on for the business organization any other activity of a preparatory or auxiliary character
- The maintenance of a fixed place of business solely for any combination of activities mentioned if the overall activity of the fixed place of business resulting from that combination is of a preparatory or auxiliary character.

Non-established businesses. Businesses must be established/registered with the Companies Office of Jamaica. The GCT Act does not provide details about non-established businesses (i.e., overseas entities doing business in Jamaica). However, once a non-established business is deemed to have a permanent establishment (specifically defined in the GCT Act, which is similar to the definition provided in the Income Tax Act) in Jamaica (i.e., registering a branch or subsidiary in Jamaica), it is required to register for GCT (where its annual turnover exceeds JMD10 million). If the non-established business' activities do not meet the criteria for creating a permanent establishment, there is no requirement to register.

Tax representatives. Tax representatives are optional in Jamaica, and the use of a tax representative is the prerogative of the taxable person.

Reverse charge. The reverse charge is a GCT reporting mechanism for taxable imported services. Where a Jamaican taxable person purchases services from a non-established business from outside Jamaica, GCT is not charged by the non-established business, but the Jamaican customer, as the recipient of the services, is obliged to report GCT and pay the GCT where applicable. The GCT is an in-and-out entry (GCT reported as input tax and output tax) if the Jamaican recipient taxable person supplies only taxable services (has no exempt services).

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Jamaica.

Digital economy. There are no specific rules in Jamaica relating to the taxation of the digital economy and no specific references in the GCT Act. As such, the general GCT rules apply.

Nonresidents that provide electronically supplied services in Jamaica do not need to register for GCT unless they have a permanent establishment in Jamaica and meet the GCT threshold for registration. If a nonresident is not required to register for GCT for business-to-business (B2B) supplies, the reverse-charge mechanism applies and the customer self-accounts for GCT due. For business-to-consumer (B2C) supplies, no GCT is accounted for.

There are no other specific e-commerce rules for imported services in Jamaica.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Jamaica.

Registration procedures. The registration procedure involves the completion of a GCT application form (GCT-1, which may be obtained online or collected from a Revenue Service Center) and the submission of specific documents that may be requested by TAJ (for example, certified copies of IDs of the directors of the company). Before registering for GCT, a person must first obtain a valid taxpayer registration number (TRN). The application form for the TRN may be obtained online or from any TAJ tax office. Once the application is received by TAJ, further documentation may be requested.

Deregistration. The Commissioner General may cancel the GCT registration of any registered taxable person if they are satisfied that the registered taxable person no longer qualifies for registration. The Commissioner General may notify the taxable person that it will be deregistered, stating the reason for deregistration. The taxable person may object, in which case the Commissioner shall inform the person in writing of the decision and of the right of appeal. Where the person is a registered taxable person, it must return the Certificate of Registration to the Commissioner when notified of the decision. A taxable person may also voluntarily deregister for GCT if it no longer qualifies for registration, by formally writing to the Commissioner General and requesting deregistration.

Changes to GCT registration details. The taxable person is required to advise TAJ in writing where there is a change to its GCT registration details (such as company's name, address, type of business or GCT status). There are no specific timelines or penalties associated with any change of registration details.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supply" refers to a supply of goods and services that is liable to GCT, including a supply taxed at the zero rate.

The GCT rates are:
- Standard rate: 15%
- Reduced rate: 10%
- Zero-rate: 0%
- Special rate: 5%, 25%

The standard rate of GCT applies to all supplies of goods and services, unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate, the zero rate, special rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Goods purchased or taken out of bond and services performed under a contract by or on behalf of a foreign government or multinational lending agency.
- Food produced exclusively for the feeding program of a school approved by the minister responsible for education that is not for resale to the general public.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 5%

- Importation of certain goods into Jamaica, by commercial importers, and the 5% is treated as an advanced GCT payment

Note it is not possible to provide specific examples of goods the 5% rate applies to, as the GCT Act only provides a guideline of goods for which it would not apply. Also, after importation, the GCT rate on certain goods would be higher because the 5% advance payment would be in addition to the standard rate.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 10%

- Certain services provided by certain entities in the tourism sector including the following:
  - A hotel
  - A resort cottage
  - Tour operators
  - Water sports

Examples of goods and services taxable at 25%

- Telecommunication services, including the sale of telephone cards
- Telephone instruments

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to GCT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Certain energy saving devices, e.g., LED bulbs, solar panels and tubes for solar water heating systems and lighting control units
- Construction services as defined, e.g., demolition, repair or alteration of any building or the construction, repair or alteration of part of a land
- Imported chicken, which is not subject to any process other than freezing, chilling, salting or otherwise immersion in a brine solution or packaging
- Brown sugar

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Jamaica.

E. Time of supply

The time of supply is important in determining when a taxable supply takes place for GCT purposes. The GCT Act defines the "time of supply" as the earliest of the following events:

- When an invoice for the supply is issued by the supplier
- Payment is made for the supply
- The goods are made available to the recipient, or the services are rendered

Deposits and prepayments. The time of supply for deposits and prepayments is when the deposit or prepayment is made.

Continuous supplies of services. For contractually agreed continuous supplies of services that provide for the consideration to be paid from time to time upon the supplier issuing invoices, the time of supply takes place at the earlier of following:

- An invoice for the supply is given by the supplier
- Payment is made for the supply
- Payment for the supply becomes due

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. The time of supply for the supply of goods sent on approval for sale or return is considered to be when the goods are made available to the recipient.

Reverse-charge services. There are no special time of supply rules in Jamaica for supplies of reverse-charge services. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

Leased assets. For assets supplied under hire purchase or lease agreement, either with or without an option to purchase, the supply takes place when the goods are made available to the recipient.

Imported goods. There are no special time of supply rules in Jamaica for supplies of imported goods. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

GCT is generally payable on the importation of taxable supplies, when the goods enter Jamaica, unless the goods benefit for deferral under the import GCT deferral scheme. For further details, see the Special schemes subsection below. In addition to the standard rate of GCT (as outlined above in Section D. Rates), a 5% advanced GCT payment is payable by commercial importers on the importation of certain goods into Jamaica.

F. Recovery of GCT by taxable persons

GCT incurred on expenses may be recovered by way of an input tax credit, bearing in mind any restrictions that are contained in the GCT Act. The excess of input tax over output tax for a particular taxable period may be claimed as a refund or may be credited against GCT payable in a subsequent period. GCT that cannot be claimed as an input tax credit is generally deductible for income tax purposes, subject to any restrictions that are contained in the legislation. The time limit for a taxable person to reclaim input tax in Jamaica is six years.

Nondeductible input tax. GCT on private (nonbusiness) and exempt goods and services may not be recovered via an input tax credit.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Services relating to a contract of life assurance
- Expenses for personal use
- Expenses relating to exempt goods and services such as construction services

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Utility costs/bills
- Inventory purchases
- Business entertainment
- Purchases of fixed assets
- Travel expenses
- Professional and other services provided to the business

Partial exemption. Where a taxable person makes taxable and exempt supplies and is unable to separately identify the input tax paid/payable relating to both, it is entitled to claim as a credit, the proportion of the input tax that is attributable to the taxable supplies based on the formula taxable supplies/total supplies X total input tax creditable.

Approval from the TAJ is not required to use the partial exemption standard method in Jamaica.

An alternative formula may be used by the taxable person (i.e., a special method), if approved by the Commissioner General.

Capital goods. An input tax credit may be claimed for GCT incurred on capital goods acquired for the making of taxable supplies, subject to any restrictions that are outlined in the GCT Act. There are no special input tax recovery rules for capital goods in Jamaica.

Refunds. A registered taxable person may tick the appropriate box on the GCT return to request a refund of the excess of GCT input tax credited over GCT output tax. The application for refund on excess taxes paid must be made within six years. However, if the applicant ceased to be a registered taxable person, the application for the refund should be made within two years after the date upon which they ceased to be a registered taxable person. Generally, if a refund is not made by the TAJ within three months after the date on which the claim was received by the Commissioner, interest at the rate prescribed by order under Section 2A of the Tax Collection Act shall be payable to the taxable person and end on the date on which the refund is made.

The GCT Act states that where a registered taxable person charges no output tax during the taxable period but does incur input tax during that period, it may apply to the Commissioner for a refund of the input tax or it may carryforward the amount if input tax as a credit to a subsequent taxable period.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax incurred on pre-registration costs in Jamaica is not recoverable.

Bad debts. The write off of bad debts is permitted in Jamaica. However, the tax treatment for the write off of bad debt would need to be analyzed on a case-by-case basis.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred on purchases that are used for noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Jamaica.

G. Recovery of GCT by non-established businesses

Input tax incurred by non-established businesses that are not registered for GCT in Jamaica is not recoverable.

H. Invoicing

GCT invoices. A taxable person must provide a tax invoice for all taxable supplies made to registered taxable persons. A tax invoice is necessary to support a claim for input tax recovery. A tax invoice must include such particulars as prescribed by the GCT Act.

Credit notes. A registered taxable person may issue a debit or credit note in circumstances including, but not restricted to, the following: to reflect an alteration in the supply or correction of the tax rate that was applied, correction of the terms of a transaction or a return of goods or services to the supplier, etc. Credit and debit notes must contain broadly the same information as a tax invoice.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is allowed in Jamaica, but it is not mandatory.

Scope of electronic invoicing. For B2B, B2C and business-to-government (B2G) supplies, electronic invoicing is allowed but not mandatory in Jamaica. There is no threshold beyond which taxable persons are required to adopt electronic invoicing in Jamaica.

At the time of preparing this chapter, there is no specific legislation for electronic invoicing in Jamaica.

There are no separate requirements for the format of electronic invoices; however, they must contain the relevant information as required for a normal GCT invoice and the original invoice should be available in case TAJ requests it.

Simplified GCT invoices. Simplified GCT invoicing is not allowed in Jamaica. As such, full GCT invoices are required.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Jamaica.

Proof of exports. Invoices should be prepared for goods that are exported, even though such goods attract GCT at a rate of 0%. To qualify as zero-rated, exports must be supported by evidence that confirms that the goods have left Jamaica. Copies of relevant supporting documents such as contracts invoices, freight and packing details, export documents and evidence of payment supply, etc., should be kept.

Foreign currency invoices. Invoices may be issued in a foreign currency. However, the amounts must be converted to the domestic currency, which is the Jamaican dollar (JMD) for GCT reporting purposes (i.e., in the GCT return). The conversion must be made using the Bank of Jamaica's (BOJ) weighted average exchange rate, which can be found on the BOJ's website (http://www.boj.org.jm).

Supplies to nontaxable persons. A registered taxable person who makes a taxable supply to a person who is not a registered taxable person is required to show the consideration for the taxable supply separate from the GCT by either issuing a receipt showing the consideration and the GCT payable or affixing to the taxable supply the consideration and the GCT payable.

Records. Registered taxable persons are required to keep accounts and records as prescribed by the GCT Act. In Jamaica, examples of what records that must be held for GCT purposes include financial statements, trial balance, invoices, etc.

In Jamaica. GCT books and records can be kept outside of the country. However, if records are held outside of Jamaica, such records must be available in a timely manner, at the request of TAJ.

Record retention period. Registered taxable persons must keep books and records for at least six years from the end of the taxable period to which they relate. The books and records that should be kept are based on best practice.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is allowed in Jamaica. Records and books of accounts can be kept in an electronic format, as long as they are retrievable when requested by TAJ.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. The GCT reporting period is monthly. Returns must be filed by the last working day of the month after the end of the taxable period.

Periodic payments. Any tax due for the GCT reporting period must be remitted to the TAJ by the last working day of the month after the end of the taxable period (e.g., GCT payable for June 2023 is due the last working day of July 2023). Payment can be made by check, wire transfer, cash or credit card. All payments can be made at any TAJ's offices. Payments can also be made online at https://www.jamaicatax.gov.jm.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is mandatory in Jamaica for all taxable persons. All registered taxable persons are required to file their GCT returns online with TAJ (https://www.jamaicatax.gov.jm).

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Jamaica.

Special schemes. Import deferral scheme. The Commissioner General may grant approval (on such terms and conditions as they consider fit) for the importation of specific goods by a registered taxable person without the payment of GCT to the Commissioner of Customs at the time of importation. The registered taxable person must be up to date and compliant with the required GCT filings and the other GCT payments. If approved, the GCT would be deferred and accounted for by the registered taxable person when filing the GCT return for the taxable period in which the specified goods were imported.

Cash accounting. Only specific taxable persons can file using cash accounting, including, but not restricted to, taxable persons who supply general insurance, professional services and telephone services. The GCT Act specifies the categories of taxable persons that may be permitted to account for GCT on the cash basis, on the written approval of the Commissioner General.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Jamaica.

Supplementary filings. There are no supplementary filings required in Jamaica.

Correcting errors in previous returns. The GCT legislation specifies that a registered taxable person may, after filing a GCT return, request the Commissioner to amend that return and the Commissioner shall do so if satisfied that the amendment is required. However, an amended return is generally filed to accommodate major changes or amendments to a return that was previously filed (such as the correction of an error).

To amend a previously filed return, a new return must be filed by a registered taxable person and the revised return box on the GCT form should be ticked before submission to the TAJ.

Digital tax administration. There are no transactional reporting requirements in Jamaica.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. A person who fails to register for GCT is subject to a penalty of the greater of JMD10,000 or the tax that would have been payable had the person been a registered taxable person during the applicable period. Interest (compounded) will be applicable at the rate of 16.6% per annum.

Penalties for late payment and filings. Late payment of GCT attracts a penalty of 10% of the amount unpaid and interest at the rate prescribed by order made under Section 2A of the Tax Collection Act until the date of payment (compounded). Late filing of a GCT return attracts a penalty of the greater of JMD10,000 or 10% of the tax, which is due up to a maximum of JMD100,000, and interest at the rate prescribed by order made under Section 2A of the Tax Collection Act until the date of payment. The current prescribed interest rate is approximately 16.6% per annum.

Penalties for errors. There are no specific penalties in Jamaica for errors. The penalty and interest charges that would apply are dependent on the impact of the error on the GCT payable for the relevant period. If there is additional GCT payable, the regular charges (described above) would apply.

There are no specific penalties associated with the late notification or failure to notify TAJ of changes to a taxable person's GCT registration details. For further details, see the subsection Changes to GCT registration details above.

Penalties for fraud. Criminal penalties may apply for fraudulent conduct. The person would be liable on summary of conviction in a Residents Magistrates Court to a fine as determined or to imprisonment or to both a fine and imprisonment. The fine can range from JMD1 million or three times the tax payable if greater, and imprisonment is usually for a term not exceeding 12 months.

Personal liability for company officers. The GCT Act specifically states that the managing director, manager or other officer concerned in the management of a body corporate will be liable for offenses, unless at trial they can prove that the offense was committed without their knowledge. The penalties that may apply are outlined in the subsection above Penalties for fraud.

Statute of limitations. The statute of limitations in Jamaica is six years.

B. Scope of the tax

CT applies to the following transactions:
- The supply of goods or services made in Japan by a "taxable person"
- The importation of goods into Japan
- The purchase of services subject to reverse charge

Effective use and enjoyment. To avoid instances of non-taxation or double taxation, jurisdictions can apply "use and enjoyment" rules that allow a service that is "used and enjoyed" in the jurisdiction to be taxed or prevent a service that is "used and enjoyed" outside the jurisdiction from being taxed. If a service is taxed in the jurisdiction under the "use and enjoyment" provisions, a non-established supplier of the service may be required to register for CT in every jurisdiction where it has customers that are not taxable persons. In Japan, no services are subject to the "use and enjoyment" provisions.

Transfer of a going concern. Transfer of going concern rules do not apply in Japan. As such, CT applies to all sales of a business or part of a business capable of separate operation, including assets.

Transactions between related parties. In Japan, there are no specific rules that indicate the value for CT purposes for transactions between related parties.

C. Who is liable

A "taxable person" is any business entity or individual that makes taxable supplies of goods or services in the course of doing business in Japan.

However, the CT legislation provides for a small business exemption, the application of which depends on the taxable sales realized in previous fiscal years.

An entity qualifies for this exemption and is therefore not considered as a taxable person if it meets both following conditions:
- The taxable supplies (sales) in the "base period" (i.e., the fiscal year two years prior to the current fiscal year) did not exceed JPY10 million.
- The taxable supplies (sales) in the "specified period" (i.e., the first six months of the previous fiscal year, subject to exceptions) did not exceed JPY10 million. As an alternative condition, the enterprise may instead refer to the salaries paid in Japan during that period.

Other criteria apply to newly established corporations. Moreover, if a newly formed corporation purchases certain assets during its first two fiscal years, the corporation may not be eligible for exemption for the subsequent two fiscal years.

Exemption from registration. Aside from the small business exemption (see detail above), the CT law in Japan does not contain any provision for exemption from registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. A business falling under the small-business exemption may elect for taxable person status (see detail above).

Group registration. Group CT registration is not allowed in Japan.

Fixed establishment. In Japan, there is no legal definition of a fixed establishment for JCT purposes. JCT can be taxable regardless of the permanent establishment rules under current JCT law. However, the permanent establishment rules that applies to direct taxation would be applicable for JCT when determining whether business-to-business (B2B) digital services are a domestic transaction.

The provision of B2B digital services is defined as where if such services are received by domestic businesses at overseas offices, if it is conducted outside Japan only, it would be considered as a foreign transaction (not subject to the reverse-charge mechanism). In addition, if a foreign business receives B2B digital services at a permanent establishment (which is referred to as overseas business establishments or permanent establishments under the income tax law or corporate tax law) that is necessary for the transfer of assets in Japan, it will be treated as a domestic transaction (subject to the reverse-charge mechanism).

As per the corporation tax law, a "permanent establishment" are those listed below. However, if a treaty for the avoidance of double taxation or the prevention of tax evasion with respect to taxes on income concluded by Japan contains provisions different from those listed below, a foreign corporation to which that treaty applies shall comply with that treaty (limited to those located in Japan):

- Domestic branch offices, factories and other business establishments of foreign corporations specified by government ordinance
- Locations for construction or installation work in the country of foreign corporations, or for providing services of supervision, and other equivalents specified by Cabinet Order
- A person who has the authority to conclude a contract on behalf of a foreign corporation located in Japan or a person equivalent to this as specified by Cabinet Order

Non-established businesses. Non-established businesses that become or elect to become a taxable person should appoint a tax representative (see below). When a non-established business elects or becomes a taxable person, they must register for CT in Japan, under the normal registration rules (see above).

Tax representatives. A foreign business qualifying as a taxable person must appoint a resident tax representative to deal with its CT obligations, by submitting the appropriate form to the tax office.

Reverse charge. Under the reverse-charge mechanism, the purchase of certain services constitutes a taxable transaction, with the consequence that the recipient may be required to declare and pay the CT due thereon. The reverse charge applies to the following services:
- B2B digital services provided by a foreign business
- Services by a foreign business to another business, which mainly consist in the provision of services by film or theater actors, musicians, other entertainers and professional athletes

However, the recipient is not required to self-assess the CT in the following cases:
- If its taxable sales ratio is 95% or more
- The recipient applies the simplified system for calculating input tax deduction
- The recipient is not a CT taxable person

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Japan.

Digital economy. Cross-border digital services are subject to specific rules. The notion of digital services covers most content and services provided through an electronic network, e.g., e-books, online newspapers, music, videos, game applications and software provided via the internet, online advertising, online language lessons.

The place of supply of digital services is where the recipient belongs, having regard to its address. For services to businesses, the place of supply is where the recipient has its head office, main office, or in certain circumstances, an establishment situated in another country that purchases the services for the purpose of its activities in that country.

A distinction is made between B2B and business-to-consumer (B2C) supplies, based on the nature of the service, as well as the terms and conditions of the contract. The classification of the supply as B2B or B2C impacts on the treatment applicable to cross-border digital services to customers in Japan:
- B2B digital services: a reverse-charge mechanism applies, whereby the recipient is required to declare and pay the CT due on the purchase, depending on the CT status (see the Reverse-charge subsection above). The nonresident providing B2B digital services must inform the customer beforehand that the reverse-charge mechanism is applicable.
- B2C digital services: the nonresident supplier is required to register for CT; charge CT; file CT returns and pay the CT to the tax office unless the supplier can benefit from the exemption for small businesses. Currently, Japanese resident businesses cannot credit input tax accounted for by overseas businesses on B2C digital services, unless the supplier is a "qualified invoice issuer" (this is with effect from 1 October 2023, and as such, the registered foreign business system was abolished.).

There are no other specific e-commerce rules for imported goods in Japan.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Japan. Even if digital content is listed on the platform, the supply of digital services should take place between the content provider and the customer if the contractual relationship indicates so.

On the other hand, the services provided by the platform to the content provider (listing the digital content) would fall under B2B digital services. If such service is provided by nonresident platforms to resident content providers, the reverse-charge mechanism would be applicable.

Registration procedures. A taxable person is required to submit a taxable person notification form to the tax office promptly. A business qualifying for the small-business exemption can elect to become a voluntary taxable person by filing a certain application to the tax office. In principle, the election becomes effective from the tax period following the tax period in which the application was made. These forms can be submitted to the jurisdictional tax office in paper or online.

Deregistration. A voluntary taxable person can cancel its registration by filing a certain application to the tax office. However, the cancellation is not allowed for two years after the election was made.

When a taxable person who is not a voluntary taxable person becomes qualified for the small-business exemption, it is required to submit a notification form that it is no longer a taxable person to the tax office promptly.

When a taxable person ceases its business, a certain form needs to be filed promptly with the tax office.

Changes to CT registration details. A notification form should be promptly submitted (by paper or online) when any of the following details have changed: registered address, name of the business, name of the tax representative, address of the tax representative, fiscal year or the amount of share capital.

The CT law in Japan does not stipulate a specific deadline to notify such changes to the tax authorities.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of consumption tax.

The CT rates are:
- Standard: 10% (7.8% national tax and 2.2% local tax)
- Reduced: 8% (6.24% national tax and 1.76% local tax)

Examples of goods and services taxable at 8%

- Supplies of food and drinks, excluding alcoholic beverages and dining out
- Subscriptions to newspapers (limited to newspapers that are issued at least twice a week and feature information on general topics such as politics, economics, society and culture)

The term "exempt-with-credit supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not taxed but do give rise to a right of input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt-with-credit supplies of goods and services

- Exports of goods
- Exports of services
- International transportation of passengers and cargo

- Sales in export shops
- Supplies to foreign embassies and legations situated in Japan

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not taxed and that do not give rise to a right of input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Bank interest
- Insurance
- Educational services
- Sales and leases of land
- Social welfare services

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Japan.

E. Time of supply

The time when CT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point." CT is generally chargeable when ownership of goods is transferred, when a service is performed or when foreign cargo is removed from bonded areas.

Deposits and prepayments. The payment of deposits and prepayments is not subject to CT in Japan, but the payment of the original price is subject to CT depending on the type of the original transaction.

Continuous supplies of services. The time of supply rules for continuous supplies is when all the supplies have been delivered or completed.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. The time of supply rule for supplies of goods sent on approval for sale or return is when ownership of the goods is transferred.

Reverse-charge services. There are no special time of supply rules in Japan for supplies of reverse-charge services. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

Leased assets. For finance lease transactions that are deemed as a transfer of leased assets under the provision of Japanese income tax law or corporate tax law, in principle, the time of supply is when the lessor delivered the leased assets to the lessee. For operating lease transactions, the time of supply is when the lessor should receive the lease fee.

Imported goods. For import CT, the time of supply for imported goods is the time when the goods are removed from bonded areas. For the domestic CT, there are no special time of supply rules in Japan for supplies of imported goods. As such, the general time of supply rules apply.

F. Recovery of CT by taxable persons

A taxable person has the right to recover input tax on imports and taxable supplies of goods and services made to it. Input tax is recovered by way of deduction from output tax.

The time limit for a taxable person to reclaim input tax in Japan is five years. This time limit runs from the filing deadline.

To be able to deduct input tax, the goods and services must be used for business purposes. The taxable person is required to keep books, qualified invoices and customs documents. The purchase statements and purchase calculation statements that were prepared by a business making taxable purchases and include certain information (applicable to documents confirmed by suppliers of the taxable purchases) can also be used as a record required for input tax credit purposes.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use by an entrepreneur).

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Purchase of goods and services from a business not registered as a qualified invoice issuer

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Purchase, lease, hire, maintenance and fuel for cars, vans and trucks
- Conferences and seminars
- Accommodation
- Mobile phones
- Business gifts
- Travel expenses

Partial exemption. A taxable person carrying out nontaxable activities is subject to a limitation of the amount to deduct CT if:

- Its taxable sales ratio is below 95%
  Or
- Its taxable turnover exceeds JPY500 million

The JCT legislation allows different methods to calculate the input tax credit:

- Proportional method (general pro rata method): the tax deductible is calculated by multiplying the total input tax by the "taxable sales ratio," i.e., the ratio between the turnover of taxable/exempt sales and the total turnover.
- Itemized method (direct allocation method): input tax attributable to taxable transactions can be fully deducted, while input tax attributable to nontaxable transactions is not deductible. Input tax relating to both categories of transactions can be credited according to the taxable sales ratio. Taxable persons can apply an alternative ratio based on reasonable factors, subject to prior authorization from the tax authorities.

Approval from the tax authorities is not required to use the proportional method or itemized method in Japan. Special methods are not allowed in Japan (aside from the Simplified credit – see the subsection below). To use either the proportional or itemized methods, a taxable person simply checks a box on the CT return for which method they choose (proportional or itemized).

Simplified credit. A taxable person with annual sales not exceeding JPY50 million may use a simplified formula to calculate the deductible CT by filing an application form of simplified credit system in advance to the jurisdictional tax office. Under this system, the deductible tax is calculated by multiplying the output tax by a deemed purchase ratio. This ratio ranges from 40% to 90%, depending on the type of sales. A taxable person that elects to use the simplified formula must use it for a minimum period of two years.

Capital goods. There is no definition or special treatment for "capital goods" in Japan. As such input tax recovery on capital goods (i.e., the sale and lease of property, large equipment and computers) are computed in accordance with the normal input tax recovery rules (as outlined above). Certain types of capital goods (e.g., the sale and lease of land) is exempt and no CT is charged.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax creditable in a taxable period exceeds the amount of output tax, the excess is refundable. In this case, an additional form that indicates certain transactions should be filed together with the tax return. The tax refund is made to the bank account stated on the tax return.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax incurred on pre-registration costs in Japan is not recoverable.

Bad debts. In the case of write-offs of bad debts due to the Confirmation of Rehabilitation Plans (which is an agreement on write-offs of bad debts under plans for reorganization bankruptcy, etc., in accordance with certain regulations/laws) and other certain reasons, CT on such bad debts are deductible in the taxable period in which such event occurs. Documentary evidence should be maintained.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred on purchases that are used for noneconomic activities is not deductible in Japan.

G. Recovery of CT by non-established businesses

Input tax incurred by non-established businesses that are not registered for CT in Japan is not recoverable.

H. Invoicing

CT invoices. The qualified invoice system was introduced with effect from 1 October 2023. The system is a method to receive tax credit for CT corresponding to multiple tax rates on purchases. Under the system, for the buyer to deduct CT on purchases, as a general rule, keeping qualified invoices issued by qualified invoice issuers is required. For the seller to issue a qualified invoice, it must be registered as a qualified invoice issuer by the tax office. Only qualified invoice issuers are allowed to issue qualified invoices. Information on qualified invoice issuer (name and registration number) is listed on the NTA's website. If requested by the buyer, qualified invoice issuers are obliged to issue qualified invoices (with some exceptions, such as sales through vending machines) and keep a copy of the qualified invoices.

To become a qualified invoice issuer, a taxable person needs to submit the application to the tax office. The registration shall take effect on the date of registration by the Commissioner of the Tax Office. The 2022 tax reform (enacted 1 April 2022) has amended, among others, the registration process as provided below:

- The transitional measure allows an exempt taxable person to register as a qualified invoice issuer in the middle of a taxable period and become a qualified invoice issuer from the registration date, but only for the taxable period that includes any day between 1 October 2023 and 30 September 2029.
- If the expanded exception applies, the qualified invoice issuer cannot revert to an exempt taxable person for the following taxable periods until the taxable period that includes the day two years after the registration date.
- The tax authority will be entitled to reject the registration application by foreign businesses or revoke the registration of foreign businesses, which are required to assign a tax representative in Japan in accordance with General Law of National Taxes but are not compliant with such requirement.

The 2023 tax reform (enacted 1 April 2023) has amended, among others, the registration process as provided below:

- If an exempt taxable person intends to be registered as a qualified invoice issuer from the first day of the taxable period during which it becomes a taxable person, the application for registration must be submitted to the tax office 15 days prior to the first day of the taxable period.
- In the event that a qualified invoice issuer submits a notification requesting cancellation of registration to the head of the tax office, and the notification is submitted by the day 15 days prior to the first day of the tax period following the tax period to which the submission date belongs, the registration shall cease to be effective from the first day of the following tax period.

- If an exempt taxable person is subject to the transitional measures regarding the registration of a qualified invoice issuer after 1 October 2023, the desired date of registration (the date after the date on which it wishes to register, and 15 days have passed from the date of submission of the registration application) is stated in the registration application. In the above case, when a qualified invoice issuer is registered on the desired date of registration, it is deemed that the registration was received on the desired date of registration.

In terms of deductibility of CT on purchases after the introduction of the qualified invoice system, the percentage to deduct CT on purchases from an exempt taxable person is limited and eventually removed as follows:
- 80% (from 1 October 2023 to 30 September 2026)
- 50% (from 1 October 2026 to 30 September 2029)
- 0% (after 1 October 2029)

If an exempt taxable person becomes a taxable person after being registered as a qualified invoice issuer, the tax amount paid may be 20% of the sales tax amount for three years from the start of the qualified invoice system.

In the taxable period in which taxable sales in the base period are JPY100 million or less, or taxable sales in a specified period are JPY50 million or less, if the amount of consideration paid for taxable purchases between 1 October 2023 and 30 September 2029 is less than JPY10,000 in a single transaction, the purchase tax credit is applied by keeping only books containing certain items.

Credit notes. Under the qualified invoice system (which was introduced with effect from 1 October 2023), where the amount for the refund of consideration related to sales is less than JPY10,000, the obligation to issue a qualified return invoice is not be imposed.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is allowed in Japan, but not mandatory.

Scope of electronic invoicing. For B2B, B2C and business-to-government (B2G) supplies, electronic invoicing is allowed but not mandatory in Japan. There is no threshold beyond which taxable persons are required to adopt electronic invoicing in Japan.

Previously, under the consumption tax law, only foreign businesses providing B2C digital services could issue electronic invoices. However, after the introduction of the qualified invoicing system on 1 October 2023, the issuance of qualified invoices in electronic format is allowed for all supplies. Under the qualified invoice system (which was introduced with effect from 1 October 2023), the data needs to be stored in compliance with Electronic Record Retention Law (ERRL) requirements when storing in electronic format.

Simplified CT invoices. Under the qualified invoice system (which was introduced with effect from 1 October 2023), for transactions related to retail, restaurant and taxi industries, etc., where sales are made to an unspecified number of counterparts, the "simplified qualified invoice" with simplified entry items may be issued. Simplified qualified invoices do not need to include the name of a business against whom the invoice is issued. Additionally, it is necessary to include only one of either applicable CT rates or total amount of CT categorized by CT rate, not both.

Self-billing. Self-billing is allowed in Japan. Purchase statements and purchase calculation statements can be prepared by a business making taxable purchases (i.e., the customer) and include certain information (applicable to documents confirmed by the supplier of the taxable purchases) can be used as a record required for input tax credit purposes.

Proof of exports. CT is not chargeable on supplies of exported goods. To qualify as exempt from CT, an export supply must be accompanied by official customs evidence stating that the goods have left Japan.

Foreign currency invoices. For CT purposes, if a qualified invoice is issued in a foreign currency, the CT amount in Japanese yen (JPY) should be stated. In principle, the conversion must be based on the telegraphic transfer middle rate (TTM), but the telegraphic transfer selling rate (TTS) and the telegraphic transfer buying rate (TTB) is allowed if applied continuously.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. There are no special invoicing rules for supplies to nontaxable persons in Japan. The CT law does not explicitly require a taxable person to issue a tax invoice for taxable supplies made to other taxable persons (or a credit note for adjustments). However, to deduct input tax, the recipient must hold an invoice containing certain mandatory information.

Records. In Japan, examples of what records must be held for CT purposes include all record transaction details in its books (date, description, name of counterparty, consideration).

In Japan, CT books and records can be kept outside the country. In principle, the records must be held at offices of the taxable person. However, practically, the records can be stored at a third party's storage, etc., if the taxable person may reach the records anytime upon necessity from the tax authorities.

Record retention period. Books and invoices must be kept for seven years in principle. However, during the sixth and seventh years of the retention period, retention of either books or invoices is allowed.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is allowed in Japan. Generally, invoices received in paper form need to be kept in paper form, however, keeping them in scanned copies is acceptable if specific requirements are met. Additionally, invoices received in electronic form are allowed to be kept in electronic form if specific requirements are met.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. Taxable persons must file CT returns annually. An individual entrepreneur must file its CT return by 31 March of the year following the end of the calendar year. A corporation must file its annual CT return within two months after its fiscal year-end. A taxable person may opt to file tax returns monthly or quarterly instead of annually.

The filing and payment due dates for consumption tax are two months from the end of the tax period. Tax authorities do not grant an extension of the filing/payment deadline. Effective from the fiscal year that ends on or after 31 March 2021, corporations that are granted extension of the filing of the corporate tax return are allowed to extend their CT return filing deadline for one month (i.e., three months after its fiscal year-end), if it submitted the CT Filing Deadline Extension form by the end of the fiscal year. The CT Filing Deadline Extension application form must be submitted by the end of the fiscal year in which the taxable person intends to apply the extension.

Periodic payments. An individual entrepreneur must pay the CT due by the same date as the CT return submission deadline, i.e., by 31 March of the year following the end of the calendar year. A corporation must pay the CT due by the same date as the annual CT return, i.e., within two months after its fiscal year-end.

CT due in Japan can be paid by the following methods:
- Direct payment (the tax can be paid online via "direct payment" using the e-Tax system, which is a direct deduction from the taxable person's bank account)
- Internet banking
- Credit card (accessed by the "National Tax Credit Card Payment Site")
- Convenience stores (only for tax payments of up to JPY300,000 in total amount per slip)
- Account transfer
- Over-the-counter payment

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is mandatory in Japan for certain taxable persons. For the fiscal year that starts on or after 1 April 2020, Japanese corporations whose amount of capital exceeds JPY100 million, insurance companies or other certain corporations are required to file the tax return electronically. Other taxable businesses and sole proprietorships can use electronic filing system under certain conditions, such as obtaining an ID number.

Payments on account. Payments on account are generally not required in Japan, except for certain taxable persons. Depending on the previous year's tax liability, a taxable person may be required to make interim CT returns and payments:
- If the national tax due exceeds JPY480,000: semiannually
- If the national tax due exceeds JPY4 million: quarterly
- If the national tax due exceeds JPY48 million: monthly

A taxable person who is not subject to this obligation may voluntarily make interim tax returns and payments.

Special schemes. No special schemes are available in Japan.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Japan.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in Japan.

Correcting errors in previous returns. Taxable persons should submit an amended tax return to correct any errors filed in previous returns. The amended tax return can be submitted in paper or online. See Section J. Penalties below for further details on what penalties may apply for such errors.

Digital tax administration. There are no transactional reporting requirements in Japan.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. There is no specific penalty in Japan for the late registration of CT.

Penalties for late payment and filings. In cases of late payment of CT, late-payment interest is imposed, calculated at the following rates:
- First two months: 7.3% or special standard rate + 1% per annum, whichever is lower
- After two months: 14.6% or special standard rate + 7.3% per annum, whichever is lower

The special standard rate applicable in a given year (Y) is announced by the Minister of Finance by 30 November of the previous year (Y-1). It corresponds to the annual average contractual interest rate on bank short-term loans of each month from September of the second preceding year (Y-2) and August of the previous year (Y-1), plus 1% per annum. The special standard rate for 2023 is 1.4%. At the time of preparing this chapter, the rate for 2024 has not been announced.

In case of late filing of the CT return, the following penalties are imposed:
- 5% if the CT return is filed voluntarily (i.e., before receiving an audit notice) after the due date
- 10% (or 15% for the portion exceeding JPY500,000) if the CT return is filed after receiving an audit notice but before the audit
- 15% (or 20% for the portion exceeding JPY500,000) if an error is found as a result of a tax audit
- Furthermore, 10% will be added to non-reporting (late filing) penalties, if the taxable person that has been subject to penalties for non-reporting or fraud within the last five years due to a correction initiated by tax audit

Penalties for errors. Where the tax declared in the CT return is understated, the following penalties are imposed:
- 0% in case of voluntary disclosure (i.e., before receiving an audit notice)
- 5% (or 10% of the excess portion of additional tax over JPY500,000 or the original amount, whichever is greater) if the taxable person makes a voluntary disclosure during the period from receiving an audit notice to anticipation of correction
- 10% (or 15% of the excess portion of additional tax over JPY500,000 or the original amount, whichever is greater) after anticipation of correction

There are no specific penalties associated with the late notification or failure to notify of changes to a taxable person's CT registration details. For further details, see the subsection Changes to CT registration details above.

Penalties for fraud. If any such errors are related to fraudulent activity, the following penalties are imposed:
- 35% (if the tax declared in the CT return is intentionally understated)
- 40% (if the CT return is intentionally not filed)

If penalties for fraud are imposed, penalties for non-reporting or fraud are not imposed. A further 10% will be added if the taxable person has been subject to penalties for non-reporting or fraud within the last five years due to a correction initiated by tax audit.

Personal liability for company officers. In case a company evaded CT due or received a CT refund by deception or other wrongful acts, and an officer of the company has committed such deception or other wrongful act, the company officer shall be punished by imprisonment with work for not more than 10 years and/or a fine of not more than JPY10 million.

In case a company evaded CT due by intentionally neglecting to file a tax return by the due date, and an officer of the company has committed such neglect, the company officer shall be punished by imprisonment with work for not more than five years and/or a fine of not more than JPY5 million.

Statute of limitations. The statute of limitations in Japan is five years. The statute of limitations for both the tax authorities (to go back to review returns) and for taxable persons (to correct errors in previous CT returns) is five years from the filing due date. In case of fraud, the statute of limitation could be extended to seven years.

B. Scope of the tax

GST applies to the following transactions:
- The supply of goods or services made in Jersey by a registered person
- The importation of goods into Jersey, regardless of the status of the importer

- The supply of a service outside Jersey if all of the following conditions apply:
  - The supply is a taxable supply
  - The service is specified in schedule 3 of the GST law (reverse charge to GST)
  - The recipient is a Jersey resident
  - The service is performed in connection with a person, place or thing in Jersey, or is taken to be so performed

Businesses (predominantly in the financial services sector) may be exempted from GST accounting if they obtain approval for International Services Entity (ISE) status (see Section D).

As outlined above, Jersey has a special relationship with the EU. In simple terms, the island is treated as part of the EU for the purposes of free trade in goods, but otherwise it is not part of the EU. At the time of preparing this chapter, the Island's relationship with the EU is still under negotiation following the UK leaving the EU and may be subject to change.

Effective use and enjoyment. To avoid instances of non-taxation or double taxation, jurisdictions can apply "use and enjoyment" rules that allow a service that is "used and enjoyed" in the jurisdiction to be taxed or prevent a service that is "used and enjoyed" outside the jurisdiction from being taxed. If a service is taxed in the jurisdiction under the "use and enjoyment" provisions, a non-established supplier of the service may be required to register for GST in every jurisdiction where it has customers that are not taxable persons. In Jersey, no services are subject to the "use and enjoyment" provisions.

Transfer of a going concern. Normally the sale of the assets of a GST-registered or GST-registrable business will be subject to GST at the appropriate rate. However, a transfer of a business as a going concern (TOGC) may be outside the scope of the tax under certain conditions. A TOGC is the sale of a business or part of a business capable of separate operation including assets. Where the sale meets the conditions, the supply is treated as outside the scope of GST. In Jersey, a TOGC is treated as outside the scope of GST where the transferor and the transferee are both registered taxable persons (i.e., both parties are registered for GST in Jersey).

Transactions between related parties. In Jersey, for a transaction between related parties, the value for GST purposes is calculated at the open-market value. The Comptroller may give a direction that the value of the supply shall be taken to be its open-market value if the value of the supply (but for the direction) is less than market value, the supplier and recipient are connected and, in a case where the supply is a taxable supply, the recipient is not entitled to credit all the GST on the supply. The direction is given by notice in writing to the supplier and shall not be given more than three years after the day when the supply was made.

C. Who is liable

A "registered person" is a business entity, including a branch or agency or individual, who makes taxable supplies of goods or services in the course of doing business in Jersey.

The GST registration threshold is JEP300,000.

The registration threshold is met if either of the following circumstances exists:
- If, at the end of any month, the business made taxable supplies in the preceding 12 months exceeding JEP300,000
- If, on any day, reasonable grounds exist for believing that the value of the taxable supplies made by the business in the 12 months after that date is likely to exceed JEP300,000

GST incurred before the incorporation of a company may be recovered if certain criteria are met.

Certain entities, predominantly financial services entities, may opt out of the GST system by becoming an International Services Entity (ISE). Generally, an entity meets the requirements of an ISE if not more than 10% of its supplies are to individuals resident in Jersey. GST is not chargeable on supplies to ISEs. If the entity obtains approval for ISE status, it pays an annual fixed fee.

Trust companies can also be authorized to maintain a list of administered entities that are ISEs. Under the ISE regime, businesses are not required to account for GST on their supplies and are entitled to end-user relief under which they are not charged GST by GST-registered businesses.

A business may be charged on retail purchases of less than JEP1,000, but the GST may be refunded on application.

The following fees are payable for an ISE entity:
- Bank (deposit-taking business), JEP78,300
- Trust company business, JEP13,100 as an affiliation leader and JEP300 for each administered entity
- Fund service business not registered as a managed manager, JEP4,700
- Entity holding a Collective Investment Fund (CIF) permit as a functionary but not as a managed manager or collective investment fund, JEP4,700
- Entity holding a CIF permit as a managed manager, JEP950
- Collective investment fund if listed by the Comptroller of Revenue or Alternative Investment Fund, JEP300
- Entity that is a body corporate or partnership, limited partnership or limited liability partnership, which is not included above, JEP750

Exemption from registration. If a taxable person only makes zero-rated supplies, the taxable person can apply to be exempt from registering for GST.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. A small business with taxable turnover of less than JEP300,000 a year may voluntarily apply to become a registered person. However, the value of exempt supplies cannot be included in calculating the taxable turnover. If the only supplies of goods and/or services are exempt, it is not normally possible to register for GST.

Group registration. Group registration is allowed for corporations or other taxable persons that are under common control. One entity must be the representative member.

There is no minimum time period required for the duration of a GST group.

Transactions between group members are disregarded for GST purposes.

All members of a GST group in Jersey are jointly and severally liable for GST debts and penalties.

As an alternative to GST registration, businesses in the financial services industry that predominantly serve nonresident clients may opt to pay an annual fee and be listed as International Service Entities to reduce their compliance and administrative obligations.

From 1 January 2024, group registrations for GST purposes are extended to groups that contain both online retailers based outside Jersey and those with an establishment in Jersey. Registration requirements have been changed to ensure that supplies made to businesses in Jersey by overseas retailers are ignored when calculating the turnover of a business for GST registration purposes.

Fixed establishment. Under the GST law, an establishment means a business establishment or fixed establishment. A fixed establishment has not been defined. However, under GST law, the usual place of residence of a body corporate or any other person that is not individual is the place where its business is managed and controlled and a person carrying on a business through a branch or agency in a country will be treated as having an establishment there.

Non-established businesses. There is no distinction between established and non-established businesses for the purposes of Jersey GST. As such, a non-established business has a requirement to register for GST, to the same extent as an established business does.

Tax representatives. Tax representatives are not required in Jersey.

Reverse charge. The reverse-charge regime applies to services specified by the law if the following conditions are satisfied:
- A supply of services is made by a nonresident to a resident.
- The supply would be taxable if made in Jersey.
- The recipient of the supply is registered (or is required to be registered).

An input tax credit may be claimed with respect to the reverse charge to the extent that the service was acquired for the purpose of making taxable supplies.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Jersey.

Digital economy. For business-to-business (B2B) transactions, GST may apply. For GST purposes, certain electronically supplied services are considered to be supplied where the service is received. As such, the customer is generally expected to self-assess for the GST due.

For business-to-consumer (B2C) transactions, electronically supplied services are considered to be supplied where the service is received. Such services are typically GST-exempt in Jersey for consumers.

Physical goods received in Jersey and acquired through digital platforms are subject to GST in Jersey. The customer is required to declare the goods received and pay the relevant GST. A non-Jersey resident supplier is exempt from any GST registration or payment on the supply of goods to Jersey.

The States of Jersey Assembly introduced new legislation in the Finance Law (Budget 2022) (Jersey) Law in relation to the application of GST to goods imported into Jersey by private individuals where those goods are imported unaccompanied by the importer. In other words, the goods are ordered from Jersey by the customer and are dispatched by freight or post by the seller.

The purpose of the new legislation is to enable high street retailers in Jersey (who must charge GST on almost all sales) to be more competitive and to mirror similar legislation introduced in relation to VAT in the UK and the EU during 2021. The new legislation introduces the following:
- All goods imported unaccompanied by private individuals into Jersey from 1 July 2023 are subject to GST where the value of the imported goods exceeds JEP60. This threshold has been reduced from JEP135.
- Where online retailers trading outside Jersey sell goods to consumers in Jersey (online, through brochures, magazine sales or others) and where the value of such sales by any retailer to consumers in Jersey exceeds JEP300,000 per annum, such retailers have a requirement to register and account for Jersey GST on these sales.

When purchasing goods from overseas retailers who are registered for GST, Jersey consumers pay GST to the supplier (vendor) at the point of sale. The goods are then imported to Jersey with no requirement to pay tax at the point of entry.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Jersey.

Registration procedures. For businesses that already have an income tax reference number, the application can be submitted online (https://empret.jsytax.je/gst_main.aspx). For other businesses, a form can be obtained from the Jersey Income Taxes Office.

A company will need to register once if it has made taxable supplies of JEP300,000 or more in the preceding 12 months or if it is believed that the value of taxable supplies for the following 12 months is likely to exceed JEP300,000. It may also choose to register voluntarily.

The information that will need to be supplied for the application include: details of the person or entity applying for registration; the trading name (if different); the business address; relevant telephone numbers; and the name and legal status of the person making the application. In addition, during the registration process Revenue Jersey will request the expected annual taxable turnover; the nature of the business; and if there is any preference with regard to the months that the entity wishes to make its quarterly GST returns.

There is no restriction on who can make the registration on behalf of the company, but the registered person will be the legal entity that owns the business (for example, a limited company).

There is a different form for registering as an International Services Entity (ISE).

Deregistration. A taxable person that ceases to make taxable supplies must notify the Jersey GST authorities within 30 days after ceasing operations. If the GST authorities are satisfied that the taxable person's operations are not expected to recommence, they will cancel its GST registration.

A taxable person may deregister voluntarily if it can satisfactorily prove to the GST authorities that its taxable turnover for the foreseeable future is expected to be less than JEP300,000.

Changes to GST registration details. The Jersey GST authorities must be notified within 30 days of any change to the registration information previously provided (e.g., trading name, business address, etc.). The notification must be made on paper.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of GST, including the zero rate.

The GST rates are:
- Standard rate: 5%
- Zero-rated: 0%

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Supplies of dwellings
- Prescription medicines
- Exported services and related services
- Services performed outside Jersey

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to GST and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Financial services
- Insurance
- Postal services
- Medical and paramedical supplies
- Supplies by charities
- Education

- Childcare (supplied in registered day care accommodation under the Day Care of Children (Jersey) Law 2002)
- Burial and cremation

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Jersey.

E. Time of supply

The time when GST becomes due is called the "time of supply." The general rule is that a supply of goods takes place when the goods are removed or made available and that a supply of services takes place when the service is performed. However, if an invoice is issued or payment is received by the supplier prior to these times, the earlier date of the invoice is the time of supply.

Deposits and prepayments. The time of supply for deposits and prepayments is the date payment is received, or if an invoice is issued before the payment is made, the time of supply is the date of the invoice.

Continuous supplies of services. The time of supply for supplies of continuous supplies of services is the date payment is received, or if an invoice for the services is issued before the payment is made, the time of supply is the date of the invoice.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. If the supply involved the removal of the goods, the supply of goods takes place at the time when the goods are removed. If the supply does not involve removal of the goods, the supply of goods takes place when the goods are made available to the person to whom they are supplied.

In the case of goods that are sent or taken on approval, on sale or return and are removed before it is known whether a supply will take place, the supply of the goods takes place when it becomes certain that the supply has taken place or, if sooner, 12 months after the day when the removal occurred.

Reverse-charge services. The time of supply for the supply of reverse-charge services is the date the supply of services takes place.

Leased assets. The time of supply for the supply of leased assets is the date payment is received, or if an invoice is issued before the payment is made, the time of supply is the date of the invoice.

Imported goods. The time of supply for the supply of imported goods is the date the goods are imported.

F. Recovery of GST by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax, which is GST charged on goods and services supplied to it for business purposes. A taxable person generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax, which is GST charged on supplies made. Input tax includes GST charged on goods and services supplied in Jersey and GST paid on imports.

The time limit for a taxable person to reclaim input tax in Jersey is three years. GST charged on any supply or importation is to be excluded from credit if a claim for the GST is not made within three years after the end of the accounting period in which the relevant GST became chargeable, or within such longer period as the Comptroller may consider necessary, in the exceptional circumstances of a particular case, to avoid an injustice.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use by an entrepreneur).

A registered person may recover GST in full if it acquires goods and services principally for the purpose of making taxable supplies.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Employee wages
- Private expenses or goods
- Certain goods incorporated in dwellings

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Raw materials used in the business
- Equipment (capital/office)
- Goods for resale
- Processing costs

Partial exemption. GST law provides for a partial exemption method if goods and services are acquired for making taxable supplies but are also used for making exempt supplies. One of the following methods of allocation may be used for making the input tax adjustment:

- A direct attribution method under which the taxable person's input tax is allocated to taxable and nontaxable supplies made to the extent it is directly attributable to either taxable or nontaxable supplies. Nontaxable is defined as any supply that is not subject to GST, including exempt supplies and supplies outside the scope of GST. Input tax directly related to taxable supplies is deductible in full, while input tax directly related to nontaxable supplies is not deductible.
- For input tax that is not directly attributable, a general pro rata method is used under which the taxable person's taxable ratio is based on the value of taxable supplies made compared with total supplies made. The taxable ratio is applied to the total amount of input tax incurred that is not directly attributable taxable or nontaxable supplies. This is the default method to apply for any input tax that is not directly attributable.
- A special calculation method can be used as an alternative to the general pro rata method but must be agreed in writing with the Jersey GST authorities prior to application.
- Approval from the tax authorities is not required to use the partial exemption standard method in Jersey.

Capital purchases greater than of JEP1 million (excluding GST) that are not zero rated or exempt from GST must be considered over a five-year period.

Capital goods. There are no special rules in Jersey for the input tax recovery for capital goods. Input tax deduction relating to capital goods that are used for making both taxable and exempt supplies should be calculated using the general refund rules, as well as the partial exemption calculations (see the Partial exemption subsection above).

Refunds. If the amount of input tax recoverable in a period exceeds the amount of output tax payable, a refund may be claimed. GST refunds are generally made promptly after the receipt of a correct return or held as a credit against future returns unless otherwise requested.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax incurred on pre-registration costs in Jersey is not recoverable.

Bad debts. GST shall be refunded to a person if the following conditions are satisfied at the time that a claim for the refund is made to the Comptroller:

- A person has supplied goods or services for a consideration in money and has accounted for and paid GST on the supply.
- All or part of the consideration for the supply has been written in the person's accounts as a debt.
- A period of at least six months has elapsed since the supply.

- The value of the supply did not exceed its open-market value.
- In the case of a supply of goods, the property in the goods has passed to the recipient, whether or not the recipient still has property in the goods.
- The claim is person who made the supply.
- The claim is made within the approved time or, if no time has been approved, within 12 months after the day when the last writing off (as referred to above) occurred in respect of the consideration for the supply.
- The claim is in the approved form, or if no form has been approved, in any form sufficient to show that the set out in this paragraph (other than in this subparagraph)

Noneconomic activities. The Comptroller has issued a direction to the law stating that a charity or nonprofit organization shall be relieved of charge to GST on goods imported into Jersey if it is established for:

- The advancement of education
- Relief of poverty
- Purposes benefiting the community
- Furtherance of religion
- Cultural or artistic objectives financially supported by the States of Jersey

Charities must pay GST on their purchases and business expenses at the time of purchase but can claim refunds, provided certain conditions are met regarding the purpose of the purchases and expenses. To claim a GST refund, the charity must be a registered charity with the Jersey Charity Commissioner, must have a record of the sale, purchase or importation and the GST paid, have actually paid the GST, apply within the time limits and apply using the approved application form. The GST refund claim must be done online. The amount of the claim will determine how often the charity can claim.

G. Recovery of GST by non-established businesses

Input tax incurred by non-established businesses that are not registered for GST in Jersey is recoverable. Refunds are made to persons not established in Jersey with respect to GST on goods and services for business use. The supply on which the GST arose must have been for the purpose of a business carried on by the claimant. The claimant's home country must operate a similar refund scheme that is available to Jersey businesses.

Refunds are made by way of a claim form to be sent to the following:

Treasury and Resources
Goods and Services Tax
Income Tax Office
Cyril Le Marquand
PO Box 56
The Parade
St. Helier
Jersey JE4 8PF
Channel Islands

Jersey has not set a maximum amount that can be reclaimed. However, it has a minimum reclaim amount of JEP50. Claims must be made within 12 months after the date of supply and must be made annually.

Claims must be accompanied by originals of all invoices, vouchers or receipts from suppliers. For amounts below JEP250, simplified invoices can be provided. Initial claims must be accompanied by an official certificate showing that the claimant is registered for GST (or similar tax) in its home jurisdiction. A certificate must be provided annually thereafter.

Tourist refund scheme. Visitors to the island who arrive on commercial flights are entitled to claim a refund of GST paid on goods bought from local retailers participating in the GST visitor refund scheme. The total value of the goods must exceed JEP300, the purchase must be made in a single transaction with a single retailer and the visitor must leave Jersey with the goods within one month of the date of purchase.

H. Invoicing

GST invoices. A Jersey registered person must generally provide a tax invoice for all taxable supplies. A credit note may be used to reduce the GST charged and reclaimed on a supply if the value originally charged was incorrect.

Credit notes. A credit note must indicate the reason why it was issued and must refer to both the GST originally charged and the corrected amount.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is allowed in Jersey, but not mandatory.

Scope of electronic invoicing. For B2B, B2C and business-to-government (B2G) supplies, electronic invoicing is allowed but not mandatory in Jersey. There is no threshold beyond which taxable persons are required to adopt electronic invoicing in Jersey.

Invoices can be sent by electronic means such as email. The requirements related to electronic invoicing are the same as those for paper invoicing. The invoice will still need to satisfy the definition of a GST invoice.

Simplified GST invoices. Retailers (i.e., those making most of their sales to the general public) can provide simplified invoices, unless a full GST invoice is requested by the customer.

Self-billing. Self-billing is allowed in Jersey. It can be used by any GST-registered business subject to the following conditions:
- The business must obtain written approval from the Comptroller of Taxes to use self-billing.
- If the supplier is registered for GST, the invoice must show the tax chargeable on the value of the supply and the supplier's GST number. The invoice must also meet all requirements of a tax invoice.
- The business must obtain the written agreement of the supplier to use self-billing, informing it that it must not issue the business with a tax invoice that it has written itself and must advise the business within 30 days if it ceases to be registered for GST.

Proof of exports. There is no specific legislation in Jersey regarding proof of exports. In practice, delivery notes or proof of postage should suffice.

Foreign currency invoices. Foreign currency invoices must be converted into domestic currency, which is the Jersey pound (JEP), using the exchange rate effective on the date of the supply for inclusion on the GST return. The tax office may request evidence to support the exchange rate used. Note that the JEP is equivalent to the British pound sterling (GBP).

Supplies to nontaxable persons. Retailers (i.e., those making most of their sales to the general public) can provide simplified invoices, unless a full GST invoice is requested by the customer.

Records. A taxable person must keep accounts and records to substantiate amounts declared in GST returns. In Jersey, examples of what records must be held for GST purposes include the following:
- Annual accounts
- Import and export documents
- Purchase invoices and copy sales invoices
- Bank accounts, cash books and credit or debit notes

In Jersey, GST books and records can be kept outside of the country. Records can be held in or outside of Jersey. However, if held outside of Jersey, the records must be available for inspection by GST officers upon request.

Record retention period. Records must be retained for six years following the period to which the documents relate.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is allowed in Jersey. While electronic archiving is not specifically covered by the Jersey GST legislation, in practice, if accounts and records can be provided to substantiate the amounts declared in GST returns, electronic archiving is permitted.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. GST returns are generally submitted quarterly. Three cycles of quarterly returns are provided to stagger submission dates. A taxable person may request a change in its GST return cycle to ease administration.

Taxable persons may opt to submit GST returns monthly if they receive regular repayments of GST.

GST return periods generally end on the last day of a month. However, taxable persons may request different periods to align with their accounting records. GST returns must be submitted by the last business day of the month following the end of the return period. The GST return form indicates the due date for each return.

Periodic payments. Payment of any GST due must be paid by the GST return deadline, i.e., by the last business day of the month following the end of the return period. GST return periods are usually submitted per quarter. GST payments can be made by BACS, by check, online via the gov.je website or in person at the Jersey Taxes Office.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is allowed in Jersey, but not mandatory. GST returns can be filed online. They can also be filed using the Tax Returns Submission System (TRSS), where returns are downloaded, completed offline and then submitted by email or data stream via a secure connection. Alternatively, they can be submitted in paper format.

Payments on account. Payments on account are generally not required in Jersey, except for certain taxable persons. The Comptroller may by direction require a taxable person to pay amounts of GST due, on account of any GST that the person may become liable to pay in respect of a prescribed accounting period. A person who without reasonable excuse fails to comply with a direction shall be guilty of an offense and liable to a fine of level three on the standard scale.

Special schemes. Annual accounting. The GST annual accounting scheme for small businesses requires only one return per year. The scheme can be used if the entity's taxable turnover, excluding GST on sales, for the previous 12 months did not exceed JEP500,000. The scheme can continue to be used until the taxable turnover for a year exceeds JEP600,000.

Cash accounting. The GST cash accounting scheme for small businesses allows entities not to pay GST on sales until payment is received from the customer. The scheme can be used if taxable turnover (excluding capital assets or GST) for the previous 12 months did not exceed GSP1 million. The scheme can continue to be used until the taxable turnover for a year exceeds JEP1.2 million.

Retailers. The GST retail scheme enables businesses to account for their total quarterly sales instead of individual sales, thereby reducing accounting and bookkeeping costs. To be eligible, 50% or more of total sales must be made to the general public.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Jersey.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in Jersey.

Correcting errors in previous returns. If the total value of errors is less than JEP250 for a quarterly return, or JEP83 for a monthly return, the error can be corrected on the next GST return to be filed. No penalties apply in relation to such errors.

If the total value of errors exceeds the thresholds noted, a disclosure must be made in writing to Jersey GST authorities. The letter must be headed "Voluntary disclosure of GST return errors" and must set out the following:
- The value of the errors
- Which GST returns they relate to
- If it was an input tax or output tax error
- The incorrect GST calculation
- A brief explanation of how the error was made

For further details on penalties that may be charged when a voluntary disclosure is not made, see Section J. Penalties below.

Digital tax administration. There are no transactional reporting requirements in Jersey.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. A penalty is assessed for the late registration of GST for the higher of JEP200 or 10% of the relevant GST (if any).

Penalties for late payment and filings. A penalty is assessed for the late payment of GST. A penalty of 10% of the tax due is assessed on the day after the due date.

A penalty of JEP100 is charged for the late submission of a GST return for each month that the return continues to not be submitted, up to a maximum of nine months.

Penalties for errors. There are no specific penalties in Jersey for errors. If a taxable person makes inadequate returns for two consecutive accounting periods, the Comptroller may assess an amount of JEP200 by way of a surcharge.

The late notification or failure to notify the tax authorities of changes to a taxable person's GST registration details may be liable to a penalty under level 3 of the standard scale of fines (up to JEP10,000). For further details, see the subsection Changes to GST registration details above.

Penalties for fraud. There are no specific penalties in Jersey for fraud. If a taxable person makes inadequate returns for two consecutive accounting periods, the Comptroller may assess an amount of JEP200 by way of a surcharge.

There are penalties if, for the purpose of evading GST, a taxable person does anything or fails to do anything and that conduct involves dishonesty, the person will be liable to a penalty tax equal to the amount of GST evaded or sought to be evaded by the conduct.

Personal liability for company officers. Company officers cannot be held personally liable for errors and omissions in GST declarations and reporting in Jersey, except in cases of fraud or deliberate noncompliance.

Statute of limitations. The statute of limitations in Jersey is five years. Generally, an assessment of an amount of GST must not be made after the following:
- In the case of an assessment in respect of an importation of goods, the fifth anniversary of the day when the importation occurred
  Or
- In the case of any other assessment, the fifth anniversary of the last day of the last prescribed accounting period to which the assessment relates

In the case where a return or paperwork is inadequate, an assessment of GST will not be made until after the latest of the following anniversaries:

- The fifth anniversary of the last day of the prescribed accounting period to which the assessment relates
- The anniversary of the day when the Comptroller has evidence of facts sufficient, in the opinion of the Comptroller, to justify making the assessment
- The anniversary of the day when the Comptroller has further evidence (if any) of a person's conduct sufficient, in the opinion of the Comptroller, to justify making a further assessment

In the case of conduct involving dishonestly, there is no time limit on the assessment.

B. Scope of the tax

Under Jordan's General Sales Tax (GST) law No. 6 of 1994 (as amended) (the GST law), a standard goods and services tax (GST) rate of 16% is applicable to the following:
- Supply of goods and/or services inside Jordan
- Importation of goods and/or services from outside of Jordan or from the Free Zones, Special Zones and Development Zones

This is the general rule unless the activity or type of goods being imported into Jordan is specifically exempt by the GST law or subject to a different GST rate.

Effective use and enjoyment. To avoid instances of non-taxation or double taxation, jurisdictions can apply "use and enjoyment" rules that allow a service that is "used and enjoyed" in the jurisdiction to be taxed or prevent a service that is "used and enjoyed" outside the jurisdiction from being taxed. If a service is taxed in the jurisdiction under the "use and enjoyment" provisions, a non-established supplier of the service may be required to register for ST in every jurisdiction where it has customers that are not taxable persons. In Jordan, no services are subject to the "use and enjoyment" provisions. Generally, if services are used in Jordan or if the beneficiary of the services is in Jordan, the transaction would be taxable.

Transfer of a going concern. Transfer of going concern rules do not apply in Jordan. As such, ST applies to all sales of a business or part of a business capable of separate operation, including assets.

Transactions between related parties. For transactions between related parties in Jordan, the value of the transaction must be based on the true value in similar transactions between unrelated parties.

C. Who is liable

For ST purposes, a taxable person is any individual or entity that imports and/or supplies taxable goods or services. There is no minimum annual threshold for a person who imports taxable goods or services for trading purposes, and the taxable person would be required to register with the Income and Sales Tax Department (ISTD) within 30 days of the first taxable import (regardless of the import value).

Suppliers of goods and services are required to register only if their taxable turnover (outside of importation activities) exceeds the following minimum annual thresholds:
- JOD75,000 for traders and manufacturers subject to GST
- JOD30,000 for service suppliers
- JOD10,000 for manufacturers of goods subject to special sales tax (SST)

If a taxable person carries out more than one of the business activities mentioned above, the minimum limit is the applicable registration threshold.

A new business making taxable supplies is required to register for ST once it commences activities if it is estimated that its taxable turnover during the 12 months following their commencement will exceed the applicable minimum threshold.

For existing businesses, registration with the ISTD would be required at the earlier of the (i) end of the month, if taxable turnover during the preceding 12 consecutive months has reached the minimum threshold, or (ii) end of the month, if it is estimated that the person's taxable turnover during the 11 consecutive months ending with the subsequent month may reach the minimum threshold.

Exemption from registration. A taxable person whose entire turnover is from zero-rated sales may request an exemption from registration. A taxable person whose entire turnover is from exempt sales is automatically exempt from registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. Persons have the option of registering voluntarily with the ISTD for ST purposes. Upon registration, the persons would be required to comply with submitting their ST filings.

Group registration. Group ST registration is not allowed in Jordan.

Fixed establishment. In Jordan, there is no legal definition for a fixed establishment for ST purposes.

Non-established businesses. There is no mechanism by which a non-established business is able to register with the ISTD. Where a non-established business makes supplies within Jordan, the non-established business may need to register a legal presence. This is, however, a legal matter, and from a GST perspective, a non-established business would not be able to register for tax purposes.

Tax representatives. A taxable person can appoint a tax representative through a power of attorney vis-à-vis the ISTD. This is the general rule on who can be a tax representative. The power of attorney requirements should be confirmed with legal counsel and are not a GST matter.

Reverse charge. Services provided by independent foreign contractors or foreign entities (i.e., non-established businesses) to resident entities [whether related or unrelated parties, i.e., a business-to-business (B2B) supply] are classified as imported services in Jordan and are subject to GST via a reverse charge. The resident entity receiving the services must apply the GST and remit it to the ISTD.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Jordan.

Digital economy. No special measures relating to ST on digital supplies of services or goods are in place in Jordan. As such, the general ST rules apply. Nonresidents that provide electronically supplied services do not need to register for ST in Jordan unless they have a physical presence in Jordan. This includes a fixed place of business and employees in the country. There are no special ST rules for e-commerce supplies, e.g., imported goods.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Jordan.

Registration procedures. To register a taxable person, an authorized person with a valid power of attorney should present a paper registration application in person to the ISTD, along with the following documents:

- A certified copy of the certificate of registration with the Jordanian Companies Control Department
- A certified copy of the commercial certificate issued from the authorized party
- A certified copy of the commercial name and trademark registration, if applicable
- A certified copy of the effective vocational license
- Personal identification documents for the authorized signatories

In addition to the above documents, importers are required to present a certified copy of the importation card. A taxable individual would also be required to present a personal identification number.

Note that the process to appoint an authorized person with a valid power of attorney is a legal matter and must be confirmed with a qualified Jordanian legal counsel.

Deregistration. A registered person who stops supplying goods and services must deregister. If a registered person's turnover drops below the registration threshold or becomes wholly related to zero-rated sales, the registered person may voluntarily request deregistration.

Changes to ST registration details. Taxable persons must notify the ISTD in person of any changes to their ST details within 30 days from the change.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of ST, including the zero rate.

The ST rates are:
- Standard rate: 16%
- Reduced rate: 1%, 2%, 4%, 5%, 10%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of ST applies to all supplies of goods or services, unless a specific provision allows a reduced rate or an exemption.

Twenty types of goods and one type of service are subject to ST. ST is imposed at various percentage rates or in fixed amounts. The ST rates and amounts are provided in Regulation No. 80 of 2000 and Regulation No. 97 of 2016.

Certain goods and services detailed in Schedule 1 of the GST law are subject to both GST and SST.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Printing service for any party provided that all supplies (inks, paper and all supplies, etc.) are from the printing press itself
- Raw materials for the production of medicine

Examples of goods and services taxable at 1%

- Hygiene and disinfectants
- Gloves

Examples of goods and services taxable at 2%

- Food salt
- Pencils

Examples of goods and services taxable at 4%

- Oils and ghee
- Supplies used by the handicapped
- Veterinary medicines

Examples of goods and services taxable at 5%

- Corn

Examples of goods and services taxable at 10%

- Live animals
- Cheese

Examples of goods and services subject to SST

- Beer (including nonalcoholic beer)
- Tobacco and tobacco products
- Vehicles (cars)

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to ST and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Wheat
- Bread
- Electrical energy
- Firefighting vehicles

- Education/training
- Medical services

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Jordan.

E. Time of supply

ST becomes due at the time of supply, which is called the "tax point."

The tax becomes due on the supply of goods at the earliest of the following events:
- Transfer of ownership of goods. However, the Director General of the ISTD may consider the date of the tax invoice as the tax point if it is issued periodically or at the end of a certain period following the date of delivery
- Issuance of a tax invoice.
- Receipt of the full or partial value of the goods, receipt of credit payment or any other receipt of value according to the agreed terms for payments

Tax becomes due on the supply of services at the earlier of the following events:
- Supply of service
- Issuance of a tax invoice
- Receipt of full or partial payment for the service

Tax is payable in the cases mentioned above by reference to the value covered by the invoice or the amount paid, whichever is higher.

However, importers of goods (customs) and services (reverse charge) must pay the 16% ST due at the earliest of the following dates:
- Within one month after the date of payment for the imported service or after the date of making a partial payment, limited to the amount paid
- When the means that include the goods (for example, compact disks and tapes) are released from Customs
- Within six months after the date on which the service or any part of the service is received, limited to the amount related to the part received

Deposits and prepayments. There are no special time of supply rules in Jordan for deposits and prepayments. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

Continuous supplies of services. There are no special time of supply rules in Jordan for continuous supplies of services. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules in Jordan for supplies of goods sent on approval for sale or return. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

Reverse-charge services. There are no special time of supply rules in Jordan for supplies of reverse-charge services. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

Leased assets. There are no special time of supply rules in Jordan for supplies of leased assets. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

Imported goods. Importers of goods must pay the tax due on the goods at the clearance stage to the Customs Department in accordance with the procedures applicable for the payment of customs duties. Clearance of these goods is not finalized until the tax due is paid in full.

A registered importer may obtain permission from the ISTD to defer the payment of the tax payable on the importation of goods. This postponement is granted if the importer has no record of fraud or customs smuggling and has submitted all returns in the last 12 months.

F. Recovery of ST by taxable persons

Input tax (ST on purchases, including the zero rate) related to goods and/or services is recoverable. Taxable persons are required to submit the bimonthly ST return reflecting the net of the ST amounts that have been paid on inputs (purchases) and the ST received on outputs (sales) for the reporting period. If the ST received on outputs exceeds the ST paid on inputs, the outstanding balance is paid to the ISTD. If the ST received on inputs exceeds the ST paid on outputs, the balance is carried forward to the next period.

The time limit for a taxable person to reclaim input tax in Jordan is three years. Balances carried forward can be recovered after two months of ongoing credit carryforward.

Input SST (i.e., SST on purchases) related to goods that are used to produce final goods that are also subject to SST is recoverable.

A valid tax invoice or customs documents must exist to recover input tax.

Special rules apply to the recovery of input tax on goods purchased or imported before registration.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax related to (i) goods and services not used for business purposes, (ii) exempt goods and/or services and (iii) other business expenditures set out in the GST law is non-recoverable. The following lists provide some examples of items of expenditure for which input tax is not deductible.

Input SST is generally nondeductible (excluding SST on goods that are used to produce final goods that are also subject to SST).

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Goods and services used for nonbusiness purposes
- Goods and services attributable to exempt or nontaxable supplies
- Sporting and recreational activities, other than those used for supplying goods or services
- Restaurants and hotel services, other than those used for supplying goods or services
- Purchases accounted for as returned purchases
- The special tax paid on the items listed in Schedule (1) of the ST legislation (unless otherwise provided for)
- Goods and services that have been used for construction purposes, other than those used for renting of construction and destruction equipment
- Saloon cars, other than cars purchased by car-trading businesses or for car rental purposes

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Business use of telephone and mobiles
- Accounting and tax consulting fees
- Cars purchased by car-trading businesses or for car rental purposes

Partial exemption. If a taxable person makes both exempt and taxable goods and services, it may recover input tax partially through its returns.

If the same taxable inputs are attributable to both taxable and nontaxable supplies (whether exempted or for nonbusiness use), the portion of the deductible general input tax is determined based on the production formula. If this is not possible, it is calculated based on the proportion of taxable supplies to total supplies.

Approval from the tax authorities is not required to use the partial exemption standard method in Jordan. Special methods are not allowed in Jordan.

Capital goods. There are no special recovery of ST rules in Jordan for capital goods. Therefore, the recovery of GST for taxable persons rules apply (as outlined above).

Refunds. Tax is repaid within a period not exceeding 30 days after the date on which the claim for refund has been filed if any of the following circumstances exist:
- Tax is paid on goods or services exported or used in the manufacture of other goods that have been exported.
- Tax is collected by mistake.
- Recoverable input tax that was paid at least two months ago and that was carried forward as a credit has not yet been deducted from the tax charged on supplies made during that period.
- Tax was paid on goods that left the country in the possession of nonresident persons, and the tax amount to be refunded cannot be not less than JOD50 but not more than JOD500.
- ST was previously paid on goods supplied to the bodies relieved from payment of tax under Article 21 of the GST law [the King of Jordan, embassies, diplomats and consuls (subject to reciprocity) and international and regional organizations working in Jordan].

Pre-registration costs. Following tax registration, a taxable person can recover ST paid or charged before registration on the goods provided that a tax invoice in proper form is presented and subject to the recovery of ST for taxable persons rules (as outlined above).

Bad debts. Relief for ST on bad debts can be claimed in the following cases:
- If the purchaser dies without leaving assets sufficient to pay the tax
- If the purchaser declares that its funds are not sufficient to pay the debts in full or in part, or if it fails to pay or communicate about the debt for two years
- If the seller has exhausted all legal means to collect the debt, including the tax, with no success
- If the seller has proved that the buyer has declared bankruptcy

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred in relation to noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Jordan.

G. Recovery of ST by non-established businesses

Input tax incurred by non-established businesses that are not registered for ST in Jordan is not recoverable.

H. Invoicing

ST invoices. Invoices must be issued for sales exceeding one Jordanian dinar (JOD). The invoice must be issued on the date the sale/supply is made. As mandated by the Tax Invoicing Regulations, there should be three copies of the issued invoice. One copy should be issued to the Jordanian customer as per the requirements above. The other invoice copies should be maintained internally by the registered person for bookkeeping purposes.

Credit notes. Credit notes are issued when an issued invoice must be amended or canceled; examples include when customers return purchased goods fully or partially, when a customer changes their initial order or an incorrect amount has been reflected on the invoice.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is allowed in Jordan, but not mandatory.

Scope of electronic invoicing. For B2B, B2C and business-to-government (B2G) supplies, electronic invoicing is allowed but not mandatory in Jordan. There is no threshold beyond which taxable persons are required to adopt electronic invoicing in Jordan. The requirements related to electronic invoicing are the same as those for paper invoicing.

As per Regulations No. 34 of 2019, as amended, a national electronic invoicing platform was introduced, and it will be mandatory that the issuance of invoices (electronic or not) by taxable persons for all supplies (B2G, B2B and B2C) be linked to the ISTD's platform. However, at the time of preparing this chapter, implementation is still underway and not in full effect.

Simplified ST invoices. There are no simplified ST invoice rules in Jordan.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Jordan.

Proof of exports. The original invoice and customs declaration of exported goods stamped by the Customs Center; and the original invoice, related contract and proof of transfer related to exported services are required as proof of exported goods and services, respectively.

Foreign currency invoices. Foreign currency invoices are accepted. However, the value must be converted into the domestic currency, which is the Jordanian dinar (JOD), according to the exchange rate at the time of supply.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. There are no special invoicing rules for supplies to nontaxable persons in Jordan. As such, full ST invoices are required.

Records. In Jordan, examples of what records that must be held for ST purposes include tax returns, invoices, notes and other related reporting obligations.

In Jordan, ST books and records can be kept outside of the country. There are no specifications on where the records must be kept.

Record retention period. Company records must be kept for a period of 10 years. ST records must be kept for a period of four years from the date of submission of the ST return.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is allowed in Jordan. Records can be stored either electronically or physically. However, they must be easily accessible and made available if requested by the tax authorities during ST audits.

I. Returns and payments

Periodic returns. ST must be declared to the ISTD through a bimonthly electronic ST return due within 30 days following the end of every two-month period. SST must be declared to the ISTD through a monthly electronic SST return due within 30 days following the end of every month.

Periodic payments. ST must be paid within 1 month following the end of every two-month period. SST must be paid within 1 month following the end of every month. Payments must be made electronically using the ISTD's online portal.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is mandatory in Jordan for all taxable persons. Taxable persons are required to register and submit ST returns electronically on the ISTD's official website (www.istd.gov.jo).

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Jordan. However, if a taxable person does not settle its amounts due, there would be an amount payable. If advance payments are made, these would reduce the amount payable.

Special schemes. No special schemes are available in Jordan. However, the ISTD can agree to grant exceptions on a case-by-case basis.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Jordan.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in Jordan.

Correcting errors in previous returns. Any errors in previous ST returns can be corrected by submitting an amended ST return in person at the ISTD. An amended ST return can be submitted any time before the issuance of a tax audit notification for the same period. Once a tax audit notification is issued by the ISTD for a specific reporting period, an amended ST return can no longer be submitted for the same period. An ISTD tax auditor can issue a tax audit notification at any time within four years from the date of the submission of the return.

Digital tax administration. There are no transactional reporting requirements in Jordan.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. The following penalties are assessed for late registration:

- A penalty of two to three times the output tax, plus a penalty equal to JOD200 is imposed if the date of registration is more than 60 days from the date on which the business should have been registered.
- A penalty of JOD100 is imposed if the date of registration is less than 60 days from the date on which the business should have been registered.

Penalties for late payment and filings. Late filing penalties range between JOD100 to JOD500. If an additional ST liability is imposed, late payment penalties will be imposed at 0.4% of the unpaid ST amount for each late week or part thereof (up to the tax amount due) calculated from the date the outstanding ST should have been paid to the actual date of payment. In addition, Article 31 of the GST law stipulates that a maximum of three times the tax penalty can be applied on taxable persons that commit an act of tax evasion.

Penalties for errors. If there are additional ST amounts due from any errors, late payment penalties will be imposed at 0.4% of the unpaid ST amount for each late week or part thereof (up to the tax amount due) calculated from the date the outstanding ST should have been paid to the actual date of payment.

The late notification or failure to notify the tax authorities of changes to a taxable person's ST registration details may result in a penalty ranging from JOD100 to JOD500. For further details, see the subsection Changes to ST registration details above.

Penalties for fraud. A person who commits a criminal tax fraud offense is liable for a civil compensation penalty payable to the ISTD of not less than twice and not more than three times the tax due, and a criminal penalty of not less than JOD200 and not more than JOD1,000. For a second offense, the criminal penalty imposed is doubled. If the offense occurs again within one year thereafter, the court may impose the highest criminal fine or a term of imprisonment for a period not less than three months and not exceeding six months, or both.

Personal liability for company officers. Company officers who hold shares and have been granted the powers of management can be held personally liable.

Statute of limitations. The statute of limitations in Jordan is four years. During this period the ISTD can go back and review ST returns, identify errors and impose penalties for any late filings or unpaid ST amounts. There is no time limit for taxable persons to voluntarily correct errors in previous ST returns. If a taxable person submits an amended ST return, the statute of limitations period resets.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- Supplies of goods, work and services in/from Kazakhstan
- Imports of goods

For VAT purposes, taxable turnover is the total of practically all types of supplies (for example, sales, exchanges or gifts) of goods, work and services. Goods include practically all forms of property or property rights. Taxable supplies of services are any supplies of work or services that are made for consideration or made free of charge or anything that is performed for consideration and is not a supply of goods.

Goods, works and services are subject to VAT if, under the place of supply rules, they are deemed to be supplied in Kazakhstan.

The place of supply of goods is deemed to be the following:
- Goods sent by the supplier, the recipient or a third party: the place where the transportation of the goods begins
- For all other cases: the place where the goods are handed over to the purchaser

The place of supply of work and services is based on the nature of the executed transactions. Work and services connected with immovable property (e.g., buildings and installations) are deemed to be supplied in Kazakhstan if such property is located in Kazakhstan. The place of supply of certain services that are provided outside Kazakhstan is deemed to be in Kazakhstan if the purchaser of such services is in Kazakhstan. Such services include, but are not limited to, the following:
- The transfer of rights to use items of intellectual property, e.g., maintenance and software updates
- Provision of access to online resources
- Consulting
- Audit
- Engineering
- Legal
- Accounting
- Design
- Advertising and marketing services
- Staff provision
- The leasing of movable property (other than means of transport)
- Agency services connected with the purchase of goods, work and services
- Consent to limit or terminate entrepreneurial activities for consideration
- Communication services
- Radio and television services
- Rent of freight wagons and containers

Effective use and enjoyment. To avoid instances of non-taxation or double taxation, jurisdictions can apply "use and enjoyment" rules that allow a service that is "used and enjoyed" in the jurisdiction to be taxed or prevent a service that is "used and enjoyed" outside the jurisdiction from being taxed. If a service is taxed in the jurisdiction under the "use and enjoyment" provisions, a non-established supplier of the service may be required to register for VAT in every jurisdiction where it has customers that are not taxable persons. In Kazakhstan, no services are subject to the "use and enjoyment" provisions.

Transfer of a going concern. Transfer of going concern rules do not apply in Kazakhstan. As such, VAT applies to all sales of a business or part of a business capable of separate operation including assets.

Transactions between related parties. In Kazakhstan, there are no specific rules that indicate the value for VAT purposes for transactions between related parties. However, there are transfer pricing controls (that also apply for VAT) that apply to transactions with both related and unrelated parties. If the tax authorities identify a deviation from the market/arm's-length price on transactions between related parties, the tax authorities may assess additional taxes and administrative fines of 80% of understated tax liabilities. Also, per the transfer pricing law, taxable persons should maintain appropriate documentation supporting the prices used in transactions between related parties, which should be available upon the tax authorities' request.

C. Who is liable

Taxable persons are legal entities, individual entrepreneurs, individuals who participate in private practice and nonresident legal entities, having registered a presence in Kazakhstan (e.g., a branch), that are registered for VAT purposes as well as importers of goods into Kazakhstan. In addition, see the Digital economy subsection below for details on special rules for nonresident providers of e-commerce sales of goods and electronically supplied services.

Exemption from registration. The VAT law in Kazakhstan does not contain any provisions for exemption from VAT registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. Voluntary VAT registration is possible in Kazakhstan. However, individuals, who are not individual entrepreneurs; government agencies; nonresidents acting without a branch or representative office (except for those mentioned in the Digital economy subsection below), structural subdivisions of resident legal entities (e.g., through a branch) and gambling businesses do not have the right to voluntarily register for VAT purposes.

Group registration. Group VAT registration is not allowed in Kazakhstan.

Fixed establishment. In Kazakhstan, there is no legal definition of a fixed establishment for VAT purposes. However, there are permanent establishment (PE) rules set out in the income tax law that also apply for VAT. A PE of a nonresident is deemed to be a place of provision of services, i.e., performances of works in Kazakhstan via employees or other personnel, hired by such nonresident for provision of services, during the period exceeding 183 days in any consecutive 12-calendar months from the first date of business activities within same or connected projects. Nonresident legal entities operating in Kazakhstan through a PE are required to register with the tax authorities. There are some special provisions for certain categories of taxable persons applying special tax regimes, e.g., farming companies, agricultural producers, or subsoil users. Whereas a PE of a nonresident foreign company is subject to general taxation regime.

Non-established businesses. Foreign legal entities, which do not have a registered branch/representative office in Kazakhstan, cannot be registered for VAT in Kazakhstan. The rules are the same for supplies of goods and services, and business-to-business (B2B) and business-to-consumer (B2C) supplies. In addition, see the Digital economy subsection below for details on special rules for nonresident providers of e-commerce sales of goods and electronically supplied services.

If a foreign business has a branch/representative office in Kazakhstan, then it can register for VAT voluntarily (no thresholds). However, where a foreign business has a branch/representative office, then it must register for VAT where its turnover exceeds during the calendar year 20,000 times the monthly calculation index (MCI) (approx. USD160,000). The registration procedure is as per the details below. Once registered for VAT, the foreign business can recover input tax on local supplies (subject to normal rules).

Tax representatives. Tax representatives are not required in Kazakhstan. However, a taxable person has the right to participate in relations regulated by the Kazakhstan tax legislation through a legal or authorized representative, except for the cases of submission of the following:

- Tax reporting of VAT by a taxable person deregistered for VAT by decision of the tax authority
- A tax application for registration for VAT purposes

Reverse charge. If a nonresident that is not registered for VAT purposes in Kazakhstan renders services for which the place of supply is Kazakhstan to a Kazakhstan purchaser and if the purchaser is a taxable person, the purchaser must self-assess and pay VAT through a reverse-charge mechanism. A Kazakhstan purchaser of the services can offset the amount of the reverse-charge VAT paid, subject to the general offset procedure.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Kazakhstan.

Digital economy. Nonresident providers of electronically supplied services for B2B supplies are not required to register and account for VAT in Kazakhstan. Instead, the customer is required to self-account for the VAT due via the reverse-charge mechanism (see the Reverse charge subsection above).

Nonresident providers of e-commerce B2C sales of goods and electronically supplied services are required to register and account for VAT in Kazakhstan. This is with effect from 1 January 2022. Nonresident providers are required to conditionally VAT register in Kazakhstan and pay VAT liabilities to the state budget of Kazakhstan.

The basic definitions of such supplies are as follows:
- Services in electronic form: services provided to individuals through telecommunications networks and the internet
- Electronic trade in goods: entrepreneurial activity involving the sale of goods to individuals via an internet platform
- Internet platform: an information system on the internet organizing electronic trade in goods

There is no threshold for conditional VAT registration of such nonresidents in Kazakhstan. For conditional VAT registration, a nonresident provider must send a confirmation letter by post to the Kazakhstan tax authorities with the following details:
- The full name of the entity
- Tax registration number (or its equivalent), if the nonresident has such a number in its country of incorporation or country of residence
- Number of state registration (or its equivalent) in the nonresident's country of incorporation or country of residence
- Bank details to be used for the payment of VAT on electronic trade in goods or provision of electronic services to individuals
- Postal details (official email address, address in the nonresident's country of incorporation or country of residence)

Also, for conditional VAT registration, a nonresident provider must mail a paper confirmation letter to the Kazakhstan tax authorities with, among other things, a list of details, including merchant ID data used for the receipt of payments and/or money transfers. A merchant ID is a unique set of symbols identifying a foreign company as the recipient of payment and/or a money transfer using payment systems.

A nonresident provider must assess VAT liability when carrying out e-commerce sales of goods and electronically supplied services to individuals if one of the following conditions is met:
- The buyer (an individual) lives in Kazakhstan.
- The bank in which a bank account is opened or used by an individual buyer to pay for services, or the electronic money operator through which the buyer (an individual) pays for services, is located in Kazakhstan.
- The network address of the buyer (an individual) that is used for the purchase of services is registered in Kazakhstan.
- The buyer uses a telephone number with the international country code assigned to Kazakhstan to purchase or pay for electronic services.

The value of e-commerce sales of goods and electronically supplied services to individuals in foreign currency must be converted into KZT (the Kazakhstani tenge, Kazakhstan's domestic currency) at the market exchange rate set on the last working day preceding the date of receipt of payment for the goods or services.

A nonresident provider is generally not required to file VAT returns. However, a nonresident provider must pay the assessed VAT no later than the 25th day of the second month following the quarter in which goods and services were sold.

Nonresident providers are not required to issue Kazakhstan's statutory VAT invoices for e-commerce sale of goods and electronically supplied services to individuals.

VAT will not be assessed on e-commerce sales of goods and electronically supplied services to individuals if:
- The value of goods or services is included in the customs value under the legislation of the Eurasian Economic Union (EAEU) (Kazakhstan, Armenia, Belarus, Kyrgyzstan and Russian Federation) or the customs legislation of Kazakhstan, according to which VAT on imported goods is paid to the state budget of Kazakhstan and is not refundable.
- The value of such goods or services is included in the amount of taxable imports, according to which VAT on imported goods from EAEU countries is paid to the state budget of Kazakhstan and is not refundable.

Additionally, VAT will not be assessed or paid for e-commerce sales of goods and electronically supplied services to individuals for the portion exceeding the value and/or weight norm determined under the customs legislation of the EAEU and/or Kazakhstan, according to which customs duties and taxes are paid in Kazakhstan in the form of a cumulative customs payment and are not refundable.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Kazakhstan.

Registration procedures. VAT registration, a process separate from tax registration, is either compulsory or voluntary.

Resident legal entities, branches or representative offices of nonresident legal entities and private entrepreneurs must register for VAT if their turnover during the calendar year exceeds 20,000 times the MCI. The threshold is approx. USD160,000 for 2024. The MCI is established by the state budget law for each year. For 2024, the MCI is KZT3,692 (approx. USD8).

Legal entities that are not subject to compulsory VAT registration have the right to submit an application for VAT registration to the tax authority at their location in person or electronically.

Whether the applicant is required to register or is registering voluntarily, several rules are the same:
- The tax authority shall, within one working day from the submission of an application for VAT registration, register the taxable person by issuing a certificate of VAT registration.
- The applicant becomes a taxable person from the date of submission of the application.

In addition, see the Digital economy subsection above for details on special rules for nonresident providers of e-commerce sales of goods and electronically supplied services.

Deregistration. A taxable person may submit an application for VAT deregistration to the local tax authorities if the following conditions are simultaneously met:
- The taxable turnover for the calendar year preceding the year in which the tax application is submitted did not exceed approx. USD160,000.
- The taxable turnover for the period from the beginning of the current calendar year in which the tax application is submitted did not exceed approx. USD160,000.

The following documents should be submitted for VAT deregistration:
- An application for VAT deregistration
- A liquidation VAT declaration

Tax authorities should deregister a taxable person within five working days from the date of submission of a tax application. The date of VAT deregistration shall be the date of submission of the tax application to the tax authority.

The tax authorities will deregister the taxable person without notification if, for example:
- The VAT declaration or gambling business tax return is not submitted within six months after the due date established by the Tax Code.
- The taxable person is declared to be in abeyance.
- The registration of the legal entity is recognized to be invalid based on a court decision that has taken effect.

Changes to VAT registration details. A taxable person must notify changes to its registration details to the tax authorities based on a tax application for changing the registration data of a taxable person. Such an application must be submitted to the tax authority at the location of the taxable person (tax agent) no later than 10 working days from the date of the change.

The tax authorities make changes to the registration data of a taxable person within three working days from the date of receipt of the information from the national registers of identification numbers, authorized state bodies, banks or organizations engaged in certain types of banking operations, or a tax application for registration.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods, work and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero-rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 12%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for the zero rate or an exemption.

For imports of goods by individuals under the simplified procedure, VAT may be paid as part of the aggregate customs payment, the amount of which is determined in accordance with the customs law of Kazakhstan.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Export sales of goods, except for those that are exempt from VAT
- International transportation services
- Sale of oil and lubricants by airports and ground handling services providers when fueling aircraft of a foreign air carrier performing international flights
- Sale of refined gold to the National Bank or for export
- Sale of goods to the territory of Special Economic Zones

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods, work and services not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Turnover associated with land for residential purposes and residential buildings
- Specified financial services
- Services rendered by noncommercial organizations
- Services in the areas of culture, science and education
- Goods and services related to medical and veterinary activities
- Import of certain assets (a list is issued by the government)
- Goods imported by individuals not for entrepreneurial purposes (subject to certain limitations)

- Turnovers related to international transportation services
- Import of goods from the territory of a Eurasian Economic Union member country within the same legal entity (e.g., intra-entity transaction)
- Imports of raw cane sugar to stimulate the production of sugar (with effect from 1 January 2023)
- Imports of chemicals (raw materials) for the production of pesticides under certain conditions specified by the Code (with effect from 1 January 2023 to 1 January 2026)
- Imports of works of art imported by non-state museums and approved by the list of authorized body in the field of culture in agreement with the central authorized body for state planning
- Goods, works and services on a gratuitous basis within the framework of charitable assistance by a nonprofit organization established in the form of a fund in accordance with the civil legislation of the Republic of Kazakhstan
- Sale of refined gold and/or silver by entities producing precious metals to entities producing jewelry and other products (with effect from 1 January 2023 to 1 January 2028)

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Kazakhstan.

E. Time of supply

The time of supply is the date that a sale of goods, work or services is completed, which is the date on which the goods are shipped (transferred), work is performed, or services are rendered. The date of the performance of work or the rendering of services is the date of signing of an act of acceptance for work performed or services rendered.

For goods that are not shipped, the date of completion of a sale is the date on which ownership of the goods is transferred to the purchaser.

Deposits and prepayments. There are no special time of supply rules in Kazakhstan for deposits and prepayments. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

Continuous supplies of services. The time of supply for certain continuous supplies is the last day of the calendar month in which the goods are delivered, work is performed, or services are rendered.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules in Kazakhstan for supplies of goods sent on approval for sale or return. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

Reverse-charge services. The reverse-charge mechanism is triggered by the purchase of certain services from a nonresident entity based on one of the following documents:
- Act of works (services) acceptance
- In the absence of the above, a document (except for the VAT invoice), confirming the performance of the work, with the document prepared in compliance with the Kazakhstan legislation on accounting and financial reporting

The date of signing of one of the above documents should be considered as the time of supply, when VAT is due to be accounted for on the supply by way of the reverse-charge mechanism.

Leased assets. There are no special time of supply rules in Kazakhstan for supplies of operational leases. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

However, the time of supply rules for supplies of financial leases depends on the type of the arrangement, as per the following:
- The date of receipt of the periodic lease payment established by the leasing agreement, without taking into account the amount of remuneration
- The date of transferring the property to financial leasing

Imported goods. The time of supply is the date of importation of goods on to Kazakhstan.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

The VAT liability of a taxable person equals the output tax (VAT charged by a taxable person) less input tax (VAT paid by a taxable person to its suppliers) in a reporting period.

VAT paid on services, work and goods purchased by a taxable person (input tax), including reverse-charge VAT paid and VAT paid at customs, is generally available for offset (credit) in determining a taxable person's VAT liability to the budget. However, offsetting is not available for VAT incurred for the purpose of making supplies that are either exempt or deemed to be supplied outside Kazakhstan.

The excess of input tax over output tax may generally be carried forward for offset against future VAT liabilities.

The time limit for a taxable person to reclaim input tax in Kazakhstan is three to five years, depending on the category of the taxable person. For further details, see Section J. Penalties, subsection Statute of limitations below.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax is not allowed for offset if purchased goods, works or services are used for nontaxable supplies. In such cases, the respective input tax is not deductible for VAT but could be considered for deduction for corporate income tax purposes.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Receipt of goods, work and services not related to taxable turnover
- Receipt of passenger cars that are purchased as fixed assets
- The VAT invoice does not meet the set requirements of the Tax Code
- Goods and services purchased in petty cash for an amount exceeding 1,000 MCI (inclusive of VAT) irrespective of the frequency of the payment
- Purchase of goods, work and services from suppliers recognized by courts as invalid
- Purchase of goods, work and services that are recognized by courts as executed by private business entities without an actual intent to carry out entrepreneurial activities

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Capital assets
- Intangible and biological assets
- Investments in immovable property

Partial exemption. Input tax directly related to a taxable person's taxable supplies is recoverable in full, whereas input tax directly related to exempt supplies is not recoverable at all and must be expensed for corporate income tax purposes.

Where a taxable person makes both taxable and exempt supplies, the input tax incurred in relation to both supplies (i.e., overheads, like office rent expenses) must be allocated accordingly to the extent the input tax incurred relates to the taxable and exempt supplies made.

The statutory method of apportionment is a pro rata calculation, based on the value of taxable supplies made in the total turnover of the business. The allocation can be calculated by using either the mentioned proportional method or the separate (direct) method. The method that the taxable person uses should be chosen by the VAT payer and stated in the tax accounting policy of the taxable person. Approval from the tax authorities is not required to use the partial exemption statutory method in Kazakhstan. Special methods are not allowed in Kazakhstan.

Capital goods. There are no special input tax recovery rules for capital goods. As such, normal input tax rules apply (as outlined above).

Refunds. Generally, in practice, obtaining refunds requires significant effort. However, the rules prescribe a procedure for refunds under certain conditions.

Under the Tax Code of the Republic of Kazakhstan, currently in effect, the following amounts are refundable to a taxable person from the budget:
- Input tax exceeding the amount of tax assessed not related to zero-rated turnover, up to the amount of reverse-charge VAT paid
- VAT paid to the suppliers of goods and services that were used for the purposes of zero-rated turnovers (subject to certain conditions below)
- VAT paid to suppliers of goods, work and services that were acquired using a grant
- VAT paid by diplomatic and equivalent representations accredited in Kazakhstan and by persons who are members of the diplomatic, administrative and technical staff of these representations, including members of their families who reside with them, to suppliers of goods, work and services acquired in Kazakhstan
- The amount of any cash overpayment of VAT to the budget

Under current tax legislation, the excess of input tax related to zero-rated turnover is refundable if the following conditions are met simultaneously:
- The taxable person sells zero-rated goods, work and services on a continuous basis.
- Zero-rated sales account for at least 70% of the total taxable sales of the taxable person for the tax period in which the zero-rated sales occurred and for which a refund of excess VAT is claimed in a VAT return.

Excess VAT must be refunded to a taxable person on the basis of a refund claim made in the VAT return for a tax period.

Excess VAT confirmed by a tax audit must be refunded:
- Within 55 calendar days – for the taxable persons who have zero-rated sales account for at least 70% of the total taxable sales for the tax period in which the zero-rated sales occurred and for which a refund of excess VAT is claimed in a VAT return
- Within 75 calendar days – in all other cases

A simplified VAT refund could apply if (i) a taxable person has been on tax authorities' monitoring of large taxable persons for at least 12 consecutive months (70% of excess VAT is refunded without tax audit) and (ii) a producer of its own goods of manufacturing industry, which are approved by a competent authority (50% of excess VAT is refunded without tax audit) or (iii) taxable persons who converted at least 50% of the foreign exchange earnings received from the export of goods for taxable period, (iv) zero-rated sales turnovers subject to specific conditions (50% of excess VAT is refunded without tax audit), and (v) international transportation subject to specific conditions (50% of excess VAT is refunded without tax audit).

Pre-registration costs. Input tax incurred on pre-registration costs in Kazakhstan is not recoverable.

Bad debts. If part or all the amount of the claim for realized goods, works and services is considered a doubtful claim, the taxable person has the right to reduce the amount of taxable turnover on such a claim after three years from the beginning of the tax period, which is as follows:
- A period of fulfillment of the requirement for the realized goods, work, services, if such term is defined.
- The day of transfer of the goods, performance of work, rendering of services, term of execution of the requirement, which is not defined.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred on purchases that are used for noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Kazakhstan.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Input tax incurred by non-established businesses that are not registered for VAT in Kazakhstan is not recoverable.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. In general, a VAT invoice is a compulsory document for taxable persons. No input tax deduction is allowed without an appropriate VAT invoice.

The cost of goods, work and services and the amount of VAT must be stated in the VAT invoice in the national currency of Kazakhstan, except for goods, work and services sold under foreign-trade contracts and in other circumstances provided for by law.

Nonresident providers of e-commerce sales of goods and electronically supplied services to individuals (B2C supplies) are not required to issue Kazakhstan's statutory VAT invoices. See the Digital economy subsection above for further details.

Credit notes. A credit note is an additional VAT invoice issued by a supplier of goods, work and services in some circumstances, such as in the following cases:
- Adjustment of taxable turnover as described below
- Noncompliance with the conditions for transferring property to financial leasing for the purpose of applying tax benefits

The adjustment of the amount of taxable turnover shall take place in the tax period in which such adjustment took place.

The amount of taxable turnover can be adjusted if the cost of goods, work or services changes in certain circumstances, including the following:
- The goods are returned in whole or in part
- The conditions of a transaction change
- The price or amount of compensation for goods, work or services sold is changed
- The price discounts, sales discounts
- The return of packaging included in sales turnover
- Other cases, as a result of which there is a change in the amount of turnover

Adjustments to the amount of taxable turnover can be made if both of the following conditions are satisfied:
- Accounting primary documentation is available
- A corrected VAT invoice is issued or a cash register receipt (available in specified cases)

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is mandatory in Kazakhstan for all taxable persons.

Scope of electronic invoicing. For B2B, B2C and business-to-government (B2G) supplies, electronic invoicing is mandatory for all taxable persons in Kazakhstan. There is no threshold beyond which taxable persons are required to adopt electronic invoicing in Kazakhstan. The requirements related to electronic invoicing are the same as those for paper invoicing.

Issuance of an electronic VAT invoice is only possible by using the official online system of the tax authorities, which is specifically designated for receiving and processing of electronic VAT invoices. Electronic VAT invoices have an established format and should be signed by means of electronic signature. Generally, electronic invoices should be issued within 15 calendar days from the date of a taxable turnover.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified VAT invoicing is not allowed in Kazakhstan. As such, full VAT invoices are required.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Kazakhstan.

Proof of exports. To confirm the applicability of zero-rated VAT for turnover, the supplier must collect supporting documents that are stipulated in the tax law of Kazakhstan.

Foreign currency invoices. Values in VAT invoices should be indicated in the domestic currency, which is the Kazakhstani tenge (KZT). In certain cases, the invoice can additionally indicate the values in foreign currency.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. There are no special rules for VAT invoices issued to private consumers, and as such, full VAT invoices must be issued for all supplies.

Records. Records that must be held for VAT purposes in Kazakhstan include VAT returns, VAT invoices supplies and received, contracts and acts of acceptances.

In Kazakhstan, VAT books and records can be kept outside of the country. However, note that it is not completely clear in the VAT law whether VAT books and records should be kept in Kazakhstan or not. If VAT books and records are held outside of the country, they must be made readily available upon request by the tax authorities and easily accessible.

Record retention period. Records must be held currently for three years for general taxable persons and five years for (i) taxable persons that are subject to tax monitoring; (ii) taxable persons who carry out activities in accordance with subsoil use contracts; (iii) Kazakhstani residents who have controlled foreign companies.

For records dated 2019 and prior years, the record retention period is five years for all taxable persons.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is allowed in Kazakhstan. All VAT returns and VAT invoices must be kept and archived electronically within the online system for electronic VAT return filing and have their own status (i.e., draft, filed, received). Other original support documents should be stored in paper (e.g., contracts, invoices, acts of acceptance) during the statute of limitations period.

I. Returns and payments

Periodic returns. Taxable persons must file a VAT return with the tax authorities for each tax period by the 15th day of the second month following the reporting tax period (i.e., a quarter).

A VAT return for the import of goods into Kazakhstan from Eurasian Economic Union (EAEU) member countries must be filed with the tax authorities by the 20th day of the month following the tax period (month). Nonresident providers of e-commerce sales of goods and electronically supplied services to individuals (B2C supplies) are generally not required to file VAT returns. See the Digital economy subsection above for further details.

Periodic payments. The VAT due for the VAT return must be paid to the budget by the 25th day of the second month following the reporting tax period.

The VAT due for the import of goods into Kazakhstan from other EAEU member countries must be paid to the budget by the 20th day of the month following the tax period (i.e., one month).

VAT on imported goods must be paid within deadlines specified by the customs law of Kazakhstan for the payment of customs payments.

VAT is paid online by bank transfer to the bank account of the Ministry of Finance.

Nonresident providers of e-commerce sales of goods and electronically supplied services to individuals (B2C supplies) must pay the assessed VAT no later than the 25th day of the second month following the quarter in which goods and services were sold. For further details, see the subsection Digital economy above.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is allowed in Kazakhstan, but not mandatory. However, while not mandatory, electronically filing is widely used in Kazakhstan. There is a special online system designated for electronic filing of VAT returns (http://cabinet.salyk.kz site or SONO software). All taxable persons can file tax returns and some tax applications via this online system provided they have obtained a special electronic key (i.e., an electronic signature).

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Kazakhstan.

Special schemes. Import VAT. Taxable persons may pay a remaining amount of import VAT on certain goods by the offset method or take the amount of import VAT already paid.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Kazakhstan.

Supplementary filings. Import and Export filing. The Tax Code includes certain procedures and monthly compliance requirements for exports and imports of goods to and from Kazakhstan from and to other countries in the EAEU (Armenia, Belarus, Kyrgyzstan and Russian Federation). An application (Form 328.00) and VAT return (Form 320.00) for import of goods into Kazakhstan from other EAEU Member States must be filed with the tax authorities within the established deadlines.

Correcting errors in previous returns. Taxable persons can adjust the amount of taxable turnover and errors/omissions in previously filed returns by filing an additional tax return for prior periods within the statute of limitation period (see the Statute of limitations subsection below) stating the amounts of adjustments. Such corrections can be submitted online or on paper.

Digital tax administration. Virtual warehouse module. The full module of "virtual warehouse" is obligatory for the reporting of goods included in the list of exceptions (e.g., motor vehicles, certain household equipment, sugar). The "virtual warehouse" was created for the purposes of systematization of inventory accounting, automatic calculation of inventory ending balance and monitoring of the transfer of goods from entry into Kazakhstan to the final consumer. Inventory handling procedures should be maintained through the "virtual warehouse" for certain other categories of goods (e.g., alcohol, tobacco products, oil products). The list of goods for which electronic invoices should be issued through the "virtual warehouse" increased with effect from 1 April 2022 and later increased with effect from 1 November 2022.

Accompanying notes. Electronic accompanying note (electronic waybill) should be issued upon the movement, supply and/or shipment of certain goods in/from Kazakhstan. The accompanying note should be submitted by taxable persons in the "virtual warehouse" module of the electronic invoicing informational system and signed with an electronic digital signature. Issuance of accompanying notes is obligatory for certain goods. The list of goods for which it is obligatory to issue accompanying notes is established by authorized body.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. The penalty for late registration is 50 MCI (approx. USD400). In addition, a fine of 15% is charged on the amount of turnover earned during the period of non-registration (for which the taxable person was required to register from).

Penalties for late payment and filings. The penalty for failure to file a tax return: for a first time leads to a warning, while if committed repeatedly within a year leads to penalties (i) for small enterprises or noncommercial organizations in the amount of 30 MCI (approx. USD240), (ii) for medium enterprises in the amount of 45 MCI (approx. USD360) and (iii) 70 MCI (approx. USD560) for large enterprises.

The penalty for understatement of tax payments: (i) for small enterprises or noncommercial organizations in the amount of 20%, (ii) for medium enterprises in the amount of 50% and (iii) 80% for large enterprises of the underpaid tax.

The annual interest rate charged on late payments is equal to 1.25 times the official base rate established by the National Bank of the Republic of Kazakhstan.

Penalties for errors. The penalty for the issue of fictitious invoice is up to 100% for small enterprises, 200% for medium enterprises and 300% for large enterprises of the VAT amount indicated in the invoice.

The penalty for nonpayment of tax for export and import of goods, work and services in the Eurasian Economic Union: up to 50 MCI (approx. USD400).

The penalty for non-issuance of electronic VAT invoice: for a first time leads to a warning, while if committed repeatedly within a year to a penalty up to 40 MCI to 150 MCI (approx. USD320 to USD1,200).

There are no specific penalties associated with the late notification or failure to notify changes to a taxable person's VAT registration. However, it is likely that the taxable person will be sent a warning for the first offense and then a small fine may be charged for further offenses. For further details, see the subsection Changes to VAT registration details above.

Penalties for fraud. Additional assessments made by the state revenue authorities as a result of a tax audit may serve as grounds for initiation of criminal proceedings and imposition of criminal liability on the management of the taxable person.

Personal liability for company officers. Company officers can be held personally liable for errors and omissions in VAT declarations and reporting in Kazakhstan.

Criminal liability applies for certain tax offenses in Kazakhstan. If underpaid tax exceeds 50,000 MCI (approx. USD400,000), a criminal investigation may be initiated. Violations may result in prosecution of company officers who are thought to be responsible.

Statute of limitations. The statute of limitations in Kazakhstan is three years, and it is five years for certain categories of taxable persons. The statute of limitation is currently three years for general taxable persons and five years for (i) taxable persons that are subject to tax monitoring, (ii) taxable persons who carry out activities in accordance with subsoil use contracts and (iii) Kazakhstani residents who have controlled foreign companies. The statute of limitation for 2019 and prior years is five years for all taxable persons.

B. Scope of the tax

In Kenya, VAT applies to the following transactions:

- The supply of goods and services in Kenya by a taxable person
- Taxable imported services received by any person in Kenya to the extent they relate to exempt supplies

- The importation of goods from outside Kenya, regardless of the status of the importer (unless the importer is listed as zero-rated in Part B of the Second Schedule to the VAT Act)
- Electronic, internet and digital marketplace supplies for business-to-consumer (B2C) and business-to-business (B2B) supplies from 1 July 2022

Effective use and enjoyment. To avoid instances of non-taxation or double taxation, jurisdictions can apply "use and enjoyment" rules that allow a service that is "used and enjoyed" in the jurisdiction to be taxed or prevent a service that is "used and enjoyed" outside the jurisdiction from being taxed. If a service is taxed in the jurisdiction under the "use and enjoyment" provisions, a non-established supplier of the service may be required to register for VAT in every jurisdiction where it has customers that are not taxable persons. In Kenya, no services are subject to the "use and enjoyment" provisions.

Transfer of a going concern. Transfer of going concern rules do not apply in Kenya. As such, VAT applies to all sales of a business or part of a business capable of separate operation, including assets. A TOGC by a registered person to another registered person is taxable at the standard rate of 16% with effect from 25 April 2020.

Transactions between related parties. In Kenya, for a transaction between related parties, the value for VAT purposes is calculated on an arm's-length basis, i.e., at open market value.

C. Who is liable

VAT is paid by consumers of taxable goods and services. It is collected by registered taxable persons (traders) that act as the agents of the government. VAT on imported goods is collected by the Commissioner of Customs and Border Control Department, while the Commissioner of Domestic Taxes collects local VAT and VAT on imported services (reverse VAT).

VAT registration is dependent on the attainment of a turnover threshold of KES5 million with respect to all taxable supplies. After reaching this threshold, they must register for VAT. Within 30 days after becoming a taxable person, a person should apply to the Commissioner of Domestic Taxes to be registered in the prescribed manner. Businesses whose turnover is less than the registration threshold can voluntarily apply to the Commissioner for registration.

Exemption from registration. The VAT law in Kenya does not contain any provision for exemption from registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. The VAT Act provides for voluntary VAT registration for business providing taxable supplies but have not exceeded the turnover threshold for VAT registration. The registration is granted under the following conditions:

- The person is making or shall make taxable supplies.
- The person has a fixed place of business.
- The person has kept proper books of accounts, if he has commenced business, or there are reasonable grounds to believe that the person will keep proper books of accounts, if he has not commenced business.

Group registration. The Kenyan VAT Act allows group registration. However, no guidelines have been provided in the VAT Act or Regulations.

Section 34 (9) of the VAT Act states that "the Cabinet Secretary may, in regulations, provide for the registration of a group of companies as one registered person for the purposes of the Act." Part 2 of the VAT regulations only interprets member in regard to group registration. However, it does not contain any provisions for the same. Therefore, in practice, group VAT registration does not take place in Kenya.

At the time of preparing this chapter, the guidelines on group VAT registration are still not issued. As such, it is not clear if group members are jointly and severally liable for VAT debts and penalties or if there is a minimum duration for a VAT group.

Fixed establishment. In Kenya there is no legal definition of a fixed establishment for VAT purposes. However, a permanent establishment (PE) is defined as follows under the income tax laws (and applied for VAT):

- A fixed place of business through which business is wholly or partly carried on. This includes a place of management; a branch, office, factory, or workshop; a mine, oil or gas well, quarry or any other place of extraction or exploitation of natural resources; a warehouse in relation to a person whose business is providing storage facilities to others; a farm, plantation or other place where agricultural, forestry plantation or related activities are carried out; and a sale outlet.
- A building site, construction, assembly or installation project or any supervisory activity connected to the site or project, but only if it continues for a period of more than 183 days.
- The provision of services, including consultancy services, by a person through employees or other personnel engaged for that purpose, but only where the services or connected business in Kenya continue for a period of, or periods exceeding in the aggregate, 91 days in any 12-month period commencing or ending in the year of income concerned.
- An installation or structure used in the exploration for natural resources where the exploration activities continue for periods not less than 91 days.
- A dependent agent of a person who acts on their behalf in respect of any activities which that person undertakes in Kenya including habitually concluding contracts or playing the principal role leading to the conclusion of contracts that are routinely concluded without material modification by the person.

However, the definition of a permanent establishment excludes the following activities where the activities are of a preparatory or auxiliary character:

- The use of facilities solely for the purpose of storage or display of goods or merchandise belonging to the enterprise.
- The maintenance of a stock of goods or merchandise belonging to the enterprise solely for the purpose of storage, or display.
- The maintenance of a stock of goods or merchandise belonging to the enterprise solely for the purpose of processing by another enterprise.
- The maintenance of a fixed place of business solely for the purpose of purchasing goods or merchandise, or of collecting information for the enterprise.
- The maintenance of a fixed place of business solely for the purpose of carrying on for the enterprise any other activity
- The maintenance of a fixed place of business solely for any combination of activities mentioned above

For VAT law, where a nonresident person has PE in Kenya, VAT is applicable on the supply of goods or services as provided under the VAT law. Nonresident persons are advised to evaluate their transactions in Kenya to determine whether they create a PE.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that has no fixed establishment in Kenya. A foreign business that meets the registration requirements in Kenya and does not have a fixed place of business in Kenya is required to appoint a tax representative. A permanent establishment of a foreign business must register for VAT if it makes taxable supplies of goods or services.

Tax representatives. A person who is required to apply for VAT registration but who does not have a fixed place of business in Kenya should appoint a tax representative.

The registration of the tax representative shall be in the name of the nonresident person being represented.

The tax representative of a nonresident person shall:
- Be a person normally residing in Kenya
- Have the responsibility for doing all things required of the nonresident
- With the nonresident person, be jointly and severally liable for the payment of all taxes, fines, penalties, and interest imposed

Reverse charge. Reverse-charge VAT is applicable on importation of taxable services to the extent it relates to the provision of exempt supplies. Effective 7 November 2019, the liability to account for VAT on imported services applies to any importer, irrespective of their VAT registration status. The reverse-charge VAT should be accounted by any person to the extent they are not entitled to input tax credit payable on the imported taxable services. Effective 1 July 2022, supplies imported over the internet or an electronic network or through the digital marketplace are exempt from the reverse-charge mechanism.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Kenya.

Digital economy. The VAT Act defines "electronic services" as any of the following services, when provided or delivered on or through a telecommunications network:
- Websites, web hosting or remote maintenance of programs and equipment
- Software and the updating of software
- Images, text and information
- Access to databases
- Self-education packages, excluding education services exempted in the VAT law
- Music, films and games, including games of chance
- Political, cultural, artistic, sporting, scientific and other broadcasts and events, including broadcast television

A supply of electronic services is made in Kenya if the place of business of the supplier from which the services are supplied is in Kenya. If the place of business of the supplier is not in Kenya, the supply of the services shall be deemed to be made in Kenya if the recipient of the supply is either a registered or not a registered person and the electronic services are delivered to a person in Kenya at the time of supply. As such, nonresidents supplying electronic, internet or digital marketplace supplies must register and account for VAT in Kenya under a simplified VAT (and/or digital services tax) registration framework. These suppliers are exempted from the VAT registration threshold of KES5 million; as such, there is no threshold from the first supply the supplier must register and account for VAT. This is for both B2C and B2B supplies of e-commerce.

There are no other specific e-commerce rules for imported goods in Kenya.

Online marketplaces and platforms. The National Treasury and Planning gazetted the VAT (Digital Marketplace Supply) Regulations 2020 on 10 September 2020 now deleted and replaced by VAT (electronic, internet and digital marketplace supply) Regulations, 2023. The Regulations provide for a simplified registration framework that includes the filing in of an online registration form prescribed by the Commissioner. Upon registration under this framework, the Commissioner shall issue the applicant with a PIN for the purpose of filing returns and the payment of tax. The Regulation has set out an all-encompassing scope of taxable supplies, that includes any services that are not exempt from tax under the VAT Act of charging VAT on the taxable supplies in Kenya through a digital marketplace, over the internet or an electronic network by B2C transactions.

The regulations came into effect on 1 January 2021. With effect from 1 July 2022, B2B supplies were also brought in the ambit of VAT on digital services following the amendment of the Kenya VAT law to exempt supplies made over the digital marketplace from the reverse-charge mechanism.

VAT is applicable to taxable electronic, internet or digital marketplace supplies made in Kenya. An "electronic, internet or digital marketplace supply" means the supply made over the internet, an electronic network or any digital marketplace. These supplies include:
- Downloadable digital content, including downloadable mobile applications, eBooks and films
- Subscription-based media, including news magazines and journals
- Over-the-top services, including streaming television shows, films, music, podcasts and any form of digital content
- Software programs, including software, drivers, website filters and firewalls
- Electronic data management, including website hosting, online data warehousing, file sharing and cloud storage services
- Music and games
- Search engines and automated helpdesk services, including customizable search engine services
- Ticketing services for events, theatres, restaurants and similar services
- Online education programs, including distance teaching programs through prerecorded media, eLearning, education webcasts, webinars, online courses and training, but excluding education services exempted under the First Schedule to the Act
- Digital content for listening, viewing or playing on any audio, visual or digital media
- Services that link the supplier to the recipient, including transport hailing platforms
- Electronic services specified under section 8(3)
- Sales, licensing or any other form of monetizing data generated from users' activities
- Facilitation of online payment for, exchange or transfer of digital assets excluding services exempted under the Act
- Any other service provided through an electronic, internet and digital marketplace that is not exempt under the Act

Registration procedures. The registration process involves a person making an online application for a personal identification number (PIN). During this process, an entity is required to state its tax obligations including VAT.

Registration for all taxes is currently done online via the Kenya Revenue Authority (KRA) iTax portal (https://itax.kra.go.ke/KRA-Portal/) by filing an online form. The following documents/information are required for registration purposes:
- An iTax PIN certificate for one of the company directors
- A scanned copy of the national ID or passport for a Kenyan citizen or scanned copy of the alien ID and work permit for a noncitizen

On average, tax registration can take one to five days depending on the availability of information required for registration.

Deregistration. A registered person may apply to the commissioner for deregistration under the following circumstances:
- If the registered person ceases to make taxable supplies
- If the registered person's annual value of taxable supplies no longer exceeds the registration threshold

The Commissioner shall, by notice in writing, cancel the registration of a person in the following circumstances:
- The person has applied for cancellation and the Commissioner is satisfied that the person has ceased to make taxable supplies.

- The person has not applied for cancellation, but the Commissioner is satisfied that the person has ceased to make taxable supplies and is not otherwise required to be registered.

The Commissioner may cancel the registration of a person who is no longer required to be registered under the following circumstances:
- If the Commissioner is satisfied that the person has failed to keep proper tax records
- If the Commissioner is satisfied that the person has failed to furnish regular and reliable returns
- If the Commissioner is satisfied that the person has failed to comply with obligations under other revenue laws
- If there are reasonable grounds to believe that the person will not keep proper records or furnish regular and reliable returns

Changes to VAT registration details. Any changes to VAT registration details should be done online through the ITAX portal. A VAT registered person should notify the Commissioner of Domestic Taxes, in writing, of any changes in the name, address, place of business or nature of business of the person within 21 days of the change.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 16%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate, the zero rate or an exemption.

The special rate of 8% has been removed by the Finance Act 2023 with effect from 1 July 2023.

Effective 1 July 2023, as per Finance At 2023, the exportation of taxable services is now zero rated, which is an amendment to Finance Act 2022 which only qualified exported services relating to business process outsourcing (BPO) to be zero-rated.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Exportation of goods
- Goods and services supplied to Export Processing Zones
- Transportation of passengers by air carriers on international flight
- Goods and services supplied to Special Economic Zones
- Supplies to the Commonwealth
- Supplies to other governments
- Supplies to diplomats
- Liquified petroleum gas (LPG)
- Electric buses of tariff heading 87.02
- Solar and lithium-ion batteries
- Export of qualified export services relating to business process outsourcing (BPO) (effective 1 July 2023)

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Unprocessed agricultural products
- Direction-finding compasses
- Passenger baggage

- Financial services
- Insurance
- Medical services
- Agricultural and horticultural services and animal husbandry
- Transportation of passengers by any means of conveyance, excluding international air transport or where the means of conveyance is hired or chartered
- Entry fees into national parks and national reserves
- Taxable goods or services imported or locally purchased by a company that is incorporated for purposes of undertaking the manufacture of human vaccines or other manufacturing activities, including refining and whose capital investment is at least KES10 billion, subject to approval by CS National Treasury.

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Kenya.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point." In Kenya, the tax point is the earliest of the following events:

- The goods or services are supplied.
- A certificate is issued by an architect, surveyor or a consultant.
- An invoice is issued.
- Payment is received for all or part of the supply.

Deposits and prepayments. There are no special time of supply rules in Kenya for deposits and prepayments. As such, therefore the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

Continuous supplies of services. For continuous supplies, the time of each successive supply is the earlier of the date on which payment for the successive supply is due or received.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules in Kenya for supplies of goods sent on approval for sale or return. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

Reverse-charge services. Reverse-charge VAT is due on the importation of taxable services to the extent that the services relate to the provision of exempt supplies. Where imported taxable services relate to provision of taxable supplies, the net effect of accounting of reverse-charge VAT payable and claim of input tax (self-supply) is zero. There are no special time of supply rules in Kenya for the supply of reverse-charge services. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

Leased assets. VAT is due on lease rentals at the earlier of when the invoice is raised or when the payment is made.

Imported goods. The time of the supply for imported goods is either the date of importation or the date on which the goods leave a duty suspension regime.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax, which is VAT charged on goods and services supplied to it for business purposes. Input tax is claimed by deducting it from output tax, which is VAT charged on supplies made.

The time limit for a taxable person to reclaim input tax in Kenya is six months. Taxable persons must claim input tax within six months after incurring the expense. Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services purchased in Kenya and VAT paid on imports of goods.

Effective 1 July 2023, for a taxable person to be eligible to claim input tax on an eligible supply, they are required to have supporting documentation and the supplier must have declared the sales invoice in their VAT return.

Nondeductible input tax. VAT may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use by an entrepreneur). In addition, input tax may not be recovered on certain business expenses.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Leasing, hiring or acquisition of passenger cars or minibuses and the repair and maintenance thereof, including spare parts, unless the passenger cars and minibuses are acquired by the registered person exclusively for the purpose of making a taxable supply in the ordinary course of a continuous and regular business of selling and dealing in or hiring of passenger cars and minibuses
- Entertainment, restaurant and accommodation services unless:
  - The services are provided in the ordinary course of the business carried on by the person to provide the services, and the services are not supplied to an associate or employee
  - The services are provided while the recipient is away from home for the purposes of the business of the recipient or the recipient's employer

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible if related to a taxable business use

- Professional fees
- Utility costs

Partial exemption. VAT directly related to making exempt supplies is not recoverable. A registered person who makes both exempt and taxable supplies cannot recover VAT in full. This situation is referred to as "partial exemption."

Under the VAT Act, if a taxable person supplies both taxable and exempt goods and services, only input tax attributable to taxable supplies may be recovered. The following are the attribution rules:

- Input tax directly attributable to taxable goods purchased and sold in the same condition is deductible in full.
- Input tax directly attributable to exempt supplies may not be deducted.
- Attributable to both taxable and exempt supplies is partially deductible. The recoverable amount is calculated using a simple pro rata method based on the value of taxable and exempt supplies made.

If the exempt supplies are less than 10% of the total supplies, the input tax may be claimed in full. Where the exempt supplies constitute more than 90%, the registered person shall not be allowed any input tax attributable to taxable supplies.

Approval from the tax authorities is not required to use the partial exemption standard method in Kenya. Special methods are not allowed in Kenya.

Capital goods. "Capital goods" is not defined under the provisions of the VAT Act in Kenya, and there are no specific rules that outline input tax recovery on capital goods. General rules are applied for deduction of input tax. Specifically, deduction of input tax on passenger vehicles is restricted. In all other cases, deduction of input tax on capital goods depends on whether the business is dealing with exempt or taxable supplies. Where capital goods are used for both taxable and exempt supplies, the input tax should be claimed to the extent it relates to provision of taxable supplies.

Refunds. A taxable person may claim a refund of input tax in excess of output tax if the Commissioner is satisfied that the excess arises from making zero-rated supplies. The Commissioner may refund tax where the tax has been paid in error. A claim for tax paid in error must be filed within a period of one year (12 months) after the date on which the tax was paid. The taxable person can utilize the tax paid in error to offset against future tax liabilities.

Pre-registration costs. On the date a person is registered, and for the next three months, the taxable person may recover pre-registration input tax paid on taxable supplies intended for use in making taxable supplies, provided that those purchases of taxable supplies were completed no more than 24 months before the date of registration.

Bad debts. Where a registered person does not receive payment from a customer, it may, after a period of three years from the date of supply or where the person to whom the supply was made has been placed under statutory management through the appointment of an administrator, receiver or liquidator, apply to the Commissioner for a refund of the tax involved.. Effective 1 July 2023, the refund should be lodged before an expiry of 10 years from the date of supply. If legal insolvency does not apply, evidence of the effort to recover the tax is required to support such a claim.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred on purchases that are used for noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Kenya.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Input tax incurred by non-established businesses that are not registered for VAT in Kenya is not recoverable.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A supplier of taxable goods and services must issue a tax invoice to the purchaser at the time of supply.

Credit notes. A credit note may be used to reduce the VAT charged on a supply of goods or services. Credit notes must show the same information as a tax invoice and indicate the tax invoice date and number it relates to.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is mandatory in Kenya, for certain taxable persons.

Scope of electronic invoicing. For B2B, B2C and business-to-government (B2G) supplies, electronic invoicing is mandatory for certain taxable persons in Kenya.

An invoice must be generated electronically, provided it meets the prescribed conditions of a valid tax invoice. Effective 1 December 2022, tax invoices must be issued through a prescribed electronic tax register (ETR) or upgraded electronic signature device (ESD). The electronic register is an electronic tax invoicing or receipting system that is maintained and used in accordance with the VAT (electronic tax invoice) regulations. See the subsection Digital tax administration below for more detail.

The use of a electronic tax invoicing system is a mandatory requirement for all taxable persons who are liable to apply for VAT registration, i.e.,

- A company or individual who has made taxable supplies or expects to make taxable supplies, the value of which is KES5 million or more in any period of 12 months
- A company or individual who is about to commence making taxable supplies, the value of which is reasonably expected to exceed KES5 million in any period of 12 months. Nonresident VAT-registered taxable persons making supplies in Kenya are exempted from issuing electronic tax invoices, with the only requirement for them being issuing invoices or receipts showing the value of the supply made and tax charged. The KRA has issued a new directive through a public notice dated November 2023 requiring all taxable persons, including those not registered for VAT, to onboard on the electronic tax invoice management system (e-TIMS). While previously TIMS/e-TIMS was restricted to only taxable persons registered for VAT, the Finance Act 2023 introduced the following two critical provisions to widen the electronic invoicing scope:

- Section 23A of the Tax Procedures Act empowers the KRA to establish an electronic system for the issuance of tax invoices and maintenance of stock records. The requirement became effective on 1 September 2023. Emoluments, imports, investment allowances, interest, airline passenger ticketing and similar payments were exempted from the requirement to comply with e-TIMS. The Commissioner also has the power to exempt any person from the requirement by notice in the Gazette.
- Section 16(1)(c) of the Income Tax Act disallows the deduction of any expenses (for income tax purposes) that are not generated through TIMS/e-TIMS, effective 1 January 2024.

It is in this effect that the Commissioner exercised the powers provided under Section 23A of the Tax Procedures Act to remind all taxable persons carrying out business, including those not registered for VAT, to register and ensure electronic generation and transmission of invoice through e-TIMS with effect from 1 September 2023.

Therefore, all taxable persons carrying out business and whose operations are not exempted under Section 23A of the Tax Procedures Act are encouraged to onboard e-TIMS. The penalty associated with the default is twice the amount of tax due. Furthermore, invoices not generated through e-TIMS will not be eligible for deduction of expense in arriving at taxable income for corporation tax purposes.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified VAT invoicing is not allowed in Kenya. As such, full VAT invoices are required.

Self-billing. Self-billing is allowed in Kenya. It is only allowed for registered persons liable to tax for imported services and is entitled to a credit for part of the amount of input tax payable. They must prepare a tax invoice containing the following information:

- The name, address and PIN of the recipient
- The name and address of the supplier
- The individualized serial number of the tax invoice and the date on which the tax invoice is prepared
- A description of the services supplied and the date of the supply
- The extent to which the supply has been applied other than to make taxable supplies
- The consideration for the supply and the amount of tax charged

Proof of exports. Goods and taxable services exported from Kenya are zero-rated. The documentation treated as the proof of an exportation of goods or services includes the following:

- A copy of the invoice showing the recipient of the supply to be a person outside Kenya
- Proof of payment for the supply
- For goods, a copy of:
  - The bill of lading, road manifest or airway bill, as the case may be
  - The export or transfer entry certified by a proper officer of Customs at the port of exit (for single customs territory clearance cargo manifest (C2))
  - For excisable goods, a certificate of export (COE) issued from the customs systems (SIMBA or ICMS), in addition to endorsed export entry/single customs territory cargo manifest (C2)
- For services, such other documents as the Commissioner may require as proof that the services had been used or consumed outside Kenya

Foreign currency invoices. Foreign currency invoices are dealt with the same way as invoices in the domestic currency, which is the Kenyan shilling (KES). The tax authority does not require a standard exchange rate to be used to convert the value of foreign invoices into the domestic currency KES. In practice, they accept the rate used by the taxable person, if the rate used is within the prevailing market exchange rates.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. There are no special rules for invoices issued for supplies made by taxable persons to private consumers.

Records. In Kenya, examples of records that must be held for VAT purposes include:
- Copies of all tax invoices and simplified tax invoices issued, in serial number order
- Copies of all credit and debt notes issued, in chronological order
- Purchase invoices, copies of customs entries, receipts for the payment of customs duty or tax and credit and debit notes received
- Details of the amounts of tax charged on each supply made or received and in relation to all services to which Section 10 applies (i.e., on imported services), sufficient written evidence to identify the supplier and the recipient, and to show the nature and quantity of services supplied, the time of supply, the place of supply, the consideration for the supply and the extent to which the supply has been used by the recipient for a particular purpose
- Tax account showing the totals of the output tax and the input tax in each period and a net total of the tax payable, or the excess tax carried forward, as the case may be, at the end of each period
- Copies of stock records kept periodically as the Commissioner may determine
- Details of each supply of goods and services from the business premises, unless such details are available at the time of supply on invoices issued at, or before, that time
- Such other accounts or records as may be specified, in writing, by the Commissioner

In Kenya, VAT books and records can be held outside the country. Where the books are held outside Kenya, they must be provided upon request by the Commissioner.

Record retention period. Taxable persons must keep a full and true written record, whether in electronic form or otherwise, in English or Kiswahili of every transaction it makes, and the record must be kept in Kenya for a period of five years from the date of the last entry made therein.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is allowed in Kenya. Registered persons must keep records, including copies of tax invoices, in an electronic manner or otherwise (i.e., in paper form).

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. The VAT tax period is one month. Returns must be filed by the 20th day after the end of the tax period. A "nil" return must be filed in instances where the taxable person has not made any supplies. If the normal filing date falls on a public holiday or on a weekend, the VAT return and payment must be submitted on the last working day before that day. A person may apply to the Commissioner before the due date for submission of return for an extension of time to submit a return.

Periodic payments. Payment of VAT is due and received by the KRA in full by the same date as the VAT return submission deadline, i.e., by the 20th day after the end of the tax period. Upon filing the monthly VAT return, a person is required to generate a payment registration number (PRN), which is used to pay VAT at the Revenue Authority's (KRA) appointed banks or through cellular phones payment platforms (M-pesa).

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is mandatory in Kenya for all taxable persons. All returns must be filed electronically via the KRA i-Tax portal.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Kenya.

Special schemes. Withholding VAT. A person must be appointed by the Commissioner as a withholding VAT agent. Taxable supplies to an appointed withholding VAT agent are subject to withholding VAT at 2% of the taxable value. Withholding VAT agents include government ministries, parastatals, financial institutions and most of the major taxable persons, as they may be appointed by the Commissioner. A taxable person whose VAT has been withheld must account for the VAT balance.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Kenya.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in Kenya.

Correcting errors in previous returns. A taxable person can amend its VAT return online within six months. For returns exceeding six months, the returns can only be amended by KRA on application by the taxable person.

Digital tax administration. Electronic register. From September 2020, the electronic register is an electronic tax invoicing or receipting system that is maintained and used in accordance with the VAT (Electronic Tax Invoice) Regulations. Registered suppliers will be required to ensure that the register is in continuous operation. The register shall transmit tax invoice data to KRA's system and an end-of-day summary of the entities' transactions. This integration will provide KRA with real-time data on transactions on a day-to-day basis, thereby enabling the authority to easily enforce compliance. Registered suppliers shall comply with these regulations by 1 December 2022. In February 2023, the KRA implemented an electronic tax invoice management system (eTIMS) an alternative to electronic tax registers, which is a cloud/software-based solution that is recommended for the following:

- VAT-registered taxable persons who are yet to be onboarded and are facing challenges integrating with TIMS ETR devices
- Taxable persons dealing in bulk invoicing and facing capacity/performance issues with invoice transmission

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. A penalty of KES200,000 or imprisonment for a period not exceeding two years (or both) is imposed in the event of late registration by traders who meet the turnover threshold.

Penalties for late payment and filings. Late submission of a return is subject to a penalty of KES10,000 or 5% of tax due, whichever is higher. Late payment attracts interest at a rate of 1% per month, simple interest.

Penalties for errors. There are no specific penalties in Kenya for errors. The Act provides for specific and general penalties for noncompliance offenses. The general penalty is a fine not exceeding one million shillings or imprisonment for a term not exceeding three years or both.

The failure to keep, retain or maintain documents without reasonable cause for a reporting period is subject to a penalty of KES100,000 or 10% of the amount of tax payable under the Act to which the document relates for the reporting period to which the failure relates whichever is higher.

The failure to display registration certificate is subject to a penalty of up to KES200,000 or a maximum sentence of two years' imprisonment, or both.

The penalty associated with the default of e-TIMS is twice the amount of tax due.

There are no specific penalties associated with the late notification or failure to notify changes to a taxable person's VAT registration details. For further details, see the subsection Changes to VAT registration details above.

Penalties for fraud. Making a fraudulent claim for a refund of tax is subject to a penalty of two times the amount of claim.

Unauthorized access to or improper use of tax computerized system is subject to a penalty of a maximum of KES400,000 or a maximum sentence of two years' imprisonment, or both.

Interference with tax computerized system is subject to a penalty of a maximum of KES800,000 or a maximum sentence of three years' imprisonment, or both.

Where there is no prescribed penalty, a person convicted of an offense under the VAT Act 2013 shall be liable to a fine not exceeding KES1 million, or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three years, or to both.

Personal liability for company officers. Where a person acting as an employee or an agent commits an offense under a tax law, that person's employer or principal shall be treated as having also committed the offense.

If the person that commits an offense under a tax law is a company, the offence shall be treated as having been committed by an individual who, at the time the offense was committed, was:

- The chief executive officer, managing director, a director, company secretary, treasurer or other similar officer of the company
  Or
- A person acting or purporting to act as the chief executive officer, managing director, a director, company secretary, treasurer or other similar officer of the company.

Statute of limitations. The statute of limitations in Kenya is five years. This is the case unless the taxable person is under investigation. The KRA may review VAT returns and issue an assessment in the event of any errors before the expiry of five years from the date of filing the self-assessment return. If the Commissioner therefore chooses to exercise this power, it must do so within the stated timeline to ensure that the request is efficient and reasonable and that the same does not place an onerous obligation on the taxable person owing to requests for records of transactions that occurred over five years ago.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- The supply of goods and services by a taxable person
- Reverse-charge services received by an exempt businessperson in Korea
- The importation of goods, regardless of the status of the importer

Effective use and enjoyment. To avoid instances of non-taxation or double taxation, jurisdictions can apply "use and enjoyment" rules that allow a service that is "used and enjoyed" in the jurisdiction to be taxed or prevent a service that is "used and enjoyed" outside the jurisdiction from being taxed. If a service is taxed in the jurisdiction under the "use and enjoyment" provisions, a non-established supplier of the service may be required to register for VAT in every jurisdiction where it has customers that are not taxable persons. In Korea, no services are subject to the "use and enjoyment" provisions.

Transfer of a going concern. Normally the sale of the assets of a VAT-registered or VAT-registrable business will be subject to VAT at the appropriate rate. However, a transfer of a business as a going concern (TOGC) may be outside the scope of the tax under certain conditions. A TOGC is the sale of a business or part of a business capable of separate operation including assets. Where the sale meets the conditions, the supply is treated as outside the scope of VAT. In Korea, a TOGC is known as a "VATL," a "comprehensive business transfer." Where all rights and obligations related to the business are comprehensively transferred to each place of business, VAT is not levied, as it is not regarded as a supply of goods. In such cases, it shall be deemed to have been comprehensively transferred even if the business-related rights and obligations do not include the following:

- Notes receivable (usually not directly related to business operations)
- Notes payable (usually not directly related to business operations)
- Real estate not directly related to the relevant business

Transactions between related parties. The tax base for VAT is the transaction price. However, if an unreasonably low price is received or the payment is not received in a transaction with a related party, the market price is regarded as the supply price. The term "market price" refers to the transaction price used continuously in similar situations with a non-related party, or the transaction price generally used between third parties.

C. Who is liable

Any person that independently undertakes the supply of taxable goods or services in the course of business, whether or not for profit, is liable for VAT.

Exemption from registration. The VAT law in Korea does not contain any provision for exemption from registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. The VAT law in Korea does not contain any provision for voluntary VAT registration, as there is no registration threshold (i.e., all entities that make taxable supplies are obliged to register for VAT).

Group registration. Group VAT registration is not allowed in Korea.

Fixed establishment. Fixed establishment according to the VAT law in Korea refers to the fixed establishment according to the corporate tax law, which is defined as a place where a foreign corporation conducts all or part of its business in Korea. The corporate tax law and tax treaties are applied to determine the fixed establishments.

Non-established businesses. "Non-established business" refers to a business that has no fixed establishment in Korea. A non-established business is not required to register for VAT in Korea unless it provides certain electronic services to Korean customers.

Tax representatives. In certain circumstances, a taxable person must designate a tax administrator to deal with filing tax returns, making tax payments, requesting refunds and handling other necessary matters. Information about the tax administrator must be reported to the competent tax office.

Reverse charge. Reverse charge generally applies where a business receives a supply of taxable services and intangible properties from a non-established business and uses the services and intangible properties for its tax-exempt business. The recipient of such taxable services and intangible properties must collect the VAT at the time of the payment and pay the amount to the government.

If a business receives a supply of taxable services and intangible properties from a non-established business, and such supplies are used for both its taxable and tax-exempt activities, VAT on the reverse charge is calculated by reference to the ratio of turnover related to exempt supplies for the year compared to total turnover.

A non-established business (i.e., a nonresident or foreign corporation) for VAT purposes is one of the following:
- A non-established business that does not have a place of business in Korea
- A non-established business with a domestic place of business, provided that the supply of services is not rendered through the domestic place of business

Domestic reverse charge. Where the following companies supply taxable goods or services and receive payments through credit cards, the credit card company will be subject to domestic reverse-charge obligations:
- General entertainment and drinking establishments
- Dancing and drinking halls

Digital economy. Korea applies VAT on electronic services purchased by Korean customers from abroad. Nonresident providers of electronic services must register with the Korean tax authorities through the simplified business registration system.

Electronic services include those services related to gaming, audio or video files, electronic documents, software, or other works, which are manufactured or processed in the form of coding, letters, voices, sounds, images, etc., after optical or electronic processing, services offering an online advertising place, cloud computing services, brokerage services of renting or consuming goods or places in Korea, and of selling or buying goods or services in Korea.

The VAT on electronic services will not apply if the electronic services are rendered to a domestic entity that is registered for VAT purposes in Korea (i.e., in business-to-business (B2B) transactions).

There are no other specific e-commerce rules for imported goods in Korea.

Online marketplaces and platforms. Where a nonresident provider of electronic services uses an online marketplace or platform, that marketplace or platform company is considered to provide the electronic services in Korea, i.e., not the nonresident provider. The platform/marketplace is therefore responsible to account for the VAT on the supplies made.

The nonresident provider of electronic services via the online marketplace or platform in Korea doesn't need to register or account for VAT. However, it would largely depend on the facts of the case and should be examined on case-by-case basis.

However, if the online marketplaces and platforms are nonresident providers, they would need to register for VAT (as outlined under the Digital economy subsection above) and account for VAT locally. Nonresident providers who register a simplified business must keep transaction details for the supply of electronic services for five years from the final report due date of the tax period that the transaction belongs to and submit the transaction details within 60 days upon request from the tax authorities.

Registration procedures. Any person that begins a business must register the place of business with the district tax office within 20 days after the date of business commencement. A person can apply for registration via the Hometax website (https://www.hometax.go.kr) or by visiting the tax office. Documents that must be submitted when applying for VAT registration in Korea include:
- Business registration application form
- Copy of business license (if government approval is required for the business)
- Copy of lease contract
- List of shareholders
- Alien registration certificate or a copy of a passport (when the representative of the company is not a resident)
- Certificate stating the completion of foreign investment notification
- Copy of foreign currency purchase certificate
- Notice of designation of a tax administrator (if there is no employee that handles tax matters in Korea)

The business may be registered before the date of business commencement. The tax office that has jurisdiction over the business location issues a business registration certificate. Where a taxable person operates more than one business place, the taxable person is allowed to register two or more business places as a single business unit for VAT purposes.

Deregistration. A registered business that ceases to operate is required to deregister by returning its business registration certificate to the tax office.

Changes to VAT registration details. When there is a change in VAT registration details, such as in the name of the company, representative, type of business, address of the place of business or status of a sub-business place when the taxable person has registered two or more business places as a single business, the taxable person should submit the application form for revision of business registration details via Hometax (https://www.hometax.go.kr) or by visiting the tax office. Certain changes, such as changes in co-representatives or status of a sub-business place, are only allowed to be submitted by visiting the tax office.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero-rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 10%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for the zero rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%
- Exported goods
- Services rendered outside Korea
- International transportation services by ships and aircraft
- Other goods or services supplied for foreign currency

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services
- Social welfare services (e.g., medical and health services and education services)
- Goods or services related to culture (e.g., books, newspapers, magazines, official gazettes and communications, artistic works and admission to libraries)

- Personal services similar to labor (e.g., by actors, singers and academic research services)
- Postage stamps
- Basic life necessities and services (e.g., unprocessed foodstuffs such as agricultural products, livestock products, marine products, forest products, piped water, briquette and anthracite coal)
- Services supplied by the government
- Finance and insurance services
- Supplies of land

Option to tax for exempt supplies. A business that supplies certain exempt goods and services under the Korean law may choose to tax these supplies by filing a report to the tax authorities to waive the VAT exemption.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point."

Goods are deemed to be supplied at the following times (also, see the next paragraph):
- A supply of goods that requires the goods to be moved: when the goods are delivered
- A supply of goods that does not require the goods to be moved: when the goods are made available
- For other cases: when the supply of goods is confirmed

The following are examples for the times of supply for specified types of supplies:
- Cash or credit sales: subject to the principal rules of supply of goods, the time of supply is the above bullet points, i.e., when goods are delivered or made available
- Sales made for long-term (the final installment payment should be at least a year after the next day of the delivery date) installment payments: when each portion of the proceeds are received
- Supply of goods under the payment term of percentage of work completed or under terms of partial payments: when each portion of the proceeds are received
- Processing deemed to be a supply of goods: when the processed goods are delivered
- Self-supplies or the supply of goods for personal use or for a gift: when the goods are consumed or used
- Business closure: the date of closure
- Goods supplied through vending machines: when the taxpayer takes money from the machine
- Exports: the date of shipment
- Goods that are considered imported goods and that are supplied by a business in a bonded area to outside the bonded area: the date of the import declaration

Examples for the time of supply for services are as follows:
- General rule: when the services are completely rendered
- Services provided under terms of payment based on the percentage of work completed, partial payment, deferred payment or any other payment terms: when each portion of the payments is to be received
- A deemed rent deposit for a lease or advance or deferred payment of rent for more than two VAT return periods for the leasing of land, buildings or other structures built on the land: when the preliminary tax return or the tax period has been completed
- Other cases: when the services have been completely rendered and the value of the supply is determined

If a business receives partial or full payment of the consideration for a supply of goods or services and issues a tax invoice or receipt for the payment before the general time of supply occurs (as described above), the time of supply is deemed to be the date that the tax invoice or receipt is issued.

Deposits and prepayments. In Korea, there are no provisions in the Korean VAT law relating to deposits. There is only a system for prepayments.

If the supplier has received a prepayment (a partial or full payment), which takes place before the general time of supply rules for goods and services (i.e., when the goods are delivered/services are completed or when the goods become available/facilities or rights are used), then the time of supply is when the prepayment (a partial or full payment) is received.

Tax invoices must be issued when the time of supply for the prepayment takes place. This is to prevent the customer from issuing VAT invoices in advance without making the prepayment and receiving an unfair deduction of input tax. The supplier must account for VAT in the same VAT return filing period when the prepayment is made and based on the tax invoice issued.

Where a prepayment is refunded to the customer or the supply does not take place, there is generally no requirement to account for VAT. If the supplier has already declared the VAT on its VAT return, then the supplier needs to issue an amended tax invoice.

Continuous supplies of services. If a person is supplying goods or services on a continuous basis, such as electricity, the time of supply shall be at the time when each portion of the proceeds are to be received on the contract. If the tax invoice or receipt is issued in advance with prepayments, the time of supply shall be at the time of issuing a tax invoice or receipt.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. For goods sent on approval for sale or return and other conditional sales and time limit sales, the time of supply shall be when such conditions are fully satisfied, or sales become certain after expiration (this is where the supplier has given the customer a certain number of days to use the goods before the sale and this period has now passed).

If the goods are sold on a returnable basis, in general, the supplier will provide the customer with a specific time period to return the goods. The time of supply is when the customer expresses its intention to purchase the goods. Otherwise, the time of supply shall be when the customer fails to return the item after the set period has expired.

Reverse-charge services. For supplies of reverse-charge services, VAT shall be accounted for by the customer, through the reverse-charge mechanism, at the time of payment on the relevant services supplied by a non-established business.

Leased assets. Under Korean VAT law, as there is no specific provision in respect to time of supply for leased assets, general time of supply rules will be applied. However, supplies of lease services by enrolled financial leasing companies, according to the Specialized Credit Finance Business Act, are in general exempt from VAT, while there are some exceptions to this rule regarding VAT-exempt supplies of lease services.

Imported goods. The time of importation for goods shall be the time when an import declaration under the Customs Act is accepted.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax, which is VAT charged on goods and services supplied to it for business purposes. The basic rule for VAT recovery in Korea requires a supply of goods or services to be made by a taxable person in the course of business. Any VAT claimed must be supported by a valid VAT tax invoice, customs document or similar documents, such as contracts, remittance certificates, etc.

The time limit for a taxable person to reclaim input tax in Korea is five years. Input tax may be recovered during the corresponding taxable period. If the tax invoice was received and the input tax was not claimed, a taxable person may correct the errors in the return within five years from the due date of the VAT return period.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes. Input tax incurred on expenses directly related to the business is generally recoverable.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Input tax on expenses not directly related to the business
- Input tax on the purchase and maintenance of small automobiles used for nonprofit purposes
- Input tax on the purchase of goods or services that are used in VAT-exempt business
- Input tax on entertainment expenses or similar expenses outlined in the Presidential Decree governing VAT recovery
- Input tax amount incurred before the date of registration

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- The VAT amount on goods or services that are used by taxable persons for their own business
- The VAT amount on the importation of goods that are used by taxable persons for their own business or imported by them for such use

Partial exemption. If goods or services purchased by a taxable person are used both for taxable and exempt business, the creditable input tax is calculated based on the ratio of sales (the sale of taxable business supplies, divided by total sales) multiplied by the input tax incurred that relates to both taxable and exempt supplies. In this case, the input tax is partially recovered. In general, the input tax multiplied by the above ratio is recovered.

Approval from the tax authorities is not required to use the partial exemption standard method in Korea. Special methods are not allowed in Korea. Taxable persons must submit a statement of nondeductible input tax to the tax authorities. Taxable persons must submit a statement of nondeductible input tax when they file preliminary (if necessary) and final VAT returns. The input tax amount, the total sales amount and the sales amount of nontaxable business supplies are required to be filed. This is a part of a statement of nondeductible input tax that also includes information on other nondeductible input tax (such as input taxes incurred from entertainment expenses).

Capital goods. Capital goods are items of capital expenditure that are depreciated and used in a business over several years. Input tax is deducted in the VAT-taxable period in which the goods are acquired. The amount of input tax recovered depends on the taxable person's partial exemption recovery position in the VAT-taxable period of acquisition. However, the amount of input tax recovered for capital goods must be adjusted over time if the taxable person's partial exemption recovery percentage changes to a certain extent during the adjustment period.

Refunds. When a taxable person files its VAT return and the input tax exceeds the output tax, the taxable person will receive a VAT refund within 30 days from the final filing due date. The final filing due date is 25 days from each period end. This is generally done automatically through the submission of the periodic VAT return.

The taxable person can apply for an early refund if the company meets any of the following three conditions:

- The taxable person makes zero-rated supplies
- The taxable person newly constructs, acquires, expands or extends any of the business facilities
- The taxable person is in the implementation process of a financial restructuring plan prescribed by Presidential Decree

In this case, the taxable person will receive a VAT refund within 15 days after the deadline for filing an early refund return. The deadline for filing an early refund return is 25 days from each early refund period end. The early refund period is fixed on a monthly or bimonthly basis in the preliminary return period or in the last three months of the taxable period.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax incurred on pre-registration costs in Korea is not recoverable.

Bad debts. If a bad debt arises for reasons stipulated in the corporate tax law, the already paid VAT can be recovered. A taxable person must apply for this by the VAT period reporting deadline. This can be done 10 years after the originally supplied VAT period. In this case, relevant documents must be prepared and submitted to the tax authority (e.g., rulings related to bankruptcy).

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred in relation to noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Korea.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Input tax incurred by non-established businesses that are not registered for VAT in Korea is recoverable. Korea refunds VAT incurred by businesses that are neither established nor registered for VAT in Korea. A non-established business may reclaim VAT to the same extent as a VAT-registered business, but only if the resident country of the non-established business provides VAT refunds to non-established Korean businesses in that country on a reciprocal basis.

A non-established business that is engaged in business in its home country but does not have a permanent establishment in Korea may reclaim the VAT incurred on the purchase of the following goods and services pursuant to the Tax Incentives Limitation Law:
- Meals and hotel charges
- Advertisements
- Electricity and telecommunications
- Real estate rentals and leases
- Certain goods and services necessary for the maintenance of an office in Korea

A non-established business that seeks to reclaim VAT paid in Korea must submit an application, together with the required documents, to the district National Tax Service (NTS) by 30 June of the year following the calendar year covered by the claim. The district NTS must refund eligible VAT by 31 December of the year in which the application is submitted. The following documents must accompany the claim:
- A certificate that proves the non-established business is a registered business in its home country
- A detailed transaction list
- All original tax invoices
- A power of attorney, if necessary

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. When a taxable person supplies goods or services, it must issue a tax invoice to the other party to the transaction.

Taxable persons that carry on any of the following activities are exempt from the obligation to prepare and issue tax invoices:
- Self-supplies of goods, personal use of goods, donations for a business purpose, supplies in the course of the closure of a business and self-supplies of services
- Exportation of goods, supplies of services abroad and other specific supplies of goods or services that earn foreign currency and that are subject to the zero rate

The Customs Office is required to prepare and issue import tax invoices for imported goods. The documents must be given to individuals and companies that make imports and must be issued in accordance with the provisions of the Customs law.

Credit notes. If a tax invoice contains an error or if the taxable person needs to make a correction to the submitted tax invoice after it has been issued, the taxable person must prepare and reissue the tax invoice.

In general, when the VAT base is changed due to a voluntary revised report, revised import tax invoices may be issued. However, if a revised report is submitted after notification of a customs audit knowing that there will be a customs reassessment or correction, a revised tax invoice may only be issued when the cause of the revision is confirmed as an error or minor negligence of the importer, or if the importer proves that there is no reason attributable to the importer.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is mandatory in Korea for certain taxable persons.

Scope of electronic invoicing. For B2B, business-to-consumer (B2C), and business-to-government (B2G) supplies, electronic invoicing is mandatory for certain taxable persons in Korea. Every kind of supply is covered by the rules, including B2G, B2B and B2C, as long as the supply value of individual taxable persons is equal or more than KRW100 million from the previous year.

All registered corporate taxable persons and individual taxable persons prescribed by presidential decree of the VAT law must issue tax invoices under the electronic tax invoice (ETI) system and submit a statement of delivery to the NTS by the date specified by presidential decree of the VAT law, which is currently the day immediately following the issuance date. Such taxable persons that are prescribed by presidential decree of the VAT law to issue electronic invoices are all registered corporate taxable persons and individual taxable persons in whose case the total value of the supply of goods and services for each place of business in the immediately preceding year is at least KRW100 million. This is to ease the burden of individual taxable persons who run small businesses.

ETI is a tax invoice that is electronically transmitted to the NTS network through an accredited certification system. It can confirm information such as a supplier's identification and the details of tax invoices if changed.

Simplified VAT invoices. If it is deemed necessary, a taxable person may prepare and issue a tax invoice by aggregating the total receivable transactions to the end of the month. The invoice must be issued by the 10th day of the following month.

Self-billing. Self-billing is allowed in Korea. If the supplier of goods or services has not issued a tax invoice, instead the customer may issue a self-billed tax invoice. This is only allowed upon the customer receiving confirmation from a tax officer that the supply of goods or services has actually taken place.

Proof of exports. A detailed statement is required for a supply to be qualified as an export. This document must be prepared by the taxable person.

Foreign currency invoices. If a VAT invoice is issued in a foreign currency, all values that are required on the invoice must be converted into the domestic currency, which is the Korean won (KRW), using the exchange rate at the time of supply. The exchange rate is contained in the Foreign Exchange Transaction Regulation, and it is generally the exchange rate announced by Seoul Money Brokerage Service Ltd. (http://www.smbs.biz)

Supplies to nontaxable persons. Under the Korean VAT law, there is no stipulation for supplies to private consumers. However, there is a provision that allows a taxable business to issue a receipt instead of a VAT invoice or exempting an obligation of a VAT invoice if it is considered too difficult to issue a VAT invoice or if it is deemed unnecessary. If a taxable person conforming to one of the following positions outlined below supplies goods or services (except for VAT exempted supplies) at the time of supply, the taxable person must issue a receipt to the customer instead of issuing a tax invoice:

• Simplified taxable person
• A taxable person supplying goods or services to nonbusiness entity

Records. In Korea, a taxable person must keep the books in which transactions are recorded. In Korea, examples of what records must be held for VAT purposes include details of tax invoices or receipts issued or received, name of supplier or recipient, supplied items or receipt items, supply value or supply value receipt, output tax and input tax, supply date or receipt date, etc. Records may be kept in hard copy or in electronic format.

In Korea, VAT books and records must be held within the country. Specifically, this means the business site in Korea. While Korean tax law does not explicitly state the position on whether records can be held overseas, tax authorities interpret it to imply records should be held at a business site in Korea, on the basis that backup files of electronic files must be kept in Korea. However, this regulation and interpretation was created several years ago. In practice, the location of the data at the place of business (Korea) is not verified. However, the taxable person should be prepared for submission upon the request of the authorities.

Record retention period. A taxable person must keep the books in which the transactions are recorded for a period of five years after the date of the final return for the tax period in which the transactions occurred.

Taxable persons must record all details of transactions related to their amount of tax payable or amount of tax refundable in their account books and maintain them at their own places of business for five years from the deadline for filing a final return for the taxable period of the relevant transactions. However, businesses that issue tax invoices using the ETI system are not required to maintain relevant records.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is allowed in Korea. The VAT law states that account books, tax invoices and receipts can be stored electronically, but there is no mention of other documents.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. The VAT period is six months on a calendar-year basis (first VAT period: January through June; second VAT period: July through December). VAT returns must be filed on a quarterly basis, including preliminary returns.

A taxable person is required to file preliminary returns for the first and third quarters of the year, which end in March and September, respectively. These preliminary returns must indicate the tax base and the tax amount payable or refundable. The preliminary return must be filed within 25 days following the last day of each preliminary return period.

Taxable persons must file a final return for the quarters ended June and December for the second and fourth quarters of the year. The final return must be filed within 25 days following the end of the tax period.

Periodic payments. A taxable person must pay the tax amount payable for the preliminary return period when the return is filed. A taxable person must also pay the tax amount payable for the final return period at the time of filing the return. Both payments are due within 25 days following the last day of each preliminary and final return period.

VAT returns must be completed in Korean won (KRW), and VAT liabilities must be paid in Korean won. A taxable person can make payments by making a transfer or using a credit card (an extra credit card fee will be charged). In practice, a taxable person pays taxes by using the virtual account designated by the NTS, which can be found on the tax bill or by going to the bank themselves.

A taxable person must pay the VAT due at each business place at the time of filing the return. However, if a taxable person has more than two business places, it may pay the entire VAT due at its principal place of business with the prior approval from the tax office that has jurisdiction over the principal business place.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is allowed in Korea, but not mandatory. Where a return is electronically submitted through the information network of the NTS, such return shall be treated as filed with the tax office at the time of submission to the information network of the NTS. VAT return filing can also still be submitted in paper form. In this case, the printed NTS form and related documents (contracts, etc.) are submitted to the tax office and the taxable person receives a receipt confirming the submission.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Korea.

Special schemes. Small businesses. There are special rules that apply only to individual businesses with revenue less than KRW80 million (the threshold changed from KRW48 million to KRW80 million, from 1 January 2021). However, corporate entities do not have these special provisions. Individual businesses with revenue less than KRW80 million are subject to special rules, including that they are not obliged to issue tax invoices when their sales amount is less than KRW48 million. Previously, individual businesses with revenue between KRW48 million to KRW80 million did not have obligations to issue tax invoices, but this is due to change from 1 July 2021). Such businesses pay VAT every six months instead of quarterly.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Korea.

Supplementary filings. In addition to the usual NTS form, a taxable person is required to keep documentation (e.g., contracts) to verify each transaction. In addition, when a taxable person reports any transaction subject to VAT at the zero rate, supporting documents such as a foreign currency deposit, a statement of export results and a local letter of credit must be submitted with it.

Correcting errors in previous returns. Taxable persons can correct errors in previous returns by submitting the revised return either through the Hometax website (https://www.hometax.go.kr/) or in paper to the tax office.

Digital tax administration. Electronic invoicing is mandatory for all registered corporate taxable persons and individual taxable persons prescribed by Presidential Decree of VAT law (see the subsection Electronic invoicing above). While under the VAT law there is no concept of real-time reporting in Korea, in practice, electronic invoicing is deemed as a real-time reporting requirement. This is because electronic invoices are required to be transmitted to the NTS by the next day of the issuance date (an invoice is usually issued on the transaction date).

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. If a person fails to register a business within 20 days after business commencement, a penalty tax equal to 1% of the value of supplies made is imposed. If a taxable person provides goods or services without registration or with late registration, the penalty applies to the value of the supplies made during the period beginning on the business commencement date ending on the day before the date on which the registration is made. The penalty amount will adjust the amount of tax payable or deductible. The penalty is capped at KRW100 million (KRW50 million for small and medium-sized enterprises [SMEs]). The cap covers every six-month period.

Penalties for late payment and filings. Failure to file a tax return may result in a penalty of 10% to 40% of the underpaid tax amount (overpaid tax refund).

For underpayment and nonpayment of taxes or overestimated refund, a penalty of the underpaid tax amount (or overpaid tax refund) at a rate of 0.022% (0.025% until 15 February 2022) a day may be imposed.

Failure to comply with the requirement to make a proxy payment (reverse charge) may result in a penalty of 3% of the underpaid tax amount plus 0.022% (0.025% until 15 February 2022) of the underpaid tax amount on the number of days the payment is late. However, the penalty is capped at 10%.

Penalties for errors. Failure to issue a correct tax invoice (including ETI) or to submit a correct list of tax invoices issued may result in a penalty of 0.5%, 1%, 2% or 3% of the value of supply. If a tax invoice is issued without the supply of goods or services, a penalty of 3% of the supply value is imposed on both the seller and the buyer. If there is a supply of goods or services and no tax invoice is issued, a penalty of 2% of the value of the supply is imposed. If a corporation (and individual business owners with turnover of over KRW200 million) issues a paper tax invoice instead of an electronic tax invoice, a penalty of 1% of the supply price is imposed. If a list of electronic tax invoices is not submitted by the day following the date of issue, a penalty of 0.3% or 0.5% will be charged.

Failure to complete the simplified business registration within 20 days from the business commencement date results in a penalty of 1% of the total supply value for foreign electronic service providers with no local establishment. There are no specific penalties associated with the late notification or failure to notify the tax authorities of changes to a taxable person's VAT registration details. For further details, see the subsection Changes to VAT registration details above.

Penalties for fraud. If the reason for reporting fewer tax bases is related to fraud, the penalty increases significantly. If not related to fraud, 10% or 20% of the tax amount will apply, but if it is related to fraud, it will increase to 40% of the tax amount. If it relates to international transactions, a penalty of 60% of the tax amount applies.

Personal liability for company officers. Company directors will not be held personally liable for errors and omissions in VAT declarations and reporting according to relevant tax laws. However, if company directors are also shareholders of the company and the company fails to pay taxes, they are responsible for paying taxes if certain conditions are met.

Statute of limitations. The statute of limitations in Korea is 5 to 10 years. In general, the tax authorities may amend and impose tax on the filed returns of the taxable person within 5 to 10 years from the date that national tax can be imposed. However, the statute of limitation is extended for certain international transactions, as outlined below:

- The general statute of limitation is five years, but in certain international transactions, this can extend to seven years
- The statute of limitations for non-filing is seven years, but in certain international transactions, this can extend to 10 years
- The statute of limitations for tax evasion from tax fraud is 10 years, but in certain international transactions, this can extend to 15 years

The term "international transactions" refers to a) transactions, in which one party is a foreign company (i.e., a non-established business) or b) foreign assets or services provided abroad, even if both parties are residents.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- The supply of goods and services performed by a taxable person in Kosovo
- Importation of goods in Kosovo, regardless of the status of the importer
- Services supplied to taxable persons in Kosovo by service providers whose place of business is outside Kosovo
- Certain supplies of services rendered by service providers whose place of business is outside Kosovo to nontaxable persons in Kosovo, such as digital services and services related to an immovable property located in Kosovo

Effective use and enjoyment. To avoid instances of non-taxation or double taxation, jurisdictions can apply "use and enjoyment rules" that allow a service that is "used and enjoyed" in the jurisdiction to be taxed or prevent a service that is "used and enjoyed" outside the jurisdiction from being taxed. If a service is taxed in the jurisdiction under the "use and enjoyment" provisions, a non-established supplier of the service may be required to register for VAT in that jurisdiction where it has customers that are not taxable persons. In Kosovo, the VAT law provides for the application of the use and enjoyment rules as a deviation from the main rules for determining the place of supply of services. These rules apply to services such as advertising, telecommunication and broadcasting, regardless of whether they are provided to taxable or nontaxable persons (i.e., business-to-business (B2B) and business-to-consumer (B2C)).

Transfer of a going concern. Normally the sale of the assets of a VAT-registered or VAT-registrable business will be subject to VAT at the appropriate rate. However, a transfer of a business as a going concern (TOGC) may be outside the scope of the tax under certain conditions. A TOGC is the sale of a business or part of a business capable of separate operation including assets. Where the sale meets the conditions, the supply is treated as outside the scope of VAT. In Kosovo, a TOGC is treated as outside the scope of VAT where the following conditions are met:

- A group of assets forming part of a business activity is transferred
- The transfer is performed between two taxable persons (i.e., B2B)
- The transferee ensures the continuity of the business activity

Transactions between related parties. In Kosovo, for a transaction between related parties, the value for VAT purposes is calculated at market value. The market value is defined as the consideration that an independent buyer shall be willing to pay for the supply of goods or services under open market conditions. In case no comparable values are available, the market value can be determined as follows:

- For supplies of goods, an amount not less than the purchase price or the acquisition costs at the moment of the supply
- For supply of services, an amount not less than the full costs incurred for performing the services

C. Who is liable

Any person (entity or individual) who independently carries out any economic activity in a regular or non-regular manner, whatever the purpose or results of that economic activity, is liable to VAT.

Taxable activities also include "the exploitation of tangible or intangible property for the purposes of obtaining income therefrom on a continuing basis."

A taxable person established in Kosovo is obliged to register for VAT purposes and charge VAT when its annual turnover within a calendar year exceeds the threshold of EUR30,000. Any supply made by the taxable person after the threshold is exceeded must be subject to VAT. In this case, the taxable person is required to apply for VAT registration within 15 days after exceeding the threshold. Consequently, the part of the supply that exceeded the threshold will be taken into account for purposes of VAT in the first tax period after registration.

Every person who meets all the conditions of the definition of a taxable person in Kosovo but does not exceed the VAT registration threshold may voluntarily register for VAT. Persons involved in import or export activities and fixed establishments of nonresident persons must register for VAT regardless of the amount of turnover from the commencement of an economic activity in Kosovo.

Exemption from registration. The VAT law in Kosovo does not contain any provision for exemption from registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. Persons may voluntarily apply for VAT registration regardless of their turnover and must remain registered for a minimum of one year after the registration year.

Group registration. Group VAT registration is not allowed in Kosovo.

Fixed establishment. In Kosovo, there is no legal definition of a fixed establishment for VAT purposes. However, the same rules that apply for direct taxes should be followed. As such, a fixed establishment would be considered a place of management, branch, office, factory, workshop, assembly site, construction site, mine, quarry, probe, oil or gas well, or other place of exploitation of natural resources, or another place through which a person carries out all or part of the economic activity on the territory of the country.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that does not have a fixed establishment in Kosovo. No VAT registration threshold applies to taxable supplies made in Kosovo by a non-established business.

A non-established business must register for VAT in Kosovo by appointing a VAT representative if it engages in any of the following taxable supplies:
- Supply of goods located in Kosovo at the time of supply
- Supply of certain services to nontaxable persons in Kosovo, such as digital services and services related to an immovable property located in Kosovo
- Import and export activities in Kosovo

Tax representatives. A non-established business must appoint a resident VAT representative to register for VAT purposes in Kosovo regardless of the amount of turnover unless the reverse-charge mechanism applies. The VAT representative may act on behalf of the taxable person for all purposes related to VAT and is jointly and severally liable for compliance with all VAT obligations of the non-established business.

If the recipient of the services supplied in Kosovo is a nontaxable person or a taxable non-registered person, the supplier of the service should also appoint a VAT representative to pay VAT in Kosovo.

Where the non-established business does not appoint a VAT representative in Kosovo, the nontaxable person or the taxable non-registered person that is the recipient of the supplies will be liable for the VAT liabilities and penalties.

Reverse charge. The reverse-charge mechanism applies to supplies of services made by non-established business to taxable persons in Kosovo. A non-established business is not required to register for VAT if all its supplies in Kosovo fall under the reverse-charge mechanism.

Domestic reverse charge. A domestic reverse charge applies in Kosovo for supplies of construction works (including repair, cleaning, maintenance, alteration, and demolition services in relation to the immovable property). Effectively, any supplies that are in line with the Law on Construction in Kosovo and are equipped with the relevant construction permits by the competent bodies are covered by this provision.

Digital economy. Kosovo follows the destination principle regarding cross-border digital services supplied to nontaxable persons in Kosovo. The place of supply of cross-border digital services to nontaxable persons is the place where the nontaxable person is established or where it has its permanent address or usually resides.

Nonresident providers of electronically supplied services for B2C supplies are required to register and account for VAT in Kosovo. This is done by appointing a VAT representative in Kosovo to account for and pay the VAT liability. No VAT registration threshold applies.

The Minister of Finance may permit the use of a special scheme by any non-established taxable person in Kosovo supplying electronic services to a nontaxable person who is established in Kosovo or who has its permanent address or usually resides in Kosovo (i.e., B2C supplies). The information that the non-established taxable person must provide to the Tax Administration of Kosovo (TAK) when they start a taxable activity must contain the following details: name; postal address; electronic addresses, including websites; national tax number, if any; and a statement that the person is not identified for VAT purposes in Kosovo. The non-established taxable person must notify TAK of any changes in the information provided.

At the time of preparing this chapter, the Ministry of Finance has proposed introducing a facilitated VAT registration for nonresident providers of broadcasting, telecommunications and electronically supplied services. However, this has not been finalized or implemented.

Nonresident providers of electronically supplied services for B2B supplies are not required to register and account for VAT in Kosovo. Instead, the customer is required to self-account via the reverse-charge mechanism (see the Reverse-charge subsection above).

Distance sales from foreign suppliers made to nontaxable persons in Kosovo are subject to import VAT, to be declared and paid by the customer. A VAT exemption at importation of goods applies for shipments with a value up to EUR22.

Online marketplaces and platforms. The same rules above apply for online marketplaces and platforms, i.e., the place of supply for services supplied by electronic means is the place where the nontaxable person is established or where it has its permanent address or usually resides. Services supplied electronically are considered those services that do not correspond either to the supply of movable tangible goods or to the supply of "traditional" services or telecommunications services.

Registration procedures. The application for registration cannot be done online. A person applying for VAT registration must personally or through an authorized person submit the VAT registration form with the respective regional office of the TAK. The VAT registration application form is also available online.

The application must be accompanied by the following:
- A copy of the business registration documents
- Certificate of the Fiscal Number and official identification photo (passport, identity card, etc.)

The TAK determines whether to issue the VAT Registration Certificate or not within five working days from receipt of the application form, after ensuring that the information provided in the registration form is accurate and that the taxable person has complied with all tax obligations.

The business registration in Kosovo is handled by the Agency of Business. It operates an electronic data system as a simple and faster registration process for new businesses. This is realized by the connection with 29 municipal registration centers known as "One-Stop Shop." After the registration process, the taxable person receives its registration and fiscal number administered by the tax authorities.

Deregistration. Every taxable person registered for VAT purposes may request to be deregistered if, over the last calendar year, the turnover fell below the VAT registration threshold. Taxable persons ceasing their economic activity are liable to request to be deregistered within 15 days from the termination of their activity. Deregistration enters into force two months after the date of the deregistration request.

Changes to VAT registration details. If there are any changes to a taxable person's VAT registration details, relevant documents and forms need to be filed with TAK.

Any changes in the registration details of the taxable person need to be submitted within 15 working days before the change takes place. Some changes in the registration information may require the tax authorities to issue a new fiscal code.

Any changes in the registration information must be made through the "Fiscal Number Application Form" with an indication that this form has been submitted to change registration information. For example, in case of a change of the name or address of business, an online form should be completed and submitted along with a copy of the identity card of the shareholder(s) and the original business certificate. In case of a change in the form of company, the required documents include an online form, copy of the identity card of the shareholder(s), the original business certificate, certificate from the tax administration for change of business type and the agreement between the shareholders. The applications need to be made in person or through an authorized person.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 18%
- Reduced rate: 8%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services and imports, unless a specific measure allows a reduced rate or an exemption.

The use of goods or services purchased or produced in the course of business activity for private purposes, or other nonbusiness purposes, or their disposal free of charge (other than goods for business use as samples or as gifts of small value), must be treated as taxable supplies to the extent that the VAT on those supplies was deductible.

Some supplies are treated as "exempt-with-credit," which means that no VAT is chargeable, but the supplier may recover the input tax.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%
(i.e., exempt with credit)

- Export of goods
- International transport
- Supplies under diplomatic and consular arrangements
- The supply of goods or services to international and inter-governmental bodies
- Supply of gold to the Central Bank of Kosovo
- Related supply of services by intermediaries taking part in the above transactions

Examples of supplies of goods and services taxable at 8%

- Water, except bottled water
- Electricity, central heating, waste collection and other waste treatment
- Grains such as barley, corn, maize varieties, oats, rye, rice and wheat
- Products made from grain for human consumption
- Oils made from grains or oilseeds for use in cooking for human consumption
- Dairy and dairy products for human consumption
- Salt appropriate for human consumption
- Eggs for consumption
- Lending of books from libraries, including brochures, leaflets and similar printed materials; children's picture books; drawing and coloring books; music printed texts and manuscripts; and maps, hydrographic charts and similar materials
- Textbooks and serial publications
- Information technology equipment

- Supply of medicines, pharmaceutical products, instruments, and medical and surgical devices
- Medical equipment, ambulances, aids and other medical devices to facilitate activity or treat a disability for exclusive use by the disabled, including the repair of such goods and supply with children's vehicle seats

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Hospital services and medical care
- Education
- Health insurance, life insurance, reinsurance and related services performed by insurance brokers and agents
- Financial services
- Welfare services
- Betting, lotteries and other forms of gambling
- Supply of land or land on which a building or house stands
- The supply of houses, apartments or other accommodations used for residential purpose, including garages and basements
- Leasing of immovable property

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Kosovo.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due (or a chargeable event occurs) is called the "time of supply." VAT is due when one of the following events occurs:

- Supply of goods or services
- Issuance of an invoice in respect of a supply of goods or services before the goods or services are supplied
- Receipt of advance payment before the goods or services are delivered

Special rules apply to continuous supplies of goods or services, which are considered as being completed at intervals of one month. Long-term contracts including long-term construction contracts and long-term installation contracts must be regarded as completed at regular intervals but at least at the end of each calendar year.

Deposits and prepayments. When the payment is to be made or is made on account before the goods and services are supplied, VAT must become chargeable when payment is received.

In case of any amount paid or retained in form of a guaranteed deposit in relation to the performance of a supply of goods or service, VAT must become chargeable at the time the deposit is received. In case the amount of the deposit is returned to the customer, then the necessary adjustment should be made for VAT purposes.

Exemption from the above is granted to the guarantees deposited in a bank deposit account or to a third party, without the right of use. In such case, VAT must become chargeable at the time the deposit guarantee is executed.

Continuous supplies of services. Supplies of goods and services performed on a continuous basis, within a period of time, including construction operations, must be deemed to have been made in the same month in which the invoice is issued.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules in Kosovo for supplies of goods sent on approval for sale or return. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

Reverse-charge services. The VAT is due on the reverse-charge services in the month when the foreign invoice is received by the customer in Kosovo. VAT is not due until the invoice is issued.

Leased assets. In cases of leased assets, the VAT becomes due at the time when the periodic monthly payments are invoiced to the lessee. In cases of a financial lease, the VAT becomes due at the time of each periodic payment and at the time of final payment for the sale of the asset if the option to buy the leased assets is exercised.

Imported goods. In the case of imported machinery and equipment, either new or secondhand that is used for business purposes and that fall under the Kosovo "Harmonized Nomenclature of Goods System," the VAT is due at the time of import. However, payment of the VAT due may be postponed for a period of a maximum of 12 months from date of the import, provided that the VAT is declared as postponed import VAT in the VAT return and several conditions are met from the taxable person.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax, which is the VAT charged on taxable goods and services supplied to the person for business purposes. A taxable person generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax, which is the VAT charged on supplies that he makes.

Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services supplied in Kosovo, VAT paid on imports of goods and VAT applied to reverse-charge services.

The time limit for a taxable person to reclaim input tax in Kosovo is six years. The taxable person's right to claim a VAT refund or offset the VAT credit with output tax expires six years from the date such tax was paid.

Nondeductible input tax. Generally, input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods or services that are not used for business purposes.

The following list provides examples of items of expenditure for which input tax is not deductible.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Expenditure on yachts and boats intended for sport and recreation, private aircraft, cars and motorcycles used not for business purposes and fuels, lubricants, spare parts and services closely linked thereto
- Expenditure as regards cars used for both private and business purposes, with the right to deduct input tax limited to 50%
- Expenditure for representation, which must include costs for entertainment and amusement during business or social contacts, food costs including drinks and accommodation costs
- Expenditure for immovable property forming part of a taxable person's business assets that is used for both business and private purposes of the taxable person, used for its personnel, or used generally for nonbusiness purposes, with the right to deduct the VAT only to the extent that this property is used for business purposes of the taxable person

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Employee expenses
- Business use of phones
- Hotel accommodation

Partial exemption. If a supply of a good or service is used partly for purposes of taxable supplies and partly for exempt supplies, the taxable person may not deduct input tax in full. This situation is known as "partial exemption." The calculation of the amount of input tax that may be recovered is made on a pro rata basis by using the following formula:

$$\text{Amount of relevant input tax} \times \frac{\text{Turnover enabling VAT credit}}{\text{Total annual turnover}}$$

Supplies of capital goods and the incidental supply of financial services are excluded from turnover for this purpose.

The pro rata of VAT must be determined on an annual basis as a percentage and must be rounded up to the next whole number.

The pro rata VAT calculation is tentatively based on the preceding calendar year's results. It must be adjusted by 31 January of the following year in case of differences between the provisional pro rata and the actual pro rata. The pro rata is not based on the financial year of the company.

Special methods are allowed in Kosovo. Taxable persons are invited to use a pro rata for each individual activity of their business separately, provided they maintain separate accounts for each individual activity and notify the tax authorities of such special method.

Capital goods. Capital goods are items of capital expenditure used for the production of other goods and services with a useful service life of one year or more and acquired for a cost price equal to or more than EUR1,000. The services that have the same attributes as the capital goods and of which the cost exceeds EUR20,000 should be considered as capital goods. Input tax is generally deducted in the VAT period in which the goods are acquired. If the business comprises both taxable and exempt supplies and the capital goods do not serve only taxable supplies, the amount of input tax recovered depends on the taxable person's partial exemption recovery position in the VAT year of acquisition. The amount of input tax recovered is adjusted over time if the taxable person's pro rata changes during the adjustment period.

The capital goods adjustment applies to the following assets for the number of years indicated:
- Immovable capital assets: 10 years
- Movable capital assets: 5 years

The adjustment is applied each year following the year in which the goods were used for the first time, to a fraction of the total input tax (1/5 for movable capital goods and 1/10 for immovable capital goods).

The adjustment is not made if the value of the adjustment is less than 3% of the input tax amount.

Refunds. A taxable person may claim a VAT refund if the following conditions are met simultaneously:
- The taxable person carried forward the relevant amount as a VAT credit balance for three consecutive months.
- The amount of VAT credit balance exceeds EUR3,000 for three consecutive months.
- The taxable person submitted all VAT declarations and declarations of other taxes for all previous tax periods.
- The taxable person possesses sufficient documentation to prove the entitlement to the VAT reimbursement claim.

For exports, a refund may be claimed after each tax period provided that the following conditions are met:
- The amount of VAT credit exceeds EUR3,000 at the end of the tax period.
- The taxable person has complied with all applicable customs and VAT provisions.
- All VAT returns and other tax returns for all past periods have been duly submitted.
- The taxable person possesses sufficient documentation to prove the VAT reimbursement claim.

Where new legislation outlines that the taxable person carrying the VAT credit from the first VAT period of the previous year has the right to request for VAT refund regardless of the VAT credit amount if all the VAT returns and returns of other taxes for all the previous tax periods have been submitted. The taxable person must file a "request for refund" form with the relevant tax office. The tax office must verify the fulfillment of the refund conditions and approve the refund within 60 days. Interest is applicable after exceeding the 60-day period if no reason for delay exists.

The Minister of Economy and Finance must issue a relevant regulation to determine alternative procedures for refunding VAT to persons not required to submit VAT returns, to persons who cease their economic activity, and to taxable persons and customers who are not established in Kosovo.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax incurred on pre-registration costs in Kosovo is not recoverable.

Bad debts. Taxable persons who have not received partial or total payment for a taxable supply may claim VAT charged in respect of that supply after initiating court procedures for the recognition of the bad debt for amounts above EUR500.

The VAT deduction must be allowed in each tax period after the debt becomes a bad debt and may start no sooner than six months after closing the tax period for which VAT has been applied in respect of the supply. The procedures for the writing-off of the bad debt should be initiated within 24 months from the payment due date, otherwise the non-collected payment will not be considered as bad debt.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred on purchases that are used for noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Kosovo.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Input tax incurred by non-established businesses that are not registered for VAT in Kosovo is not recoverable.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A Kosovan taxable person must issue invoices for all taxable supplies made, including exports. A VAT invoice is necessary to support a claim for input tax deduction or a refund. To qualify as valid, an invoice should comply with the requirements set out in the Kosovan VAT law. There are no requirements regarding the language of the invoice; however, for inspection purposes, the VAT authorities may ask for a translation of the invoice into an official language of Kosovo (Albanian and Serbian).

Credit notes. A VAT credit note may be used to reduce the VAT charged on a supply of goods or services; a debit note may be used to increase the amount of VAT. Tax credit and debit notes must be cross-referenced to the original VAT invoice.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is allowed in Kosovo, but not mandatory.

Scope of electronic invoicing. For B2B, B2C and business-to-government (B2G) supplies, electronic invoicing is allowed but not mandatory in Kosovo. There is no threshold beyond which taxable persons are required to adopt electronic invoicing in Kosovo. The requirements related to electronic invoicing are the same as those for paper invoicing.

The Kosovan VAT law permits electronic issue of invoices subject to acceptance by the recipient. The authenticity of the origin and the integrity of their content must be guaranteed by means of advanced electronic signature or by means of electronic data interchange EDI as defined by European arrangements and recommendations.

Note: electronic invoicing is not often used in practice in Kosovo due to the lack of secure platforms for data interchange.

Simplified VAT invoices. Taxable persons can issue summary invoices if they carry out several separate supplies of goods or services during a tax period that corresponds to a calendar month.

Simplified VAT invoices can only be issued where the supply is equal to or less than EUR500 and is made to nontaxable persons. The Tax Procedures Instruction stipulates that a taxable person must issue an invoice to a nontaxable person before the 15th day of the month following the month in which any of the following chargeable event occurs:
- The supply of goods or services to another taxable person takes place.
- The payment is performed before the goods or services are supplied.
- A continuous supply of goods (such as electricity) or service (such as a fixed telephone line) takes place, in which case the continuous supply is considered to take place in monthly intervals.

The businesses that are neither registered for VAT, nor required to be registered for VAT, issue an invoice without VAT and have no right to benefit from VAT or charge VAT.

Self-billing. Self-billing is allowed in Kosovo. The customer can bill themselves on behalf of the supplier for supplies of goods or services received by a taxable person if a previous agreement is in place between both parties and provided that the goods/service provider accepts the invoice issued on its behalf.

Proof of exports. All persons are required to obtain an export certificate prior to undertaking any export activities. Each export certificate will have a unique serial number.

Exports of goods must be verified and documented with customs export documentation, as provided in the relevant legislation. Moreover, invoices related to an export sale should contain the legislative reference on export of goods in it.

Foreign currency invoices. Invoices may be issued in any currency, provided that the taxable amount and the amount of VAT due is expressed in the domestic currency, which is the euro (EUR). Where the taxable amount of a transaction, other than the importation of goods, is expressed in a foreign currency, the conversion of this amount into the domestic currency (euros) must be the latest selling rate as defined by the Central Bank of Kosovo recorded at the time VAT becomes chargeable. Where the value and factors used to determine the taxable amount on importation are expressed in a foreign currency, the conversion of this amount into euros must be made by applying the exchange rate determined in accordance with the Customs regulations governing the calculation of the value for customs purposes.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. When a taxable person makes a supply of goods or services to private consumers, the taxable person issues a coupon from an electronic device instead of a fiscal invoice. However, in case the private consumer performs economic activities, it can request to the taxable person to issue a fiscal invoice.

Records. In Kosovo, examples of what records must be held for VAT purposes include all the information contained in invoices, coupons, debit or credit notes, or in other documents serving the same purposes. Such information must be recorded in the books and records to be kept by the taxable person. All documents must be kept in chronological order and must be cross-referenced to each other if they refer to the same taxable event.

In Kosovo, VAT books and records can be kept outside of the country. While there are no provisions in the Kosovo VAT law about where records must be held, in practice, records may be held in or outside of Kosovo. A taxable person must inform TAK of where its records are held. TAK must have access to where the records are held. All records must also be made available to TAK at the place where the taxable person has its business or has its fixed establishment, or, in the absence of such a place, the place where it has its permanent address or usually resides in Kosovo, without undue delay whenever TAK so requests.

Record retention period. A taxable person must keep its books required by the law for a period of at least six years, which starts on 1 January of the year after the year when the taxable event took place. The retaining of documentation related to immovable property for 20 years is an exception to this general rule. The same rules are valid in respect of electronic storage of such documents, books, records and registers.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is allowed in Kosovo. The taxable person should retain copies of the information technology programs that are used for the administration of the accounting and tax records, books and all other related documents and provide paper copies of these programs that allow them to be read. Producing and storing invoices and all other tax documents, books and records referred to in the VAT law in a suitable electronic format or similar system such as microfilms, microfiches and scanned formats, can only be authorized by the General Director of TAK after receiving a written request from the taxable person. This request must be accompanied by a detailed description of the system and must contain the necessary evidence that all security in respect of producing and storage requirements for invoices, books and record-keeping are met.

I. Returns and payments

Periodic returns. The tax period is a calendar month. The taxable persons must submit the VAT returns due not later than the 20th of the calendar month following the end of each tax period. For imports, VAT is payable upon importation.

For a taxable person that is newly registered, the first tax period begins on the date of the registration, as stated in the certificate of registration. The last taxable period for a taxable person undergoing a deregistration procedure must end on the date of the deregistration having begun on the first day of that month.

For a taxable person against whom a liquidation or bankruptcy procedures has been initiated, the tax period must begin on the day of the opening of the liquidation or bankruptcy procedures and must end on the date of the decision on the conclusions of such procedures.

Periodic payments. The taxable persons must submit the VAT due by the same time as the VAT return submission deadline, i.e., by the 20th of the calendar month following the end of each tax period. All VAT payments must be made through the electronic declaration system (see the Electronic filing subsection below).

Electronic filing. Electronic filling is mandatory in Kosovo for all taxable persons. TAK has developed the electronic declaration system (EDI), which enables taxable persons to open an online account that will enable them to declare and pay their tax liabilities, including VAT. This system also enables any correction of tax returns. The electronic declaration system is accessed through the TAK homepage. Then, under the electronic services section the taxable person can access EDI system.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Kosovo.

Special schemes. Travel agencies. This scheme applies to transactions where the travel agency deals with customers in its own name and uses the supplies of other taxable persons in the provision of travel services. The taxable amount and the price exclusive of VAT in respect of the single service provided by the travel agent must be the travel agent's margin, being the difference between the total amount, exclusive of VAT, to be paid by the traveler and the actual cost to the travel agent of supplies of goods or services provided by other taxable persons, where those transactions are for the direct benefit of the traveler.

The special scheme does not apply to travel agencies that act only as intermediary, in which case the supplies and services of other taxable persons can be treated as disbursements.

Secondhand goods, works of art, collector's items and antiques: profit margin scheme and special arrangements for sales by public auction. The profit margin of the taxable dealer must be equal to the difference between the selling price charged by the taxable dealer for the goods and the purchase price of these goods. The taxable amount in respect of the supply of secondhand goods, works of art, collector's items and antiques must be the profit margin made by the taxable dealer, less the amount of VAT relating to the profit margin.

The Minister of Finance may apply special provisions different from the above in respect of the determination of the taxable amount of supplies of secondhand goods, works of art, collector's items or antiques effected by an organizer of sales by public auction, acting in its own name, pursuant to a contract under which a commission is payable on the sale of those goods by public auction, on behalf of persons as will be determined with a sublegal act by the Minister of Finance. Special obligations must be imposed on the organizer of the sale by public auction in respect to the issue of an invoice or a document in lieu of the purchaser, as well as in respect to the content of such documents.

Flat rate scheme for farmers. This taxation scheme aims to offset the VAT charged on purchases of goods and services made by the flat rate farmers by adding an additional amount to the price of supply these farmers charge to their customers (taxable persons). This is calculated as a percentage of the price and must be called the flat rate percentage, which will differ depending on the agriculture category. The flat rate percentages must be defined based on statistical, relevant and macroeconomic data that enable the calculation of the VAT refund for purchases made by flat rate farmers.

Investment gold. Special obligations exist for taxable persons trading in investment gold. The supply and importation of investment gold is an exempt supply with the right to opt for taxation. A taxable person making a subsequent supply of investment gold may deduct the input tax incurred in respect of investment gold supplied to it by a person who opted for taxation. Taxable persons must keep records of investment gold transactions and keep documentation for 10 years after the end of the year to which such documents refer, regardless of what is defined in the relevant law on tax administration and procedures.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Kosovo.

Supplementary filings. VAT ledger. In addition to the monthly VAT return, taxable persons are also required to file a VAT ledger on a monthly basis, by the same deadline (see the Periodic returns subsection above). The VAT ledger is composed of purchase and sale ledgers. It is a mandatory requirement for all taxable persons to hold and maintain their purchase and sale ledgers. They must indicate on the first page the identification number and name of the person.

Further detail on the purchases and sales ledgers are outlined below.

The purchase ledger registers the date of the issuance of the invoice, serial number of the invoice, data of the import declaration, name of vendor, number of tax identification and VAT number, if applicable. Purchases are registered in the total value, which includes VAT (if any). Purchases with VAT are registered separately on imports and purchases within the county. For each purchase with VAT, the person must register the taxable value and the VAT corresponding to the purchase.

The sales ledger registers the sales separately for those exempted, sales with the right to be credited, exports and taxable sales according to the applicable rate. The taxable amount and the VAT must be registered for every taxable sale.

Correcting errors in previous returns. The taxable person can submit a new amended tax return in cases when it notices that the original submitted tax return is not correct. The taxable person can amend the returns of the last six years with the condition that this return has not been a subject of assessment from the tax authorities.

Digital tax administration. There are no transactional reporting requirements in Kosovo.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. Every person who has not applied for registration in due time must be registered by TAK with retroactive effect as of the date the threshold was exceeded and must be liable for the VAT retroactively, plus an administrative penalty, if failure to register is due to negligence. The penalty equals 15% or 25% of the VAT due, depending on whether the taxable supplies made prior to registration were less or more than EUR10,000. In addition, default interest is applicable.

Penalties for late payment and filings. Late filing of VAT return is subject to a penalty of 5% of the tax due for each month of delay, capped at 25% of the unpaid tax liability. In addition, default interest is applicable.

There are no penalties imposed for late filing or non-filing for the VAT ledgers.

Late payment of a tax obligation triggers a penalty amounting to 1% of tax due for each month or part of the month in delay up to maximum of 12 months. In addition, interest is applicable.

Penalties for errors. Failure to issue a VAT invoice or issuance of an inaccurate invoice that results in a decrease of the VAT due, or an increase of the VAT credit must be subject to a penalty of 15% of the VAT amount where this was due to the negligence of the taxable person. The penalty will increase to 25% in case of failure to issue an invoice for a taxable supply greater than EUR1,000 or issuing an incorrect invoice that is more than EUR500 above or below the amount that should have been included in the invoice of the taxable person. In addition, default interest is applicable.

Erroneous completion of a tax filing or a tax refund claim is subject to a penalty of 15% of the undeclared tax liability or the excess tax refund claimed where such understatement or overstatements is 10% or less of the VAT due, or 25% where the understatement or overstatements is more than 10% of the VAT due. In addition, interest is applicable.

The late notification or failure to notify the tax authorities of changes to a taxable person's VAT registration details can result in a EUR500 administrative penalty. In addition, in case the changes turn the taxable person's status from a non-registered business for VAT to a business that needs to be registered for VAT purposes, the following administrative penalties apply:

- 15% of the VAT due on those supplies, if failure to register is due to negligence of the person making taxable sales of less than EUR10,000
- 25% of the VAT due on those supplies, if failure to register is due to negligence of the person making taxable sales of more than EUR10,000

For further details, see the subsection Changes to VAT registration details above.

Penalties for fraud. Taxable persons who commit criminal offenses are penalized under the Criminal Code. These offenses relate to certain situations, including, but not limited to, the following:

- Taxable persons willfully evade partially or entirely the payment of taxes or gain unwarranted tax refunds or tax credits
- Taxable persons provide false information relevant for the collection of taxes
- Taxable persons act as a member of a group formed for the purpose of repeatedly committing tax evasion

Personal liability for company officers. Company officers cannot be held personally liable for errors and omissions in VAT declarations and reporting in Kosovo.

Statute of limitations. The statute of limitations in Kosovo is six years. This is from the filing of a tax return or its amendment. The statute of limitation does not apply if the taxable person has failed to submit a tax return or has committed tax evasion. The statute of limitation also does not apply if a taxable person's tax liabilities are understated, or its tax credits are overstated as a result or fraud committed by another person.

Kuwait is a Member State of the Gulf Cooperation Council (GCC). The GCC consists of Bahrain, the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Oman, Qatar and the United Arab Emirates. The GCC has agreed that VAT will be implemented by each Member State.

At the time of preparing this chapter, the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, United Arab Emirates, Bahrain and Oman are the GCC Member States to have implemented VAT. The Kuwait Cabinet has approved a bill that approves the GCC Unified VAT Framework Agreement and the GCC Unified Selective Tax Agreement. The bills are submitted for the approval of the National Assembly, but there has been no implementation date announced formally by the State of Kuwait. There is currently no clarity on when Kuwait will introduce VAT.

The GCC Common VAT Agreement contains the main principles of the GCC VAT system and sets out the options that individual Member States may choose in terms of the VAT treatment applicable to certain supplies and business sectors. The options are primarily administrative, and where aspects are not dealt with by the GCC Common VAT Agreement, then each Member State may determine individually.

At the time of preparing this chapter, the GCC Common VAT Agreement has no direct effect in the GCC Member States, except if the respective Member States' domestic VAT law specifically refers to the provisions in the Common Agreement.

The summary set out below is based on the GCC Common VAT Agreement.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- Supplies of taxable goods and services in the People's Democratic Republic of Lao (Laos) in the course of a business by a taxable person
- Imports of taxable goods into Laos, regardless of the status of the importer
- Supplies of taxable goods and services in Laos from non-established suppliers
- Export of taxable goods and/or services by a taxable person

Effective use and enjoyment. To avoid instances of non-taxation or double taxation, jurisdictions can apply "use and enjoyment" rules that allow a service that is "used and enjoyed" in the jurisdiction to be taxed or prevent a service that is "used and enjoyed" outside the jurisdiction from being taxed. If a service is taxed in the jurisdiction under the "use and enjoyment" provisions, a non-established supplier of the service may be required to register for VAT in every jurisdiction where it has customers that are not taxable persons. In Laos, no services are subject to the "use and enjoyment" provisions.

Transfer of a going concern. Transfer of going concern rules do not apply in Laos. As such, VAT applies to all sales of a business or part of a business capable of separate operation including assets.

Transactions between related parties. In Laos, there are no specific rules that indicate the value for VAT purposes for transactions between related parties. However, instead, the market value of similar transactions will be used for comparation, and the withholding tax mechanism will be applied with respect to transactions with overseas related parties.

C. Who is liable

There is no VAT registration threshold in Laos. A taxable person must register for VAT for any taxable activity carried out. This means that all businesses (which covers individuals, legal entities and organizations) engaged in supplies of goods or services subject to VAT (including importing goods and/or services) are required to register for VAT in Laos. This also means those who purchase taxable goods and services from non-established or established businesses in Laos are liable to register and account for VAT. In principle, this only applies if the recipients of goods and services are a legal entity. This also means they can claim any input tax incurred (such importation VAT).

Exemption from registration. The VAT law in Laos does not contain any provision for exemption from registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. While there is no VAT registration threshold in Laos, it is possible for a taxable person who is not required to register for VAT under the VAT law in Laos (e.g., because it makes supplies within the scope of VAT, but its turnover is lower than the voluntary registration threshold, which is LAK400 million) to register for VAT on a voluntary basis (e.g., because all its supplies are made to other businesses and it wants to recover input tax on its purchases).

Small businesses may register for VAT voluntarily if their annual revenue exceeds LAK400 million. A business may also voluntarily register for VAT in advance of making taxable supplies if its supplies are expected to exceed LAK400 million.

Group registration. Group VAT registration is not allowed in Laos.

Fixed establishment. In Laos, there is no legal definition of a fixed establishment for VAT purposes. However, the enterprise system definition of a fixed establishment in Laos can be used for VAT purposes. This is defined as a business organization of an individual or legal entity that has a name, capital and management team office in Laos.

Non-established businesses. Non-established businesses do not have a requirement to register for VAT in Laos. This only applies to business-to-business (B2B) supplies, and not business-to-consumer (B2C) supplies.

The withholding VAT mechanism (at 7%) will apply on supplies made by non-established businesses to local business customers (B2B) in Laos. The local business customer will withhold and pay the VAT to the Laos tax authorities on behalf of non-established business.

For supplies made by non-established businesses to local private customers in Laos (B2C), the non-established business must register for VAT in Laos, via a local agent, representative office or subsidiary, and account for VAT on its supplies.

Tax representatives. Tax representatives are not required in Laos. However, the definition of a "tax representative" in Laos excludes local agents that are required to be registered and account for VAT in Laos on behalf of a non-established business making B2C supplies.

Reverse charge. VAT is charged via the reverse-charge mechanism, on services provided by non-established businesses, specifically "foreign contractors" who apply the foreign contractor (FCT) declaration under the deemed method. Upon making payment, the local taxable person must withhold the FCT amount (including VAT and corporate income tax). The FCT shall be declared and paid to the tax authorities within 15 working days from payment date. The Laos reverse-charge mechanism is the same as the withholding VAT mechanism (see the Non-established businesses subsection above). Withholding FCT is the total of the withholding VAT and withholding CIT.

Domestic reverse charge. For B2B supplies, a taxable person is required to withhold tax and pay on behalf of supplier in case the VAT in-voice is not available.

Digital economy. Local taxable persons that supply digital services in Laos are liable to charge VAT on the services provided. It is considered as a general provision of services where the VAT liability will be triggered upon the receipt of services at the standard rate.

Nonresident providers of electronically supplied services for business-to-business (B2B) and business-to-consumer (B2C) supplies, need to register and account for VAT on supplies made in Laos, otherwise the VAT will be withheld by the payment services provider. For B2B supplies, if the nonresident provider does not register and account for VAT, the customer is required to withhold, declare and pay VAT on behalf of the service provider at the standard rate. The VAT due is withheld by the payment services provider.

For B2C supplies, if the nonresident provider does not register and account for the VAT due, the individual customer must pay directly to the nonresident provider and withhold VAT 7% on the payment to the nonresident provider. The VAT due is withheld by the payment services provider.

At the time of preparing this chapter, no specific guidance/regulations have been issued on the registration rules for nonresident providers of electronically supplied services. As such, this means that in practice, the withholding VAT mechanism is applied for nonresident providers operating in Laos.

There are no other specific e-commerce rules for imported goods. This means that VAT is paid for imported goods upon customs clearance.

Online marketplaces and platforms. For e-commerce businesses, the sale of goods via an online platform or marketplace by a taxable person is considered as a general sale of goods, where the VAT liability will be triggered upon the receipt of services/goods. The owner of the goods is the supplier (i.e., the taxable person, who can be a private individual or legal entity). If the supplier is an established legal entity, then it is required to register and account for the VAT due on the supply. If the supplier is a nonresident, then there is no requirement to register and account for the VAT due. Instead, the customer or owner of the online platform or marketplace is required to account for the VAT due by withholding the VAT due on the payment and pay the VAT to the tax authorities. The VAT due is withheld by the payment services provider.

Registration procedures. For a newly established business that has completed the incorporation procedures and received an enterprise registration certificate and enterprise number, the tax identification number will be shown on this certificate and tax system server. No separate VAT registration procedures are required.

The relevant registration officer/authorities must notify the local tax authority where the newly established business is located.

The application for newly established businesses must be submitted by paper and include the following documents:
- Enterprise registration request form
- List of investors/shareholders and identification documents of such investors/shareholders
- Decision (i.e., the minutes of the meeting or announcement of shareholder on the new enterprise establishment) on enterprise establishment
- Rental contract of office where the enterprise located
- Investment license for foreign investor as stipulated under Investment Promotion Law.

The outcome of the registration application will be sent to the applicant within 10 working days from the submission date.

Deregistration. A taxable person can revoke its VAT registration number in Laos (i.e., deregister) only when it ceases its taxable activities in Laos. After it has paid all its outstanding tax liabilities, it can apply to revoke its VAT registration number.

The taxable person must inform the relevant government bodies and the tax authorities on its decision to revoke its VAT registration number. It will need to complete a tax inspection from the tax authority before it can deregister from VAT. After the tax inspection has been completed, and the taxable person has paid any outstanding VAT due (if any), the tax authority and other relevant government bodies will issue the notice on the deregistration.

Changes to VAT registration details. If there is a material change in a taxable person's VAT registration details, it must notify the tax administration within 15 days of the event. Material changes may include:
- Change to the number of branches
- Change to the amount of capital registered to the taxable person
- Change to business address
- Change to business name
- Change to business activities carried out by the taxable person

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 7%
- Zero rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods and services unless a specific measure provides for the zero rate or an exemption.

The standard rate of VAT was decreased from 10% to 7% with effect from 1 January 2022.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%
- Exported goods and services, including goods and services sold to overseas organizations or individual outside Laos
- Construction and installation carried out overseas or supply of goods/services within special economic zone
- International transportation

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Agriculture products, animals and animal products
- Fertilizer, agricultural processing industrial, bio-fertilizer, chemical fertilizer, pesticide for plants and animals
- Equipment and machinery use for agriculture activities
- Study textbooks, teaching methods, modern equipment that is used for learning and teaching
- Newspapers, political magazines, television programs, radio programs that work for publishing government's political policies with no business purpose
- Education activities, such as children centers, kindergartens, primary and secondary schools, vocational schools, vocational training centers, colleges and universities, sport and gymnasium centers
- Deposit interest, loan interest, income from money transfer, gain on foreign exchange or other financial activities from the operation of commercial bank or finance institution as approved by the bank of Laos

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Laos.

E. Time of supply

In Laos, the general time of supply rule for goods (i.e., the basic tax point) is when the ownership or use rights of the goods are transferred, regardless time of payment is made.

For services, the general time of supply rule (i.e., the basic tax point) is when the service is completely performed or when the VAT invoice is issued, regardless of when the time of payment is made. This is because there are two ways to determine the general time of supply rule. This depends on the nature of service being provided and the agreement between both parties involved in the transaction. For example, this can be the completion of the service or based on service progress (30%, 50%, etc.).

For the services provided by non-established business, the general time of supply rules is when the payment to non-established business is made.

Deposits and prepayments. For deposits and prepayments, the tax point is when the deposit/prepayment is made with the requirement for an invoice to be issued.

Continuous supplies of services. There are no specific time of supply rules in Laos for supplies of continuous supplies of services. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules in Laos for supplies of goods sent on approval for sale or return. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

Reverse-charge services. Reverse-charge services relate to foreign contractors who apply the foreign contractor tax (FCT) declaration under the deemed method. Upon making the payment, the Laos company shall withhold FCT then declare and payment on behalf of the foreign contractor. Withholding FCT is the total of the withholding VAT and withholding CIT.

Leased assets. The tax point for the supply of leased assets is upon the receipt of the rental fee or the issuance of an VAT invoice (whichever is earlier).

Imported goods. The tax point for imported goods is the date of importation, and at this point the VAT must be declared and paid.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax, which is VAT charged on taxable goods and services supplied to it for business purposes, to the extent that costs corresponding to the input tax are for sales that are subject to VAT.

A taxable person generally recovers input tax by deducting from output tax, which is VAT charged on supplies made. If the input tax exceeds output tax due, this excess tax can be claimed as a refund.

A valid standard tax invoice or customs document must generally accompany a claim for input tax.

There is no time limit for reclaiming input tax from a previous period according to the VAT law. However, in practice, the tax authority may not accept a backdated input tax claim if the reclaiming input tax is over one year, as it may prove difficult for reconciliation purposes and tracking the supplies and relevant documentations, etc.

Nondeductible input tax. In general, input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not use for business purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use). In addition, the input tax may not be recovered if the purchases are not supported by sufficient documents (e.g., VAT invoice, contract, payment documents).

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Purchases used for nonbusiness purposes
- Entertainment or similar expenses
- Business gifts
- Laptops, tablets, telephones, which are not recorded as a fixed assets of the taxable person
- Purchase, lease or hire of benefits in kind (such as employee accommodation or personal cars)

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to taxable business use)

- Advertising/marketing services
- Purchase of raw materials, goods, fixed assets
- Payment for rental fees, electricity
- Attending conferences and seminars
- Purchase, lease or hire of cars, vans or trucks
- Maintenance and fuel for vans and trucks
- Business travel expenses

Partial exemption. Where a business makes supplies of taxable and nontaxable goods and services, the input tax should be recalculated/proportionated to reflect the percentage of supplies that are taxable, to calculate the amount of input tax that can be recovered. Taxable persons must maintain separate accounts for taxable and nontaxable input tax.

If no separate accounts are maintained by the taxable person, the deductible input tax calculation must be calculated based on the ratio of the proportion of taxable revenue compared with total revenue.

Approval from the tax authorities is not required to use the partial exemption standard method in Laos. Special methods are not allowed in Laos.

Capital goods. In Laos, capital goods are defined as tangible fixed assets, such as buildings, vehicles, machines, equipment, etc. Under Laos VAT law, when capital goods are purchased, the input tax incurred can be deducted in full (subject to partial exemption). However, if the capital good purchased was a building, only up to 70% of the input tax incurred can be deducted, the remaining 30% is recorded as the value of the building.

There are no specific rules for capital goods in respect of time and duration of use.

Refunds. Businesses that pay VAT due using the "tax credit method" are eligible to claim a refund of input tax, where the input tax is not deducted all within three months from the month the VAT occurred. The "tax credit method" is the net amount between output and input tax. The input tax must be claimed on a monthly basis. Where the input tax has not all been deducted within three months, the taxable person can request a general VAT refund for the excess amount.

If the amount of input tax credits in a period exceeds the output tax in the same period, the excess amount is refundable. In general, refund claims must be made at the end of the year. However, certain taxable persons may claim refunds on a monthly basis. The Laos tax authorities conduct audits to ensure the validity of VAT refund claims. The tax audit must be concluded within one year after the date of the request for a refund.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax incurred on pre-registration costs in Laos is not recoverable.

Bad debts. Output tax accounted for on supplies that do not get paid by the recipient (i.e., bad debts) can be recovered in Laos. To claim the bad debt, the output tax must have already been written off as an expense and as a provision for bad debts. It is also required for the bad debt to be certified by the relevant authorities (e.g., court, police, village).

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred on purchases that are used for noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Laos.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Input tax incurred by non-established businesses that are not registered for VAT in Laos is not recoverable.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A standard VAT invoice for all taxable supplies (goods, services, including exports) made must be provided by taxable persons.

The invoice can be presented in the following three forms:
- Purchase from tax authority: wholly printed and provided by tax authority
- Self-printing invoice: produced by a printing house by order to tax authority or of taxable person
- Electronic invoice: must be created, issued and processed on computer; program of taxable person under Laos law and must get approval from tax authority in advance

Credit notes. Credit notes are not available in Laos. Any adjustment or cancellation to a supply must be reflected by way of an adjustment of the original invoice. If it concerns a return of goods, the customer is required to issue an invoice to the supplier (for B2B supplies only); or the supplier must issue a memo on cancel of the original invoice and adjust its VAT return in the following period. In case an issued invoice is incorrect before it is sent to the customer, the supplier must cross out the copies, keep the incorrect invoice and reissue the correct invoice.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is mandatory in Laos for all taxable persons.

Scope of electronic invoicing. For B2B, B2C and business-to-government (B2G) supplies, electronic invoicing is mandatory in Laos. There is no threshold on the value of services/goods that need to issue electronic invoice.

All taxable persons are required to issue electronic invoices when making supplies of any services/goods in Laos. However, the taxable person shall need to register with the tax authority in advance.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified VAT invoicing is not allowed in Laos. As such, full VAT invoices are required.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Laos.

Proof of exports. Exports of goods and services are subject to VAT at the zero rate. However, to zero-rate the supply of exports, such supplies must be supported with evidence that the goods were exported outside of Laos. Valid evidence of export includes full VAT invoice, customs declaration, contract, bill of lading and others payment documents.

Foreign currency invoices. For supplies invoiced in a foreign currency, the amounts must also be reported in the domestic currency, which is the Lao kip (LAK). The official exchange rate, issued by the Laos Central Bank on the date on which the VAT invoice is issued, must be used to convert the currency.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. There are no special invoicing rules for supplies to nontaxable person in Laos. As such, full VAT invoices are required.

Records. In Laos, examples of what records must be held for VAT purposes include tax records (e.g., tax returns, tax calculations, tax payment documents); invoices and others supporting documents. In Laos, VAT books and records must be held within the country.

Record retention period. All accounting data, accounting books and financial statements must be kept for 10 years in good condition and be available upon request for inspection by the tax authority.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is allowed in Laos. Records can be kept and archived electronically. However, in the event of a tax audit or other dispute process, the tax authority may request the original hard copy of the records/documents, and only VAT invoices are acceptable as a printout of electronic form.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. All taxable persons are required to file VAT returns on a monthly basis in Laos. The deadline for monthly VAT returns is the 20th of following month.

There is currently no requirement in Laos for the VAT to be reconciled and finalized with the tax authorities on an annual basis.

Periodic payments. The VAT payable, if any, must be settled before the submission deadline of the monthly VAT return, i.e., by the 20th of following month. Payments must be made electronically online, via the website of the tax authorities (i.e., internet banking or bank transfer).

Electronic filing. Electronic filling is mandatory in Laos for all taxable persons. The taxable person must submit the VAT return and payment via the website of the tax authorities (http://taxservice.mof.gov.la/websquare/websquare.do).

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Laos.

Special schemes. No special schemes are available in Laos.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Laos.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary fillings are required in Laos. However, in case the tax declaration dossier (e.g., the VAT return, and in addition tax calculations and tax payment documents, etc., which are only required to be submitted upon request) submitted to the tax authority is erroneous or inadequate, supplementary documents may be provided within 10 years from the deadline for submission of the erroneous or inadequate tax declaration dossier, but before the tax authority announces a decision on tax documents examination.

Correcting errors in previous returns. Taxable persons can correct information recorded in the VAT return by amending the VAT return in following month. Taxable persons can submit a supplementary VAT return (e.g., the previous tax return, a letter outlining the reason(s) for the error and adjustment(s), previous calculation) to correct the previous return to tax authority. Depending on the size and scale of the error, a penalty ranging from LAK500,000 to LAK1 million may be charged.

Digital tax administration. There are no transactional reporting requirements in Laos.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. If a taxable person registers late for VAT, penalties may be imposed on the supplies of taxable goods and services made before the date of registration. The penalty for late registration is LAK1 million.

Penalties for late payment and filings. Interest is charged for the late payment of VAT at 0.1% per day the payment is late.

For late filling, the penalty LAK500,000 per late filing will apply.

Penalties for errors. A penalty, charged at the rate of 50% of the VAT base amount, is imposed for any additional VAT payable that was misreported and underpaid.

The late notification or failure to notify the tax authorities of changes to a taxable person's VAT registration details to may result in a penalty of LAK3 million. For further details, see the subsection Changes to VAT registration details above.

Penalties for fraud. The definition of fraud under Laos VAT law includes not providing support to the tax authority or providing incorrect documents, providing information not clearly and/or incorrect. In such cases, a penalty of LAK1 million will apply.

Personal liability for company officers. In general, company officers are not personally liable for the company's tax violations, unless criminal intent is detected. It is reviewed on a case-by-case basis, and it will depend on the seriousness of the violation, assessment by the relevant authorities (e.g., the tax authority, police) and applicable laws.

Statute of limitations. The statute of limitations in Laos is three years. Tax authorities can go back to review tax returns and collect VAT within three years from the date the taxable supplies are made. There is no specific time limit for taxable persons to voluntarily correct errors in previous VAT returns. However, in practice, taxable persons are advised to correct any errors before the tax inspection is carried out.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:

- The supply of goods, including the supply of goods within the European Union (EU) and exports of goods

- The supply of services in Latvia
- The intra-Community acquisition of goods from another EU Member State by a taxable person (see the chapter on the EU)
- The importation of goods into Latvia, regardless of the status of the importer
- The acquisition of new vehicles within the EU by a non-registered or nontaxable person
- The supply of new vehicles from Latvia to any other EU Member State
- Self-supply (consumption) of goods and services
- Reverse-charge services received by a taxable person established in Latvia
- Distance sales of goods in Latvia made to nontaxable persons

Quick Fixes. Pending introduction of a "definitive" system for the VAT treatment of intra-Community supplies of goods to taxable persons, the EU has adopted Quick Fixes for intra-Community trade in goods. For an overview of the Quick Fixes rules, see the chapter on the EU. For documentary requirements, see Section H. Invoicing, subsection Proof of exports and intra-Community supplies.

In Latvia, the Quick Fixes rules are applicable as of 1 January 2020; an overview of the changes are below:
- Call-off stock: Latvia implemented the respective EU law without any local changes.
- Chain transactions: Latvia followed the approach of the respective Quick Fix already in the past; no practical change has been made in this respect.
- Proof of cross-border transactions: No specific legal provision has been implemented, as the Implementing Regulation is also directly applicable in Latvia.
- Valid customer VAT ID: VAT exemption related to intra-Community supply of goods cannot be applied if the respective EU sales and acquisition listings are missing or not completed properly (whether the mistake is connected to the EU VAT ID of the customer or to other numerical or timing difference).

Effective use and enjoyment. To avoid instances of non-taxation or double taxation, EU Member States can apply use and enjoyment rules that allow a service that is "used and enjoyed" in the EU to be taxed or prevent a service that is "used and enjoyed" outside the EU from being taxed. If a service is taxed in the EU under the use and enjoyment provisions, a non-EU supplier of the service may be required to register for VAT in every Member State where it has customers that are not taxable persons. For information regarding the rules relating to VAT registration, see the chapters on the respective countries of the EU.

In Latvia, the following services are subject to the "use and enjoyment" provisions:
- Transportation of goods services, if such services are provided to a registered taxable person or a registered taxable person of a third country; for clarification, transportation services, when transportation of goods occurs for a registered taxable person, then applies effective use and enjoyment rules that allow a service that is "used and enjoyed" in the EU to be taxed or prevent a service that is "used and enjoyed" outside the EU from being taxed
- Electronic communications, broadcasting and electronically supplied service
- Hiring of movable tangible property
- Hiring out of means of transport

Transfer of a going concern. Any transfer of a business entity (of a totality of property or part thereof taking the form of a transfer of assets and liabilities) into the ownership or use of another taxable person shall not be regarded as a supply of goods for consideration, provided that, in the event of the transfer of assets and liabilities, whether for consideration or not, or as a contribution to a capital company or partnership, the person to whom the business entity is transferred:
- Becomes the successor to the transferor within the meaning of the Commercial Law
- The economic activity is carried on for purposes other than the sale of the business or the dissolution of the entity

Transactions between related parties. For a transaction of supply of goods and services between related parties, the taxable value shall be the market value of the supply of goods and services if the transaction value is:

- Less than the market value and the recipient of goods or services has no right to deduct the input tax in full.
- Less than the market value and the supplier of goods or services has no right to deduct the input tax in full, and the supply of goods or services is exempted from VAT.
- More than the market value and the supplier of goods or services has no right to deduct the input tax in full.

C. Who is liable

A taxable person is any natural or legal person or group of such persons bound by agreement, or the representative acting for a group of persons, who performs economic activities and who is registered with the State Revenue Service (SRS) Register of taxable persons. VAT groups and fiscal representatives are also considered to be taxable persons.

The VAT registration threshold for local businesses is turnover subject to VAT greater than EUR50,000 in the preceding 12 months. The threshold of EUR50,000 applies from 1 January 2024; previously it was EUR40,000. If a business exceeds the VAT registration threshold, it must register for VAT by the 15th day of the month following the period in which the threshold is exceeded. However, voluntary VAT registration is possible before reaching the VAT registration threshold.

Mandatory VAT registration is also required prior to supplying services to taxable persons in another EU Member State if the services are deemed to be supplied in that other Member State and the recipients of the services must account for VAT under the reverse-charge mechanism.

For intra-Community acquisitions, nontaxable legal persons and private individuals who perform economic activities but have not triggered the obligation to register for VAT (i.e., non-registered taxable persons), must register for VAT if the value of their intra-Community acquisitions (excluding VAT) in a calendar year is equal to or exceeds EUR10,000.

A state or municipal authority or a municipality that is not registered for VAT with the SRS and that has entered into a contract with a supplier of construction services for the supply of construction services according to the procurement procedure prescribed by the Public Procurement Law, or is involved in a public-private partnership project as a public partner according to the Public-Private Partnership Law shall be registered as a taxable person with the SRS before these services are received.

Exemption from registration. In Latvia there are specific rules and conditions for exemption from registration, which are for Latvian taxable persons, taxable persons of other EU Member States and taxable persons of third countries/third territories.

Exemption from VAT registration for taxable persons established in Latvia. Taxable persons established in Latvia are not obliged to register for VAT if the total value of goods and services supplied by them in the preceding 12-month period does not exceed EUR50,000. This exemption does not apply if a taxable person established in Latvia supplies services to a taxable person from other EU Member States, as well as if a taxable person established in Latvia receives services from a person from outside Latvia (i.e., from other EU Member States or from any third country/third territory) that does not conduct economic activity in Latvia.

The registration threshold of EUR50,000 shall not include the value of fixed assets and intangible investments supplied by a taxable person established in Latvia, if such a supply is carried out once within a time period of 12 months.

Taxable persons established in Latvia are not obligated to register for VAT purposes if after one transaction the registration threshold of EUR50,000 is exceeded, but the taxable person does not intend to carry out other taxable transactions during the next 12 months. Taxable persons established in Latvia are also not obligated to register for VAT purposes if they occasionally supply new vehicles, which are dispatched or transported to the customer by the customer itself, the supplier, or by a third person on behalf of the supplier or the customer, to a destination outside Latvia but within the territory of the European Union.

Exemption from VAT registration for taxable persons of other EU Member States. A taxable person of other EU Member States is not obliged to register for VAT purposes if:

- It carries out a supply of goods or services for which VAT is paid by the recipient of goods or services (i.e., subject to the reverse-charge mechanism).
- It carries out supplies of Community goods already undergoing export customs procedures or non-Community goods in customs warehouses or free zones.
- It carries out such transactions where non-Community goods or Community goods for which exit customs procedures have been commenced are moved from one inland customs warehouse/free zone to another inland customs warehouse/free zone or customs warehouse/free zone of other EU Member States.
- It supplies stocks of production goods or stocks of wholesale goods to a registered taxable person and, in accordance with an agreement entered into between such persons, the property rights to the abovementioned goods shall be transferred to the registered taxable person, which is the recipient of goods only at the time of resale or use.
- It carries out intra-Community acquisition of goods in Latvia and supplies of goods that are part of a triangular supply chain.
- It carries out the supply of goods that are dispatched or transported by the taxable person or another person on its behalf from Latvia to a destination outside the territory of the European Union except goods that are intended for equipping or supplying pleasure boats, private aircraft, or any other means of transport for private use.
- It is represented by a fiscal representative in relation to the relevant resident transactions.
- It supplies goods or services in Latvia to headquarters of allied forces recognized by the Republic of Latvia.

Exemption from VAT registration for taxable persons of third countries/third territories. A taxable person of third country/third territory is not obliged to register for VAT purposes if:

- It carries out the supply of goods or services for which VAT is paid by the recipient of goods or services.
- It carries out supplies of Community goods already undergoing export customs procedures or non-Community goods in customs warehouses or free zones.
- It carries out such transactions where non-Community goods or Community goods for which exit customs procedures have been commenced are moved from one resident customs warehouse/free zone to other inland customs warehouse/free zone or customs warehouse/free zone of other EU Member States.
- It is represented by a fiscal representative (i.e., a registered taxable person) that on the basis of a written contract assumes VAT liabilities, pays tax into the State Budget and represents a taxable person of another Member State or of a third country/territory; the fiscal representative status is only with respect to VAT in relation to the relevant inland transactions.
- It carries out the supply of goods that are dispatched or transported by the taxable person or another person on its behalf from inland to a destination outside the territory of the European Union, except goods that are intended for equipping or supplying pleasure boats, private aircraft or any other means of transport for private use.
- It supplies goods or services inland to headquarters of allied forces recognized by the Republic of Latvia.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. A taxable person can register for VAT voluntarily even if it is not required to register for VAT under the VAT law in Latvia. No explicit restrictions for voluntary VAT registration are laid down in VAT law in Latvia. There are no special VAT registration rules for small businesses.

Group registration. A group registration for VAT purposes is possible in Latvia. Legal entities that are closely connected (through capital or management) may choose to register as a VAT group. A VAT group is treated as a single taxable person, where members of the VAT group are not regarded as independent taxable persons. Only persons established in Latvia may be part of a VAT group. As a result, any establishments (seat or fixed establishment) of such persons outside Latvia may not be part of a VAT group. The group members share a single VAT number and submit a single VAT return.

The following are the rules for the registration of VAT groups:
- The value of taxable transactions of at least one member of the VAT group in the preceding 12 months was EUR350,000).
- Each member of the VAT group must be separately registered for VAT.
- A member of a VAT group cannot be a member of another VAT group.
- VAT group members can be capital companies belonging to the same group of companies as well as Latvian branches of foreign legal entities, provided that, under the Law on Groups of Companies, the foreign legal entity belongs to the group of companies comprising other members of the VAT group.
- The members establishing the VAT group must enter into a valid contract.
- The members of the VAT group must be reachable at their legal addresses.
- The group members are jointly and severally liable for VAT group tax liabilities.

The minimum time period required for the duration of a VAT group is 12 months (unless the conditions for group registration cease to be satisfied).

Holding companies. Latvian VAT law does not contain specific rules regarding holding company inclusion in the VAT group. However, members of a VAT group must be established in Latvia. In practice, a pure holding company (i.e., a nontaxable person) can be part of a VAT group in Latvia. This, of course, can impact the input tax deduction of the VAT group as a whole and limiting the percentage the group can recover.

Cost-sharing exemption. The VAT cost-sharing exemption (in accordance with VAT Directive 2006/112/EEC Article 132(1)f has been implemented in Latvia. This provides an option to exempt services that the cost-sharing group supplies to its members, providing certain conditions are met, which are laid out in Latvian VAT law.

Fixed establishment. The term "fixed establishment" should be understood as explained by Council Implementing Regulation 282/2011/EU and as implemented in the VAT law. A fixed establishment is any establishment characterized by a sufficient degree of permanence and a suitable structure in terms of technical and personnel resources that enable it to provide and receive services.

The local rules do not provide additional criteria or guidance on fixed establishments; thus, every review should be evaluated on case-by-case basis.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that does not have a permanent establishment in Latvia. A non-established business must register for VAT if it makes supplies of goods or services for which it is liable to pay VAT in Latvia. If a non-established business performs intra-Community acquisitions of goods in Latvia or supplies of services and if it fails to register for VAT, in certain cases, the liability to account for reverse-charge VAT transfers to the recipient of the goods or services in Latvia (provided the recipient is a VAT-registered person). An entity registered for VAT in another EU Member State is not required to register for supplies made to taxable persons established in Latvia if the reverse charge applies (i.e., the recipient of the service must account for the VAT on behalf of the supplier). The reverse charge does not apply to supplies made to private persons.

To register for VAT, a non-established business must submit the following documents to the SRS:
- A completed application form provided for in the Cabinet Regulations
- A copy of the registration certificate
- Confirmation of the address of the business in Latvia, if such an address exists

The documents can be submitted via the following methods:
- Paper form by submitting them in person to the office of the SRS
- Online via the Electronic Declaration System (EDS) of the SRS (if the taxable person has an account there)
- Sending the necessary documents to the SRS by mail (subject to rules of secure electronic signatures); the person who submits the application must be either a person who has signature rights in the company or the applicant's authorized person. The person who submits the application must also present a passport or ID card as proof of identity.

Tax representatives. VAT fiscal representatives (called tax representatives in some other countries) are taxable persons who, based on a written contract, remit to the tax authorities the VAT due by a nonresident taxable person whom they represent, and fulfill on their behalf the administrative obligations relating to the following transactions:
- The importation of goods and the subsequent intra-Community supply of the imported goods
- The importation of goods and the subsequent domestic supply of the imported goods
- The receipt of goods in Latvia that are to be exported and that are stored under warehousing arrangements, and the subsequent exportation of those goods
- The intra-Community acquisition of goods that are to be exported and are stored under warehousing arrangements, and the subsequent exportation of those goods

VAT fiscal representatives must present a power of attorney, and they are responsible for payment of the VAT liabilities of the nonresident taxable person whom they represent. They must file monthly VAT returns in electronic format.

For taxable persons established outside the EU, they are no longer required to appoint a fiscal representative to register for VAT purposes, and they can register in their own names. However, they may still opt to appoint a fiscal representative.

Note that Latvian VAT rulings do not differentiate global and individual representatives and only one type of representative is available – fiscal representative.

Reverse charge. The "reverse-charge" provision applies generally to supplies of goods and services made by non-established businesses to taxable persons and other nontaxable legal persons established in Latvia, provided that VAT is due on these supplies. Under the reverse-charge provision, the taxable person or legal person that receives the supply must account for the VAT due. If the reverse charge applies, the non-established supplier may not account for VAT in Latvia. The reverse charge does not apply to supplies made to private persons.

Domestic reverse charge. Timber products and related services. Domestic supplies of timber products and related services are subject to the reverse-charge mechanism if the supplier and customer are registered taxable persons.

Scrap materials and related services. Domestic supplies of specified scrap materials and related services are subject to the reverse-charge mechanism if the supplier and customer are registered taxable persons and the customer is licensed to purchase scrap materials in Latvia or, lacking such a license, has obtained a permit for performing A- or B-category polluting activities or for collecting, handling, sorting or storing waste. Scrap materials include certain ferrous and nonferrous scrap, car wrecks, electrical and electronic waste, and batteries.

Construction products, services and construction-related services. Domestic supplies of construction services (such as construction of new buildings or reconstruction of a part or the whole of existing buildings) and construction-related services are subject to the reverse-charge mechanism if the supplier and customer are registered taxable persons. Domestic supplies of construction products are subject to the reverse-charge mechanism if the supplier and customer are taxable persons. The domestic reverse-charge mechanism is applicable to construction products from 1 January 2018 but ended on 1 January 2020.

Mobile phones, tablets, laptops, integrated circuits, game consoles. Domestic supplies of mobile phones, computer hardware, integrated circuits and game consoles are subject to the reverse-charge mechanism if the supplier and customer are taxable persons.

Grain crops and industrial crops. Domestic supplies of grain and industrial crops are subject to the reverse-charge mechanism if the supplier and customer are registered taxable persons.

Precious metals, semi-finished products of precious metals. Domestic supplies of precious metals, precious metal alloys and precious clad metal are subject to the reverse-charge mechanism if the supplier and customer are registered taxable persons.

Plated metals, scrap and waste. Domestic supplies of semi-finished goods of precious metal, plated metal, scrap and waste are subject to the reverse-charge mechanism if the supplier and customer are registered taxable persons.

Metal products, semi-finished metal products and related services. Domestic supplies of metal products, semi-finished metal products and related services are subject to the reverse-charge mechanism if the supplier and customer are registered taxable persons.

Electronic and electric household appliances. Domestic supplies of electronic and electric household appliances are subject to the reverse-charge mechanism if the supplier and customer are registered taxable persons. The domestic reverse-charge mechanism is applicable to electronic and electric household appliances from 1 January 2018 but ended on 1 January 2020.

Digital economy. Specific VAT rules apply to cross-border supplies of goods and services sold via the internet (e-commerce) in all EU Member States with effect from 1 July 2021. These new rules apply to all direct sales to nontaxable persons (in practice, these are mostly private individuals), but we refer to these rules as e-commerce VAT rules because most of these transactions are conducted via the internet. In general, the place of supply is in the country of consumption, i.e., where the goods are shipped to or where the buyer of the goods or services resides, subject to any "use and enjoyment" provisions that may override this rule (see the Section B. Effective use and enjoyment subsection above). Therefore:

- For supplies of services made by a nonresident supplier to a business customer (B2B), the business customer is responsible for accounting for the VAT due, using the reverse charge.
- For supplies of goods made by a nonresident supplier to a business customer (B2B), where the goods are transported from another EU Member State, the business purchasing the goods is responsible for accounting for the VAT due, as an intra-Community acquisition. If the goods come from outside the EU, the purchaser may have to report an importation of goods.
- For supplies of goods or services made by a nonresident supplier to a final consumer (B2C), the supplier is generally responsible for charging and accounting for the VAT due at the rate applicable in the customer's country (unless the supplier's sales fall beneath the distance selling threshold of EUR10,000 with effect from 1 July 2021). This VAT can be reported using a single VAT registration, using a One-Stop Shop (OSS) mechanism.

In Latvia, in the case of supplies facilitated by an electronic interface, there are two subsequent deemed supplies: the first from the underlying supplier to the electronic interface, and the second from the electronic interface to the customer. In this case, the transport of the supply is assigned to the deemed supply by the electronic interface, and it must apply the distance sales rules. The underlying supplier in this case is not required to charge VAT to the electronic interface, since its supply is either out of scope of EU VAT or a zero-VAT rate is applicable. The place of supply rules for distance sales are applicable to the supply made by the electronic interface to the customer (B2C).

For more details about intra-EU distance sales, see the chapter on the EU.

Effective 1 July 2021, an e-commerce supplier may have a choice of how to account for VAT on its B2C supplies.

Local VAT registration. A nonresident supplier may choose to register for VAT in each Member State and account for VAT on all supplies made and recover input tax in accordance with local rules (see the Non-established businesses subsection above). In Latvia, non-EU businesses are not required to appoint a fiscal representative for accounting for the VAT due on these transactions.

For detail on the application process in Latvia, refer to the Registration procedures below.

One-Stop Shop. Effective 1 July 2021, a supplier can choose to account for the VAT due under the EU One-Stop Shop (OSS), which can be used for intra-EU cross-border supplies of goods and all cross-border supplies of services made to final consumers in the EU. Unlike the previous Mini One-Stop-Shop (MOSS) scheme that applied until 30 June 2021, the OSS is not limited to cross-border supplies of electronic services, telecommunication services and broadcasting services.

The OSS is an electronic portal that allows businesses to:
- Register for VAT electronically in a single Member State for all intra-EU distance sales of goods and for B2C supplies of services
- Declare and pay VAT due on all supplies of goods and services in a single electronic quarterly return.

The OSS can be used by businesses established in the EU and outside the EU. If a supplier or a deemed supplier decides to register for the OSS, it must declare and pay VAT for all supplies (goods as well as services) that fall under the OSS.

In Latvia, reporting for VAT due under the OSS registration must be done electronically via a website, eds.vid.gov.lv (also known as the Electronical Declaration System), which is accessible by filing the registration form.

The individual VAT registration number has the same format as that already allocated to the taxable person by the Member State of identification for domestic supplies. Within five working days, the SRS makes a decision on whether to register the entity, and it informs the entity of the decision no later than the day following the decision.

Registration will take effect from the first day of the calendar quarter following that in which the taxable person applies for the scheme. However, there may be situations in which the taxable person starts making supplies under the scheme before this date. If this is the case, the scheme will start from the date of that first supply, provided that the taxable person has informed the Member State of identification that it has commenced activities under the non-Union or Union scheme by the 10th day of the month following that first supply.

For more details about the operation of the OSS, see the chapter on the EU.

Import One-Stop Shop. Effective 1 July 2021, the Import One-Stop-Shop (IOSS) scheme applies for B2C distance sales of goods from outside the EU.

Effective 1 July 2021, VAT is due on all commercial goods imported into the EU regardless of their value. The actual supply is subject to VAT in the country where the goods are imported (the country of destination). The IOSS facilitates the declaration and payment of VAT due on the sale of low-value goods (i.e., consignments valued at less than EUR150 per consignment). It allows suppliers selling low-value goods dispatched or transported from a non-EU country to customers in the EU to collect, declare and pay the VAT due. If the IOSS is used, the importation into the EU is exempt from VAT. For more details about the IOSS, see the chapter on the EU.

The use of the IOSS special scheme is not mandatory. If VAT is not collected via the IOSS scheme, the importation of goods into the EU is subject to import VAT in the country of final destination, and the Member State can decide freely who is liable to pay the import VAT, which could be the customer or the seller (or an electronic interface).

In Latvia, reporting for VAT due under the IOSS registration must be done electronically via a website, eds.vid.gov.lv (also known as Electronical Declaration System), which is accessible by filing the registration form.

The VAT identification number allocated can only be used for VAT reporting under the IOSS scheme. An intermediary receives a separate VAT identification number for each taxable person it represents, and this VAT identification number cannot be used by the intermediary to report any other taxable supply it carries out. Within five working days, the SRS makes the decision on whether to register the entity, and it informs the entity of the decision no later than the day following the decision.

A taxable person or its intermediary may start using the IOSS scheme from the date on which the VAT identification number is allocated.

If a supplier or an electronic interface opts to use the IOSS scheme, it will declare all of the distance sales of goods it carries out to customers all over the EU using its IOSS VAT identification number. This number will need to be provided in the customs declaration so that its validity can be checked by the customs authorities against the IOSS VAT identification number database to release the goods for free circulation within the EU. If the IOSS identification number is confirmed as valid and the intrinsic value of the consignment does not exceed EUR150, the customs authorities will not request the payment of VAT on the imported low-value goods, as in this case an exemption is applicable. Instead, the VAT due on the distance sales of goods imported from third countries or third territories will be declared in the IOSS VAT return.

Postal Services and couriers scheme. If the IOSS is not used and the customer is liable for the import VAT due on the supply (and importation) of consignments with a small intrinsic value (i.e., less than EUR150), the VAT can be collected using the special scheme for postal services and couriers.

In Latvia there are no additional specific local rules that apply.

For more details about the special scheme for postal services and couriers, see the chapter on the EU.

Online marketplaces and platforms. Under the new EU VAT e-commerce rules, effective 1 July 2021, taxable persons that "facilitate" certain B2C sales of goods are deemed to have purchased and then supplied those goods themselves. This means that the single supply from the "underlying" supplier to the final consumer is split into two deemed supplies:

- A supply from the supplier to the facilitator (deemed B2B supply)
- A supply from the facilitator to the final customer (deemed B2C supply); any intermediation service provided by the facilitator is disregarded for VAT purposes

This provision does not cover all sales facilitated via the facilitator. It only covers distance sales of goods imported from non-EU jurisdictions in consignments with an intrinsic value not exceeding EUR150. The jurisdiction of residence of the supplier using the facilitator is irrelevant. The supply to the facilitating platform is VAT exempt and the supplies made by that platform follow the e-commerce VAT rules as described above. In addition, the provision also covers sales within the EU if the supplier is not established within the EU. This applies to both local shipments within one Member State as well as intra-Community shipments. In both cases, the final customer must be a nontaxable person.

In Latvia there are no additional specific local rules that apply.

For more details about the rules for online marketplaces, see the chapter on the EU.

Vouchers. Latvia has implemented Council Directive (EU) 2016/1065), applicable from 1 July 2019. In Latvia the "single-purpose voucher" (SPV) and "multi-purpose voucher" (MPV) are defined as follows:

- SPV is a voucher where the place of supply of the goods or services to which the voucher is related to and the VAT due on those goods or services, are known at the time of issue of the voucher.
- MPV is a voucher with respect to which none of the features that defines a SPV are known at the moment of issue of the voucher.

Any transfer of a SPV by a taxable person acting in its own name shall be treated as a supply of goods or services covered by the voucher. The actual delivery of goods or the provision of actual services in exchange for a SPV accepted by the supplier or provider as full or partial consideration shall not be considered as an independent transaction.

The transfer of a MPV shall not be regarded as a supply of the goods or services. The actual supply of goods or provision of services in exchange for an MPV accepted by the supplier or service provider as a full or partial consideration shall be deemed to be an independent taxable transaction.

Registration procedures. Taxable persons must register with the VAT authorities that are competent for the area where their place of business is located (i.e., the local branch of the tax authority). Nonresident taxable persons with a fixed establishment in Latvia must register with the competent VAT authorities according to the place where the fixed establishment is located.

To register a company in Latvia for VAT purposes, in general, the following documents must be submitted to the SRS of Latvia:

- VAT registration application
- List of users of EDS, which is used for tax compliance and communication with the tax authorities
- If the documents are signed by an authorized person, the application must be submitted with a written power of attorney (preferably notarized)

The SRS of Latvia for VAT registration purposes may also request follow-up questions, which is a standard practice. Typical follow-up questions include the general description of intended business activity and how the business activity will be ensured in terms of employees, vehicles, accounting and premises (storage, office). However, the information necessary for the VAT registration may depend on whether the company is registered locally or not.

The registration documents may be submitted electronically through Electronic Declaration System if an authorized person already has established access to the system. The documents could also be delivered either in person or delivered by mail or currier to the SRS of Latvia.

Taxable persons are given a VAT identification number (13 digits), beginning with a two-digit country code (LV). VAT identification numbers are important in controlling the correct remittance of VAT to the tax authorities within the European Union.

Applicants submit the registration application form, which contains information on company/person, its authorized persons and business activities along with supplementary documentation (e.g., register of companies extract, passport/ID card copy(s) of signatory person(s), applicable power of attorneys). The decision on registration is taken by tax authorities within five business days from receipt of required information and documents.

Generally, there is an option to submit any documents (including VAT registration and deregistration documents) to the tax authorities via email; however, such documents shall be verified by the sender using the "secure electronic signature," a form of advanced electronic signature that may be acquired from respective authorities in Latvia. However, this option is not commonly used and generally the VAT registration documents are submitted as hard copies.

Additionally, taxable persons registered in Latvia are obliged to use the EDS of the tax authorities, which is subject to an additional registration procedure.

Deregistration. The SRS has the right to exclude a person from the register of taxable persons if:
- The taxable person submits an application for removal from the VAT register.
- The taxable person has been liquidated or reorganized.
- The economic activity of the taxable person is suspended.
- The taxable person does not submit a VAT return within one month of the submission deadline, or they provide false information in a VAT return and do not correct this, following a written request to do so from the tax administration.
- The taxable person cannot be reached at their legal address or the declared place of residence (or if the address does not exist).
- A VAT group no longer complies with the registration conditions.

The SRS has the right to suspend a taxable person's registration number if possible fraudulent activities are identified.

In addition, the SRS has the right to exclude a person from the register of taxable persons if either of the following conditions exists:
- The taxable person is considered to be a risk person.
- The taxable person has not had economic activity for three months.

A person is excluded from the taxable persons register by the SRS if any of the following conditions exist:
- Material, technical or financial transactions of the taxable person do not match the field of their economic activity.
- The taxable person's registration number has been suspended and they do not apply for renewal of the registration code.
- The taxable person doesn't provide the SRS with requested information regarding their material, technical and financial activities.

Persons that are registered in the register of taxable persons must notify the SRS in case of any changes in company requisites (e.g., legal address, name) or legal status of company.

Changes to VAT registration details. The taxable person's obligation to notify the tax authorities, when there is a change in their VAT registration details, may differ depending on the changes made and the nature of the taxable person's status. Generally, taxable persons are given 10 days of making the changes to inform the SRS of Latvia. They do this by submitting the application form with the changes (i.e., the taxable person's registration details, such as bank account, address, owners, people with signatory rights) electronically through the EDS.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero-rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 21%
- Reduced rate: 5%, 12%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services, unless a specific measure provides for the reduced rate, the zero rate or an exemption.

Examples of supplies of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Exports of goods and related services
- Intra-Community supply of goods
- International transport
- Tourism services provided outside Latvia
- From 1 January 2021, the zero-rate shall be applied to supplies of goods and services based on a permit approved by the competent authority of the Member State concerned, or by the competent authority of the Republic of Latvia, if the goods and services have been bought or acquired by European Commission, agency and structure, which has been established by European Union rules, to react to the COVID-19 pandemic; however, if the goods or services are further supplied for consideration, then the transaction no longer qualifies for the zero-rate according to this rule and will be treated as a taxable transaction according to the rules applicable at a time

- Mass media and subscriptions thereto, except erotic material and pornography (effective from 1 January 2022)
- Printed literature, including for schools and universities (specified by Latvian National Library) (effective from 1 January 2022)

Examples of goods and services taxable at 12%

- Specialized products for infants
- Medicines and medical devices (those authorized by state pharmaceutical authorities)
- Firewood and fuel wood supplied to natural persons
- Supply of thermal energy to natural persons
- Public transport services provided in Latvia
- Accommodation services provided in Latvia
- Foodstuffs that are fresh fruit, berries and vegetables listed in the VAT law, including washed, peeled, shelled, cut and packed, but not cooked or otherwise prepared, e.g., frozen, salted, dried (effective until 31 December 2024)

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not subject to VAT and that do not give rise to a right of input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Financial services
- Insurance and reinsurance services
- Health and welfare services
- Education and cultural services
- Postal services provided by Latvijas Pasts

- Betting and gambling and other forms of gambling, including gambling and lotteries that are organized through electronic communication services
- Regulated sports competitions and licensed sports classes, which are organized by associations and foundations
- Payment for the stay of children in children's camps organized in accordance with the requirements of the regulatory enactments regulating the field of education

Options to tax. Real estate transactions are generally exempt except for the sale of unused real estate or part of it and the sale of building land. In general, a plot of land is considered to be building land if building permission was issued after 31 December 2009. An option to tax is also in place for supplies of "used" real estate made to taxable persons.

E. Time of supply

In general, VAT is due when the following events occur:
- For local supplies and intra-Community supply of goods, the time when goods are delivered, or service is performed, and the VAT invoice is issued.
- A prepayment is received in accordance with the prepayment invoice issued, except in the case of an intra-Community supply of goods.

However, for a supply of services subject to the new place of supply rules under EU Directive 2008/8/EC, VAT is due when the service is performed or the prepayment is received.

A VAT invoice must generally be issued within 15 days after services are rendered or goods are supplied. If the transaction is performed continuously over a long period of time, the VAT invoice may be issued for a period not exceeding one, six or 12 months, depending on the type of transaction.

Deposits and prepayments. VAT paid on goods supplied or services provided is to be paid into the State Budget during the filing period in which the goods were dispatched or the services provided, and the tax invoice issued (except for intra-Community supply of services) or an advance payment made (except for intra-Community supply of goods) in accordance with the tax invoice. This means that if an advance payment or a prepayment is received before the supply is performed, VAT is due at the end of the filing period in which the advanced consideration is received.

Continuous supplies of services. If a local supply of services is performed without interruption over a long period of time, the tax shall become payable/declarable at the time payment for the service is received or the relevant filing period ends, but not less frequently than once in every six-month period.

Where an intra-Community supply of services is performed without interruption over a period of time that exceeds one year, and during this period no tax invoices are issued and no payments made, the tax becomes payable/declarable at the end of each year until the moment when the supply of services is fully completed.

Where an intra-Community acquisition of services is performed without interruption over a period of time that exceeds one year, and during this period no tax invoices are received and no payments are made, the transaction becomes declarable at the end of each year until the moment when the purchase of services is fully completed.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules in Latvia for supplies of goods that are sent on approval for sale or return. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

Note that for the supply of goods where the ownership is not transferred (e.g., supplied for treatment, evaluation, processing or repair [i.e., temporary use]), in general are treated as out of scope for VAT purposes, on the basis that they are afterwards returned to the supplier within 24 months. If these goods are not dispatched back after the supply of the abovementioned services, it shall be deemed that the supply has taken place in the tax period in which the supply of such goods to any other person has taken place.

Reverse-charge services. Generally, the reverse-charge VAT is also applicable to the purchase of services from other EU and non-EU taxable persons, as well as on intra-Community acquisitions of goods. Additionally, the local reverse-charge mechanism applies to the transactions subject to the domestic reverse charge.

Leased assets. The leasing or hiring of movable goods, including means of transport, is a supply of services in so far as the lease qualifies as an operational lease. According to the VAT law, a financial lease (i.e., a lease of movable goods where at the end of the lease period the ownership of the movable goods is transferred to the lessee) is considered as a supply of goods.

Imported goods. Import VAT becomes due when goods are released for free circulation.

VAT on imports that is paid to the State Budget may be deducted as input tax on VAT returns filed for the period in which the goods are released for free circulation, that is, when the import VAT has been paid into the State Budget.

Under the Latvian VAT law, the principle of postponed accounting rules (declaration of VAT by way of reverse-charge mechanism) can be applied to the importation if the following conditions are satisfied:

- The importer of the goods is a taxable person; it performs the import of goods within the framework of its business activities, and it has obtained the special authorization/permit from the tax authorities.
- The importer of the goods is a fiscal representative representing a taxable person of another EU or non-EU country and it has obtained the special authorization/permit from the tax authorities.

Postponed VAT accounting corresponds to the principle that instead of a physical payment of import VAT, the taxable person may declare it by way of reverse-charge VAT. The postponed VAT accounting mechanism can also be applied to the importation of goods that are to be released in free circulation in the EU. However, a taxable person is entitled to apply the postponed accounting mechanism only if the person has received in advance a special permit from the Latvian SRS. To receive this permit, the following conditions must be satisfied:

- The taxable person must have registered its economic activities in Latvia.
- The taxable person is a registered client of the SRS electronic reporting system.
- On the date of submission of the application to receive the permit, the taxable person does not have a tax debt relating to previous tax periods or such tax debt is paid within five working days after the submission date of the application.
- The employee who has authority to sign the application has not been punished for criminal offenses of an economic nature.
- By a date specified by the SRS, the taxable person provides informative reports or additional information that is necessary to determine the amount of tax payable to the State Budget or the amount of an overpayment.

Nevertheless, the taxable person is still authorized to apply the postponed accounting rules with respect to import of goods even without the special authorization/permit if the following conditions are met:

- The taxable person imports fixed assets, which are intended fully or partially for use in its taxable transactions within a period of at least 12 months from the time of importation of the fixed assets.
- The value of the fixed assets (excluding VAT) is at least EUR700.
- The taxable person does not have a tax debt for previous tax periods.

A passenger car would qualify as such a fixed asset if imported by a taxable person engaged in the basic activity of leasing or hire-purchase transactions with passenger cars or the provision of taxi services and vehicle driver training.

Intra-Community acquisitions. The acquisition of goods in the territory of the European Union has taken place at the time when the acquisition of goods has been physically carried out, but not later than the time when the goods are received.

VAT related to the intra-Community acquisition of goods must be paid when the goods are received and the VAT invoice is issued.

If a tax invoice has not been issued within the allowed number of months, the VAT due must be included in the VAT declaration for the tax period following the period in which the intra-Community acquisition is made.

Intra-Community supplies of goods. An intra-Community supply of goods is one whereby the goods are dispatched or transported from Latvia to another Member State by or on behalf of the supplier or the person to whom the supply is made.

The time of supply of goods shall be the time when the supply of goods is physically carried out, but not later than the time when the goods are received by the recipient of goods. Where the supply of goods within the territory of the European Union takes place permanently over a continuous time period and exceeds one calendar month, it shall be deemed that the transaction has occurred in the end of each calendar month until the time when the supply of goods is completely finished.

Supply of goods with assembly or installation shall be deemed as taken place when the assembly or installation is finished.

Distance sales. There are no special time of supply rules in Latvia for supplies of distance sales. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may deduct input tax, which is the VAT charged on goods and services supplied to it for business purposes. A taxable person generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax, which is VAT charged on supplies made.

Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services supplied in Latvia, VAT paid on imports of goods, and VAT self-assessed for intra-Community acquisitions of goods, for reverse-charge services received from foreign persons, as well as for domestic reverse-charge services, namely, supplies of specified scrap materials; supplies of timber products and related services; supplies of electronics (e.g., mobile phones, computer hardware, integrated circuits, game consoles); provisions of construction services and construction products; supplies of cereals and industrial crops; supplies of raw precious metals, precious metal alloys and precious clad metal; and supplies of metal products and related services, as well as supplies of electronic and electric household appliances.

The amount of the VAT reclaimed must be supported by a valid VAT invoice.

The time limit for a taxable person to reclaim input tax in Latvia is three years. Input tax generated in a tax period (i.e., a month or quarter) is recovered automatically within 30 days of the submission of a VAT return. However, input tax can still be under review by the Latvian tax authorities, which can extend the time frame until input tax can be recovered.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes (e.g. goods acquired for the private use of an entrepreneur). In addition, input tax may not be recovered for some items of business expenditure.

The following lists provide some examples of items of expenditure for which input tax is not deductible and examples of items for which input tax is deductible if the expenditure is related to a taxable business use.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Hotel accommodation (if nonbusiness expenditure)
- Business gifts (except representation gifts with the company logo for which 40% of the input tax is deductible)
- Taxi services (if nonbusiness expenditure)
- Business and employee entertainment

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Purchase, lease and hire of vans and trucks
- Fuel for vans and trucks
- Purchase, lease and hire of cars, including maintenance costs such as fuel and repair costs:
  - 100% deductible if the car has fewer than eight passenger seats or a vehicle is up to 3,000 kg in weight and registered as a lorry (Category N1), as well as the car's exclusive use in taxable transactions of the business is documented in accordance with the law's requirements
  - 50% deductible if the car has fewer than eight passenger seats or a vehicle is up to 3,000 kg in weight that is registered as a lorry (Category N1) and that has more than three seats (including the driver's seat) and car's value is less than EUR75,000 (VAT excluded), i.e., not a luxury car
- Purchase, lease and hire of luxury cars, including maintenance costs such as fuel and repair costs:
  - 100% deductible, if it can be proved that the luxury car is fully used in making taxable transactions of the business
  - 0% deductible, if the taxable person is not able to prove that the luxury car is fully used in taxable transactions of business and luxury car, as well as associated costs, incurred during the 60-month period when the car was registered in the ownership or possession of a person
- Parking
- Mobile phones
- Advertising
- Books
- Taxi services

Partial exemption. Input tax directly related to performing VAT-exempt supplies is not recoverable. If a taxable person established in Latvia makes both exempt supplies and taxable supplies, it may not deduct input tax in full. This situation is referred to as "partial exemption."

The amount of input tax that may be deducted by a partially exempt business is calculated based on the percentage of taxable supplies to total supplies made each month. The monthly calculation is adjusted annually.

The percentage of deductible input taxes to be rounded up to the next whole number (e.g., 19.2% is rounded up to 20%).

If a taxable person makes both taxable and exempt supplies and if the value of its taxable supplies is greater than 95% of the total value of its supplies in the period, the taxable person may deduct input tax in full (without applying the partial exemption calculation) on a monthly basis. A taxable person that is in this position must adjust its input tax deduction on an annual basis.

Partially exempt taxable persons must apply separate VAT accounting to allocate input tax to taxable and exempt supplies. The use of a pro rata calculation is allowed only in cases where separate accounting cannot be used. The calculation of pro rata is at the discretion of the taxable person and must reflect the economic reality of the transactions conducted by the taxable person. The taxable person is not obliged to notify the SRS of the pro rata calculation used; however, they must have supporting evidence upholding the calculated pro rata, which can be used if the SRS would perform tax review activities (e.g., a tax audit) with respect to the pro rata calculation.

Approval from the tax authorities is not required to use the partial exemption standard method or special methods in Latvia. However, it is possible to voluntarily align with the tax authorities the application of the partial exemption standard or special methods or separate accounting, thus giving credibility that the tax authorities wouldn't challenge the applied method of choice.

Capital goods. Capital goods are items of capital expenditure that are used in a business over several years.

In Latvia, the capital goods adjustment applies to the following assets for the number of years indicated:
- Immovable property: 10 years
- Fixed assets that have a purchase or producing value (expenditure incurred to produce a fixed asset) exceeding EUR70,000 excluding VAT: Five years

The amount of input tax recovered depends on the taxable person's partial exemption recovery position in the VAT year of construction, production or acquisition. However, the amount of input tax recovered for capital goods must be adjusted over time if the taxable person's partial exemption recovery percentage changes during the adjustment period.

During the construction, production or purchase phase for real estate or a fixed asset, the input tax is deducted according to the normal rules. The adjustment is applied each year following the year of construction, production or acquisition to a fraction of the total input tax (1/10 for immovable property and 1/5 for the fixed assets). The adjustment may result in either an increase or decrease of the deductible input tax, depending on whether the ratio of taxable supplies made by the business has increased or decreased since the year in which the capital goods were acquired.

An adjustment is not made if the proportion does not change during the tax year.

If immovable property or a part of it is sold as an exempt supply within a period of 10 years after its acquisition or acceptance for service, the taxable person must repay to the State Budget an amount of input tax equal to an amount calculated by multiplying 1/10 of the deducted input tax by the number of years that remain in the 10-year adjustment period. This repayment is included in the value of the immovable property and the purchaser may not deduct it as an input tax.

While receiving services, such as the construction or assembly of an immovable object or fixed asset, the costs of the service can form part of the end value of immovable object or fixed asset. Hence the input tax adjustments over a certain time period (10 or five years) can also include the value of the service.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax exceeds output tax and the taxable person has any other tax debts with the State Budget, the excess is used to pay the other taxes.

If the taxable person has no other tax debts, it can claim back the excess from the SRS. If the taxable person has accrued VAT, the SRS refunds it to the taxable person's bank account within 30 days of submitting the VAT return or amended VAT return for a tax period (typically, monthly). However, VAT refunds are still subject to the SRS control procedures.

After the exclusion from the VAT register, a taxable person is required within 20 days to submit a VAT return for last tax period. If accrued VAT is present, the tax authorities may use the overpaid input tax to settle other tax debts and the excess is refunded to the taxable person's bank account within 30 days.

Overpaid VAT can be claimed back within three years of the prevailing statutory tax payment term.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax may be subject to VAT recovery if the goods or services were acquired up to 15 months before an entity was registered as a taxable person. Administrative services such as rent of premises and fuel costs are excluded, and additional rules apply.

Bad debts. Taxable persons who supply goods or provide services may recover VAT related to their bad debts if all the following specific conditions are met:

- The bad debt amount is less than EUR1,000 (EUR430 for invoices issued until 1 January 2024) or there is a court judgment on recovery of debt from the recipient of goods or services and a statement of a bailiff concerning the impossibility of the recovery.
- An invoice or tax invoice has been issued for the goods or services supplied.
- The debt has arisen during the last three taxation years.
- Tax has been calculated for the transaction performed and it is included in the tax return of the relevant tax period.
- The bad debt amount has been written off from the special provision amounts for bad debts or directly as losses (expanses) in the accounting of the registered taxable person in the current tax period or in any of the previous tax periods.
- The recipient of goods or services and the supplier of goods or services are not mutually related persons.
- The supply of goods or services to the relevant recipient of goods and services has been ceased at least three months before and has not been renewed
- A registered taxable person has not transferred their right to claim to another person.
- A registered taxable person can prove that they have taken measures for the recovery of bad debt.

After all the above mentioned conditions have been fulfilled, the supplier of goods or services has sent information to the recipient of goods and services, who is or was a registered taxable person at the time of supply of goods or services that the relevant debt is considered as bad debt.

VAT recovery can be performed on a periodic basis (monthly or quarterly) and additional bad debt recovery rules may apply, depending on specific situations, e.g., partial bad debt recovery options, if not all, but specific selected activities from mentioned list are performed, e.g., recovery in case of bankruptcy.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred on purchases that are used for noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Latvia.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Input tax incurred by non-established businesses that are not registered for VAT in Latvia is recoverable. The Latvian VAT authorities refund VAT incurred by businesses that are neither established nor registered for VAT in Latvia.

EU businesses. For businesses established in the EU, refunds are made under the terms of EU Directive 2008/9/EC. The VAT refund procedure under the EU Directive 2008/9/EC may be used only if the EU business did not perform any taxable supplies in Latvia and therefore has a requirement to register for VAT in Latvia. If taxable supplies (excluding supplies covered by the reverse charge) have been performed in Latvia, then VAT refund cannot be claimed under EU Directive 2008/9/EC. For full details, see the chapter on the EU.

Find below specific rules for Latvia:

- The decision on the VAT refund for persons from other EU Member States is made within four to eight months, depending on whether additional information is required by the SRS or the tax authorities of the other EU Member States. The SRS shall transfer the approved tax amount within 10 days after adopting a positive decision.

- If payment is delayed, then interest is paid upon refund by Latvia. Interest shall be calculated from the day following the last day for payment of the refund mentioned above until the day the refund is actually paid.

Non-EU businesses. For businesses established outside the EU, refunds are made under the terms of the EU 13th Directive. For full details, see the chapter on the EU.

Latvia applies the principle of reciprocity. Currently, refunds are made to taxable persons registered in Norway, Switzerland, Iceland, Monaco and the UK (as of 1 January 2021).

Find below specific rules for Latvia:
- The application form may be completed in Latvian or in English and may be submitted electronically through the EDS if an authorized person in the company already has established access to the system. The documents can also be delivered in person or delivered by mail or currier to the SRS of Latvia at:

  Talejas Street 1
  Riga
  LV-1978
  Latvia

- Refund claims may be made for the following periods:
  - One calendar year or a period of less than three months if the claim is made for the last three months of the calendar year (that is, the period from 1 October to 31 December).
  - A period of at least three calendar months and less than one calendar year. A claim for a complete calendar year must exceed EUR50, and a claim for a period of less than a calendar year, but longer than three months, must exceed EUR400.
- The documents must be submitted to the SRS within the following time limits:
  - For a claim for one calendar year or a period of less than three months (limited to the last three calendar months of the year): by 30 September of the following year.
  - For a claim for a period of at least three calendar months but not longer than one calendar year: within three months after the end of the period indicated on the application form.
- The documents must be submitted to the SRS by 30 September of the period following the requested refund period if the request is for a period of one year, or within three months from the end of the request period if the request is for a period less than one year. In practice, the VAT could be refunded within a four-month period from the date of submission of the documents. This period may be prolonged if the tax authorities ask for additional information. In such case, the SRS will make a decision on a tax refund within a period of four months from the date of receipt of all relevant documents and information additionally required and submitted by the respective taxable person. The approved amount of tax shall be refunded within 10 working days after the SRS has made a decision to refund the tax completely or partially, but no later than within four months after receipt of the application. No interest is paid upon refund.

Late payment interest. In an event where an EU or non-EU, non-established business has made a request to refund overpaid VAT (as outlined above) and the payment has not been transferred within the deadline, then the following late payment interest applies:
- Three-fifths of 0.05% times the principal debt for each day the payment has been delayed.
- If there is a confirmed decision from the highest tax authority or the court on the refund and the refund is not transferred within 15 days – from the 16th day the late payment interest is 0.05% times the principal debt for each day the payment has been delayed.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A taxable person must generally provide a VAT invoice for all taxable supplies made and for exports within 15 days after the supply has been made or advance payment has been received.

Credit notes. A VAT credit note may be used to reduce the VAT charged and claimed on a supply. The document must be clearly marked "credit note," and it should refer to the original invoice. It is recommended that a credit note also indicate the reason for the correction and any new items arising from it.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is allowed in Latvia, but not mandatory.

Scope of electronic invoicing. For B2B, B2C and business-to-government (B2G) supplies, electronic invoicing is allowed but not mandatory in Latvia. This is in line with EU Directive 2010/45/EU and 2014/55/EU (see the chapter on the EU). However, the Latvian tax authorities have expressed an intention to implement mandatory electronic invoicing for B2B and B2G supplies as of 1 January 2025. At the time of preparing this chapter, the implementation process is in the early stages and no definite information on the technical requirements or legislation updates has been disclosed by the authorities.

There is no threshold beyond which taxable persons are required to adopt electronic invoicing in Latvia. The requirements related to electronic invoicing are the same as those for paper invoicing. Both parties of the transaction must agree on the exchange of electronic invoice, which can be performed by any electronic means.

For the EU VAT in the Digital Age (ViDA) proposals, refer to the chapter on the EU.

Simplified VAT invoices. A registered taxable person has the right to issue a simplified tax invoice in the following cases:
- For an inland transaction the value of which (excluding tax) is less than EUR150
- In case it uses a document that amends the initial tax invoice or especially and clearly indicates to it, indicating the date of issue of the initial tax invoice and identification number, as well as the particular data to be amended, in the additional simplified tax invoice

A cashier's check or another document may also be used as a simplified tax invoice, where the requirements outlined above are not met, only where it is accompanied by a source document in which the date and number of the cashier's check or another document and the information required for a normal tax invoice is indicated.

In addition, a cashier's check or another document, which does not meet the requirements outlined above, may also be used as a simplified tax invoice if it is issued for a transaction where the value of which (excluding tax) is less than EUR30.

Self-billing. Self-billing is allowed in Latvia. A recipient of goods or services is entitled to issue a tax invoice for themselves on behalf and interests of the supplier of goods or services for the goods or services supplied to them by a registered taxable person or a taxable person of another Member State, if there is a prior agreement between the parties and if the supplier of goods or services applies the mutual recognition procedure of invoices to each invoice.

Proof of exports and intra-Community supplies. The zero-rate applies to exports of goods and intra-Community supplies of goods. Export and intra-Community supplies of goods must be accompanied by evidence confirming that the goods have left the territory of Latvia. Suitable evidence includes the stamped customs exportation documentation or international transportation documents such as the CMR or bill of lading.

No special documentation applies in Latvia for evidencing the application of the Quick Fixes. Normal intra-Community documentation rules apply.

Foreign currency invoices. If an invoice is issued in a currency other than the domestic currency, which is the euro (EUR), the amount of VAT must be converted to EUR if the place of supply is Latvia. The conversion must be done using the official exchange rate quoted by the European Central Bank on the date of the supply or on the date when the advanced payment has been received.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. Invoices for supplies to nontaxable persons may be issued upon request of the customer. However, if no invoice is issued, a supplementary internal document shall be issued for accounting and reporting purposes.

Distance selling. For intra-Community distance sales made B2C, a full VAT invoice must be issued. However, if the supplier operates the OSS regime, then no full VAT invoice is required unless requested.

Records. In accounting registers, all entries shall be made based on supporting documents (or source documents) that confirm the existence of an economic transaction of the undertaking. In Latvia, examples of which records must be held for VAT purposes include the following supporting documents:
- Outgoing and incoming invoices
- Agreements
- Transportation documentation
- Customs declarations
- Accounting registers

Source documents, accounting registers, inventory lists and other accounting organization documents of the undertaking shall be systematically arranged and stored in the archives of the undertaking.

In Latvia, VAT books and records can be held outside of the country. This is only allowed where they are stored by electronic means and full online access to the data concerned is guaranteed to SRS representatives.

Record retention period. An entrepreneur must store duplicates of the invoices issued and invoices received for a period of five years, except with respect to invoices relating to immovable property. Regarding the latter, invoices shall be stored for a period of 10 years.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is allowed in Latvia. The duplicates of the invoices and other relevant documents must be stored in Latvia, except when they are stored by electronic means and full online access to the data concerned is guaranteed to SRS representatives.

The undertaking has the right to convert the original documents, which are in paper form, into an electronic form. The document converted into electronic form for its storage in the electronic environment shall have the same legal force as the original document. The undertaking has the right to destroy the original document only if the undertaking complies with the following provisions for the storage of a document converted into electronic form for its storage in the electronic environment:
- The portrayal and conformity of the content of the original document are ensured throughout the data storage period.
- It is possible to ensure that the content is provided in readable form on a computer and, if necessary, its derivatives can be created in paper format.
- The converted document is protected against unauthorized access, amendments, alterations or destruction.
- The conversion process and the process for the destruction of the original document are documented in accordance with the procedures specified by the undertaking.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. In general, VAT returns may be filed monthly or quarterly, depending on the amount of taxable supplies made by the taxable person and the transaction types. A VAT return must be filed by the 20th day of the month following the end of the tax period via the EDS.

VAT returns must be filed on a monthly basis (such tax period is retained for six calendar months after VAT registration) if the amount of taxable transactions performed by a taxable person during the year before the tax year or during the tax year exceeds EUR50,000 or if the taxable person supplies goods or services within the EU.

VAT returns must be filed quarterly if, during the year before the tax year, the amount of taxable transactions of the taxable person did not exceed EUR50,000, and if the taxable person did not perform intra-Community supplies of goods or supply services that had a place of supply in other EU Member States.

Periodic payments. The VAT due must be transferred no later than 23 days after the end of the tax period to a specifically indicated State Budget single tax account. The tax period can be either a month or a quarter. Payments are made directly through the internet bank online to the single tax account of the SRS of the Republic of Latvia (for the State Budget) who is the receiver of the payment.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is mandatory in Latvia for all taxable persons. Tax returns must be filed via the Electronic Declaration System (EDS). The EDS is an e-filing system of the SRS where taxable persons prepare and submit periodic VAT returns and their appendices. It is also used by the SRS to communicate with taxable persons, e.g., to request additional information and supporting documents with respect to reported transactions with a right to deduct VAT.

Taxable persons registered in Latvia are obliged to use the EDS of the SRS. Generally, when registering for VAT purposes in Latvia, the taxable person is automatically registered in EDS. However, in order to define the list of users that will be granted rights to work on behalf of the taxable person in EDS, a separate document has to be submitted.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Latvia.

Special schemes. Small businesses. The voluntary special regime for small businesses is applicable to a taxable person who complies with at least one of the following criteria:
- Taxable transactions in the previous tax year have not exceeded EUR100,000.
- At the time of VAT registration, there is no expectation that taxable transactions in excess of EUR100,000 will be performed in the tax year.

The special regime provides that small enterprises, as well as persons who produce agricultural products specified in the VAT law, can remit VAT to the State Budget in the tax period in which the payment for supplies of goods or services is received. However, input tax can only be deducted in the period in which invoices from other taxable persons are paid.

Additionally, suppliers of residential house maintenance and management services that exceed the transaction threshold of EUR100,000 may also apply for this scheme if the total value of transactions does not exceed EUR2 million.

Farmers. The VAT law provides a special flat rate scheme for legal and private persons that produce agricultural products and are not registered as taxable persons.

Farmers subject to the flat-rate scheme cannot deduct input tax. They are also not allowed to charge VAT on their agricultural outputs. Input tax is, therefore, a cost for this type of farmer. The flat-rate scheme is based on the economic assumption that the farmers will and can transfer the burden of VAT, i.e., the price of goods supplied by such farmers includes the nondeductible input tax.

Farmers subject to the flat-rate scheme are indirectly compensated by their customers for their input tax. To avoid the accumulation of VAT, the customer is entitled to deduct the average input tax burden on supplies made to it by the flat-rate farmer. The average VAT burden is set at a percentage of the supply price. The current flat rate is 14% of the farmer's supply price.

The scheme can only be applied to supplies of agricultural goods and services made by farmers in the course or furtherance of their agricultural business. If a farmer has voluntarily registered as a taxable person, the general rules regarding liability to VAT, issuing invoices and deducting input tax apply.

If a flat-rate farmer also runs a nonagricultural business, the farmer's supplies of goods and services from the latter are taxed (unless exempt) according to the normal rules if the farmer is required to register as a taxable person.

If a flat-rate farmer supplies agricultural goods to a taxable person in another Member State, the acquisition is taxed in that other Member State.

If a flat-rate farmer is the recipient of an intra-Community supply of goods and the total of the farmer's purchases is less than EUR10,000, the supply is taxed in the Member State of supply. The flat-rate farmer must register as a taxable person and is liable for VAT in Latvia on acquisitions of goods over this threshold. According to VAT law, a flat-rate farmer can choose to be taxed in Latvia even if the value of the farmer's intra-Community acquisitions is less than EUR10,000.

A taxable person who has been registered as a taxable person for VAT purposes before exceeding the EUR10,000 threshold may submit to the SRS an application for exclusion from the VAT registry not earlier than two years after registering.

Travel agents. VAT law provides for a special arrangement with regard to the taxation of margins of tour operators. The tax shall be applied to the services provided by tour operators if the tour operator acts in its own name and in favor of a traveler and uses supplies of goods and services provided by other persons for ensuring tourism services provided to the traveler.

All activities performed by inland tour operators related to travel shall be deemed to be a single service that the tour operator provides to the traveler. Such a service is taxable.

The taxable amount regarding services provided by tour operators shall be the difference between the total amount (without tax) paid by the recipient of the service (a traveler) and the actual costs of the supply of goods and services that are provided to the tour operator by other persons.

The tax calculated by a tour operator for the services that it provides (including compiling a travel package, publication of advertising brochures, etc.) shall be included in the total value of the travel package and collected from the recipient of the service. In calculating the amount of the tax payable into the budget, the tax paid for ensuring the tour operator's own services (including lease of premises, telephone calls, electricity, etc.) shall be deductible as input tax.

A tour operator must calculate the value of services provided and include it in the tax declaration for the taxable period in which the service was provided to the traveler and invoices were received from other persons in relation to the supply, but not later than in the next taxable period after the service has been provided to the traveler.

The tax for other tourism-related (travel-related) services (including services of hotels, transport, catering services, etc.), which are actually provided in Latvia by other taxable persons, shall be included in the total value of the charge for the travel services and is collectible from the recipient of the service. The amount of tax collected for these services is transferred, in full, by the tour operator to the actual providers of the services. A tour operator may not deduct this amount as input tax.

The value of services provided by a tour operator itself is taxable at the standard rate. If the services provided by tour operators are provided both within the territory of the European Union and outside it, the 0% tax rate shall be applied only to that part of the services that is provided outside the territory of the European Union.

Secondhand goods, works of art, collectors' items and antiques. Taxable dealers are taxable persons who have, as their regular business, trade in secondhand goods, works of art, antiques and collectors' items. A taxable dealer who purchases goods falling within one of these categories from a person who did not or was not entitled to deduct the input tax can use the difference between the selling price and the purchase price (the profit margin) as the taxable amount.

A taxable dealer who makes use of the margin scheme cannot show VAT on the invoice. As no VAT is shown on the invoice, the purchaser cannot deduct input tax. The secondhand goods VAT scheme is optional; dealers may choose to apply the general VAT regime.

The margin scheme may be applied where a taxable dealer imports works of art, antiques and collectors' items, or when works of art are supplied to the dealer by the artist, by the successor in title or by a taxable person other than a taxable dealer.

The special margin scheme is not applicable to the supply of new means of transport.

The taxable dealer must issue a "purchase declaration" (iepirkuma akts, in Latvian) to the seller on the purchase of goods.

Supplies through auctions. If a bailiff enforcing an adjudication of a court sells the property of a taxable person, VAT is imposed on the market value (price) or the auction price of the property.

The tax on the sale of the property in the auction must be paid into the State Budget by the bailiff within 20 days of when the amount calculated is applied and cannot be appealed.

Investment gold. Articles 344-356 of the VAT Directive (Council Directive 2006/112) have been implemented into the Latvian VAT law so as to provide for a special arrangement for the supply of investment gold. Investment gold is defined as:

- Gold, in the form of bars and plates, with a purity of at least 995/1,000, whether or not in the form of securities
- Gold coins that:
  - Have a purity of at least 900/1,000
  - Were minted after 1800
  - Are or have been accepted as legal tender in the country of origin
  - Are usually sold at a price that does not exceed by more than 80% the open market value of the gold contained therein

According to the primary rule, local and intra-Community supplies of gold in the above forms are exempt from VAT. Imports and intra-Community acquisitions of investment gold are also exempt from VAT. In addition, the exemption applies to intermediary services supplied by agents.

The following suppliers of investment gold may opt for taxation according to the general VAT rules:

- A manufacturer of investment gold or a person modifying gold into investment gold
- A taxable person who supplies investment gold for industrial purposes in the course of their normal business
- An intermediary in the supply of investment gold, provided that the supplier has also opted to tax their supply

An option to tax must be made by notifying the tax authorities in advance in writing.

A supplier who does not opt for taxation but, rather, uses the exemption for the supply of investment gold can still deduct input tax on the following:
- The acquisition of investment gold that was supplied by a taxable supplier (in Latvia and other Member States) who exercised an option to tax
- The acquisition of gold other than investment gold from taxable suppliers (in Latvia and other Member States), on the assumption that the supplier changes the gold into investment gold
- Services received for changing the shape, weight or content of investment or other gold

A taxable person who produces investment gold or changes gold into investment gold can deduct VAT in connection with the local acquisition, the import or the intra-Community acquisition of goods or services that have a connection with the production or the modification of that gold.

The reverse-charge mechanism is applicable if the option for taxation is applied.

Regarding a taxable person who performs transactions with investment gold, the documents that are associated with such transactions must be retained for five years after the end of the calendar year in which the transaction occurred.

Cash accounting. Latvia operates a voluntary cash accounting scheme. To use cash accounting, a taxable person's transactions (threshold) are generally not more than an annual turnover of EUR100,000. A threshold of up to EUR500,000 is applicable to taxable persons in specified industries, e.g., some types of farmers.

Additionally, the supply of residential house maintenance and management services is subject to the voluntary cash accounting scheme if the total value of transactions for a taxable person in the previous tax period is between EUR100,000 and EUR2 million.

Annual returns. Taxable persons must submit an annual VAT return in Latvia, in the following circumstances:
- The proportion of taxable and nontaxable transactions for the taxation year has changed and it is not provided otherwise by the VAT law.
- Any tax due or input tax deducted is adjusted according to the requirements listed in the VAT law.
- Financial services are performed/supplied.
- A deposit system is applied to reusable packaging according to the packaging regulation.

This must be submitted prior to 1 May of the following year. Also, the respective tax amount must be paid prior to 1 May of the following year.

Supplementary filings. Intrastat. A taxable person that trades with other EU countries must complete statistical reports, known as Intrastat, if the value of either its sales or purchases of goods exceeds certain thresholds. The applicable form, which must be submitted to the Central Statistical Bureau of the Republic of Latvia, depends on the threshold prescribed for acquisitions and supplies, respectively.

The following are the Intrastat thresholds, effective from 1 January 2024:
- EUR350,000 for intra-Community acquisitions (if this threshold is met, Intrastat 1A must be submitted)
- EUR5 million for intra-Community acquisitions (if this threshold is met, Intrastat 1B must be submitted)
- EUR200,000 for intra-Community supplies (if this threshold is met, Intrastat 2A must be submitted)
- EUR7 million for intra-Community supplies (if this threshold is met, Intrastat 2B must be submitted)

The Intrastat return must generally be submitted on a monthly basis. The submission deadline is the 10th day of the month following the return period. Intrastat returns must be filed in EUR.

EU Sales Lists and EU Purchase Lists. If a taxable person makes intra-Community supplies of goods and services in a return period, it must submit an EU Sales List (ESL) to the SRS. An ESL must be submitted as an appendix to the VAT return.

ESLs must be submitted electronically on a calendar monthly basis by the 20th day following the end of the month.

If a taxable person makes intra-Community acquisitions of goods and services in a return period, it must submit an EU Purchase List (EPL) listing intra-Community acquisitions of goods and services to the SRS. The EPL must be submitted as an appendix to the VAT return.

EPLs must be submitted electronically on a calendar monthly basis by the 20th day following the end of the month.

Local sales lists and local purchases lists. Local Sales Lists (LSLs) and Local Purchases Lists (LPLs) and other information regarding the application of specific VAT schemes, such as, capital goods scheme and fiscal representative transactions, are submitted in the form of an appendix to the VAT return.

Correcting errors in previous returns. Corrections to VAT returns must be submitted through the EDS in the same way as the regular VAT returns but must be indicated as "Clarification." The amendments must be submitted as a resubmission of the entire VAT return in the same tax period the corrections must be made.

Note that VAT returns can be corrected within a three-year period under the assumption that no tax audits have been performed related to the respective periods by the Latvian tax authorities. The periods audited by the tax authorities are closed for any corrections.

Digital tax administration. VAT returns and Intrastat reports must be submitted electronically. Together with VAT returns, taxable persons are liable to submit transaction ledgers, which include detailed information on transactions performed within the tax period (i.e., LPLs, LSLs, EPLs). The obligation to submit such filings electronically, with detailed information on individual transactions, is considered as an alternative to SAF-T submission and is used by tax authorities for the tax review procedures.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. There is no specific penalty in Latvia for the late registration of VAT. However, the following penalties may be assessed if VAT is not paid or if VAT returns are not filed as a result of late registration or non-registration:

- An administrative penalty in the amount of EUR50 to EUR350 may be imposed for non-registration in the taxable person's register.
- A penalty may be imposed for undeclared VAT. In such circumstances, undeclared VAT must be paid, together with a penalty of up to 30% of the unpaid VAT and late payment fines of 0.05% per day.
- A penalty in the amount of 0.05% per day may be imposed for late VAT payments.

Penalties for late payment and filings. Late payment charge is an interest payment imposed for late payment of taxes and duties.

Additionally, to late payment charge:

- In the case of submitting a tax declaration, violating the deadline specified in regulatory enactments regarding tax from 3 to 10 calendar days, except a one-time delay in the past 12 months of no more than five days – a fine shall be imposed on natural and legal persons in an amount up to EUR70.

- In the case of submitting a tax declaration, violating the deadline specified in regulatory enactments regarding tax from 11 up to 20 calendar days – a fine shall be imposed on natural and legal persons in an amount from EUR75 up to EUR150.
- In the case of submitting a tax declaration, violating the deadline specified in regulatory enactments regarding tax from 21 up to 30 calendar days – a fine shall be imposed on natural and legal persons in an amount from EUR155 up to EUR280.
- In the case of submitting a tax declaration, violating the deadline specified in regulatory enactments regarding tax by more than 30 calendar days – a fine shall be imposed on natural and legal persons in an amount from EUR285 up to EUR700.
- In the case of a failure to submit an informative tax return on time incurs a fixed monetary penalty. If the delay exceeds two days, a fine shall be imposed no greater than EUR150. However, this penalty does not apply where this is the only delay by the taxable person in the past 12 months, and where the delay was no more than five days.

Penalties for errors. Penalties may be imposed for undeclared VAT. In such cases, the undeclared VAT must be paid, together with a penalty of up to 30% of the unpaid VAT amount and a late penalty fine in the amount of 0.05% per day.

The late notification or failure to notify the tax authorities of changes to a taxable person's VAT registration details or to provide necessary information or providing false information incurs a penalty of up to EUR700. In addition, the members of the board of directors can be deprived of the right to take certain positions in commercial companies for a period of up to three years. In practice, penalties for errors for the registration details are minimal or not imposed at all. For further details, see the subsection Changes to VAT registration details above.

Penalties for fraud. Tax infringement is an unlawful, chargeable (deliberate or negligent) act or omission that results in the violation of the legal norms of the law, specific tax laws and other laws and regulations governing taxes and legal norms of the European Union and for which liability is provided for.

In the case of evasion of taxes and payments imposed together therewith, as well as the concealment (reduction) of income, profit or other object to which taxes may be applied – a fine shall be imposed on natural persons or board members in an amount from EUR140 up to EUR2,000, with or without depriving a board member of the right to hold certain positions in the company.

If a taxable person fails to register and carries out taxable transactions, he is liable for VAT without the right to deduct input tax from the day on which he should have registered.

If a taxable person unlawfully issues tax invoices and receives VAT to which he is not entitled, the tax administration may collect the tax unlawfully received and impose a penalty equal to 100% of the tax.

A failure to account for output tax on assets to which postponed accounting applies gives rise to a penalty of 10% of the VAT due.

A failure to account for output tax on reverse-charge services received from abroad, on intra-Community acquisitions or on certain intra-Community services, gives rise to a penalty of 10% of the VAT due.

The penalty for a repeated tax infringement shall be the double amount of the fine.

With respect to a failure to provide necessary information to the tax authorities, a penalty of no more than EUR700 is imposed on a natural person or a board member, with or without depriving the board member of the right to hold certain positions in the company.

For providing false information, a penalty of no more than EUR700 is imposed on a natural person or a board member, with or without depriving the board member of the right to hold certain positions in the company.

For refusal to allow tax officers to enter premises where they have a legal right to enter, natural and legal persons face a penalty up to EUR14,000. There is no specific penalty here in respect of personal/director's liability. However, personal/director's liability may occur due to a failure to provide the necessary information to the tax authorities or providing false information to the authorities.

Personal liability for company officers. Members of the board of directors face a penalty of between EUR140 and EUR2,000 and may be deprived of the right to take certain positions in commercial companies for a period of up to (or without) three years, if they have been found guilty of evading paying tax or concealing or falsely reducing amounts or objects liable to tax.

If a tax audit leads to a substantial underpaid tax assessment, tax authorities can request the amount to be collected directly from board members effective in the period when the tax debt incurred.

Statute of limitations. The statute of limitations in Latvia is three years. Assessments of underpaid or over-recovered VAT may be made by the tax authorities within three years of the prevailing statutory VAT payment term.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- The supply of goods or services made in Lebanon by a taxable person
- The importation of services by a person resident in Lebanon
- The importation of goods into Lebanon, regardless of the status of the importer

Effective use and enjoyment. To avoid instances of non-taxation or double taxation, jurisdictions can apply "use and enjoyment" rules that allow a service that is "used and enjoyed" in the jurisdiction to be taxed or prevent a service that is "used and enjoyed" outside the jurisdiction from being taxed. If a service is taxed in the jurisdiction under the "use and enjoyment" provisions, a non-established supplier of the service may be required to register for VAT in every jurisdiction where it has customers that are not taxable persons. In Lebanon, services provided by a nonresident supplier to a resident in Lebanon, where the service is performed in Lebanon, are subject to the "use and enjoyment" provisions under Article 40 of the VAT law.

Transfer of a going concern. Normally, the sale of the assets of a VAT-registered or VAT-registrable business will be subject to VAT at the appropriate rate. However, a transfer of a business as a going concern (TOGC) may be exempt from VAT under certain conditions. A TOGC is the sale of a business or part of a business capable of separate operation, including assets. Where the sale meets the conditions, the supply is treated as exempt from VAT. In Lebanon, a TOGC is treated as exempt from VAT provided the transaction is compliant with Article 9 of the VAT law and its related decree. As per Article 9 of the VAT law, no tax is charged on the transfer of the principal assets of a business, whether for consideration or not, if such transfer enables the recipient to operate the business without any changes, provided that the transferor and the recipient are both taxable persons (or will become taxable persons as a result of the transfer). Decree No. 7298, issued in 2002, further elaborates on the provisions of Article 9 above, outlining the criteria that needs to be fulfilled for the sale to be exempt from VAT.

Transactions between related parties. In Lebanon, for a transaction between related parties, the value for VAT purposes is calculated at an arm's-length basis. This will otherwise be challenged and reclassified by the tax authorities based on the tax procedures law. There is no specific valuation guidance, the tax authorities follow different blended approaches to retrieve fair value.

C. Who is liable

A taxable person is an entity or individual who makes taxable supplies of goods or services in the course of doing business in Lebanon, in excess of the registration threshold. Furthermore, an entity or individual who imports and/or exports taxable goods or services is also considered to be a taxable person, regardless of turnover.

The VAT registration threshold is a taxable turnover of at least LBP100 million in any period varying from one to four consecutive quarters. The deadline for registration is two months following the last day of the quarter in which the obligation to register arose. Importers and exporters of taxable goods or services that are zero-rated are obliged to register with the Directorate of Value-Added Tax (DVAT), effective 8 November 2017, regardless of their turnover.

Exemption from registration. The VAT law in Lebanon does not contain any provision for exemption from registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. Any taxable person performing taxable activities or activities related to goods and services that are zero-rated may voluntarily register for VAT, provided that the latter had a minimum turnover of LBP50 million in a period of one to four consecutive quarters.

Group registration. Group VAT registration is not allowed in Lebanon.

Fixed establishment. In Lebanon there is no legal definition of a fixed establishment for VAT purposes. However, Decree No. 3692, issued in 2016, relating to the application of the tax law, defines a permanent establishment (PE) to be any place of work (whether rented, owned or put at the disposal of the taxable person) through which taxable persons may perform their activities for a period exceeding six months in any 12-month period for public and private work and three months in any 12-month period for all the other types of work. Decree No. 3692 and the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) Model Tax Convention may serve as guidelines to define a PE. In Lebanon, there is no specific taxation for permanent establishment; in theory, whenever a PE is detected, it should be registered with the tax authorities as a legal entity (subject to certain exceptions) and would be subject to the VAT laws and regulations outlined in this guide.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is one that has no fixed establishment in Lebanon. A non-established business must register for VAT if it makes taxable supplies in Lebanon. This is the case even where the supplies are made to a VAT-registered customer in Lebanon.

Tax representatives. A non-established business must appoint a tax representative resident in Lebanon before it makes any supplies of goods or services in Lebanon, regardless of its expected level of turnover. The tax representative is jointly and severally liable for the payment of all VAT liabilities and penalties with the non-established business that it represents. The tax representative is solely responsible for complying with all the other provisions of the Lebanese VAT law.

Reverse charge. The reverse charge is a transfer of liability to account for and pay the VAT on imported services from the person providing the service (the supplier) to the person receiving the service (the recipient). If services are being supplied to Lebanon by a foreign non-established entity that has no agent in Lebanon to a Lebanese registered entity (i.e., a business-to-business [B2B] supply) and the supply of services is being consumed in Lebanon, it is the responsibility of the Lebanese taxable person to account for the VAT amount due on the service and declare it to the VAT department.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Lebanon.

Digital economy. There are no specific VAT rules regarding the digital economy in Lebanon. However, where a non-established business is selling digital services (e.g., electronically supplied services) to a Lebanon resident (i.e., business-to-consumer [B2C] supply), the non-established business is not considered to be performing services in Lebanon. As such, the non-established business is not required to appoint a tax representative in Lebanon and is not required to register for VAT in Lebanon. Subsequently, no VAT is accounted for on the supply of digital services. The customer cannot self-account for the VAT due because it is a consumer, not a business (i.e., B2C not B2B supply). Therefore, no VAT is accounted for digital services.

At the time of preparing this chapter, this is a scenario that the Lebanese tax authorities have not addressed, and as such, there is no mechanism to declare VAT on supplies of digital services.

For other e-commerce supplies, such as imported goods, VAT is cleared at customs and there is no requirement for the supplier to register with the directorate of VAT.

At the time of preparing this chapter, no special VAT rules have been introduced (or announced by the tax authorities) for e-commerce supplies.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Lebanon.

Registration procedures. A taxable person registering with the DVAT is required to manually complete hard copies of the necessary registration forms (K1-1, K11-1 and K12-1), along with other required documents (this includes a copy of the commercial register, the company's article of association, a detailed statement of the turnover number during the quarters preceding the date of submission, a pledge on the first VAT taxable supply and a copy of the first invoice that includes the delivery of taxable goods or services, a copy of the identity of the concerned person or a legal proxy to the company's agent) and submit them in person or by email to the DVAT within two months from the last day of the quarter in which the obligation to register arose (in case of mandatory registration). The DVAT takes an average of one week to complete the registration.

Deregistration. A taxable person that ceases to carry on business in Lebanon must cancel its VAT registration within two months from the cessation of taxable supplies. A taxable person whose turnover falls below the compulsory registration limit may also deregister within two months following the end of the calendar year in which the turnover fell below the VAT registration threshold.

A taxable person that is registered voluntarily may at any time request deregistration if its annual turnover does not exceed the compulsory VAT registration threshold.

Changes to VAT registration details. If there is a material change in a taxable person's VAT registration details, this must be communicated to the tax administration within two months of the date of change in the commercial register by manually submitting Form M4. Material changes may include name, address, type of activity, etc.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 11%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods and services, unless a specific measure provides for a zero rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Exported goods
- Exported services
- International transport (from/to Lebanon)

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Postal services and stamps
- Education
- Insurance
- Financial services
- Transfer of real estate
- Medical services and equipment
- Precious metals and precious and semiprecious stones
- Betting and gaming
- Collective transport of persons
- Agricultural activities and products, including livestock, seeds, animal feed and pesticides
- Books, newspapers and magazines
- Basic foodstuffs and baby food
- Diesel oil

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Lebanon.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point." The tax point is the earliest of the following events:
- When the goods are delivered, or the services are performed.
- When the consideration is paid, if this occurs before the goods are delivered or services are performed.

- When the invoice is issued, if this occurs before the goods are delivered or services are performed.

The time of supply for imported goods is when the liability to pay customs duties arises, that is, either on the date of importation or when the goods leave a duty suspension regime.

A Lebanese resident who uses a service in Lebanon that is acquired from outside of Lebanon must account for VAT via the reverse charge on the service and pay VAT due to the tax authorities. The tax point is when the service is received, and the consideration is paid. The Lebanese VAT law does not differentiate between companies and individuals. However, in practice, individuals do not self-account for the VAT and no VAT is charged on the supply.

Deposits and prepayments. For supplies of deposits and prepayments, if, before the date of delivery of goods and services, the price has been partly or wholly paid by the customer, then the VAT is due at the date of payment based on the value of the amount paid.

Continuous supplies of services. For supplies of continuous supplies of services, the VAT is due on the earliest of either the invoice issuance or payment.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules in Lebanon for supplies of goods sent on approval for sale or return. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

Reverse-charge services. There are no special time of supply rules in Lebanon for supplies of reverse-charge services. As such, the normal time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

Leased assets. VAT on leased assets classified as operational leases is payable upon payment of each installment. If the asset is transferred to the lessee at the end of the lease term, the VAT is computed based on the purchase price.

The time of supply differs if the asset is classified as a financial lease, under any of the below criteria:

- Ownership transfers at the end of the lease (upon final payment or required buy out)
- Written option for bargain purchase
- The present value of the lease payments is equal to or more than 90% of the fair value of the leased property
- The lease term is equal or greater than 75% of the asset's economic life

Where any of these criteria apply, VAT is due upon the earlier of effective receipt of the asset, issuance of an invoice or payment of an amount.

Imported goods. VAT is paid at customs at the time of importation and clearance of goods.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax, which is the VAT charged on goods and services supplied to it for business purposes. A taxable person generally recovers input tax by deducting it from its output tax, which is the VAT charged on supplies made.

The time limit for a taxable person to reclaim input tax in Lebanon is four years.

Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services supplied in Lebanon and VAT paid on imports.

A valid tax invoice or customs document must generally accompany a claim for input tax.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use by an entrepreneur). In addition, input tax may not be recovered for some items of business expenditure.

The following lists provide some examples of items of expenditure for which input tax is not deductible and examples of items for which input tax is deductible if the expenditure is related to taxable business use.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Business entertainment
- Nonbusiness expenditure

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Accommodation
- Advertising
- Business gifts
- Conferences
- Purchase, lease and hire of cars, vans and trucks (note the purchase of used cars is not subject to VAT)
- Business use of home telephone
- Mobile phones (80% provided that the invoices are in the name of the taxable person)
- Taxis

Partial exemption. Input tax directly related to making exempt supplies is not generally recoverable. If a Lebanese taxable person makes both exempt and taxable supplies, it may not recover input tax in full. This is referred to as a "partial exemption." Zero-rated supplies (sometimes referred to as "exempt with the right of deduction" supplies) are treated as taxable supplies for these purposes.

A taxable person that makes both taxable and exempt supplies may generally recover input tax that is related to taxable supplies only. Input tax directly allocated to taxable supplies is deductible, while input tax directly related to exempt supplies is not deductible. The remaining input tax that is not allocated directly to exempt and taxable supplies is apportioned. The apportionment may be calculated based on the value of taxable supplies made compared with total turnover.

Approval from the tax authorities is not required to use the partial exemption standard method in Lebanon. Special methods are not allowed in Lebanon.

However, certain VAT exempt entities, including hospitals, educational institutions and public benefit nonprofit organizations, known as "Article 59 entities," are subject to a special VAT recovery regime. Article 59 entities use fixed recovery percentages to recover input tax, depending on the type of expenditure. The following are the fixed percentages:

- 100% recovery is allowed for purchases of fixed assets.
- 100% recovery is allowed for current expenses.

Capital goods. No specific treatment applies for input tax recovery on capital goods, with the exception of cars that have a special treatment. If the input tax can be allocated to taxable supplies, it may be deducted from the output tax. However, if the input tax cannot be allocated to taxable or nontaxable activities, it should be apportioned as mentioned above.

Refunds. If the amount of VAT recoverable in a quarter exceeds the amount of VAT payable, the taxable person earns a VAT credit. The VAT credit is generally carried forward to offset output tax in the following VAT period. A refund of any remaining VAT credit may be claimed within 20 days following year-end provided that the claimed amount would be a minimum of LBP50 million. However, exporters (i.e., anyone who exports) may claim a refund of the VAT credit at the end of each quarter provided that the claimed amount would be a minimum of LBP50 million.

The tax authorities should resolve the refund request within three months from the submission deadline. They have the right to extend this period once, for an additional three months, in the event of a tax audit.

If the VAT authority accepts the refund request, then it should pay the taxable person the excess amount of VAT within four months (seven months in the event of a tax audit). Otherwise, interest equal to the average interest of one-year treasury bills is due, and this interest amount should not exceed 9%.

Pre-registration costs. A taxable person who purchases fixed assets and inventory prior to registering for VAT can request a refund of input tax on these items once registered. The taxable person must submit a letter to the Ministry of Finance within two months from the date of registration in order to obtain a refund of the VAT. The amount to be refunded is deducted from the VAT amount to be paid starting from the period following the taxable period in which the refund request is approved.

Bad debts. Output tax accounted for on supplies that are not paid by the recipient (i.e., bad debts) cannot be recovered in Lebanon.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred on purchases that are used for noneconomic activities, is not recoverable in Lebanon.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Input tax incurred by non-established businesses that are not registered for VAT in Lebanon is recoverable. This is on the basis that the input tax is related to expenses that arise from commercial activities in Lebanon and is restricted to expenses that are in the nature of accommodation, similar to conferences, rent and hotel expenses. The Lebanese tax authorities may refund the VAT incurred by businesses that are neither established nor registered for VAT in Lebanon under certain conditions.

Non-established businesses are defined to be foreign or Lebanese businesses and corporations residing outside Lebanon who do not have a permanent place of business nor a place of residence in Lebanon and whose visits to Lebanon are limited to providing/participating in conferences, lectures or exhibitions.

If the above individuals or corporations wish to benefit from the VAT refund, they should be:
- Registered with the related tax authorities or commercial register in their countries of residence or in the place their business is conducted
- Not performing any taxable/nontaxable activities in Lebanon

The VAT paid by the non-established businesses for services or goods purchased in Lebanon should exceed LBP1 million during a single or multiple visit/s per year. The input tax to be refunded should be specifically related to expenses arising from commercial activities in Lebanon (e.g., the conferences, lectures and exhibitions attended or provided should be business related).

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A taxable person must generally issue VAT invoices for all taxable supplies made to other taxable persons as well as for exports. Taxable persons that supply goods and services primarily to retail customers may issue simplified invoices instead of full tax invoices subject to the tax authorities' preapproval.

Credit notes. A VAT credit note may be used to reduce the VAT charged and reclaimed on a supply of goods or services. The value of the supply may be reduced if a supply is canceled, goods are returned (in full or in part) or the contractual price is reduced. The amount of VAT credited must be separately itemized in the credit note. The credit note must be cross-referenced to the original VAT invoice and must contain generally the same information.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is not allowed in Lebanon.

Scope of electronic invoicing. For B2B, B2C and business-to-government (B2G) supplies, electronic invoicing is not allowed in Lebanon. As such, only paper invoices are allowed in Lebanon.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified invoices can only be issued when issuing a regular invoice is impractical, e.g., for most retailers, noting that prior approval from the Ministry of Finance should be obtained beforehand and a regular formal invoice should always be prepared based on the client's request.

Self-billing. Self-billing is required in Lebanon according to the provisions of Article 8 of the VAT law, if the use of products or services of the company is for nonbusiness purposes or the sale of products is without any proceeds. Depending on the case, taxable persons are required to either impose output tax at the market value of the service/product or adjust the deduction of related input tax.

Proof of exports. Lebanese VAT is not chargeable on supplies of exported goods – such supplies are zero-rated. However, to qualify as zero rated, an export supply must be accompanied by official customs evidence and port clearance documents, stating that the goods have left Lebanon.

Foreign currency invoices. When the value of goods or services is set in a foreign currency, the taxable person should calculate the conversion value of the VAT in the domestic currency, which is the Lebanese pound (LBP), by exchanging the foreign amount to LBP according to the "Sayrafa" exchange rate at the date of transaction. Sayrafa is a platform controlled by the Central Bank of Lebanon.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. A taxable person must issue invoices compliant with Article 38 of the VAT law even if the supply of goods or services is provided to a nontaxable person (B2C). However, a taxable person that is not able to issue invoices in compliance with Article 38 of the VAT law (i.e., supermarkets) should obtain a special approval from the tax authorities to issue simplified invoices.

Records. In Lebanon, examples of what records must be held for VAT purposes include trial balance, general ledger, journal vouchers, contracts and any other supporting documents.

In Lebanon, VAT books and records must be held within the country. Records must be held at a taxable person's place of work or place of residency. The records must be properly preserved to avoid any damages and they must remain readable.

Record retention period. Taxable persons must retain the records, invoices and other accounting documents for a minimum of 10 years.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is allowed in Lebanon. Taxable persons can maintain records electronically, but if requested by the tax authorities in paper form at a later stage and in case of tax inspection, then they will have to provide them in the mentioned form.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. Lebanese VAT returns are submitted for quarterly periods. VAT returns must be filed within 20 days after the end of each quarter.

Periodic payments. Payment of VAT due is required in full by the same deadline as the VAT return, i.e., within 20 days after the end of each quarter VAT liabilities must be paid in Lebanese pounds. Once the VAT return is submitted on the Ministry of Finance online portal, the online payment form should be extracted, and the payment should be processed through bank transfer to the DVAT bank account number.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is mandatory in Lebanon for all taxable persons. To do so, the taxable person should register online and create an account with the DVAT through the Ministry of Finance's website (www.finance.gov.lb).

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Lebanon.

Special schemes. No special schemes are available in Lebanon.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Lebanon.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in Lebanon.

Correcting errors in previous returns. An adjusted VAT return should be submitted on the Ministry of Finance online portal. There is no time limit for submitting amended returns. Penalties that may apply can be charged on a monthly basis, as outlined in Section J. Penalties below. However, if the amended tax return was submitted within 30 days from the original deadline, no false declaration penalty should apply if the additional tax does not exceed 10% of the tax that was initially due.

Digital tax administration. There are no transactional reporting requirements in Lebanon.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. Late registration for VAT triggers the following penalties:
- LBP2 million for joint stock companies
- LBP1 million for limited liability companies
- LBP300,000 for sole proprietorships and other taxable persons

Penalties for late payment and filings. A penalty is charged for the late submission of a VAT return at a rate of 5% of the tax due for each month or part of a month that the return is late. The minimum penalty is LBP750,000 for joint stock companies, LBP500,000 for limited liability companies and LBP100,000 for other taxable persons, and the maximum penalty is 100% of the tax due. For these purposes, a fraction of a month is considered to be a whole month.

A penalty is charged for late payment of tax at a rate of 1.5% per month or part of a month that the tax is unpaid.

Penalties for errors. Penalties apply to a range of VAT errors and offenses, including the submission of incorrect tax returns (penalty is 20% of the difference between the tax due and tax paid), the issuance of incorrect VAT invoices (penalty is 25% of the tax due on the invoice), the issuance of VAT invoices by unregistered taxable persons (penalty is three times the VAT amount in the invoice).

The late notification or failure to notify the tax authorities of changes to a taxable person's VAT registration details within the prescribed period may result in the following penalties (per return):
- LBP200,000 for joint stock companies
- LBP100,000 for limited liability and sole proprietorships companies
- LBP50,000 for individuals and other taxable persons

For further details, see the subsection Changes to VAT registration details above.

Penalties for fraud. Penalties for fraud vary between LBP1 million and LBP30 million or imprisonment that could vary from six months to three years, and in case the tax fraud is repetitive, both sanctions would be applicable. In addition to these sanctions, a penalty varying between 20 to 30 times the amount of tax may be applied.

In addition to the above, the below governs the penalties imposed in case of obstruction of tax control measures.

For each taxable person who refrains from presenting the accounting records and supporting documents for the submitted returns or refrains from booking certain accounting transactions, a penalty of 50% from the tax due is imposed. The minimum penalty is LBP750,000 for joint stock companies, LBP500,000 for limited liability companies and LBP100,000 for other taxable persons.

To collect taxes, the tax authorities have the privilege to access the taxable persons' funds. The privilege also encompasses the funds of the persons held responsible at the company.

Under certain conditions, the tax authorities have the right to issue a decision to withhold the taxable persons' funds in case the latter declines to settle their taxes.

Personal liability for company officers. The general manager of a limited liability company, the chairman and/or the general manager in a joint stock company can be held jointly liable with the company for the taxes resulting from failure to meet the company's tax obligations and for undertaking or performing acts leading to tax evasion, if proved by a court ruling.

Statute of limitations. The statute of limitations in Lebanon is five years. This time limit is applicable to the tax authorities to carry out inspections and taxable persons to submit revised VAT returns (also within the years that are still open for any tax inspections being carried out).

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- The supply of goods or services made in Lesotho by a registered person
- Reverse-charge services received by a person in Lesotho that is not entitled to claim full input tax credits (referred to as imported services)
- The importation of goods from outside Lesotho, regardless of the status of the importer

Goods that are imported from countries in the Southern African Customs Union (that is, Botswana, Namibia, South Africa and Swaziland) are not subject to customs duty, but they are subject to VAT.

A taxable supply in Lesotho means a supply of goods or services (other than an exempt supply) made in Lesotho by a vendor (i.e., a taxable person) for consideration in the course or furtherance of an enterprise carried on by the vendor. A taxable supply also includes a supply by way of an export of goods or services by a vendor for consideration in the course or furtherance of an enterprise carried on by the vendor.

A supply is made in the course or furtherance of an enterprise carried on by a vendor if the supply is made by the vendor as part of, or incidental to, any independent economic activity of the vendor, whatever the purposes or results of that activity. An enterprise does not include in the case of an individual, any activities carried on by that individual or any other person only as part of that individual's hobby or leisure activities.

Effective use and enjoyment. To avoid instances of non-taxation or double taxation, jurisdictions can apply "use and enjoyment" rules that allow a service that is "used and enjoyed" in the jurisdiction to be taxed or prevent a service that is "used and enjoyed" outside the jurisdiction from being taxed. If a service is taxed in the jurisdiction under the "use and enjoyment" provisions, a non-established supplier of the service may be required to register for VAT in every jurisdiction where it has customers that are not taxable persons. In Lesotho, no services are subject to the "use and enjoyment" provisions.

The legislation defines place of consumption in relation to cross-border supplies and services, to mean the place where consumption or enjoyment takes place.

A person who carries on an enterprise outside of Lesotho but whose goods or services are consumed in Lesotho shall apply for registration in Lesotho irrespective of whether such person meets the threshold, and such registration shall be renewable annually, at the expiry of the last registration date.

An "export" in the case of goods, means the delivery of the goods to, or the making available of the goods at, an address outside Lesotho as evidenced by documentary proof; or in the case of services, means the supply of the services for use or consumption outside Lesotho as evidenced by documentary proof, not being services which are supplied directly in connection with any movable or immovable property situated in Lesotho at the time of the supply.

An "import" means, in the case of goods, to bring or cause to be brought into Lesotho from a foreign country or place; or in the case of services, a supply of services by a person in the course or furtherance of an enterprise carried on outside Lesotho where the services are for use or consumption in Lesotho.

Transfer of a going concern. Normally the sale of the assets of a VAT-registered or VAT-registrable business will be subject to VAT at the appropriate rate. However, a transfer of a business as a going concern (TOGC) may be zero-rated under certain conditions. A TOGC is the sale of a business or part of a business capable of separate operation including assets. Where the sale meets the conditions, the supply is treated as zero-rated. In Lesotho, a TOGC is treated as outside the scope of VAT where the following conditions are met:

- Both the transferor and the transferee are registered for VAT.
- Where the transferee has not registered for VAT, such transferee shall be liable to pay VAT.
- Where such transferee is a relative, and where the Commissioner General determines that the consideration was too low, the Commissioner General may impose a fair market value.

Transactions between related parties. In Lesotho, for a transaction between related parties, the value for VAT purposes is calculated at the fair market value.

The fair market value of a taxable supply or taxable import at any date is the consideration in money that a similar supply or import would generally fetch if supplied or imported in similar circumstances at that date, being a supply or import freely offered and made between persons who are not associates. Where the fair market value of a taxable supply or taxable import cannot be determined for lack of a similar supply or import, the fair market value of the supply or import shall be such amount that, in the opinion of the Commissioner having regard to all the facts and circumstances of the supply or import, is the fair market value of the supply or import.

A supply is made for reduced consideration if the supply is made for no consideration or for a consideration that is less than the fair market value of the supply to (a) an associate (b) an employee or (c) any other person other than a supply of goods for use only as trade samples.

C. Who is liable

Registration is compulsory for any business that supplies taxable goods/services and whose annual taxable supplies (turnover) exceeds the registration threshold.

A person is required to register for VAT as a vendor, under the following circumstances:
- Within 14 days of the end of any period of 12 months if during that period the person made taxable supplies the taxable value of which exceeds LSL850,000 per annum
  Or
- At the beginning of any period of 12 months where there are reasonable grounds to expect that the total taxable value of taxable supplies to be made by the person during that period will exceed LSL850,000 per annum

VAT is imposed on every taxable supply and every taxable import. VAT payable in the case of a taxable supply is to be accounted for by the vendor making the supply, or in the case of a taxable import, is to be paid by the importer. A taxable supply means a supply of goods or services made in Lesotho by a vendor for consideration in the course or furtherance of an enterprise carried on by the vendor. A taxable supply includes a supply by way of an export of goods or services by a vendor for consideration.

Exemption from registration. The VAT law in Lesotho does not contain any provision for exemption from registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. A person whose turnover is below the compulsory registration threshold may register for VAT on a voluntary basis if the value of its taxable supplies exceeds LSL850,000 in any 12-month period. The application for voluntary registration must be made to the Commissioner of Domestic Taxes who has the discretion to accept or reject such a request based on the merits of the case.

Group registration. Group VAT registration is not allowed in Lesotho.

Fixed establishment. In Lesotho there is no legal definition of a fixed establishment for VAT purposes. However, in practice it includes references to a commercial establishment and a place of business in Lesotho. The Commissioner may cancel the registration of a vendor, where the vendor has no fixed place of abode or business in Lesotho. Every vendor whose principal place of business is outside Lesotho or who is outside Lesotho for more than one tax period shall have a nominated person for value-added tax purposes who is an individual who resides in Lesotho.

Non-established businesses. It must be noted that the normal registration requirements are only applicable to entities that are based in Lesotho. They do not apply to nonresidents.

A "non-established business" is a business that has no fixed establishment in Lesotho. Where nonresidents carry on an enterprise outside of Lesotho, but whose goods or services are consumed in Lesotho, that nonresident shall apply for VAT registration irrespective of whether such person meets the LSL850,000 threshold. Such registration shall be renewable annually, at the expiry of the last registration date.

Should a nonresident have a "permanent establishment" (PE) in Lesotho and registers either an external company (branch) or an internal company (subsidiary), then the M850,000 threshold would apply, and they would be required to register for VAT if this threshold is exceeded.

Tax representatives. A registered VAT vendor needs to appoint a natural person residing in Lesotho as a tax representative to assist in tax matters. No bank account, however, is necessary.

Reverse charge. The Revenue Services Lesotho (RSL) will introduce a reverse-charge mechanism to tax imported services. At the time of preparing this chapter, the proposed VAT legislation has not been finalized or implemented in Lesotho. As such, the current position is that the importer of the service makes payments to the RSL based on the value of services imported. If the service is used for the supply of taxable supplies, then the input can be claimed in a subsequent return by the imported that paid the import VAT.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Lesotho.

Digital economy. The supply of electronic services by a non-established business to recipients in Lesotho is subject to import VAT. An import means, in the case of services, a supply of services by a person in the course of furtherance of an enterprise carried on outside Lesotho where the services are for use or consumption in Lesotho, where:

- Such services are supplied by electronic means such as television or internet.
- Where the supplier is established out of Lesotho and the importer is an established in Lesotho who is importing television or internet services, then it shall be that importer who is liable to pay tax on such taxable import.
- Where such non-established business conducts sufficient business in Lesotho to the extent that such cable television or other service may be treated as supplied in Lesotho and not imported, then the Lesotho operation shall be liable to VAT through its PE.

The term "electronic means" is defined in the VAT Act. In relation to the supply of services, it means the transmission sent initially and received or downloaded at its destination of equipment for the processing (including digital compression) and storage of data or software, or entirely transmitted, conveyed and received by wire, wireless or optical means, or by other electronic means, including television broadcasting but excluding radio broadcasting.

Nonresident providers of electronically supplied services for business-to-business (B2B) and business-to-consumer (B2C) supplies are not required to register and account for VAT on supplies in Lesotho. This does not apply, however, if the nonresident has a permanent establishment in Lesotho, and if its taxable supplies exceed the VAT registration threshold.

The VAT due on the supply is treated as import VAT and is borne by the customer (i.e., the person receiving the service). As the reverse-charge mechanism has not been implemented in Lesotho for imported services (see the Reverse-charge subsection above), the importer of the service is required to pay the import VAT due to the RSL on the amount of services imported. If the service is used for the supply of taxable supplies (i.e., the electronically supplied service was made B2B not B2C), then the input can be claimed in a subsequent return.

There are no other specific e-commerce rules for imported goods in Lesotho.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Lesotho.

Registration procedures. To register for VAT, the vendor must visit the RSL Advice Centre (in person) to obtain Form VAT1. This should be submitted together with supporting documents as advised by the RSL. After registration, a VAT registration number will be issued. The certificate when issued must be displayed in a prominent position at your business so that customers and visiting tax officials may see it. Should an individual not qualify to be registered for VAT, they will receive a notification from the Commissioner Domestic Taxes explaining the reasons why they have not been approved for registration.

Deregistration. The RSL is not clear on deregistration procedures. Communication with the RSL is required prior to deregistration to clarify the process.

Changes to VAT registration details. A vendor is required to maintain up to date records. There is no requirement nor timing to notify the tax authority. However, additional tax may apply to any person who fails to maintain proper records or issues false or misleading statement. For example, an invoice with the incorrect address.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero-rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 15%
- Reduced rate: 10%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services, unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate, the zero-rate or exemption.

Note that zero-rated goods shall be restricted to those listed in Schedule IV of the Act, provided that the determination and duration of this rate shall be dictated by the extent to which such items may be regarded as a basic necessity. The minister shall make Regulations to redetermine the rate as a matter of State policy.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Agricultural input (fertilizers, seeds and pesticides)
- Beans
- Bread
- Lentils
- Livestock feed and poultry feed
- Maize (grain)
- Maize meal
- Milk
- Paraffin intended for use as fuel for cooking, illuminating or heating
- Peas
- Sorghum meal
- Unmalted sorghum grain
- Wheat (grain)
- Wheat flour
- Export of goods or services from Lesotho by a vendor
- Goods that are supplied in the course of repairing, renovating or modifying a taxable supply, subject to the requirements set out in section 6A(3)(a)
- Supply consisting of illuminating kerosene intended for use as fuel for cooking, illuminating or heating and are not mixed with another substance
- Supply of services that would otherwise be taxable, which comprise the transport of goods or any ancillary transport services supplied directly in connection with the exportation from or importation into Lesotho of goods or the movement of goods through Lesotho from one export country to another export country, where such services are supplied directly to a person who is not a resident of Lesotho and is not a vendor, otherwise than through an agent or other person
- Services that are supplied directly in connection with land or any improvement thereto, situated in any export country

- Services that are supplied directly in respect of:
  - Movable property situated in any export country at the time the services are rendered
  - Goods temporarily admitted into Lesotho from an export country that are exempt from tax importation, as listed in Schedule II
  - Arranging the supply of goods being exported outside of Lesotho and transportation of goods within Lesotho for a person who is not a resident of Lesotho and is not a vendor
  - International transport passengers originating in Lesotho with a destination outside Lesotho
- Supply of goods or services is part of a transfer of an enterprise as a going concern by a vendor, provided certain requirements are complied with as contained in the Act

Examples of goods and services taxable at 10%

- Electricity

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Education services provided by the following:
  - Pre-primary, primary or secondary school
  - College or university
  - Institution established for promotion of adult education, vocational training, technical education or the education or training of physically or mentally handicapped persons, which is registered with the Ministry of Education
- Financial services, defined as follows:
  - Granting, negotiating and dealing with loans, credit, credit guarantees and any security for money, including management of loans, credit or credit guarantees by the grantor
  - Transactions concerning deposit and current accounts, payments, transfers, debts, cheques and negotiable instruments, other than debt collection and factoring
  - Transactions relating to shares, stocks, bonds and other securities, other than custodial services
  - Management of investment funds
- Transportation services, defined as the transportation of fare-paying passengers and their personal effects by road
- Supply of postal, transportation, medical or dental, financial, insurance or education services
- Supply of unimproved land
- Certain supplies by way of lease or letting of immovable property subject to certain provisions
- Supply of water
- Supply by amateur sporting organization of sport activities, where such activities are deemed for the purposes of this Act to be nonprofessional
- Supply of cultural activities and supplies deemed to be so by the Commissioner General, which would include, but are not restricted to, the collection of entrance fees, or where such events are regular events (provided that such activity is for a nonprofit supply or service)
- Supply of charity arrangements by an organization or institution deemed by the Commissioner General to engage in or conduct charitable activities or work subject to certain provisions
- Any supply prescribed by the Minister in regulations as an exempt supply

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Lesotho.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point."

In Lesotho, the general time of supplies would be the earliest of the following:

- The date on which the goods are delivered or made available, or the performance of the services is completed
- The date on which the invoice for the supply is issued
- The date on which payment (including part payment) for the supply is made

Other tax points are used for a variety of situations, including "rental agreements," change in use, auctions, gifts, hire purchase agreements and finance leases.

Deposits and prepayments. There are no special time of supply rules in Lesotho for deposits and prepayments. As such, therefore the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

Continuous supplies of services. The tax point for continuous supplies of services is the earliest of:
- The date on which the goods are delivered or made available, or the performance of the services is completed
- The date on which the invoice for the supply is issued
- The date on which payment (including part payment) for the supply is made

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules in Lesotho for supplies of goods sent on approval for sale or return. As such, therefore the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

Reverse-charge services. There are no special time of supply rules in Lesotho for the supply of reverse-charge services. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

Leased assets. For time of supply purposes, a "rental agreement" means any agreement for the letting of goods other than a hire purchase agreement or finance lease.

The supply of goods under a hire purchase agreement or finance lease occurs on the date of commencement of the hire or lease. Where goods are supplied under a rental agreement or goods or services are supplied on a continuous basis under an agreement or law that provides for periodic payments, the goods or services are treated as successively supplied for successive parts of the period of the agreement or as determined by such law, and each successive supply occurs on the earlier of the date on which the payment is due or received.

Imported goods. The time of supply for imported goods is when the goods require clearance under the Customs and Excise Act, 1982, on the date on which the clearance is made or in other cases on the date the goods are brought into Lesotho.

Goods supplied by auction. Where goods are supplied by auction (other than by way of a sale out-of-hand), the time of supply is the date of the auction.

Exempt supplies. Where goods or services are applied to own or exempt use, the time of supply is the date on which the goods or services are first applied to own or exempt use.

Gifts. Where goods or services are supplied by way of gift, the time of supply is the date on which ownership in the goods passes or the performance of the services is completed.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

VAT payable by a vendor for a tax period is calculated according to the following formula, A-B where A is the total value added tax payable in respect of taxable supplies made by the vendor during the tax period; and B is the total input tax claimable by the vendor during the tax period and allowed as a credit in terms of the Act. In the event of B exceeding A, a refund of VAT is only allowed subject to an application for a refund to the Commissioner.

The time limit for a taxable person to reclaim input tax in Lesotho is four years. Application for refunds must be done in writing within 20 days after the end of the calendar quarter or within four years after the tax is due and payable.

Input tax means value added tax paid or payable in respect of a taxable supply to, or a taxable import by, any person, but does not include additional tax.

Input tax can be claimed to the extent that the input tax is payable or paid in respect of a taxable supply or taxable import by the vendor in the course of business of an enterprise carried on by the vendor, subject to the following conditions:

- Where there is a valid tax invoice
  Or
- Where there is a bill of entry or other document prescribed under the Customs and Excise Act, 1982, evidencing the amount of input tax payable or paid

There are instances where input tax can be claimed without a valid tax invoice. For this circumstance, the following needs to be proved to the Commissioner General:

- That the vendor took all reasonable steps to acquire a VAT invoice
- That the failure to acquire a VAT invoice was not the fault of the vendor
- That the amount of input tax claimed by the vendor is correct

If in consequence of a fraudulent action or misrepresentation by the recipient of the supply, a vendor applied a lower rate of tax (including a zero rate) than that correctly applicable to the supply, the Commissioner General may raise an assessment upon the recipient for the amount of VAT payable together with any additional tax that has become payable. The amount may also be recovered from the vendor.

Further, the input tax is allowable in the tax period in which the taxable purchases or imports are made. The vendor will only be allowed the input tax credit upon proof of valid tax invoices indicating the tax incurred by the vendor on acquiring taxable supplies in the tax period concerned. It is also important to take note that the input tax incurred by the vendor will only be refunded to the extent that it exceeds the output tax on the reported sales.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for taxable purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use or services used for making exempt supplies). Input tax is nondeductible on purchases of goods and services that are not used for taxable purposes, such as private expenses. This also includes any other goods or services that are not used for taxable purposes.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Exempt supplies of goods and services
- Items considered to be of a personal nature
- For tax on purchases of used goods if the taxable value of a taxable supply of those goods is determined as the lesser of consideration paid or fair market value of the supply
- For any tax that is refundable
- For tax on purchases for noncommercial vehicles, entertainment representation and payments in kind to staff

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

If a vendor meets the definition of a taxable supply, then that supply can have input tax claimed, unless it is specifically stated as a supply that an input cannot be claimed, see above.

Partial exemption. If a vendor makes a purchase of a taxable supply in the furtherance of their enterprise, then input tax may be claimed. If the purchase is for their own personal use or exempt use, then no input may be applied. If the purchase is to be used for both taxable and personal or exempt use, then the vendor would have to apply an apportionment based on the taxable versus personal or exempt usage, i.e., turnover.

Approval from the tax authorities is not required to use the partial exemption standard method in Lesotho. Special methods are not allowed in Lesotho.

Capital goods. "Capital goods" in the Lesotho VAT Act means plant and equipment (including spare parts therefore, but not including registrable motor vehicles) for use directly in manufacturing.

Input tax incurred on capital goods can be claimed to the extent that the input tax is payable or paid in respect of a taxable supply or taxable import by the vendor in the course of business of an enterprise carried on by the vendor. If a vendor intends to use a capital good acquired for making taxable supplies, the vendor may deduct the input tax incurred on acquisition, but only to the extent of payment made. If the capital good is intended to be used partially for making taxable supplies and partially for nontaxable supplies, only the portion relating to the intended taxable use may be deducted.

Refunds. A person may apply to the Commissioner General for a refund VAT paid in excess of the amount due. Where the Commissioner General is satisfied that the refund is due to the vendor, they may apply the amount of tax overpaid against any other outstanding VAT liability or income tax liability or refund the amount. The Commissioner General may conduct VAT audits prior to refunds being paid out. Application for refunds shall be done in writing within 20 days after the end of the calendar quarter or within four years after the tax is due and payable. Refunds owing to certain organizations, such as diplomats, contractors and charitable activities, will follow specific rules.

Pre-registration costs. Where a person is registered for VAT, they can claim input tax relating to taxable supplies prior to registration, provided the goods or services were acquired by that person not more than two months before the date of registration and an application for the credit is made within two months after the registration date.

A person can claim an input tax credit in respect of goods and services relating to pre-incorporation expenses upon the incorporation where the vendor is a legal persona, but such person needs to register first for VAT and claim in respect of a commercial entity.

Bad debts. A vendor is allowed a credit for the VAT paid in respect of a taxable supply made by the vendor where the whole or part of the consideration for the supply is subsequently treated as a bad debt. The credit allowed is the amount of the VAT paid in respect of the supply that corresponds to the amount of the debt treated as bad.

The credit arises on the later of the date on which the bad debt was written off in the accounts of the vendor or 12 months after the end of the tax period in which the value added tax was paid in respect of the supply.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred on purchases that are used for noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Lesotho.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Input tax incurred by non-established businesses that are not registered for VAT in Lesotho is not recoverable.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A vendor making a taxable supply to another vendor shall provide that other vendor, at the time of the supply, with an original VAT invoice for the supply.

Credit notes. Credit notes must be issued by the vendor making the supply in the case where the consideration for the supply is reduced after an invoice has already been issued. This can be the result of, among others, cancellation of the supply, a discount offered, etc.

Debit notes are issued by the vendor making the supply in the case where the consideration for the supply is increased after an invoice has already been issued. This can be the result of, among others; the reduced rate of VAT being used instead of a standard rate of tax, a wrongly reduced quantity of goods is invoiced, etc.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is allowed in Lesotho, but not mandatory.

Scope of electronic invoicing. For B2B, B2C and business-to-government (B2G) supplies, electronic invoicing is allowed but not mandatory in Lesotho. There is no threshold beyond which taxable persons are required to adopt electronic invoicing in Lesotho. The requirements related to electronic invoicing are the same as those for paper invoicing.

Electronic invoices should contain the same particulars as nonelectronic invoices, but the format of electronic invoices is not prescribed. Vendors do not need prior approval from the Commissioner to implement electronic invoicing.

At the time of preparing this chapter, electronic invoicing has not been implemented in Lesotho. A tender in this regard was recently awarded in June 2023, with a projected period of 28 months to implement starting in July 2023. However, no further developments have been announced.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified VAT invoicing is not allowed in Lesotho. As such, full VAT invoices are required.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Lesotho.

Proof of exports. The rate of VAT imposed on an export of goods or services from Lesotho by a vendor is zero. "Exports" in Lesotho are defined as the following:

- In the case of goods, the delivery of the goods to, or the making available of the goods at, an address outside Lesotho as evidenced by documentary proof acceptable to the Commissioner General
  Or
- In the case of services, the supply of the services for use or consumption outside Lesotho as evidenced by documentary proof acceptable to the Commissioner General, not being services, which are supplied directly in connection with any movable or immovable property situated in Lesotho at the time of the supply

Customs documentation relating to imports and exports must be retained by the vendor in order to zero-rate the exports. The legislation does not state what is considered to be acceptable documentary proof for such zero-rating. This would therefore be at the discretion of the Commissioner. The vendor would have to submit what they consider sufficient support of their goods or services.

Foreign currency invoices. If an amount is expressed in a currency other than the domestic currency, which is the Lesotho loti (LSL), the amount shall be converted at the exchange rate applying between the currency and loti at the time of supply.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. There are no special invoicing rules for supplies to nontaxable persons in Lesotho. As such, full VAT invoices are required.

Records. In Lesotho, examples of what records must be held for VAT purposes include the following:

- Original VAT invoices, credit notes and debit notes received by the vendor
- A copy of all VAT invoices, credit notes and debit notes issued by the vendor
- Customs documentation relating to imports and exports by the vendor
- Such other accounts and records as may be prescribed by the Commissioner General

Each vendor must maintain up-to-date books of account, physically stored in Lesotho, in the Sesotho or English languages that meet the following conditions:
- Correctly record and explain the transactions entered into by the vendor
- Will, at any time, enable the financial position of the vendor to be determined with reasonable accuracy
- Will enable the accounts of the vendor to be readily and properly audited
- Will enable the directors of a vendor that is a company to ensure that any balance sheet, profit and loss account, or income and expenditure statement of the vendor complies with the requirements applicable under all relevant laws of Lesotho

In Lesotho, VAT books and records must be held within the country. The records must be held in the Sesotho or English languages.

Record retention period. Records or accounts must be retained for as long as they remain material in the administration of the VAT Act. It is, however, accepted in practice that a duration of six years is the norm.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is not allowed in Lesotho. Archiving must be made in paper form only.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. The VAT return period is monthly for all taxable persons. VAT returns must be filed by the 20th day after the end of the tax period. This deadline is the same whether the returns are filed in person (at the RSL advice center) or by email.

Periodic payments. VAT must be paid by the 20th day after the end of the tax period. Payment should be made in person at the RSL banking hall in Maseru or the banks (standard Lesotho Bank, Nedbank Lesotho, FNB, Post Bank). Payments can also be made by electronic fund transfer and the proof of payment submitted to the RSL, together with the return filing for allocation and receipting.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is allowed in Lesotho, but not mandatory. Vendors may file VAT returns electronically to the RSL via the e-services platform.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Lesotho.

Special schemes. Cash accounting. Where 90% or more of the total taxable value of taxable supplies made by a vendor consists of the supply of services, the vendor may apply, in writing, to the Commissioner General to calculate VAT payable under the cash accounting special method. If the Commissioner General considers it appropriate to do so, the Commissioner General may grant the application by notice in writing with effect from the date specified in the notice. Cash accounting is where you claim input tax and declare output tax on a payment basis.

Goods sold by auction. A supply of goods by auction is treated as a supply of goods for consideration by the auctioneer as vendor-made in the course or furtherance of an enterprise carried on by the auctioneer. A supply of goods or services occurs where goods are supplied by auction (other than by way of a sale out-of-hand), on the date of the auction. Where VAT is payable by an auctioneer in respect of the supply of goods, the auctioneer shall charge the purchaser the amount of VAT payable in respect of the sale by adding the VAT to the amount of a successful bid, or in the case of sales out-of-hand, to the purchase price and shall recover that tax from the purchaser.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Lesotho.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in Lesotho.

Correcting errors in previous returns. The vendor may apply in writing for a voluntary disclosure process to declare any errors that they may have identified on previous filings.

However, adjustments must be made to a return where an incorrect amount of VAT was declared, the supply is canceled, the consideration has been amended, goods have been returned, amount charged on VAT invoice was incorrect, etc. Such an adjustment must be made in the returns in the fiscal year the error took place.

Digital tax administration. There are no transactional reporting requirements in Lesotho.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. Once a vendor meets the VAT registration threshold, it is obliged to register for VAT, as its business is regarded as a registerable business. If a vendor fails to register for VAT, it will be liable to pay the VAT on all the taxable supplies it has made, regardless of whether it has actually charged and collected the tax. The Commissioner Domestic Taxes is entitled to consider the vendor's entire liability by looking back to the date it became liable to register and consequently recover the tax due for earlier periods.

In addition, the Commissioner can impose an additional amount of tax as a penalty for the vendor's failure to comply. This additional tax may be charged at the maximum rate of 200% of the unaccounted tax liability. Also, if it is discovered later that the actual VAT registration date (i.e., when the registration threshold was breached) was a date earlier than the one the vendor showed on the registration form, it will have to pay the VAT on the taxable supplies it made from the earlier date, together with the penal additional tax.

Penalties for late payment and filings. A vendor who fails to file a return or fails to pay VAT within the time required is liable for additional tax on the VAT payable for the period of the return at the rate of 3% per month or part of the month the return is outstanding.

Penalties for errors. There are no specific penalties in Lesotho for errors. However, additional penalties can be issued for the following:

- Offenses related to VAT invoices, credit notes and debit notes – failure to provide an invoice, credit note, and debit note as required
- Failure to give security – failure to pay security on import of goods
- Failure to comply with recovery provisions – failure to provide assistance to the Commissioner in recovering VAT due from third parties
- Failure to maintain proper records – not maintain proper records in terms of legislation
- Failure to provide reasonable assistance – failure to assist the Commissioner in executing their duties
- Improper use of taxable person identification number or VAT number – knowingly using a false taxable person identification number or VAT number on a return
- Failure to comply with a Section 50 notice – a Section 50 notice is a request for information issued by the Commissioner – failure to respond to such a request carries a penalty
- Failure to maintain secrecy – both the taxable person and an officer of the revenue authority has a duty to maintain secrecy in relation to the information
- Breach of Section 86 – prohibition on advertising; pricing on tax-exclusive or tax-inclusive basis – a vendor who advertises that the VAT on a supply will be borne or absorbed by the person
- Obstructing taxation officers – failure to assist officers to carry out their duties per legislation
- Impersonating an officer – there is a penalty for impersonating an officer of the authority
- Other offenses by companies – this section states that the nominated person, directors and other members of management are responsible for the above offenses if taken during the time they were in office

A taxable person who fails to abide by the legislation in relation to the above commits an offense and is liable on conviction to a fine. The fine ranges from an amount not less than LSL2,000 but not exceeding LSL12,000 or to an imprisonment for a term not less than two years but not exceeding six years or both.

There are no specific penalties associated with the late notification or failure to notify the tax authorities of changes to a taxable person's VAT registration details. For further details, see the subsection Changes to VAT registration details above.

Penalties for fraud. A vendor who makes false or misleading statements, commits an offense and is liable on conviction to where the statement or omission was made knowingly or recklessly, a fine not less than LSL4,000 but not exceeding LSL12,000 or to imprisonment for a term not less than two years but not exceeding six years or both; or in any other case, a fine not less than LSL2,000 but not exceeding LSL6,000 or to imprisonment for a term not less than one year but not exceeding three years or both.

Personal liability for company officers. A vendor who makes false or misleading statements, commits an offense and is liable on conviction to where the statement or omission was made knowingly or recklessly, a fine not less than M4,000 but not exceeding M12,000 or to imprisonment for a term not less than two years but not exceeding six years or both; or in any other case, a fine not less than M2,000 but not exceeding M6,000 or to imprisonment for a term not less than one year but not exceeding three years or both.

The section does not apply where the offense was committed without such person's consent or knowledge, and the person exercised all such diligence to prevent the commission of the offense as ought to have been exercised having regard to the nature of the person's functions and all the circumstances.

Statute of limitations. The statute of limitations in Lesotho is four years. The time limit for amending an assessment are as follows:

- Where fraud or gross or willful neglect has been committed by, or on behalf of, the person assessed in respect of the period of assessment, the assessment may be amended at any time.
  Or
- In any other case, the assessment may be amended within four years after service of the notice of assessment.

A legal agreement between Switzerland and the Principality of Liechtenstein states that the Principality of Liechtenstein incorporates the substantive provisions of the Swiss value-added tax (VAT) Act into its State Law (agreement between the Swiss Confederation and the Principality of Liechtenstein regarding VAT in the Principality of Liechtenstein, completed 12 July 2012, entered into force 17 August 2012). As such, refer to the Switzerland chapter for details on VAT rules in Liechtenstein.

Nevertheless, the Principality of Liechtenstein manages VAT with its own tax authority [Steuerverwaltung Fürstentum Liechtenstein (STV)]. Businesses with a nexus to Liechtenstein have principally the requirement to register for VAT in Liechtenstein. Note that a business can only register either in Switzerland or in the Principality of Liechtenstein, and attribution rules depend on a few principles and individual agreement between the tax authorities in specific cases.

In addition, last resort decisions taken by a Liechtenstein court regarding substantive law provisions governing VAT may be subjected to a public law appeal before the Swiss Federal Supreme Court. The procedure is ruled by Swiss law.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- The supply of goods or services in Lithuania supplied for consideration by a taxable person performing economic activities
- The intra-Community acquisition of goods from another European Union (EU) Member State by a taxable person (see the chapter on the EU)
- The importation of goods into Lithuania (subject to import VAT)
- Certain other cases linked to the international traffic of goods (for example, the supply of goods that are intended to be produced to customs and placed in temporary storage, the supply of goods that are intended to be placed in a free zone and the supply of goods that are intended to be placed under customs warehousing arrangements or special inward processing procedure)

Quick Fixes. Pending introduction of a "definitive" system for the VAT treatment of intra-Community supplies of goods to taxable persons, the EU has adopted Quick Fixes for intra-Community trade in goods. For an overview of the Quick Fixes rules, see the chapter on the EU. For documentary requirements see Section H. Invoicing, subsection Proof of exports and intra-Community supplies.

The Quick Fixes were adopted by implementing the respective amendments of the Lithuanian Law on VAT in December 2019, which in general follows the Directive with few minor deviations and which came into force starting from 1 January 2020. The following amendments were implemented:
- Call-off stock arrangements
- Chain transactions
- Mandatory VAT identification number to apply the zero VAT rate to intra-Community supplies
- Documentary evidence of proof of intra-Community supplies

In regard to the regulation on the evidence (documentation) of cross-border transportation, the supplier has the right to choose whether to provide documents according to the current Lithuanian practice (concerning a set of coherent documents proving the transport, the destination document, etc.) or the evidence specified in the Article 45a of the updated Council Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 282/2011. If the supplier chooses to prove intra-Community supplies based on the documents specified in EU Directive, the tax authorities should not require more documents to prove the intra-Community transport.

Effective use and enjoyment. To avoid instances of non-taxation or double taxation, EU Member States can apply use and enjoyment rules that allow a service that is "used and enjoyed" in the EU to be taxed or prevent a service that is "used and enjoyed" outside the EU from being taxed. If a service is taxed in the EU under the use and enjoyment provisions, a non-EU supplier of the service may be required to register for VAT in every Member State where it has customers that are not taxable persons. For information regarding the rules relating to VAT registration, see the chapters on the respective countries of the EU.

In Lithuania, no services are subject to the "use and enjoyment" provisions.

Transfer of a going concern. If the taxable person transfers a business or part of the business as a complex (i.e., including its assets and other related rights and obligations) to another taxable person as a going concern, such transfer of activities shall not be deemed to be neither a supply of goods nor services. The transaction is considered to be as a transfer of a going concern and thus not subject to VAT, if the following conditions are met:

- Both parties are considered as taxable persons
- The activities will be continued after the transfer
- The transfer should constitute the totality of assets, rights and obligations related to the economic activity (including, but not limited to tangible and intangible assets and liabilities related to the transferred activities)

Transactions between related parties. In general, transactions between related parties must meet the "arm's-length" principle and follow the local, as well as international, transfer pricing rules when determining the taxable value of the transaction.

If the tax authorities have grounds to suspect that the taxable value of a supplied goods and/or services has been artificially increased or reduced, they may recalculate the taxable amount where the following criteria must be met:
- The taxable amount is either of the following:
  - Significantly lower than the open market value and the customer does not have a right to deduct the whole amount of input VAT or has a right to deduct part of it.
  - Significantly higher than the open market value and the supplier does not have a right to deduct the whole amount of input VAT or has a right to reduced part of it.
- The taxable amount is artificially reduced or increased to gain a tax benefit and the transaction is concluded between related parties.

C. Who is liable

Persons liable to VAT are as follows:
- A taxable person, i.e., a business entity, an individual established in Lithuania or elsewhere or a collective investment undertaking (fund) that performs an economic activity in the course of its business in Lithuania
- A legal entity that is not a taxable person with respect to intra-Community acquisitions of goods or any person with respect to the intra-Community acquisition of new means of transport

The VAT registration threshold for Lithuanian entities is turnover in excess of EUR45,000 in the preceding 12 months. If the total turnover of all entities controlled by a single entity or by an individual exceeds EUR45,000 , all entities are required to register for VAT, even if the turnover of each entity separately does not exceed the threshold. The provisions of this part do not apply if these persons can prove that:
1) None of their management bodies and/or individual members of the management body are the same person.
2) Their actual economic activities are not of the same nature, and they do not act for each other's benefit or interests.

At the time of preparing this chapter, it has been proposed to increase the VAT registration threshold for Lithuanian entities from EUR45,000 to EUR55,000. This is with effect from 1 January 2024. However, the proposal has been submitted for consideration in Parliament, and has not been approved.

The VAT registration threshold for farmers engaged in activities under a special scheme, legal nontaxable persons and taxable persons who are not eligible for input tax deduction is the amount of intra-EU acquisitions of goods exceeding EUR14,000 in the preceding 12 months (i.e., no threshold for taxable persons). Special rules apply to foreign or "non-established" businesses that have no fixed establishment in Lithuania.

Exemption from registration. There are no exemptions from the VAT registration for Lithuanian entities if their turnover exceeds the EUR45,000 threshold in the preceding 12 months. Note the above proposal to increase the threshold to EUR55,000.

Foreign entities are not required to register for VAT if their transactions are exempt, outside the scope of VAT or zero-rated (taxable at 0%). However, for certain supplies, VAT registration is required even though the zero rate of VAT applies. These supplies include the following:

- Exports of goods
- Supplies of goods that are intended to be produced to customs and placed in temporary storage
- Supplies of goods that are intended to be placed in a free zone or in a free warehouse
- Supplies of goods that are intended to be placed under customs warehousing arrangements or special inward processing procedure
- Services linked to the above supplies
- Intra-Community supplies of goods
- Supplies of new vehicles that are transported to another EU Member State
- Supplies of goods to a taxable person, who facilitates trade via e-commerce marketplace/platform/portal or similar means for distance sales of goods imported from third territories or third countries with an intrinsic value not exceeding EUR150 and/or who creates via the mentioned means the conditions for a taxable person, established outside the EU, to supply the goods to nontaxable persons in the EU

Taxable persons to which non-EU scheme and/or EU scheme and/or Import One-Stop-Shop (IOSS) scheme apply, and supply within the territory of the country the services and/or goods under those schemes and are already registered for VAT purposes in any other EU Member State in accordance with the provisions of the legal acts of that EU Member State are not obliged to register for VAT purposes in Lithuania. However, this only applies if their obligation to register for VAT purposes arises solely from the supply of such services and/or goods.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. Certain persons may register for VAT voluntarily. This possibility exists for 1) a business established in Lithuania that has turnover not exceeding the registration threshold (except when it is carrying out or intends to carry out only an activity for which input and/or import VAT on goods and/or services used could not be deductible under the provisions of Lithuanian VAT law) and 2) a person that acquires or plans to acquire goods from another EU Member State (except new means of transport or excise goods). In practice, persons established outside Lithuania may also voluntarily register for VAT.

Group registration. Group VAT registration is not allowed in Lithuania.

Holding companies. In Lithuania, a pure holding company cannot be a member of a VAT group, as group VAT registration is not allowed in Lithuania.

Cost-sharing exemption. The VAT cost-sharing exemption (in accordance with VAT Directive 2006/112/EEC Article 132(1)(f) has been implemented in Lithuania. This provides an option to exempt support services that the cost-sharing group supplies to its members, providing certain conditions are met (in accordance with specific requirements laid out in Lithuanian VAT law).

The Lithuanian VAT law has adopted the provisions of the cost-sharing exemption in accordance with the Article 132(1)f of VAT Directive 2006/112/EC. Respectively, the supply of services by independent groups to its members where those members are persons carrying out activities specified in Chapter 2 of Title IX of the VAT Directive 2006/112/EC, which are directly necessary to the activities referred in this article, shall be exempt from VAT. The members of the independent group should not pay more for the service received than their share of the total costs.

Fixed establishment. In Lithuania, a fixed establishment is considered a structural or other division of a taxable person through which a taxable person of one country supplies and/or acquires goods and/or provides and/or receives services in another country. The criteria of fixed establishment defined in the Regulation No. 282/2011 are applied in Lithuania. No special guidelines are available from the tax authorities. The official Commentary of the Law on VAT only provides the general definition of a fixed establishment and gives the link to Regulation No. 282/2011.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that does not have a fixed establishment in Lithuania. A non-established business must register for VAT in Lithuania if it makes taxable supplies of goods or services in Lithuania. No VAT registration threshold applies to supplies made by foreign non-established businesses; that is, registration is required in the event a taxable supply is made in Lithuania, unless the reverse charge applies or unless the supply is outside the scope of VAT or is exempt. As mentioned above, for certain supplies, VAT registration is required even though the VAT zero-rate applies.

A non-established business must register for VAT in Lithuania if it makes distance sales of goods and/or supply of services to end customers (B2C) in Lithuania greater than EUR10,000 in the current or previous calendar year, unless it is registered for VAT with respect to a special taxation scheme (e.g., non-EU scheme, EU scheme or IOSS scheme) in another EU Member State. In the latter case, such business is not obliged to register for VAT in Lithuania with respect to the supplies made under those taxation schemes to nontaxable persons in Lithuania.

Tax representatives. A non-established business must register for VAT through a fixed establishment in Lithuania or appoint a fiscal representative.

The requirement to appoint a fiscal representative is not applicable to non-established businesses that are based in other EU Member States, as well as to non-established businesses that register for VAT in Lithuania only for the application of special taxation schemes, i.e., non-EU scheme, EU scheme or IOSS scheme. The requirement to appoint the fiscal representative is also not applicable to non-EU established businesses that are based in the territories where the provisions of Mutual assistance agreements are applied, which essentially are equivalent to the provisions of Directive No 2010/24/EU and Regulation No. 904/2010. The fiscal representative becomes jointly liable for VAT obligations with the company they are representing. Based on the rules on appointing the fiscal representative in Lithuania published by the Ministry of Finance, the fiscal representative must meet certain criteria, for example:

- The taxable person must be engaged in one of the following activities – legal, accounting, bookkeeping and/or audit, tax consulting
- Is registered for VAT purposes in Lithuania for at least three years
- Does not have tax arrears or debts to Customs over the past 12 months
- The management of the entity must have clean criminal record in terms of financial and tax matters

Reverse charge. A non-established business that makes taxable supplies in Lithuania is not required to register for VAT if the reverse-charge rule applies to all its transactions. Under the reverse-charge rule, a Lithuanian customer that is a taxable person established in Lithuania is responsible for the calculation and payment of VAT, unless either of the following circumstances exists:

- The supply is used by a fixed establishment of the person outside Lithuania
- The supply falls under the list of exceptions

Domestic reverse charge. Under the domestic reverse-charge rule, a customer that is a VAT-registered person in Lithuania is responsible for the calculation and payment of VAT with respect to supplies of the following goods:

- Natural gas, electricity, as well as heating or cooling energy
- Goods installed and assembled in Lithuania

The Lithuanian VAT law also provides for a reverse-charge procedure with respect to supplies between persons established in Lithuania, including the following:

- Supplies of goods and services while a supplier is under bankruptcy or a restructuring procedure (applicable until 31 December 2021)
- Supplies of metal scrap and similar products
- Supplies of timber (applicable until 31 December 2021)

- Supplies of construction services as detailed in the law on construction and supplies of certain construction materials
- Supplies of hard drives, provided that the customer is registered for VAT in Lithuania (effective 1 August 2019 until 28 February 2022)
- Supplies of mobile phones, tablets and laptops (classified under CN code 8471 30 00), provided that the customer is registered for VAT in Lithuania (effective 1 August 2019 until 31 December 2026)

Digital economy. Specific VAT rules apply to cross-border supplies of goods and services sold via the internet (e-commerce) in all EU Member States with effect from 1 July 2021. These new rules apply to all direct sales to nontaxable persons (in practice these are mostly private individuals), but we refer to these rules as e-commerce VAT rules because most of these transactions are conducted via the internet. In general, the place of supply is in the country of consumption, i.e., where the goods are shipped to or where the buyer of the goods or services resides, subject to any "use and enjoyment" provisions that may override this rule (see Section B, Effective use and enjoyment subsection above). Therefore:

- For supplies of services made by a nonresident supplier to a business customer (B2B), the business customer is responsible for accounting for the VAT due, using the reverse charge.
- For supplies of goods made by a nonresident supplier to a business customer (B2B), where the goods are transported from another EU Member State, the business purchasing the goods is responsible for accounting for the VAT due, as an intra-Community acquisition. If the goods come from outside the EU, the purchaser may have to report an importation of goods.
- For supplies of goods or services made by a nonresident supplier to a final consumer (B2C), the supplier is generally responsible for charging and accounting for the VAT due at the rate applicable in the customer's country (unless the supplier's sales fall beneath the distance selling threshold of EUR10,000 with effect from 1 July 2021). This VAT can be reported using a single VAT registration, using a "One-Stop-Shop" mechanism.

For more details about intra-EU distance sales, see the chapter on the EU. Effective 1 July 2021, an e-commerce supplier may have a choice of how to account for VAT on its B2C supplies.

Local VAT registration. A nonresident supplier may choose to register for VAT in each EU Member State and account for VAT on all supplies made and recover input tax in accordance with local rules (see the Non-established businesses subsection above). Non-EU businesses may be required to appoint a fiscal representative for accounting for the VAT due on these transactions.

In Lithuania, for the rules on the requirement to appoint a fiscal representative for non-EU businesses, see the Tax representatives subsection above. In addition, for the details on the registration procedures required for a nonresident supplier to register for VAT purposes in Lithuania, see the Registration procedures subsection below.

One-Stop Shop. Effective 1 July 2021, a supplier can choose to account for the VAT due under the EU One-Stop Shop (OSS), which can be used for intra-EU cross-border supplies of goods and all cross-border supplies of services made to final consumers in the EU. Unlike the previous Mini One-Stop-Shop (MOSS) scheme that applied until 30 June 2021, the OSS is not limited to cross-border supplies of electronic services, telecommunication services and broadcasting services.

The OSS is an electronic portal that allows businesses to:

- Register for VAT electronically in a single EU Member State for all intra-EU distance sales of goods and for B2C supplies of services
- Declare and pay VAT due on all supplies of goods and services in a single electronic quarterly VAT return. The OSS can be used by businesses established in the EU and outside the EU. If a supplier or a deemed supplier decides to register for the OSS, it must declare and pay VAT for all supplies (goods as well as services) that fall under the OSS.

In Lithuania, for the EU scheme, the country of OSS registration shall be the EU Member State in which a taxable person is established or in which it has a division. If a taxable person, that is not established in the EU, has divisions in more than one EU Member State, the country of OSS registration is the EU Member State in which such taxable person has a division and in which it chooses to treat as the country of OSS registration. In a case when a taxable person is not established in the EU and does not have a division in the EU, the country of OSS registration is the EU Member State in which the dispatch or the transport of the goods begins.

Respectively, in the EU scheme, the country of consumption shall be understood as below:
- In case of services – EU Member State in which the supply of services takes place
- In case of distance sales – EU Member State in which the transport of the goods to the final customer ends
- In case when a taxable person facilitates trade via e-commerce marketplace/platform/portal or similar means and the dispatch or transport of the goods begins and ends in the same EU Member State – that EU Member State

In Lithuania, for the non-EU scheme, the country of OSS registration shall be understood as the EU Member State in which a taxable person established outside the EU decides to register for OSS. Respectively, in the non-EU scheme, the country of consumption shall be understood as the EU Member State where the supply of services takes place.

The deadline to submit the VAT return via OSS and pay VAT in case of EU or non-EU schemes is the last day of the month following the taxable period, which is a calendar quarter. When making a payment, the identification number assigned to the VAT return in the OSS system shall be indicated. If no goods or services were supplied during the taxable period, a nil-VAT return shall be submitted. If it is necessary to correct the data of the VAT return submitted via OSS, all the corrections shall be made in the subsequent VAT return within three years after the date when the initial return had to be submitted.

To register for OSS, a taxable person must submit the respective registration application via OSS system (www.vmi.lt/oss). For more details about the operation of the OSS, see the chapter on the EU.

Import One-Stop Shop. Effective 1 July 2021, the Import One-Stop-Shop (IOSS) scheme applies for B2C distance sales of goods from outside the EU.

Effective 1 July 2021, VAT is due on all commercial goods imported into the EU regardless of their value. The actual supply is subject to VAT in the country where the goods are imported (the country of destination). The IOSS facilitates the declaration and payment of VAT due on the sale of low-value goods (i.e., consignments valued at less than EUR150 per consignment). It allows suppliers selling low-value goods dispatched or transported from a non-EU country to customers in the EU to collect, declare and pay the VAT due. If the IOSS is used, the importation into the EU is exempt from VAT.

In Lithuania, the IOSS scheme can be used by the taxable persons established in the EU or outside the EU who perform distance sales of goods imported from third territories or third countries to the final customers in the EU.

In the view of IOSS scheme, the country of OSS registration shall be understood as below:
- When a taxable person is established outside the EU – the EU Member State in which such taxable person decides to register for OSS
- When a taxable person established outside the EU has a division in the EU Member State – that EU Member State
- When a taxable person is established in the EU Member State – that EU Member State
- When the import agent is established in the EU Member State – that EU Member State
- When the import agent established outside the EU has a division in the EU Member State – that EU Member State

Respectively, in the IOSS scheme, the country of consumption is the EU Member State in which the transport of the goods to the final customer ends.

A taxable person established outside the EU, in the territory where the provisions of mutual assistance agreements are not applied, which essentially are equivalent to the provisions of Directive No 2010/24/EU and Regulation No. 904/2010, that performs distance sales of goods imported from that territory shall appoint an import agent to use the IOSS scheme.

The deadline to submit the VAT return via OSS and pay the VAT in case of an IOSS scheme is the last day of the month following the taxable period, which is a calendar month. When making payment, the identification number assigned to the VAT return in the OSS system shall be indicated. If no goods were supplied during the taxable period, a nil-VAT return shall be submitted. If it is necessary to correct the data of the VAT return submitted via OSS, all the corrections shall be made in the subsequent VAT return within three years after the date when the initial return had to be submitted.

To register for OSS, a taxable person shall submit the respective registration application via the OSS system (www.vmi.lt/oss).

For more details about the IOSS, see the chapter on the EU.

Use of the IOSS special scheme is not mandatory. If VAT is not collected via the IOSS scheme, the importation of goods into the EU is subject to import VAT in the country of final destination, and the Member State can decide freely who is liable to pay the import VAT, which could be the customer or the seller (or an electronic interface).

Postal Services and Couriers Scheme. If the IOSS is not used and the customer is liable for the import VAT due on the supply (and importation) of consignments with a small intrinsic value (i.e., less than EUR150), the VAT can be collected using the special scheme for postal services and couriers. For more details about the special scheme for postal services and couriers, see the chapter on the EU.

In Lithuania, under this scheme, the obligation to pay the import VAT falls to the final customer to whom the goods are intended and who pays the import VAT to the taxable person, who declares these goods to customs. In other words, a taxable person that declares goods to customs (e.g., postal services provider or courier), collects the related import VAT from the final customer of the goods and pays it.

Respectively, postal services provider or courier at the end of each calendar month shall submit to the customs the respective report via electronic means containing information on the import VAT collected under this scheme. Both the person declaring the goods to customs, as well as the person to whom the goods are intended are jointly and severally liable for the payment of import VAT.

Online marketplaces and platforms. Under the new EU VAT e-commerce rules, effective 1 July 2021, taxable persons that "facilitate" certain B2C sales of goods are deemed to have purchased and then supplied those goods themselves. This means that the single supply from the "underlying" supplier to the final consumer is split into two deemed supplies:

- A supply from the supplier to the facilitator (deemed B2B supply)
- A supply from the facilitator to the final customer (deemed B2C supply). Any intermediation service provided by the facilitator is disregarded for VAT purposes

This provision does not cover all sales facilitated via the facilitator. It only covers distance sales of goods imported from non-EU jurisdictions in consignments with an intrinsic value not exceeding EUR150. The jurisdiction of the residence of the supplier using the facilitator is irrelevant. The supply to the facilitating platform is VAT exempt and the supplies made by that platform follow the e-commerce VAT rules as described above. In addition, the provision also covers sales within the EU, if the supplier is not established within the EU. This applies to both local shipments within one Member State, as well as intra-Community shipments. In both cases, the final customer must be a nontaxable person.

In Lithuania there are no additional specific local rules that apply.

For more details about the rules for online marketplaces, see the chapter on the EU.

Vouchers. Effective 1 January 2019, Lithuania adopted provisions of the Council Directive (EU) 2016/1065. Changes in the local legislation defined single-purpose vouchers (SPV) and multi-purpose vouchers (MPV) and set the rules on taxation with VAT of transactions in both cases. New rules shall apply to all vouchers released from 1 January 2019 and onward.

SPVs are defined as vouchers where the place of supply of the goods or services to which the voucher relates, and VAT due on those goods or services is known at the time of issue of the voucher. An MPV is any voucher that is not a single-purpose voucher.

A transfer of an SPV shall be treated as a supply of goods or services to which the voucher relates (i.e., it is treated as a supply), and VAT shall be accounted for accordingly. MPVs shall only be subject to VAT when the voucher is redeemed, i.e., no VAT shall be due when the voucher is transferred through the supply chain. The value on which VAT should be accounted for is either the price paid by the consumer, or if that is not known, the face value of the voucher, less the amount of VAT relating to the goods or services supplied.

Registration procedures. Applications for registration as a Lithuanian taxable person and as a Lithuanian VAT payer can be filed electronically (recommended) or manually (paper) through the system Mano VMI. Registration as a Lithuanian taxable person takes up to five working days, and registration as a Lithuanian VAT payer takes up to three working days.

Note that a taxable person is a person who performs economic activities in Lithuania and who has the obligation to declare its transactions but is not obliged to register for VAT purposes. Meanwhile, a VAT payer is a taxable person, who was obliged to register for VAT purposes due to its transactions in Lithuania and who has already done that. For example, Lithuanian entities are not obliged to register for VAT purposes when their turnover does not exceed a EUR45,000 threshold in the preceding 12 months (*note the above proposal to increase the threshold to EUR55,000).*However, such entities are still obliged to register as Lithuanian taxable persons to be able to declare its transactions and to use the tax authorities' electronic systems.

The registration is performed via the individual account of the electronic system Mano VMI. It is given automatically to each resident of Lithuania (taxable person who is natural person). In respect to the access to a business's Mano VMI, it is provided to the representatives of the business as per registration application (e.g., head of the company, authorized persons). All other persons must be added manually. Note that the access to the business's account is also possible to foreign individuals, however, it is more complex.

There is no requirement to register in the commercial register before registering for VAT unless the business is establishing a branch or a separate entity in Lithuania.

For a VAT registration, the following documents must be submitted to the tax authorities:
- Registration application for the taxable person's register (Form FR0227)
- Registration application for the VAT payer's register (Form FR0388)
- Commercial register extract issued by the competent authority of the country of establishment, approved by apostille and officially translated into Lithuanian

Deregistration. A Lithuanian taxable person has the right to deregister voluntarily if:
- The taxable person's total turnover does not exceed EUR45,000 in the preceding 12 months (note the above proposal to increase the threshold to EUR55,000).

- The value of intra-EU acquisitions does not exceed EUR14,000 in the preceding 12 months.
- The taxable person finishes its activities due to liquidation or reorganization.
- The taxable person terminates its taxable activities.

A foreign person who is a Lithuanian taxable person has the right to deregister voluntarily if:
- The taxable person finishes its activities in Lithuania.
- The taxable person finishes its activities due to liquidation or reorganization.

Lithuanian taxable persons may be deregistered on the initiative of the tax administrator if:
- The taxable person does not perform economic activities or intra-EU acquisitions (e.g., the Lithuanian taxable person does not submit the VAT returns or does not report taxable supplies), for two months in a row.
- The taxable person finishes its activities due to liquidation or reorganization.
- The taxable person (natural person) is dead.

Changes to VAT registration details. Changes to a taxable person's VAT registration details must be notified to the tax authorities by completing a special form, within five working days from the data change. The special form can be submitted electronically via the tax authorities' website (Mano VMI), in person at the tax authorities' offices or by post.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 21%
- Reduced rates: 5%, 9%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services, unless a specific measure provides a reduced rate, the zero rate or an exemption.

Examples of supplies of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Exports of goods from the EU and related services
- International transport and related services
- Supplies related to ships and aircraft
- Goods and services provided free of charge to charitable organizations, as these are described under the provisions of the Law on Charity and Support to support the disaster victims of the Russian Federation military aggression against the population of Ukraine that began on 24 February 2022; furthermore, 0% VAT is applicable to goods supplied to other subjects involved in resolving the after-effects of the Russian Federation military aggression against the population of Ukraine, provided that these goods may be exempt from import VAT if imported to the Republic of Lithuania under the decision of the European Commission issued to the Republic of Lithuania
- Supply of goods and services to diplomatic missions, consular posts and international organizations or their representations, as well as to the staff of the missions and institutions and their family members
- Supply of gold to the system of the European central banks, as well as to the European central bank
- Intra-Community supplies of goods
- Supply of goods to the recipients of sponsorship if the goods are transported out of the EU
- Work on movable tangible property (certain cases)
- Intermediary services for the above supplies

- Supplies of goods intended to be produced to customs and placed in temporary storage or to be placed in a free zone, free warehouse or under customs warehousing arrangements or special inward processing procedures as well as services directly linked to these supplies
- Supplies of goods to a taxable person who facilitates trade via e-commerce marketplace/platform/portal or similar means for distance sales of goods imported from third territories or third countries with an intrinsic value not exceeding EUR150 and/or who creates the conditions for a taxable person, established outside the EU, to supply the goods to nontaxable persons in the EU
- Vaccines against COVID-19 (applicable until 31 December 2022)
- Invitro diagnostic medical devices of COVID-19 (applicable until 31 December 2022)

Examples of supplies of goods and services taxable at 5%

- Medicines and medical aid products, subject to full or partial compensation from the state medical insurance budget, as well as non-compensated prescription medicines (excluding medicines that are subject to 0% VAT rate)
- Food products for special medical purposes, subject to full or partial compensation from the state medical insurance budget (effective from 1 January 2023)
- Technical equipment that is used to assist persons with disabilities as well as for the repair services of such equipment
- Printed and (or) electronic newspapers, magazines and other periodicals (even if they are published through electronic communication), including the electronic information documents and (or) their sets, which content mainly would be made analogous to periodicals content (not taking into account, if those electronic information documents and (or) their sets are printed, or not and which are periodically updated by public information disseminators; this subparagraph does not apply to technical, bibliographic databases, publications of erotic and/or violent nature or publications failing to comply with professional ethics, recognized as such by an institution authorized under the law; it also doesn't apply to printed products in which paid advertising accounts for more than 4/5 of total area of the publication or in the case that the most or all of paid advertising is consisted of music or video content (with effect from 1 January 2021)

Examples of supplies of goods and services taxable at 9%

- Supplies of books and printed non-periodical materials, such as encyclopedias, dictionaries, children's books and maps
- Supplies of electronic books and electronic non-periodical materials, such as encyclopedias, dictionaries, children's books and maps, etc. (effective from 1 January 2023)
- Heating and hot water supplies to residential premises; VAT compensation from the budget is applied to heat energy supplied to domestic consumers, supplied to heat residential premises (including heat energy transmitted through the hot water supply system), hot water supplied to residential premises or cold water for preparing hot water, and heat energy used to heat from 1 October 2022 until 30 April 2023 and from 1 October 2023 until 30 April 2024
- Passengers and their baggage transport services going on regular routes that are authorized by the Ministry of Transportation or the local authorities
- Accommodation services supplied according to the legislation regulating tourism activities
- Fuel wood and wood products intended for heating households
- Supplies of catering services and take-away food provided by restaurants, cafes and similar catering services, with the exception of alcoholic beverages and services or parts of services related to alcoholic beverages (applicable until 31 December 2023)
- Visiting all types of sports events, sports clubs and attendance of other persons providing services similar to those provided by sports clubs, when such services are not exempt from VAT under Lithuanian VAT law (applicable until 30 June 2023)
- Visiting all types of artistic and cultural institutions or events, when such services are not exempt from VAT under Lithuanian VAT law

- Performance services provided by performers (e.g., actors, singers, musicians, conductors, dancers or other persons who play, sing, read, recite or otherwise perform literary, artistic, folklore or circus numbers) (applicable until 30 June 2023)

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Health care services and goods
- Real estate rent and disposals
- Insurance and reinsurance services
- Certain financial services
- Cultural and sporting activities
- Educational and training services
- Betting, gambling and lotteries
- Universal postal services
- Social services and related goods
- Supplies of special marks
- Radio and television services
- Goods and services supplied by nonprofit legal entities
- Imported goods (certain cases)
- Services supplied by independent groups, as in the Articles 132-134 of Directive 2006/112/EC

Option to tax for exempt supplies. A taxable person may opt to charge VAT on these supplies:

- Rent of real estate
- Disposal of real estate
- Certain financial services

The option is applied only if the above services are supplied to the taxable person. The tax authorities should be formally notified about the decision. A taxable person that has opted to charge VAT on any of the above services should charge VAT on all similar transactions for a period of not less than 24 months.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point." The basic time of supply for goods and services is when the VAT invoice is issued. If an invoice is not issued, the time of supply is when the earlier of the following events occurs:

- Goods or services are supplied
- Payment for goods or services is received

Deposits and prepayments. The time of supply for a prepayment received before the supply is made is when the prepayment or the total payment is received. This rule applies to contracts that provide for a supply after 12 months. If the prepayment is received and if the supply will be triggered earlier than 12 months beginning on the date of the signing of the contract, the taxable person may choose the date of receipt of prepayment as the time of supply and calculate the VAT on this prepayment.

If the invoice is issued upon the receipt of prepayment, the remuneration indicated in the final invoice shall be reduced by the amount of prepayment. If special margin schemes for travel agents and for secondhand goods, works of art, collectors' items and antiques are applied, the above treatment of prepayments does not apply.

Continuous supplies of services. In the case where long-term services are supplied, i.e., services that are supplied for a certain continuous period such as telecommunications, leases and also in the case of long-term supply of electricity, gas, heat and other types of energy, VAT shall become chargeable when the VAT invoice for the supply of goods or services during the accounting period is issued. In cases where the VAT invoice is not issued, VAT is chargeable upon receipt of the consideration for the amount of goods or services supplied during the accounting period.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules in Lithuania for supplies of goods sent on approval for sale or return. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above). Thus, businesses should consider other simplification measures that could possibly apply in these cases (e.g., call-off stock simplification), due to timing of charging VAT, issuing invoices and/or VAT registration obligations.

If goods are returned to the seller and to the same EU Member State, the transaction is deemed as annulled, and it does not result in VAT obligations in Lithuania. If the goods are not sold but are not returned to the seller, the seller may be liable for VAT on the basis of making a fictitious intra-Community acquisition and a supply for private use.

Reverse-charge services. The time of supply for reverse-charge services is the date on which the invoice for the services is issued. If an invoice for the services is not issued, the time of supply for the services is when the earliest of the following events occurs:
- The services are provided
- The consideration is paid for the services provided

Leased assets. VAT shall become chargeable on the supply of leased assets when the goods are transferred in cases where goods are transferred under a lease contract or other contract that provides for payment on deferred terms or by installments and under the terms of this transaction a major part of risk and benefit relating to the ownership of the goods as well as the ownership of the goods shall pass to the person to whom the goods have been transferred.

Imported goods. Import VAT shall become chargeable upon the entry of the goods from a third country territory into the territory of Lithuania. Where the goods imported into the territory of Lithuania are subjected to certain actions, procedures or arrangements specified in VAT law, import VAT shall become chargeable upon cessation of the application of said actions, procedures or arrangements within the territory of Lithuania.

Postponed accounting for imports applies to imports made by taxable persons. The import VAT due is calculated by the customs authority, but the VAT is included and recovered on the VAT return in the same taxable period.

Intra-Community acquisitions. The time of supply for the goods acquired from another EU Member State is the date on which the supplier issues an invoice, but not later than the 15th day of the month following the month during which the transport of goods began.

Intra-Community supplies of goods. VAT shall become chargeable for the goods supplied to another Member State when the VAT invoice for the supply of goods is issued, but not later than the 15th day of the month following the month in which the goods were dispatched.

Distance sales. The time of supply for supplies of distance sales is the date on which the supplier issues an invoice, but not later than the 15th day of the month following the month during which the transport of goods began.

When a taxable person facilitates trade via e-commerce marketplace/platform/portal or similar means for distance sales of goods imported from third territories or third countries with an intrinsic value not exceeding EUR150 and/or creates via mentioned means the conditions for a taxable person, established outside the EU, to supply the goods to nontaxable persons in the EU, the taxable moment of such taxable person's supply, as well as the taxable moment of the supply to that taxable person, is the moment when the consideration is paid, within the meaning of Article 41a of Regulation No. 282/2011.

In case of distance sales of goods imported from third territories or third countries, the time of supply is the moment when the consideration is paid, within the meaning of Article 61b of Regulation No. 282/2011.

Construction work. The time of supply for the self-construction of a building is the moment when the building begins to be used in economic activities. For an essential improvement on a building, the time of supply is the moment when the works are finished. The time of supply for construction services is when the invoice for the services is issued. If the invoice for construction services is not issued, the time of supply for the services is when the earliest of the following events occurs:

- The services are provided
- The consideration is paid for the services provided

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person that is registered for VAT and that performs economic activities may recover input tax, which is VAT charged on goods and services supplied to it for business purposes. A taxable person generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax, which is VAT charged on supplies made.

Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services acquired in Lithuania, VAT paid on imports of goods and VAT self-assessed for reverse-charge services received.

The amount of the VAT reclaimed must be detailed on a valid VAT invoice or on cash receipts (for small amounts of VAT).

The time limit for a taxable person to reclaim input tax in Lithuania is three years. With respect to the statute of limitations in Lithuania, a taxable person has the right to recover input tax during the current and three preceding calendar years calculated retroactively from 1 January of the year in which the recovery of input tax is initiated.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use by a business), are directly attributable to VAT exempt or out-of-scope activities. In addition, input tax may not be recovered for some items of business expenditure.

The following list provides examples of items for which input tax is not deductible.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Purchase, lease and hire of cars which shall not be sold, leased or used for the provision of transportation services; as of 1 January 2023, this rule does not apply to electric vehicles classified as M1 type passenger cars with the value not exceeding EUR50,000 (including VAT)
- Business gifts (if amount for "small gift" is exceeded)
- 50% of VAT for entertainment expenses, provided that the expenses do not exceed 2% of revenues, 100% of VAT for entertainment expenses greater than this limit
- VAT paid on behalf of a third party
- Tourism services if a special VAT scheme applies
- Secondhand and cultural value goods if a special VAT scheme applies

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Accommodation
- Advertising
- Books
- Conferences
- Fees from professional advisors such as accountants, lawyers and tax advisors

- Land and property
- Lease/purchase of vans and trucks
- Mobile phones
- Parking (on and off street)
- Petrol
- Petrol and maintenance costs of trucks and vans
- Subscriptions for periodicals and magazines (related to the business of the company)
- Telephone/faxes used in the office
- Travel expenses (air, rail, bus, boat)

Partial exemption. Input tax directly related to making exempt supplies is not generally recoverable. If a taxable person makes both exempt supplies and taxable supplies, it may not deduct input tax in full. This situation is referred to as "partial deduction."

The amount of input tax that may be deducted is generally calculated using the following two-stage calculation:

- The first stage identifies the input tax that may be directly allocated to taxable and to exempt supplies. Input tax directly allocated to taxable supplies is deductible, while input tax directly related to exempt supplies is not deductible.
- The second stage identifies the amount of the remaining input tax (for example, input tax on general business overhead) that may be allocated to taxable supplies and recovered. The calculation is done using a pro rata method, based on the value of taxable supplies made in the period, compared with the value of total supplies made.

If a taxable person is not able to directly allocate VAT to taxable and exempt supplies, a pro rata calculation may be used for all input tax incurred.

A partially exempt taxable person may provisionally use the recovery percentage calculated for the previous year. If, at the end of the year, the taxable person's actual recovery percentage differs by more than 5% from the provisional percentage used, an adjustment calculation must be made.

Approval from the tax authorities is not required to use the partial exemption standard method in Lithuania.

Special methods are allowed in Lithuania. However, if a special method is used for input tax deduction (e.g., alternative allocation criteria instead of regular income based pro rata is applied for fixed assets), this must be agreed in writing, in advance with the tax authorities.

Capital goods. Capital goods are items of capital expenditure that are used in a business for more than one year. Input tax is deducted in the VAT year in which the goods are acquired or first taken into use. The amount of input tax recovered depends on the taxable person's partial deduction recovery position in the VAT year of acquisition or first use. However, the amount of input tax recovered for capital goods must be adjusted over time if the taxable person's partial exemption recovery percentage changes during the adjustment period or if the capital goods are either used for nontaxable supplies or written off, including the cases when the taxable person is deregistered from VAT and will not be using the capital goods in its future taxable activities. The adjustment may result in either an increase or a decrease of deductible input tax, depending on whether the taxable person's recovery percentage increased or decreased in the year, compared with the year in which the capital goods were acquired or first used.

In Lithuania, the capital goods adjustment applies to the following assets for the number of years indicated:

- Property immovable by its nature, including improvement of buildings or structures: adjusted for a period of 10 years
- Other types of tangible capital assets legally required to be depreciated over a period of at least four years for purposes of the taxes on profit or income: adjusted for a period of five years

In Lithuania, the capital goods adjustment does not apply to any services, unless the respective services were capitalized into the asset value.

The adjustment is applied each year following the year of acquisition, to a fraction of the total input tax (1/10 for immovable property and 1/5 for other tangible capital goods).

Refunds. If the amount of input tax that is deductible for a VAT period exceeds the amount of output tax that is chargeable in the same period, the taxable person has a VAT credit. The credit must first be used to offset other taxes payable. If the amount of VAT credit exceeds all taxes payable, the excess is refunded either on a monthly or semiannual basis (when a taxable person does not meet the minimum requirements for a reliable taxable person). This means that if a taxable person meets the minimum requirements for a reliable taxable person, then the VAT overpayment can be refunded monthly, and if it does not, it can only be refunded on a semiannual basis. The minimum requirements for a reliable taxable person are specified in Article 40-1 of the Lithuanian Law on Tax Administration and it came into force as of 1 January 2019. For details on the reliable taxable person status, see the Penalties for late registration and Penalties for errors subsections below.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax may be subject to VAT recovery in those cases where VAT was paid on goods or services acquired before an entity was registered as taxable person. Special rules and procedures apply, for example:

- Goods or services acquired before registering for VAT should have a direct link with the taxable activities after the registration and should be used in taxable activities.
- Where goods or services were acquired before registering for VAT, the input tax incurred on the purchase may be deducted only if the taxable person can prove the actual use of those goods or services in the taxable activities. Formally, it is also accepted to show the intention of the goods or services. However, it is often reviewed on a case-by-case basis and subject to sufficient supporting evidence.

Bad debts. Suppliers may be able to reduce the calculated payable VAT with the output tax amount attributable to bad debts (not applicable to margin schemes and when the supplier of goods or provider of services is a related person). As indicated in VAT law, a receivable remuneration is considered as a bad debt (including output tax), if the person cannot recover such remuneration for at least 12 calendar months from the taxation moment of the supplied goods or provided services and if the output tax amount was calculated and declared.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred on purchases that are used for noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Lithuania.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Input tax incurred by non-established businesses that are not registered for VAT in Lithuania is recoverable. The Lithuanian tax authorities refunds VAT incurred by businesses that are neither established nor registered for VAT in Lithuania. Non-established businesses may claim Lithuanian VAT to the same extent as VAT-registered businesses.

EU businesses. For businesses established in the EU, a refund is made under the terms of the EU Directive 2008/9/EC. The VAT refund procedure under the EU Directive 2008/9 may be used only if the business did not perform any taxable supplies in Lithuania during the refund period (excluding supplies covered by the reverse charge). For full details, see the chapter on the EU.

Find below specific rules for Lithuania:

- A taxable person that is not established in Lithuania (that is, they are registered for VAT in another EU Member State) must submit the VAT refund application to the electronic VAT refund system through their home country tax authority.

- VAT refund application can be submitted via a representative. In such cases, power of attorney should be submitted together with the application as well. If the power of attorney is not in the Lithuanian or English language, the translation should be provided. The power of attorney has either to bear an apostille or be legalized if it is issued outside the EU.
- The VAT refund application must contain information about goods and services bought in Lithuania and described by purchase goods and services codes. General codes are indicated in EU Directive 2008/9/EC. However, Lithuania has chosen to require some, but not all detailed codes in the Regulation (EU) No.79/2012.

Non-EU businesses. For businesses established outside the EU, refunds are made under the terms of the EU 13th Directive.

Lithuania applies the principle of reciprocity, meaning the country where the claimant is established must also provide VAT refunds to Lithuanian businesses. Lithuanian VAT is only refunded on the condition of reciprocity to taxable persons of Armenia, Iceland, Norway, Canada, Switzerland, United Kingdom (UK) and Türkiye. The list of non-EU countries where established taxable persons can claim refunds of VAT paid in Lithuania is not final and may be adjusted, taking into account the practice of other countries in refunding VAT to the Lithuanian taxable persons.

Effective since 1 January 2018, foreign taxable persons established in countries that are members of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD), but that do not have a VAT (or an identical tax) are entitled to apply for a VAT refund and claim the VAT paid in the Republic of Lithuania. Currently, this provision applies only to the taxable persons established in the United States. To claim a refund, a non-established business must satisfy both of the following conditions:

- It must not have a business establishment in Lithuania through which activities are performed (or if the claimant is an individual, he or she must not be a permanent resident in Lithuania).
- It must not make taxable supplies of goods or services in Lithuania.

However, if the claimant supplies international transport services or sells goods that are taxed through the application of the reverse-charge mechanism, also if the claimant performs the economic activities subject to special taxation schemes, i.e., non-EU scheme, EU scheme and IOSS scheme, it may still apply for a VAT refund.

Find below specific rules for Lithuania:

- The deadline for submitting applications is 30 June following the claim year.
- The claim period cannot be any longer than one calendar year and no less than three calendar months of the same calendar year. The claim period can only be less than three calendar months, provided that these months are the last months of a calendar year.
- Documents can be submitted directly to Vilnius County State Tax Inspectorate, sent by post or using the online services via Mano VMI. However, to use online services, a person has to be an authorized user or to have a Lithuanian tax representative. If documents are sent by post, the application may be sent to the following address:

  Vilniaus Apskrities Valstybinė Mokesčių Inspekcija
  Ulonų g. 2,
  LT-01509 Vilnius
  Lithuania

- The minimum claim amount for a period of three months is EUR400. However, in cases when a refund application is submitted for VAT that was paid during a whole calendar year or during the part left before the end of a calendar year, which is shorter than three calendar months, the minimum refundable amount is EUR50.

Late payment interest. If the tax authorities refund the VAT for a taxable person established in the EU after the last date for refund, i.e., later than 10 working days after four months from the date of submission of the VAT refund application or later than 10 working days after two (or four) months from the date when the requested additional information was provided to the tax authorities, the claim amount refunded to the applicant shall be increased by the default late payment interest. In 2021 the default late payment interest was 0.03% per day of the claim amount; however, from 1 May 2023 until 1 November 2023, the rate was 0.029%. As of November 2023, it is 0.03% per each accrued day and is determined based on the government securities interest rate. If the tax authorities refund the VAT for a taxable person established outside the EU after the last date for refund, the claim amount refunded to the applicant is not increased by the default late payment interest (i.e., late payment interest is not paid to non-EU non-established businesses).

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A Lithuanian taxable person must generally provide a VAT invoice for all taxable supplies made and for exports. A VAT invoice is necessary to support a claim for input tax deduction.

Credit notes. A VAT credit note may be used to reduce VAT charged and reclaimed on a supply if the taxable value changes (for example, if the customer returns the goods or the supplier grants a discount) or if the VAT rate changes.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is mandatory in Lithuania, for certain taxable persons.

Scope of electronic invoicing. For business-to-government (B2G) supplies, electronic invoicing is mandatory in Lithuania. This is in line with EU Directive 2014/55/EU (see the chapter on the EU). This is with effect from July 2017.

For B2B and B2C supplies, electronic invoicing is allowed but not mandatory in Lithuania. This is in line with EU Directive 2010/45/EU (see the chapter on the EU).

Electronic invoicing is mandatory for the public sector (i.e., B2G transactions) via the electronic invoices (i.e., e-invoices) (E.sąskaita) portal, but there are exceptions for verbal contracts and low-value contracts (until 31 December 2023, e-invoices based on verbal contracts must not be submitted, e-invoices should be submitted only based on written contracts, from 1 January 2024, e-invoices based on verbal contracts will have to be submitted when the value of the contract is bigger than EUR1,000 (excluding VAT). In July 2024, it is planned that the e-invoicing portal (E.sąskaita) will be modernized and renamed as "SABIS" (saskaitu administravimo bendroji informacine sistema). The national e-invoicing portal is connected to the EU PEPPOL platform and the goal of its modernization is to increase the platform's efficiency, to make it more user friendly, to increase its security, stability, etc. E-invoices that are received in electronic means are acceptable for the deduction of input tax, even without an electronic signature. The authenticity of the original e-invoice, the integrity of content and legibility must be ensured from the time of issue until the end of the 10-year archiving period. Businesses can decide individually how to ensure the authenticity of the original invoice, the integrity of content, and legibility, provided that a reliable audit trail between the invoice and the service is established.

For the EU VAT in the Digital Age (ViDA) proposals, refer to the chapter on the European Union.

Simplified VAT invoices. With certain exceptions, simplified invoices are permitted where the total value of goods or services supplied does not exceed EUR100 (including VAT). Simplified VAT invoices cannot be issued in the following cases:

- Distance selling
- Intra-EU supply of goods taxed with 0% VAT rate (under Article 49 of the Lithuanian Law on VAT)
- Supply of a new vehicle to another EU Member State

- Supply of services by a taxable person who is not established in an EU Member State in which the services are deemed to be supplied and the customer of the services is liable to account the VAT reverse charge for the services supplied

Simplified VAT invoices may also be issued in the below cases regardless of the value of the invoice:
- Supply of goods or services for private use
- Self-manufacture of assets
- Special cases indicated in Article 9 of the Lithuanian Law on VAT (e.g., transfer of property where it is transferred as a contribution in kind, improvement of the building)

Self-billing. Self-billing is allowed in Lithuania. The customer may issue a VAT invoice on behalf of the supplier provided that both parties agreed on this in advance (a formal written agreement is not required, but is recommended, i.e., the agreement may be made verbally). A reference to self-billing must also be indicated on the invoice (Sąskaita faktūra išrašymas).

Proof of exports and intra-Community supplies. Supplies of exported goods or the intra-Community supply of goods are zero-rated. However, to qualify as VAT zero-rated, exports and intra-Community supplies must be supported by certain evidence and proof. Acceptable proof inter alia includes the following documentation:
- In case of export supplies, a taxable person should obtain documents substantiating that the goods were exported outside the EU, i.e., transportation documents (e.g., CMR, air waybill, bill of lading), exportation documents (e.g., export notification Form IE559), payment documents. The documents should indicate that the transportation was arranged by the supplier or the purchaser or the other person on their behalf.
- In case of intra-EU supplies, in order to apply 0% VAT rate on intra-EU supplies, a supplier must possess either documents, specified in Article 45a of the updated Council Implementation Regulation (EU) 282/2011 or other documents, such as transportation documents (e.g., CMR, air waybill, bill of lading) substantiating that the goods were transported outside the territory of Lithuania, sales-purchases agreements, purchase orders, VAT invoices, etc. The documents should indicate that the transportation was arranged by the supplier or the purchaser or the other person on their behalf. The taxable person should also hold the proof that the customer had a valid VAT number in another EU Member State at the time of supply of goods. It should be noted that the transportation documents mentioned above must be filled in as per the rules established.

No special documentation applies in Lithuania for evidencing the application of the Quick Fixes. Normal intra-Community documentation rules apply.

Besides, as a part of the European Commission's action plan on VAT, effective from 1 January 2020 to apply VAT at the zero-rate for intra-EU supplies, two additional mandatory obligations arise. These are as follows:
- Indicating on the invoice a valid customer's VAT identification number, obtained from the customer and issued to them by an EU Member State other than the one from which the goods were dispatched
- Reporting the respective supplies in the EC Sales List (Form FR0564 in Lithuania)

Foreign currency invoices. If an invoice is issued in a foreign currency, the VAT amount must be converted to the domestic currency, which is the euro (EUR), and be denoted in EUR on the invoice.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. Taxable persons must issue VAT invoices for supplies made to nontaxable persons, except for exceptions outlined in the local legislation. The exceptions do not apply to the supply of a new vehicle to another EU Member State. The exceptions are:
- The supply of goods (services) when a cash register receipt is issued or the use of a cash register is not required (e.g., public transport tickets, lottery tickets, produce sold at international fairs and exhibitions lasting for up to 10 days, payments received by libraries and schools, sale of goods in outdoor markets)

- Insurance services where an insurance policy is issued
- Financial services, provided that an accounting document is issued in compliance with specific regulation
- Long-term services that are supplied during a continuous period (e.g., telecommunication services, utilities, cold and hot water supplies, electricity, heating energy and gas supplies), provided that an accounting document is issued in compliance with specific regulation
- The supply of goods (services) through vending machines that comply with specific legal and technical requirements
- Services and goods supplied that are related to the renovation of apartments as specified in legislation
- The supply of goods (services) under the special taxation scheme, i.e., EU scheme
- The supply of goods (services) under the special taxation schemes, i.e., non-EU scheme or IOSS scheme, provided that the invoice was issued in accordance with the invoicing rules of the country of the supplier of the goods (services)

If a cash register receipt is issued, the purchaser has the right to request a VAT invoice.

Distance selling. For intra-Community distance sales made B2C, a full VAT invoice must be issued. However, if the supplier operates the OSS regime, then no full VAT invoice is required unless requested.

Records. Taxable persons must keep their accounts in such a way that the accounting information enables a correct determination of the taxable person's obligations with respect to VAT. In Lithuania, examples of what records must be held for VAT purposes include registers of VAT invoices received and issued by them. Specific requirements apply for certain transactions (e.g., call-off stock transactions), also for taxable persons engaged in both taxable and exempt activities (partial deduction). This may include documents such as transportation document to support zero-rated supplies, etc.

In Lithuania, VAT books and records can be held outside of the country. This is because it is not contradicting the existing regulations but, in this case, certain rules that are specified below are applied. Records may be held in or outside of Lithuania. Records can only be held outside of Lithuania for non-established businesses (e.g., taxable persons that are only VAT registered in Lithuania but have no physical presence). However, records held outside of Lithuania must be made available in a timely manner upon request by the tax authorities. For established taxable persons, the paper records should be explicitly kept in Lithuania. But in case they are electronic, the taxable person may opt to keep them outside of Lithuania, as long as the tax authorities have proper and timely access to the documents and the taxable person informs the tax authorities in writing that the documents are stored outside of Lithuania.

Record retention period. Taxable persons must ensure that VAT invoices issued by them (or by customers or third parties on their behalf), as well as VAT invoices received by taxable persons established in Lithuania shall be retained for 10 years from the date of the issue.

When a taxable person facilitates trade via e-commerce marketplace/platform/portal or similar means, as it is regulated in the Article 54b of the Regulation No. 282/2011, for the supply of goods or services to a nontaxable person established in the EU, such person must also keep its accounting records related to such transactions for 10 years from the date of the end of that transaction. Also, it should be ensured that such accounting records are available via electronic means during the mentioned period so that the tax authorities of the EU Member State in which the goods or services were deemed to be supplied could read and review it upon request.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is allowed in Lithuania. As of 1 January 2021, taxable persons may retain the invoices in electronic format irrespective of the format in which the invoices were received, i.e., there is no obligation to retain them in the same format (hard copy or electronic) in which they were sent or submitted, which was applicable until 31 December 2020. Taxable persons must ensure that the authenticity of the origin and the integrity of the content of the VAT invoices are maintained throughout the retention period and that the documents remain legible. Taxable persons established in Lithuania must archive documents in the territory of Lithuania unless the documents are stored electronically. Taxable persons that keep invoices by using electronic means, must ensure full access to the documents for the tax authorities for supervisory purposes.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. Lithuanian taxable persons must generally file VAT returns monthly. However, when a Lithuanian taxable person supplies goods and/or services under the EU scheme or non-EU scheme and fulfills its VAT liabilities via OSS, then such taxable person must generally file the VAT return on a quarterly basis.

A legal taxable person whose taxable supplies did not exceed EUR300,000 in the preceding calendar year may choose to file quarterly.

Individuals generally file semiannually. However, they may request a different VAT period.

Members of international corporate groups may request to file VAT returns for a different period if the group uses accounting periods other than calendar months. However, the maximum allowable return period is 60 days. In addition, both the beginning of the first period and the end of the last period must coincide with the calendar year (that is, beginning on 1 January and ending on 31 December each year).

Only the monthly VAT return period shall apply to taxable persons acquiring goods from other EU Member States and services where the buyer is liable to calculate and pay VAT reverse charge under Article 95(2) of the Lithuanian Law on VAT (i.e., any other VAT return period shall not be applied).

In general, monthly VAT returns must be filed by the 25th day of the month following the end of the tax period (other dates may apply).

Periodic payments. Payment of VAT due is required in full by the same date as the VAT return deadline, i.e., by the 25th day of the month following the end of the tax period. VAT return liabilities must be paid in EUR electronically, i.e., by a bank transfer to the bank accounts of the tax authorities. In addition, in the bank transfer the taxable person must indicate its VAT number and the payment code 1001.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is mandatory in Lithuania for all taxable persons. For electronic filing, registration in the Electronic Declaration System is required.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Lithuania.

Special schemes. Farmers. Farmers can receive 6% compensation from the buyers of their produced agricultural products. The receipt and payment of compensation should be declared to the tax authorities accordingly.

Travel agencies. Travel agencies calculate VAT on the margin of the services bought and sold to customers. Travel agencies have no right to deduct input tax on travel services bought from the third parties. Travel services supplied by travel agencies outside Lithuania are taxed at the zero-rate.

Investment gold. The supply of investment gold acquired from another Member State is exempt; agency services for supplies and acquisitions of investment gold are also exempt. However, VAT-registered persons manufacturing investment gold or reworking any gold into investment gold can choose to charge VAT on the supplies they perform. In those cases, agents can also charge VAT for their services outlined above. Persons supplying investment gold that are not registered for VAT can register for VAT and make use of the provision outlined above.

Also, input tax incurred on acquisitions of investment gold for which the VAT has been chosen to charge in the case outlined above, acquisition or import of any gold to be turned into investment gold, acquisition of gold form, weight and purity changing services can be deducted. Persons manufacturing investment gold or reworking any gold into investment gold can also deduct any input tax incurred on acquisitions of any services or goods related to the processes named above.

Secondhand goods such as art, antiques and other collectibles. VAT is calculated on the margin of the goods bought and sold, and if this scheme is adopted, the seller has no right to deduct input tax. However, a seller (taxable person) has the right to calculate VAT on the total value of goods, in which case the seller has the right to deduct input tax paid, but not earlier than the date the goods are sold.

Cash accounting. Lithuania has not implemented Article 167a from Directive 2006/112/EC. However, there is a similar optional regime applicable to agricultural producers. Under this regime, VAT on the supplied agricultural products becomes chargeable upon the payment of the consideration.

Call-off stock simplification. As of 1 January 2020, Lithuania has implemented simplification measures regarding the supply of goods under a call-off stock regime. The call-off stock arrangements shall be deemed to exist where all the five following conditions are met:

- Goods are dispatched or transported by a taxable person, or by a third party on its behalf, to another EU Member State with a view to those goods being supplied there, at a later stage and after arrival, to another taxable person who is entitled to take ownership of those goods in accordance with an existing agreement between both taxable persons. The agreement must be in a written form.
- The taxable person dispatching or transporting the goods has not established its business nor has a fixed establishment in the EU Member State to which the goods are dispatched or transported.
- The taxable person to whom the goods are intended to be supplied is identified for the VAT purposes in the EU Member State to which the goods are dispatched or transported and both its identity and the VAT identification number assigned to it by that EU Member State are known to the taxable person dispatching or transporting the goods at the time when the dispatch or transport begins.
- The taxable person dispatching or transporting the goods records the transfer of the goods in the goods register or in other appropriate register established by another EU Member State and includes the identity of the taxable person acquiring the goods and the VAT identification number assigned to it by the EU Member State to which the goods are dispatched or transported in the report of the supply of goods and/or services to other EU Member States or other appropriate report established by another EU Member State.
- The taxable person dispatching or transporting the goods shall transfer the right to dispose of the goods as owner to the taxable person who acquires the goods no later than 12 months after their arrival in another EU Member State.

For further detail, see the subsection Quick Fixes above.

Annual returns. Generally, a taxable person is obliged to provide an annual VAT return only in cases where its partial exemption recovery percentage has changed or when adjustments in the context of the capital goods scheme are necessary. Otherwise, annual returns are not required in Lithuania.

Supplementary filings. A taxable person that trades with other EU countries must complete statistical reports, known as Intrastat, and EU Sales Lists (ESLs). Taxable persons must begin to report services provided to taxable persons established in other EU countries if these services are subject to VAT in those EU countries.

Intrastat. For the year 2024 the thresholds are as follows:
- If the amount of intra-EU acquisitions within the previous 12 months exceeds EUR550,000, the Intrastat form shall be filed to the Territorial Customs Office.
- If the amount of intra-EU supplies within the previous 12 months exceeds EUR400,000, the Intrastat form shall be filed to the Territorial Customs Office.

Also, additional statistical information needs to be provided in the Intrastat return (box 13) if the value of intra-EU supplies exceeds EUR10 million or the value of intra-EU acquisitions exceeds EUR7 million.

The deadline for submission of the Intrastat return is the 10th working day after the end of the calendar month to which it relates.

Intrastat returns may be submitted both electronically and manually. Intrastat returns must be filed in EUR.

Effective from 1 January 2022, the description of commodity code is no longer mandatory in Intrastat reports. Also, country of origin, as well as the customer's VAT number in the country of destination must be additionally indicated in the Intrastat report for dispatches. If the customer is not registered for VAT purposes in the country of destination or the VAT number is unknown, the "QV999999999999" code must be indicated instead.

EU Sales List. No threshold is applied. However, in cases where there are no transactions in a given period that would need to be reported, it is not required to submit a nil EU Sales List. EU Sales Lists can be submitted either manually or by electronic means.

Electronic VAT ledgers (i.SAF). Taxable persons registered for VAT must also submit monthly data on sales and purchases invoices to the Lithuanian tax authorities by electronic means (i.SAF data file) until the 20th of the month following the reporting period (see the Digital tax administration subsection below for more details).

Correcting errors in previous returns. Corrections of errors in previously filed VAT returns can be done by the taxable person by submitting an amended VAT return. The amended VAT return uses the same return form as the initial VAT return but must be marked as "amended." The submission procedures are the same as for the initial VAT return.

In general, the taxable person must submit an amended VAT return of the taxable period when the error was made in the following instances:
- The error has resulted in a tax underpayment in the previous taxable period
- The error relates to the intra-EU supply or acquisition of goods
- The error relates to the import of goods

Other errors (for example, overpayment of VAT for a local supply) may be corrected in the VAT return of the taxable period when such errors became known to the taxable person.

All corrections or adjustments of VAT returns should be done by submitting the adjusted VAT return electronically.

Filing amended returns voluntarily does not result in penalties for the taxes unpaid. However, the taxable person shall be subject to late payment interest and might still be imposed with a fine based on the Lithuanian Code of Administrative Offenses.

Digital tax administration. Standard Audit File for Tax (SAF-T). SAF-T contains the data about the taxable person's economic activity extracted from its accounting system. SAF-T is one of eight integrated elements of intelligent tax administration systems called i.MAS, implemented to automate the tax data collection and analysis processes while helping to support the tax authorities during their tax audits and other tax administration functions.

SAF-T file must be filed on request of the respective authorities (including tax authorities). SAF-T is compulsory only for the Lithuanian companies outlined below:
- From 1 January 2018 when a company's net sales revenue exceeds EUR700,000 in 2016
- From 1 January 2019 when a company's net sales revenue exceeds EUR300,000 in 2017
- From 1 January 2020 and later periods when a company's net sales revenue exceeds EUR300,000 in the year before the preceding year

SAF-T is not compulsory for foreign taxable persons registered for VAT in Lithuania, also for branches and representative offices of foreign taxable persons, permanent establishments, public sector entities and other nonprofit legal entities.

Establishing the accounting registers, the entities obliged or wishing to submit SAF-T shall follow the technical specification of SAF-T and the technical requirements. SAF-T is formed in XML (extensible markup language) format.

SAF-T consists of four parts:
- Header (basic information about the entity)
- Master data file (general ledger accounts, information about customers, suppliers, assets, owners, physical stock, products, etc.)
- GL entries
- Data of the initial documents (information about sales invoices, purchase invoices, payments, movement of goods and asset transactions)

Taxable persons may be imposed with penalties for failing to submit the SAF-T file upon the request of the authorities.

Electronic VAT ledgers (i.SAF). Taxable persons registered for VAT must submit monthly data on sales and purchases invoices to the Lithuanian tax authorities by electronic means (i.SAF). The i.SAF data include detailed information (e.g., general information about the legal person, taxable period, taxable amount, tax point, invoice number, information about suppliers, customers) about all performed and received supplies.

The i.SAF data may be submitted electronically as an XML data file in the tax authorities' integrated tax administration system or i.SAF data may be filed on the website. The i.SAF data shall be submitted by the 20th day of the month following the reporting period.

Note that the i.SAF and SAF-T are different reporting requirements. The i.SAF is for invoice registers, whereas SAF-T contains a significant amount of data registered in the ERP of the taxable person (including the invoice data). i.SAF is filed on a monthly basis, whereas SAF-T is on an on-demand basis (requested from the tax authorities and other government bodies, such as the one responsible for financial crime investigation), depending on the annual sales revenue. SAF-T contains much more information.

Transport data reporting (i.VAZ). The i.VAZ contains online data on transport documents. The i.VAZ system shall only be applied for goods that are loaded and carried by road transport within the territory of Lithuania. The transport document data has to be reported to the i.VAZ subsystem before the dispatch occurs.

Remote accounting services (i.APS). The i.APS system is a subsystem of remote accounting services developed for small businesses. Applicable from 2019, i.APS allows self-employed persons and small businesses to manage income-expenditure accounting by electronic means, using data, accumulated in other i.MAS subsystems.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. In practice, penalties and interest are not assessed for late registration or failure to register for VAT. However, based on the Lithuanian Code of Administrative Offenses, failure to register for VAT may cause a warning or a penalty ranging from EUR390 to EUR1,100.

If a business does not register for VAT, it still must calculate and pay VAT. Failure to comply with this obligation may result in penalties and interest, as well as status of an "unreliable taxable person." If the taxable person is deemed unreliable, the following consequences may occur:
- Information about unreliable taxable person will be available for third parties.
- Longer limitation periods will be applied during the operational inspection.
- Unreliable taxable persons will lose the right to participate in public procurements.
- Unreliable taxable persons will not be able to obtain the status of a beneficiary or will lose the respective status.

Penalties for late payment and filings. Effective from 1 May 2023, the penalty assessed for the late payment of VAT ranges from 20% to 100% of the unpaid tax. The calculated fine is doubled for a taxable person who has already been assessed any penalty for the violation of the same tax law during a period of statute of limitation. Voluntary disclosure of the tax underpayment shall not result in penalty assessment, i.e., penalty may be imposed by the tax authorities in case late payments are discovered during a tax audit.

In addition, late payment interest is calculated from the day following the due date for payment up to the date on which the payment is made. The late payment interest rate is 0.03%. From 1 May 2023 to 1 November 2023 it was 0.029%, however, from 1 November 2023, the rate is again 0.03% per each accrued day and is determined based on the government securities interest rate. Based on the Lithuanian Code of Administrative Offenses, not fulfilling with respective tax reporting obligations may lead to the following consequences:

- Failure to fill taxable person's declaration procedures, late submission of declaration or failure to provide declarations to the Lithuanian tax authorities would cause a warning notice from the Lithuanian tax authorities or penalties ranging from EUR200 to EUR390.

Penalties for errors. Error results in tax underpayment. Penalties and late payment interest for errors resulting in tax underpayment are the same as penalties for late payment and filings (refer to the section above). Moreover, based on the Lithuanian Code of Administrative Offenses, reporting of incorrect data may cause a warning notice from the Lithuanian tax authorities or penalties ranging from EUR200 to EUR390.

Filing amended returns voluntarily does not result in penalties for the taxes unpaid, however, the taxable person shall be subject to late payment interest and might still be imposed with a fine based on the Lithuanian Code of Administrative Offenses.

Error does not result in tax underpayment. If the error does not result in tax underpayment, the taxable person may be imposed with an administrative fine. Based on the Lithuanian Code of Administrative Offenses, reporting of incorrect data may cause a warning notice from the Lithuanian tax authorities or penalties ranging from EUR200 to EUR390.

Unreliable taxable persons' status. Effective as of 1 January 2019, due to changes adopted on the Lithuanian Law on Tax Administration, minimum requirements for a reliable taxable person were introduced.

A taxable person will be given the status as unreliable, if the tax authorities impose a tax fine and calculate more than EUR15,000 of taxes for certain violation of tax laws, indicated in the Lithuanian Law on Tax Administration. See the subsection Late registration penalties above for more detail on unreliable taxable persons.

A taxable person will also be recognized as unreliable if it is imposed with a fine for certain violations indicated in the Lithuanian Code of Administrative Offenses and the fine is no less than EUR1,500 or a taxable person is imposed with a fine repeatedly for the indicated violation. A taxable person may also lose the status of a reliable taxable person due to other certain violations (e.g., illegal work, fraud, financial crimes). Failure to comply with SAF-T obligation may also result in a status of an unreliable taxable person.

The late notification or failure to notify the tax authorities of changes to a taxable person's VAT registration details may bring administrative liability to the taxable person in the form of warnings, penalties and other administrative actions. For further details, see the subsection Changes to VAT registration details above.

Penalties for fraud. Based on the Lithuanian Code of Administrative Offenses, fraudulent activity may result in penalties of up to EUR6,000, depending on the amount of taxes underpaid. Moreover, based on the Criminal Code of the Republic of Lithuania, in certain cases a person might be punished by community service or by a fine or even by imprisonment of up to eight years (a legal entity shall also be held liable for the act and criminal liability shall be imposed on the persons liable for the fraud). In addition, taxable persons shall be recognized as unreliable.

Personal liability for company officers. According to Article 187 of the Code of Administrative Offenses of the Republic of Lithuania, the omission to submit a tax return or provision of incorrect information in the tax returns (including VAT returns) to the tax authorities where there are no potentially fraudulent activities and tax evasion involved may result in a warning or a fine from EUR200 to EUR390, which may be imposed on the representatives of the taxable person responsible for the respective offense (e.g., a managing director). Note that where there are elements of fraud and/or tax evasion, the company officers responsible for the offense may be held personally liable and subject to penalties of up to EUR6,000 and in some extreme cases even criminal liability and penalties.

Statute of limitations. The statute of limitations in Lithuania is three years. A taxable person or the tax authorities may calculate or recalculate tax for a period not exceeding the current year and the three preceding calendar years calculated retroactively from 1 January of the year in which calculation or recalculation of tax is initiated.

Where the tax authorities conduct a reinspection of the taxable person, the statute of limitation of the current year and three preceding calendar years shall not apply, but the tax authorities may not calculate, during such inspection, the tax for a period exceeding the period in respect of which the tax was calculated in the course of the initial inspection.

If a taxable person submits a tax return or revises a tax return less than 90 days before the expiry of the standard time limit for tax calculation/recalculation mentioned above, the tax authorities may verify the correctness of the calculation of tax declared in this tax return and recalculate it without considering the standard time limit if the tax authorities start verification not later than within 90 days of the date when this tax return was submitted.

A limitation period for the current and five preceding calendar years shall apply to the calculation and/or recalculation of VAT in the following cases:

- When the tax authorities calculate or recalculate VAT of a taxable person who does not meet the minimum criteria of a reliable taxable person
- When the tax authorities calculate or recalculate VAT according to information obtained on the basis of automatic exchange of information

- When the aim is to prove bad debts and efforts to recover those debts pursuant to Article 891 of the Lithuanian VAT law, calculating or recalculating VAT for a period longer than the standard time limit is possible only as far as it is related to the circumstance referred to in this point
- When the tax is calculated or recalculated after the court has found that taxable person's bankruptcy is intentional
- When deduction of noncurrent assets other than immovable property is done. In this case, calculating or recalculating tax for a period that is longer than the standard time limit is possible only as far as it is related to the circumstance referred to in this point.

A limitation period for the current and the 10 preceding calendar years shall apply to the calculation and/or recalculation of VAT in the following cases:

- When it is necessary to determine in the criminal case the damage that was caused to the state, and when limitation periods for handing down a conviction, that are set out in the Lithuanian Criminal Code, have not expired
- When deduction of immovable property recognized as noncurrent assets is done. In this case, calculating or recalculating VAT for a period that is longer than the standard time limit is possible only as far as it is related to the circumstance referred to in this point

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- The supply of goods or services made in Luxembourg by a taxable person
- The intra-Community acquisition of goods from another European Union (EU) Member State by a taxable person or nontaxable legal person (see the chapter on the EU)
- The importation of goods from outside the EU, regardless of the status of the importer

Quick Fixes. Pending introduction of a "definitive" system for the VAT treatment of intra-Community supplies of goods to taxable persons, the EU has adopted Quick Fixes for intra-Community trade in goods. For an overview of the Quick Fixes rules, see the chapter on the EU. For documentary requirements see Section H. Invoicing, subsection Proof of exports and intra-Community supplies.

In Luxembourg, the Quick Fixes are applicable as of 1 January 2020, and an overview of the changes are below:
- Call-off stock – Luxembourg implemented the respective EU law without any local changes.
- Chain transactions – Luxembourg followed the approach of the respective Quick Fix already in the past; no practical change has been made in this respect.
- Proof of cross-border transactions – No specific legal provision has been implemented, as the Implementing Regulation is also directly applicable in Luxembourg.
- Valid customer VAT ID – VAT exemption related to intra-Community supply of goods cannot be applied if the respective EU Sales listings are missing or not completed properly (whether the mistake is connected to the EU VAT ID of the customer or to other numerical or timing difference).

Effective use and enjoyment. To avoid instances of non-taxation or double taxation, EU Member States can apply use and enjoyment rules that allow a service that is "used and enjoyed" in the EU to be taxed or prevent a service that is "used and enjoyed" outside the EU from being taxed. If a service is taxed in the EU under the use and enjoyment provisions, a non-EU supplier of the service may be required to register for VAT in every Member State where it has customers that are not taxable persons. For information regarding the rules relating to VAT registration, see the chapters on the respective countries of the EU.

In Luxembourg, the following services are subject to the "use and enjoyment" provisions:
- Broadcasting services and telecommunication services, if the place of taxation would be Luxembourg but the use and enjoyment is outside the EU.
- Transport of goods, if the place of taxation would be Luxembourg but the use and enjoyment is outside the EU. This would not apply in the opposite direction, if transport on behalf of a non-EU customer but transport taking solely place in Luxembourg. Such a supply is deemed to take place where the recipient is established, even if the transport is solely taking place in Luxembourg.

Transfer of a going concern. The transfer of a totality of assets or part thereof does not qualify as a transaction falling within the scope of VAT. To qualify as such, the assets should be located in Luxembourg, should allow the transferee to continue the business independently, and both the transferor and the transferee should be registered for Luxembourg VAT.

Transactions between related parties. By derogation to the normal rules, the VAT taxable basis of transactions between related parties supplying goods or services is the open market value, if the remuneration is lower than the normal value and the recipient has no full right to recover input tax, if the remuneration is lower than the open market value, the supplier has no full right to recover input tax and the supply is exempt from VAT or if the remuneration is higher than the open market value and the supplier has no full right to recover input tax.

C. Who is liable

A taxable person is any business entity or individual that carries out economic activities independently and regularly. Economic activities include activities such as supplies of goods or services, intra-Community acquisitions (see the chapter on the EU) in the course of a business.

For the purpose of applying the rules concerning the place of supply of services, a nontaxable legal person registered for VAT is regarded as a taxable person if it receives services from a taxable person. This rule does not affect the liability for and payment of the tax in the case of local supplies by a Luxembourg taxable person to a Luxembourg nontaxable legal person. However, for cross-border supplies of services, this rule leads to a shifting of the tax liability to a nontaxable legal person registered for VAT, which must self-assess and pay the VAT due in its country of establishment under the reverse-charge mechanism.

No VAT registration threshold applies in Luxembourg. A taxable person that begins activity in Luxembourg must notify the Luxembourg VAT authorities of its liability to register.

Special rules apply to foreign or non-established businesses.

For the supply of distance sales of goods, there is no threshold. The supplier is liable for the VAT due in the country of arrival. The supplier can use the One-Stop Shop (OSS) to report the VAT due via one central registration. However, as a derogation to this rule, when the supplier is established in one single Member State different from the country of arrival and the value of the goods does not exceed the threshold of EUR10,000 of distance sales, the supplier can choose for taxation in its Member State of establishment.

Exemption from registration. The VAT law in Luxembourg does not contain any provision for exemption from registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. Taxable persons established in Luxembourg, whose annual turnover does not exceed EUR35,000 are in principle not subject to the normal VAT rules and only have to notify the authorities their beginning of activity and inform the authorities of their turnover realized on an annual basis. However, they can opt to be subject to the normal VAT rules.

The VAT law in Luxembourg does not contain any other provisions for voluntary VAT registration.

Group registration. VAT grouping is permitted under Luxembourg VAT law if Luxembourg entities are closely bound to one another by financial, economic and organizational links. An entity can only be member of one VAT group. The constitution of a VAT group is optional but if a VAT group is constituted, all companies that fulfill the legal conditions to be a member, should opt to be a member of the VAT group.

The minimum time period required for the duration of a VAT group is two calendar years.

The group members are jointly and severally liable for VAT debts, interest and penalties.

Holding companies. In Luxembourg, a pure holding company can be a member of a VAT group, if it is bound by the other entities by financial, economic and organizational links. In principle, the fact that a member of a VAT group is a pure holding should not have an impact on the right to deduct input tax by the group. However, VAT on costs directly related to the holding activity should still not be recoverable.

Cost-sharing exemption. The VAT cost-sharing exemption (in accordance with VAT Directive 2006/112/EEC Article 132(1)(f) has been implemented in Luxembourg. This provides an option to exempt support services that the cost-sharing group supplies to its members, providing certain conditions are met (in accordance with specific requirements laid out in Luxembourg VAT law).

Fixed establishment. There is no legal definition of fixed establishment and there are no administrative guidelines on how to interpret the term "fixed establishment" in Luxembourg. The tax authorities must apply the rules fixed by the Council Implementing Regulation 282/2011. A fixed establishment is defined as any establishment, other than the place of establishment of a business, characterized by a sufficient degree of permanence and a suitable structure in terms of human and technical resources to enable it either to receive and use the services supplied to it for its own needs or to provide the services which it supplies.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that has no fixed establishment in Luxembourg. A non-established business that makes taxable transactions in Luxembourg must register for VAT, unless it is not liable for VAT (for example, because its supplies to taxable persons may be taxed using the "reverse-charge" mechanism). Under the reverse charge, the recipient of the supply must account for the tax. The reverse charge does not apply to supplies of goods and services made to private persons. A non-established business must register for Luxembourg VAT if it makes any of the following supplies, which are all subject to Luxembourg VAT (unless an exemption applies):

- Intra-Community supplies or acquisitions
- Distance sales (see the chapter on the EU)
- Supplies of goods and services to which the reverse charge does not apply

Tax representatives. Businesses established in the EU that are required to register for VAT in Luxembourg cannot appoint a tax representative.

Businesses established outside the EU may be required by the Luxembourg VAT authorities to provide a security deposit to secure their VAT liability. The deposit must be in the form of cash or a letter of indemnity provided by an approved bank.

The VAT registration application for non-established businesses must be sent to the following address:

Administration de l'Enregistrement et des Domaines
Bureau d'imposition 10
14, avenue de la Gare
L-1610 Luxembourg
BP 31
L-2010 Luxembourg

Alternatively, the application can be done electronically.

Reverse charge. The basic rule is that the supplier of services or goods, which are subject to Luxembourg VAT, is liable to charge VAT to its customers and should therefore register for Luxembourg VAT. Hence for local supplies, the supplier should charge VAT to its customers, even if they are a non-established business. By exception to the basic rule, the Luxembourg VAT-taxable recipient of services falling under the basic rule of place of taxation of services [business-to-business (B2B)] is liable for the VAT and should apply the reverse charge if the supplier is not established in Luxembourg.

Domestic reverse charge. A domestic reverse charge applies in Luxembourg for the transfer of allowances to emit greenhouse gases as well as for the supplies of gas and electricity certificates. As such, a taxable person has to self-assess VAT on the purchases of allowances to emit greenhouse gases or gas and electricity certificates, regardless of whether or not the supplier is established in Luxembourg and whether or not the supplier is registered for VAT in Luxembourg.

At the time of preparing this chapter, the government has submitted a bill to the parliament to extend the domestic reverse-charge mechanism with the intention of combatting VAT carousel fraud. As such, with effect from 1 January 2024, taxable persons (B2B supplies) will have to pay VAT on the following supplies:

- Supplies of mobile telephones, being devices made or adapted for use in connection with a licensed network and operated on specified frequencies, whether or not they have any other use
- Supplies of integrated circuit devices, such as microprocessors and central processing units, in a state prior to integration into end-user products
- Supplies of game consoles, tablet PCs and laptops
- Supplies of raw and semifinished metals, including precious metals, where they are not covered by the margin regime for secondhand goods, works of art, collector's items and antiques under the special scheme for investment gold

Note, where the sales amount, excluding VAT, does not exceed EUR10,000, the VAT due will remain the responsibility of the seller without considering later reductions of the consideration.

Digital economy. Specific VAT rules apply to cross-border supplies of goods and services sold via the internet (e-commerce) in all EU Member States, with effect from 1 July 2021. These new rules apply to all direct sales to nontaxable persons (in practice these are mostly private individuals), but we refer to these rules as e-commerce VAT rules because most of these transactions are conducted via the internet. In general, the place of supply is in the country of consumption, i.e., where the goods are shipped to or where the buyer of the goods or services resides, subject to any "use and enjoyment" provisions that may override this rule (see Section B. Effective use and enjoyment subsection above). Therefore:

- For supplies of services made by a nonresident supplier to a business customer (B2B), the business customer is responsible for accounting for the VAT due, using the reverse charge.
- For supplies of goods made by a nonresident supplier to a business customer (B2B), where the goods are transported from another EU Member State, the business purchasing the goods is responsible for accounting for the VAT due, as an intra-Community acquisition. If the goods come from outside the EU, the purchaser may have to report an importation of goods.
- For supplies of goods or services made by a nonresident supplier to a final consumer (B2C), the supplier is generally responsible for charging and accounting for the VAT due at the rate applicable in the customer's country (unless the supplier's sales fall beneath the distance selling threshold of EUR10,000, with effect from 1 July 2021). This VAT can be reported using a single VAT registration, using a "One-Stop-Shop" mechanism.

For more details about intra-EU distance sales, see the chapter on the EU.

Effective 1 July 2021, an e-commerce supplier may have a choice of how to account for VAT on its B2C supplies.

Local VAT registration. A nonresident supplier may choose to register for VAT in each Member State and account for VAT on all supplies made and recover input tax in accordance with local rules (see the Non-established businesses subsection above). Non-EU businesses may be required to appoint a fiscal representative for accounting for the VAT due on these transactions.

In Luxembourg non-EU businesses are required to provide a guarantee in favor of the State for their potential VAT debts. No other special rules apply.

One-Stop Shop. Effective 1 July 2021, a supplier can choose to account for the VAT due under the EU One-Stop Shop (OSS), which can be used for intra-EU cross-border supplies of goods and all cross-border supplies of services made to final consumers in the EU. Unlike the previous Mini One-Stop-Shop (MOSS) scheme that applied until 30 June 2021, the OSS is not limited to cross-border supplies of electronic, telecommunication and broadcasting services.

The OSS is an electronic portal that allows businesses to:
- Register for VAT electronically in a single Member State for all intra-EU distance sales of goods and for B2C supplies of services
- Declare and pay VAT due on all supplies of goods and services in a single electronic quarterly return

The OSS can be used by businesses established in the EU and outside the EU. If a supplier or a deemed supplier decides to register for the OSS, it must declare and pay VAT for all supplies of goods, as well as services that fall under the OSS.

In Luxembourg there are no additional special rules.

For more details about the operation of the OSS, see the chapter on the EU.

Import One-Stop Shop. Effective 1 July 2021, the Import One-Stop-Shop (IOSS) scheme applies for B2C distance sales of goods from outside the EU.

Effective 1 July 2021, VAT is due on all commercial goods imported into the EU, regardless of their value. The actual supply is subject to VAT in the country where the goods are imported (the country of destination). The IOSS facilitates the declaration and payment of VAT due on the sale of low-value goods (i.e., consignments valued at less than EUR150 per consignment). It allows suppliers selling low-value goods dispatched or transported from a non-EU country to customers in the EU to collect, declare and pay the VAT due. If the IOSS is used, the importation into the EU is exempt from VAT.

In Luxembourg there are no additional special rules.

For more details about the IOSS, see the chapter on the EU.

The use of the IOSS special scheme is not mandatory. If VAT is not collected via the IOSS scheme, the importation of goods into the EU is subject to import VAT in the country of final destination and the Member State can decide freely who is liable to pay the import VAT, which could be the customer or the seller (or an electronic interface).

In Luxembourg the importer of records is liable to deal with the Luxembourg VAT due if Luxembourg is the country of importation (or the interface is liable to do so if the interface facilitates the distance sales).

Postal Services and Couriers Scheme. If the IOSS is not used and the customer is liable for the import VAT due on the supply (and importation) of consignments with a small intrinsic value (i.e., less than EUR150), the VAT can be collected using the special scheme for postal services and couriers.

In Luxembourg there are no additional special rules.

For more details about the special scheme for postal services and couriers, see the chapter on the EU.

Online marketplaces and platforms. Under the new EU VAT e-commerce rules, effective 1 July 2021 taxable persons that "facilitate" certain B2C sales of goods are deemed to have purchased and then supplied those goods themselves. This means that the single supply from the "underlying" supplier to the final consumer is split into two deemed supplies:
- A supply from the supplier to the facilitator (deemed B2B supply).
- A supply from the facilitator to the final customer (deemed B2C supply). Any intermediation service provided by the facilitator is disregarded for VAT purposes.

This provision does not cover all sales facilitated via the facilitator. It only covers distance sales of goods imported from non-EU jurisdictions in consignments with an intrinsic value not exceeding EUR150. The jurisdiction of residence of the supplier using the facilitator is irrelevant. The supply to the facilitating platform is VAT exempt and the supplies made by that platform follow the e-commerce VAT rules as described above. In addition, the provision also covers sales within the EU, if the supplier is not established within the EU. This applies to both local shipments within one Member State, as well as intra-Community shipments. In both cases, the final customer must be a nontaxable person.

In Luxembourg there are no additional special rules.

For more details about the rules for online marketplaces, see the chapter on the EU.

Vouchers. The VAT treatment of vouchers depends on whether they qualify as a "single-purpose" voucher (SPV) or a "multi-purpose" voucher (MPV).

An SPV is a voucher where the place of supply of the goods or services to which the voucher relates and the VAT due on the supply is known at the time of the voucher's issue. Each transfer of an SPV qualifies as a supply of goods or services.

An MPV is any voucher other than an SPV. VAT will be due at the time the MPV is used.

Registration procedures. The application file to register for VAT should be submitted with the tax authorities at the latest within 15 days after the start of the economic activity of the taxable person. The application file can be sent to the tax authorities in hard copy or electronically through the website of the tax authorities.

The application document should be accompanied by several documents, such as a copy of the articles of association of the company, a copy of the ID cards of the Directors of the company, a copy of a rental agreement or domiciliation agreement and possibly others. After the filing of a complete application, it usually takes three to five weeks before the VAT number is actually granted.

Deregistration. If a taxable person stops performing the economic activity that had triggered the obligation to be registered, it should apply for a deregistration within 15 days after stopping the activity.

Changes to VAT registration details. On the application document to register for VAT, some information should obligatory be indicated, such as the name of the company, its address and its legal form. A VAT-taxable person must inform the authorities if there are changes with regard to this information. This can be done by email or postal mail and should be sent to the competent VAT office of the company.

In case a company changes its legal form (for instance from a SA to a Sarl) it should deregister for VAT and apply for a new VAT number under its new legal form. There is no possibility to "recycle" a VAT number.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to VAT.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 17% (16% from 1 January 2023 to 31 December 2023)
- Reduced rates: 3%, 8% (7% from 1 January 2023 to 31 December 2023), 14% (13% from 1 January 2023 to 31 December 2023)

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 3%

- Food for human consumption, excluding alcohol
- Agricultural products

- Books, newspapers and periodicals
- Shoes and clothes for children under age 14
- Sale of domestic accommodation
- Pharmaceutical products
- Restaurant services, excluding alcohol
- Water
- Transport of persons
- Admission to cultural events

Examples of goods and services taxable at 7/8%

- Liquid gas for heating, lighting and fueling engines
- Electric energy
- Plants and other floriculture products
- Hairdressing
- Repair of bicycles, shoes and other leather goods
- Cleaning of private accommodation

Examples of goods and services taxable at 13/14%

- Wine of grapes with a concentration of alcohol up to 13 grades
- Solid mineral combustibles, mineral oil and wood used as fuel
- Advertising brochures and other prints
- Steam, heating and cooling
- Custody and management of securities
- Management of credits and credit guarantees by an entity other than the entity that granted the credit

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction. However, in Luxembourg some supplies are classified as "exempt-with-credit," which means that no VAT is due, but the supplier may recover related input tax. Exempt-with-credit supplies include exports of goods and related services and intra-Community supplies of goods (see the chapter on the EU).

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services (without VAT credit)

- Real estate transactions
- Supplies of postage and fiscal stamps at face value
- Services of doctors and dentists
- Finance
- Insurance
- Cultural and sporting services
- Welfare services
- Education

Option to tax for exempt supplies. Luxembourg operates an option to tax in respect of supplies and rent of real estate to the extent the purchaser or lessee will use the real estate predominantly for purposes that entitle the right to deduct input tax. There are no other options to treat exempt supplies as taxable.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due (or the chargeable event occurs) is called the "time of supply" or "tax point." For supplies of goods, the basic time of supply is when the goods are delivered, and the power of disposal is transferred. The basic time of supply for services is when the services are completed.

The actual time of supply of goods or services, with the exception of services subject to VAT in the recipient country, may be delayed by the issuance of an invoice (if the issuance of an invoice is mandatory), but no later than the 15th day of the month following the month in which the basic time of supply occurs. If the supplier issues an invoice before this date, the time of supply is when the invoice is issued. Specific rules apply to continuous supplies of services. For supplies of services subject to VAT in the recipient country, the time of supply is when the chargeable event occurs (that is, when the supply is completed).

Deposits and prepayments. If a prepayment is made in advance of a transaction and there is no obligation to issue an invoice, then VAT becomes due at the time of the prepayment. However, if there is an obligation to issue an invoice and it is issued with the prepayment, then VAT is due before the 15th of the month following the month during which the transaction takes place.

Continuous supplies of services. In case the customer is liable to self-assess VAT and no statements of account are issued and no payments are made, the VAT becomes due at the end of the calendar year.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules in Luxembourg for supplies of goods sent on approval for sale or return. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above). The time of supply (when the VAT becomes due) is when the supply takes place.

In case the sale of the goods only takes place when the customer approves the sale, then the supply will take place at the time of the approval by the customer.

If the goods are not approved and are returned to the supplier, no supply will take place and there should be no VAT consequences related to the return of the goods.

If the goods are not approved, but are not returned to the supplier, the VAT consequences would depend on what the supplier will do with these goods. Where the goods stay in Luxembourg and are stored in a warehouse, then the supplier will have to perform an assimilated intra-Community acquisition of the goods and have to register for VAT. Where the goods are not stored and sold in Luxembourg (but, for example, destroyed), then no VAT consequences should occur.

Reverse-charge services. For supplies of services subject to VAT in the recipient country, the chargeable event occurs when the supply is completed.

Leased assets. There are no special time of supply rules in Luxembourg for supplies of leased assets. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

Imported goods. The time of the supply for imported goods is the date of importation or the date on which the goods leave a duty suspension regime.

Intra-Community acquisitions. The time of supply for an intra-Community acquisition of goods is the 15th day of the month following the month in which the acquisition takes place. If the supplier issues an invoice or a document serving as an invoice (other than relating to an installment) before such date, the time of supply is when the invoice is issued.

Intra-Community supplies of goods. Intra-Community supplies of goods are deemed to take place at the time the invoice is issued (at the latest the 15th of the month following the month during which the supply took place or when a payment on account is received) or when the invoice should have been issued if not issued timely.

Distance sales. The time of supply for supplies of distance sales is when the goods are delivered, and the power of disposal is thus transferred.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax, which is VAT charged on goods and services supplied to it for business purposes. A taxable person generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax, which is VAT charged on supplies of goods and services made.

Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services supplied within Luxembourg, VAT paid on imports of goods, VAT paid on intra-Community acquisitions of goods and VAT self-assessed on reverse-charge services (see the chapter on the EU).

A valid tax invoice or customs document must generally accompany a claim for input tax.

Taxable persons should be entitled to claim back input tax by reporting it as deductible VAT in their VAT returns within the statute of limitation (which is five years after the end of the year during which the VAT has become due). However, as the recovery of the VAT is conditioned by the existence of a direct and immediate link between the costs incurred and the related income generated and the taxable person must be able to document such link, it is recommended to report the deductible VAT in the period during which the VAT has become due and a valid invoice was available.

Nondeductible input tax. In Luxembourg, input tax may be deducted in full for all items of business expenditure. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes (for example, the private use of an entrepreneur's home telephone or goods acquired for private use).

The following lists provide some examples of items of expenditure for which input tax is not deductible and examples of items for which input tax is deductible if the expenditure is related to a taxable business use.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Private expenditure

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Purchase, hire, lease, maintenance and fuel for cars, vans and trucks
- Parking
- Business gifts
- Attending conferences, seminars and training courses
- Business entertainment
- Business use of home telephone
- Advertising
- Transport

Partial exemption. If a Luxembourg taxable person performs both exempt and taxable supplies, it may only recover a portion of input tax. This situation is referred to as "partial exemption." The taxable person calculates its right to recover input tax itself. Approval from the tax authorities is not required to use the partial exemption standard method in Luxembourg.

The tax authorities will, however, review the calculation when performing a VAT audit/assessing the annual VAT returns.

The amount of input tax that may be recovered is calculated in the following two stages:

- The first stage identifies the input tax that may be directly allocated either to exempt or to taxable supplies. Exempt-with-credit supplies are treated as taxable supplies for these purposes. Input tax directly allocated to exempt supplies is not deductible. Input tax directly allocated to taxable supplies is fully recoverable.

- The second stage prorates the input tax on mixed expenditures (relating to both taxable and exempt supplies) in order to allocate a portion to taxable supplies (which may be recovered). This treatment applies to the input tax on general business overhead expenses.

The general pro rata method calculates the amount of recoverable VAT based on the ratio of turnover that entitles the taxable person to deduct input tax (that is, taxable turnover and exempt turnover with credit) to total turnover within the scope of VAT. Incidental supplies of capital goods and incidental real estate and financial transactions are excluded from turnover for these purposes. The recovery percentage is rounded up to the nearest whole number (for example, a recovery percentage of 77.2% is rounded up to 78%).

Alternatively, the Luxembourg VAT authorities may authorize a taxable person to use a special deduction method based on the direct allocation of all or certain goods and services used in making taxable and exempt supplies. The VAT authorities may direct a taxable person to use this method. The administration may also authorize or direct the use of a special deduction method for each sector of a single business or for certain sectors of the business. If wished by the taxable person, it does not have to request an approval from the tax authorities to use this special method, but the tax authorities will review the calculation when performing a VAT audit/assessing the annual VAT returns.

Capital goods. Capital goods are items of capital expenditure that are used in a business over several years. Input tax is deducted in the VAT year in which the goods are acquired. The amount of input tax recovered depends on the taxable person's partial exemption recovery position in the VAT year of acquisition and first use. However, the amount of input tax recovered for capital goods must be adjusted over time if the taxable person's partial exemption recovery percentage changes during the adjustment period.

In Luxembourg, capital goods are defined as tangible, movable or immovable goods that are subject to depreciation under income tax law. It also includes services that have similar characteristics as capital goods (for example, the purchase of tailor-made software).

The capital goods adjustment applies to the following assets for the number of years indicated:
- Immovable capital assets (primarily, buildings): adjusted for a period of 10 years
- Movable capital assets: adjusted for a period of five years

For movable goods, the adjustment period starts 1 January of the year in which the goods are manufactured or purchased. If the goods are first used in a later year, the period begins on 1 January of the year in which the goods are used for the first time. The adjustment is applied each year to 1/5 of the total input tax, unless the goods are sold. If the goods are sold, the adjustment is made once for the total remaining period. The adjustment may result in either an increase or a decrease of deductible input tax, depending on whether the ratio of taxable supplies made by the business has increased or decreased compared with the year in which the capital goods were acquired (or used for the first time).

For immovable goods, the adjustment period starts on 1 January of the year in which the acquisition takes place or construction, or refurbishment work ends or on 1 January of the year in which the immovable property is used for the first time if the year of first use differs from the year of acquisition or the year in which the construction or refurbishment work is finalized. The adjustment is applied each year to 1/10 of the total input tax unless the immovable property is sold or if the VAT deduction depends on the rental status of the immovable property. In such cases, the adjustment is made once for the total remaining period. The adjustment may result in either an increase or a decrease of deductible input tax, depending on whether the ratio of taxable supplies made by the business has increased or decreased compared with the year in which the immovable property was acquired, constructed or refurbished.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax recoverable in a monthly period exceeds the amount of output tax payable in that period, the taxable person has an input tax credit. This input tax credit may usually be carried forward to the next reporting period. However, a refund may be requested.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax incurred on pre-registration costs in Luxembourg is not recoverable.

Bad debts. If it can be reasonably expected that the customer will not pay (or not pay the full amount), the taxable person is entitled to reclaim the VAT on the unpaid VAT amount. There are no specific rules to determine as from when it can be reasonably expected that the customer will not pay. A regularization should be done if after the reclaim of VAT, the customer would make a payment.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred on purchases that are used for noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Luxembourg.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

The Luxembourg VAT authority refunds VAT incurred by businesses that are neither established nor registered for VAT in Luxembourg. Non-established businesses may claim Luxembourg VAT to the same extent as VAT-registered business. Businesses, which are not established in Luxembourg, and which are not liable for VAT, cannot register for VAT in order to recover any input tax incurred but should apply the below procedures.

EU businesses. For businesses established in the EU, refunds are made under the terms of EU Directive 2008/9/EC. The VAT refund procedure under the EU Directive 2008/9 may be used only if the business did not perform any taxable supplies in Luxembourg during the refund period (excluding supplies covered by the reverse charge). For full details, see the chapter on the EU.

Find below specific rules for Luxembourg:
- Applications for refunds of Luxembourg VAT under EU Directive 2008/9/EC must be submitted to the EU Member State in which the claimant is established via the electronic portal set up by that EU Member State.

Non-EU businesses. For businesses established outside the EU, refunds are made under the terms of the EU 13th Directive.

Luxembourg does not exclude any non-EU country from the refund scheme (no reciprocity required).

Find below specific rules for Luxembourg:
- The deadline is 30 June of the year following the calendar year in which the tax was incurred.
- Claims must be submitted in English, French or German. The application for refund must be accompanied by the appropriate documentation.
- The claim period is one year.
- The minimum claim amount is EUR250; there is no maximum amount.
- Applications for refunds of Luxembourg VAT under the EU 13th Directive must be sent to the following address:

  Administration de l'Enregistrement, des Domaines et de la TVA
  Bureau d'imposition XI
  Remboursements et franchises
  67-69, Rue Verte, L-2667 Luxembourg
  BP 31
  L-2010 Luxembourg

- The Luxembourg VAT authorities do not pay interest on late refunds of VAT made under the EU 13th Directive scheme.

Late payment interest. The Luxembourg VAT authorities do not pay interest on late refunds of VAT made by non-EU businesses.

In case of late VAT refund payments to EU businesses, according to the Directive n° 2008/9/EC implemented in the Luxembourg VAT law, Luxembourg must pay late payment interest at a rate of 7.2% per year from the date on which the refund should have been made.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A Luxembourg taxable person must generally provide a VAT invoice for all taxable supplies made, including exports and intra-Community supplies to other taxable persons or to nontaxable legal persons. Invoices are not automatically required for retail transactions to private individuals, unless the supply is a distance sale or the customer requests an invoice.

A VAT invoice is required to support a claim for input tax deduction or a refund under the EU Directive 2008/9/EC or EU 13th Directive refund schemes (see the chapter on the EU).

Credit notes. A VAT credit note may be used to reduce the VAT charged and reclaimed on a supply of goods or services. It must be cross-referenced to the original VAT invoice and contain the same information.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is mandatory in Luxembourg, for certain taxable persons.

Scope of electronic invoicing. For business-to-government (B2G) supplies, electronic invoicing is mandatory in Luxembourg. This is in line with EU Directive 2014/55/EU (see the chapter on the EU). This is with effect from 18 March 2023. The rules previously only applied for large and medium sized businesses.

For B2B and B2C supplies, electronic invoicing is allowed but not mandatory in Luxembourg. This is in line with EU Directive 2010/45/EU (see the chapter on the EU).

Electronic invoices can be only used if the customer has approved the use of such invoices. There is no threshold beyond which taxable persons are required to adopt electronic invoicing in Luxembourg. The requirements related to electronic invoicing are the same as those for paper invoicing.

Electronic invoices can be submitted through the European delivery network Peppol. However, there are alternate ways of submission available on MyGuichet.lu for businesses that are not connected to the Peppol network.

For the EU VAT in the Digital Age (ViDA) proposals, refer to the chapter on the EU.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified VAT invoices are allowed in Luxembourg. Simplified VAT invoices are only allowed if the amount of the invoice, VAT included, does not exceed EUR100. There are some exceptions to this rule, where the issuance of simplified invoices is not allowed, for instance in case of self-billing.

Self-billing. Self-billing is allowed in Luxembourg. It is allowed by the customer of a supply of goods or services, only where there is agreement between both parties and each invoice is subject to an acceptance procedure by the supplier.

Proof of exports and intra-Community supplies. Luxembourg VAT is not due on supplies of exported goods or on the intra-Community supply of goods (see the chapter on the EU). However, to qualify as VAT-free, exports and intra-Community supplies must be supported by evidence proving that the goods have left Luxembourg. Acceptable proof includes the following documentation:

- For an export, a copy of the export document, officially validated by customs, showing the supplier as the exporter. The invoice must include the following language: "Not subject to Luxembourg VAT, article 43, 1, a of the Luxembourg VAT Law – export."
- For an intra-Community supply, a range of commercial documentation such as purchase orders, tax invoices, transport documentation, proof of payment and contracts. No specific document as such is required or indispensable. However, if a supplier is in possession of the documents introduced by the Quick Fixes, the authorities must accept the proof of the transport (see the subsection above Quick Fixes). The invoice must include the following language: "Not subject to Luxembourg VAT, article 43, 1, d of the Luxembourg VAT Law – intra-Community supplies of goods."

No special documentation applies in Luxembourg for evidencing the application of the Quick Fixes. Normal intra-Community documentation rules apply.

Foreign currency invoices. If an invoice is issued in a foreign currency, the VAT amount must be converted to the domestic currency, which is the euro (EUR), using the official rate in force on the date of the invoice, be published by an approved bank and be indicated on the invoice.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. Except in case of distance sales of goods and the supply of new means of transports, no invoice should be issued to private individuals who do not qualify as VAT-taxable persons.

Distance selling. For intra-Community distance sales made B2C, a full VAT invoice must be issued. However, if the supplier operates the OSS regime, then no full VAT invoice is required unless requested.

Records. In Luxembourg, examples of what records must be held for VAT purposes include general ledger, trial balances, purchase and sales invoices, register of consignment stock, transport documents and agreements.

In Luxembourg, VAT books and records can be held outside of the country only if they are electronically archived, and this only applies in the EU. If the records are stored in hard copy, they must be kept in Luxembourg.

Record retention period. All books (e.g., general ledger and trial balances), documents and information required by the VAT law (e.g., purchase and sales invoices, register of consignment stock, transport documents, agreements) should be stored for 10 years from the date of the issuance (in case of invoices issued or received) and from the date of closing (in case of accounts) or their date (in case of other documents).

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is allowed in Luxembourg. In principle, all books, documents and information required by the VAT law should be stored by a Luxembourg taxable person in hard copy in Luxembourg. However, electronic storage is allowed, if the data guaranteeing the authenticity of the origin and the integrity of the content are also stored electronically. In the latter case, the Luxembourg taxable person should inform the authorities of the place of storage when filing its annual VAT return. Electronic archiving is only allowed if it is done in the EU.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. In principle, Luxembourg VAT returns must be filed on a monthly basis. However, the authorities can allow taxable persons whose annual turnover does not exceed EUR112,000 to file only a single annual return for the calendar year. The due date is 1 March of the following year.

Taxable persons with annual turnover between EUR112,000 and EUR620,000 may be allowed to submit periodic returns quarterly. In addition, they must file a recapitulative annual return. The due date for the periodic returns is the 15th day of the month following the end of the return period. The due date for the annual return is 1 May of the following year.

Taxable persons with annual turnover that exceeds EUR620,000 must submit periodic returns monthly, plus a recapitulative annual return. The due date for the periodic returns is the 15th day of the month following the end of the return period. The due date for the annual return is 1 May of the following year.

Filing extensions are automatically granted for both the periodic (two months) and the annual returns (eight months). However, these extensions apply exclusively to the filing of the returns. As a result, provisional VAT payments can be requested within the legal deadline.

A Luxembourg taxable person, who only performs transactions, which do not entitle the right to recover input tax should not register for VAT, except if it would be liable to self-assess Luxembourg VAT on services received from non-Luxembourg suppliers or perform intra-Community acquisitions of goods transported from other EU Member States into Luxembourg. In case a company should be registered for VAT, it is in principle liable only to file annual returns. The due date of filing these returns is 1 March (with an automatic extension of eight months).

Periodic payments. Luxembourg VAT-payable amounts, resulting from periodic VAT returns, should be paid by the 15th of the following month. If the annual returns result in an (additional) VAT-payable amount, it should be paid by 1 March of the following year in case of single or simplified VAT return, or by 1 May of the following year in case of recapitulative VAT return. When making a payment to the bank account of the tax authorities, a reference should be made wherein the tax number of the VAT taxable person (so-called Matricule number, which is different than the VAT number) and the return concerned is included. Payments must be made by bank transfer and by using the correct reference.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is mandatory in Luxembourg for all taxable persons. Taxable persons that are required to submit VAT returns monthly or quarterly must file all returns (periodic and annual returns) and EC sales listings electronically, using the tax administration's electronic portal (eTVA).

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Luxembourg.

Special schemes. Cash accounting. Businesses with an annual taxable turnover (excluding VAT) of less than EUR500,000 are eligible to use the cash accounting scheme that allows VAT to be accounted for on the basis of cash or other consideration paid and received. However, if their annual taxable turnover (excluding VAT) subsequently exceeds EUR500,000, they must stop using the scheme.

Travel agencies. A special VAT scheme is applicable to transactions carried out by travel agents, who deal with customers in their own name and who use supplies of goods or services provided for the direct profit of the customers by other VAT taxable persons in the provision of travel facilities. The place of taxation of their services is deemed to be where the travel agent is established. The VAT-taxable basis of the services rendered by the travel agency is the margin realized, decreased with the VAT due on the margin. A travel agent has no right to deduct input tax, which has been invoiced on the supplies of goods and services rendered for the direct benefit of the customers by the other VAT-taxable persons.

Margin scheme on secondhand goods and artwork. Under certain conditions, a special VAT scheme is applicable on the supplies of secondhand goods and artwork. If this scheme is applicable, the VAT taxable basis of the supply of goods by a re-seller is the margin realized, decreased with the VAT due on the margin. The margin is the difference between the sales price requested by the re-seller and its purchase price.

Investment gold. The supply, intra-Community acquisition and import of investment gold is exempt from VAT. However, producers of investment gold or transformers of gold can opt to tax their supply to VAT.

Annual returns. Annual returns are required for all taxable persons in Luxembourg. This is in addition to the periodic returns. The annual return is the sum of the periodic returns. If adjustments or regularizations are required (e.g., when calculating the definitive deductible prorate), these should be reflected in the annual returns.

Supplementary filings. Intrastat. A Luxembourg taxable person that trades with other EU countries must complete statistical reports, known as Intrastat returns, if the value of its sales or purchases of goods exceeds certain thresholds. Separate reports are required for intra-Community acquisitions (Intrastat Arrivals) and for intra-Community supplies (Intrastat Dispatches). Electronic submissions via email are allowed.

The threshold for Intrastat Arrivals in 2023 is EUR250,000. The threshold for Intrastat Dispatches in 2023 is EUR 200,000. At the time of preparing this chapter, the thresholds for 2024 are not known, but are unlikely to change.

Luxembourg taxable persons must complete Intrastat declarations in EUR.

Intrastat returns are due monthly by the 16th working day of the month following the period.

EU Sales Lists. If a Luxembourg taxable person performs intra-Community supplies of goods, it must submit an EU Sales List (ESL) for goods.

In principle, ESLs for goods must be submitted by the 15th day of the month following the end of the month. However, ESLs for goods may be submitted quarterly if the threshold of EUR50,000 of intra-Community supplies of goods to other EU Member States is not exceeded during the concerned quarter or during the four preceding quarters. For a quarterly filing, the ESLs for goods must be submitted by the 15th day of the month following the concerned quarter.

A Luxembourg taxable person must also file an ESL for services rendered. This ESL must provide information regarding services rendered to taxable and nontaxable persons who satisfy the following conditions:

- They are registered for VAT in another EU Member State, and the services are rendered in the other EU Member State.
- The services are not exempt from VAT in the EU Member State where they are deemed to take by application of the basic B2B rule.
- The recipients are liable to deal with the VAT in the other EU Member State.

ESLs for services must be filed on a monthly basis by the 15th day of each month. Taxable persons may file the lists on a quarterly basis by the 15th day of each quarter.

If no transactions reportable in ESLs are performed, no ESLs need to be filed for the concerned month or quarter.

Correcting errors in previous returns. In principle, a taxable person registered for Luxembourg VAT must file monthly VAT returns, as well as annual recapitulative VAT returns. The latter returns are the final ones and are assessed by the authorities. Any amendments or corrections to be made regarding monthly returns should be regularized by reporting the correct amounts in the annual recapitulative VAT returns. This does not include a waiver for any penalties due to incorrect filing at the time. However, if the corrections only concern minor amendments/errors, it is unlikely that penalties will be charged.

Digital tax administration. Standard Audit File for Tax (SAF-T). The OECD has developed a standard audit file for tax audits (SAF-T) and a standard set of tests to be performed by the local tax authorities during an audit. Luxembourg has adopted the SAF-T. Ficher d'Audit Informatisé AED (FAIA is the name of the file to be provided to the Luxembourg tax authorities, and the Luxembourg law allows the tax authorities to carry out electronic VAT audits. The intention of the authorities is to perform all VAT audits paperless. The law outlines that each taxable person (with some exceptions) using an electronic accounting system is obliged to be able to provide the data in a "FAIA" format on request of the tax authorities. In principle, FAIA (which is a file structured under the XML format) must include all the information and data concerning the business activity of the taxable person.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. A penalty of between EUR250 and EUR10,000 may be assessed for late VAT registration.

Penalties for late payment and filings. Penalties are assessed for the late payment or late submission of a VAT return in the following amounts:
- For monthly or quarterly returns, the fine may vary from EUR250 to EUR10,000
- For annual returns, the fine may vary from EUR250 to EUR10,000

For Intrastat, a penalty may be imposed for late submission or for missing or inaccurate declarations. The fine is generally EUR500 (although the statistical authorities may impose a penalty of between EUR251 and EUR2,500).

For ESLs, a penalty may be imposed for late, missing or inaccurate ESLs. The penalty may vary from EUR250 to EUR10,000.

Penalties for errors. Infringements against VAT compliance obligations, such as the obligation to issue compliant invoices and the timely filing of returns, wherein the correct amounts are reported, can be penalized by a fine, which may vary from EUR250 to EUR10,000.

Some infringements, such as the obligation to provide a FAIA file if requested by the authorities can be penalized by a fine of (maximum) EUR25,000 per day.

There are no specific penalties associated with the late notification or failure to notify the tax authorities of changes to a taxable person's VAT registration details. For further details, see the subsection Changes to VAT registration details above.

Penalties for fraud. In case the taxable person fails to fulfill its VAT obligations, the manager(s) will be considered personally and severally liable for the payment of the VAT owned by the company to the VAT authorities. The liability of the manager(s) is strictly limited to: (i) the delegated administrators of public limited companies, (ii) the managers of limited liability companies and (iii) ipso jure or de facto managers taking care of the day-to-day management of the company.

The manager(s) can only be held liable in the case of blameworthy failure to fulfill their legal requirements.

In the case of fraudulent actions to avoid payment or to illegally obtain the reimbursement of VAT, penalties up to 50% of the evaded VAT can be assessed.

Personal liability for company officers. Administrators and directors of companies (established and/or VAT registered in Luxembourg), as well as "de jure" and "de facto" managers in charge of the day-to-day management of such companies, can be held jointly and personally liable in the event of nonpayment of the VAT due by the taxable person they manage in case of blame for the failure to meet their legal requirements.

Statute of limitations. The statute of limitations in Luxembourg is five years. This is from 31 December following the date from which the VAT became due. This statute of limitation applies for the tax authorities to go back to review returns, identify errors and assess fines, as well as for the taxable person to correct errors in previous VAT returns, under conditions.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT is charged on the following:
- Every supply of goods and services made in Malawi
- Every importation of goods
- The supply of any imported service, other than exempt goods and services

A taxable supply is a supply of goods or services made by a taxable person for consideration in the course of or as a part of its business activities and includes:
- The processing of data or supply of information or similar service
- The supply of staff
- The making of gifts or loans of goods
- The appropriation of goods for personal use or consumption by the taxable person or by any other person

- The sale, transfer, assignment or licensing of patents, copyrights, trademarks, computer software and other proprietary information
- Exports

A supply is made as part of the business activities of a person if a supply is made by them as part of or incidental to any economic activity they conduct. Where a person produces goods by processing or treating the goods of another person, the supply of goods shall be regarded as supply of goods. The supply of any form of power, heat, refrigeration or ventilation shall be regarded as supply of goods.

A supply is made for consideration, if the supplier, directly or indirectly, receives payment wholly or partly in money or in kind from the person supplied or any other person.

Effective use and enjoyment. To avoid instances of non-taxation or double taxation, jurisdictions can apply "use and enjoyment" rules that allow a service that is "used and enjoyed" in the jurisdiction to be taxed or prevent a service that is "used and enjoyed" outside the jurisdiction from being taxed. If a service is taxed in the jurisdiction under the "use and enjoyment" provisions, a non-established supplier of the service may be required to register for VAT in every jurisdiction where it has customers that are not taxable persons. In Malawi, in instances of non-taxation for non-established businesses that provide services from outside Malawi, but the services are enjoyed and used in Malawi, the VAT Act does not require the registration of the non-established business but rather the importer or the person that enjoys and uses the imported service is required to charge itself VAT on the imported service and remit the same to the Malawi Revenue Authority (MRA). Where the importer of the service is registered for VAT, the importer is entitled to claim VAT paid as input tax.

Transfer of a going concern. Normally the sale of the assets of a VAT-registered or VAT-registrable business will be subject to VAT at the appropriate rate. However, a transfer of a business as a going concern (TOGC) may be outside the scope of the tax under certain conditions. A TOGC is the sale of a business or part of a business capable of separate operation, including assets. Where the sale meets the conditions, the supply is treated as outside the scope of VAT. In Malawi, a TOGC is treated as outside the scope of VAT and the sale of a business or part of a business must be capable of separate operation. Where a business carried on by a taxable person is transferred to another person as a going concern and the transferee is not registered for VAT at the time of the transfer, the transferee shall at the time of the transfer become liable to be registered for VAT and shall apply for registration. The transferee shall be required to notify the Commissioner General with 30 days of the transfer and the transaction shall be outside the scope of VAT and no tax invoice issued.

Transactions between related parties. In Malawi, there are no specific rules that indicate the value for VAT purposes for transactions between related parties. However, where there is an adjustment due to transfer pricing, then automatically the same adjustment will affect VAT.

C. Who is liable

VAT is due on the following:
- In the case of a taxable supply, by the taxable person making the supply
- In the case of imported goods, by the importer
- In the case of imported services, by the receiver of the services

Exemption from registration. The VAT law in Malawi does not contain any provision for exemption from registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. A person may voluntarily register for VAT if they qualify as a taxable person or has grounds to believe that they will qualify as a taxable person by applying voluntarily to the Commissioner General within 30 days of qualifying or having grounds to believe that they will qualify as a taxable person.

Group registration. Two or more corporate bodies may apply to be registered as members of a VAT group if each body is a registered as a corporate body in Malawi and has an established place of business in Malawi. One of the corporate bodies should have control of the other or other members of the group or one corporate body controls all the members of the group.

For purposes of payment of VAT, the group is registered as one designated taxable person.

There is no minimum time period required for the duration of a VAT group.

All members of a VAT group in Malawi are jointly and severally liable for VAT debts and penalties.

Fixed establishment. In Malawi there is no legal definition of a fixed establishment for VAT purposes. However, the Taxation Act defines a permanent establishment as to "includes an office or other fixed place of business through which business activity is carried on." Generally, for VAT registration, one of the requirements is that the taxable person should have a fixed place of business if it is to register for VAT in Malawi.

Non-established businesses. The Commissioner General may refuse to register the applicant if they are satisfied that the taxable person has no fixed place of abode or business. However, a non-established business may register for VAT in Malawi, provided it exceeds the registration threshold (MWK10 million per annum) and the Commissioner General is satisfied that:

- The applicant will keep proper accounting records relating to any business activity carried on by that person
- The applicant will submit regular and reliable returns as required by under the VAT Act
- They are a fit and proper person to be registered

Tax representatives. A tax representative (normally referred to as the public officer) may be appointed by the taxable person if the taxable person operates offshore and has no physical presence nor has employees in Malawi. The taxable person is required to notify the tax authority of the appointed tax representative who fulfills the relevant tax obligations on behalf of the taxable person.

Reverse charge. The reverse-charge mechanism is applicable in Malawi on importation of services by the recipient of the services. This applies for business-to-business (B2B) supplies only, so where the recipient is a taxable person in Malawi.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Malawi.

Digital economy. Nonresident providers of electronically supplied services for business-to-consumer (B2C) supplies are required to register and account for VAT in Malawi.

Nonresident providers of electronically supplied services for B2B supplies are not required to register and account for VAT on supplies in Malawi. Instead, the customer is required to self-account for the VAT due by way of the reverse-charge mechanism (see the Reverse-charge subsection above).

However, note that taxing digital transactions (i.e., electronic services and the digital economy) is a challenge facing the country, as the digital economy is characterized by extensive use of data, multi-sided business models, and challenges to identify where value creation occurs. Digital tax administration is at infancy level.

There are no other specific e-commerce rules for imported goods in Malawi.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Malawi.

Registration procedures. The registration application is done online via the MRA online portal. The application is done by filing a prescribed form VAT Form 1 online and attaching all the necessary documents. This includes the VAT Form 1 with proof of annual turnover for the period or anticipated annual turnover, copy of the Certificate of Registration or incorporation, copies of ID for the directors or individuals for incorporated applicants and proof of physical address of the business.

After submission of the application form and upon successful consideration of the application by the Malawi Revenue Authority, the applicant is issued a registration certificate, which includes the trading name, taxable person identification number, place of business and the effective date of registration. The certificate is displayed at the principal place of business of the taxable person.

Deregistration. Upon cessation of carrying on business, the taxable person shall notify the Commissioner General in writing within 30 days from ceasing operations for cancellation of registration.

Changes to VAT registration details. Every taxable person is required to notify the Commissioner General in writing if the business ceases to operate or is sold or there is a change in the location of business; or if there is material change in the ownership of the business; or of any change in the name or address of taxable person, material nature in the business activities or in the nature of taxable supplies being made. Such changes must be notified within 30 days from the change taking place.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 16.5%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate, the zero rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Exports of goods and services
- Exercise books
- Goods shipped as stores on aircraft and vessels leaving the territory of Malawi
- Fertilizers
- Sheath contraceptives (condoms)
- Salt
- Motor vehicles for transport of goods
- Pharmaceutical products
- Buses
- Military equipment
- Building materials for factories and warehouses
- Goods for use in tourism industry
- Miscellaneous chemical products
- Cycle ambulances
- Motorcycle ambulances
- Syringes with or without needles

- Mosquito and sand fly nets
- Poultry or chicken feed
- Printed books
- Gas cylinders
- Wood cook stoves
- Solar products
- Energy-efficient bulbs

The term "exempt" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Banking and life assurance services. The exemption on banking services does not include the following:
  - Administration fees, such as fees for providing statements, payment orders or transfers and charges for the pro-vision of online banking
  - Credit card late payment fees or limit excess fees
  - Charges for withdrawals from any auto teller machines
  - Charges for safe keeping services and safe deposit boxes
  - Fees for processing credit or debit card payment transactions, including gateway fees
  - Charges for cash handling, such as counting, sorting and safe storage
  - Interchange fees between banks
  - Interchange fees between a bank and other financial institution or mobile financial payment service provider
  - Merchant service fees or discount rate fees
  - Point of sale imprinter or terminal rental charges
- Live animals
- Postal services
- Transport of exports
- Educational services
- Medical equipment
- Animal products
- Vegetable products in raw state
- Printed matter
- Petroleum products
- Vehicles other than railway and train way rolling stock
- Industrial machinery and construction machinery
- Coin
- Funeral service
- Medical services
- Rentals and sale of properties used for residential purposes
- Betting and gaming including lotteries
- Rail locomotives and parts
- Medical surgical or laboratory sterilizers
- Tap water
- Laundry soap

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Malawi.

E. Time of supply

The general time of supply rule in Malawi is considered the earliest of the following:

- The goods are removed from the premises or from other premises of the taxable person where the goods are under the control of the taxable person

- The goods are made available to the person to whom they are supplied
- The services are supplied or rendered
- Payment is received for all or part of the supply
- A tax invoice is issued

Deposits and prepayments. Any deposit or prepayment, whether refundable or not, given in respect of the supply of goods or services shall not be regarded as a payment for the supply of goods or services, or a taxable transaction unless the supplier applies the deposit as payment or part payment for the supply.

Where the deposit or prepayment is paid in the expectation that it will form part of the total payment for a particular supply, the time of supply is the receipt of the deposit or prepayment.

Continuous supplies of services. VAT applies on continuous supplies of services, provided there is:
- The performance of services for another person
- The making available of any facility or advantage
- Toleration of any situation or refraining from the doing of any activity

Considering the above, if services are supplied continuously and payment is made periodically, a tax point is created each time a payment is made or a VAT invoice is issued, whichever occurs earlier.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. When goods have been supplied on sale or return, the tax point shall be the earliest of:
- The date when the purchaser chooses to keep the goods
- The issue of the tax invoice by the seller
- The receipt of payment by the seller
- The expiry of the period within which the customer may return the goods

Reverse-charge services. The beneficiary of imported services is responsible for payment of VAT. They self-declare output tax by declaring the VAT on the imported services. The tax point for reverse-charge services is when the service is performed.

Leased assets. The supply of leased assets occurs on the date the leased assets are made available under the lease agreement.

Imported goods. The time of supply for imported goods is the date of importation.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may seek a refund of the excess VAT if the input tax is more than the output tax due.

A taxable person that is in a refundable position for a continuous three months may apply for a VAT refund. Evidence in the form of supplier fiscalized invoices is required for a pre-refund audit before MRA issues a refund check. The Commissioner General is supposed to give the refund within 30 days of the application being submitted, but MRA usually delays refunds due to lack of funding.

The time limit for a taxable person to reclaim input tax in Malawi is six months.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use). Input tax cannot be recovered on invoices that are more than 12 months from the date of issue and cannot be recovered from invoices that are not supported by the mandatory fiscal slips.

In addition, input tax may not be recovered for some items of business expenditure. The following lists provide some examples of items of expenditure for which input tax is not deductible and examples of items for which input tax is deductible.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Repairs, hiring and maintenance of motor vehicles and purchase of spare parts, unless the taxable person is engaged in the business of hiring motor vehicles or selling motor vehicle spare parts
- Entertainment, hotel expenses, restaurant and meals, unless the taxable person is in the business of providing entertainment

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Communication costs
- Office rentals
- Stationery
- Utilities, e.g., electricity and water
- Office furniture

Partial exemption. A taxable person is considered partially exempt if they make both taxable and exempt supplies of goods and services. They can only claim input tax that is directly attributable to the taxable supplies. An apportionment formula is used to determine the deductible input tax.

A refund of VAT is possible where the amount of input tax exceeds the amount of output tax, and the excess credit remains outstanding for a continuous period of three months or more.

Approval from the tax authorities is not required to use the partial exemption standard method in Malawi. Special methods are allowed in Malawi.

Capital goods. Input tax incurred on capital goods acquired for the business is claimable, except for motor vehicles as indicated above. A taxable person who is registered from a specified effective date and has in stock capital goods that have been held for a period not exceeding a period of six months from the date of their registration may claim credit or refund of VAT. There are no further special input tax recovery rules for capital goods. Normal input tax recovery rules apply.

The input tax on capital goods at hand on the date of registration acquired six months prior to the effective date of VAT registration is claimable and the deduction must occur within 12 months from the effective date of registration.

Refunds. Where the amount of input tax that is deductible exceeds the amount of output tax due in respect of the accounting period, the excess amount shall be credited by the Commissioner General to the taxable person. Where the taxable person remains in an excess VAT position for a continuous period of three consecutive months or more, a refund shall be made.

Pre-registration costs. A taxable person may recover the VAT on stocks purchased prior to registration if the goods are still in possession of the taxable person at the time of registration and if the purchase or importation of stocks occurred not more than four months prior to the date of registration.

Bad debts. VAT on sales that are declared bad is supposed to reduce the output tax payable by making the necessary adjustments on the VAT return. Where a customer does not pay for the supply, the taxable person must prove that they took all the reasonable steps to collect the amount due and failed. The VAT Act allows the taxable person to do an adjustment in its VAT return that was previously filed with the tax authority declaring the output tax based on accrual.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred on purchases that are used for noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Malawi.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Input tax incurred by non-established businesses that are not registered for VAT in Malawi is not recoverable.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A taxable person shall, on supply of taxable goods or services to a customer, issue to the customer a tax invoice prescribed by the Commissioner General.

Credit notes. Where a tax invoice has been issued and the amount shown as VAT on the tax invoice exceeds the VAT properly chargeable in respect of the supply, the taxable person making the supply shall issue a credit note to the recipient of the supply.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is mandatory in Malawi for all taxable persons.

Scope of electronic invoicing. For B2B, B2C and business-to-government (B2G) supplies, electronic invoicing is mandatory for all taxable persons in Malawi. There is no threshold beyond which taxable persons are required to adopt electronic invoicing in Malawi.

Every taxable person (i.e., a VAT-registered operator) is required by law to issue electronic tax invoices and be in possession of the mandatory electronic fiscal device (EFD). In circumstances where the EFD is not working, an authorization letter from the tax authority should be obtained to permit the VAT operator to issue non-fiscalized invoices up until the machine starts functioning. The EFDs are all connected to the MRA server and transmit live data to the tax authorities.

A taxable person that does not receive a fiscal invoice may request the taxable person who supplied the goods or services to it to provide a tax invoice in respect of the supply. The maximum retention period for the tax invoices received from suppliers is six years, and input tax is claimable only if the fiscal invoices are available as basis for claiming input tax.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified VAT invoicing is not allowed in Malawi. As such, full VAT invoices are required.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Malawi.

Proof of exports. Exports of goods and services are zero-rated. For proof of exports, the following are mandatory export documents:
- Customs Declaration Form 12
- Supplier's commercial invoice
- Currency Declaration Form CD1
- Carrier's cargo manifest
- Certificate of origin

Foreign currency invoices. Invoices in a foreign currency but relating to the supplies made in Malawi should be converted to the domestic currency, which is the Malawian kwacha (MWK), for purposes of claiming input tax where VAT is explicitly shown on the invoice. The exchange rates to use for such conversions are the Reserve Bank of Malawi's exchange rate at the date of the time of supply.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. A tax invoice is supposed to be issued for any supply of goods or services, even if the supply is made to nontaxable persons. There are penalties for not issuing fiscal invoices.

Records. In Malawi, examples of what records must be held for VAT purposes include:
- A VAT account to show total output tax, total input tax and the amount of VAT due or refundable for each month
- Relevant business and accounting records, including sales and purchase journals, cashbooks, ledgers and other subsidiary books of accounts
- Copies of all tax invoices issued
- All tax invoices received
- Documentation relating to the importation and exportation of goods and services
- All debit and credit notes or other documents providing evidence of any increase or decrease in the value of goods and services purchased or sold

In Malawi, VAT books and records must be held within the country. Such records may be requested for review by the Commissioner General.

Record retention period. Records, as prescribed by the Minister or directed by the Commissioner General must be kept for a minimum of six years at such a place and time as gazetted. Written permission of the Commissioner General to destroy any book, document, account or record that is less than six years old, should be obtained. The permission granted shall specify the book, document, account or records to which the permission relates.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is not allowed in Malawi. Archiving must be made in paper form only.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. VAT returns are due on the 25th of the following month to which the VAT return relates. VAT returns are submitted physically to the tax offices.

Periodic payments. Payment of VAT due must accompany the filing of the VAT return, i.e., by the 25th of the following month to which the VAT return relates. Payment of VAT can be made through the ePayment platform, bank certified checks or by way of cash to be deposited at the bank.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is not allowed in Malawi. All returns must be physically filed to the relevant tax office in Malawi.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Malawi.

Special schemes. No special schemes are available in Malawi.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Malawi.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in Malawi.

Correcting errors in previous returns. A taxable person who made bona fide errors in a VAT return may make an application to the tax authority to correct the error and make adjustment to the VAT return. The application to the tax authority may be made online or by physical delivery to the tax authority.

Digital tax administration. All taxable persons are required to use an EFD and all the EFDs are connected to the MRA server, transmitting live data to the tax authorities. For further details, see the subsection Electronic invoicing above.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. The penalty for late registration for VAT in Malawi is MWK100,000.

Penalties for late payment and filings. The penalty for late payment of VAT is an additional sum of 15% of the amount of VAT involved, plus a further additional sum of 5% per month or part thereof for the period during which the VAT remains unpaid.

Interest is charged on the unpaid amount at the prevailing bank lending rate plus 5% per annum.

Penalties for errors. Fine of MWK200,000, plus imprisonment for 10 years for falsification and alteration of documents. The goods involved are confiscated.

There are no specific penalties associated with the late notification or failure to notify the tax authorities of changes to a taxable person's VAT registration details. For further details, see the subsection Changes to VAT registration details above.

Penalties for fraud. The penalty for VAT fraud is a fine not exceeding 20 times the amount of VAT involved and imprisonment for 5 years.

Personal liability for company officers. Where anybody corporate or unincorporated, liable for the payment of VAT, or of any penalties or interest arising under the VAT Act, or for any penalties or interest arising under the VAT Act, defaults in payment, in whole or in part, after written demand, the directors shall be jointly and severally liable to pay the sum due.

Statute of limitations. The statute of limitations in Malawi is six years. The taxable person has 12 months to correct errors.

B. Scope of the taxes

Sales tax. Sales tax is a single-stage tax applied to sales of locally manufactured taxable goods as well as to taxable goods imported for domestic consumption.

All taxable goods manufactured in, or imported into, Malaysia are subject to sales tax, unless they are specifically exempted by law. However, sales tax does not apply to goods manufactured in, or imported into, Labuan, Langkawi, Tioman, Pangkor, (intercountry) Joint Development Area, free zones, licensed warehouses, licensed manufacturing warehouses and licensed Petroleum Supply Bases.

The term "manufacture" is defined as the conversion of materials by manual or mechanical means into a new product by changing the size, shape, composition, nature or quality of such materials and includes the assembly of parts into a piece of machinery or other products. However, this does not include the installation of machinery or equipment for construction purposes. With respect to petroleum products, the term "manufacture" pertains to the process of refining that includes the separation, conversion, purification and blending of refinery streams or petrochemical streams.

Service tax. Service tax shall be charged and levied on any taxable services provided in Malaysia by a registered person in carrying on his business or self-assessed on any imported taxable services. It is applicable to specific taxable services prescribed under the First Schedule of the Service Tax Regulations 2018. Services that are not included in the prescribed list are not taxable. There are 10 major groups of taxable services that currently form the prescribed list. Taxable services include, but are not limited to, accommodation, food and beverage, night clubs and karaoke center services, private clubs, golf clubs, betting and gaming, professional or skills (e.g., legal, accounting, surveying services, employment services, consultancy, training or coaching services, management services, engineering services, information technology services, architectural services, safety or security services, digital services), credit card and charge cards, other specific services (e.g. insurance, advertising, telecommunication services, brokerage and underwriting services, parking, motor vehicle repair, cleaning services), and logistics (covering logistics and delivery services (except delivery of food and beverage), courier, and customs agents).

Various amendments and some new measures were proposed during the Budget 2024 announcement on 13 October 2023, as follows:

- Increase in service tax rate from 6% to 8% for all prescribed taxable services, except food and beverage, telecommunications, logistics and vehicle parking space services, starting 1 March 2024.
- The service tax scope was expanded to include karaoke center services, brokerage and underwriting services for non-financial services such as brokerage for ship and aircraft space, commodity and real estate, and logistics services, starting 1 March 2024. In addition to these services, the Service Tax (Amendment) Regulations 2024 included maintenance and repair services effective 1 March 2024. The mandatory registration threshold for such prescribed services is set at RM500,000 per annum.
- Introduction of new legislation to implement the high-value goods tax (HVGT) at a rate from 5% to 10% on certain high-value items such as jewelry and watches based on the threshold value of these goods. The HVGT was announced in the previous Budget 2023 announcement as luxury goods tax. No effective date has been announced.
- Introduction of import duty and sales tax exemptions on importation and acquisition of manufacturing aids for specific industries and prescribed categories of goods, starting 1 January 2024.
- Increase in excise duty rate on ready-to-drink, sugar-sweetened beverages under the tariff headers 22.02 and 20.09 from RM0.40 per litre to RM0.50 per litre, starting 1 January 2024.
- Imposition of excise duty on chewing tobacco products covered under the tariff code 2403.99.5000 at 5% + RM27 per kilogram, from 1 January 2024.
- Excise duty exemption of up to RM100,000 for the purchase of a completely knock down (CKD) vehicle for approved applicants under the Returning Expert Program, from 1 January 2024 until 31 December 2027.

Effective use and enjoyment. To avoid instances of non-taxation or double taxation, jurisdictions can apply "use and enjoyment" rules that allow a service that is "used and enjoyed" in the jurisdiction to be taxed or prevent a service that is "used and enjoyed" outside the jurisdiction from being taxed. If a service is taxed in the jurisdiction under the "use and enjoyment" provisions, a non-established supplier of the service may be required to register for sales tax and service tax (SST) in every jurisdiction where it has customers that are not taxable persons. In Malaysia, no services are subject to the "use and enjoyment" provisions.

However, taxable services rendered in relation to land, goods or matters in relation to Malaysia are generally subject to service tax. For a non-established business (i.e., a foreign service provider [FSP]), it is not required to be registered for service tax when rendering taxable services to consumers in Malaysia (i.e., individuals or businesses), except for the provision of digital services.

Transfer of a going concern. Normally the sale of the assets of an SST-registered or SST-registrable business will be subject to SST at the appropriate rate. However, a transfer of a business as a going concern (TOGC) may be outside the scope of the tax under certain conditions. A TOGC is the sale of a business or part of a business capable of separate operation including assets. Where the sale meets the conditions, the supply is treated as outside the scope of SST. In Malaysia, for sales tax, generally the sale of an asset, a business or part of a business by an SST-registered or SST-registrable business will not attract SST. However, if a sales tax-registered manufacturer transfers, sells or disposes inventories (i.e., finished taxable goods and raw materials), machinery and/or equipment, this may attract sales tax, subject to conditions.

Transactions between related parties. For the provision of taxable services, the value to impose service tax will be determined based on the value of the prescribed taxable service in the normal course of business to the person not connected to the taxable person. For the provision of taxable goods, the valuation rules for transactions between related parties under sales tax are modeled after the World Trade Organization's rules of valuation.

C. Who is liable

Sales tax. Any person that manufactures taxable goods while doing business must apply for a sales tax registration.

Exemption from registration. The following manufacturers are excluded from sales tax registration:
- Manufacturer of nontaxable goods (not eligible for voluntary registration)
- Manufacturer below the registration threshold (RM500,000)
- Subcontractor manufacturer below threshold (RM500,000)
- Manufacturing activities that have been exempted from registration

Importers. An importer of taxable goods does not need to apply for a sales tax registration. Sales tax on imported goods is assessed and collected when the goods are cleared by the Royal Malaysia Customs Department, together with any customs duties payable.

Service tax. Subject to the relevant registration thresholds provided in the service tax regulations, any person that carries on a business of providing taxable services must apply for service tax registration.

Mandatory registration is required where:
- The historical taxable annual turnover is more than the prescribed threshold (RM500,000).
- There are reasonable grounds that the future taxable annual turnover will be more than the prescribed threshold (RM500,000).

The following examples indicate businesses subject to the existing service tax registration thresholds (these lists are not exhaustive):

Examples of businesses with nil threshold
- Customs clearance agents
- Credit card or charge card services provider regulated by Bank Negara Malaysia

Examples of businesses with a RM500,000 threshold
- Professional engineer
- Accommodation services operator
- Parking operator
- Consultancy, training or coaching services, excluding research and development companies

Example of businesses with a RM1.5 million threshold
- Caterer
- Food court operator
- Operator of restaurant, bar, snack bar, canteen, coffee house or any place that provides food and drinks
  - Eat-in or take-away
  - Excluding canteens in an educational institution or operated by a religious institution or body

Exemption from registration. The following persons are excluded from service tax registration:
- Persons/businesses providing non-taxable services (not eligible for voluntary registration)
- Persons below the registration threshold (RM500,000)

Voluntary registration and small businesses. If the value of taxable supplies made by a business is below the registration threshold, the business may apply to register for SST voluntarily.

Group registration. Group SST registration is not allowed in Malaysia. However, branch or divisional registration is allowed. A business that operates through branches or divisions must determine whether it is liable to be registered based on the aggregate total taxable supplies of all the branches and divisions. On approval, each branch or division may apply to register individually under the name of that branch or division.

Supplies made between divisions within the divisional registration are disregarded for SST purposes. There is no minimum time required for the duration for businesses to be registered under the same branch or division. All members of an SST branch/divisional registration in Malaysia are jointly and severally liable for SST debts and penalties.

Fixed establishment. In Malaysia, there is no legal definition of a fixed establishment for SST purposes. Similarly, the permanent establishment rules under direct taxation do not have any relevance under SST, since this concept does not exist under SST law. In general, SST adopts a territorial scope, i.e., within the borders of Malaysia. In the case of goods, any person in Malaysia manufacturing or importing taxable goods in Malaysia is liable to sales tax. As for services, any person in Malaysia providing taxable services or acquiring imported taxable services in Malaysia is liable to service tax. However, the service tax on digital services (SToDS) adopts an extraterritorial scope, i.e., beyond the borders of Malaysia. In this regard, any FSP or foreign registered person (FRP) providing digital services to a consumer in Malaysia is liable to SToDS.

Non-established businesses. With effect from 1 January 2020, FSPs who provide digital services to consumers in Malaysia (i.e., individuals or businesses) are liable to be registered for SToDS when the total value of digital services provided to a consumer in Malaysia exceeds RM500,000 per year. FSPs who are liable to register for SToDS shall apply for registration not later than the last day of the month following the month in which they exceed the threshold. FSPs may register by completing and submitting the DST-01 Form online via the SToDS portal.

With effect from 14 May 2020, FRPs may apply group relief (i.e., intragroup exemption) on the provision of digital services to any qualifying group company in Malaysia.

However, should the FRP also provide the same digital services to any Malaysian companies outside of the group of companies in Malaysia (i.e., third party), all digital services provided to both companies within and outside the group of companies will be subject to service tax.

Aside from SToDS, there are no additional special rules for non-established businesses.

Tax representatives. Tax representatives are not required in Malaysia.

Reverse charge. Service tax at a rate of 6% (increased to 8% effective 1 March 2024) shall be charged and levied on any imported taxable services acquired on or after 1 January 2019 by any person carrying on a business in Malaysia. The recipient of imported taxable services is required to self-account and pay 6% service tax (increased to 8% effective 1 March 2024) based on the actual value of the imported taxable services. There is no input tax recovery.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Malaysia.

Digital economy. With effect from 1 January 2020, the scope of taxable services under the Service Tax Regulations 2018 was expanded to cover the provision of digital services, including the provision of electronic media that allows the suppliers to provide supplies to customers or transaction for the provision of digital services on behalf of any person. Local service providers providing specific digital services related to banking and financial services are not subject to service tax. This applies only until 31 July 2025.

A local service provider who provides digital services as prescribed above shall be liable to register under Service Tax legislation if the value of services during a period of 12 months or less exceeds the threshold of RM500,000. This value shall be determined based on either historical or future method. SToDS at the rate of 6% (increased to 8% effective 1 March 2024) shall be charged and levied on any qualifying digital service provided by an FRP to consumers (i.e., businesses or individuals (both business-to-business [B2B] and business-to-consumer [B2C]) in Malaysia. Similar to local service providers, an FSP who provides digital services (i.e., electronically supplied services) to consumers in Malaysia, where the value of these services during a period of 12 months or less exceeds the threshold of RM500,000, will be required to register for SToDS. The value of the digital services can be determined based on either the historical or future method.

Legislation pertaining to the imposition of sales tax on low-value goods (SToLVGs) imported into Malaysia were introduced via the Sales Tax (Amendment) Act 2022, which was gazetted on 18 October 2022. Online sellers (whether from Malaysia or overseas) would be required to register for sales tax and charge the same accordingly.

The SToLVGs was due to be effective on 1 April 2023. However, on 8 December 2023, the appointment of effective date of SToLVGs was gazetted and came into operation on 1 January 2024.

The guide dated 3 November 2023 has been published by the Director General (DG) of RMCD on 3 November 2023, which explains the explaining of the implementation of SToLVGs to persons selling LVGs via an online marketplace or operating an online marketplace. The guide comprises both Part I – Imposition and Scope on LVGs and Part II – Customs Clearance Procedures on the Importation of LVGs. LVGs at the rate of 10% shall be charged and levied on all goods with a sales value of RM500 or less, brought from outside Malaysia via land, sea, or air, into Malaysia. For SToLVGs purposes, Malaysia also includes Special Areas (such as free zone, licensed warehouse, licensed manufacturing warehouse, Joint Development Area and petroleum supply base) and Designated Areas (such as Labuan, Langkawi, Tioman and Pangkor).

However, LVGs exclude cigarettes, tobacco products, smoking pipes (including pipe bowls), electronic cigarettes and similar personal electric vaporizing devices, preparation of a kind used for smoking through electronic cigarette and electric vaporizing device, in forms of liquid of gel, not containing nicotine, and intoxicating liquor.

When computing the sales value of LVGs, this does not include transportation and insurance costs for transporting the goods from overseas to Malaysia, and any tax or duties, chargeable and payable on the sale of LVGs.

For LVGs imported into Malaysia, the LVG registration number must be displayed on all packages imported by air, road or sea mode, as well as postal service. This is to ensure that LVGs that were charged sales tax at the point of sale (i.e., sales tax on LVGs) will not be charged sales tax on import during customs clearance. For LVGs imported by air, these are to be declared using the electronic Pre-Alert Manifest (e-PAM) system and, subject to conditions, will generally be exempted from import duty and sales tax on import. For LVGs imported via road or sea mode, these are to be declared via the Customs No. 1 Form (K1) and will generally be subjected to import duties during importation. For LVGs imported via postal service, the Consignment Note (CN) 22 or CN 23 is used for declaration purposes and, subject to conditions, will generally be exempted from import duty and sales tax on import.

Sellers who sells LVGs to consumers in Malaysia, where the value of these services during a period of 12 months or less exceeds the threshold of RM500,000, will be required to register for SToLVGs. The sales value of the LVGs can be determined based on either the historical or future method.

Online marketplaces and platforms. In Malaysia, an online marketplace or platform is defined as any person operating an online platform (for buying and selling goods or providing services) and who supplies digital services on behalf of any person. An example of online platforms includes offering online advertising space on an intangible media platform and offering a platform to trade products or services.

To the extent that the value of the digital services provided by the online platform operator to consumers (B2B or B2C) in Malaysia exceeds the prescribed threshold for registration, the operator would be liable to register for service tax (local) or SToDS (foreigner).

Registration procedures. For sales tax and service tax, businesses may apply for registration by completing and submitting Form SST-01 electronically via the MySST portal not later than the last day of the month following the month in which the business is liable to be registered.

FSPs who are liable to be registered for SToDS shall apply for registration via the DST-01 Form electronically via the MYSToDS portal not later than the last day of the month following the month in which the threshold has been exceeded.

Sellers who are liable to be registered for SToLVGs shall apply for registration via the LVG-01 Form electronically via the MyLVG portal not later than the last day of the month following the month in which the threshold has been exceeded. Upon registration, the LVG registration number will be provided and the seller will be known as a registered seller (RS).

For sales tax, service tax, SToDS and SToLVGs, RMCD would require the businesses to complete the relevant details/information in the online registration form (e.g., business particulars/information, manufacturing/type of services provided). No other documents are required for submission of the registration form to RMCD. However, where necessary, RMCD may request additional information via email after the application is successfully received by them for their verification purposes.

Once the application has been approved, the business will be notified in writing and assigned a registration number by the Malaysian tax authorities (RMCD).

Deregistration. A business that ceases operations must cancel its SST registration. The business is required to notify the RMCD within 30 days from the date of such occurrence.

For SToDS, an FRP may apply to cancel its registration if its liability to be registered has ceased or the DG determines that the person is not liable to be registered. The FRP shall notify the DG in writing of that fact and the date of cessation within 30 days from the date of cessation. This can be done by completing an online application via MYSToDS portal.

For SToLVGs, an RS may apply to cancel its registration if its liability to be registered has ceased or the DG determines that the person is not liable to be registered. The RS shall notify the DG in writing of that fact and the date of cessation within 30 days from the date of cessation. This can be done by completing an online application via MyLVG portal.

Changes to SST registration details. Taxable persons are required to notify the RMCD controlling station, in writing, of any amendments to the following:

- Changes in the name of business
- Changes in the address of any place of business
- Changes in partners of a partnership
- Changes in the status of business
- Changes or addition in the manufactured goods or taxable services provided
- Changes of any new place of business or closing of any place of business at which business is no longer carried on

There is no specific time limit stated in the legislation for notification of such changes. The exact wording of the Regulations refers to "shall immediately notify."

Designated area. The duty-free islands are free from all types of customs duties and excise duties. For the purposes of SST, the duty-free islands are known as designated areas (DAs) and currently refer specifically to the islands of Labuan, Langkawi, Tioman and Pangkor. Generally, any supplies of taxable goods or taxable services made by any person within or between the DAs are not subject to SST unless they are prescribed otherwise by the Minister. Further, any goods imported from overseas are not subject to sales tax unless they are prescribed by the Minister.

D. Rates

Sales tax. Sales tax is an ad valorem tax and different rates apply based on the customs classification (HS codes) of the taxable goods. It is, therefore, crucial that the correct HS code classification is assigned to each of the products to ensure accuracy of the sales tax rate being applied.

The term "taxable goods" refers to goods that are locally manufactured, as well as imported goods, both of which are not exempt under the sales tax law.

The sales tax rates are:
- Standard rate: 10%
- Reduced rates: 5% and specific rates (imposed on certain petroleum products)
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of sales tax applies to all supplies of goods, unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate, the zero rate or an exemption.

Example of goods and services taxable at 5%

- Nonessential goods (including among others, foodstuffs and building materials)

The term "exempt" refers to supplies of goods that are not liable to tax.

Nevertheless, the Minister of Finance has the power to exempt the following:
- Any goods or class of goods from the whole or any part of the sales tax, subject to conditions as they deem fit
- Any person or class of persons from payment of the whole or any part of the sales tax that may be charged and levied on any taxable goods manufactured or imported, as below:
  - Schedule A: class of person, e.g., ruler of states, federal or state government department, local authority, inland clearance depot, duty-free shop
  - Schedule B: manufacturer of specific nontaxable goods, e.g., raw materials, components, packaging to be used in manufacturing activities
  - Schedule C: registered manufacturer, e.g., exemption of tax on acquisition of raw materials, components, packaging to be used in manufacturing of taxable goods

Example of exempt supplies of goods

- Raw food (e.g., meat, vegetables, seafood)
- Bricks, blocks, tiles
- Bicycles and other cycles (including delivery tricycles), not motorized
- Trucks, motorcycles

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Malaysia.

Service tax. Service tax is imposed at a rate of 6% on the price, charge or premium for the taxable service. A specific rate of RM25 applies per year for each principal and supplementary card upon activation and subsequent years on the provision of credit card or charge card services by banks and financial service providers regulated by the Bank Negara Malaysia. From 1 March 2024, the service tax rate increased from 6% to 8% for all prescribed taxable services, except food and beverage, telecommunications, logistics and vehicle parking space services.

Specific exemptions are available for service tax registered persons, as follows:
- Intragroup exemption may apply when a company in a group of companies provides services to a related-party company, provided all the following conditions under Regulations 3 to 8, First Schedule of the Service Tax Regulations 2018, as amended, are met:
  i. Taxable services fall under items (a) to (i), Group G, First Schedule of the STR 2018. The underlying services in question can be classified under one of the following taxable services:
     - Legal services

- Accounting, auditing, bookkeeping and other services by public accountants
- Surveying services, including valuation, appraisal and estate agency services
- Engineering services
- Architectural services
- Consultancy, training or coaching services
- Information technology services
- Management services
- Digital services
- Maintenance and repair services

ii. Control requirement:
- Two or more companies are eligible to be treated as companies within a group of companies if one company controls each of the other companies.
- A company shall be taken to control another company if the first mentioned company holds directly, indirectly through subsidiaries, or together directly or indirectly through/from subsidiaries:
- More than 50% of the issued share capital of the second mentioned company
  Or
- From 20% to 50% of the issued share capital of the second mentioned company and the first mentioned company has exercisable power to appoint or remove all or a majority of directors in the board of directors in the second mentioned company.

iii. Exclusivity requirement – services provided only within the group:
- Where a company provides any such specified Group G taxable services to another person outside the group of companies, all such taxable services (whether provided to a company within or outside the group of companies) shall be taxable services, unless the total value of taxable services provided to the third parties does not exceed an amount equal to 5% of the total value of the same taxable service within a 12-month period.
- Where a company in a group of companies acquires the abovementioned professional services from any company within the same group of companies outside Malaysia, such service shall not be an imported taxable service, with effect from 1 September 2019.
- On a separate note, where an FRP provides digital services to a company in Malaysia within the same group of companies with the FRP, such services shall not be subject to service tax, effective 14 May 2020. However, where an FRP provides the same digital services to any company outside the group of companies, such digital services provided within or outside the group of companies will be subject to service tax.

A B2B exemption is applicable to a service tax-registered person who acquires the same taxable services as provided by it, from another service tax-registered person. Specifically, the B2B exemption will only apply to certain specific professional services as follows:

- Legal services
- Accounting, auditing, bookkeeping and other services by public accountants
- Surveying services, including valuation, appraisal and estate agency services
- Engineering services
- Architectural services
- Consultancy services, training or coaching
- Information technology services
- Management services
- Digital services
- Maintenance and repair services
- Advertising services
- Logistics services (covering logistics and delivery services (except delivery of food and beverage), courier and customs agents)

On a separate note, a B2B exemption on imported services was also introduced from 1 January 2020. This is to exempt the first leg of a qualifying B2B supply chain, where there is an import of taxable services (i.e., services are provided by an overseas service provider), which are subsequently followed by provision of the same service by the service tax-registered person to its Malaysian customers. This B2B exemption for imported taxable services would only be applicable for professional services as listed in the bullet above.

E. Time of supply

Sales tax is due on goods manufactured in Malaysia when the goods are sold, used or disposed of by a taxable person. The definition of "disposal" includes the manufacturer diverting the goods for its own use, destroying the goods, giving away or donating the goods and making a supply of manufactured goods for no consideration.

Service tax is due when payment is received for taxable services rendered. If payment is not received within 12 months after the date of when the services were provided, the tax is due on the day immediately after the expiration of the 12-month period. However, the registered person may apply to RMCD in writing, to account for service tax upon issuance of the invoice, subject to approval from RMCD.

Service tax on imported services is due upon the earliest of payment or invoice receipt date.

Deposits and prepayments. There are no special time of supply rules for deposits and prepayments for sales tax in Malaysia. As such, normal time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

In principle, advance payments are subject to service tax if these payments are received as payment for the taxable services to be provided. Service tax is to be accounted upon receipt of such payments from the customer. However, payment as a deposit is not subject to service tax until such deposit is realized as payment for the taxable service rendered and an invoice has been issued.

Continuous supplies of services. If services are supplied continuously and payment is determined in whole or in part or payable periodically or from time to time, the tax is to be reported when the payment is received from customers, or the tax invoice is issued (subject to approval by RMCD).

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules for goods sent on approval for sale or return in Malaysia. As such, the normal time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

Reverse-charge services. Service tax in respect of imported taxable services shall be due and payable at the time when the payment is made or an invoice is received for the service, whichever is earlier.

Leased assets. Lease or rental of assets is not a taxable service under the First Schedule of the Service Tax Regulations 2018. As such, no time of supply rules apply.

Imported goods. Sales tax is due on imported goods at the time the goods are cleared by the Royal Malaysia Customs Department or removed from a customs bonded warehouse.

F. Recovery of SST by taxable persons

SST is a single-stage tax that is a cost to businesses as SST on purchases. It is not recoverable as input tax from RMCD.

There is no input tax recovery mechanism in Malaysia, and as such the SST incurred is a true cost to the business. This means that taxable persons that incur SST on purchases are unable to claim the tax back from customs. However, this does not apply in certain situations, for example any overpaid/erroneously paid tax to customs. For further information, see the Refunds subsection below.

Sales tax is a single-stage tax, applied to sales of locally manufactured taxable goods, as well as to taxable goods imported for domestic consumption. Service tax is charged and levied on any taxable services relating to Malaysia by a registered person in carrying on their business or self-assessed on any imported taxable services.

There are only certain specific exemptions or the drawback facility under the sales tax regime.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax incurred in Malaysia is generally not recoverable.

Partial exemption. Deduction of input tax is not allowed in Malaysia.

Capital goods. Input tax incurred on capital goods in Malaysia is not recoverable.

Refunds. There are several credit facilities and refunds available for sales tax and service tax, as follows:

Sales tax
- Drawback: Drawback of sales tax may be allowable to any person on which sales tax has been paid, if the taxable goods have been exported within three months from the date sales tax was imposed, subject to conditions.
- Deduction of sales tax: A registered manufacturer is eligible to make a deduction of sales tax paid, at the rate of 2% or 4% of the total value of taxable goods purchased (i.e., raw materials, components or packaging materials) used solely in the manufacturing of taxable goods, from a person other than a registered manufacturer, subject to certain conditions.
- Refund of erroneously paid or overpaid tax: Any person who has overpaid or erroneously paid any sales tax, surcharge, penalty, fee or other money shall make a claim for refund in the prescribed form (i.e., JKDM Form No. 2), subject to conditions.

Service tax
- Contra system: It is a facility that allows any registered person to deduct its return the amount of service tax paid but subsequently refunded to his customer because of either cancellation or termination for taxable services. An application can be made to the DG of RMCD, subject to conditions.
- Refund of erroneously paid or overpaid tax: Any person who has overpaid or erroneously paid any sales tax, surcharge, penalty, fee or other money shall make a claim for refund in the prescribed form (i.e., JKDM Form No. 2), subject to certain conditions.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax incurred on pre-registration costs in Malaysia is not recoverable.

Bad debts. Claiming for bad debt is allowed for any person who is or has ceased to be a registered manufacturer or person provided that the SST has been paid, the whole or any part of the tax payable has been written off as bad debt. The claim for a refund on the whole or any part of the service tax paid shall be made within six years from the date the service tax is paid by the business.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred on purchases that are used for noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Malaysia.

G. Recovery of SST by non-established businesses

Input tax incurred by non-established businesses that are not registered for SST in Malaysia is not recoverable.

H. Invoicing

SST invoices. For both sales and service tax, every registered manufacturer/person who sells/provides any taxable goods/service is required to issue an invoice to customers containing prescribed particulars in the national (Bahasa Melayu) or English language. The amount of sales/service tax payable is to be stated separately from the total amount payable.

Where certain exemptions apply (e.g., applicable for service tax-registered persons who acquire the same taxable services as provided by them, from another service tax-registered person), the supplier shall issue an invoice under Regulations 10 (1) and (1A) of the Service Tax Regulations 2018, which require the following additional details:
- Name and address of the client
- The client's service tax registration number
- The client's total amount of service tax that is exempted

Credit notes. Adjustments generally arise because of the cancellation of a transaction, a change in the amount previously invoiced or a change in tax rate. Adjustment notes (i.e., debit and credit notes) should contain the prescribed particulars under the regulations and must cross-reference the original tax invoice number and date it relates to. The DG may disallow any deduction where the credit notes presented are untrue or incorrect.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is allowed in Malaysia, but not mandatory.

Scope of electronic invoicing. For B2B, B2C and business-to-government (B2G) supplies, electronic invoicing is allowed but not mandatory in Malaysia.

Electronic invoicing applies to all taxable persons undertaking commercial activities in Malaysia. This includes businesses engaged in the provision of goods and services and certain non-business transactions between individuals.

The Malaysian SST Act presumes that an invoice has been issued to the customer, even though there is no delivery of any equivalent document in paper form to the customer, as long as the requisite information is recorded in a computer and is transmitted to the customer by electronic means or produced on any material other than paper and delivered to the customer.

It was announced during the Budget 2024 that a phased introduction of mandatory electronic invoicing will be from 1 August 2024 to 1 July 2025. The Government has issued legislation pertaining to electronic invoicing, as well as releasing the software development kit (SDK) for taxpayers to implement electronic invoicing.

At the time of preparing this chapter, the Inland Revenue Board of Malaysia (IRBM) has issued the following guidelines to date:
- e-Invoice Guideline Version 2.3 (published on 6 April 2024) – which explains the processes and procedures and provides a structured approach for taxable persons to implement e-Invoicing, from generation and transmission, and to the storing of e-Invoices, to meet compliance obligations.
- e-Invoice Specific Guideline Version 2.1 (published on 6 April 2024) – which provides further guidance on the issuance of e-Invoice relating to certain transactions.
- e-Invoice SDK Version 1.0 (released on 6 April 2024) – which provides a collection of tools, libraries and resources providing a set of functionalities, Application Programming Interfaces (APIs) and development guidelines to assist businesses in integrating their existing system to the MyInvois System via API.

Electronic invoicing will be implemented and administered by the IRBM. An electronic invoice (e-Invoice) is a digital representation of a transaction between a supplier and a buyer, which replaces paper or electronic documents, such as invoices, credit notes and debit notes. An e-Invoice contains the same essential information as traditional document, for example, supplier's and buyer's details, item description, quantity, price excluding tax, tax and total amount, which records transaction data for daily business operations.

The proposed mandatory electronic invoicing implementation timeline are as follows:

(i) From 1 August 2024 – taxable persons with an annual turnover or revenue of more than RM100 million

(ii) From 1 January 2025 – taxable persons with an annual turnover or revenue of RM25 million to RM100 million
(iii) From 1 July 2025 – all other taxable persons

The types of e-Invoices that taxable persons are required to issue are as follows:
- Invoice: A document that itemizes and records a transaction between a supplier and buyer.
- Self-billed invoice: a document to record goods and/or services acquired from a foreign supplier not under the MyInvois system.
- Credit note: A document issued by suppliers to correct errors, apply discounts, or account for returns in a previously issued e-Invoice with the purpose of reducing the value of the original e-Invoice without involving the return of monies to the buyer.
- Debit note: A document issued to indicate additional charges on a previously issued e-Invoice.
- Refund e-Invoice: a document issued by a supplier to confirm the refund of monies to the buyer.

However, it is proposed that certain persons will be exempt from issuing an e-Invoice, e.g., rulers of states (including former rulers and consorts), federal or state government department, local authority, statutory body and statutory authority, and consular and diplomatic offices.

The IRBM proposed that the following types of income or expense does not require an e-Invoice, namely employment income, pension, alimony, distribution of dividends by companies under a single-tier taxation system, as well as those listed on Bursa Malaysia, zakat (contribution by Muslims under Islamic law) and scholarship.

Simplified SST invoices. Under the current SST regime, the document to support the SST-relevant transaction is referred only as an "invoice." However, the DG may allow any particulars specified in the SST regulation not to be stated on an invoice issued, upon request in writing.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed for SST purposes in Malaysia.

Proof of exports. Exports of goods are exempt from sales tax. To qualify for exemption, it must be proved that the goods have been exported from Malaysia. Acceptable documentation includes a customs export declaration and an export sales invoice issued by a registered manufacturer.

Foreign currency invoices. If an invoice is issued in foreign currency, the total amount payable before SST, the total SST chargeable and the total amount payable (including SST) must be converted to the domestic currency, which is the Malaysian ringgit (RM), by using the selling rate of exchange prevailing in Malaysia at the time of sale of taxable goods or when the taxable services are provided. In the case of SST levied on the importation of goods, the exchange rates published by RMCD that are updated every week, would be applied.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. There are no special invoicing rules for supplies to nontaxable persons in Malaysia. As such, full SST invoices are required.

Records. Every taxable person and non-established taxable person must keep complete and true up-to-date written records of all transactions that affect or may affect their liability to sales tax or service tax. In Malaysia, examples of what records must be held for SST purposes include the following:
- All records of sales of taxable goods or provision of taxable services by or to that taxable person, including invoices, receipts, debit notes and credit notes
- All records of importation and exportation of taxable goods
- All records of imported taxable service
- All records by FRPs relating to provision of digital services, including invoices and receipts
- All other records as the DG of Customs may determine

In Malaysia, SST-related books and records can be held outside of the country. Generally, the documents should be kept in Malaysia. However, to the extent that the registered persons intended to retain these records outside Malaysia, a written approval must be obtained from the DG, subject to such conditions as they deem fit.

For SToDS, a non-established taxable person can keep their documents or records related to service tax on digital services outside Malaysia if the records are readily accessible when required.

Record retention period. Taxable persons are required to maintain their SST records for seven years and the records must be in English or in the national language (Bahasa Melayu). Any records shall be kept in Malaysia, except as otherwise approved by the DG.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is allowed in Malaysia. Records can be kept electronically, where they shall be kept in such manner as to enable the record to be readily accessible and convertible into writing. If the record is originally in a manual form and is subsequently converted into an electronic form, the record shall be retained in its original form prior to the conversion.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. Every taxable person is required to account for tax by submitting an SST-02 return on a bimonthly basis (every two months). As of 1 January 2019, any nontaxable businesses that acquire services from overseas will also need to pay and file a separate SST-02A return.

The SST-02 return is required to be furnished to the DG not later than the last day of the month following the end of the taxable period. If a taxable person's taxable period does not end on the last day of the month, the SST-02 return should be furnished no later than the last day of the 30-day period from the end of the varied taxable period. On the other hand, SST-02A return is required to be furnished to the DG not later than the last day of the month following the end of the month in which the payment on the service has been made or invoice is received by the nontaxable person, whichever is earlier.

For FRPs, they are required to submit a DST-02 return on a quarterly basis (every three months), not later than the last day of the month following the end of the taxable period.

For RS, they are required to submit a LVG-02 return on a quarterly basis (every three months), not later than the last day of the month following the end of the taxable period.

The DG, upon receiving any application in writing, may reassign the taxable period other than the period previously assigned as it deems fit (i.e., vary the length of the taxable period or the date on which the taxable period begins or ends).

Periodic payments. The taxable person who is in a payable position must pay to the DG the amount of tax due and payable by it. Any tax due in respect of a taxable period becomes payable not later than the last day on which the taxable person is required to furnish the SST or DST returns, i.e., by no later than the last day of the 30-day period from the end of the varied taxable period. Payment must be made by way of electronic fund transfer, checks, bank draft, money order or postal order.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is allowed in Malaysia, but not mandatory. For SST-02 and SST-02A returns, the taxable persons may submit the SST return in one of three ways:
- Electronically
- By posting to the Customs Processing Center
- By couriering it to the Customs Processing Center

Taxable persons can choose the method to submit the return. They would not be required to notify the tax authority formally in terms of the method they have elected in submitting such returns. For SToDS, an FSP needs to submit the DST-02 returns and make payments electronically via the SToDS portal.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Malaysia.

Special schemes. Approved Major Exporter Scheme. With effect from 1 July 2020, the sales tax exemption facility, Approved Major Exporter Scheme (AMES) was introduced to relieve the challenges under the existing sales tax drawback mechanism for traders who re-export/export the tax-paid goods and specific exemption facilities for manufacturers of nontaxable goods for export. The benefits to AMES participants are as follows:

- AMES traders are exempted from payment of sales tax on importation/acquisition of the goods that are subsequently exported or transported to designated areas or special areas.
- AMES manufacturers of nontaxable goods are exempted from payment of sales tax on importation/acquisition of raw materials, components packing and packaging materials for use in manufacturing of sales tax-exempted goods that are subsequently exported or transported to designated areas or special areas.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Malaysia.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in Malaysia. However, taxable persons can submit supplementary SST returns, if they have additional tax amounts to be reported to RMCD, via the MySST portal.

Correcting errors in previous returns. If a taxable person makes an error in any return, or any person other than a taxable person makes an error in any declaration furnished to RMCD, they may correct the error voluntarily in Form SST-02, Form SST-02A or Form DST-02, in such manner and within such time as the senior officer of RMCD may determine. In respect of what possible penalties may apply for such errors, see the subsection Penalties for errors below. However, note that there is an avenue for penalty waiver in the event of a voluntary disclosure, subject to the discretion of RMCD on a case-by-case basis.

The RMCD relaunched its Voluntary Disclosure Program (VDP). Under the VDP, taxable persons will be granted full penalty relief for voluntary disclosures of taxes, such as SST (including SToDS), goods and services tax (GST) and tourism tax, which are liable up to 28 February 2023. The VDP is in effect from 6 June 2023 to 31 May 2024.

Digital tax administration. There are no transactional reporting requirements in Malaysia.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. A taxable person that fails to apply for sales tax, service tax, SToDS or SToLVG registration, upon conviction is liable for a penalty, which may include imprisonment for a term not exceeding 24 months (i.e., two years), a fine not exceeding RM30,000 or both. Note that the DG also has the power to raise an assessment, upon conviction, of 10-20 times the amount of sales or service tax or up to five years' imprisonment or both for the first offense and from 20-40 times the amount of sales or service tax or up to seven years' imprisonment or both for the second offense.

GST closure audit. A mandatory GST closure audit will be performed on all taxable persons as a prerequisite for GST registrants to be deregistered. A GST closure audit is a historical audit to be performed by the RMCD to verify that GST has been properly accounted for in all applicable business transactions and to ensure that the relevant information has been correctly reported in the GST-03 returns. To date, RMCD still conducts GST closure audits, and this is expected to continue in 2024.

SST audit. In addition to the above, RMCD is conducting SST audits to verify that the relevant sales tax or service tax has been properly accounted for in all applicable business transactions and to ensure that the relevant information has been correctly reported in the SST returns.

In the event of discovering any unpaid or underpaid indirect taxes and/or erroneous indirect tax filings or submissions, taxable persons are encouraged to voluntarily disclose the same to RMCD.

Penalties for late payment and filings. Any person who fails to submit the return as required will commit an offense and may upon conviction be liable to a fine not exceeding RM50,000 or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three years or to both.
The penalty for late payment is:
- For the first 30-day period that the tax is not paid, 10% of the SST amount due
- For the second 30-day period that the tax is not paid, an additional 15% of the SST amount due
- For the third 30-day period that the tax is not paid, an additional 15% of the SST amount due

After the expiry of the 90-day period, any person who fails to pay to the DG, may upon conviction, be subject to a maximum penalty of 40% or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three years or to both.

Penalties for errors. Any person who makes an error in any return furnished, i.e., submits an incorrect return by omitting information, understating output tax or overstating input tax or giving any incorrect information commits an offense and shall, upon conviction, be subject to a fine not exceeding RM50,000, or imprisonment for up to three years or both; plus, a fine equal to the amount of tax that has been or would have been undercharged.

For failure to notify or late notification to tax authorities regarding changes to a taxable person's SST registration details, the RMCD could apply the general penalty upon conviction (RM30,000 or imprisonment up to two years or both). However, in practice, this would depend on specific circumstances. For further details, see the subsection Changes to SST registration details above.

Penalties for fraud. Any person who, with the intent to evade or assist any other person to evade sales and service tax by making, using or authorizing the use of any fraud, will be imposed penalties.

For the first offense, the person will be liable to a fine of not less than 10 times and not more than 20 times the amount of SST or to a term of five years or to both.

For the second or subsequent offense, the person will be liable to a fine of not less than 20 times and not more than 40 times the amount of SST or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding seven years or to both.

Personal liability for company officers. If there is service tax or sales tax due and payable, surcharge is accrued, or penalty, fee or other money is payable by any of the following persons:
- The directors of the company
- The compliance officer who is appointed among the partners of the limited liability partnership or if no compliance officer is appointed as such, any one or all of the partners of the limited liability partnership
- The partners of the firm
- The office bearers of the society
- The persons responsible for the management of the body of persons

Such persons, together with the company, limited liability partnership, firm, society or other body of persons, can be jointly and severally liable for the service tax, surcharge, penalty, fee or other money.

Statute of limitations. The statute of limitations in Malaysia is six years. Generally, the statute of limitations for SST is six years from the date of which the tax or duty is due or payable or the refund was made. However, note that in the case of fraud or willful default, such statute of limitation would not apply.

Taxable persons are not allowed to amend the SST returns submitted after the statutory due date. However, RMCD allows for a supplementary SST return to be submitted via the MySST portal, provided that they have additional taxes to be reported. If there is a reduction in taxes declared to RMCD, a refund application must be submitted to RMCD using a prescribed form (i.e., JKDM Form No. 2) within one year from the time overpayment or erroneous payment occurred, subject to certain conditions.

For SToDS returns, if a taxable person makes an error in any DST-02 return furnished to RMCD, it must correct it in such manner and within such time as the officer of Customs may require, as below:

- Before submission due date and payment not made, and the status of the return shown as "Draft," then there is no limitation for amendment.
- After submission of return, if the amendment results in an addition to the amount of service tax, then the service tax shall be paid accordingly. If the amendment results in a reduction to the amount of service tax, then a verification by the customs officer is required, and amendment is allowed up to three times only.

There is no time limit for taxable persons to amend the SToDS returns declared to RMCD.

For SToLVG returns, if the RS makes an error in any LVG-02 return furnished to RMCD, it must correct it in such manner and within such time as the officer of Customs may require, as below:

- Before the submission due date and payment are not made, and the status of the return is shown as "Draft," then there is no limitation for amendment.
- After the submission of the return, if the amendment results in an addition to the amount of sales tax, then the sales tax shall be paid accordingly. If the amendment results in a reduction to the amount of sales tax, then a verification by the customs officer is required, and the amendment is allowed but up to three times only.

There is no time limit for taxable persons to amend the SToLVG returns declared to RMCD.

B. Scope of the tax

GST applies to the supply of goods or services made in the Maldives by a taxable person.

TGST applies to the following:
- Goods and services supplied by tourist resorts, tourist hotels, guest houses, picnic islands, tourist vessels and yacht marinas authorized by the Tourism Ministry
- Goods and services supplied by shops, diving schools, spas, water sports facilities and other such places in establishments specified in the law (subsection (a)(1)), excluding shops operating exclusively for the employees of such establishments
- Goods and services supplied by travel agency service providers authorized by the tourism ministry
- Goods and services supplied to foreign tourist vessels entering the Maldives by their agents
- Goods and services provided by domestic air transportation service providers to persons other than Maldivian citizens

Effective use and enjoyment. To avoid instances of non-taxation or double taxation, jurisdictions can apply "use and enjoyment" rules that allow a service that is "used and enjoyed" in the jurisdiction to be taxed or prevent a service that is "used and enjoyed" outside the jurisdiction from being taxed. If a service is taxed in the jurisdiction under the "use and enjoyment" provisions, a non-established supplier of the service may be required to register for GST in every jurisdiction where it has customers that are not taxable persons. In the Maldives, no services are subject to the "use and enjoyment" provisions.

Transfer of a going concern. Normally the sale of the assets of a GST-registered or GST-registrable business will be subject to VAT/GST at the appropriate rate. However, a transfer of a business as a going concern (TOGC) may be zero-rated under certain conditions. A TOGC is the sale of a business or part of a business capable of separate operation, including assets. Where the sale meets the conditions, the supply is treated as zero-rated. In the Maldives, a TOGC is treated as zero-rated where the following conditions are met:
- The assets must be sold as part of the TOGC
- The assets are to be used by the purchaser with the intention of carrying on the same kind of business as the seller (but not necessarily identical)
- Where only part of the business is sold, it must be capable of operating separately
- The purchaser is registered for GST at the time of transfer
- The purpose of the transaction is to transfer the ownership of a business owned by an individual or individuals to a company at least 99% of which is held by the same individual or individuals

Transactions between related parties. In the Maldives, for a transaction between related parties, the value for GST purposes is calculated at the open market value.

C. Who is liable

The following persons are required to register for GST if the value of their taxable supplies exceeds MVR1 million per year:
- Companies registered under the Companies Act of Maldives (Act Number 10/1996)
- Nonresident companies that operate and earn profits from sources inside the Maldives
- Partnerships registered under the Partnership Act (Act Number 9/1996)
- Cooperative societies and associations

The following persons are required to register for TGST irrespective of their taxable supplies:
- Tourist establishments (tourist resorts, tourist hotels, guesthouses, picnic islands, tourist vessels and yacht marinas authorized by the Tourism Ministry)

- Diving schools, shops, spas, water sports facilities and any other such facilities being operated within the tourist establishments specified above
- Travel agency service providers authorized by the Tourism Ministry
- Agents providing goods and services to foreign tourist vessels entering the Maldives

Persons carrying on taxable activities in the Maldives must register with the MIRA within 30 days from the date of commencement of the business activity if:

- The value of the person's taxable supplies during the past 12 months exceeded MVR1 million
- The value of the person's estimated taxable supplies for the following 12 months exceeds MVR1 million
- The person provides tourism goods and services

Persons that import goods into the Maldives must register for GST in the Maldives (it is mandatory) and must apply to register with the MIRA within 30 days from the date of commencement of import activity. Note that there is no separate import GST in the Maldives.

Persons who meet the above criteria shall submit a standard form (i.e., MIRA 105) to the MIRA, and the MIRA will confirm the registration by issuing a notification of GST registration.

Exemption from registration. Persons with annual turnover of less than MVR1 million are exempt from GST. There is no exemption from registration for TGST. Importers of goods to the Maldives and suppliers of tourism goods and services are required to register even if the value of their supplies do not exceed the MVR1 million threshold.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. A person conducting an authorized trade or providing an authorized service may request permission of the Commissioner General to register with the MIRA.

Group registration. Group GST registration is not allowed in the Maldives.

Fixed establishment. In the Maldives there is no legal definition of a fixed establishment for GST purposes. However, the definition of permanent establishment used for direct taxation is applicable for GST as well. "Permanent establishment" as defined in the law means a fixed place of business through which the business of an enterprise is wholly or partly carried on. The term "permanent establishment" includes especially:

- A place of management
- A branch
- An office
- A factory
- A workshop
- A mine, an oil or gas well, a quarry or any other place of extraction of natural resources, including vessels and ships used for the extraction of such resources

Non-established businesses. A foreign business with no establishment in the Maldives that supplies goods or services to customers in the Maldives is not required to register for GST. The rules are the same for supplies of goods and for supplies of services and are irrespective of whether supplies are made to business or private customers.

If the foreign business physically supplies goods or services via a branch or office, etc., or has the authority to conclude contracts in the Maldives, it will qualify as a permanent establishment in the Maldives. In this case if such permanent establishments meet the thresholds mentioned they will be obliged to register for GST.

There is no specific threshold for foreign businesses. The general threshold for GST registration applies, i.e., if the total taxable sales (including zero-rated goods and services) for the previous 12 months exceeded MVR1 million or expected taxable sales (including zero-rated goods and services) for the next 12 months is expected to exceed MVR1 million.

Tax representatives. A taxable person may choose to appoint a tax agent to act on its behalf in relation to tax matters; it is not compulsory to do so. The obligation of the tax agent is to review or file tax returns on behalf of the taxable person, but all payment obligations, fines and compliance obligations would still fall upon the taxable person.

If the taxable person wishes to appoint a licensed tax agent, it must submit a completed "appointment of tax agent" (i.e., MIRA 114 form) together with the information and documents specified therein, to the tax administration (MIRA). A tax agent cannot represent any taxable person prior to the submission of the necessary form to the MIRA. A taxable person may appoint only one licensed tax agent.

Reverse charge. There is no reverse-charge mechanism in the Maldives, except in one specific circumstance for the digital economy (see below). However, a foreign business with no establishment in the Maldives that supplies goods or services to customers in the Maldives is not required to register for GST. The rules are the same for supplies of goods and for supplies of services and are irrespective of whether supplies are made to business or private customers.

The only scenario where the reverse-charge mechanism would apply is for business-to-business (B2B) digital transactions, the customer is expected to self-assess GST and TGST on the payment to the nonresident business. See the Digital economy subsection below for more detail.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charge in the Maldives.

Digital economy. For B2B supplies of e-commerce (i.e., electronically supplied services), the customer is expected to self-assess GST and TGST on the payment to the nonresident business. The self-assessed GST/TGST is eligible for an immediate credit to the extent that the customer's business allows the customer to take input tax credits.

For business-to-consumer (B2C) supplies of e-commerce, a nonresident business is required to register and account for GST in the Maldives where its income earned in the Maldives exceeds the registration threshold and the general GST rules and regulations apply.

There are no specific e-commerce GST rules for imported goods in the Maldives.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in the Maldives. If registration rules are met, the service provider must register and declare GST on services provided. Registration is only compulsory for local online marketplaces/platforms.

Registration procedures. To register for GST, the taxable person must submit the GST registration (MIRA 105 form) in person or by post to the tax authorities. Taxable persons must register before the end of the month following the month in which the threshold of MVR1 million was reached.

If registering for TGST, the taxable person must submit a copy of the relevant operating license or permit, together with the registration form.

Deregistration. Persons registered with the MIRA may apply for termination of registration under the following circumstances:

- The person's taxable supplies at the end of any 12-month period fell below MVR500,000.
- The person's taxable supplies at the beginning of any 12-month period are forecasted to fall below MVR500,000.
- The person has ceased taxable activities, with no intention to resume them during the following 12 months.

Registered persons are required to pay tax on goods in their possession at the time of termination of their registration if input tax on the goods has already been claimed.

A registered person who is an importer of goods into the Maldives whose registration is canceled or terminated must submit to the MIRA an account of the goods in their possession out of the goods imported by them. Goods specified in an invoice submitted after deregistration, accordingly, must be sold after the tax invoice is issued. Tax must be paid on the sale of such goods and a tax invoice must be issued accordingly.

Changes to GST registration details. A taxable person is required to inform the tax authority as soon as possible whenever its GST registration details change, either through email or in person.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of GST, including the zero rate.

The GST rates are:
- Standard GST rate: 8%
- Standard TGST rate: 16%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of GST applies to all supplies of goods and services unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate, the zero rate or an exemption.

As of 1 January 2023, the standard GST rate increased from 6% to 8% and the standard TGST rate from 12% to 16%.

All services provided by a business registered with the tourism ministry of the Maldives (unless otherwise exempted) is subject to the standard rate of TGST. At the time of preparing this chapter, the current TGST covers goods and services supplied by tourist resorts, tourist hotels, guesthouses, picnic islands, tourist vessels and yacht marinas. From 1 January 2023, TGST will include goods and services supplied by integrated tourist resorts, resort hotels, hotels, private islands and other such establishments authorized by the Ministry of Tourism. In addition, from 1 January 2023, if the whole or part of, or a specific room or rooms or a specific bungalow of a tourist resort, resort hotel, hotel, tourist guesthouse, picnic island or private island is supplied for a certain period, whether on strata basis or otherwise, GST shall be calculated based on the total value of the transaction.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Essential goods specified in the GST Act, such as:
  - Rice
  - Sugar
  - Flour

  Note: rice, sugar and flour refer to such goods imported by the State Trading Organization at any given time and sold at controlled prices.
- Salt
- Milk
- Cooking oil
- Eggs
- Tea leaves
- Deep sea fish, reef fish, all types of fish packed in the Maldives and rihaakuru (fish paste)
- Vegetables such as potatoes, onions, carrots, cabbage, beans and tomatoes

- Ingredients used in making curry paste (cumin, fennel, coriander, turmeric, garlic, ginger, chili, chili powder, cinnamon, cardamom, peppercorn, any other such ingredient)
- Dhiyaa hakuru (i.e., coconut honey), coconuts (kaashi, kurun'ba, kurolhi)
- Carrots, cabbage, beans and tomatoes among vegetables
- All kinds of fruits
- Bread, buns and faaroshi (rusk)
- Baby diapers
- Baby food
- Cooking gas
- Diesel
- Petrol
- Adult diapers
- Sanitary napkins, tampons, menstrual cups and other such products
- Goods and services exported from the Maldives, including goods exported by an export license holder or reexport license holder, goods supplied by duty free shops and services exported by a registered person; services exported are services provided by a person in the Maldives to a person outside the Maldives and consumed outside the Maldives
- Sale of a going concern: the disposal of a going concern shall be a zero-rated supply if the purchaser of the business is registered with the MIRA under the GST Act, or the purpose of the disposal transaction is to transfer ownership of a business owned by an individual or individuals to a company where at least 99% of share capital is held by the same individual or individuals

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to GST and do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Electricity service
- Water facilities
- Postal service (not including courier services)
- Sewerage facilities
- Education
- Health services
- Medical devices and drugs
- Financial services
- Rent earned from lease of immovable property
- International transportation services
- Payments collected as fines
- Daycare services provided by daycare centers registered with the relevant Government authority or State institution
- Flats, land and buildings sold by the Government or by the Government through a third party under social housing schemes in which the Government has the discretion to control the price of the property being sold

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in the Maldives.

E. Time of supply

The time of supply of goods or services is the time at which the tax invoice for such good or service is issued or the time at which the recipient of such good or service makes full or partial payment, whichever occurs earlier.

Where payment for supply of goods and services has been agreed to be made within a stipulated period under an installment agreement, payments made accordingly shall be regarded as separate taxable transactions. The time of supply of goods and services in relation to any such transaction shall be deemed as the date on which the installment payment was received or the date on which the installment payment would otherwise be due, whichever is earlier.

Deposits and prepayments. There are no special time of supply rules in the Maldives for deposits and pre-payments. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

The tax declaration point will be identified based on the time-of-supply rules described above.

Continuous supplies of services. If services are supplied continuously and payment is made periodically, a tax point is created each time a payment is made or a tax invoice is issued, whichever occurs earlier in each designated period.

Goods sent on approval or for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules in the Maldives for supplies of goods sent on approval or sale or return. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

Reverse-charge services. There is no reverse-charge mechanism in the Maldives.

Leased assets. There are no special time-of-supply rules in the Maldives for supplies of leased assets. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

Imported goods. There are no special time of supply rules in the Maldives for supplies of imported goods. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

F. Recovery of GST by taxable persons

A registered person supplying goods and services to another registered person shall charge tax on the value of such goods and services in accordance with the GST Act, and such tax shall be the input tax of the recipient of the good or service.

Input tax in relation to a good or service purchased by a registered person shall not be set-off against such person's output tax if:

- The recipient of the good or service does not possess a valid tax invoice issued by the supplier.
- 12 months have elapsed from the end of the taxable period under such person's accounting basis in which the input tax could have first been claimed.
  Or
- The good or service is not supplied in the Maldives.

For a company to claim GST, a tax invoice must be obtained for the purchases from a supplier registered for GST. If a supplier is not registered for GST in Maldives, or if it is an offshore supplier, GST input cannot be claimed for the purchases.

The time limit for a taxable person to reclaim input tax in the Maldives is 12 months. Any unclaimed input tax by the end of 12 months must be written off.

Nondeductible input tax. Expenses that are not related to the business or purchase of goods that are exempt from GST cannot be used to claim against output GST. A taxable person is only required to declare the purchases of goods and services subject to GST when filing the tax return.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- All purchases relating to exempt supplies
- Private expenditure

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Expenses relating to taxable supplies

Partial exemption. GST directly related to making exempt supplies is not recoverable. A registered person who makes both exempt and taxable supplies cannot recover input tax in full.

GST that relates to making both taxable and exempt supplies must be apportioned using a method acceptable to the tax authorities to allocate the GST between taxable supplies and exempt supplies. Input tax related to taxable supplies may be deducted in full. GST related to exempt supplies may not be deducted.

Approval from the tax authorities is not required to use the partial exemption standard method in the Maldives. Special methods are not allowed in the Maldives.

Capital goods. If the capital expenditure incurred by a registered person for the supply of a good or service is directly attributable to such supply, input tax in relation to such expenditure shall be deducted from the output tax in the following manner based on the amount of gross capital expenditure:
- MVR500,000 or less: input tax deductible in full in the taxable period of supply
- If the gross capital expenditure incurred is less than MVR500,000, the GST input could be deducted within 12 months
- If the gross capital expenditure is more than MVR500,000, the GST could be deducted equally over 36 months

Due to COVID-19, MIRA has allowed excess GST input tax in relation to capital expenditure to be carried forward for more than 36 months.

Refunds. Excess payments made to the MIRA shall be refunded when the taxable person terminates all the taxable activities in the Maldives. A taxable person may submit an adjustment/refund request (MIRA 904 form) to request a refund. If the refund is granted, the amount due to the taxable person shall be deposited into the bank account, registered with MIRA.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax on pre-registration costs in the Maldives is not recoverable.

Bad debts. Irrecoverable GST on bad debts can be claimed as a deduction from output tax. The amount of tax paid on irrecoverable debts may be offset against the output tax of subsequent taxable periods with the authorization of the Commissioner General. In requesting the Commissioner General's authorization, the registered person shall submit the following documents:
- Copies of all tax invoices, receipts, credit notes and debit notes related to that supply
- Documents proving that the registered person has accounted for and paid tax on that supply
- Documents confirming consideration required to be paid for that supply has occurred

Noneconomic activities. Input tax on purchases that are used for noneconomic activities is not recoverable in the Maldives.

G. Recovery of GST by non-established businesses

Input tax incurred by non-established businesses that are not registered for GST in the Maldives is not recoverable.

H. Invoicing

GST invoices. A registered person that supplies goods or services to another registered person shall at the request of the recipient provide that recipient with a tax invoice within 28 days of the request. Only one invoice shall be issued in relation to a given transaction.

Credit notes. If the value of a transaction for the supply of goods or services falls or is reduced for any reason after a tax invoice has been issued, the recipient of such goods or services shall be issued a credit note including the following:
- "Credit Note," written prominently

- Name, address and TIN of the supplier of goods or services
- Name, address and TIN of the recipient of goods or services
- Date of issue
- Credit note number
- Reason for issuing the credit note
- Original tax invoice number, date, amount of tax specified in that tax invoice, amount of tax calculated after the change in value and the difference between the two amounts

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is allowed in the Maldives, but not mandatory.

Scope of electronic invoicing. For B2B, B2C, and business-to-government (B2G) supplies, electronic invoicing is allowed but not mandatory in the Maldives. There is no threshold beyond which taxable persons are required to adopt electronic invoicing in the Maldives. The requirements related to electronic invoicing are the same as those for paper invoicing.

An electronic invoice must contain all the details required when issuing a full tax invoice in accordance with the GST act. There are no other specific electronic invoicing conditions in the Maldives.

Simplified GST invoices. If the value of the goods or services supplied by a registered person is lower than MVR5,000 inclusive of tax, a registered person shall issue a tax invoice exclusive of the name, address and TIN of the recipient of goods or services.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in the Maldives.

Proof of exports. GST on exports is zero rated subject to following conditions:
- The service is supplied to a nonresident and the nonresident is outside the Maldives at the time that the service is performed.
- The actual physical flow of the service is not to a person in the Maldives that receives or benefits from that service.
- The services are not supplied directly in connection with any property in the Maldives at the time that the services are performed.

The export holder shall retain the following documents in relation to the export:
- Valid export/re-export license
- Proper tax invoice
- Documents supporting the export

Foreign currency invoices. Only taxable persons providing tourism goods and services may issue invoices in a foreign currency (such as USD) that is accepted by the Maldives Monetary Authority (MMA), as determined by the Commissioner General.

The rule for converting foreign currency on an invoice is that the rate used must be plus or minus 2% of the rate published by the MMA, at the time of supply.

All other supplies must be invoiced in the domestic currency, which is the Maldivian rufiyaa (MVR).

Supplies to nontaxable persons. A registered person may issue a receipt in relation to the supply of goods or services if the supply was made to a person other than a registered person. Such a receipt shall include the following:
- Name, address and TIN of the registered person
- Date of payment
- Receipt number
- Details of services provided, or quantity and details of goods sold

- Total value of goods or services supplied, excluding the tax charged on the value of goods or services
- Tax charged on the value of goods or services supplied
- Value of goods or services inclusive of tax, or, if the amount of tax has been included in the price of the good or service, a statement to such effect

Records. In the Maldives, examples of what records must be held for GST purposes include financial statements, ledgers, tax workings and supporting documents, such as invoices.

In the Maldives, GST books and records must be held within the country. Taxable persons are required to keep the accounting records in the principal place of business in the Maldives. If records are maintained online, they should be readily available for printing if and when required by MIRA.

Record retention period. Records should be kept for a minimum of five years in the Maldives.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is allowed in the Maldives. Records can be kept archived electronically or by paper; there is no restriction on this matter.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. Every registered person shall calculate the amount of tax payable for each taxable period in accordance with the GST Act and the regulations made pursuant to it and shall file a tax return to the MIRA in accordance with the regulation.

Taxable persons registered for general sector goods and services (GGST) are required to file a GST return (MIRA 205 form). Taxable persons registered for tourism sector goods and services (TGST) are required to file a TGST return (MIRA 206 form).

A tax return must be filed on or before the 28th day of the month following the end of the taxable period, or the date determined by the Commissioner General where the Commissioner General has decided to postpone the date for submission of tax returns due to any reasonable grounds.

The frequency of making payments and filing returns depends on the taxable person's taxable period. The taxable period is mentioned in the letter issued to the taxable person with the GST Registration Certificate. If the taxable person's average taxable sales exceed MVR1 million per month, the taxable period is a calendar month. If the taxable person's taxable sales do not exceed MVR1 million per month, the taxable period is quarterly (based on calendar quarters, i.e., January-March, April-June, July-September, October-December).

In the event a registered person is deceased or has ceased to carry out all taxable activities, the part of the tax return for the current taxable period up until the time of death or cessation of operations shall be filed by the legally obliged person on or before the 28th day of the month after the end of such taxable period.

Unless proven to the contrary, it shall be presumed that tax returns filed under the GST Act on behalf of a registered person have been prepared either by the principal or with the principal's authorization.

Periodic payments. Registered persons shall calculate tax payable in respect of each taxable period and pay such tax to the MIRA before the deadline for filing tax returns attributable to that taxable period in accordance with the provisions of the GST Act.

GST due can be paid in person at the MIRA counter, through MRTGS forms or directly online.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is mandatory in the Maldives for certain taxable persons. The majority of GST-registered businesses (with some limited exceptions) are required to submit their GST returns online using the MIRA electronic GST service and pay any GST due electronically. Any business with an annual income of less than MVR5 million is allowed to file manual (i.e., paper) returns with the MIRA. Online and manual filing depends on the revenue of a company. There are no specific types of businesses that get such exemptions; it is on a case-by-case basis by MIRA.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in the Maldives.

Special schemes. No special schemes are available in the Maldives.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in the Maldives.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in the Maldives.

Correcting errors in previous returns. If a taxable person wishes to correct an error in a previous month's return, it shall be required to amend the return online. If the amendment results in the tax liability being reduced, the amendment shall be accepted after a review by MIRA. If the tax liability increases, the amendment shall be accepted, and late payment fines shall be applicable on the additional liability from the original deadline for the taxable period (see the subsection Penalties for late payment and filings below).

Digital tax administration. There are no transactional reporting requirements in the Maldives.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. The penalty for non-registration is MVR50 per day of delay, up to a maximum of MVR5,000.

Penalties for late payment and filings. Penalties for late payment and filings, apply as follows:
- Nonpayment of tax: 0.05% of amount outstanding per day
- Failure to file GST return by due date: if there is no tax liability, MVR50 per day of delay; if there is tax liability, both MVR50 per day of delay is due as well as 0.5% of the tax payable is due
- Failure to submit document or provide information to the MIRA by due date: if there is no tax liability, MVR50 per day of delay; if there is tax liability, both MVR50 per day of delay is due, as well as 0.5% of amount of the tax payable is due

Penalties for errors. If an error has been detected during a MIRA audit, fines will be applicable from the required date of filing on the excess amount of tax that has been assessed by MIRA. Any errors made with an intention to evade tax shall incur penalties as described above. Penalties may be reduced or eliminated if the business makes an unprompted disclosure to the MIRA. The degree of mitigation depends on the extent of the disclosure.

There are no specific penalties associated with the late notification or failure to notify of changes to a taxable person's GST registration details. For further details, see the subsection Changes to GST registration details above.

Penalties for fraud. Fines are applicable on filing and payment, calculated from the date of the filing requirement. If a company fails to file or pay as per the deadline, fines shall be applicable on an accumulating basis.

Personal liability for company officers. General rules of liability are applicable for company officers. If a taxable person is a limited liability company, any GST due shall be attributable to the company itself. Shareholders or directors will not be personally held accountable.

Statute of limitations. There is no specific statute of limitations in the Maldives. However, the Tax Administration Act (which governs all taxes in the Maldives) states that an audit notice may be issued by MIRA no later than the following dates:

- Return filing deadline (where the return is filed before the deadline)
  Or
- Actual filing date (where the return is filed after the due date or has been amended)
- If a tax return is not filed, MIRA shall serve the audit notice at any time

MIRA is required to commence the audit within two years of giving the above notice. However, an extension of up to three years maybe requested by MIRA where there is sufficient cause to believe an audit may not be completed.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:

- The supply of goods and the rendering of services in Malta by a taxable person for consideration, in the course or furtherance of an economic activity

- Intra-Community acquisition of goods from another European Union (EU) Member State by a taxable person (see the chapter on the EU)
- Intra-Community acquisitions of new means of transport (see the chapter on the EU)
- Intra-Community acquisitions of excise goods
- The importation of goods into Malta (other than exempt importations)

Quick Fixes. Pending introduction of a "definitive" system for the VAT treatment of intra-Community supplies of goods to taxable persons, the EU has adopted Quick Fixes for intra-Community trade in goods. For an overview of the Quick Fixes rules, see the EU chapter. For documentary requirements see Section H. Invoicing, subsection Proof of exports and intra-Community supplies.

The VAT Quick Fixes were transposed in the Maltese VAT legislation without any specific derogations with effect from 1 January 2020 mainly regulating four main aspects:
- Conditions for exempting intra-Community supplies
- Proof of transport
- Attribution of transport in chain transactions
- Call-off stock arrangements

Effective use and enjoyment. To avoid instances of non-taxation or double taxation, EU Member States can apply use and enjoyment rules that allow a service that is "used and enjoyed" in the EU to be taxed or prevent a service that is "used and enjoyed" outside the EU from being taxed. If a service is taxed in the EU under the use and enjoyment provisions, a non-EU supplier of the service may be required to register for VAT in every Member State where it has customers that are not taxable persons. For information regarding the rules relating to VAT registration, see the chapters on the respective EU countries.

In Malta, where a Maltese supplier supplies certain goods or services to a taxable person not established in Malta, generally, no VAT is due in Malta, and VAT should not be accounted for. However, to avoid double taxation, non-taxation or distortion of competition, the Director General of VAT may, with regard to the supply of the services referred to in Articles 44, 45, 56 and 59 of the EC Directive 2006/112/EC:
- Consider the place of supply of any service as being situated outside the EU, if the effective use and enjoyment of the services takes place outside the EU.
- Consider the place of supply of any service as being situated within Malta, if the effective use and enjoyment of the services takes place within Malta.

To date, the Maltese tax authorities restricted the application of the use and enjoyment provisions to the hiring of pleasure boats in line with a set of guidelines that are continuously updated and that explain the manner in which such use and enjoyment shall be calculated together with the applicable conditions.

Transfer of a going concern. For a supply to qualify as a transfer of a going concern (TOGC) for Maltese VAT purposes, the following conditions need to be satisfied:
- The assets are transferred to a person registered under Article 10 to whom it transfers its economic activity, or part of that economic activity that is capable of separate operation, as a going concern.
- The said assets are to be used by the transferee in carrying on the same kind of activity, whether or not as part of an existing economic activity, as that carried on by the transferor.
- The said transfer is recorded in the records of the transferor indicating the registration number of the transferee.

Subject to approval by the Commissioner for Revenue, a TOGC shall also apply where the transferee is not registered under Article 10, provided that the transferor did not qualify for a credit of the input tax attributable to the acquisition and the accumulation of the assets being transferred.

Transactions between related parties. In Malta, there are no specific rules that indicate the value for VAT purposes for transactions between related parties.

C. Who is liable

A taxable person is any person that carries on an economic activity, regardless of the purpose or result of that activity.

Exemption from registration. A Maltese established taxable person exclusively involved in exempt without credit supplies (or in supplies that take place outside Malta and are not subject to the reverse-charge mechanism in another EU Member State) as a general rule is not required to register for Maltese VAT purposes (save for any intra-Community acquisitions of goods in excess of EUR10,000 per annum or receipt of taxable services from a non-Maltese established services provider that both trigger a Maltese VAT registration obligation).

A non-Maltese established taxable person is not required to register for VAT purposes in Malta as long as no supplies are rendered/received in Malta upon which it is the person liable for the payment of VAT.

Such persons, even though not registered for Maltese VAT, would still be considered as taxable persons on the basis that they are carrying on an economic activity (excluding pure holding companies).

Voluntary registration and small businesses. A taxable person who is not required to register for VAT purposes in Malta may still apply for a Maltese VAT registration to claim back any Maltese input tax incurred on expenses on the basis that the supplies carried out to which such expenses relate (both within and outside of Malta) carry a right of refund, even though such supplies do not trigger a VAT registration obligation.

Group registration. Subject to certain conditions, a group of related entities may register for Maltese VAT purposes as a single taxable person. The main applicable conditions are the following:

- Country of establishment: All VAT group members must be established in Malta for VAT purposes.
- Regulated entity: At least one of the applicants must be a taxable person who is licensed or recognized in terms of the banking, financial institutions, gaming, insurance, investment services, lotteries and other games, retirement, pensions or securitization legislation.
- Links: Each of the applicants must be bound to each of the others by financial, organizational and economic links (as defined in the legal notice).
- Goods standing: At the time of application, all applicants must have filed all VAT and income tax returns due (to date) and settled all amounts due with the respective authorities (except for any valid objections/appeals).
- One VAT group: No person may be a member of more than one VAT group at the same time.
- Same VAT group: Persons bound to each other by financial links, organizational links and economic links may only form part of the same VAT group.

The minimum time period required for the duration of a VAT group is 24 full calendar months. A VAT group cannot be dissolved and canceled before 24 full calendar months from effective registration date and cannot be subsequently reconstituted before 24 full calendar months from effective cancellation date.

Where a member of a VAT group no longer satisfies all eligibility criteria, the group reporting entity shall inform the VAT department within 15 days for the membership to be terminated (self-supplies triggered as per Art 14.2 of the Second Schedule to the VAT Act).

All members of a VAT group in Malta are jointly and severally liable for VAT debts and penalties.

Holding companies. Holding companies can form part of a VAT group, subject to satisfying all applicable conditions outlined above.

Cost-sharing exemption. The VAT cost-sharing exemption (in accordance with VAT Directive 2006/112/EEC Article 132(1)f) has been implemented in Malta. This provides an option to exempt support services that the cost-sharing group supplies to its members, providing certain conditions are met (in accordance with specific requirements laid out in Malta VAT Law – Item 7 of Part 2 of the Fifth Schedule to the Maltese VAT Act Cap. 406).

Fixed establishment. In Malta, there is no legal definition of a fixed establishment for VAT purposes. However, in practice, the Maltese VAT department applies the principles/conditions that emerge from Article 11 of Council Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 282/2011. It defines a fixed establishment as any establishment, other than the place of establishment of a business referred to in Article 10 of the Regulation, characterized by a sufficient degree of permanence and a suitable structure in terms of human and technical resources to enable it to receive and use the services supplied to it for its own needs. In certain cases its application in practice might require clarifications from the tax authorities with respect to specific scenarios that might not be clear.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" may be any of the following persons:
- A taxable person that has not established its economic activity.
- A taxable person that has no fixed place of establishment in Malta.
- A physical person who has not established its economic activity in Malta.
- A physical person who does not have a fixed place of establishment in Malta, has no permanent address in Malta or does not usually reside in Malta.

A non-established business that makes supplies in Malta may appoint a tax representative or may be required by the Maltese tax authorities to do so. The Commissioner for Revenue may designate, by means of a written notice, a person resident in Malta with whom the non-established business has a business relationship to be the tax representative of the non-established business, unless the non-established business has already designated a representative. The representative must be nominated in writing to the VAT authorities. A tax representative is jointly and severally liable with the person represented.

Tax representatives. Persons who are not established in Malta and who are required to register for VAT purposes in Malta may nominate a person resident in Malta to act as their fiscal representative. This is to be made in writing to the Commissioner for Revenue and is subject to its approval. Such a request may also be made by the Commissioner for Revenue itself.

The representative is liable in the same manner and to the same extent as the person for whom it acts as representative, for all obligations imposed by the VAT Act.

Reverse charge. Under the VAT directive, certain supplies received as a customer from a supplier outside Malta are required to be treated in a different way to normal supplies. In such situations, rather than being charged VAT by the supplier, the customer will account for any VAT due. This is known as the "reverse-charge" mechanism.

The reverse-charge mechanism applies to services and for certain goods, too. For example, goods with installation supplied by someone not established and not VAT registered in Malta, to a Maltese established and VAT-registered business, would fall under the reverse-charge mechanism, too.

Where the reverse-charge mechanism applies, the Maltese recipient must act as both supplier and recipient of the services for VAT purposes. On the same VAT return, therefore, the Malta taxable person must account for output and input tax.

Domestic reverse charge. There is a domestic reverse charge in Malta for certain construction-related services. However, there are special rules in place for this domestic reverse charge. The use of the domestic reverse charge must be approved in writing by the Maltese VAT department on a case-by-case basis subject to the satisfaction of certain conditions upon a request to be submitted in writing.

Digital economy. Specific VAT rules apply to cross-border supplies of goods and services sold via the internet (i.e., e-commerce) in all EU Member States with effect from 1 July 2021. These new rules apply to all direct sales to nontaxable persons (in practice these are mostly private individuals), but we refer to these rules as e-commerce VAT rules because most of these transactions are conducted via the internet. In general, the place of supply is in the country of consumption, i.e., where the goods are shipped to or where the buyer of the goods or services resides, subject to any "use and enjoyment" provisions that may override this rule (see the Section B. Effective use and enjoyment subsection above). Therefore:

- For supplies of services made by a nonresident supplier to a business customer (B2B), the business customer is responsible for accounting for the VAT due, using the reverse charge.
- For supplies of goods made by a nonresident supplier to a B2B, where the goods are transported from another EU Member State, the business purchasing the goods is responsible for accounting for the VAT due, as an intra-Community acquisition. If the goods come from outside the EU, the purchaser may have to report an importation of goods.
- For supplies of goods or services made by a nonresident supplier to a final consumer (B2C), the supplier is generally responsible for charging and accounting for the VAT due at the rate applicable in the customer's country (unless the supplier's sales fall beneath the distance selling threshold of EUR10,000 with effect from 1 July 2021). This VAT can be reported using a single VAT registration, using a "One-Stop-Shop" mechanism.

For more details about intra-EU distance sales, see the chapter on the EU.

Effective 1 July 2021, an e-commerce supplier may have a choice of how to account for VAT on its B2C supplies.

Local VAT registration. A nonresident supplier may choose to register for VAT in each Member State and account for VAT on all supplies made and recover input tax in accordance with local rules (see the Non-established businesses subsection above). Non-EU businesses may be required to appoint a fiscal representative for accounting for the VAT due on these transactions.

In Malta, the local VAT registration can be made online (https://cfr.gov.mt/en/eServices/Pages/Request-for-a-New-Vat-number.aspx).

One-Stop Shop. Effective 1 July 2021, a supplier can choose to account for the VAT due under the EU One-Stop Shop (OSS), which can be used for intra-EU cross-border supplies of goods and all cross-border supplies of services made to final consumers in the EU. Unlike the previous Mini One-Stop -Shop (MOSS) scheme that applied until 30 June 2021, the OSS is not limited to cross-border supplies of electronic services, telecommunication services and broadcasting services.

In Malta, the OSS registration can be made online (https://cfr.gov.mt/en/eServices/Pages/OSS.aspx).

The OSS is an electronic portal that allows businesses to:

- Register for VAT electronically in a single Member State for all intra-EU distance sales of goods and for B2C supplies of services.
- Declare and pay VAT due on all supplies of goods and services in a single electronic quarterly return.

The OSS can be used by businesses established in the EU and outside the EU. If a supplier or a deemed supplier decides to register for the OSS, it must declare and pay VAT for all supplies (i.e., for goods as well as services) that fall under the OSS.

For more details about the operation of the OSS, see the EU chapter.

Import One-Stop Shop. Effective 1 July 2021, the Import One-Stop-Shop (IOSS) scheme applies for B2C distance sales of goods from outside the EU.

Effective 1 July 2021, VAT is due on all commercial goods imported into the EU regardless of their value. The actual supply is subject to VAT in the country where the goods are imported (i.e., the country of destination). The IOSS facilitates the declaration and payment of VAT due on the sale of low-value goods (i.e., consignments valued at less than EUR150 per consignment). It allows suppliers selling low-value goods dispatched or transported from a non-EU country to customers in the EU to collect, declare and pay the VAT due. If the IOSS is used, the importation into the EU is exempt from VAT. For more details about the IOSS, see the EU chapter.

The use of the IOSS special scheme is not mandatory. If VAT is not collected via the IOSS scheme, the importation of goods into the EU is subject to import VAT in the country of final destination, and the Member State can decide freely who is liable to pay the import VAT, which could be the customer or the seller (or an electronic interface).

In Malta, the IOSS registration can be made online (https://cfr.gov.mt/en/eServices/Pages/OSS.aspx).

Postal Services and Couriers Scheme. If the IOSS is not used and the customer is liable for the import VAT due on the supply (and importation) of consignments with a small intrinsic value (i.e., less than EUR150), the VAT can be collected using the special scheme for postal services and couriers.

In Malta there are no additional specific local rules that apply.

For more details about the special scheme for postal services and couriers, see the EU chapter.

Online marketplaces and platforms. Under the new EU VAT e-commerce rules effective 1 July 2021, taxable persons that "facilitate" certain B2C sales of goods are deemed to have purchased and then supplied those goods themselves. This means that the single supply from the "underlying" supplier to the final consumer is split into two deemed supplies:

- A supply from the supplier to the facilitator (deemed B2B supply)
- A supply from the facilitator to the final customer (deemed B2C supply); any intermediation service provided by the facilitator is disregarded for VAT purposes

This provision does not cover all sales facilitated via the facilitator. It only covers distance sales of goods imported from non-EU jurisdictions in consignments with an intrinsic value not exceeding EUR150. The jurisdiction of residence of the supplier using the facilitator is irrelevant. The supply to the facilitating platform is VAT exempt and the supplies made by that platform follow the e-commerce VAT rules as described above. In addition, the provision also covers sales within the EU, if the supplier is not established within the EU. This applies to both local shipments within one Member State as well as intra-Community shipments. In both cases, the final customer must be a nontaxable person.

In Malta there are no additional specific local rules that apply.

For more details about the rules for online marketplaces, see the EU chapter.

Vouchers. The provisions of Council Directive (EU) 2016/1065 of 27 June 2016 amending Council Directive 2006/112/EC as regards the treatment of vouchers were transposed into local Maltese legislation as from 1 January 2019.

Single-purpose voucher (SPV) means a voucher where the place of supply of the goods or services to which the voucher relates, and the VAT due on those goods or services, are known at the time of issue of the voucher. Multi-purpose voucher (MPV) means a voucher, other than a single-purpose voucher.

Each transfer of a SPV made by a taxable person acting in their own name shall be regarded as a supply of the goods or services to which the voucher relates. The actual handing over of the goods or the actual provision of the services in return for a SPV accepted as consideration or part consideration by the supplier shall not be regarded as an independent transaction.

The actual handing over of the goods or the actual provision of the services in return for a MPV accepted as consideration or part consideration by the supplier shall be subject to VAT pursuant to Article 4 of the VAT Act, whereas each preceding transfer of that MPV shall not be subject to VAT.

Registration procedures. A taxable person established in Malta who carries on an economic activity (or a non-Maltese established taxable person who is liable to charge Maltese output tax on its supplies) is liable to register for Maltese VAT under Article 10 of the VAT Act within 30 days of making a supply for consideration in Malta, other than an exempt-without-credit supply.

Maltese established taxable persons that qualify as a small undertaking may register under Article 10, but also may opt for a simpler VAT registration under Article 11, depending on the type of economic activity involved and the level of turnover, as follows:

- For new registrants who principally supply goods: those with an annual turnover lower than EUR35,000 (i.e., the "entrance threshold") may register as a small undertaking. Taxable persons currently registered under the normal regime may reregister as a small undertaking if their turnover falls below EUR28,000 (i.e., the "exit threshold").
- For new registrants who principally supply services, those with an annual turnover lower than EUR30,000 may register as a small undertaking. Taxable persons currently registered under the normal regime may reregister as a small undertaking if turnover falls below EUR24,000.

Moreover, anyone who carries on an economic activity is not registered under Article 10 and intends to make an intra-Community acquisition in Malta is liable to register for Maltese VAT under Article 12, by not later than the date of that acquisition if its total intra-Community acquisitions in Malta during that calendar year exceed EUR10,000.

A taxable person established in Malta who is not registered under Articles 10 or 11 and who supplies services within the territory of another Member State for which the tax is payable solely by the recipient shall apply to be registered under Article 10 by not later than 30 days from the date on which he makes a supply for consideration. Moreover, a taxable person established in Malta, other than a taxable person registered under Article 10, who receives services for which it is liable to pay the tax (reverse-charge mechanism) shall apply to be registered under Article 12 by not later than the date on which it receives a service.

An application for Maltese VAT registration should be filed online via the web portal of the Maltese VAT department. It must be accompanied by the necessary due diligence documentation (including passport copies, certificate of incorporation and memorandum and articles of association/statute) and is usually processed within five to 10 working days from when all information is made available to the Maltese VAT department.

Deregistration. An online VAT deregistration form needs to be filed whenever a VAT-registered person wants to deregister for VAT purposes. This includes listing among other things the reason for deregistration, whether the business will be transferred or not and details pertaining to any assets held.

Changes to VAT registration details. Every person registered under Articles 10, 11 or 12 shall, within 15 days from a change in circumstances that affects the particulars declared in the application for their registration under Articles 10, 11 or 12 (or otherwise furnished to the Commissioner for Revenue in connection with their registration or appearing in the registration certificate), notify that event in writing to the Commissioner for Revenue. Certain notifications (such as change in address, change in activities) can be affected online, whereas others are to be made via formal letter to the Maltese VAT department.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 18%
- Reduced rates: 5%, 7%, 12% (with effect from 1 January 2024)
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services, unless a specific measure provides a reduced rate, the zero rate or an exemption.

Some supplies are classified as "exempt with credit," which means that no VAT is due, but the supplier may recover related input tax.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0% (i.e., exempt with credit)

- Food, excluding catering
- Pharmaceutical goods
- International transport
- Exports of goods and related services (to territories outside the EU)
- Supplies to ships
- Supply of gold to the Central Bank of Malta

Examples of supplies of goods and services taxable at 5%

- Confectionery
- Medical equipment and accessories
- Printed matter (including e-books/audio books)
- Supply of electricity
- Items for the exclusive use of the disabled
- The importation of works of art, collectors' items and antiques

Examples of goods and services taxable at 7%

- Tourist accommodation
- Use of sporting facilities

Examples of goods and services taxable at 12%

- Custody and management of securities
- Management of credit and credit guarantees by a person or body other than those who granted the credit
- Hiring of pleasure boats for less than five weeks (subject to certain conditions)
- Specific health care services (subject to certain conditions)

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services not liable to tax and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Letting and transfer of immovable property
- Health and welfare
- Education
- Postal services
- Banking and insurance
- Grant and negotiation of credit and the management of credit by the grantor
- Supply by nonprofit organizations of approved services related to sports or physical recreation
- Sports
- Lotteries
- Broadcasting
- Water

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Malta.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is referred to as the "date when tax on supplies becomes chargeable" or "tax point."

The basic tax point for a supply of goods is the earlier of the date on which the goods are delivered or otherwise made available to the recipient of the supply or the date on which payment is made. The basic tax point for a supply of services is the earlier of the date on which the services are performed or the date on which payment is made.

If a VAT invoice is issued before the basic tax point or by the 15th day of the month following the basic tax point, the date on which the VAT invoice is issued becomes the actual tax point. The actual tax point overrides the basic tax point.

Deposits and prepayments. The basic tax point for a supply of goods is the earlier of the date on which the goods are delivered or otherwise made available to the recipient of the supply or the date on which payment is made. The basic tax point for a supply of services is the earlier of the date on which the services are performed or the date on which payment is made.

Continuous supplies of services. When the supply of services gives rise to successive statements of account or payments they shall be treated as performed, up to the value covered by those statements, on the last day of each period to which such statements of account or payments refer (i.e., the basic tax point).

Provided that, when a continuous supply of services does not give rise to statements of account or payments during a year, it shall be regarded as being completed at least at intervals of one year.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules in Malta for the supply of goods sent on approval for sale or return. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

Reverse-charge services. The basic tax point for a supply of services is the earlier of the date on which the services are performed or the date on which payment is made.

If a VAT invoice is issued before the basic tax point or by the 15th day of the month following the basic tax point, the date on which the VAT invoice is issued becomes the actual tax point. The actual tax point overrides the basic tax point.

Leased assets. In cases of leased goods (where the delivery of goods pursuant to a contract for the hire of goods for a certain period or for the sale of goods on deferred terms, which provides that in the normal course of events ownership shall pass at the latest upon payment of the final installment) such supplies shall be treated as supplies of goods with the basic tax point being the earlier of the date on which the goods are delivered (or otherwise made available to the recipient) or the date on which payment is made.

Imported goods. When goods are, on importation, placed under a customs duty suspension regime, the chargeable event takes place and the tax becomes chargeable on the date when they cease to remain subject to that regime.

Intra-Community acquisitions. The tax on an intra-Community acquisition becomes chargeable on the earlier of the following two dates: (a) the 15th day of the month following the date of the acquisition; (b) the date on which a tax invoice is issued to the person making the acquisition for the supply of goods in question.

Intra-Community supplies of goods. The basic tax point for an intra-Community supply of goods is the earliest of the 15th day of the month following the date when the chargeable event takes place or the date on which a tax invoice is issued for that supply.

If a VAT invoice is issued before the basic tax point or by the 15th day of the month following the basic tax point, the date on which the VAT invoice is issued becomes the actual tax point. The actual tax point overrides the basic tax point.

Distance sales. There are no special time of supply rules in Malta for the supplies of distance sales. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A VAT-registered person may recover input tax, which is VAT charged on goods and services supplied to it for business purposes. Input tax is recovered by deducting the amount from output tax, which is VAT charged on supplies made in the same period.

The time limit for a taxable person to reclaim input tax is six months (i.e., two VAT return periods). Input tax pertaining to previous VAT periods can be claimed back in the following/subsequent two VAT returns, as long as the omitted invoices do not exceed 5% of the VAT paid/claimed in the original VAT return in which the invoices should have been declared. Each VAT return period is quarterly in Malta.

Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services supplied in Malta, VAT paid on imports of goods and VAT self-assessed for reverse-charge services received from outside Malta.

For a claim for input tax to be valid, the following conditions must be met:
- The claim must be supported by a tax invoice.
- The person claiming the expense must have the document in its possession and provide it to the Director General of VAT if and when requested.
- The amount of tax claimed must be properly accounted for in the records held by the claimant.
- The VAT is recoverable to the extent allowable by the VAT Act.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes (e.g., goods acquired for private use by an entrepreneur). In addition, input tax may not be recovered for some items of business expenditure.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Nonbusiness expenditure
- Purchase, repair and maintenance, lease, fuel and hire of vehicles (excluding commercial vehicles)

- Business and employee entertainment
- Tobacco and alcohol
- Works of art and antiques

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Business expenditure (excluding blocked deductions)
- Mobile phones
- Hotel accommodation (purely for business purposes)

Partial exemption. Input tax directly related to the provision of exempt without credit supplies is generally not recoverable. If a registered person makes both exempt without credit supplies and taxable supplies, the person may not deduct input tax in full. This situation is referred to as "partial attribution" or "partial exemption." The amount of input tax that may be deducted from output tax by a taxable person making exempt without credit supplies is based on the percentage of taxable supplies made compared with total supplies made. Attribution is based on a provisional rate in the first year (Year 1) and is then adjusted to a definitive rate, which is based on the level of taxable supplies made compared with total supplies made on an annual basis. The definitive rate (as amended at the end of the first year) is used as the provisional rate in the second year (Year 2).

Approval from the tax authorities is not required to use the partial exemption standard method in Malta. However, if a taxable person wants to adopt an alternative basis for partial attribution (i.e., a special method) this would require the confirmation of the Maltese VAT authorities.

Capital goods. Capital goods are items of capital expenditure that are used in a business over several years. Input tax is deducted in the VAT year in which the goods are acquired and first taken into use. The amount of input tax recovered depends on the taxable person's partial attribution recovery position in the VAT year of acquisition. However, the amount of input tax recovered for capital goods must be adjusted over time if the taxable person's partial attribution recovery percentage changes during the adjustment period or if the use of the capital goods changes.

An adjustment may be necessary to the initial VAT deduction with respect to capital goods and immovable property, resulting from either a change in the circumstances of the business or a change in the proportion of use of the asset in the business. In the event of such change in circumstances, an adjustment to the initial deduction is made. The adjustment period is five years with respect to capital goods other than immovable property and 20 years with respect to immovable property.

In Malta, the capital goods adjustment also applies to certain services and circumstances. Input tax on capital goods includes input tax paid on operations related to the realization, the transformation or the improvement of capital goods, however, it does not include input tax paid on the repair or the maintenance of capital goods, as well as the purchase, the intra-Community acquisition or the importation of spare parts used for such operations. It also excludes input tax paid for the renting of capital goods, and more generally, input tax paid for the giving up or the granting of the use of such goods.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax recoverable in a tax period exceeds the amount of output tax payable in that period, the taxable person ends up in an excess credit position. A taxable person is entitled to a refund of such excess credit if the excess credit is not set off against any VAT due in the subsequent tax period. The refund must be paid within five months after either the due date of the VAT return or the date on which the return is submitted, whichever is later.

The VAT authorities pay interest on VAT refunds that are paid late at a rate of 0.75% per month or part of a month. Interest is payable for the period beginning with the date on which the refund becomes payable and ending on the date on which the refund is paid.

Pre-registration costs. As a general rule, no amount shall be treated as input tax of a person unless it is supported by a tax invoice (including all necessary details such as VAT identification number) in respect of the tax relating to goods or services supplied to it. Hence, to ensure that the right of refund is not compromised, the VAT registration needs to be in effect prior to any expenses being incurred in such a way that the VAT number can be quoted on the invoices covering the costs incurred. Failure to do so will disqualify such invoices from being claimed back.

Bad debts. A claim for a deduction by way of a bad debt relief shall be subject to such directives as the Maltese VAT department may give as to the circumstances in which it may be made and the documents or other evidence that should be produced.

The conditions for claiming bad debt relief are as follows:
- Claim for bad debt relief may be made following a final court judgment showing beyond doubt and to the satisfaction of the Commissioner for Revenue that the debt can never be recouped.
- The claim must reach the Commissioner for Revenue by not later than 12 months from the date of delivery of the final judgment.
- VAT in connection with the claim must have already been accounted for and paid to the department.
- All VAT returns and payments due as at the date of the claim must have been submitted by that date.
- The debt must have been written off in the claimant's day-to-day VAT accounts and transferred to a separate bad debt account.
- The supply must have been made to the customer or to a third party through the customer.
- The value of the supply must not be more than the customary selling price.
- The debt must not have been paid, sold or factored under a valid legal assignment.

To claim a refund, an application to claim bad debt relief must be made by means of a registered letter addressed to the Commissioner for Revenue, providing:
- A copy of the relative final court judgment
- The date and number of any invoice issued for each supply to the customer, which is included in the claim
- For each relevant supply, the amount that has been written off as a bad debt
- The amount of the claim

The Commissioner for Revenue shall subsequently examine the case, accept or reject the claim and inform the claimant accordingly.

The claimant may deduct the tax relative to the bad debt relief claim in Box 41 of the VAT return for the tax period following that in which the Commissioner for Revenue has authorized the relief.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred on purchases that are used for noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Malta.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Input tax incurred by non-established businesses that are not registered for VAT in Malta is recoverable. The Maltese VAT authorities refunds VAT incurred by businesses that are neither established nor registered for VAT in Malta. Non-established businesses may claim Maltese VAT to the same extent as VAT-registered businesses.

EU businesses. For businesses established in the EU, refunds are made under the terms of the EU Directive 2008/9/EC. The VAT refund procedure under the EU Directive 2008/9 may be used only if the business did not perform any taxable supplies in Malta during the refund period (excluding supplies covered by the reverse charge). For full details, see the EU chapter.

There are no specific refund rules in Malta, other than those established under the respective EU Directive.

Non-EU businesses. For businesses established outside the EU, refunds are made under the terms of the EU 13th Directive. For full details, see the EU chapter.

There are no reciprocity rules in place in Malta, as there are no particular/additional restrictions other than those that apply to Maltese established businesses (i.e., the normal input tax recovery rules). As such, businesses established in any country outside of the EU can apply for a refund for input tax incurred in Malta.

Find below specific rules for Malta:
- Claims must be made online (https://workflow.gov.mt/eservice/S10741).
- The refund application form must be filed within six months from the end of the calendar year in which the tax became chargeable.
- If the application relates to a period of less than one calendar year but not less than three months, the amount for which the application is made may not be less than EUR186.
- If the application relates to a period of one calendar year or the remainder of a calendar year, the amount may not be less than EUR23.

Late payment interest. In Malta, interest is not paid on late refunds to non-established businesses (for both EU and non-EU non-established businesses).

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. Registered persons must generally provide tax invoices for all taxable supplies of goods and services made and for exports. Fiscal receipts must be issued for retail sales. A purchaser who receives a fiscal receipt for a supply must retain it for a period of at least 24 hours because the purchaser may be required to produce the receipt for inspection by the VAT authorities.

Credit notes. A credit note may be used to reduce VAT charged and reclaimed on a supply. A credit note must be cross-referenced to the original invoice.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is allowed in Malta, but not mandatory.

Scope of electronic invoicing. For B2B, B2C and business-to-government (B2G) supplies, electronic invoicing is allowed but not mandatory in Malta. This is in line with EU Directive 2010/45/EU and 2014/55/EU (see the chapter on the EU).

There is no threshold beyond which taxable persons are required to adopt electronic invoicing in Malta. The requirements related to electronic invoicing are the same as those for paper invoicing.

For the EU VAT in the Digital Age (ViDA) proposals, refer to the EU chapter.

Simplified VAT invoices. For amounts not exceeding EUR100, a simplified invoice can be issued, which contains fewer details compared to a normal tax invoice.

Self-billing. Self-billing is allowed in Malta. Tax invoices may be drawn up by the customer in respect of supplies of goods or services made to them by a taxable person. A prior agreement between the two parties must be in place, along with an agreed procedure for the acceptance of each tax invoice by the taxable person supplying the goods or services. The Commissioner for Revenue may require that such invoices be issued in the name and on behalf of the taxable person.

Proof of exports and intra-Community supplies. VAT is not chargeable on exports and intra-Community supplies of goods dispatched to a destination outside of Malta. Both supplies must be accompanied by evidence that confirms the goods have left Malta. Suitable evidence includes the stamped customs exportation documentation and other conditions as stipulated in the EU VAT Quick Fixes 2020 (see the EU chapter and the subsection Quick Fixes above).

No special documentation applies in Malta for evidencing the application of the Quick Fixes. Normal intra-Community documentation rules apply.

Foreign currency invoices. Invoices may only be issued in the domestic currency, which is the euro (EUR). Foreign currency may only be quoted as a reference. The selling rate quoted by the European Central Bank on the date on which the supply takes place must be used.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. Special rules apply to the place of supply for supplies of telecommunications, broadcasting and electronic services to nontaxable customers. For further details of the VAT rules on electronic services in the EU, refer to the EU chapter.

Maltese suppliers of these services to nontaxable persons are not required to issue a tax invoice to nontaxable customers but are required to issue a fiscal receipt. Fiscal receipts may be issued in three different ways:
- Fiscal cash registers (physically sealed by approved sellers/manufacturers)
- Manual fiscal receipts books issued by the Maltese VAT department
- Accounting software/point-of-sale system certified by an approved IT auditor and ratified/authorized by the Maltese VAT department via the issuance of an EXO number

Moreover, the Maltese VAT Act states that persons supplying goods or services under the OSS or the IOSS, in terms of Chapter 6 of Title XII of Council Directive 2006/112/EC entering into force as from 1 July 2021, shall not be required to issue fiscal receipts for such supplies of goods and services.

Distance selling. For intra-Community distance sales made B2C, a fiscal receipt must be issued. However, if the supplier operates the OSS regime, then no fiscal receipt is required unless requested. Note that it is a fiscal receipt mentioned here rather than a full VAT invoice, as a fiscal receipt is the appropriate document to be issued for B2C supplies.

Records. Every registered taxable person established in Malta must keep full and proper records of all transactions carried out in the course or furtherance of their economic activity. Every person who is liable to tax on any transaction or who identifies as a person registered under the Maltese VAT Act for the purpose of any transaction shall keep full and proper records of any such transaction. In Malta, examples of what records must be held for VAT purposes include proper books and records, accounting data, invoice copies and VAT workings explaining how the figures declared in the VAT forms/returns have been calculated.

In Malta, VAT books and records can be held outside the country. Such records can be stored locally in Malta, or outside, but the records must be readily available to the Maltese VAT authorities if requested.

Record retention period. Generally, the records shall be kept and stored in a manner that contains details that can be supported by such information, documents and accounts as set out in the 11th Schedule to the Maltese VAT Act. Such records, information, documents and accounts shall be retained for a period of at least six years from the end of the year to which they relate, or such other period or periods as the Minister of Finance may, in special cases, by regulations, prescribe. Certain exceptions may apply in case of capital goods, adjustment forms, appeals, etc.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is allowed in Malta. Invoices shall be stored in the original form in which they were sent or made available, whether paper or electronic. Additionally, in the case of invoices stored by electronic means, the Maltese VAT department may require the data guaranteeing the authenticity of the origin of the invoices and the integrity of their content shall also be stored by electronic means.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. In most cases, registered persons file VAT returns quarterly. VAT returns must be filed within one-and-a-half months after the end of the tax period to which they relate.

Recently, Maltese VAT Law was amended to ensure that businesses sending their VAT declarations and making payments online are not charged interest and administrative fines if the declaration or payment is sent within seven days after the current deadline.

Periodic payments. Payment of the VAT due is required in full on the same date as the VAT return submission deadline, i.e., within one-and-a-half months after the end of the tax period to which they relate. Return liabilities must be paid in EUR. Payment of VAT can be made either manually at the approved cash collection points (currently, local postal offices) or online, when filing the VAT return online via the relevant link or online via a bank transfer to the Maltese VAT department's bank account.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is mandatory in Malta for certain taxable persons. Electronic filing of VAT returns is mandatory for all taxable persons except for those who have less than 10 employees. There is a seven-day extension for the filing online of the VAT return and the payment of the respective VAT due, if any.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Malta.

Special schemes. Professional services. A special scheme restricted for warrant holders whereby they can apply the cash accounting system for VAT accounting (as opposed to accrual accounting). Under this scheme, the warrant holder is entitled to delay the issuance of the tax invoice up until the payment is received in such a way that VAT is only to be forwarded to the VAT department once received.

Secondhand goods, works of art, collectors' items and antiques. A special scheme whereby VAT is mainly charged on the profit margin generated on the supply of such goods. (1) Secondhand goods dealers shall have the option to apply the provisions of this part, after having obtained the approval in writing of the Commissioner for Revenue, in respect of supplies of (a) works of art, collectors' items or antiques that they have imported themselves; (b) works of art supplied to them by their creators or their successors intitle. (2) Where a secondhand goods dealer exercises the option available under paragraph (1) of this item, such option shall cover at least two calendar years.

Supplies by retailers and by civil, mechanical and electrical engineering contractors. A special scheme whereby these contractors can apply the cash accounting system for VAT accounting (as opposed to accrual accounting). Unlike the professional services special scheme, in this case instead of delaying the issuance of a tax invoice, the tax invoice is issued immediately and on it the words "cash accounting must be inserted."

Travel agents. The tour operators/travel agents margin scheme is a special scheme whereby VAT is mainly charged on the profit margin generated on the supply of such services in order to avoid the need for multiple VAT registrations in different Member States.

Tax in danger. A scheme that allows the domestic reverse-charge mechanism only in connection to construction-related supplies and subject to approval by the Maltese VAT department that is usually restricted to construction-related contracts greater than EUR70,000 per contract.

Investment gold. A special scheme regarding the VAT accounting for investment gold where taxable persons who produce investment gold or transform any gold into investment gold have a right of option for taxation of supplies of investment gold to another taxable person that would otherwise be exempt in terms of Part One of the Fifth Schedule.

Telecommunications, broadcasting or electronically supplied services. This scheme utilizes the OSS for EU and non-EU established service providers of telecommunication, broadcasting and electronically supplied services. For more details about the operation of the OSS, IOSS and online marketplace, see the EU chapter.

Cash accounting. Professional service providers and retailers, as well as civil, mechanical and electrical engineering contractors, may use cash accounting if they have not exceeded the threshold of EUR2 million, subject to the condition that the right to deduct input tax shall be postponed until the tax on the goods or services supplied to them has been paid.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Malta.

Supplementary filings. Intrastat. A taxable person that trades goods with other EU countries must complete statistical reports, known as Intrastat returns, which must be filed on a monthly basis by the 10th working day of the following month.

The thresholds for Intrastat Arrivals and Intrastat Dispatches are EUR700 per return.

Intrastat forms must be filed electronically and contain basic statistical data, including HS code, country of consignment/origin/destination, nature of transaction, mode of transport, term of delivery, invoice value, statistical value and weight. Intrastat returns must be filed in EUR.

EU Sales Lists. In general, EU Sales Lists (ESLs), known as recapitulative statements in Malta, must be prepared for each calendar month with respect to the following:
- Intra-Community supplies of goods
- Intra-Community supplies of services made to a customer that is liable to pay the tax on that service in the EU Member State in which it is established, except when such service is exempt in that Member State

Recapitulative statements must be submitted online to the VAT department by the 15th day of the month following the relevant calendar month.

However, recapitulative statements may be submitted online for each calendar quarter by the 15th day of the month following the end of the quarter if the total amount of the supplies of goods, excluding VAT, did not exceed in the relevant quarter or in any of the four preceding quarters EUR50,000. If the EUR50,000 threshold is exceeded, the recapitulative statements must be submitted by the 15th day of the month following the relevant month.

Notwithstanding the above, if a person provides only supplies of services, it may submit an online recapitulative statement for each calendar quarter regardless of the total value of services supplied.

The values of supplies of goods or services required to be reported in the recapitulative statement must be declared in the period of submission over which VAT was due.

Correcting errors in previous returns. Errors can be corrected in subsequent VAT returns without any negative implications, subject to the following conditions:
- The error must not exceed 5% of the respective total output/input tax declared in the original VAT return
- It is corrected in a subsequent VAT return that commences not later than six months from the expiration of the original VAT return in which the mistake was made

If any of these conditions are not satisfied, the errors would need to be corrected via the filing of an adjustment form, which will trigger penalties for incorrect declaration.

Digital tax administration. There are no transactional reporting requirements in Malta.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. A penalty for late registration is assessed on an amount equal to the higher of the following:
- 1% of the excess, if any, of the output tax due over input tax (and any allowable deductions) for the first VAT period following registration
- EUR20 for every month or part of a month that the registration is late

The penalty is capped at a maximum of 20% of the output tax due over input tax (and any allowable deductions) for the first VAT period following registration.

Penalties for late payment and filings. A penalty for default in submitting a tax return equals the greater of the following two amounts:
- 1% of the excess, if any, of the output tax over input tax for the period (disregarding any excess credit brought forward from a previous tax period and any allowable deductions)
- EUR20 for every month or part of a month that the return is late
- Capped at EUR250

Interest is assessed on VAT paid late. The current rate (as from 1 September 2022) is 0.6% for each month or part of a month. The interest rate may change.

Penalties for errors. For the filing of a tax return containing errors that are discovered during a VAT inspection, a penalty equal to the sum of the following is imposed:
- 20% of the excess, if any, of the correct amount of output tax over the output tax declared in the return
- 20% of the excess, if any, of the deductions declared in the return over the correct amount of the deductions

If an error is voluntarily disclosed before it is discovered by the VAT department, the penalty is reduced to 10%. This reduction also applies if the person involved cooperates with the Commissioner for Revenue, accepts an agreement and pays the amounts due within one month after signing the agreement.

There are no specific penalties associated with the late notification or failure to notify the tax authorities of changes to a taxable person's VAT registration details. For further details, see the subsection Changes to VAT registration details above.

Penalties for fraud. On conviction of certain irregularities in records, e.g., fraud, false representations, a person shall be liable to the following penalties:
- To a fine of not less than EUR6,000 and not exceeding EUR10,000 for certain offenses committed
- To a fine of not less than EUR700 and not exceeding EUR3,500 for certain offenses committed

In addition, where tax amounting to more than EUR100 would be endangered, to a further fine equal to two times the endangered tax or to imprisonment of not more than six months or to both such fines and imprisonment:

Provided that, the two times fine for the endangered tax shall in no case be less than EUR1,000.

In addition, on a request by the prosecution, the court shall order the offender to comply with the law within a time sufficient for the purpose, but in any case, not exceeding one month, and, in default, the offender shall be liable to the payment of a further fine of EUR5 for every day on which the default continues after the lapse of the time fixed by the court.

Personal liability for company officers. Directors and other company officials qualify to be treated as representatives of the VAT-registered person for Maltese VAT purposes and shall be jointly and severally liable (with the person of whom they are representatives) for the tax due by that person.

The implications will depend on whether it is established that they acted in good faith (in which case liability is limited to the funds or to the value of any property under their management or control) or not and penalties/punitive measures depend on the actions committed ranging from daily fines to imprisonment.

Statute of limitations. The statute of limitations in Malta is six years. When the Commissioner for Revenue has reason to believe that a tax return furnished by a person registered under Article 10 for a tax period does not contain a full and correct statement of the matters required to be declared in that return, it may make a provisional assessment and serve that provisional assessment on that person by not later than six years from the end of the said tax period or from the date in which the tax return for that tax period is submitted, whichever date is the later.

Provided that where the provisional assessment refers to the adjustment relating to input tax on capital goods mentioned in the Tenth Schedule, it shall be served by not later than six years from the end of the adjustment period mentioned in the said schedule.

Provided further that, where a person makes a correction in terms of Article 28(1), the six-year period in which the Commissioner for Revenue may make a provisional assessment as provided for in this sub-article shall start to run from the date on which the Commissioner for Revenue receives the request for the correction.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- The supply of goods when the goods are deemed delivered in Mauritania
- The supply of services when the services are performed in Mauritania or are used therein
- The importation of goods in Mauritanian territory

In addition, taxable transactions carried out in Mauritania, even when the domicile or registered office of the actual taxable person is located outside Mauritania's territorial limits, are also subject to VAT.

However, it should be noted that the following transactions are outside the scope of VAT in Mauritania:
- Transactions performed by individuals or legal entities with a turnover below MRU3 million, unless otherwise provided

- Supply of services provided by nonresidents, on condition that they are subject to withholding tax on these services
- Operations subject to the tax on financial transactions or the special tax on insurance

Effective use and enjoyment. To avoid instances of non-taxation or double taxation, jurisdictions can apply "use and enjoyment" rules that allow a service that is "used and enjoyed" in the jurisdiction to be taxed or prevent a service that is "used and enjoyed" outside the jurisdiction from being taxed. If a service is taxed in the jurisdiction under the "use and enjoyment" provisions, a non-established supplier of the service may be required to register for VAT in every jurisdiction where it has customers that are not taxable persons.

In Mauritania, Art.219 provides for "use and enjoyment rules." When the service, although performed in another country, is used or exploited in Mauritania, the taxation is made in Mauritania. Note that there is no specific list of services to which these rules apply. Hence, it should be considered that all services, either business-to-business (B2B) or business-to-consumer (B2C), are subject to them.

Transfer of a going concern. Normally the sale of the assets of a VAT-registered or VAT-registrable business will be subject to VAT at the appropriate rate. However, a transfer of a business as a going concern (TOGC) may be exempt from VAT under certain conditions. A TOGC is the sale of a business or part of a business capable of separate operation, including assets. Where the sale meets the conditions, the supply is treated as exempt from VAT. In Mauritania, a TOGC is treated as exempt from VAT insofar as they are subject to registration duties (i.e., transfer taxes). Registration duties mean transfer taxes and TOGC is subject to such taxes. Note that transfer taxes and VAT cannot be cumulatively applied on a transaction. Hence, a TOGC subject to transfer taxes cannot be subject to VAT. There are no other specific conditions for a TOGC to be exempt from VAT.

Transactions between related parties. In Mauritania, there are no specific rules that indicate the value for VAT purposes for transactions between related parties. However, the Mauritanian tax authorities (in French, Direction Générale des Impôts [DGI]) have required companies established in Mauritania to keep documentation justifying the pricing policy applied in transactions of any kind with affiliated entities.

C. Who is liable

A taxable person is any person who carries out an economic activity independently in Mauritania on a regular or occasional basis against payment.

The following persons are liable to VAT in Mauritania:

- Individuals or legal entities, including public authorities and bodies governed by public law, who carry out taxable transactions within the scope of the tax on a regular or occasional basis and independently. These persons are subject to VAT, regardless of their legal status, their position regarding other taxes or the form or nature of their activities, if they generated a turnover greater or equal to MRU3 million.
- Importers are liable, regardless the amount of their turnover.
- Taxable persons who have acquired goods free of VAT in cases where one of the conditions for benefiting from this tax-free status is no longer fulfilled.
- Taxable persons who sell products acquired free of tax due to their intended use, if the products acquired have not been put to the use justifying the tax-free status.
- Any person, whether considered as taxable or not, who mentions VAT on an invoice or an import declaration.

Exemption from registration. The VAT law in Mauritania does not contain any provision for exemption from registration. This covers all taxable persons, including those carrying out transactions exempt from VAT. This is because there is no tax registration for a specific tax in Mauritania. Instead, there is a single register that allows a taxable person to pay all the taxes to which it is liable. As such, VAT registration is covered by the general tax registration and is mandatory for all taxable persons to register.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. There are no special VAT registration rules for small businesses in Mauritania. For voluntary registration, only taxable persons that have been exempted under a special regime of VAT can voluntarily opt to register for VAT. In this instance, the Mauritanian General Tax Code (MGTC) authorizes such taxable persons to give up their special VAT treatment and opt for taxation to the common VAT regime. The option exercised must be notified to the General Tax Director by letter. It takes effect from the first day of the month following the date of the acknowledgment of receipt. This option is irrevocable.

Group registration. Group VAT registration is not allowed in Mauritania.

Fixed establishment. In Mauritania the definition for permanent establishment applies for both direct taxation and VAT. The MGTC defines the term "fixed establishment" in the three following ways:

- A fixed establishment means a fixed place of business through which the nonresident company carried on all or part of its business.
- A fixed establishment includes, or may include, a place of management, a branch, an office, a factory, a workshop, a mine, an oil or gas well, a quarry or any other place of extraction of goods, etc.
- A fixed establishment may also include:
  - A construction site, assembly or installation project, but only if such construction site or project lasts more than 12 months for subcontractors and other oil operators or six months for others.
  - The supply by a nonresident business of services, including counseling services, through employees or other personnel hired by the business for this purpose, but only if activities of this nature continue (for the same or a related project) in Mauritania for a period exceeding 12 months for subcontractors and other oil operators or six months for others.

In addition to the above definitions, the below are also considered to have a fixed or permanent establishment in Mauritania:

- Businesses performing their activities through an agent, other than an agent with independent status, who has powers in Mauritania that it usually exercises there, and that enable it to conclude contracts on behalf of the nonresident company, provided that the activities performed by such agent are not limited to activities that, if carried on through a fixed establishment of business, would not enable that establishment to be considered a permanent establishment.
- Businesses performing their activity through a non-independent agent, who does not have the abovementioned powers, but usually operates a stock of goods or products in Mauritania on behalf of the nonresident business.
- A nonresident insurance business, except for reinsurance, if it collects premiums or insures against risks in Mauritania through a person other than an agent enjoying an independent status.

It is worth noting that the fact a business resident in Mauritania controls or is controlled by a nonresident business is not sufficient to make either of these businesses a permanent establishment of the other.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that does not have a permanent professional establishment (i.e., a permanent establishment) (see the Fixed establishment subsection above) in Mauritania through which it provides services or supplies goods. Such an establishment cannot be registered for VAT in Mauritania. However, when a non-established business conducts taxable operations in Mauritania, these are subject to VAT, and the non-established business must appoint a tax representative to carry out the formalities of declaration and payment. However, in the case of B2B transactions, the reverse VAT mechanism will apply if no tax representative is appointed. See Tax representatives and Reverse charge subsections below.

Tax representatives. Non-established businesses must appoint a tax representative for VAT purposes in Mauritania. The tax representative must meet the following conditions:
- Be accredited with the relevant tax office
- Be a taxable person identified for VAT in Mauritania

To be valid, the appointment must meet the following conditions:
- Be notified to the General Tax Director by the foreign company not established in Mauritania
- Be accompanied by a mandate contract signed and dated by the foreign company and its local representative

This mandate contract must mention at least:
- The accurate identification information of the foreign company (name, address, capital and nature of the activity)
- The ID information of the manager if it is a company
- The tax representative's identification in Mauritania (name, address and tax ID number (called in French NIF))
- The scope of the mandate: the tax representative must, at least, prepare tax returns, declare and pay monthly VAT on behalf of the principal and be the local contact for the tax authorities
- The date of the beginning of the mandate and the mention that it remains valid as long as the end of the mandate has not been reported to the General Tax Directorate

The declaration of VAT due by the person domiciled outside Mauritania and carrying out taxable operations there must be established on a separate declaration from that of the person designated by the taxable person to pay the tax on its behalf in accordance with the VAT declaration conditions provided for by the General Tax Code.

This declaration must mention the VAT to be paid by the foreign supplier with the specific mention "on behalf of" the name of the foreign supplier and be accompanied by a copy of the accreditation.

However, if a tax representative is not appointed by the foreign company, the VAT and related penalties are payable by the beneficiary of the taxable transaction in the case of B2B transactions. See the Reverse charge subsection below.

Reverse charge. For services provided by non-established businesses to local businesses (B2B), and no tax representative is appointed, VAT is due to be paid through the reverse-charge mechanism. The reverse-charge mechanism is only used if the supplier has no permanent establishment in Mauritania. The nonresident service provider will issue its invoices, VAT excluded, and it will be up to the local customer to then calculate the corresponding VAT amount, declare and pay it on behalf of the service provider.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Mauritania.

Digital economy. Electronically supplied services will be subject to VAT in Mauritania if the services are enjoyed therein, whereas imported goods via e-commerce will be taxed if the goods are deemed delivered in Mauritania.

Nonresident providers of electronically supplied services for business-to-consumer (B2C) supplies would be required to register and account for VAT in Mauritania. This would be done by appointing a tax representative. See the subsection Tax representatives above.

Nonresident providers of electronically supplied services for business-to-business (B2B) supplies are not required to register and account for VAT on supplies in Mauritania. Instead, the customer is required to self-account for the VAT due by way of the reverse-charge mechanism (see the Reverse charge subsection above).

There are no other specific e-commerce rules for imported goods in Mauritania.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Mauritania.

Registration procedures. There is no stand-alone VAT registration in Mauritania. Any natural or legal persons who wish to carry out income-generating activities in Mauritania must, within 20 days of the start of its activities or the opening of its business in Mauritania, file a declaration of existence with the tax department to which it belongs on a regulatory form, indicating its first and last names or company name, profession or activity, address, or registered office.

This formality may also be carried out by a duly authorized representative of the taxable person.

For legal entities, the information below must be mentioned into the declaration:
- The legal form, the duration, as well as the place of their head office
- The date of the instrument of incorporation (a copy of instrument act must be provided)
- The last names, first names and residence of the directors or managers and, for companies whose capital is not divided into shares, the last names, first names and residence of each partner
- The nature and the value of the movable and immovable goods constituting the capital contribution
- The number, form and amount of:
  - Negotiable securities issued, with a distinction between shares and bonds, and specifying, in the case of the former the amount to be paid up on each security and, in the case of the latter the depreciation period and the interest rate
  - Shares in the company (capital shares) not represented by negotiable securities
  - Other rights of any kind attributed to the associates in the sharing of the profits or of the company's assets, whether these rights are identified by securities
- A map showing the location of their business
- For legal entities whose head office is abroad, the detailed nature of their activities and operations in Mauritania, the place of their main office, as well as the full name and address of the manager in Mauritania, who undertakes to complete the formalities

For a nonresident foreign company, the instrument of designation of the manager must be notified to the tax authorities at the time of registration of the legal entity in the National Taxpayers Register.

Therefore, upon receipt of the declaration of existence, and after verification and certification of the taxable person's actual location, the tax authorities assign a tax identification number (called in French NIF) to the taxable person. It takes approximately two weeks to receive the VAT registration number from the tax authorities.

Deregistration. There is no specific VAT deregistration in Mauritania. However, if a taxable person is planning to cease operations in Mauritania, it can draft a letter and inform the tax authorities within 20 days to be deregistered from the National Taxpayers Register. See the Changes to VAT registration details subsection below.

Changes to VAT registration details. Any substantial modification affecting the taxable person's business must be notified to the tax authorities by letter addressed to the Tax General Director within 20 days following this modification. This formality may also be carried out by a duly authorized representative of the taxable person.

In particular, the following modifications must be declared:
- The change of the manager
- The transfer of the individual company or its management lease
- The modification of the company name, legal form, object or duration
- The transfer of shares or holdings, directly or indirectly, equal to or greater than 10% or more in a legal entity
- The cessation of activity or closure of an establishment
- The change of address

The 20-day period is deemed to begin:
- In the case of a change of manager, on the day the new manager effectively takes office
- In the case of a total or partial transfer of the company, shares or holdings, on the effective date of the transfer
- When it concerns the modification of the company's name, its legal form, its object, its address or its duration, on the date the decision is made
- In the case of the cessation of the business, on the date of the establishment's final closure

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 16%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods and services unless a specific measure provides for the zero rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Exports of goods and similar transactions and services directly related to these transactions

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Sales of petroleum oils or bituminous minerals, petroleum gas and other gaseous hydrocarbons except for those that have been imported and are subject to consumption under customs legislation
- Medical acts, hospitalization costs and hemodialysis materials and inputs
- Sales and services provided by the State, territorial collectivities and their public establishments without an industrial and commercial character
- Deliveries of goods and services to airlines or relating to sea shipping and navigation on international rivers
- Revenues from the composition and printing of newspapers and periodicals, excluding advertising revenues, and sales of those newspapers and periodicals
- The transactions involving the transfer of ownership or usufruct of businesses or customers, buildings, land or leasehold rights, subject to the registration formality
- Operations carried out by the banking, the financial and the credit organizations, subject to the tax on the financial operations
- International air transport and ticketing operations carried out by travel agencies regarding aerial transport
- Transport operations carried out by public transporters of passengers or goods registered in this quality and holding regulatory authorizations

- Any teaching activity carried out by public or private institutions approved by the competent public authority
- Purchases of goods and services related directly to mining operations
- Sale of food, seeds, plants, fruits and ice

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Mauritania.

E. Time of supply

In Mauritania, the time when VAT becomes due is called the "chargeable event" (i.e., time of supply), while the date on which the payment of VAT becomes compulsory for the supplier and deductible for the taxable person is called the "payability." The chargeable event for VAT is constituted by:

- Crossing the customs cordon for import operations
- Delivery of the goods for sales operations
- Performance of the services rendered for the supply of services

Deposits and prepayments. The time of supply rule for deposits and prepayments varies depending on whether they are related to supply of goods or services. The time of supply rule for deposits and prepayments is determined as follows:

- For supply of goods, deposits and prepayments do not affect the time of supply. The delivery of goods still constitutes the time of supply.
- For supply of services, time of supply is the date on which advance payments is received.

Continuous supplies of services. For supplies of goods giving rise to successive invoices or payments, the chargeable event occurs on expiry of the periods to which the invoices or payments relate. For supplies of services giving rise to successive invoices or payments the chargeable event occurs whenever an invoice is receive or payment is made.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules in Mauritania for supplies of goods sent on approval for sale or return. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

Reverse-charge services. When a non-established business performs B2B services in Mauritania and has not appointed a tax representative, the recipient of the service must self-assess for the VAT due on the supply. As such, the time of supply for reverse-charge services provided by non-established business is the performance of the service or the payment of an invoice by the recipient of the service, whichever happens earlier.

Leased assets. The leasing of assets (in French, credit-bail) is treated as a continuous supply of services in Mauritania. Therefore, the chargeable event occurs each time a rent is paid.

Imported goods. The time of supply rule for the import of goods is, the moment when the goods cross the customs border. For goods placed under one of the temporary importation regimes, the time of supply is the moment when the goods are released into the Mauritanian market.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

In Mauritania, a taxable person may recover the VAT incurred (i.e., the input tax) on the acquisition of goods and services if they are performing taxable activities (i.e., those subject to VAT at the standard or zero rate).

To deduct input tax, the taxable person must ensure that the VAT incurred meets the following conditions:

- Appears on the declaration of release for consumption or any other equivalent document issued by the customs service, be paid and be made out in the name of the person claiming the deduction.

- Be mentioned distinctly by the seller or the service provider on the invoice or the import declaration duly established, in case of purchase of goods or provision of services.
- Appears in the declaration of the taxed operations for the same month, in the case of self-supply of goods or services.

In addition, a taxable person who is also subject to VAT can only deduct the VAT invoiced to it by a supplier or service provider if the latter also issues it with a certificate of VAT liability (i.e., a written statement that confirms that it is a taxable person for VAT purposes). This certificate of liability is issued upon request of the taxable person, by the Tax General Directorate in favor of taxable persons in compliance with the VAT.

The time limit for a taxable person to recover input tax is at the latest 15 April of the year following the year in which the tax became due. Otherwise, the right to deduct is definitively lost for the taxable person.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for taxable purposes (e.g., goods acquired for private use or services used for making exempt supplies). In addition, certain transactions subject to VAT are expressly excluded from the right of deduction, which are sometimes considered personal (i.e., risk of abuse) and sumptuary or simple gifts (see list below).

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Goods or services used for the private needs of third parties, officers or employees of the company, such as private accommodations or lodging for the officer, receptions, catering, shows or any expense directly related to private trips or residence (excluding work or protective clothing, premises and equipment allocated for the collective satisfaction of employees' needs at the workplace, as well as free accommodation at the workplace for salaried staff specifically responsible for securing these premises)
- Goods transferred and services rendered freely or at a price significantly lower than the cost price, as commission, salary, gratuity, discount, bonus, gift, regardless of the status of the beneficiary (except for advertising objects having a unit value less than MRU750 excluding taxes)
- Goods or services provided between professionals (VAT-subject persons) and paid in cash for an amount exceeding MRU200,000
- Purchases of goods and/or services for which the invoice or document in lieu thereof does not include the supplier's tax identification number (TIN)
- Real estate other than those used for industrial, commercial, artisanal or professional purposes
- Export operations of nontaxable products within the country
- The acquisition price of petroleum products (petroleum oils or bituminous minerals, petroleum gas and other gaseous hydrocarbons) whose sale is exempt from VAT
- Goods and services liable to the special margin regime

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to taxable business use)

- Any item that is not specifically defined as nondeductible by the MGTC is deductible, if it is related to a transaction that meets the definition of a taxable transaction (as listed above)

Partial exemption. If a taxable person makes both exempt and taxable supplies, it may not recover input tax in full. This situation is referred to as "partial exemption." The MGTC provides one method to recover VAT where a taxable person makes both exempt and taxable supplies. According to this method, VAT is only deductible under a percentage.

The deductible VAT fraction is equal to the amount of the tax multiplied by the ratio between:

- In the numerator, the annual turnover relating to taxable operations, to exports relating to taxable operations in the domestic system and to exempt operations giving rise to the right to deduct
- In the denominator, the total annual turnover made by the entity

This ratio, called the "pro rata," is expressed as a percentage rounded up to the higher unit and the amounts mentioned therein include all costs, duties and taxes, excluding VAT itself. It is determined and temporarily applied for the current year based on the revenues of the previous year or, for new taxable persons, based on the projected revenues or income of the current year.

The tax is deducted from the tax payable by the company for the month in which the right to deduct arose. Adjustments to the deductions made must be exercised no later than 15 April of the year following the year in which the tax became due.

If the adjustment is not made within the time limit, the right to deduct is definitively lost for the taxable person.

Approval from the tax authorities is not required to use the partial exemption standard method in Mauritania. Special methods are not allowed in Mauritania.

Capital goods. VAT related to the purchase of capital goods can be recovered in the month in which the purchase took place by applying the same rules that would apply to the purchase of any other goods. In case where capital goods are used for both taxable and exempt activities, the partial exemption rules apply. See the Partial exemption subsection above.

However, regarding the adjustment of the VAT deducted with respect to a capital good, the regulations provide that an adjustment of the initial deduction is required in certain circumstances. Thus, when the final pro rata relating to each of the four years following the year of acquisition or first use of a capital good varies by more than 10 points compared to the final pro rata used to make the initial deduction, the taxable person must proceed either to the repayment or to the complementary deduction of a fraction of the tax having charged initially the capital good. This fraction is equal to one-fifth of the difference between the product of the tax charged on the goods by the final pro rata of the year of acquisition and the product of the same tax by the final pro rata of the year in question.

From the fifth year following its purchase, importation or first use of the capital good in question, there is no further annual adjustments required to be made by the taxable person in respect of this good.

Furthermore, when a capital good is transferred or destroyed before the beginning of the fourth year following its acquisition or first use, the taxable person must refund a fraction of the tax initially deducted, considering the annual adjustments already made. This fraction is equal to the amount of the tax deducted minus one-fifth per civil year or part of a civil year elapsed since the date of acquisition or first use of the asset in question.

The amount of VAT to be globally adjusted is equal to the sum of the annual adjustments that would be due for the remaining years of the adjustment period, by assuming for these years a deduction proportion of zero. However, if the transfer is itself subject to VAT, there is no need for an annual adjustment.

Refunds. The refund of VAT credit is only authorized by the Mauritanian tax authorities for the following taxable persons:
- Exporters
- Taxable persons who lose their status as taxable persons

The deductible tax credit held by these taxable persons shall be deducted in priority from the sums they owe with respect to other taxes and duties. The only way to recover the VAT credit is to offset it against the output tax due for the subsequent period(s). Regarding the time period, the VAT credit must be claimed within 15 days for taxable persons that lose their status as taxable person or within the month following the declaration indicating a tax credit for exporters.

The refund of the VAT credit can only be obtained under the following conditions:
- The taxable person submits a written request for refund to the General Tax Director. Request should be submitted within 15 days for companies that lose their status as taxable persons or within the month following the declaration indicating a tax credit for exporters.
- The amount of the credit for which it is claiming is greater than or equal to MRU100,000.
- The last three VAT returns are in credit, except for taxable persons who lose their status as a taxable person.
- The companies are not in the process of a tax audit.

If all required documentation is provided, the refund of the VAT credit should be executed within a period not exceeding three months.

Generally, other taxable persons are not allowed to carry forward a VAT credit to offset against any dues. However, it should be noted that the extension of VAT credit refunds to activities other than exports can be granted by order of the Finance Minister at the request of the applicant. The Finance Minister is free to accept or reject the request.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax incurred on pre-registration costs in Mauritania is not recoverable.

Bad debts. Output tax accounted for on supplies that do not get paid by the recipient (i.e., bad debts) cannot be recovered in Mauritania.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred on purchases that are used for noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Mauritania.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Input tax incurred by non-established businesses that are not registered for VAT in Mauritania, is not recoverable.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A full VAT invoice is required to be issued by all taxable persons to all customers, regardless of their tax regime.

The invoice must clearly state, among other information, which items are taxed, the amount excluding VAT, the rate and amount of tax due or, if applicable, "Exempt," and the total amount including all taxes due by the customer.

Credit notes. The MGTC does not contain any specific rules on credit notes. However, in practice a supporting document must be provided to justify the change in VAT for canceled, terminated or unpaid supplies.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is allowed in Mauritania, but not mandatory.

Scope of electronic invoicing. For B2B, B2C and business-to-government (B2G) supplies, electronic invoicing is allowed but not mandatory, in Mauritania. There is no threshold beyond which taxable persons are required to adopt electronic invoicing in Mauritania. The requirements related to electronic invoicing are the same as those for paper invoicing.

Electronic documents are accepted for invoicing purposes in the same way as paper documents, provided that the authenticity of the origin of the data they contain and the integrity of their content are guaranteed. The electronic invoice must, for VAT compliance, comply with the conditions mentioned in the MGTC.

For invoices kept in electronic form, the data guaranteeing the authenticity of the origin and integrity of the content of each invoice must also be preserved.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified VAT invoicing is allowed in Mauritania for certain supplies. These include public road transportation, parking, access to cultural, sports and recreational activities, the sale of food and drink, the sale of consumer articles, repair of consumer articles and personal services. Although simplified VAT invoicing is not explicitly referred to in the applicable legislation, it is allowed given the common business practice.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Mauritania.

Proof of exports. There are no special invoicing rules for exports in Mauritania. For exports to qualify as zero-rated, they must be supported by evidence that the goods have left Mauritania. Any documents issued by customs authorities relating to the export operation should be sufficient.

Foreign currency invoices. Invoices can be issued in a foreign currency. If done so, the countervalue in the domestic currency, which is the Mauritanian Ouguiya (MRU), must also be indicated for each taxable period, according to the latest exchange rate of the Central Bank of Mauritania. For domestic invoices, the domestic currency must appear on the invoice even if the quote is in foreign currency.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. There are no special invoicing rules for supplies to nontaxable persons in Mauritania. As such, full VAT invoices are required.

Records. In Mauritania, examples of records that must be kept for VAT purposes include the accounting documents and supporting documents, in particular the general ledger, the inventory book, the journal books, the purchase and sale invoices, the receipts and expenses documents, the fixed assets register, the customs declarations and generally any documents used or drawn up for the purpose of VAT reporting in Mauritania.

The documents must be kept in Arabic or French. Importers must also keep a special book showing for each operation, the quantity, the customs value, the number and the date of the declaration of release for consumption.

In Mauritania, VAT books and records must be held within the country. Such records must be made available upon request of the DGI and provided within a timely manner. There are no special rules for non-established businesses.

Record retention period. Accounting records and supporting documents must be kept for at least 10 years following the year during which the imports, purchases, sales or services were recorded in the accounting records.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is allowed in Mauritania. Backup copies of invoices or equivalent documents may be archived in all support media (i.e., on paper and electronically). However, electronic accounting must be kept using media and software approved by the tax authorities and must meet the legal requirements for security, integrity and preservation as defined regarding evidence.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. Any taxable person liable for VAT in Mauritania must file a monthly return on an official form (in accordance with the prescribed model) by the 15th day of the month following the end of the return period.

The return must indicate the total amount of transactions carried out, the details of the taxable transactions, the details of the tax giving right to deduction and total amount of the tax due.

Furthermore, a nil VAT return must be filed where the taxable person has not carried out any taxable transactions in a tax period.

Periodic payments. VAT is paid monthly. The tax due must be paid, without prior notice and simultaneously with the filing of the return, no later than the 15th day of the month following the end of the return period. For importers, the tax must be declared and paid before the collection of the goods or product.

However, the VAT due on operations carried out on behalf of the state, local authorities and public establishments may be subject to withholding at source.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is allowed in Mauritania, but not mandatory. VAT returns and their appendices can be filed electronically on the "teleservice" platform (http://www.tele-services.gov.mr).www.tele-services.gov.mr The teleservice platform allows the taxable person to declare VAT online, to consult its tax file (registration form, tax obligations, follow-up of appeals, tax situation, installment payments), to exchange with the tax authorities in a secure space and to consult tax documents.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Mauritania.

Special schemes. Reselling business of telephone cards and audiovisual subscriptions. Sales of access rights to a telephone network located in Mauritania are automatically subject to VAT on the basis of the margin system, whether or not the access right is represented by a physical card, provided that the seller of these access rights sets its price in accordance with the requirements imposed by the initial supplier (who operates the telephone network to which access is given). Also, subscription services to an audiovisual service broadcast in Mauritania are also subject to the margin system, provided that the seller sets its price in accordance with the requirements imposed by the initial supplier (who is the legal holder of the broadcasting rights in Mauritania of the audiovisual service to which the customer subscribes).

Therefore, for the margin scheme to apply to such sales and services, the seller must be legally distinct from the original supplier. It does not apply on sales of access rights to a telephone network or television subscriptions granted by the initial supplier itself, regardless of the identity and activity of its customer.

The taxable amount subject to VAT (i.e., "profit margin") results from the difference between the total price (including VAT) paid by the customer to the reseller and the price (including VAT) paid by the reseller of the distribution chain (i.e., the "cost-by-cost" system). If, during the same reporting period, the level of purchases exceeds the level of sales, the excess is added to the purchases of the following reporting period.

Travel agency services. A travel agency's services are considered as intermediary operations carried out by travel agencies and tourist circuit organizers in their own name (i.e., their "opaque intermediary"). When the travel agency carries out its activities in the name and on behalf of either its client or a service provider (i.e., its "transparent intermediary"), the services it provides are taxable according to the common law rules.

Accordingly, for the operations performed by travel agencies and tourist circuit organizers to be subject to VAT on the margin, the following conditions must be met simultaneously:
- Travel agencies and tourist circuit organizers must carry out these operations in their own name (i.e., the "opaque" intermediaries).
- The travel service must include at least transport and/or accommodation.
- The travel agency, acting in its own name, must use supplies of goods and services belonging to other taxable persons or nontaxable organizations to carry out the trip.

The taxable turnover is thus necessarily constituted by the difference between the total price (including tax) paid by the customer and the price (including tax) invoiced to the agency or the organizer by the transport contractors, hoteliers, restaurant owners, entertainment contractors and other taxable persons who materially perform the services used by the customer and who are aggregated by the travel agency to provide its own services.

Sales of secondhand goods acquired from nontaxable persons. Such supplies are considered secondhand goods, i.e., before the goods have been used and which are susceptible of being reused in the state or after repair. In contrast, operations that result in either a transformation of the original object before use, or a real renovation of the used goods, make the latter lose the qualification of secondhand goods, and therefore it will be taxable according to the common law regime.

In principle, secondhand goods resellers pay the tax on the difference between the sale price and the purchase price calculated on a transaction-by-transaction basis (in French, système du coup par coup). This means that taxable resellers cannot offset a beneficial transaction by the loss of value realized in another transaction.

However, taxable persons may, for all their transactions subject to the margin system, determine the taxable base each month by taking the difference between the amount of the global purchases and the global sales of secondhand goods delivered during the month in question (regardless of the date of payment).

Prior to applying the globalization system, taxable persons must inform their tax office where they are affiliated by any means that allows them to keep track of this information. This system is applicable from the first day of the month in which this information is given and must be applied by the taxable person for at least 12 consecutive months before deciding to change it.

In addition, secondhand goods resellers must keep all evidence proving the status of the transferor of the secondhand goods they resell under the margin scheme to justify that this scheme is effectively applicable.

Activities of workforce contractors. Activities of workforce contractors are activities consisting of the provision, to a customer legally distinct from the contractor, of personnel not employed as employees by the contractor, for an agreed period.

However, the provision of personnel employed by the contractor to a client legally distinct from the contractor is also subject to VAT according to the margin system if the hierarchical authority over this employee is transferred to the contractor's customer for the duration of the contract.

Their VAT taxable turnover results from the difference between the total price (including VAT) paid by the customer and the costs incurred by the contractor to provide its service.

However, to simplify the process, it is necessary to proceed to the globalization of revenues and costs incurred to determine the real base of a given period.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Mauritania.

Supplementary filings. Deductions statement. A taxable person is required to enclose with the monthly VAT return a signed and sealed statement showing the details of the deductions made, emphasizing:

- Regarding purchases on site and supplies of services:
  - The name or company name and tax identification number (in French, numéro d'identification fiscale [NIF])
  - The references and the amount of the invoice
  - The amount of the deductible tax paid by the customer
- In the case of imports, in addition to the above information:
  - The number of the declaration of release for consumption or exit from the warehouse
  - The references of the receipt issued by the customs services
  - The amount of VAT mentioned on this receipt

Failure to produce the abovementioned statement, or the production of an erroneous statement or one containing incorrect information, shall result in the loss of the right to deduct input tax.

Correcting errors in previous returns. Total or partial errors on the VAT return can be repaired spontaneously by the taxable person itself before the sending of an audit notice or before the sending of a request for information in the case of an audit on documents.

In addition, in case of filing of a mandatory document that does not comply with the models prescribed by the tax authorities before the end of the period concerned, the taxable person is invited by written reminder to refile the document in compliance with the model prescribed by the tax authorities within 15 days.

However, VAT deductions that have been accounted for cannot be subject to an amending declaration or be deducted in a subsequent declaration.

The amending documents are submitted in the same way as the initial return, with the reference "amending return."

There is no time limit for taxable persons to make corrections to VAT returns that have already been filed. However, no corrections can be made after an audit notice has been sent or a request for information has been sent in the case of a document audit.

Digital tax administration. There are no transactional reporting requirements in Mauritania.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. The failure to register for VAT (and subsequently all other taxes in Mauritania) within the legal time limit may result in a fine from MRU50,000 to MRU500,000.

Penalties for late payment and filings. Any taxable person who fails to file a VAT return within the legal deadline is liable to a penalty equal to:
- 10% of the tax normally due when the delay is less than two months
- 25% when the delay exceeds two months

The delay in the filing of a "nil" or creditor VAT return is sanctioned by a fine of MRU2,000 per month. The amount of the fine is increased to MRU10,000 for companies whose turnover for the previous year exceeds MRU30 million.

Failure or delay in filing a mandatory document related to VAT is punishable by a fine of 1% of the turnover, including all taxes assessed, if necessary, by the tax authorities, amounting to not less than:
- MRU50,000 for taxable persons subject to the normal real profit scheme
- MRU35,000 for taxable persons under the intermediate real profit scheme
- MRU150,000 for taxable persons with an agreement or benefiting from a temporary exemption scheme under the normal real profit scheme
- MRU75,000 for taxable persons with an agreement or benefiting from a temporary exemption scheme under the intermediate real profit scheme

In case of a first offense, the fine cannot exceed MRU5 million.

Penalties for errors. Omissions and errors in VAT returns are punishable by a penalty equal to 40% of the compromised duties. The rate of this penalty is increased to 80% when, given the nature of the offense committed, the good faith of the taxable person cannot be admitted.

In case of failure to refile mandatory documents according to the model prescribed by the tax authorities within the 15 additional days granted by the tax authorities to the taxable person to comply with the law, the taxable person is liable to a fine of 1% of the turnover, including all taxes assessed by the tax authorities.

Omissions or errors in the documents (i.e., invoices) required to be kept or in the written information submitted with the return shall give rise to a fine of MRU1,000 for each omission or inaccuracy. For imports, any omission or inaccuracy in the declaration is punishable by a fine of MRU20,000 to MRU100,000.

Failure to comply with the partial exemption obligations may result in a fine of MRU1,000, in addition to any VAT related penalties.

In the event of correcting errors in previous returns, the tax authorities may apply penalties corresponding to those they apply in cases where they detect themselves the errors or omissions committed by the taxable persons in their return before the latter had time to rectify them, without being able to invoke bad faith.

The late notification or failure to notify the tax authorities of changes to a taxable person's VAT registration details may result in a penalty ranging from MRU50,000 to MRU500,000. For further details, see the subsection Changes to VAT registration details above.

Penalties for fraud. Without prejudice to the tax penalties listed below, the following shall be subject to a fine of MRU50,000 to MRU1 million and an imprisonment from six months to two years, whoever has fraudulently evaded or attempted to evade the establishment or the total or partial payment of VAT either it has voluntarily omitted to make its declaration within the prescribed time, or that it has deliberately concealed a part of the sums subject to tax, or it has organized its insolvency or obstructed by other maneuvers the recovery of the tax, or by acting in any other fraudulent manner.

Any person who makes VAT deductions from customers and fails to refund these amounts to the Treasury within six months following the withholding or charging to customers is liable to a fine ranging from MRU50,000 to MRU100,000 and to imprisonment for a term of one year to five years, or to one of these two penalties only.

In the event of a recurrence, within a period of five years of one of the abovementioned offenses the offender is liable to four years' imprisonment and a fine of MRU2 million.

The penalties incurred in the event of a fictitious claim for refund of tax credits are equal to 100% of the amount of the credit wrongly claimed and 200% of the same amount if the credit has been effectively refunded, in addition to the restitution of the sums wrongly received.

For imports, any infraction that has the purpose or result of evading or compromising the recovery of any duty or tax and that is not specifically punished by the Customs Code (e.g., VAT) is punishable by a fine equal to three times the duties and taxes due, evaded or compromised.

Personal liability for company officers. Company officers cannot be held personally liable for errors and omissions in VAT returns in Mauritania. However, they can be held complicit in errors and omissions in the returns. In this case, the penalties are a fine of MRU10,000 for each infraction.

In case of complicity for fraud by the company, the abovementioned prosecutions and penalties (see the Penalties for fraud subsection above) will be applied to its officers, directors, general or temporary administrators and managers, the company being civilly liable for the payment of costs and fines.

Statute of limitations. The statute of limitations in Mauritania is three or 10 years. For VAT, the right of recovery available to the tax authorities may be exercised until the end of the third year following the year in which the taxable transactions were carried out.

The period of recovery provided above is extended by 24 months in the event of implementation of exchange procedure provided for by the mutual assistance agreements in matters of tax base, control and recovery or by the bilateral or multilateral agreements exchange of information for tax purposes. In all cases, the taxable person must be notified in written form of any extension of the recovery period.

Any error made by the tax authorities when discharging a tax assessment may be rectified by the tax authorities until the end of the year following the year in which the decision to discharge the original tax assessment was made.

Any omission or insufficiency of taxation revealed either by a proceeding in front of the courts or by a contentious claim may, without prejudice to the general time limit for recovery set at three years, be rectified until the expiration of the year following the year in which the decision closing the proceeding was taken.

There is no time limit for taxable persons to voluntarily correct errors in their previous VAT returns. However, no correction can be made by the taxable person after receipt of a notice of adjustment, a notification of reassessment or automatic taxation.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- The supply of goods or services made in Mauritius by taxable persons
- Reverse-charge services received by taxable persons in Mauritius
- The importation of goods from outside Mauritius

Certain persons, such as airlines and other organizations approved by the Director-General, Mauritius Revenue Authority (MRA), are exempt from VAT on specified supplies.

Effective use and enjoyment. To avoid instances of non-taxation or double taxation, jurisdictions can apply "use and enjoyment" rules that allow a service that is "used and enjoyed" in the jurisdiction to be taxed or prevent a service that is "used and enjoyed" outside the jurisdiction from being taxed. If a service is taxed in the jurisdiction under the "use and enjoyment" provisions, a non-established supplier of the service may be required to register for VAT in every jurisdiction where it has customers that are not taxable persons. In Mauritius, no services are subject to the "use and enjoyment" provisions.

Transfer of a going concern. Normally the sale of the assets of a VAT-registered or VAT-registrable business will be subject to VAT at the appropriate rate. However, a transfer of a business as a going concern (TOGC) may be outside the scope of the tax under certain conditions. A TOGC is the sale of a business or part of a business capable of separate operation including assets. Where the sale meets the conditions, the supply is treated as outside the scope of VAT. In Mauritius, a TOGC is treated as outside the scope of VAT where there is a sale or transfer of a whole business as a going concern. Note a proportion of the input tax incurred on any building or part of any building treated as allowable over the last 20 years is treated as a deemed output tax by the VAT registered person.

Transactions between related parties. In Mauritius, for a transaction between related parties, the value for VAT purposes is calculated at an arm's length. Furthermore, the MRA has the power to direct the taxable value of any supply for any transaction. In practice, such a power is applied in the context of abusive transactions.

C. Who is liable

A taxable person is any entity or person that is required to be registered for VAT.

VAT registration is compulsory if annual turnover from a trade or profession exceeds MUR6 million.

However, persons engaged in certain businesses or professions must register for VAT, regardless of their level of turnover. This rule applies to the following businesses or professions:
- Accountants
- Agents in the importation of secondhand motor vehicles
- Auditors
- Advertising agents
- Advisors
- Architects
- Attorneys
- Barristers with more than two years' standing at the Bar
- Clearing and forwarding agents
- Customs house brokers
- Engineers
- Estate agents
- Land surveyors
- Notaries
- Opticians
- Project managers
- Property valuers
- Quantity surveyors
- Sworn auctioneers
- Tour operators
- General sales agents of airlines

Exemption from registration. A taxable person whose turnover is exclusively zero-rated may choose not to apply for registration. A taxable person whose turnover is exclusively exempt from VAT may not apply for registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. A person may register for VAT voluntarily if its taxable turnover is below the VAT registration threshold. A person may also register for VAT voluntarily in advance of making taxable supplies.

Group registration. Group VAT registration is not allowed in Mauritius.

Fixed establishment. In Mauritius there is no legal definition of a fixed establishment for VAT purposes. It is uncertain if the direct tax definition is used by the MRA. Note, the VAT law does not use the term "fixed establishment" but refers to "permanent establishment" instead.

Non-established businesses. In the context of services, a non-established business needs to have a permanent establishment in Mauritius to be able to register for VAT. This means that without being established, the reverse-charge mechanism always applies (and no VAT registration is required of the non-established businesses). If the recipient is not a taxable person, the reverse-charge mechanism does not apply, and no VAT is accounted for.

In the context of goods, a non-established business supplying goods within Mauritius must register for VAT in Mauritius if its yearly turnover of taxable supplies exceeds MUR6 million.

Currently, the law does not distinguish between supplies made to businesses (business-to-business [B2B]) and private consumers (business-to-consumer [B2C]). If VAT registration is compulsory, the non-established business is not allowed to avoid registration, even if the recipient of the service applies the reverse-charge mechanism. The same registration threshold applies to resident and nonresident businesses. A non-established business cannot register on a voluntary basis so that it can recover any VAT incurred in Mauritius.

Tax representatives. Tax representatives are not required in Mauritius.

Reverse charge. If a nonresident person supplies services that are performed or used in Mauritius to a customer that is a taxable person, the customer must account for the VAT due under "reverse-charge" accounting; that is, the taxable person must charge itself VAT. The self-assessed VAT may be deducted as input tax depending on the taxable person's partial exemption status. This measure does not apply to supplies that are exempt from VAT under the Mauritian VAT law.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Mauritius.

Digital economy. Nonresidents that provide electronically supplied services do not need to register for VAT in Mauritius, on the basis they do not have a permanent establishment in Mauritius. However, new regulations have been proposed that would mean a non-established business that does not have any permanent establishment in Mauritius and that supplies digital or electronic services to a person in Mauritius is required to charge VAT on the supply, subject to any conditions that may be prescribed. The conditions would be the subject matter of regulations that would provide the detailed requirements for the non-established business on the obligation to register for VAT, computation of the VAT and compliance requirements. However, at the time of preparing this chapter, such regulations have not been issued.

Generally, the Mauritian laws are supplemented by regulations that do not generally require the approval of Parliament. Whenever a piece of law is the subject matter of the regulations, the appropriate section would tend to refer to "such conditions as may be prescribed."

For such supplies, digital or electronic services are those prescribed services supplied by a non-established business over the internet, an electronic network that is reliant on the internet or such other means that are dependent on information technology for its supply. At the time of preparing this chapter, the regulations on the prescribed digital or electronic services and the prescribed conditions on the charge to VAT have not been issued.

There are no other specific e-commerce rules for imported goods in Mauritius.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Mauritius.

Registration procedures. An application form for registration should be submitted to the MRA. The form is submitted in hard copy (by post or deposited in person) and registration may be completed within a week. The MRA may request the person to produce such information or documents in support of the application. The MRA publishes a list of all the registered persons, including their name, trading name, BRN and VAT registration number. The list is updated on a quarterly basis.

Deregistration. A taxable person that ceases to be eligible for VAT registration must deregister. The person must write to the Director-General, MRA, who determines the effective date of deregistration.

Changes to VAT registration details. A taxable person is required to notify the MRA immediately in writing of the following changes:
- A change in name or trading name
- A change in address of any of their business
- The opening of any business premises
- The change in the nature of their business

At the same time, the taxable person should return their certificate of registration and all the relevant copies.

D. Rates

In Mauritius, the term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 15%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for a zero rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Printed books and booklets
- Sugar
- Fertilizers
- Margarine
- Rice
- Yogurt
- Edible oils
- Transport of passengers and goods by sea or air
- Electricity and water
- Export of goods and services
- Chilled deep-sea water used for the provision of air conditioning services
- Photovoltaic systems
- Bread
- Toothpastes and toothbrushes
- Baby wipes, napkins and napkin liners for babies
- Musical instruments, parts and accessories
- Cooking gas in cylinders of up to 12kg for domestic use
- Transport of passengers by public services vehicles
- Medical, hospital and dental services
- Nursing care and residential care services

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not give rise to a right of input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Baby food
- Breakfast cereals
- Entrance to cinemas, concerts and shows
- Films, including royalties
- Educational services
- Certain financial services
- Insurance
- Land
- Training services approved by the Mauritius Qualifications Authority

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Mauritius.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point." The tax point under the Mauritian law is the earlier of the receipt of payment or the issuance of an invoice or VAT invoice.

Where services are provided to a ministry, government department, local authority or the Rodrigues Regional Assembly under a construction works contract over the period starting from 1 October 2020 to 30 September 2022, the supply is deemed to take place at the time of payment. For this purpose, construction works means civil construction, including construction or repair of any building, road or other structure, or execution of any works contract and includes any mechanical or electrical works.

Deposits and prepayments. The receipt of a deposit or prepayment normally creates an actual tax point if the amount is paid in the expectation that it will form part of the total payment for a particular supply. A tax point is created only to the extent of the payment received.

Continuous supplies of services. If services are supplied continuously, a tax point is created each time a payment is made or an invoice or VAT invoice is issued, whichever occurs earlier.

Goods sent on approval or for sale or return. The tax point for goods sent on approval or for sale or return is the earlier of the issuance of an invoice or VAT invoice or when payment is received.

Reverse-charge services. The tax point for reverse-charge services is when the consideration for the services is paid. If the consideration for the services is not in money, the tax point is the last day of the VAT period during which the services are performed.

Leased assets. The time of supply for the supply of leased assets is the earlier of the issue of an invoice or receipt of payment. For hire-purchase agreements, the tax point arises when the agreement is made.

Imported goods. The time of supply for imported goods is the time when the goods are removed from customs.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax, which is VAT charged on goods and services supplied to it for business purposes. A taxable person generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax, which is VAT charged on supplies made.

The time limit for a taxable person to claim input tax not reported in the correct taxable period in Mauritius is three years.

A valid VAT invoice or customs import declaration must generally support a claim for input tax.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use by an entrepreneur). In addition, input tax may not be recovered for some items of business expenditure.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Purchase of a car
- Accommodation
- Assets transferred as part of a going concern
- Business entertainment and hospitality

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Conferences, exhibitions and seminars
- Staff welfare
- Certain motor vehicles, that are used for the transport of goods

Partial exemption. Input tax related to making exempt supplies is not recoverable. If a taxable person makes both exempt and taxable supplies, it may not recover input tax in full. This situation is referred to as "partial exemption."

A taxable person that makes exempt supplies may calculate the recoverable amount of VAT by an alternative method if approved by the MRA. The standard partial exemption calculation method is a two-stage calculation. The following are the two stages for this calculation:

- The first stage identifies the input tax that may be directly allocated to taxable and exempt supplies. Input tax directly allocated to taxable supplies is deductible, while input tax directly related to exempt supplies is not deductible.
- The second stage identifies the amount of the remaining input tax (for example, input tax on general business overhead) that may be allocated to taxable supplies and recovered. The calculation of recoverable VAT may be performed using the proportion of the value of taxable supplies to total turnover in the preceding year. An adjustment is made after the year so that the proportion is based on actual figures.

If the standard calculation provides an unfair result, the taxable person may agree on a special calculation method with the MRA.

Where a taxable person is engaged in a project spanning over several years and the MRA is of the opinion that the standard calculation is not appropriate, the MRA may, by notice, require the taxable person to apply an alternative basis of apportionment, i.e., a special method.

Approval from the tax authorities is not required to use the partial exemption standard method in Mauritius. However, approval is required to use any special methods.

Capital goods. Capital goods for VAT purposes in Mauritius are any building or structure, plant, machinery or equipment. The qualifying input tax is determined in accordance with the tax point: the input tax is apportioned where the person has mixed supplies. No subsequent adjustment is made where the proportion of the recoverable VAT changes, except for the yearly adjustment that applies to any input tax used to make taxable and exempt supplies.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax (VAT on purchases) recoverable in a period is greater than the amount of output tax due (VAT on sales), the excess may be refunded in certain circumstances. A taxable person may make a claim for repayment of the amount of input tax allowable with respect to capital goods amounting to MUR100,000 or more if it has excess input tax in the relevant tax period. The MRA may refund all or part of the claim.

In addition to any amount repayable relating to capital goods and certain intangible assets of a capital nature, a registered person may also make a claim to the MRA for a repayment of that part of the excess amount that corresponds to the proportion of the total value of zero-rated supplies made compared to the total value of taxable supplies made in that tax period.

The recoverable input tax may be deferred if all the following conditions are met:
- The duty-paid value of the capital goods is MUR1 million or more
- The capital goods are to be used in the course of, or for the furtherance of, the taxable person's business
- The taxable person is compliant with the obligations under the revenue laws
- A security is furnished to cover the deferred VAT
- Proper records are kept

A VAT refund scheme exists for selected industries and does not have any time limit. The relief applies to specified equipment and services to the following persons:
- Bakers
- Planters or horticulturists
- Livestock breeders (including pig breeders)
- Apiculturists
- Fishermen
- Tea cultivators

Pre-registration costs. Input tax on trading stocks and capital goods acquired within three months immediately preceding the date of registration can be recovered provided that the VAT is substantiated by receipts or invoices, or customs import declaration. The input tax should be certified by a qualified auditor.

Bad debts. Relief is available for any output tax accounted on any supplies that is subsequently written off. The debt should be written off for accounting purposes. No detailed guidance is provided on the conditions that should be satisfied for the output tax to be deductible.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred on purchases that are used for noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Mauritius.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Input tax incurred by non-established businesses that are not registered for VAT in Mauritius is not recoverable.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. Taxable persons must provide VAT invoices for all taxable supplies made to other taxable persons in Mauritius. A VAT invoice is necessary to support a claim for input tax deduction or a refund.

Credit notes. A VAT credit note may be used to reduce the VAT charged and reclaimed on a supply. The credit note must reflect a genuine mistake, an overcharge or an agreed reduction in the value of the original supply.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is mandatory in Mauritius for certain taxable persons.

Scope of electronic invoicing. For B2B, B2C and business-to-government (B2G) supplies, electronic invoicing is mandatory for certain taxable persons in Mauritius.

Electronic invoicing is being introduced through a phased approach and is expected to be effective in 2024 for persons with a minimum yearly turnover of MUR100 million. At the time of preparing this chapter, the introduction of electronic invoicing is expected to be from January 2024.

This will also apply to nontaxable persons. However, the regulations on the scope of this measure have not been prescribed, though it will first apply to businesses with an annual turnover of at least MUR100 million.

In June 2023, the MRA issued the functional specifications of the Electronic Billing System (EBS). The standard electronic invoicing template, debit notes and credit notes were the subject matter of the guidance issued by the MRA in June 2023. The legal mechanism of the electronic invoicing system is provided in the Value-Added Tax (E-invoicing) Regulations 2023, effective as from 2 October 2023 and specifically addressed the following:
- The electronic invoicing system
- The features of the EBS, together with its registration and non-registration
- The invoice fiscalization platform
- Transaction data
- EBS solution providers
- The particulars of the fiscal invoices

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified VAT invoicing is not allowed in Mauritius. Simplified invoicing rules do, however, apply for supplies made by non-VAT registered persons (where no VAT is charged), and a receipt can be issued.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Mauritius.

Proof of exports. In connection with the export of goods, documentary evidence regarding customs control should be kept. Such documents include the export bill, bill of lading and invoices issued to the foreign party

Foreign currency invoices. If an invoice or a VAT invoice is issued in a foreign currency, the VAT due must be converted into the domestic currency, which is the Mauritian rupee (MUR), using the prevailing exchange rate at the time of the issuance of the invoice.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. Full VAT invoices must be issued to any person, such that the same invoicing requirements apply for supplies to taxable and nontaxable persons.

Records. Every taxable person is required by the VAT law to keep in the course or furtherance of their business a full and true written record in English or French language of every transaction made.

In Mauritius, examples of what records that must be held for VAT purposes include basic accounting records. There is no precise guidance in the regulations for what records must be kept, and in practice, the MRA is flexible and considers basic accounting records.

In Mauritius, VAT books and records can be held outside of the country. Though there is nothing in the VAT law on the place of the records, the corporate laws require the approval of the Registrar of Companies if the accounting records are kept outside of Mauritius.

Record retention period. A taxable person is not allowed to furnish any information and/or produce any books and records after five years immediately following the last day of the taxable period in which the transaction occurs. The time limit of five years does not apply in the case of willful neglect, evasion or fraud.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is allowed in Mauritius. Records may be kept electronically in Mauritius, but it is not mandatory, and therefore physical records (i.e., paper) can also be used. The manner the electronic records should be kept is not specified in the law.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. VAT returns are submitted either quarterly or monthly. The quarterly return periods end in March, June, September and December. Returns must be submitted within 20 days after the tax period. The time limit of 20 days does not apply to a person that is required to submit its VAT return electronically. In such a case, the time limit is the end of the month following the tax period. If the statutory date is the end of December, the due date for the submission of the return is two days, excluding Saturdays and public holidays, before the end of December. A list of taxable supplies to any person, other than retail supplies, showing the invoice number and value of supply is required to be submitted every month at the time the VAT return is submitted.

Periodic payments. VAT payments must also be made within 20 days after the tax period. Like the return date, the time limit of 20 days does not apply to a person that is required to submit its VAT return electronically. In such a case, the time limit is the end of the month following the taxable month. The last date to pay the tax for the month of November is two days, excluding Saturdays and public holidays, before the end of December. Where the VAT return is not submitted electronically, a check is required. Otherwise, the payment is made electronically, whereby the taxable person provides their bank details on the VAT return.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is mandatory in Mauritius for all taxable persons.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Mauritius.

Special schemes. Annual accounting. VAT annual accounting scheme is allowed for small enterprises. A small enterprise is defined as a person with an annual turnover that does not exceed MUR10 million. The scheme only applies if the person is also taxed under a cash basis for income tax purposes. To date the way the cash basis applies has not been determined.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Mauritius.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in Mauritius.

Correcting errors in previous returns. An error may only be corrected through an adjustment in the VAT return. A schedule on the nature of the adjustment should be submitted with the VAT return.

Digital tax administration. Electronic invoices. The MRA may require any person to set up an e-invoicing system to (a) connecting electronically to the system to register all invoices, including debit notes and credit notes, generated in the furtherance of the business, and (b) issue fiscal invoices to customers. For this purpose, a fiscal invoice is defined as a receipt or invoice that is issued by a business to acknowledge that a transaction has been occurred between the business and a customer and that bears such data or mark to confirm that the invoice has been duly registered on the e-invoicing system. For further details, see the subsection Electronic invoicing above.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. A penalty applies to late registration. The penalty is 5% of the unpaid tax plus interest at a rate of 1% of the unpaid tax per month. The penalty is reduced to 2% of the unpaid tax in the case of a small enterprise (for this purpose a small enterprise means a person with an annual turnover of less than MUR10 million). The penalty for failure to apply for compulsory registration is MUR2,000 per month and is restricted to MUR20,000. In the case of a small enterprise, the maximum penalty is MUR5,000.

Penalties for late payment and filings. A penalty applies for the late submission of a VAT return. It equals MUR2,000 per month, up to a maximum of MUR20,000. For a small enterprise, the maximum penalty is reduced to MUR5,000.

For late payment of VAT, the penalty is 5% of the unpaid tax; the penalty is reduced to 2% in the case of a small enterprise (for this purpose a small enterprise means a person with an annual turnover of less than MUR10 million). Interest is computed at a rate of 1% per month. The Director-General, MRA may waive the penalty and interest if the Director-General is satisfied that the error was attributable to a just or reasonable cause. Where an assessment is raised, a penalty not exceeding 50% of the tax claimed shall apply. The MRA is empowered to issue an additional assessment.

Penalties for errors. A penalty of 20% applies to any excess claim for repayment. The penalty is limited to MUR200,000. Otherwise, there is no specific penalty for errors made by a taxable person.

There are no specific penalties associated with the late notification or failure to notify changes to a taxable person's VAT registration details. For further details, see the subsection Changes to VAT registration details above.

Penalties for fraud. Any person who commits an offense for the purposes of the VAT law may be liable to a fine not exceeding MUR50,000 and to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three years.

Personal liability for company officers. A principal officer of a private company may be personally liable for the VAT liability of a company. A principal officer for this purpose means an executive director or any other person who exercises control or who is entitled to exercise control of powers that would fail to be exercised by the board of directors.

This is only possible on conviction and the period of imprisonment varies from a term not exceeding three, five or eight years. The penalty also varies and depends on the nature of the noncompliance with the law. For example, the failure to notify the MRA to change the taxable period from a quarter to a month gives rise to a maximum fine of MUR50,000. On the other hand, a person who makes a false return is liable to a fine not exceeding three times the amount of the tax.

Statute of limitations. The statute of limitations in Mauritius is four years. The MRA is not allowed to issue an assessment before four years immediately preceding the last day of the taxable period in which the liability to tax arose. The time limit of four years does not apply if the MRA is of the opinion that the person has (a) demonstrated fraudulent conduct; (b) willfully neglected to comply with the law; (c) not submitted a return; or (d) not submitted a statement on its tax liability prior to the date of registration.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- Supply of goods and independent services provided in Mexico
- Importation of services (subject to the reverse charge, see Section C)
- Grant of temporary use or exploitation of goods
- Importations of goods, regardless of the status of the importer
- Supply of digital services provided by foreign residents

Effective use and enjoyment. To avoid instances of non-taxation or double taxation, jurisdictions can apply "use and enjoyment rules" that allow a service that is "used and enjoyed" in the jurisdiction to be taxed or prevent a service that is "used and enjoyed" outside the jurisdiction from being taxed. If a service is taxed in the jurisdiction under the "use and enjoyment" provisions, a non-established supplier of the service may be required to register for VAT in that jurisdiction where it has customers that are not taxable persons. In Mexico, the "use and enjoyment" provisions only applies to services exported to be taxed at 0%, with the requirement to evidence effective use of the service, provided by Mexican tax residents. In addition, the temporary use of goods must occur within Mexican territory to be taxable.

Transfer of a going concern. Transfer of going concern rules do not apply in Mexico. As such, VAT applies to all sales of a business or part of a business capable of separate operation, including assets.

Transactions between related parties. In Mexico, for a transaction between related parties the value for VAT purposes is calculated on an arm's-length basis. There is no difference between supplies of goods and services.

C. Who is liable

Any business entity or individual that carries out, in Mexican territory, any of the taxable transactions described above, as provided in the VAT law.

A taxable person that receives a supply must withhold the VAT due from the supplier and must pay the corresponding VAT. It applies to a variety of transactions, including the following:
- Fees paid by companies to individuals
- Acquisitions of scrap material
- Ground transportation (freights) of goods
- Commissions paid by companies to individuals
- Lease or acquisition of tangible goods from residents abroad
- Companies that receive outsourcing services

Digital service intermediaries that collect the price and the VAT on behalf of digital service providers, that are foreign residents without a permanent establishment in Mexico, will be required to withhold 100% of the VAT collected from Mexican users (individuals or legal entities).

Exemption from registration. The VAT law in Mexico does not contain any provision for exemption from registration.

Note that a VAT registration on its own would not be possible in Mexico. In case an entity would start taxable activities in Mexico, it would need to establish a local entity or a permanent establishment, which would be subject to all the different taxes in Mexico.

The only exception for creating a permanent establishment is for provision of digital services. If foreign companies carry out other business activities in Mexico, such as selling goods on an ordinary basis, they may create a permanent establishment and as such be subject to complying to the VAT rules in the same way as any other Mexican company.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. The VAT law in Mexico does not contain any provision for voluntary VAT registration, nor special VAT registration rules for small business. This is because there is no registration threshold (i.e., all entities that make taxable supplies are obliged to register for VAT).

Group registration. Group VAT registration is not allowed in Mexico.

Fixed establishment. In Mexico, there is no legal definition of a fixed establishment for VAT purposes. However, the Federal Tax Code article 16 sets forth that establishment will be understood to refer to any place of business where the activities are carried out in whole or in part.

Non-established businesses. VAT registration is only required for non-established businesses that carry out taxable activities in Mexico.

A foreign legal entity with an establishment in Mexico is subject to all federal taxes such as corporate income tax and VAT, for the income and activities attributable to such establishment. For VAT purposes, it must file monthly VAT returns and issue electronic invoices and file electronic accounting like any other Mexican resident. In addition, when applicable, income tax obligations must be fulfilled.

Tax representatives. Powers of attorney can be granted by the taxable person, and they must be for general administrative purposes.

A tax registration applies for all taxes. To incorporate a company in Mexico or in the case of the creation of a permanent establishment it is necessary to appoint a legal representative. VAT registration alone is only allowed for foreign residents providing digital services in Mexico, and it is the only case when a foreign entity without a permanent establishment needs to appoint a legal representative. See the Digital economy subsection below.

Reverse charge. Taxable persons who import intangible goods or services are subject to VAT at 16% rate, which can be credited in the same monthly return pursuant to the VAT law.

It is important to point out that although the invoice issued by the nonresident business would not include the VAT amount, the customer (business) has to reflect it in its accounting records and in the VAT returns submitted, otherwise tax authorities may challenge the VAT credit and request the tax.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Mexico.

Digital economy. The supply of certain digital services are taxable at the 16% VAT rate, when they are provided by foreign residents to Mexican users. The rules entered into force on 1 June 2020. The tax reform does not distinguish between business-to-business (B2B) and business-to-consumer (B2C) transactions. Therefore, the rule would technically apply to all suppliers. However, the provisions appear to focus on B2C transactions. Outlined below are the categories of taxable persons the rules apply to:

- Category 1: Those that provide for the download/access to images, movies, music, text, information, video, gaming, ring tones, news online, traffic, weather, online clubs, dating sites and other multimedia content, online learning, tests and exercises
- Category 2: Those that perform intermediation services between potential sellers and buyers of products and services that collect payments on behalf of suppliers

Providers of financial services, payment services, data storage and the use or sale of certain standardized software are not be subject to the new requirements.

The tax authorities publish a list of the VAT registered foreign digital service providers. At the time of preparing this chapter, the last updated list of foreign digital service companies registered for VAT purposes was as of 31 August 2023 and published 11 September 2023, with 196 entities.

Nonresidents providing electronically supplied services for both B2B and B2C supplies, need to register for VAT.

Nonresidents proving intermediary services through an online platform for e-commerce to Mexican sellers should comply with the rules of digital service providers.

Importers of goods will continue paying VAT upon importation, which needs to be carried out by an authorized Mexican importer (IOR).

Digital services are deemed to be rendered in Mexico when the recipient of the services:
- Has declared a domicile in Mexico
- The consideration of the digital services is paid through an intermediary (for instance, a financial institution) located in Mexico
- The IP address used corresponds to Mexico
  Or
- Has provided a phone number with a Mexican country code

Obligations of foreign entities providing digital services in Mexico are as follows:
- Register in the Mexican Federal Taxpayers Registry (RFC)
- Break down VAT from the prices of digital services offered
- Keep records of digital services provided monthly and report them to the MTA on a monthly basis, through the VAT return
- Compute monthly VAT collected for digital services and submit the VAT return through the MTA's website
- Issue and deliver the corresponding invoices (simplified invoices)
- Appoint a legal representative and provide a tax domicile in Mexico
- Obtain the electronic signature from the MTA

The fulfillment of these requirements does not constitute the creation of a permanent establishment (PE) in Mexico. The recipients of services will be entitled to credit the VAT paid in terms of the VAT law.

Noncompliance with obligations to register, appointment of a legal representative and tax domiciles, or else failure to file three returns will grant the tax authorities the right to block the internet webpage.

Non-Mexican residents acting as intermediaries will be also obliged to:
1. Publish on their website, application, platform or in any other similar media the applicable VAT on goods and services offered by them as intermediaries
2. When the intermediary makes collections on behalf of third parties, they should:
   (i) Withhold from individuals 50% of the VAT collected (100% if no RFC is provided)
   ii) Withhold from foreign individuals or entities without a permanent establishment in Mexico, 100% of the VAT collected
   iii) Issue and deliver the corresponding invoices (simplified invoices) on the name of the foreign resident
   (iv) Pay withholding by the 17th day of the following month
   (v) Issue formal withholding VAT e-invoices within the following five days
   (iv) Register in the RFC as a withholding agent
3. Report to the MTA information about clients, no later than on the 10th day of the following month. This obligation will be removed just for the services provided to foreign residents for which the VAT withholding were performed in terms of subsection (ii).

Online marketplaces and platforms. See detail above under the Digital economy subsection.

Registration procedures. The taxable person must request a tax identification number (federal taxable persons registry) from the tax authorities (SAT). The registration is done electronically, through the SAT's website (www.sat.gob.mx). In addition, the taxable person must visit in person to the SAT office to complete the registration with the following information (originals accepted only):

- Bylaws of the entity
- Proof of the tax address in Mexico
- Notarized power of attorney granted to the legal representative
- Identification card of the legal representative

The entity is also obligated to obtain the Mexican electronic signature for tax purposes (known as e.firma) through its legal representative. This procedure takes place in the SAT's office.

In Mexico, tax ID (known as RFC) number is the same for all tax purposes for Mexican residents. This tax identification type can be applied to companies and to individuals. An RFC number for a company is 12 characters, while an RFC number for an individual is 13 characters.

For foreign residents who provide digital services, an RFC is assigned just for VAT purposes. For such purposes the foreign service provider must perform the following registration process:
- Appoint a legal representative in Mexico. The legal representative should have their own RFC, electronic signature and a tax domicile in Mexico.
- Fill out the pre-registration form through the Mexican tax authorities' website (www.sat.gob.mx).
- Register and obtain the electronic signature at the tax authorities offices. This should be personally carried out by the legal representative in Mexico by obtaining an appointment at the tax authorities' facilities

The list of necessary documentation to complete the registration process described in 1/Plataformas Tecnológicas (PLT) and 2/PLT (PLT refers to digital platforms, and the code is the procedure number listed in the tax authorities' guide on tax procedures, specifically for digital platforms) are as follows:
- Power of attorney (POA) duly apostilled, translated into Spanish by an official translator and notarized in Mexico
- Pre-registration form completed on the tax authorities' website
- Bylaws of incorporation duly apostilled and notarized in the country of origin and in Mexico; such document should be translated into Spanish by an authorized translator
- Taxable persons' registration number granted by the foreign tax authority duly apostilled and notarized in the country of origin and in Mexico; this document should be translated into Spanish by an authorized translator
- Original proof of tax domicile in Mexico; in general, a lease or service agreement or bills for public services such as water, electricity, gas, among others would be acceptable proof of address
- Official identification of the appointed legal representative
- Official form (FE) – "Request of the certificate of e-firma" (this is for the process required in Form 2/PLT)

Deregistration. Through a liquidation process, the taxable persons can cancel the tax identification provided by the tax authorities.

Changes to VAT registration details. Taxable persons are obliged to submit notices to the Federal Tax Registry when there is a change in its tax domicile, tax obligations (additions or removals), openings or closing of offices, warehouses, plants or branches. Notifications must be filed via the tax authorities' website with the electronic signature.

Some notifications must be performed by the individual or legal representative physically in person at the tax authorities' offices. This would be required for such changes as name denomination change, cancelation of the tax registry, change in the equity legal regime, change of tax residency.

Taxable persons must notify such changes during the following month the change took place.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero-rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 16%
- Reduced rate: 8%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate, the zero-rate or an exemption.

All temporary importations made by companies who operate under the IMMEX program are subject to VAT at the standard rate. However, a 100% credit of VAT is applicable over the temporary importations for those entities that obtain a certification for VAT/excise tax purposes. "IMMEX" is a Spanish acronym for Manufacturing, Maquiladora and Export Services Industry (Industria Manufacturera, Maquiladora y de Servicios de Exportación). The IMMEX program allows foreign manufacturers to import raw materials and components into Mexico, tax and duty free, under the condition that 100% of all finished goods will be exported out of Mexico within a government mandated time frame and several conditions are fulfilled.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Exported goods
- Certain exported services
- Unprocessed food and milk
- Patented medicines
- Feminine hygiene products

Examples of goods and services taxable at 8%

- Supply of goods and services, use or enjoyment of goods in locals or establishments located in the cross-border zones, both in the Northern and Southern regions.

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT. Exempt supplies do not give rise to a right of input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Books, newspapers and magazines
- Constructions used for residential purposes
- Transfer of copyright by authors
- Education
- Public transport of passengers by land
- Transport of goods by sea for nonresidents
- Local and foreign currency and credit instruments (including shares)

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Mexico.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point." The basic tax point for supplies of goods and services is when the customer effectively pays the consideration. As a result, VAT is determined on a cash-flow basis.

The cash-flow mechanism applies in Mexico, and therefore VAT is triggered when the payment of taxable activities is received, or in the specific case of importation of tangible goods, when those goods are imported within Mexican territory, even when it is a temporary importation.

On the other hand, if a taxable person receives the return of transferred goods, grants discounts or rebates or refunds the advance payments or deposits previously received, for the purpose of engaging in activities taxed under this law, the taxable person will deduct the amount of said items from the value of the activities for which the tax is payable, in the tax returns or returns following the corresponding calendar month, provided that it is expressly stated that the charged value added tax was refunded.

In addition, tax provisions set forth that in case of returns, discounts and rebates, taxable persons shall issue a digital tax invoice, which must fulfill the same requirements as invoices in accordance with federal tax code and its regulations.

Deposits and prepayments. There are no special time of supply rules in Mexico for deposits and prepayments. This is because the cash-flow mechanism applies in Mexico, and therefore VAT is triggered when a payment (i.e., deposit or prepayment) is received.

Continuous supplies of services. There are no special time of supply rules for continuous sup plies. This is because the cash-flow mechanism applies in Mexico, and therefore the VAT is triggered when payment is received (i.e., the service is paid for by the customer).

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules in Mexico for supplies of goods sent on approval or for sale or return. This is because the cash-flow mechanism applies in Mexico, and therefore VAT is triggered when a payment is received.

Reverse-charge services. The reverse-charge mechanism in Mexico only applies in cases of:
- Purchasing of services from a supplier in another country
- Importation of intangible assets

Only in these two scenarios the reverse charge would apply and be subject to the fulfillment of tax requirements. The reverse charge must be recognized at the time that the consideration is effectively paid (cash-flow basis).

Leased assets. There are no special time of supply rules in Mexico for supplies of leased assets. This is because the cash-flow mechanism applies in Mexico, and therefore VAT is triggered when the service is (periodically) paid for.

Imported goods. The time of supply for imported goods is when the goods clear all customs procedures.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax (also known as credit VAT), which is VAT charged on goods and services acquired for business purposes. A taxable person generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax (also known as debit VAT), which is VAT charged to customers. Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services supplied in Mexico, granting of temporary use of goods, VAT paid on imports of goods and VAT withheld on reverse-charge goods and services.

To be deductible, input tax must relate to the acquisition of goods and services that qualify as deductible expenses for income tax purposes. If an item of expenditure is only partly deductible for income tax purposes, input tax may be credited only with respect to the deductible portion of the expense.

A valid digital tax invoice and the valid digital tax payment invoice (received at the time payment is made to the supplier) or customs document must generally support a claim for input tax.

The VAT credit on importation of goods only applies if the import documentation (pedimento) is issued in the name of the taxable person claiming the credit.

The time limit for a taxable person to reclaim input tax in Mexico is five years. Input tax should be offset the same month it is incurred. However, where input tax is higher than output tax, the result is a positive VAT balance for refund. This balance can be credited against the payable VAT or claimed in refund for a period of five years.

Nondeductible input tax. When taxable persons carry out activities and obtain income not related to their business or from activities not subject to VAT (exempt activities), the input tax generated for those transactions will not be recoverable.

Likewise, when the transaction does not comply with the crediting requirements set forth in the VAT law, the input tax will not be recoverable. In general terms, such requirements are the following:

- Strictly indispensable expenses for engaging taxable activities
- VAT has been expressly disclosed in tax receipts
- VAT charged to the taxable person has to be effectively paid in the month in question
- In case of charged VAT, withheld pursuant to article 1-A of this law, such withholding must be paid over on the terms and within the periods established therein

For purposes of calculating the amount of credits that may be taken for input tax recovery, taxable persons are required to allocate it between taxable and nontaxable activities, including activities performed outside of Mexico, eliminating the ability of taxable persons to credit any VAT paid on the acquisition of goods, services, imports, etc., related to those activities.

VAT paid on the acquisition of goods and services to carry out out-of-scope activities for VAT purposes is not creditable. Out-of-scope activities are those that taxable persons execute out of the territory of Mexico, as well as activities that are not taxable for VAT purposes per the Mexican VAT law, whenever taxable persons earn income therefrom and for which expenses and investments were made in which VAT was charged or paid upon importation thereof.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Business gifts
- Entertainment of employees

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if fully related to a taxable business use)

- Business entertainment
- Accommodation
- Purchase of a vehicle, up to MXN175,000
- Lodging, up to MXN3,850 per day
- Meals, disbursed in Mexico, up to MXN750 per day, and disbursed in foreign countries, up to MXN1,500 per day
- Lease of a vehicle, up to MXN850 per day
- Mobile phones
- Travel expenses

Partial exemption. Input tax directly related to carrying out exempt or out-of-scope activities not recoverable. If a taxable person carries out exempt or out-of-scope activities, as well as makes taxable supplies, it may not recover input tax in full.

A taxable person must calculate its input tax credit based on a "credit factor." The credit factor is determined based on the percentage of taxable turnover compared with total turnover (including taxable, exempt and out-of-scope activities) in the month of the payment.

Approval from the tax authorities is not required to use the partial exemption standard method (i.e., the credit factor) in Mexico. Special methods are not allowed in Mexico.

Capital goods. There are no special rules for the recovery of input tax incurred on the acquisition of capital goods.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax (credit VAT) in a month exceeds the amount of output tax (debit VAT), the excess credit may be carried forward to crediting output tax in the following tax periods, or it may be refunded upon request. The tax authorities refund a VAT credit by depositing the refundable amount into the taxable person's bank account. By law, refunds must be made within 40 business days after the date on which the refund request is filed. In addition, there are special VAT recovery schemes for certain sectors, speeding up the refund process (see Special schemes subsection under Section I below).

Mexican taxable persons who want to deduct or credit taxes based on the receipt issued by non-established businesses can use such receipts, as long as the receipts contain the following pieces of information:

- Name or business name, address of the issuer
- City, country and date in which it is issued
- Tax registration key of the issuer
- RFC (tax ID number of the recipient)
- Price or value of the consideration for each service
- Concept or description of the service
- Regarding sale of goods or the granting of their temporary use or enjoyment, the amount of the taxes withheld, as well as the taxes transferred, split down by each one of the corresponding tax rates

Alternatively to the list of requisites stated above, a taxable person may attach to the receipt issued by the foreign resident without permanent establishment in Mexico the e-invoice issued by the taxable person for the withholdings performed to mentioned foreign residents.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax incurred on pre-registration costs in Mexico is not recoverable.

Bad debts. Output tax accounted for on supplies that do not get paid by the recipient (i.e., bad debts) cannot be recovered in Mexico. This is because the cash-flow mechanism applies in Mexico, and therefore VAT is triggered when the service is (periodically) paid for.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred on purchases that are used for noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Mexico.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Input tax incurred by non-established businesses that are not registered for VAT in Mexico is not recoverable.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A taxable person must provide an electronic tax invoice for all taxable supplies made and for all collections regarding such supplies made at the time of the deposit, including exports. The VAT must be expressly notified to the taxable person and verified separately in the digital tax invoice.

Valid digital tax invoices are required to support a claim for input tax deduction. Such invoices are the valid digital tax invoice of the purchase or goods and services, and the valid digital payment tax invoice received at the time payment is made to the supplier.

Credit notes. A VAT credit note may be used to reduce VAT charged and claimed on the supply of goods and services through an expense invoice, which must contain the same information and fulfill the same requirements as a VAT invoice.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is mandatory in Mexico for all taxable persons.

Scope of electronic invoicing. For B2B, B2C and business-to-government (B2G) supplies, electronic invoicing is mandatory for all taxable persons in Mexico. There is no threshold beyond which taxable persons are required to adopt electronic invoicing in Mexico.

The use of electronic invoicing is subject to registration before the tax authorities. It is mandatory to issue digital tax invoices regarding taxable persons' activities or income, or payments made, or the tax withholdings they carry out, and those invoices must be issued through the tax administration service's webpage. Invoices must be kept for at least five years.

To increase visibility on payments performed for the delivery of goods/provision of services when consideration is not paid in a lump sum, a digital tax invoice shall be issued through the internet for the full amount of the relevant transaction at the time in which it is executed; and a digital tax invoice shall be issued through the internet for each payment received thereafter (payment complements/complementos de pago). This is particularly relevant, as the VAT system in Mexico is based on a cash-flow basis, meaning that VAT only becomes due when payment is performed.

All mandatory complements to invoices should be issued as applicable, such as payments complements (complementos de pago) and transportation complements (carta porte).

In all cases, an electronic invoice must include the following requirements:
- Federal taxpayer registry key of the issuer (RFC)
- Name or corporate name of the issuer
- Number of the folio
- Digital seal from the tax authorities
- Place and date of issuance
- Federal taxpayer registry key of the recipient (RFC) – when the RFC is not available, a generic RFC will be used, XAXX010101000 for Mexican residents and XEXX010101000 for foreign residents
- Postal code of the fiscal address of the person in whose favor it is issued
- Price or value of the consideration for the service, excluding VAT
- VAT charged
- Concept or description of the service – as established in the official catalog of the authority (https://www.sat.gob.mx/consultas/53693/catalogo-de-productos-y-servicios)
- Unit price stated in numbers
- Total amount specified in numbers or in words
- Explicit indication when the consideration is paid in single or multiple installments
- When applicable, the amount of transferred taxes shall be indicated, broken down by tax rate, and if applicable, the amount of taxes withheld
- Method of payment

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified invoicing is permitted by the VAT law for those issued by foreign entities with non-established businesses. Non-established digital service providers can issue invoices in PDF format instead of standard electronic invoices, the minimal requirements for those invoices are:
- Name or corporate name of the issuer
- City and country in which it is issued
- Tax ID registration number of the issuer
- Price or value of the consideration for the service, excluding VAT
- VAT charged
- Concept or description of the service
- Date of issuance and period that covers the consideration
- Tax ID of the recipient

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Mexico.

Proof of exports. Mexican VAT is charged at the 0% rate on exported goods. However, to qualify, exports must be supported by evidence that proves that the goods have left Mexico. Suitable proof includes customs export documentation for the transaction.

Foreign currency invoices. If a VAT invoice is issued in foreign currency, the values for VAT purposes must be converted into the domestic currency, which is the Mexican peso (MXN). This should be calculated using the exchange rate that the Central Bank publishes in the Federal Register on the day before the contributions are incurred (date of payment).

Supplies to nontaxable persons. There are no special invoicing rules for supplies from taxable persons to private consumers. Full VAT invoices are required to be issued for all supplies.

Records. Accounting records for VAT purposes must comply with the requirements set forth in the Federal Tax Code (FTC). In Mexico, examples of what records must be held for VAT purposes include the books, accounting systems and records, working papers, account statements, special accounts, company books and records, inventory control and valuation methods, disks and ribbons or any other processable data storage medium, electronic tax registration equipment or systems and their respective records (in addition to the supporting documentation of the respective seats), as well as all documentation and information relating to compliance with the provisions of tax law that demonstrate income and deductions and compliance with other laws.

In Mexico, VAT books and records can be held outside the country. This is as long as taxable persons keep accounting records at the disposal of the tax authorities and comply with general requirements of registry. Entries that comprise the accounting records shall be kept in electronic means, should be registered during the following five days of the transactions and must allow the identification of each transaction. Documentation supporting such entries shall be available at the taxable person's tax domicile.

Record retention period. Accounting records and supporting documentation must be kept for a period of five years.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is allowed in Mexico. Physical archiving (i.e., paper) is also allowed. Electronic invoices issued and received must be archived in electronical media in format (XML). There is not a mandatory system that should be utilized for such archiving.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. VAT returns are filed electronically via the tax authority's website and must be submitted monthly. VAT returns are due no later than the 17th day of the following month. After filing the return, the tax authorities provide to the taxable person a reference (Linea de Captura) to proceed with the payment in the financial institutions.

In addition, monthly information of transactions with suppliers must be submitted electronically during the following month through an informative tax return known as a DIOT (declaración informativa de operaciones con terceros).

Non-established businesses providing digital services in Mexico must submit monthly informative returns regarding the services provided in Mexico.

Periodic payments. Returns must be paid in Mexican pesos, through a wire transfer. Only non-established businesses providing digital services in Mexico can pay in a foreign currency from foreign bank accounts.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is mandatory in Mexico for all taxable persons. VAT returns and all other tax returns must be filed electronically. VAT credits may be refunded on request through the SAT's website (www.sat.gob.mx). The usual documentation necessary for filing with the tax authorities is a formal letter explaining the taxable person's motives for the return, along with the electronic format filed in the application FED (Formato Electrónico de Devoluciones) (including appendix A, 7 and 7-A, according to the type of VAT return), the corresponding paperwork that shows the summary of the VAT transactions, the corresponding bank account of the person or entity (that does not exceed two months from the moment the return is requested), among others.

Taxable persons are obliged to file electronic accounting that includes a chart of accounts and trial balance. Journal entries are filed only upon the tax authorities request

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Mexico.

Special schemes. VAT recovery. The Mexican tax authorities issue special schemes for VAT recovery for certain sectors, such as taxable persons engaged in the production and distribution of food products, medicines and fixed asset investment projects. In these cases, taxable persons may obtain their refund claims within a maximum of 20 business days, pursuant to the fulfillment of certain requirements.

In addition, high exporters or importers taxable persons certified for VAT purposes may obtain their refund claims in the same period of 20 days as maximum.

Tax authorities provide administrative facilities to agricultural, farming, fishing and forestry sector to automatically recover favorable VAT for a maximum amount of MXN1 million. Some compliance requirements must be filled to access this benefit.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Mexico.

Supplementary filings. Third-party transactions. Monthly returns of transactions with third parties must be filed. Such returns must include information regarding the supplies and suppliers.

Correcting errors in previous returns. Taxable persons can voluntarily correct any errors or omissions from previous periods with an amended return that is submitted via the same platform of the regular returns through the website of the tax authorities. Where such a correction results in a payable return, the electronic amended return will compute recharges and interest and will issue the reference of payment (Linea de Captura) to be paid in the taxable person's financial institution website.

Digital tax administration. Mexico has an almost 100% electronic tax compliance environment that includes electronic filing of returns and tax payments. Taxable persons must issue their invoices electronically. These invoices must include a specific code provided by certain suppliers who are authorized by the Mexican tax authorities. Accounting records (e.g., journal entries, trial balance, accounting records) must be generated in an xml format and be submitted to the Mexican tax authorities' website.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. The penalties related to late or extemporary registration include the following:

- Not submitting registration when it is obligatory and/or failure to submit a registration application in the name of a third party when legally bound or doing so extemporary – from MXN4,480 to MXN 13,430
- Not submitting notices or extemporary – from MXN4,800 to MXN9,590
- In case of digital services, noncompliance with obligations to register grants the authorities the right to block the internet webpage

Penalties for late payment and filings. Any amount of tax that is not paid by the due date must be adjusted for inflation. A monthly surcharge is also applied to the amount of tax owed at a rate of 1.47% per month. If the taxable person corrects the error voluntarily or if the late payment is due to factors beyond the taxable person's control, no fines are imposed. However, the surcharge and inflation restatement apply. Interest is assessed on late payments of tax at a monthly rate of 1.47%.

Penalties for errors. There are penalties imposed on taxable persons if they do not submit returns on time or if submitted returns contain errors. Examples of errors include following:
- In VAT return, incorrect tax domicile, a penalty – from MXN1,340 to MXN4,480, per error
- In summary of clients and suppliers return, missing data or incorrect data, a penalty – from MXN30 to MXN120, per each one
- When taxable persons do not pay their taxes within the specified time frame – from MXN1,810 to MXN44,790, per omission

Failure to issue transportation complements could lead to deeming the merchandise being transported as illegal, subject to criminal sanctions.

The late notification or failure to notify tax authorities of changes to a taxable person's VAT registration details may result in penalties from MXN1,810 to MXN44,790, unless notifications are filed voluntarily. For further details, see the subsection Changes to VAT registration details above.

Digital service providers. Access to digital telecommunication services will be blocked to a non-established digital service provider where it fails to comply with the following tax obligations:
- Registration in the federal taxable person registry, designation of a legal representative and tax address
- Processing of electronic signature, VAT payment, remittance of withholdings or filing of monthly and/or quarterly information returns

The non-established digital service provider has the right to a hearing prior to the blocking of the digital services through which it may prove that it has fulfilled its tax obligations.

Concessionaires who fail to comply with the blocking instruction will be subject to a fine ranging from MXN578,700 to MXN1,157,400 million for each month it fails to comply with the instruction.

Penalties for fraud. Criminal offenses are punishable by fines, which may be a percentage of the tax lost or a specified amount. Tax crimes may also be penalized with a term of imprisonment of three months to nine years or longer, depending on the circumstances.

The purpose of the Federal Law against Organized Crime is to establish rules for the investigation, prosecution, punishment and penalties for crimes committed by a person who is part of organized crime. Its provisions are public order and applicable throughout the national territory.

The reform to the federal law against organized crime includes, as part of the activities considered as a crime, the following:
- Contraband
- Tax fraud
- When figures, quantity or value of the tax receipts that cover nonexistent operations, false or simulated legal acts exceed three times the amount established in the federal Tax Code, which is approximately MXN7.8 million

Personal liability for company officers. The person or persons, regardless of their title, who hold the position of general director, general manager or sole administrator of a legal entity can be held personally jointly and severally liable for contributions due or not withheld by said legal entity during their tenure, as well as for those contributions that should have been paid during said period. This shall apply to the portion of the fiscal debts not guaranteed by the assets of the legal entity that they manage.

Statute of limitations. The statute of limitations in Mexico is five years. The statute of limitations can be extended from five to 10 years to review any pending tax credits. The time limit the tax authorities can go back to review returns and identify errors is five years after the VAT return was filed. There is no time limit for taxable persons to voluntarily correct errors in previous returns. There is a limit of three amended returns to be filed if the tax is reduced or the favorable VAT balance is increased. There is no limit of amended returns to increase payable tax amount or reduce favorable VAT balances.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:

- The supply of goods or services made in Moldova by a taxable person in the course of a business
- Importation of services received in Moldova by a taxable person (using the "reverse-charge" mechanism)
- Importation of goods
- Services provided through electronic networks (i.e., digital services) by nonresidents to Moldovan resident individuals
- Procurement of property of taxable person, declared in the insolvency process (some exceptions) by using the "reverse-charge" mechanism
- Procurement of pledged property, mortgaged property, forfeit property from the taxable persons by using the "reverse-charge" mechanism

Effective use and enjoyment. To avoid instances of non-taxation or double taxation, jurisdictions can apply "use and enjoyment" rules that allow a service that is "used and enjoyed" in the jurisdiction to be taxed or prevent a service that is "used and enjoyed" outside the jurisdiction from being taxed. If a service is taxed in the jurisdiction under the "use and enjoyment" provisions, a non-established supplier of the service may be required to register for VAT in every jurisdiction where it has customers that are not taxable persons. In Moldova, no services are subject to the "use and enjoyment" provisions.

Transfer of a going concern. Transfer of going concern rules do not apply in Moldova. As such, VAT applies to all sales of a business or part of a business capable of separate operation including assets.

Transactions between related parties. In Moldova, there are no specific rules that indicate the value for VAT purposes for transactions between related parties.

C. Who is liable

A taxable person is any person or legal entity that is registered for VAT in Moldova. An entity that has a fixed place of business or carries out commercial or professional operations on a regular basis in Moldova must register for VAT.

The mandatory VAT registration threshold is turnover or imported services of MDL1.2 million in a period of 12 consecutive months.

Exemption from registration. The VAT law in Moldova does not contain any provision for exemption from registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. Voluntary VAT registration is allowed for persons planning to perform taxable supplies of goods and services, irrespective of their turnover value.

Group registration. Group VAT registration is not allowed in Moldova.

Fixed establishment. In Moldova there is no legal definition of a fixed establishment for VAT purposes. However, the direct tax rules for a permanent establishment (PE) also apply for VAT. A PE, according to the Moldovan Tax Code provisions, is defined as a fixed place of business through which a nonresident carries out all or a part of its business activity in Moldova, either directly or through an agent with dependent status, including:

a) A place of management, a subsidiary, an office, a factory, a store, a workshop and a mine, an oil or gas well, a quarry or any other place natural resource extraction or cultivation of agricultural crops
b) A building site, a construction, assembly or installation project or technical supervisory activities, maintenance and operation of the related equipment, only if such site, project or activities continue for a period longer than six months
c) Sale of goods from warehouses in Moldova that belong to the nonresidents or are rented by it
d) Provision of other services, other activities, over a period longer than three months, except for preparatory, auxiliary or of other character activities that do no suppose creation of a PE (i.e., as defined in the list of exceptions mentioned in points (i) to (vii) below), as well as the work performed under an employment agreement and independent professional activity, if the tax legislation does not provide for other rules
e) Carrying out in Moldova of any of the activities listed in points a) to d) above, by an agent with dependent status or maintenance by this agent in Moldova of a stock of goods or products that are delivered in the name of a nonresident

By exception, a PE is not deemed to be created where a nonresident carries out in Moldova preparatory, auxiliary or of other character activities in the absence of the PE criteria listed above. Particularly, the following activities should be treated as preparatory, auxiliary or of other nature:

(i) The use of facilities solely for the purpose of storage or display of products or goods belonging to the nonresident
(ii) The maintenance of a stock of goods or merchandise belonging to the nonresident solely for the purpose of storage or display
(iii) The maintenance of a stock of goods or merchandise belonging to the nonresident solely for the purpose of processing by another enterprise
(iv) The maintenance of a fixed place of business solely for the purpose of purchasing of merchandise by the nonresident
(v) The maintenance of a fixed place of business solely for the purpose of collecting and/or distributing of information, marketing, advertising, or market research of goods (services) performed by the nonresident, if such an activity does not represent a core (ordinary) activity of the nonresident
(vi) The maintenance of a fixed place of business for the purpose of signing by a person of contracts on behalf of a nonresident, if the contracts are signed in accordance with the detailed written instructions of the nonresident
(vii) Carrying out the building site related activities we specified in points b) above which do not exceed six months

A PE has no legal person status. From tax point of view the nonresidents that have a PE in Moldova should apply the same VAT rules as a local business entity.

Non-established businesses. Foreign traders are not allowed to have a VAT registration number in Moldova. If a foreign entity undertakes entrepreneurial activity in Moldova that results in a permanent establishment (PE), it must register for VAT locally. It is then treated in the same way as a resident entity. In addition, foreign entities that provide services through electronic networks (i.e., digital services) to Moldovan resident individuals, as well as foreign intermediaries who receive payments from Moldovan resident individuals for the services provided through electronic networks, must register for VAT in Moldova (see the Digital economy below).

Tax representatives. Tax representatives are not required in Moldova.

Reverse charge. The reverse charge is a form of self-assessment for VAT, under which the recipient of a supply of goods or services accounts for the tax. Services rendered by nonresidents to entities that carry on business in Moldova are regarded as imported if the place of supply is deemed to be Moldova.
