- No penalties will apply for late electronic invoicing, provided that the invoice, even if not timely, is issued within the deadline for the VAT payment of the period in which the transaction was carried out.
- Penalties varying from 90% up to 180% of VAT are reduced by 80% if the invoice is issued within the deadline for the VAT payment of the period following the one in which the transaction was carried out. The second penalty mitigation is applicable up to 30 September 2019 for taxpayers who carry out the VAT computations on a monthly basis.

Mistaken or missing Intrastat returns are subject to a penalty ranging from EUR500 to EUR1,000 per return, which may be reduced by half if the return is filed within 30 days from the issuance of an official request issued by the tax authorities. Penalties may not apply in case a spontaneous regularization occurs.

Penalties for violations of a statistical nature will apply only to taxpayers that performed, in the month of reference, transactions equal to or higher than EUR750,000. Penalties will apply only once for each incorrect Intrastat form, regardless of the number of violations related to the Intrastat form.

However, if penalties apply, the taxpayer could benefit from the spontaneous regularization mechanism (subject to conditions) to largely reduce these fines.

Penalties for fraud. Pursuant to Legislative Decree no. 742000, the penalties for fraud are as follows:
- Omitted VAT return, when the amount of VAT evaded is higher than EUR50,000, is punished with detention from two to five years.
- Unfaithful return is punished with detention from two to four years and six months of detention with specific punishment thresholds (i.e., when the amount of evaded VAT is higher than EUR100,000; when the amount corresponding to the positive elements detracted from taxation is higher than EUR2 million).
- Omitted VAT payment based on the annual VAT return is punished with detention from six months to two years when the amount of omitted VAT is higher than EUR250,000.
- Tax consulting could expose tax advisors to the risk of participation in an offense performed by their client; nevertheless, it is not always easy to define the perimeters of the respective responsibilities also in light of Italian case law.

B. Scope of the tax

CT applies to the following transactions:
- The supply of goods or services made in Japan by a "taxable person"
- The importation of goods into Japan
- The purchase of services subject to reverse charge

C. Who is liable

A "taxable person" is any business entity or individual that makes taxable supplies of goods or services in the course of doing business in Japan.

However, the CT legislation provides for a small business exemption, the application of which depends on the first time taxable turnover is realized in previous fiscal years.

An entity qualifies for this exemption and is therefore not considered as a taxable person if it meets both following conditions:
- The taxable supplies (sales) in the "base period" (i.e., the fiscal year two years prior to the current fiscal year) did not exceed JPY10 million.
- The taxable supplies (sales) in the "specified period" (i.e., the first six months of the previous fiscal year, subject to exceptions) did not exceed JPY10 million. As an alternative condition, the enterprise may instead refer to the salaries paid in Japan during that period.

Other criteria apply to newly established corporations. Moreover, if a newly formed corporation purchases certain assets during its first two fiscal years, the corporation may not be eligible for exemption for the subsequent two fiscal years.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. A business falling under the small business exemption may elect for taxable person status (see detail above).

Group registration. There is no group registration system under the CT law.

Non-established businesses. Non-established businesses that become or elect to become a taxable person should appoint a tax representative (see below).

Tax representatives. A foreign business qualifying as a taxable person must appoint a resident tax representative to deal with its CT obligations, by submitting the appropriate form to the tax office.

Reverse charge. Under the reverse-charge mechanism, the purchase of certain services constitutes a taxable transaction, with the consequence that the recipient may be required to declare and pay the CT due thereon. The reverse charge applies to the following services:
- B2B digital services provided by a foreign business
- Services by a foreign business to another business, which mainly consist in the provision of services by film or theatre actors, musicians, other entertainers and professional athletes

However, the recipient is not required to self-assess the CT in the following cases:
- If its taxable sales ratio is 95% or more
- The recipient applies the simplified system for calculating input tax deduction
- The recipient is not a CT taxable person

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Japan.

Digital economy. Cross-border digital services are subject to specific rules.

The notion of digital services covers most content and services provided through an electronic network, e.g., e-books, online newspapers, music, videos and software provided via the internet, online advertising, online language lessons, etc.

The place of supply of digital services are where the recipient belongs, having regard to its address. For services to businesses, the place of supply is where the recipient has its head office, main office, or in certain circumstances an establishment situated in another country that purchases the services for the purpose of its activities in that country.

A distinction is made between business-to-business (B2B) and business-to-consumer (B2C) supplies, based on the nature of the service, as well as the terms and conditions of the contract. The classification of the supply as B2B or B2C impacts on the treatment applicable to cross-border digital services to customers in Japan:

- B2B digital services: a reverse-charge mechanism applies, whereby the recipient would be required to declare and pay the CT due on the purchase, depending on the CT status (see Reverse charge). The foreign business providing B2B digital services must inform the customer beforehand that the reverse-charge mechanism is applicable.
- B2C digital services: the supplier is required to charge CT, file CT returns and pay the CT to the tax office unless the supplier can benefit from the exemption for small businesses. Currently, Japanese businesses cannot credit input tax accounted for by overseas businesses on B2C digital services, unless the supplier is a "registered foreign business" (optional registration system specific to foreign suppliers of digital services).

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Japan. Even if digital content is listed on the platform, the supply of digital services should take place between the content provider and the customer if the contractual relationship indicates so.

On the other hand, the services provided by the platform to the content provider (listing the digital content) would fall under B2B digital services. If such service is provided by nonresident platforms to resident content providers, the reverse-charge mechanism would be applicable.

Registration procedures. A taxable person is required to submit a taxable person notification form to the tax office promptly. A business qualifying for the small business exemption can elect to become a voluntary taxable person by filing a certain application to the tax office. The election becomes effective from the tax period following the tax period in which the application was made.

Deregistration. A voluntary taxable person can cancel its registration by filing a certain application to the tax office. However, the cancellation is not allowed for two years after the election was made.

When a taxable person who is not a voluntary taxable person becomes qualified for the small business exemption, it is required to submit a notification form that it is no longer a taxable person to the tax office promptly.

When a taxable person ceases its business, a certain form needs to be filed to the tax office promptly.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of consumption tax.

The CT rates are:

- Standard: 10% (7.8% national tax and 2.2% local tax)
- Reduced: 8% (6.24% national tax and 1.76% local tax)

The standard rate was increased from 8% to 10% from 1 October 2019. At the same time, the reduced rate of 8% was introduced.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 8%

- Supplies of food and drinks, excluding alcoholic beverages and dining out
- Subscriptions to newspapers (limited to newspapers that are issued at least twice a week and feature information on general topics such as politics, economics, society and culture)

The previous standard rate of 8% continues to apply to certain supplies such as construction contracts and property leases, based on engagements that were enacted before the tax rate change.

The term "exempt-with-credit supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not taxed but does give rise to a right of input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt-with-credit supplies of goods and services

- Exports of goods
- Exports of services
- International transportation of passengers and cargo
- Sales in export shops
- Supplies to foreign embassies and legations situated in Japan

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not taxed and that do not give rise to a right of input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Bank interest
- Insurance
- Educational services
- Sales and leases of land
- Social welfare services

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Japan.

E. Time of supply

The time when CT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point." CT is generally chargeable when ownership of goods is transferred, when a service is performed or when foreign cargo is removed from bonded areas.

Deposits and prepayments. The payment of deposits and prepayments is not subject to CT in Japan, but the payment of the original price is subject to CT depending on the type of the original transaction.

Continuous supplies of services. The time of supply rules for continuous supplies is when all the supplies have been delivered or completed.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. The time of supply rule for supplies of goods sent on approval for sale or return is when ownership of the goods is transferred.

Reverse-charge services. There are no special time of supply rules in Japan for supplies of reverse-charge services. As such, the general time of supply rules apply.

Leased assets. For finance lease transactions that are deemed as a transfer of leased assets under the provision of Japanese income tax law or corporate tax law, in principle, the time of supply is when the lessor delivered the leased assets to the lessee. For operating lease transactions, the time of supply is when the lessor should receive the lease fee.

Imported goods. For import CT, the time of supply for imported goods is the time when the goods are removed from bonded areas. For the domestic CT, there are no special time of supply rules in Japan for supplies of imported goods. As such, the general time of supply rules apply.

F. Recovery of CT by taxable persons

A taxable person may have the right to recover input tax on imports and taxable supplies of goods and services made to it. Input tax is recovered by way of deduction from output tax. In order to be able to deduct input tax, the goods and services must be used for business purposes. In addition, it is required to keep books, invoices and customs documents. In this respect new requirements were introduced on 1 October 2019 (new invoicing rules will be introduced on 1 October 2023). The right to recover input tax may be limited for businesses carrying out nontaxable activities.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use by an entrepreneur).

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Purchase of B2C digital services from a foreign supplier not registered as foreign business

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Purchase, lease, hire, maintenance and fuel for cars, vans and trucks
- Conferences and seminars
- Advertising
- Accommodation
- Mobile phones
- Business gifts
- Travel expenses
- Business entertainment

Partial exemption. A taxable person carrying out nontaxable activities is subject to a limitation of the amount to deduct CT if:

- Its taxable sales ratio is below 95%
  Or
- Its taxable turnover exceeds JPY500 million

The JCT legislation allows different methods to calculate the input tax credit:

- Proportional method (general pro rata method): the tax deductible is calculated by multiplying the total input tax by the "taxable sales ratio," i.e., the ratio between the turnover of taxable/exempt sales and the total turnover.
- Itemized method (direct allocation method): input tax attributable to taxable transactions can be fully deducted, while input tax attributable to nontaxable transactions is not deductible. Input tax relating to both categories of transactions can be credited according to the taxable sales ratio. Taxable persons can apply an alternative ratio based on reasonable factors, subject to prior authorization from the tax authorities.

Simplified credit. A taxable person with annual sales not exceeding JPY50 million may use a simplified formula to calculate the deductible CT. Under this system, the deductible tax is calculated by multiplying the output tax by a deemed purchase ratio. This ratio ranges from 40% to 90%, depending on the type of sales. A taxpayer that elects to use the simplified formula must use it for a minimum period of two years.

Capital goods. There is no definition or special treatment for "capital goods" in Japan. As such input tax recovery on capital goods (i.e., the sale and lease of property, large equipment and computers) are computed in accordance with the normal input tax recovery rules (as outlined above). Certain types of capital goods (e.g., the sale and lease of land) is exempt and no CT is charged.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax creditable in a taxable period exceeds the amount of output tax, the excess is refundable. In this case, an additional form that indicates certain transactions should be filed together with the tax return. The tax refund is made to the bank account stated on the tax return.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax incurred on pre-registration costs in Japan, is not recoverable.

Write-off of bad debts. In the case of write-offs of bad debts due to the Confirmation of Rehabilitation Plans and other certain reasons, CT on such bad debts are deductible in the taxable period in which such event occurs. Documentary evidence should be maintained.

Noneconomic activities. Only the input tax incurred in the course of business activities are creditable. Input tax on purchases of goods and services that are used for nonbusiness purposes is not deductible.

G. Recovery of CT by non-established businesses

Japan refunds CT incurred by businesses that are not established in Japan or nonresident sole proprietors if creditable CT exceeds output tax in the tax period. To obtain a refund, a non-established business and nonresident must appoint a resident tax representative, qualify or elect to be treated as a taxable person, and file a tax return in due course.

H. Invoicing

CT invoices. CT law does not explicitly require a taxable person to issue a tax invoice for taxable supplies made to other taxable persons (or a credit note for adjustments). However, in order to deduct input tax, the recipient must hold an invoice containing certain mandatory information. The CT amount must not be mentioned separately. In addition, purchase statements and purchase calculation statements that were prepared by a business making taxable purchases and include certain information (applicable to documents confirmed by suppliers of the taxable purchases) can be used as a record required for input tax credit purposes.

Because of the introduction of multiple rates from 1 October 2019, new invoicing requirements were implemented. This covers where the transaction includes items being subject to the reduced tax rate (8%), the invoice should indicate which item is subject to the reduced rate and should have tax inclusive subtotal amounts for the standard 10% rate and the reduced 8% rate. From 1 October 2023, holding a qualified invoice will in principle be required in order to deduct CT.

Qualified invoices will include the supplier's registration number, applicable rates, breakdown of the price by rate and the total amount of CT.

Only registered businesses will be allowed to issue qualified invoices. In order to be a registered business, taxable persons will have to file an application with the competent tax office. Information on registered businesses (name and registration number) will be published on NTA's website. Registered businesses will be obliged to issue qualified invoices (with some exceptions, such as sales through vending machines) and keep a copy of invoices. Subject to conditions, certain suppliers will be allowed to issue simplified qualified invoices.

After the introduction of the qualified invoice method, the possibility to deduct CT on purchases from enterprises benefiting from the small business exemption will be limited and eventually removed.

From 1 October 2019 until the implementation of the qualified invoice system, transitional measures will be applicable, including accounting and invoicing requirements so as to distinguish sales and purchases according to the rate. Simplified methods of calculating input and output tax will be allowed for businesses facing difficulties in making the distinction.

Credit notes. CT law does not explicitly require a taxable person to issue a credit note for adjustments. However, retention of books that covers name of the supplier and description of transaction, etc., is necessary.

Electronic invoicing. A foreign business providing B2C digital services is allowed to issue electronic invoices. In other cases, electronic invoices are not permitted in Japan.

Simplified CT invoices. The name of the recipient does not need to be included on invoices issued by businesses that transfer taxable assets to an unspecified person, such as retail business, restaurant business and taxi business, etc.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Japan.

Proof of exports. CT is not chargeable on supplies of exported goods. In order to qualify as exempt from CT, an export supply must be accompanied by official customs evidence stating that the goods have left Japan.

Foreign currency invoices. If an invoice is issued in a foreign currency, the values must be converted to Japanese yen (JPY) for CT purposes based on an official bank rate on the date of the transaction.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. There are no special invoicing rules for supplies to nontaxable persons in Japan.

Records. As a result of the introduction of the multiple rates system, new bookkeeping and invoicing requirements were implemented and are expected to be reformed from 1 October 2023 accordingly when the new invoicing rule is implemented.

Record retention period. Records (i.e., books and invoices) must be kept for seven years in principle. This means that if the business retains one of them for seven years, the retention period of the other one will be shortened to five years.

Electronic archiving. Invoices received from foreign businesses can be kept in electronic form rather than in paper form. However, generally invoices need to be kept in paper form in principle. Keeping them in electronic form or in scanned copies is acceptable if the taxable person obtained an approval from thesur relevant tax office regarding electronic book/record retention.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. Taxable persons must file CT returns annually. An individual entrepreneur must file its CT return by 31 March of the year following the end of the calendar year. A corporation must file its annual CT return within two months after its fiscal year-end. A taxable person may opt to file tax returns monthly or quarterly instead of annually. Tax authorities do not grant an extension of the filing/payment deadline.

Periodic payments. An individual entrepreneur must pay the CT due by the same date as the CT return submission deadline, i.e., by 31 March of the year following the end of the calendar year. A corporation must pay the CT due by the same date as the annual CT return, i.e., within two months after its fiscal year-end. Tax authorities do not grant an extension of the filing/payment deadline.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is available under certain conditions, such as obtaining an ID number. From the fiscal year that starts on or after 1 April 2020, Japanese corporations whose amount of capital exceeds JPY100 million, insurance companies or other certain corporations are required to file the tax return electronically.

Payments on account. Depending on the previous year's tax liability, a taxable person may be required to make interim CT returns and payments:
- If the national tax due exceeds JPY480,000: semiannually
- If the national tax due exceeds JPY4 million: quarterly
- If the national tax due exceeds JPY48 million: monthly

A taxable person who is not subject to this obligation may voluntarily make interim tax returns and payments.

Special schemes. No special schemes are available in Japan.

Annual returns. Taxable persons must file CT returns annually. An individual entrepreneur must file its CT return and pay the tax due by 31 March of the year following the end of the calendar year. A corporation must file its annual CT return and pay the tax due within two months after its fiscal year-end. Tax authorities do not grant an extension of the filing/payment deadline.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in Japan.

Digital reporting. There is no requirement of digital reporting such as live/real-time invoice reporting. However, electronic of CT returns From the fiscal year that starts on or after 1 April 2020, Japanese corporations whose amount of capital exceeds JPY100 million, insurance companies or other certain corporations are required to file the tax return electronically.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. There is no penalties applicable for late registration. Penalties apply for late filing/payment.

Penalties for late payment and filings. In cases of late payment of CT, late-payment interest is imposed, calculated at the following rates:

- First two months: 7.3% or special standard rate + 1% per annum, whichever is lower
- After two months: 14.6% or special standard rate + 7.3% per annum, whichever is lower

The special standard rate applicable in a given year (Y) is announced by the Minister of Finance by 15 December of the previous year (Y-1). It corresponds to the annual average contractual interest rate on bank short-term loans of each month from October of the second preceding year (Y-2) and September of the previous year (Y-1), plus 1% per annum. The special standard rate for 2020 is 1.6%.

In case of late filing of the CT return, the following penalties are imposed:

- 5% if the CT return is filed voluntarily (i.e., before receiving an audit notice) after the due date
- 10% (or 15% for the portion exceeding JPY500,000) if the CT return is filed after receiving an audit notice but before the audit
- 15% (or 20% for the portion exceeding JPY500,000) if an error is found as a result of a tax audit
- Furthermore, 10% will be added to non-reporting (late filing) penalties, if the taxable person that has been subject to penalties for non-reporting or fraud within the last five years due to a correction initiated by tax audit

Penalties for errors. Where the tax declared in the CT return is understated, the following penalties are imposed:

- 0% in case of voluntary disclosure (i.e., before receiving an audit notice)
- 5% (or 10% of the excess portion of additional tax over JPY500,000 or the original amount, whichever is greater) if the taxable person makes a voluntary disclosure during the period from receiving an audit notice to anticipation of correction
- 10% (or 15% of the excess portion of additional tax over JPY500,000 or the original amount, whichever is greater) after anticipation of correction

Penalties for fraud. In addition to the penalties outlined above, if any such errors are related to fraudulent activity, a further 10% will be added if the taxable person has been subject to penalties for non-reporting or fraud within the last five years due to a correction initiated by tax audit.

B. Scope of the tax

GST applies to the following transactions:
- The supply of goods or services made in Jersey by a registered person
- The importation of goods into Jersey, regardless of the status of the importer
- The supply of a service outside Jersey if all of the following conditions apply:
  - The supply is a taxable supply
  - The service is specified in schedule 3 of the GST law (reverse charge to GST)
  - The recipient is a Jersey resident
  - The service is performed in connection with a person, place or thing in Jersey, or is taken to be so performed

Businesses (predominantly in the financial services sector) may be exempted from GST accounting if they obtain approval for International Services Entity (ISE) status (see Section D).

As outlined above, Jersey has a special relationship with the EU. In simple terms, the island is treated as part of the EU for the purposes of free trade in goods, but otherwise it is not part of the EU. At the time of preparing this chapter, this position is not expected to change when the UK leaves the EU. However, this situation is not yet finalized and may be subject to change.

C. Who is liable

A "registered person" is a business entity, including a branch or agency, or individual who makes taxable supplies of goods or services in the course of doing business in Jersey.

The GST registration threshold is JEP300,000.

The registration threshold is met if either of the following circumstances exists:
- If, at the end of any month, the business made taxable supplies in the preceding 12 months exceeding JEP300,000
- If, on any day, reasonable grounds exist for believing that the value of the taxable supplies made by the business in the 12 months after that date is likely to exceed JEP300,000

GST incurred before the incorporation of a company may be recovered if certain criteria are met.

Certain entities, predominantly financial services entities, may opt out of the GST system by becoming an International Services Entity (ISE). Generally, an entity meets the requirements of an ISE if not more than 10% of its supplies are to individuals resident in Jersey. GST is not chargeable on supplies to ISEs. If the entity obtains approval for ISE status, it pays an annual fixed fee.

Trust companies can also be authorized to maintain a list of administered entities that are ISEs. Under the ISE regime, businesses are not required to account for GST on their supplies and are entitled to end-user relief under which they are not charged GST by GST-registered businesses.

A business may be charged on retail purchases of less than JEP1,000, but the GST may be refunded on application.

The following fees are payable for the 2019 calendar year for an ISE entity:
- Bank (deposit-taking business), JEP58,000
- Trust company business, JEP9,350 as an affiliation leader and JEP200 for each administered entity

- Fund service business not registered as a managed manager, JEP3,120
- Entity holding a Collective Investment Fund (CIF) permit as a functionary but not as a managed manager or collective investment fund, JEP3,120
- Entity holding a CIF permit as a managed manager, JEP625
- Collective investment fund if listed by the Comptroller of Taxes or Alternative Investment Fund, JEP200
- Entity that is a body corporate or partnership, limited partnership or limited liability partnership, which is not included above, JEP500

Exemption from registration. The GST law in Jersey does not contain any provision for exemption from registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. A small business with taxable turnover of less than JEP300,000 a year may voluntarily apply to become a registered person. However, the value of exempt supplies cannot be included in calculating the taxable turnover. If the only supplies of goods and/or services are exempt, it is not normally possible to register for GST.

Group registration. Group registration is allowed for corporations or other taxable persons that are under common control. One entity must be the representative member.

Transactions between group members are disregarded for GST purposes.

As an alternative to GST registration, businesses in the financial services industry that predominantly serve nonresident clients may opt to pay an annual fee and be listed as International Service Entities to reduce their compliance and administrative obligations.

Non-established businesses. There is no distinction between established and non-established businesses for the purposes of Jersey goods and services tax. As such, a non-established business has a requirement to register for GST, to the same extent as an established business does.

Tax representatives. There is no option for a non-established business that registers for GST in Jersey to appoint a tax representative.

Reverse charge. The reverse-charge regime applies to services specified by the law if the following conditions are satisfied:

- A supply of services is made by a nonresident to a resident.
- The supply would be taxable if made in Jersey.
- The recipient of the supply is registered (or is required to be registered).

An input tax credit may be claimed with respect to the reverse charge to the extent that the service was acquired for the purpose of making taxable supplies.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Jersey.

Digital economy. For business-to-business (B2B) transactions, GST may apply. For GST purposes, electronically supplied services are considered to be supplied where the supply is received. As such, the customer is generally expected to self-assess for the GST due.

For business-to-consumer (B2C) transactions, GST may apply. For GST purposes, electronically supplied services are considered to be supplied where the supply is received. As such, the customer is generally expected to self-assess for the GST due.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Jersey.

Registration procedures. For companies that already have an income tax reference number, the application can be submitted online (https://empret.jsytax.je/gst_main.aspx). For other companies, a form can be obtained from the Jersey Income Taxes Office.

A company will need to register once if it has made taxable supplies of JEP300,000 or more in the preceding 12 months or if it is believed that the value of taxable supplies for the following 12 months is likely to exceed JEP300,000. It may also choose to register voluntarily.

The information that will need to be supplied for the application include: details of the person or entity applying for registration; the trading name (if different); the business address; relevant telephone numbers; and the name and legal status of the person making the application. In addition, during the registration process the Jersey Taxes Office will request the expected annual taxable turnover; the nature of the business; and if there is any preference with regard to the months that the entity wishes to make its quarterly GST returns.

There is no restriction on who can make the registration on behalf of the company, but the registered person will be the legal entity that owns the business (for example, a limited company).

There is a different form for registering as an International Services Entity (ISE).

Deregistration. A taxable person that ceases to make taxable supplies must notify the Jersey GST authorities within 30 days after ceasing operations. If the GST authorities are satisfied that the taxable person's operations are not expected to recommence, they will cancel its GST registration.

A taxable person may deregister voluntarily if it can satisfactorily prove to the GST authorities that its taxable turnover for the foreseeable future is expected to be less than JEP300,000.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of GST, including the zero rate.

The GST rates are:
- Standard rate: 5%
- Zero-rated: 0%

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Supplies of dwellings
- Prescription medicines
- Exported services and related services
- Services performed outside Jersey

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to GST and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Financial services
- Insurance
- Postal services
- Medical and paramedical supplies
- Supplies by charities
- Education
- Child care (supplied in registered day care accommodation under the Day Care of Children (Jersey) Law 2002)
- Burial and cremation

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Jersey.

E. Time of supply

The time when GST becomes due is called the "time of supply." The general rule is that a supply of goods takes place when the goods are removed or made available and that a supply of services takes place when the service is performed. However, if an invoice is issued or payment is received by the supplier prior to these times, the earlier date of the invoice is the time of supply.

Deposits and prepayments. The time of supply is the date payment is received, or if an invoice is issued before the payment is made, the time of supply is the date of the invoice.

Continuous supplies of services. The time of supply is the date payment is received, or if an invoice for the services is issued before the payment is made, the time of supply is the date of the invoice.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. If the supply involved the removal of the goods, the supply of goods takes place at the time when the goods are removed. If the supply does not involve removal of the goods, the supply of goods takes place when the goods are made available to the person to whom they are supplied.

In the case of goods that are sent or taken on approval, on sale or return and are removed before it is known whether a supply will take place, the supply of the goods takes place when it becomes certain that the supply has taken place or, if sooner, 12 months after the day when the removal occurred.

Reverse-charge services. The time of supply is the date the supply of services takes place.

Leased assets. The time of supply is the date payment is received, or if an invoice is issued before the payment is made, the time of supply is the date of the invoice.

Imported goods. The time of supply is the date the goods are imported.

F. Recovery of GST by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax, which is GST charged on goods and services supplied to it for business purposes. A taxable person generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax, which is GST charged on supplies made. Input tax includes GST charged on goods and services supplied in Jersey and GST paid on imports.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use by an entrepreneur).

A registered person may recover GST in full if it acquires goods and services principally for the purpose of making taxable supplies.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Employee wages
- Private expenses or goods
- Certain goods incorporated in dwellings

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Raw materials used in the business
- Equipment (capital/office)
- Goods for resale
- Processing costs

Partial exemption. GST law provides for a partial exemption method if goods and services are acquired for making taxable supplies but are also used for making exempt supplies. One of the following methods of allocation may be used for making the input tax adjustment:

- A general pro rata method under which the taxable person's taxable ratio is based on the value of taxable supplies made compared with total supplies made. The taxable ratio is applied to the total amount of input tax incurred.
- A direct attribution method under which the taxable person's input tax is allocated to taxable and nontaxable supplies made. Input tax directly related to taxable supplies is deductible in full, while input tax directly related to nontaxable supplies is not deductible. The general pro rata method is used with respect to the remaining input tax that is not directly related to taxable or nontaxable supplies.
- A special calculation method agreed on with the Jersey GST authorities.

Capital purchases in excess of JEP1 million (excluding GST) that are not zero rated or exempt from GST must be considered over a five-year period.

Capital goods. There are no special rules in Jersey for the input tax recovery for capital goods. Input tax deduction relating to capital goods that are used for making both taxable and exempt supplies should be calculated in the same way as described above.

Refunds. If the amount of input GST recoverable in a period exceeds the amount of output GST payable, a refund may be claimed. GST refunds are generally made promptly after the receipt of a correct return or held as a credit against future returns unless otherwise requested.

Visitors to the island who arrive on commercial flights are entitled to claim a refund of GST paid on goods bought from local retailers participating in the GST visitor refund scheme. The total value of the goods must exceed JEP300, the purchase must be made in a single transaction with a single retailer, and the visitor must leave Jersey with the goods within one month of the date of purchase.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax incurred on pre-registration costs in Jersey, is not recoverable.

Write-off of bad debts. GST shall be refunded to a person if the following conditions are satisfied at the time that a claim for the refund is made to the Comptroller:

- A person has supplied goods or services for a consideration in money and has accounted for and paid GST on the supply.
- All or part of the consideration for the supply has been written in the person's accounts as a debt.
- A period of at least six months has elapsed since the supply.
- The value of the supply did not exceed its open-market value.
- In the case of a supply of goods, the property in the goods has passed to the recipient, whether or not the recipient still has property in the goods.
- The claim is person who made the supply.
- The claim is made within the approved time or, if no time has been approved, within 12 months after the day when the last writing-off (as referred to above) occurred in respect of the consideration for the supply.
- The claim is in the approved form, or if no form has been approved, in any form sufficient to show that the set out in this paragraph (other than in this subparagraph)

Noneconomic activities. The Comptroller has issued a direction to the law stating that a charity or nonprofit organization shall be relieved of charge to GST on goods imported into Jersey if it is established for:

- The advancement of education
- Relief of poverty

- Purposes benefiting the community
- Furtherance of religion
- Cultural or artistic objectives financially supported by the States of Jersey

G. Recovery of GST by non-established businesses

Entities that are registered for GST and that make taxable supplies in Jersey may recover GST incurred on goods and services that they acquire.

Refunds are made to persons not established in Jersey with respect to GST on goods and services for business use. The supply on which the GST arose must have been for the purpose of a business carried on by the claimant. The claimant's home country must operate a similar refund scheme that is available to Jersey businesses.

Refunds are made by way of a claim in writing to the following:

Comptroller of Taxes
P.O. Box 56
Cyril Le Marquand House
The Parade
St. Helier
Jersey JE4 8PF

Jersey has not set a maximum amount that can be reclaimed. However, it has set a minimum reclaim amount of JEP50. Claims must be made within 12 months after the date of supply and must be made annually.

Claims must be accompanied by originals of all invoices, vouchers or receipts from suppliers. For amounts below JEP250, simplified invoices can be provided. Initial claims must also be accompanied by an official certificate showing that the claimant is registered for GST (or similar tax) in its home jurisdiction. A certificate must be provided annually thereafter.

H. Invoicing

GST invoices. A Jersey registered person must generally provide a tax invoice for all taxable supplies. A credit note may be used to reduce the GST charged and reclaimed on a supply if the value originally charged was incorrect.

Credit notes. A credit note must indicate the reason why it was issued and must refer to both the GST originally charged and the corrected amount.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is not allowed in Jersey.

Simplified VAT invoices. Retailers (i.e., those making the majority of their sales to the general public) can provide simplified invoices, unless a full GST invoice is requested by the customer.

Self-billing. Self-billing can be used by any GST-registered business subject to the following conditions:

- The business must obtain written approval from the Comptroller of Taxes to use self-billing.
- If the supplier is registered for GST, the invoice must show the tax chargeable on the value of the supply and the supplier's GST number. The invoice must also meet all requirements of a tax invoice.
- The business must obtain the written agreement of the supplier to use self-billing, informing it that it must not issue the business with a tax invoice that it has written itself and must advise the business within 30 days if it ceases to be registered for GST.

Proof of exports. There is no specific legislation in Jersey regarding proof of exports. In practice, delivery notes or proof of postage should suffice.

Foreign currency invoices. Foreign currency invoices must be translated into JEP invoices using the exchange rate effective on the date of the supply for inclusion on the GST return. The Taxes Office may request evidence to support the exchange rate used.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. Retailers (i.e., those making the majority of their sales to the general public) can provide simplified invoices, unless a full GST invoice is requested by the customer.

Records. A taxable person must keep accounts and records to substantiate amounts declared in GST returns.

Record retention period. The retention period is not specified in the legislation, however, in practice it is common to retain records for a period of seven years, which is in line with other taxes record retention periods in Jersey.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is not specifically covered by the Jersey GST legislation. However, provided that accounts and records can be provided to substantiate the amounts declared in GST returns, electronic archiving is permitted.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. GST returns are generally submitted quarterly. Three cycles of quarterly returns are provided to stagger submission dates. A taxable person may request a change in its GST return cycle to ease administration.

Taxable persons may opt to submit GST returns monthly if they receive regular repayments of GST.

GST return periods generally end on the last day of a month. However, taxable persons may request different periods to align with their accounting records. GST returns must be submitted by the last business day of the month following the end of the return period. The GST return form indicates the due date for each return.

Periodic payments. Payment of any GST due must be paid by the GST return deadline, i.e.,. by the last business day of the month following the end of the return period. GST return periods are usually submitted per quarter. GST payments can be made by BACS, by check, online via the gov.je website or in person at the Jersey Taxes Office.

Electronic filing. GST returns can be filed online. They can also be filed using the Tax Returns Submission System (TRSS), where returns are downloaded, completed offline and then submitted by email or data stream via a secure connection. Alternatively, they can be submitted in paper format.

Payments on account. The Comptroller may by direction require a taxable person to pay amounts of GST due, on account of any GST that the person may become liable to pay in respect of a prescribed accounting period. A person who without reasonable excuse fails to comply with a direction shall be guilty of an offense and liable to a fine of level three on the standard scale.

Special schemes.

Annual accounting. The GST annual accounting scheme for small businesses requires only one return per year. The scheme can be used if the entity's taxable turnover, excluding GST on sales, for the previous 12 months did not exceed JEP500,000. The scheme can continue to be used until the taxable turnover for a year exceeds JEP600,000.

Cash accounting. The GST cash accounting scheme for small businesses allows entities not to pay GST on sales until payment is received from the customer. The scheme can be used if taxable turnover (excluding capital assets or GST) for the previous 12 months did not exceed GSP1 million. The scheme can continue to be used until the taxable turnover for a year exceeds JEP1.2 million.

Retail scheme. The GST retail scheme enables businesses to account for their total quarterly sales instead of individual sales, thereby reducing accounting and bookkeeping costs. To be eligible, 50% or more of total sales must be made to the general public.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Jersey.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in Jersey.

Digital reporting. In Jersey, there is the option for GST returns to be filed online. Returns can also be filed using the Tax Returns Submission System (TRSS), where returns are downloaded, completed offline and then submitted by email or data stream via a secure connection.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. A penalty is assessed for the late registration of VAT for the higher of JEP200 or 10% of the relevant GST (if any).

Penalties for late payment and filings. A penalty is assessed for the late payment of GST. A penalty of 2.5% of the tax due is assessed on the day after the due date.

A penalty of JEP100 is charged for the late submission of a GST return.

Penalties for errors. There are no specific penalties in relation to errors. If a taxable person makes inadequate returns for two consecutive accounting periods, the Comptroller may assess an amount of JEP200 by way of a surcharge.

Penalties for fraud. There are no specific penalties in relation to fraud. If a taxable person makes inadequate returns for two consecutive accounting periods, the Comptroller may assess an amount of JEP200 by way of a surcharge.

B. Scope of the tax

General sales tax (GST) applies to the following transactions:
- The supply of taxable goods or services made by a taxable person
- The importation of taxable goods or services

The GST law contains two types of taxes, which are the general tax (GT) and the special tax (ST). ST is part of the tax base for GT if ST applies.

The GT on the supply of goods and services includes a distinction between the two types of supply for goods and services, as different VAT treatments may apply.

In terms of imported goods and services, the reverse charge is the amount of VAT you would have paid on that service if you had bought it in Jordan. However, since this also includes goods and not just services – there are rules for time of supply set by the ISTD, outlined below in Section E for tax payments on imported goods and services including a 16% VAT, 10% WHT and 0.5% national contribution.

As for local goods and services, where the place of supply is Jordan and it is made by a taxable person, 16% is paid on goods and services and a 5% WHT is paid on services.

C. Who is liable

A "taxable person" is any entity or individual that is registered or required to be registered for GST. A taxable person is required to register by the earlier of the following dates:
- On the commencement of a new business that makes taxable supplies if it appears to the person that the person's taxable turnover during the 12 months following the commencement date may exceed the threshold
- At the end of any month if taxable turnover during the preceding 12 consecutive months has reached the threshold
- At the end of any month if it appears that the person's taxable turnover during the 11 consecutive months ending with the subsequent month may reach the threshold

If a taxable person fails to register by the dates prescribed under the GST law, the Income and Sales Tax Department (ISTD) may agree on request to register the person, effective from the date on which the person was required to register.

The following are the annual thresholds for GST registration:
- JOD10,000 for manufacturers producing goods subject to ST.
- JOD75,000 for suppliers of goods other than those subject to ST.
- JOD30,000 for service suppliers.
- JOD75,000 for goods (trade).
- JOD0 for imports of goods or services for nonpersonal purposes.
- None for imports of goods or services for personal purposes.
- No threshold for the recovery of GST by nonresident business.

If a person carries out more than one of the business activities mentioned above, the minimum limit is the applicable registration threshold.

A person who imports taxable goods or services must register within 30 days of the first taxable import, regardless of the amount of the import, unless the import is made for private purposes.

Exemption from registration. A taxable person whose entire turnover is zero-rated may request exemption from registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. A business may register for GST voluntarily if its taxable turnover is below the GST registration threshold. A business may also register for GST voluntarily in advance of making taxable supplies.

Group registration. GST grouping is not allowed. Legal entities that are closely connected must register for GST separately.

Non-established businesses. Non-established businesses are not required to register for VAT for supplies of goods and services supplied from outside Jordan. However, if the business carries out supplies from inside the Jordanian jurisdiction, then the business would be required to register. A non-established business also does not have to register for GST in Jordan if a domestic GST payer accounts for GST under the reverse-charge mechanism (i.e., self-assessment).

A non-established business can voluntarily register for GST, where its supplies are under the registration threshold (e.g., so it can recover input tax charged on local supplies). The business would need to create an establishment with the Companies Controller Department of the Ministry of Trade & Industry and then with the tax department in order to be able to recover the GST charged on inputs.

If a non-established business registers for GST in Jordan, it is not required to appoint a fiscal representative. While it is not compulsory to do so, a non-established business can choose to appoint a representative. In respect of the procedure for appointing a tax representative in Jordan, the taxable person must appear before the department, but it may appoint another person to represent them at the department. This is under written authorization and can be carried out for any of the tax audit procedures on the taxable person's income, purchases, sales, assessment and collection including filing of tax returns.

The following conditions must be met in order to be an authorized person:
- Must be Jordanian
- Holds a bachelor's degree in accounting or similar disciplines and has obtained this certificate for a period not less than five years
- Has not been issued a valid decision to prevent them from reviewing the department or not accepting their accounts in accordance with the provisions of the law

In order to apply to be an authorized person of a taxable person, a registration application must be submitted to the department according to the approved form for this purpose, accompanied by the following data:
- A personal document of proof for the person authorized to sign or appoint them in writing
- A certified copy of the registration certificate of the legal person at the competent authority indicating the names of the authorized signatories
- A certified copy of the certificate of registration of the trade name, if any
- A copy of the municipality license in the number of branches belonging to the original activity to be registered, its addresses, the names of its warehouses and their addresses
- Copy of the importer's card if he is an importer

Tax representatives. No specific requirements. However, see above section "non-established businesses" for detail on appointing a tax representative for non-established businesses.

Reverse-charge mechanism. If a non-established business supplies services to a Jordanian taxable person but does not register for GST, the taxable person may be required to account for the GST due under reverse-charge accounting. This means that the taxable person charges itself GST. The self-assessed GST may be deducted as input tax (that is, GST on allowable purchases). Under the reverse-charge mechanism the responsibility for the reporting of a GST transaction from the seller (non-registered person) to the buyer (registered person/inside the Jordanian jurisdiction) of a service.

Digital economy. For business-to-business (B2B) transactions, payments from the customer to the nonresident business are generally subject to 16% GST. The Jordanian customer is expected to self-assess the tax and submit tax returns and payments to the ISTD within one month from the date of payment of the invoice or within six months from receiving the service, whichever is earlier.

For business-to-consumer (B2C) transactions, payments from the customer to the nonresident business are generally subject to 16% GST. The Jordanian customer is expected to self-assess the tax and submit tax returns and payments to the ISTD within one month from the date of payment of the invoice or within six months from receiving the service, whichever is earlier.

Registration procedures. A taxable person is required to register by the earlier of the following dates:
- On the commencement of a new business that makes taxable supplies if it appears to the person that taxable turnover during the 12 months following the commencement date may exceed the threshold
- At the end of any month if taxable turnover during the preceding 12 consecutive months has reached the threshold
- At the end of any month if it appears that the person's taxable turnover during the 11 consecutive months ending with the subsequent month may reach the threshold

A person with power of attorney should sign the registration form and submit it to the tax department. Under some circumstances he can authorize another person to act on his behalf.

The registration form is a preprinted, hardcopy form that should be submitted to tax department. The registration process can be completed in about 30 minutes if the following supporting documents are available:
- A certified copy of the registration certificate of the legal entity showing the authorized signatories for the legal entity
- Personal identification documents for the authorized signatories
- A certified copy of the commercial record certificate by the authorized party
- A certified copy of the registration record of the commercial name and trademark, if available
- A certified copy of the effective vocational license that includes: the number of branches related to the main activity under registration, legal name of the branch(es) and name of warehouses and storage associated with the branches as well as the addresses
- If importer, a certified copy of the importation card

Please note that for the registration of the personal individual (i.e., not a legal entity/company) in addition to the above mentioned requirements, a personal identification document that contains the national number for the Jordanian individual and a copy of the passport for the non-Jordanian is required as well.

Deregistration. A registered person who stops supplying goods and services must deregister.

A registered person is not required to deregister in the following circumstances but may request deregistration:
• Taxable turnover drops below the registration threshold.
• Turnover is entirely zero-rated.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of GST, including the zero rate.

The GT rates are:
• Standard rate: 16%
• Reduced rate: 4%, 5% and 10%
• Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of GT applies to all supplies of goods or services, unless a specific provision allows a reduced rate or an exemption.

Twenty types of goods and one type of service are subject to ST. ST is imposed at various percentage rates and in fixed amounts. These rates and amounts are provided in Regulation 80 of 2000 and Regulation No. 97 of 2016.

Some goods and services liable to GT rates could also be liable to ST rates at the same time. These goods and services are defined under Schedule 1 annexed to the GST law.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

• Printing service for any party provided that all supplies (inks, paper and all supplies, etc.) are from the printing press itself
• Supplies used by the handicapped
• Veterinary medicines

Examples of goods and services taxable at 4%

• Oils and ghee
• School bags, except those manufactured from natural leather material
• School books and university lecture books
• School uniforms

Examples of goods and services taxable at 5%

• Corn

Examples of goods and services taxable at 10%

• Live animals
• Dairy products
• Gasoline octane 90
• Food salt

Examples of goods and services subject to ST

• Beer (including nonalcoholic beer)
• Tobacco and tobacco products
• Vehicles (cars)

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to GST and do not give rise to a right of input tax deduction.

Exempted goods are goods and services listed in Schedule 2 annex. In addition, supplies to a person whose purchases are exempted are treated as exempted supplies even if these supplies are normally taxable. Other goods and services are called "nontaxable goods," which are goods and services that are not within the scope of GST.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Wheat
- Bread
- Electrical energy
- Firefighting vehicles
- Education
- Medical services

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Jordan.

E. Time of supply

GST becomes due at the time of supply, which is called the "tax point." The rules determining the tax point are discussed below.

GT or ST becomes due on the supply of goods at the earliest of the following events:

- Delivery of goods. However, the Director General of the Income and Sales Tax Department may consider the date of the tax invoice as the tax point if it is issued periodically or at the end of a certain period following the date of delivery.
- Issuance of a tax invoice.
- Receipt of the full or partial value of the goods, receipt of credit payment or any other receipt of value according to the agreed terms for payments.

Tax becomes due on the supply of services at the earlier of the following events:

- Issuance of a tax invoice
- Receipt of full or partial payment for the service

Tax is payable in the cases mentioned above by reference to the value covered by the invoice or the amount paid, whichever is higher.

Deposits and prepayments. There are no special time of supply rules in Jordan for deposits and prepayments. The general time of supply rules apply.

Continuous supplies of services. There are no special time of supply rules in Jordan for continuous supplies. The general time of supply rules apply.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules in Jordan for supplies of goods sent on approval for sale or return. The general time of supply rules apply.

Reverse-charge services. There are no special time of supply rules in Jordan for supplies of reverse-charge services. The general time of supply rules apply.

However, importers of goods and services must pay the tax due at the earliest of the following dates:

- Within one month after the date of payment for the imported service or after the date of making a partial payment, limited to the amount paid
- When the means that include the goods (for example, compact disks and tapes) are released from Customs
- Within six months after the date on which the service or any part of the service is received, limited to the amount related to the part received

Leased assets. There are no special time of supply rules in Jordan for supplies of leased assets. The general time of supply rules apply.

Imported goods. Importers of goods must pay the tax due on the goods at the clearance stage to the Customs Department in accordance with the procedures applicable for the payment of customs duties. Clearance of these goods is not finalized until the tax due is paid in full.

A registered importer may obtain permission from the ISTD to defer the payment of the tax payable on the importation of goods. This postponement is granted if the importer has no record of fraud or customs smuggling and has submitted all returns in the last 12 months.

F. Recovery of GST by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax, which is GT charged on goods and services supplied to it for business purposes. Input tax is generally recovered by being deducted from output tax, which is GST charged on supplies made.

Input tax includes GT charged on goods and services supplied in Jordan and GT paid on imported goods and services into Jordan.

ST is also charged on goods supplied to produce goods subject to ST, and is generally not recoverable except in the case where the good subject to ST is used to produce another good subject to ST.

A valid tax invoice or customs documents must exist to recover input tax.

Special rules apply to the recovery of input GT on goods purchased or imported before registration.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be deducted on purchases or imports of goods and services that are not used for business purposes. In addition, input tax may not be recovered for some items of business expenditure.

The following lists provide some examples of items of expenditure for which input tax is not deductible and examples of items for which input tax is deductible if the expenditure is used for a taxable business purpose.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Goods and services used for nonbusiness purposes
- Goods and services attributable to exempt or nontaxable supplies
- Sporting and recreational activities, other than those used for supplying goods or services
- Restaurants and hotel services, other than those used for supplying goods or services
- Purchases accounted for as returned purchases
- The special tax paid on the items listed in Schedule (1) of the GST legislation (unless otherwise provided for)
- Goods and services that have been used for construction purposes, other than those used for renting of construction and destruction equipment
- Cars, other than cars purchased by car-trading businesses or for car rental purposes

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Business use of telephone and mobiles
- Accounting and tax consulting fees
- Cars purchased by car-trading businesses or for car rental purposes

Partial exemption. Input tax directly related to making exempt supplies is not recoverable. If a taxable person makes both exempt and taxable goods and services, it may recover input tax partially.

If the same taxable inputs are attributable to both taxable and nontaxable supplies (whether exempted or for nonbusiness use), the portion of the deductible general input tax is determined based on the production formula. If this is not possible, it is calculated based on the proportion of taxable supplies to total supplies.

Apart from the deduction of GT paid or charged on goods at hand at the time of registration, a registered person may not deduct the input tax paid more than three years earlier. However, a registered person that carries out a nontaxable business and that has already deducted tax paid on inputs relating to this business must prepare a debit note with respect to the already deducted tax on its purchases of taxable goods and services that were incorporated in nontaxable business supplies. The registered person must also undertake to calculate the tax due as a consequence of requiring adjusting in this manner, based on the production formula and pay the tax shown in the tax return for its fiscal year. However, if calculation of the tax due based on the production formula is not possible, the tax is calculated based on the proportion of the nontaxable supplies to the total supplies.

Capital goods. In general, all GST paid on capital goods is refundable — with the exception of the goods listed in schedule (4).These are listed above under "Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible." Capital goods are defined in Jordan as all fixed assets tangible or nontangible used to produce the good or service subject to GST and this is refundable if they are related to the subject activity. The recovery of input tax on capital goods is the same as the recovery of inputs mentioned in Section F.

Refunds. Tax is repaid within a period not exceeding three months after the date on which the claim for refund has been filed if any of the following circumstances exist:
- Tax is paid on goods or services exported or used in the manufacture of other goods that have been exported.
- Tax is collected by mistake.
- Recoverable input tax that was paid at least six months ago and that was carried forward as a credit has not yet been deducted from the tax charged on supplies made during that period.
- Tax was paid on goods that left the country in the possession of nonresident persons, and the tax amount to be refunded cannot be not less than JOD50 but not more than JOD500.
- ST was previously paid on goods supplied to the bodies relieved from payment of tax under Article 21 of the GST law (the King of Jordan, embassies, diplomats and consuls [subject to reciprocity] and international and regional organizations working in Jordan).

Pre-registration costs. A newly registered person can recover GT paid or charged before registration on the goods at hand at the time it registers for GST. If the invoice for the purchases is not a tax invoice, half of the value of the invoice is multiplied by the GT rate to calculate the deductible tax. Only the tax paid or charged on goods at hand is deductible.

Write-off of bad debts. VAT-registered persons can claim relief for the VAT on bad debts in the following cases:
- If the purchaser dies without leaving assets sufficient to pay the tax
- If the purchaser declares that his funds are not sufficient to pay the debts in full or in part, or if he fails to pay or communicate about the debt for two years
- If the seller has exhausted all legal means to collect the debt, including the tax, with no success
- If the seller has proved that the buyer has declared bankruptcy

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred in relation to noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Jordan.

G. Recovery of GST by non-established businesses

No recovery is possible. However, a non-established business can voluntarily register for GST, even if not required to do so (e.g., so it can recover input tax charged on local supplies). Please see Section C. Who is liable, for more detail about how the non-established business would need to create an establishment in Jordan.

H. Invoicing

GST invoices. A registered person who supplies taxable goods or services to another registered person is required to make out a triplicate tax invoice containing the following details:
- The serial number and date of issuance of the tax invoice
- Name, address and tax number of the registered person
- Name, address and tax number of the purchaser
- A statement regarding the supplied item that provides the type, quantity, value, and rate and amount of the tax, together with a statement of the total amount of the invoice

The original invoice must be provided to the purchaser, and the copies must be maintained by the registered person.

If the exporter is not registered, in addition to the procedures described above, the procedures concerning the deduction or refund of the tax must also be followed. Under Instruction No. 4, a non-registered refund applicant must enclose the following documents together with the refund application:
- The serial number and date of the invoice
- Name, address and tax number of the registered person
- A statement regarding the supplied item that provides the type, quantity and value, together with a statement of the total amount of the invoice

The original invoice must be provided to the purchaser and the copies must be maintained by the registered person.

If a tax point results from a delivery of goods or services, or receipt of payment, the registered person must issue a tax invoice within the following time limits:
- Immediately after the delivery of goods or the receipt of payment if the supplier does not keep delivery notes or inventory cards.
- Within a maximum period of one month after the date on which the services are performed, or immediately on the receipt of payment.
- By the end of the day if the supplier keeps delivery notes and inventory cards.
- Immediately after the delivery of goods or services, or the receipt of payment if the supplier keeps a cash register machine. In this case, the cash register roll is considered an invoice.

Credit notes. Credit notes are used when a customer asks to return purchased goods or services, and the supplier accepts the return. If the original sale was made on credit, then the return will create a respective debtor account to reduce the original accounting entry, in order to credit the related customer's account.

Credit notes are required when an invoice issued is canceled, and hence to reverse the transaction.

In order to accept credit notes provided for purchase and sales, the information that should be included should be the same as the information provided in the matching invoice that is being reversed.

Electronic invoicing. According to the provisions of the law and its instructions, there is no clear guidance regarding the release of electronic invoices. However, in practice, taxpayers can use electronic invoicing in Jordan. Taxpayers must maintain at least two copies of the tax invoice. A copy sent to the customer while the other is retained in the entity's records.

In addition, the law stipulates that a taxpayer may use computers in the organization of his records, documents and financial statements under certain conditions.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified VAT invoicing is not allowed in Jordan. As such, full VAT invoices are required.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Jordan.

Proof of exports. To export goods outside Jordan and to the duty-free estates, zones and shops, the following conditions must be met:
- A customs declaration of the goods to be exported must be prepared with a minimum of three copies of the invoice attached to it.
- The Customs Center must check the contents of the invoice against the relevant customs declaration, certify the copy of the invoice, and affix the number and date of the declaration on the invoice, which is stamped by the Customs Center.
- The exporter must retain a copy of the invoice referred to in the bullet above together with a copy of the customs declaration produced and endorsed pursuant to the customs proceedings for the purposes of future audit.

If the exporter is not registered, in addition to the procedures described above, the procedures concerning the deduction or refund of the tax must also be followed. Under Instruction No. 4, a non-registered refund applicant must enclose the following documents together with the refund application:
- A completed refund form numbered 6/B, approved by the Income and Sales Tax Department (ISTD) and submitted by the concerned person or a legally authorized person.
- A copy of the supplier's tax return signed and certified by the ISTD, which contains the relevant invoice numbers for the amounts claimed. This must be attached later by the concerned directorate in the ISTD.
- The original of the tax invoice for local goods and services. However, if acceptable reasons prevent the issuance of an authenticated invoice and if the applicant undertakes that the applicant has never claimed and will never claim the tax in question when the original copy is found, the Director General of the ISTD may accept a certified copy of the invoice.
- A copy of the import declaration in the name of the exporter (the first copy), if the original declaration is requested from the customs department together with all the relevant attachments.
- A copy of the export invoice of which the number is fixed on the import declaration.
- A production formula approved by the customs department or the General Sales Tax Department concerning the materials incorporated in the production of exported goods.

The above procedures must be followed to export goods to Aqaba Special Economic Zone (SEZ) if the cost of the exported goods exceeds JOD10,000, regardless of whether the exporter is registered for GST. However, if the cost of the goods to be exported to the Aqaba SEZ is JOD10,000 or less, the following procedures must be followed:
- The exporter must produce a detailed invoice showing the cost and quantity of every exported item.
- The Customs Center must check and inspect the goods to be exported against the contents of the invoice and ascertain their exit of the goods to the zone. A customs employee then signifies the approval of the export invoices by affixing on the invoices the phrase "seen upon exiting."

All goods leaving Jordan in the possession of the passengers, or those shipped abroad with a value not exceeding JOD500, may be exported without the need to produce a customs declaration if the exportation is substantiated in a manner satisfactory to the department. If the value of the goods does not exceed JOD1,000, the goods may be exported through the Jordan Export Development Commercial Corporation or via express mail, or it may be exported to the free zones, without the need to produce a customs declaration. In such a case it is sufficient to prepare a triplicate invoice or a bill of lading, stamped by the customs officer to substantiate the exportation. However, if the exported goods are valued at more than JOD1,000, the export must be made using the relevant transfer statement certified for this purpose.

To export services outside Jordan, the following conditions must be met:
- The beneficiary of the service must be a foreigner or a Jordanian who is not resident in Jordan.
- The place where the service is received must be outside Jordan.

- The service supplier must produce a contract substantiating the exportation of the service.
- The exporter must prove that the payment for the service has been transferred to Jordan.

To export services to the Aqaba SEZ, the following conditions must be met:
- The importer of the service must be a corporation registered in the Aqaba SEZ.
- The supplier must produce a service supply contract signed by both parties, which are the supplier and the purchaser located in the Aqaba SEZ.
- The supplier must produce an invoice showing the type and nature of the service supplied, as well as the name of the purchaser of this service.

To export services to the free estates, zones and duty-free shops, the following conditions must be met:
- The service must be provided to a person who is licensed to practice a business activity within the free estates, zones and duty-free shops.
- The service must be intended for the sole purpose of exercising this activity.
- The supplier must produce a service supply contract signed by both parties, which are the supplier and the purchaser of the exported service.
- The supplier must produce an invoice showing the type and nature of the service supplied, as well as the name of the purchaser of this service.

Foreign currency invoices. If the supply of taxable goods or services is for a consideration determined in a foreign currency, the value must be converted into Jordanian dinars (JOD), according to the exchange rate at the time of supply.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. If taxable goods or services are supplied by a registered person to a person that is not registered for GST, the taxable person (i.e., the supplier) must issue an ordinary invoice to the non-GST registered customer. However, the taxable person may issue a tax-inclusive invoice showing the quantity and the tax-inclusive price of the goods or services supplied, while this practice requires the approval of the Director General of the Tax Department.

The original invoice must be provided to the purchaser, and the copies must be maintained by the registered person.

Records.

Record retention period. Company records must be kept for a period of 10 years. GST records must be kept for a period of four years from the date of submission of the GST return.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is allowed in Jordan. There are special rules for electronic archiving other than original documents (in physical format) must be provided to the tax authority during a tax audit upon request. Other than that, electronic archiving is required when filing tax returns on the governmental website with a deadline for filing for the bimonthly VAT return. These returns are not required to be handed in physically, only upon tax audits.

I. Returns and payments

Periodic returns. A tax return, either completed in writing (manually) or filed electronically, must be submitted by the registered person using the forms prepared by the ISTD for this purpose. A registered person must submit the required return within one month following the end of its tax period, as prescribed in the registration letter issued by the ISTD.

A registered person subject to the general tax shall be required to file a two-month tax return (bimonthly) of its supplies showing the relevant value and the amount of the due tax. The two-months period shall be treated as a single tax period.

A registered person subject to the special tax shall be required to file a one-month tax return of supplies showing the relevant value and the amount of the due tax. The one-month period shall be treated as a single tax period.

Periodic payments. VAT payments should be made by taxpayers within one month after their tax period. For example, if a taxpayer's tax period is January and February 2020, the periodic tax payment should be made by the end of March 2020 at the latest. If payment is received late by the tax authority, then late payment penalties will be imposed upon the taxpayer. This is paid via bank transfer as a reference number. It is extracted from the governmental website as a payment voucher and is made before the end of the month it is due. If a firm is late to pay, a late penalty fee is prevalent.

VAT payments in excess of JOD5,000 will be accepted if made via the electronic payment system (www.efawateer.com).

Electronic filing. The Income and Sales Tax Department (ISTD) has issued instructions related to the submission of the tax returns, with effect on 1 January 2018 that mandate that all taxpayers will have to submit their returns through the department's official website (www.istd.gov.jo), by using the username and password provided by the department.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Jordan.

Special schemes. The GST law in Jordan does not provide for any special GST accounting schemes or GST returns for certain groups of taxable persons. However, in certain cases, the director may extend the tax period provided, but the extended period shouldn't exceed six months.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Jordan.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in Jordan.

Digital reporting. No digital reporting requirements apply in Jordan. However, the tax authority has recently moved to using a digital platform used to file all GST returns, payments, and other requirements. Therefore, the ISTD has provided all entities liable to GST filing their own user names and passwords to enter the online website.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. The following penalties are assessed for late registration:

- A penalty of two to three times the output tax plus a criminal penalty equal to JOD200 is imposed if the date of registration is more than 60 days from the date on which the business should have been registered.
- A penalty of JOD100 is imposed if the date of registration is less than 60 days from the date on which the business should have been registered.

Penalties for late payment and filings. Late filing of a GST or SST Return to the ISTD will incur a penalty of JOD100 upon the first late filing. It will increase by 100 for every late filing after which and will cap at JOD500.

Late payment of GST or SST due will incur a late payment penalty equal to 0.4% of the tax due for each late week or part of the week.

If a tax return adopted by the ISTD is submitted to a bank, it is deemed to be a tax return submitted to the ISTD.

If the tax return is submitted in a manner that violates the provisions of the GST law, the return is considered to be canceled and the registered person is liable for the penalties provided for under the GST law.

If the registered person submits more than one return for the same period, the ISTD accepts only the return submitted first. The other returns are considered canceled except for any amendment notices submitted afterward.

Penalties for errors. If a registered person realizes that it has made an error, such as incorrect entry of tax amount or purchase/sales amount in a GST return that has already been submitted, it may amend the return through a written notice submitted to the ISTD. In this case, the registered person is not considered to have breached the provisions of the GST law unless the ISTD discovered the error before the registered person declared it. However, the registered person must pay the under declared amount of tax, together with the late payment penalty imposed (0.4%) for that error, calculated for every week or any part thereof.

Penalties for fraud. A person who commits a criminal tax fraud offense is liable for a civil compensation penalty payable to the ISTD of not less than twice and not more than three times the tax due, and a criminal penalty of not less than JOD200 and not more than JOD1,000. For a second offense, the criminal penalty imposed is doubled. If the offense occurs again within one year thereafter, the court may impose the highest criminal fine or a term of imprisonment for a period not less than three months and not exceeding six months, or both.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- Supplies of goods, work and services in Kazakhstan
- Imports of goods

For VAT purposes, taxable turnover is the total of practically all types of supplies (for example, sales, exchanges or gifts) of goods, work and services. Goods include practically all forms of property or property rights. Taxable supplies of services are any supplies of work or services that are made for consideration or made free of charge or anything that is performed for consideration and is not a supply of goods.

Goods and services are subject to VAT if, under the place of supply rules, they are deemed to be supplied in Kazakhstan.

The place of supply of goods is deemed to be the following:
- Goods sent by the supplier, the recipient or a third party: the place where the transportation of the goods begins
- For all other cases: the place where the goods are handed over to the purchaser

The place of supply of work and services is determined based on the nature of the executed transactions. Work and services connected with immovable property (for example, buildings and installations) are deemed to be supplied in Kazakhstan if such property is located in Kazakhstan. The place of supply of certain services that are provided outside Kazakhstan is deemed to be in Kazakhstan. Such services include, but are not limited to, the following:
- The transfer of rights to use items of intellectual property, for example maintenance and software updates
- Provision of access to online resources
- Consulting
- Audit
- Advertising and marketing services
- Staff provision
- The leasing of movable property (other than means of transport)
- Agency services connected with the purchase of goods, work and services
- Consent to limit or terminate entrepreneurial activities for consideration
- Communication services
- Radio and television services
- Rent of freight wagons and containers

C. Who is liable

Taxpayers are legal entities and nonresident legal entities, having registered a presence in Kazakhstan (e.g., a branch), that are registered for VAT purposes as well as importers of goods into Kazakhstan.

Exemption from registration. Kazakhstan tax legislation does not contain any provisions for exemption from VAT registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. Voluntary VAT registration is possible in Kazakhstan. However, individuals, who are not individual entrepreneurs; government agencies; nonresidents acting without a branch or representative office, structural subdivisions of legal entities-residents (e.g., through a branch) and gambling businesses do not have the right to voluntarily register for VAT purposes.

Group registration. Group VAT registration is not allowed in Kazakhstan.

Non-established businesses. Foreign legal entities, which do not have a registered branch/representative office in Kazakhstan, cannot be registered for VAT in Kazakhstan. The rules are the same for supplies of goods and services, and business-to-business (B2B) and business-to-consumer (B2C) supplies.

If a foreign business has a branch/representative office in Kazakhstan, then it can register for VAT voluntarily (no thresholds). However, where a foreign business has a branch/representative office, then it must register for VAT where its turnover exceeds during the calendar year 30,000 times the MCI (approximately USD211,000 for 2020). The registration procedure is as per the details above. Once registered for VAT, the foreign business can recover input tax on local supplies (subject to normal rules).

Tax representatives. Tax representatives are not envisaged in Kazakhstan.

Reverse charge. If a nonresident that is not registered for VAT purposes in Kazakhstan renders services for which the place of supply is Kazakhstan to a Kazakhstan purchaser and if the purchaser is a VAT payer, the purchaser must self-assess and pay VAT through a reverse-charge mechanism. A Kazakhstan purchaser of the services is allowed to offset the amount of the reverse-charge VAT paid, subject to the general offset procedure.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Kazakhstan.

Digital economy. Starting from 1 January 2018, the provision of access to online resources was added to the services for which the place of supply is deemed to be in Kazakhstan. There are no other special rules that apply to the digital economy from a VAT perspective.

Online marketplaces and platforms. The State Revenue Committee of Kazakhstan is proposing the introduction of new rules for a nonresident legal entity providing services in electronic form to individuals (tentatively from 1 January 2021). According to the planned changes, a nonresident legal entity, when providing services to individuals (B2C) in electronic form, will be required to register as a VAT payer and calculate VAT based on the turnover of services rendered if the place of supply of such services is Kazakhstan (regardless of whether they have established a registered presence).

Registration procedures. VAT registration, a process separate from tax registration, is either compulsory or voluntary.

Resident legal entities, branches or representative offices of nonresident legal entities and private entrepreneurs must register for VAT if their turnover during the calendar year exceeds 30,000 times the MCI. The threshold is approximately USD211,000 for 2020. The MCI is established by the state budget law for each year. For 2020, the MCI is KZT2,651 (approximately USD7). The deadline for VAT registration is within 10 business days after the end of the month in which the turnover threshold is exceeded on paper in person or electronically.

Legal entities that are not subject to compulsory VAT registration have the right to submit an application for VAT registration to the tax authority at their location in person or electronically.

Whether the applicant is required to register or is registering voluntarily, several rules are the same:

- The tax authority shall, within one working day from the submission of an application for VAT registration, register the taxpayer by issuing a certificate of VAT registration.
- The applicant becomes a VAT payer from the date of submission of the application.

Deregistration. A VAT payer may submit an application for VAT deregistration to the local tax authorities if the following conditions are simultaneously met:

- The taxable turnover for the calendar year preceding the year in which the tax application is submitted did not exceed approximately USD211,000.
- The taxable turnover for the period from the beginning of the current calendar year in which the tax application is submitted did not exceed approximately USD211,000.

The following documents should be submitted for VAT deregistration:
- An application for VAT deregistration
- A liquidation VAT declaration

Tax authorities should deregister a taxpayer within five working days from the date of submission of a tax application. The date of VAT deregistration shall be the date of submission of the tax application to the tax authority.

The tax authorities will deregister the VAT payer without notification if, for example:
- The VAT declaration is not submitted within six months after the due date established by the Tax Code
- The VAT payer is declared to be in abeyance
- The registration of the legal entity is recognized to be invalid based on a court decision that has taken effect

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods, work and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The following are the VAT rates in Kazakhstan:
- Standard rate: 12%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods, or services unless a specific measure provides for the zero rate or an exemption.

For imports of goods by individuals under the simplified procedure, VAT may be paid as part of the aggregate customs payment, the amount of which is determined in accordance with the customs law of Kazakhstan.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%
- Export sales of goods, except for those that are exempt from VAT
- International transportation services
- Sale of oil and lubricants by airports when fueling aircraft of a foreign air carrier performing international flights
- Sale of fine gold
- Sale of goods to the territory of Special Economic Zones

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods, work and services not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services
- Turnover associated with land and residential buildings
- Specified financial services
- Transfers of assets under financial leasing
- Services rendered by noncommercial organizations
- Services in the areas of culture, science and education
- Goods and services related to medical and veterinary activities

- Import of certain assets (a list is issued by the government)
- Goods imported by individuals not for entrepreneurial purposes (subject to certain limitations)
- Turnovers related to international transportation services
- Import of goods from the territory of a Eurasian Economic Union member country within the same legal entity (e.g., intra-entity transaction)

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Kazakhstan.

E. Time of supply

The time of supply is the date that a sale of goods, work or services is completed, which is the date on which the goods are shipped (transferred), work is performed, or services are rendered. The date of the performance of work or the rendering of services is the date of signing of an act of acceptance for work performed or services rendered.

For goods that are not shipped, the date of completion of a sale is the date on which ownership of the goods is transferred to the purchaser.

Deposits and prepayments. There are no special time of supply rules for deposits and prepayments in Kazakhstan. The general time of supply rules apply.

Continuous supplies of services. The time of supply for certain continuous supplies is the last day of the calendar month in which the goods are delivered, work is performed or services are rendered.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules for supplies of goods sent on “approval” or for “sale or return” conditions of sale. The general time of supply rules apply.

Reverse-charge services. The reverse-charge mechanism is triggered by the purchase of certain services from a nonresident entity based on one of the following documents:

(i) Act of works (services) acceptance

(ii) In the absence of the above, a document (except for the VAT invoice), confirming the performance of the work, with the document prepared in compliance with the Kazakhstan legislation on accounting and financial reporting

The date of signing of one of the above documents should be considered as the time of supply, when VAT is due to be accounted for on the supply by way of the reverse-charge mechanism.

Leased assets. There are no special time of supply rules for operational leases. As such, the general time of supply rules apply. The time of supply for financial leases depends on the type of the arrangement, as per the following:

- The date of receipt of the periodic lease payment established by the leasing agreement, without taking into account the amount of remuneration
- The date of transferring the property to financial leasing

Imported goods. The time of supply is the date of importation of goods on to Kazakhstan.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

The VAT liability of a taxpayer equals output tax (VAT charged by a taxpayer) less input tax (VAT paid by a taxpayer to its suppliers) in a reporting period.

VAT paid on services and goods purchased by a VAT payer (input tax) including reverse-charge VAT paid and VAT paid at customs is generally available for offset (credit) in determining a taxpayer’s VAT liability to the budget. However, offsetting is not available for VAT incurred for the purpose of making supplies that are either exempt or deemed to be supplied outside Kazakhstan.

The excess of input tax over output tax may generally be carried forward for offset against future VAT liabilities.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax is not allowed for offset if purchased goods, works, services are used for nontaxable supplies. In such cases the respective input tax is not deductible for VAT, but could be considered for deduction for corporate income tax purposes.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Receipt of goods, work and services not related to taxable turnover
- Receipt of passenger cars that are purchased as fixed assets
- The VAT invoice does not meet the set requirements of the Tax Code
- Goods and services purchased in cash for an amount exceeding 1,000 MCI (inclusive of VAT) irrespective of the frequency of the payment
- Purchase of goods, work and services from suppliers recognized by courts as invalid
- Purchase of goods, work and services that are recognized by courts as executed by private business entities without an actual intent to carry out entrepreneurial activities

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible
(if related to a taxable business use)

- Capital assets
- Intangible and biological assets
- Investments in immovable property

Partial exemption. Input tax directly related to a taxable person's taxable supplies, is recoverable in full, whereas input tax directly related to exempt supplies is not recoverable at all and must be expensed for corporate income tax purposes.

Where a taxable person makes both taxable and exempt supplies, the input tax incurred in relation to both supplies (i.e., overheads, like office rent expenses) must be apportioned accordingly to the extent the input tax incurred relates to the taxable and exempt supplies made. The statutory method of appointment is a pro rata calculation, based on the value of taxable supplies made in the total turnover of the business. The pro rate calculation can be calculated by using either the proportional or separate method. The method that the taxpayer uses should be chosen based upon the tax accounting policy of the taxpayer.

Capital goods. There are no special input tax rules for capital goods. As such, normal input tax rules apply (as outlined above).

Refunds. Generally, in practice, obtaining refunds requires significant effort. However, the rules prescribe a procedure for refunds under certain conditions.

Under the tax code of the Republic of Kazakhstan, currently in effect, the following amounts are refundable to a taxpayer from the budget:

- Input tax exceeding the amount of tax assessed not related to zero-rated turnover, up to the amount of reverse charge VAT
- VAT paid to suppliers of goods, services that were used for the purposes of zero-rated turnovers
- VAT paid to suppliers of goods, work and services that were acquired using a grant
- VAT paid by diplomatic and equivalent representations accredited in Kazakhstan and by persons who are members of the diplomatic, administrative and technical staff of these representations, including members of their families who reside with them, to suppliers of goods, work and services acquired in Kazakhstan
- The amount of any cash overpayment of VAT to the budget

Under current tax legislation, the excess of input tax related to zero-rated turnover is refundable if the following conditions are met simultaneously:

- The VAT payer sells zero-rated goods, work and services on a continuous basis.

- Zero-rated sales account for at least 70% of the total taxable sales of the taxpayer for the tax period in which the zero-rated sales occurred and for which a refund of excess VAT is claimed in a VAT return.

Excess VAT must be refunded to a taxpayer on the basis of a refund claim made in the VAT return for a tax period.

Excess VAT confirmed by a tax audit must be refunded:
- Within 30 calendar days — for the taxpayers who:
  (i) Issue and receive exclusively electronic VAT invoices for the tax period for which a refund of excess VAT is claimed in a VAT return
  (ii) Not assigned to the category of taxpayers who are in the risk zone determined in accordance with the Kazakhstan legislation
- Within 50 calendar days — for the taxpayers who have zero-rated sales account for at least 70% of the total taxable sales for the tax period in which the zero-rated sales occurred and for which a refund of excess VAT is claimed in a VAT return
- Within 155 calendar days — in all other cases

With effect from 1 January 2019, certain taxpayers, being members of the official online system of the tax authorities, which has been designed specifically for the receiving and processing of electronic VAT invoices, may open a control account on a voluntary basis. The control account is a bank account at a commercial Kazakhstani bank for VAT transactions (e.g., payment to the state budget, payment to suppliers).

The following taxpayers may claim VAT refunds using a control account, for example:
- Taxpayers using acquired (received) goods (leased assets) in the production of other goods. The list of acquired goods (leased assets) is approved by the authorized body
- Taxpayers selling goods for export
- Taxpayers who realize goods on the territory of a Special Economic Zone, which goods are fully consumed for the purposes of activities that meet the objectives of such Special Economic Zones

Pre-registration costs. Input tax incurred on pre-registration costs in Kazakhstan, is not recoverable.

Write-off of bad debts. If part or all of the amount of the claim for realized goods, works, services is considered a doubtful claim, the taxpayer has the right to reduce the amount of its taxable turnover on such a claim after three years from the beginning of the tax period, which is as follows:
- A period of fulfillment of the requirement for the realized goods, works, services, if such term is defined
- The day of transfer of the goods, performance of work, rendering of services, term of execution of the requirement which is not defined

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred upon purchases that are used for noneconomic activities, is not recoverable in Kazakhstan.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Non-established businesses cannot recover input tax incurred in Kazakhstan.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. In general, the VAT invoice is a compulsory document for all taxpayers. No input tax deduction is allowed without an appropriate VAT invoice.

The amount of taxable turnover can be adjusted if the cost of goods, work or services changes in certain circumstances, including the following:
• The goods are returned in whole or in part
• The conditions of a transaction change
• The price or amount of compensation for goods, work or services sold is changed

Adjustments to the amount of taxable turnover can be made if both of the following conditions are satisfied:
• Accounting documentation is available
• A corrected VAT invoice is issued, or a receipt of a cash register (which is available in specified cases)

The cost of goods, work and services and the amount of VAT must be stated in the VAT invoice in the national currency of Kazakhstan, except for goods, work and services sold under foreign-trade contracts and in other circumstances provided for by law.

Credit notes. A credit note is an additional VAT invoice issued by a supplier of goods, work and services in some circumstances, such as in the following cases:
• Return of goods
• Where the value of sold goods, work or services change in either direction

The adjustment of the amount of taxable turnover shall take place in the tax period in which such adjustment took place.

Electronic invoicing. With effect from 1 January 2019, all taxpayers are obliged to issue invoices in electronic format.

Issuance of an electronic VAT invoice is only possible by using the official online system of the tax authorities, which is specifically designated for receiving and processing of electronic VAT invoices. Electronic VAT invoices have an established format and should be signed by means of electronic signature. Generally, electronic invoices should be issued within 15 calendar days from the date of a taxable turnover.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified VAT invoicing is not allowed in Kazakhstan. Full VAT invoices are required. This requirement also applies for supplies made by retailers to consumers. Full VAT invoices must be used for all supplies in Kazakhstan.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Kazakhstan.

Proof of exports. To confirm the applicability of zero-rated VAT for turnover, the supplier must collect supporting documents that are stipulated in the tax law of Kazakhstan.

Foreign currency invoices. Values in VAT invoices should be indicated in the national currency (tenge). In certain cases, it is allowed to indicate the values in foreign currency.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. There are no special rules for VAT invoices issued to private consumers, and as such, full VAT invoices must be issued for all supplies.

Records. Records that must be kept in Kazakhstan include: VAT returns, VAT invoices supplies and received, contracts and acts of acceptances.

Record retention period. The statute of limitation for 2019 and prior years is five years. For liabilities incurred after 1 January 2020, the statute of limitation for such records is three years.

Electronic archiving. All VAT returns and VAT invoices must kept and archived electronically, within the online system for electronic VAT return filing, and have their own status (draft, filed, received). Other original support documents should be stored in paper (e.g., contracts, invoices, acts of acceptance). During the statute of limitations period.

I. Returns and payments

Periodic returns. Taxpayers must file a VAT return with the tax authorities for each tax period by the 15th day of the second month following the reporting tax period (quarter).

A VAT return for the import of goods into Kazakhstan from other EAEU member countries must be filed with the tax authorities by the 20th day of the month following the tax period (month).

Periodic payments. The VAT due for the VAT return must be paid to the budget by the 25th day of the second month following the reporting tax period.

The VAT due for the import of goods into Kazakhstan from other EAEU member countries, must be paid to the budget by the 20th day of the month following the tax period (month).

VAT on imported goods must be paid within the deadlines specified by the customs law of Kazakhstan for the payment of customs payments.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing of VAT returns is optional in Kazakhstan. There is a special online system designated for electronic filing of VAT returns (http://cabinet.salyk.kz). All taxpayers can file tax returns and some tax applications via this online system provided they have obtained a special electronic key (electronic signature).

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Kazakhstan.

Special schemes. Taxpayers may pay a remaining amount of import VAT on certain goods by the offset method or take the amount of import VAT already paid.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Kazakhstan.

Supplementary filings. The Tax Code includes certain procedures and monthly compliance requirements for exports and imports of goods to and from Kazakhstan from and to countries in the EAEU (Belarus, Kazakhstan, Russian Federation, Armenia and Kyrgyzstan). An application (form 328.00) and VAT return (form 320.00) for the import of goods into Kazakhstan from other EAEU member states must be filed with the tax authorities within the established deadlines.

Digital reporting. Electronic filing of VAT returns is optional in Kazakhstan. There is a special online system designated for electronic filing for VAT returns (http://cabinet.salyk.kz). All taxpayers can file tax returns and some tax applications via this online system provided they have obtained a special electronic key (electronic signature).

Virtual warehouses. With effect from 1 January 2019 the full module of "virtual warehouse" is introduced and obligatory for reporting of goods included into the list of exemptions (e.g., motor vehicles, certain household equipment, sugar, etc.). The "virtual warehouse" was created for the purposes of systematization of inventory accounting, automatic calculation of inventory ending balance and monitoring of the transfer of goods from entry into Kazakhstan to the final consumer.

With effect from 1 April 2020, inventory handling procedures should be maintained through the "virtual warehouse" only for certain categories of goods (e.g., alcohol, tobacco product, oil products). Before this date, reporting through the "virtual warehouse" was obligatory only for goods that were included into the list of exemptions (based on the reduced rates envisaged by WTO).

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. The penalty for late registration is 50 MCI (approximately USD352 for 2020).

Penalties for late payment and filings. The penalty for failure to file a tax return: penalty up to 70 MCI (approximately USD493 in 2020).

The penalty for understatement of tax payments: penalty up to 50%-80% (depending on the size of the taxpayer) of the underpaid tax.

The annual interest rate charged on late payments is equal to 1.25 times the official refinancing rate established by the National Bank of the Republic of Kazakhstan. The official refinancing rate is 9.25%, so the late payment interest rate is 11.6% per annum.

Penalties for errors. The penalty for the issue of fictitious invoice: penalty up to 200%-300% (depending on the size of the taxpayer) of the input tax included in the invoice.

The penalty for nonpayment of tax for export and import of goods, work and services in the Eurasian Economic Union: penalty up to MCI50 (approximately USD352 for 2020).

The penalty for non-issuance of electronic VAT invoice: for a first time leads to a warning, committed repeatedly within a year penalty up to MCI40 to MCI150 (approximately USD282 to USD1,056 in 2020).

Penalties for fraud. Additional assessments made by the state revenue authorities as a result of a tax audit may serve as grounds for initiation of criminal proceedings and imposition of criminal liability on the management of the taxpayer.

B. Scope of the tax

Since the enactment of a new VAT Act, which took effect 2 September 2013, VAT applies to the following transactions:

- The supply of goods and services in Kenya by a taxable person
- Taxable imported services received by a taxable person in Kenya to the extent that they relate to exempt supplies
- The importation of goods from outside Kenya, regardless of the status of the importer (unless the importer is listed as zero-rated in Part B of the Second Schedule to the VAT Act)

The exportation of goods and taxable services is zero-rated if, subject to the satisfaction of the Commissioner of Domestic Taxes, the supply takes place in the course of a registered person's business.

C. Who is liable

VAT is paid by consumers of taxable goods and services. It is collected by registered taxpayers (traders) that act as the agents of the government. VAT on imported goods is collected by the Commissioner of Customs Services Department, while the Commissioner of Domestic Taxes collects local VAT and VAT on imported services.

VAT registration is dependent on the attainment of a turnover threshold of KES5 million with respect to all taxable supplies. Businesses that do not attain this turnover threshold are subject to turnover tax at a rate of 3% of their turnover up to a maximum turnover of KES5 million. After reaching this threshold, they must register for VAT. Within 30 days after becoming a taxable person, a person should apply to the Commissioner of Domestic Taxes to be registered in the prescribed manner. Businesses whose turnover is less than the registration threshold can voluntarily apply to the commissioner for registration.

Exemption from registration. The VAT law in Kenya does not contain any provision for exemption from registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. The VAT Act provides for voluntary VAT registration for business providing taxable supplies but have not exceeded the turnover threshold for VAT registration. The registration is granted under the following conditions:
- The person is making or shall make taxable supplies.
- The person has a fixed place of business.
- The person has kept proper books of accounts, if he has commenced business, or there are reasonable grounds to believe that the person will keep proper books of accounts, if he has not commenced business.

Group registration. The Kenyan VAT Act allows group registration. However, in practice, group registration is allowed only under special circumstances.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that has no fixed establishment in Kenya. A foreign business that meets the registration requirements in Kenya and does not have a fixed place of business in Kenya is required to appoint a tax representative. A permanent establishment of a foreign business must register for VAT if it makes taxable supplies of goods or services.

Tax representatives. A person who is required to apply for VAT registration but who does not have a fixed place of business in Kenya should appoint a tax representative.

The registration of the tax representative shall be in the name of the nonresident person being represented.

The tax representative of a nonresident person shall:
- Be a person normally residing in Kenya
- Have the responsibility for doing all things required of the nonresident
- With the nonresident person, be jointly and severally liable for the payment of all taxes, fines, penalties and interest imposed

Reverse charge. Reverse-charge VAT is applicable on importation of taxable services to the extent it relates to the provision of exempt supplies. Effective 7 November 2019, the liability to account for VAT on imported services applies to any importer, irrespective of their VAT registration status. The reverse-charge VAT should be accounted by any person to the extent they are not entitled to input tax credit payable on the imported taxable services.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Kenya.

Digital economy. Taxation of electronic services is provided for in the VAT Act of 2013. "Electronic services" means any of the following services, when provided or delivered on or through a telecommunications network:
- Websites, web hosting or remote maintenance of programs and equipment
- Software and the updating of software
- Images, text and information
- Access to databases
- Self-education packages
- Music, films and games, including games of chance
- Political, cultural, artistic, sporting, scientific and other broadcasts and events, including broadcast television

A supply of electronic services is made in Kenya if the place of business of the supplier from which the services are supplied is in Kenya.

If the place of business of the supplier is not in Kenya, the supply of the services shall be deemed to be made in Kenya if the recipient of the supply is not a registered person and the electronic services are delivered to a person in Kenya at the time of supply.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Kenya. However, at the time of preparing this chapter, the draft Finance Bill 2019 proposes to introduce special tax rules for supplies made through a digital marketplace.

Registration procedures. The registration process involves a person making an online application for a Personal Identification Number (PIN). During this process, an entity is required to state its tax obligations including VAT.

Registration for all taxes is currently done online via the Kenya Revenue Authority (KRA) i-Tax portal (https://itax.kra.go.ke/KRA-Portal/). On average, tax registration can take one to five days depending on the availability of information required for registration.

Deregistration. A registered person may apply to the commissioner for deregistration under the following circumstances:
- If the registered person ceases to make taxable supplies
- If the registered person's annual value of taxable supplies no longer exceeds the registration threshold

The commissioner shall, by notice in writing, cancel the registration of a person in the following circumstances:
- The person has applied for cancellation and the commissioner is satisfied that the person has ceased to make taxable supplies.
- The person has not applied for cancellation, but the commissioner is satisfied that the person has ceased to make taxable supplies and is not otherwise required to be registered.

The commissioner may cancel the registration of a person who is no longer required to be registered under the following circumstances:
- If the commissioner is satisfied that the person has failed to keep proper tax records
- If the commissioner is satisfied that the person has failed to furnish regular and reliable returns
- If the commissioner is satisfied that the person has failed to comply with obligations under other revenue laws
- If there are reasonable grounds to believe that the person will not keep proper records or furnish regular and reliable returns

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 16%
- Special rate: 8%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate, the zero rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%
- Exportation of goods and taxable services
- Goods and services supplied to export-processing zones
- International transportation of passengers
- Goods and services supplied to special economic zones
- Supply of liquefied petroleum gas (LPG)
- Supplies to the Commonwealth
- Supplies to other governments
- Supplies to diplomats

Examples of goods and services taxable at 8%
- Motor fuel (regular and premium gasoline)
- Aviation fuel
- Gas oil
- Natural gas

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services
- Unprocessed agricultural products
- Airplanes and other aircraft
- Direction-finding compasses
- Taxable goods for direct and exclusive use for the construction of tourism facilities of 50 acres or more
- Passenger baggage
- Financial services
- Insurance
- Medical services
- Agricultural and horticultural services and animal husbandry
- Transportation of passengers (excluding transportation for hire)
- Taxable services for direct and exclusive use for the construction of tourism facilities of 50 acres or more
- Entry fees into national parks and national reserves
- The services of tour operators excluding in-house supplies

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Kenya.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point." In Kenya, the tax point is the earliest of the following events:
- The goods or services are supplied.

- A certificate is issued by an architect, surveyor or a consultant.
- An invoice is issued.
- Payment is received for all or part of the supply.

Other tax points apply in a variety of specific situations.

Deposits and prepayments. VAT is due on deposits and prepayments provided one is able to determine the type of payments the supply relates to.

Continuous supplies of services. For continuous supplies, the time of each successive supply is the earlier of the date on which payment for the successive supply is due or received.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules in Kenya for supplies of goods sent on approval for sale or return. As such the general time of supply rules apply.

Reverse-charge services. Reverse-charge VAT is due on the importation of taxable services to the extent that the services relate to the provision of exempt supplies. Where imported taxable services relate to provision of taxable supplies, the reverse-charge VAT payable is zero-rated. The tax is due at the time of supply.

Leased assets. VAT is due on lease rentals at the earlier of when the invoice is raised or when the payment is made.

Imported goods. The time of the supply for imported goods is either the date of importation, or the date on which the goods leave a duty suspension regime.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax, which is VAT charged on goods and services supplied to it for business purposes. Input tax is claimed by deducting it from output tax, which is VAT charged on supplies made. Taxable persons must claim input tax within six months after incurring the expense.

Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services purchased in Kenya and VAT paid on imports of goods.

Nondeductible input tax. VAT may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use by an entrepreneur). In addition, input tax may not be recovered on certain business expenses.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Passenger cars or minibuses and the repair and maintenance thereof, including spare parts, unless the passenger cars and minibuses are acquired by the registered person exclusively for the purpose of making a taxable supply in the ordinary course of a continuous and regular business of selling and dealing in or hiring of passenger cars and minibuses
- Entertainment, restaurant and accommodation services unless:
  - — The services are provided in the ordinary course of the business carried on by the person to provide the services, and the services are not supplied to an associate or employee
  - — The services are provided while the recipient is away from home for the purposes of the business of the recipient or the recipient's employer

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Professional fees
- Utility costs

Partial exemption. VAT directly related to making exempt supplies is not recoverable. A registered person who makes both exempt and taxable supplies cannot recover VAT in full. This situation is referred to as "partial exemption."

Under the VAT Act, if a taxable person supplies both taxable and exempt goods and services, only input tax attributable to taxable supplies may be recovered. The following are the attribution rules:

- Input tax directly attributable to taxable goods purchased and sold in the same condition is deductible in full.
- Input tax directly attributable to exempt supplies may not be deducted.
- Attributable to both taxable and exempt supplies is partially deductible. The recoverable amount is calculated using a simple pro rata method based on the value of taxable and exempt supplies made.

If the exempt supplies are less than 10% of the total supplies, the input tax may be claimed in full. Where the exempt supplies constitute more than 90%, the registered person shall not be allowed any input tax attributable to taxable supplies.

Capital goods. "Capital goods" is not defined under the provisions of the VAT Act in Kenya, and there are no specific rules that outline input tax recovery on capital goods. General rules are applied for deduction of input tax. Specifically, deduction of input tax on passenger vehicles is restricted. In all other cases, deduction of input tax on capital goods depends on whether the business is dealing with exempt or taxable supplies. Where capital goods are used for both taxable and exempt supplies, the input tax should be claimed to the extent it relates to provision of taxable supplies.

Refunds. A taxable person may claim a refund of input tax in excess of output tax if the Commissioner General is satisfied that the excess arises from making zero-rated supplies.

Claims in excess of KES1 million must be accompanied by an auditors' certificate. However, in practice, the VAT Department requires an auditors' certificate for refunds in excess of KES200,000 to facilitate speedy processing.

The commissioner may refund tax where the tax has been paid in error.

A claim for tax paid in error must be filed within a period of one year (12 months) after the date on which the tax was paid.

VAT on bad debts accounted for and paid by a registered person can be claimed after a period of three years from the date of such supply or it can be claimed if the person liable to pay the tax has become legally insolvent. However, it must be claimed no later than five years after the date of the supply. If legal insolvency does not apply, evidence of the effort to recover the tax is required to support such claims.

Pre-registration costs. On the date a person is registered, and for the next three months, the taxable person may recover pre-registration input tax paid on taxable supplies intended for use in making taxable supplies, provided that those purchases of taxable supplies were completed no more than 24 months before the date of registration.

Write-off of bad debts. Where a registered person does not receive payment from a customer, it may, after a period of three years from the date of supply or where the person has become legally insolvent, apply to the commissioner for a refund of the tax involved. The refund should be lodged before expiry of five years from the period of supply.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred in relation to noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Kenya.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Kenya does not refund VAT incurred by a foreign business, unless the foreign business has a permanent establishment in Kenya and it is registered for VAT in Kenya.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A supplier of taxable goods and services must issue a tax invoice to the purchaser at the time of supply.

Credit notes. A credit note may be used to reduce the VAT charged on a supply of goods or services. Credit notes must show the same information as a tax invoice.

Electronic invoicing. An invoice may be generated electronically or manually, provided it meets the prescribed conditions of a valid tax invoice.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified tax invoices are allowed for supplies made within the retail sector in Kenya. There is no threshold in terms of the amounts invoiced. A registered person may provide an electronically generated fiscal receipt as a simplified tax invoice for cash sales made from retail premises.

Self-billing. Self-billing is allowed for registered persons liable to tax for imported services and is entitled to a credit for part of the amount of input tax payable. They must prepare a tax invoice containing the following information:
- The name, address, and PIN of the recipient
- The name and address of the supplier
- The individualized serial number of the tax invoice and the date on which the tax invoice is prepared
- A description of the services supplied and the date of the supply
- The extent to which the supply has been applied other than to make taxable supplies
- The consideration for the supply and the amount of tax charged

Proof of exports. Goods and taxable services exported from Kenya are zero-rated. However, to qualify for zero rating, exports of goods must be supported by evidence that proves the goods left Kenya. Suitable evidence includes the following documents:
- A sales invoice
- A bill of lading, road manifest or airway bill
- A certified (endorsed) export entry (Form C17 [formerly Form C63])
- For sugar and other excisable goods, a certificate of exportation signed by the Commissioner of Customs and Excise

A service exported out of Kenya means a service provided for use or consumption outside Kenya. However, to qualify for zero rating, exports of services must be supported by a copy of the invoice showing the sale of the services to the purchaser.

Foreign currency invoices. Foreign currency invoices are dealt with in the same way as invoices in local currency. The tax authorities do not require a standard exchange rate to be used to convert the value of foreign invoices into Kenyan shillings (KES). In practice, they accept the rate used by the taxable person, if the rate used is within the prevailing market exchange rates.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. There are no special rules for invoices issued for supplies made by taxable persons to private consumers.

Records.

Record retention period. Every registered person is required to keep records either electronically or otherwise for a period of five years.

Electronic archiving. Registered persons must keep records, including copies of tax invoices in an electronic manner or otherwise.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. The VAT tax period is one month. Returns must be filed by the 20th day after the end of the tax period.

A "nil" return must be filed in instances where the taxable person has not made any supplies.

If the normal filing date falls on a public holiday or on a weekend, the VAT return must be submitted on the last working day before that day.

A person may apply to the commissioner before the due date for submission of return for an extension of time to submit a return.

Periodic payments. Payment of VAT is due in full by the same date as the VAT return submission deadline, i.e., by the 20th day after the end of the tax period.

Electronic filing. All returns must be filed electronically via the Kenya Revenue Authority (KRA) i-Tax portal.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Kenya.

Special schemes. No special schemes are available in Kenya.

However, there are special rules for withholding VAT. Taxable supplies to appointed withholding VAT agents are subject to withholding VAT at 6% of the taxable value. Appointed withholding VAT agents include government ministries, parastatals, financial institutions and most of the major taxpayers, as they may be appointed by the Commissioner.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Kenya.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in Kenya.

Digital reporting. No digital reporting requirements apply in Kenya. However, all returns must be filed electronically via i-Tax portal.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. A penalty of KES200,000 or imprisonment for a period not exceeding two years (or both) is imposed in the event of late registration by traders who meet the turnover threshold.

Penalties for late payment and filings. Late submission of a return is subject to a penalty of KES10,000 or 5% of tax due, whichever is higher. Late payment attracts interest at a rate of 1% per month, simple interest.

Penalties for errors. There are no penalties for errors provided by the VAT Act. The Act provides for specific and general penalties for noncompliance offenses. The general penalty is a fine not exceeding one million shillings or imprisonment for a term not exceeding three years or both.

The failure to keep, retain or maintain documents without reasonable cause for a reporting period is subject to a penalty of KES100,000 or 10% of the amount of tax payable under the Act to which the document relates for the reporting period to which the failure relates whichever is higher.

The failure to display registration certificate is subject to a penalty of up to KES200,000 or a maximum sentence of two years' imprisonment, or both.

Penalties for fraud. Making a fraudulent claim for a refund of tax is subject to a penalty of two times the amount of claim.

Unauthorized access to or improper use of tax computerized system is subject to a penalty of a maximum of KES400,000 or a maximum sentence of two years' imprisonment, or both.

Interference with tax computerized system is subject to a penalty of a maximum of KES800,000 or a maximum sentence of three years' imprisonment, or both.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:

- The supply of goods and services by a taxable person
- Reverse-charge services received by an exempt business person in Korea
- The importation of goods, regardless of the status of the importer

C. Who is liable

Any person that independently undertakes the supply of taxable goods or services in the course of business, whether or not for profit, is liable for VAT.

Exemption from registration. The VAT law in Korea does not contain any provision for exemption from registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. The VAT law in Korea does not contain any provision for voluntary VAT registration, as there is no registration threshold (i.e., all entities that make taxable supplies are obliged to register for VAT).

Group registration. Group VAT registration is not allowed in Korea.

Non-established businesses. "Non-established business" refers to a business that has no fixed establishment in Korea. A non-established business is not required to register for VAT in Korea unless it provides certain electronic services to Korean customers.

Tax representatives. In certain circumstances, an individual taxpayer must designate a tax administrator to deal with filing tax returns, making tax payments, requesting refunds and handling other necessary matters. Information about the tax administrator must be reported to the competent tax office.

Reverse charge. Reverse charge generally applies where a business receives a supply of taxable services and intangible properties from a nonresident or foreign corporation and uses the services and intangible properties for its tax-exempt business. The recipient of such taxable services and intangible properties must collect the VAT at the time of the payment and pay the amount to the government.

If a business receives a supply of taxable services and intangible properties from a nonresident or foreign corporation, and such supplies are used for both its taxable and tax-exempt activities, VAT on the reverse charge is calculated by reference to the ratio of turnover related to exempt supplies for the year compared to total turnover.

A nonresident or foreign corporation for VAT purposes is one of the following:
- A nonresident or foreign corporation that does not have a place of business in Korea
- A nonresident or foreign corporation with a domestic place of business, provided that the supply of services is not rendered through the domestic place of business

Domestic reverse charge. From 1 January 2019, if the following companies supply taxable goods or services and receive payments through credit cards, the credit card company will be subject to domestic reverse-charge obligations:
- General entertainment and drinking establishments
- Dancing and drinking halls

Digital economy. South Korea applies VAT on electronic services purchased by South Korean customers from abroad. Foreign providers of electronic services must register with the South Korean tax authorities through the simplified business registration system.

The VAT on electronic services will not apply if the electronic services are rendered to a domestic entity that is registered for VAT purposes in Korea (i.e., in business-to-business (B2B) transactions).

Online marketplaces and platforms. Where a foreign corporation provides electronic services through an online marketplace or platform, that marketplace or platform company is considered to provide electronic services in Korea, i.e., not the foreign corporation. The platform/marketplace is therefore responsible to account for the VAT on the supplies made.

The foreign corporation providing the electronic services through the online marketplace or platform in Korea, doesn't need to register or account for VAT. However, it would largely depend on facts of the case and should be examined on case-by-case basis.

However, if the online marketplaces and platforms are foreign corporations they would need to register for VAT (as outlined under the Digital economy subsection above) and account for VAT locally.

Registration procedures. Any person that begins a business must register the place of business with the district tax office within 20 days after the date of business commencement. The business may be registered before the date of business commencement. The tax office that has jurisdiction over the business location issues a business registration certificate. Where a taxpayer operates more than one business place, the taxpayer is allowed to register two or more business places as a single business unit for VAT purposes.

Deregistration. A registered business that ceases to operate is required to deregister by returning its business registration certificate to the tax office.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The rates are:
- Standard rate: 10%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for the zero rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%
- Exported goods
- Services rendered outside Korea
- International transportation services by ships and aircraft
- Other goods or services supplied for foreign currency

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services
- Social welfare services (for example, medical and health services and education services)
- Goods or services related to culture (for example, books, newspapers, magazines, official gazettes and communications, artistic works, and admission to libraries)
- Personal services similar to labor (for example, by actors, singers and academic research services)
- Postage stamps
- Basic life necessities and services (for example, unprocessed foodstuffs such as agricultural products, livestock products, marine products, forest products, piped water, briquette and anthracite coal)
- Services supplied by the government
- Finance and insurance services
- Supplies of land

Option to tax for exempt supplies. A business that supplies certain goods and services that are exempt under the Korean law may choose to tax these supplies by filing a report to the tax authorities, to waive the VAT exemption.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point."

Goods are deemed to be supplied at the following times (also, see the next paragraph):
- A supply of goods that requires the goods to be moved: when the goods are delivered
- A supply of goods that does not require the goods to be moved: when the goods are made available
- For other cases: when the supply of goods is confirmed

The following are the times of supply for specified types of supplies:
- Cash or credit sales: subject to the principle rules of supply of goods, the time of supply is the above bullet points, i.e., when goods are delivered or made available
- Sales made for long-term installment payments: when each portion of the proceeds are received
- Supply of goods under the payment term of percentage of work completed, or under terms of partial payments: when each portion of the proceeds are received
- Processing deemed to be a supply of goods: when the processed goods are delivered
- Self-supplies or the supply of goods for personal use or for a gift: when the goods are consumed or used
- Business closure: the date of closure
- Goods supplied through vending machines: when the taxpayer takes money from the machine
- Exports: the date of shipment
- Goods that are considered imported goods and that are supplied by a business in a bonded area to outside the bonded area: the date of the import declaration

The time of supply for services is as follows:
- General rule: when the services are completely rendered
- Services provided under terms of payment based on the percentage of work completed, partial payment, deferred payment, or any other payment terms: when each portion of the payments is to be received
- A deemed rent deposit for a lease or advance or deferred payment of rent for the leasing of land, buildings or other structures built on the land: when the preliminary tax return or the tax period has been completed
- Other cases: when the services have been completely rendered and the value of the supply is determined

If a business receives partial or full payment of the consideration for a supply of goods or services and issues a tax invoice or receipt for the payment before the general time of supply occurs (as described above), the time of supply is deemed to be the date that the tax invoice or receipt is issued.

Deposits and prepayments. In Korea, there are no provisions in the Korean VAT law relating to deposits. There is only a system for prepayments.

If the supplier has received a prepayment (a partial or full payment), which takes place before the general time of supply rules for goods and services (i.e., when the goods are delivered/services are completed or when the goods become available/facilities or rights are used), then the time of supply is when the prepayment (a partial or full payment) is received.

Tax invoices must be issued when the time of supply for the prepayment takes place. This is to prevent the customer from issuing VAT invoices in advance without making the prepayment and receiving an unfair deduction of input tax. The supplier has to account for VAT in the same VAT return filing period when the prepayment is made and based on the tax invoice issued.

Where a prepayment is refunded to the customer, or the supply does not take place, there is generally no requirement to account for VAT. If the supplier has already declared the VAT on its VAT return, then the supplier needs to make an adjustment on its next VAT return.

Continuous supplies of services. If a person is supplying goods or services on an installment of payments (as outlined below), the time of supply shall be at the time when each portion of the proceeds are received. If the tax invoice or receipt is issued in advance, the time of supply shall be at the time of issuing a tax invoice or receipt:
- Supplying goods or services on long-term installment sales or on condition (a long-term installment)
- Supplying goods continuously that a single business unit is not compatible such as electricity, etc.
- Supplying services continuously that a single business unit is not compatible

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. For goods sent on approval for sale or return, and other conditional sales and time limit sales, the time of supply shall be when such conditions are fully satisfied, or sales become certain after expiration (this is where the supplier has given the customer a certain number of days to use the goods before the sale, and this period has now passed).

If the goods are sold on a returnable basis, in general, the supplier will provide the customer with a specific time period to return the goods. The time of supply is when the customer expresses its intention to purchase the goods. Otherwise the time of supply shall be when the customer fails to return the item after the set period has expired.

Reverse-charge services. VAT shall be accounted for by the customer, through the reverse-charge mechanism, at the time of payment on the relevant services supplied by a nonresident or foreign business.

Leased assets. Under Korean VAT law, there is no specific provision in respect to time of supply for leased assets. However, in accordance with the view of the tax authority, a supply of goods only applies to a financial lease and shall comply with general time of supply rules for goods.

Imported goods. The time of importation for goods shall be the time when an import declaration under the Customs Act is accepted.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax, which is VAT charged on goods and services supplied to it for business purposes. The basic rule for VAT recovery in Korea requires a supply of goods or services to be made by a taxable person in the course of business. Any VAT claimed must be supported by a valid VAT tax invoice, customs document or similar documents such as contracts, remittance certificates, etc.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes. Input tax incurred on expenses directly related to the business is generally recoverable.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Input tax on expenses not directly related to the business
- Input tax on the purchase and maintenance of small automobiles used for nonprofit purposes
- Input tax on the purchase of goods or services that are used in VAT-exempt business
- Input tax on entertainment expenses or similar expenses outlined in the Presidential Decree governing VAT recovery
- Input tax amount incurred before the date of registration

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible
(if related to a taxable business use)

- The VAT amount on goods or services that are used by taxpayers for their own business
- The VAT amount on the importation of goods that are used by taxpayers for their own business or imported by them for such use

However, certain input tax is not recoverable.

Partial exemption. If goods or services purchased by a taxpayer are used both for taxable and exempt business, the creditable input tax is calculated based on the ratio of sales (the sale of taxable business supplies, divided by total sales) multiplied by the input tax incurred that relates to both taxable and exempt supplies. In this case, the input tax is partially recovered. In general, the input tax multiplied by the above ratio is recovered.

Capital goods. Capital goods are items of capital expenditure that are depreciated and used in a business over several years. Input tax is deducted in the VAT taxable period in which the goods are acquired. The amount of input tax recovered depends on the taxpayer's partial exemption recovery position in the VAT taxable period of acquisition. However, the amount of input tax recovered for capital goods must be adjusted over time if the taxpayer's partial exemption recovery percentage changes to a certain extent during the adjustment period.

Refunds. If a taxpayer is entitled to a refund, the competent tax office refunds the amount of tax refundable for each tax period concerned. This is generally done automatically through the submission of the periodic VAT return.

The tax office may refund the amount of tax due to a taxpayer within 15 days after the date of preliminary return and final return if 1) the taxpayer makes zero-rated supplies, 2) the taxpayer operates a newly established business, or 3) the taxpayer acquires, expands or extends its business facilities. This procedure is referred to as an early refund.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax incurred on pre-registration costs in Korea, is not recoverable.

Write-off of bad debts. If a bad debt arises for reasons stipulated in the corporate tax law, the already paid VAT can be recovered. A taxpayer must apply for this by the VAT period reporting deadline. This can be done from five years after the originally supplied VAT period. In this case, the relevant documents must be prepared and submitted to the tax authority (e.g., rulings related to bankruptcy).

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred in relation to noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Korea.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Korea refunds VAT incurred by businesses that are neither established nor registered for VAT in Korea. A non-established business may reclaim VAT to the same extent as a VAT-registered business, but only if the resident country of the non-established business provides VAT refunds to non-established Korean businesses in that country on a reciprocal basis.

A foreign company that is engaged in business in its home country but does not have a permanent establishment in Korea may reclaim the VAT incurred on the purchase of the following goods and services pursuant to the Tax Incentives Limitation Law:
- Meals and hotel charges
- Advertisements
- Electricity and telecommunications
- Real estate rentals and leases
- Certain goods and services necessary for the maintenance of an office in Korea

A foreign company that seeks to reclaim VAT paid in Korea must submit an application, together with the required documents, to the district National Tax Service (NTS) by 30 June of the year following the calendar year covered by the claim. The district NTS must refund eligible VAT by 31 December of the year in which the application is submitted. The following documents must accompany the claim:

• A certificate that proves the foreign company is a registered business in its home country
• A detailed transaction list
• All original tax invoices
• A power of attorney, if necessary

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. When a taxpayer supplies goods or services, it must issue a tax invoice to the other party to the transaction. The tax invoice must contain the following information:
• The registration number and the name of the individual or corporate taxpayer
• The registration number of the other party to the supply
• The value of the supply and the VAT charged
• The date, month and year in which the tax invoice is issued
• Other particulars as prescribed by the Presidential Decree

Taxpayers that carry on any of the following activities are exempt from the obligation to prepare and issue tax invoices:
• Self-supplies of goods, personal use of goods, donations for a business purpose, supplies in the course of the closure of a business and self-supplies of services
• Exportations of goods, supplies of services abroad, and other specific supplies of goods or services that earn foreign currency and that are subject to the zero rate

The Customs Office is required to prepare and issue import tax invoices for imported goods. The documents must be given to individuals and companies that make imports and must be issued in accordance with the provisions of the Customs law.

Credit notes. If a tax invoice contains an error or if the taxpayer needs to make a correction to the submitted tax invoice after it has been issued, the taxpayer must prepare and reissue the tax invoice.

Electronic invoicing. The electronic tax invoice (ETI) is a tax invoice that is electronically transmitted to the information network of the NTS through an accredited certification system that can confirm information, such as a supplier's identification and the details of tax invoices if changed.

All registered corporate taxpayers and individual taxpayers prescribed by Presidential Decree of VAT law must issue tax invoices under the ETI system and submit a statement of delivery to the NTS by the date specified by Presidential Decree of VAT law, which is currently the day immediately following the issuance date.

Simplified VAT invoices. If it is deemed necessary, a taxpayer may prepare and issue a tax invoice by aggregating the total receivable transactions to the end of the month. The invoice must be issued by the 10th day of the following month.

Self-billing. If the recipient of goods or services is not issued a tax invoice, the recipient may issue a self-billed tax invoice upon receiving confirmation from a tax officer that the supply of goods or services has actually taken place.

Proof of exports. A detailed statement is required for a supply to be qualified as an export. This document must be prepared by the taxpayer.

Foreign currency invoices. If a VAT invoice is issued in a foreign currency, all values that are required on the invoice must be converted into Korean won (KRW), using the exchange rate at the time of supply. The exchange rate is contained in the Foreign Exchange Transaction Regulation, and it is generally the exchange rate announced by Seoul Money Brokerage Service Ltd. (http://www.smbs.biz).

Supplies to nontaxable persons. Under the Korean VAT law, there is no stipulation for supplies to private consumers. However, there is a provision that allows a taxable business to issue a receipt instead of a VAT invoice or exempting an obligation of a VAT invoice if it is considered too difficult to issue a VAT invoice or if it is deemed unnecessary. If a taxable person conforming to one of the following positions outlined below, supplies goods or services (except for VAT exempted supplies), at the time of supply, the taxable person must issue a receipt to the customer instead of issuing a tax invoice:
- Simplified taxpayer
- A taxpayer supplying goods or services to nonbusiness entity

Records.

Record retention period. A taxpayer must keep the books in which the transactions are recorded for a period of five years after the date of the final return for the tax period in which the transactions occurred. The books must also contain details of tax invoices or receipts issued or received. Records may be kept in hard copy or in electronic format.

Businesses shall record all details of transactions related to their amount of tax payable or amount of tax refundable in their account books and maintain them at their own places of business for five years from the deadline for filing a final return for the taxable period of the relevant transactions. However, businesses that issue tax invoices using the ETI system are not required to maintain relevant records.

Please note that while Korean tax law does not explicitly state the position of the state for if records can be kept overseas, it is generally interpreted that data should be kept at a business site in Korea, based on the regulation that backup files of electronic files must be kept in Korea.

Electronic archiving. A taxpayer may archive data electronically, except for important documents, including contracts. In this case, however, the backup file should be kept physically in Korea, and a label indicating the type of data, fiscal year, person in charge and date should be attached.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. The VAT period is six months on a calendar-year basis (first VAT period: January through June; second VAT period: July through December). VAT returns must be filed on a quarterly basis, including preliminary returns.

A taxpayer is required to file preliminary returns for the first and third quarters of the year, which end in March and September, respectively. These preliminary returns must indicate the tax base and the tax amount payable or refundable. The preliminary return must be filed within 25 days following the last day of each preliminary return period.

Taxpayers must file a final return for the quarters ended June and December for the second and fourth quarters of the year. The final return must be filed within 25 days following the end of the tax period.

Periodic payments. A taxpayer must pay the tax amount payable for the preliminary return period when the return is filed. A taxpayer must also pay the tax amount payable for the final return period at the time of filing the return. Both payments are due within 25 days following the last day of each preliminary return period.

VAT returns must be completed in Korean won (KRW), and VAT liabilities must be paid in Korean won.

A taxable person must pay the VAT due at each business place at the time of filing the return. However, if a taxpayer has more than two business places, it may pay the entire VAT due at its principal place of business with the prior approval from the tax office that has jurisdiction over the principal business place.

Electronic filing. Where a return is electronically submitted through the information network of the NTS, such return shall be treated as filed with the tax office at the time of submission to the information network of the NTS. VAT return filing can also still be submitted in paper form. In this case, the printed NTS form and related documents (contracts, etc.) are submitted to the tax office and the taxpayer receives a receipt confirming the submission.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Korea.

Special schemes. There are special rules that apply only to individual businesses with revenue less than KRW48 million. However, corporate entities do not have these special provisions. Individual businesses with revenue less than KRW48 million are subject to special rules, including that they are not obliged to issue tax invoices. Such businesses pay VAT every six months instead of quarterly.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Korea.

Supplementary filings. In addition to the usual NTS form, a taxpayer is required to keep documentation (contract, etc.) to verify each transaction. In addition, when a taxpayer reports any transaction subject to VAT at the zero rate, a foreign currency deposit must be submitted with it.

Digital reporting. Corporations (and individual business owners with turnover of over KRW300 million) must issue electronic tax invoices and submit them electronically to the tax authority within one business day after the issuance date.

Taxpayers file a VAT return to show the calculation of the amount of VAT due on sales by net of the amount of VAT reclaimable on purchases. This can be done electronically, through the information network of the NTS.

An import and export declaration can be made by E-clearance system named "UNI-PASS" or by paper.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. If a person fails to register a business within 20 days after business commencement, a penalty tax equal to 1% of the value of supplies made is imposed. If a taxpayer provides goods or services without registration or with late registration, the penalty applies to the value of the supplies made during the period beginning on the business commencement date ending on the day before the date on which the registration is made. The penalty amount will adjust the amount of tax payable or deductible. The penalty is capped at KRW100 million (KRW50 million for small and medium-sized enterprises [SMEs]). The cap covers every six-month period.

Penalties for late payment and filings. Failure to file a tax return may result in a penalty of 10% to 40% of the underpaid tax amount (overpaid tax refund).

For underpayment and nonpayment of taxes or overestimated refund, a penalty of the underpaid tax amount (or overpaid tax refund) at a rate of 10.95% annually may be imposed.

Failure to comply with the requirement to make a proxy payment (reverse charge) may result in a penalty of 3% of the underpaid tax amount plus 0.03% of the underpaid tax amount on the number of days the payment is late. However, the penalty is capped at 10%.

Penalties for errors. Failure to issue a correct tax invoice (including ETI) or to submit a correct list of tax invoices issued may result in a penalty of 0.5%, 1%, 2% or 3% of the value of supply. If a tax invoice is issued without the supply of goods or services, a penalty of 3% of the supply value is imposed on both the seller and the buyer. If there is a supply of goods or services and no tax invoice is issued, a penalty of 2% of the value of the supply is imposed. If a corporation (and individual business owners with turnover of over KRW300 million issues a paper tax invoice instead of an electronic tax invoice, a penalty of 1% of the supply price is imposed. If a list of tax invoices is not submitted by the day following the date of issue, a penalty of 0.3% or 0.5% will be charged.

Penalties for fraud. If the reason for reporting fewer tax bases is related to fraud, the penalty increases significantly. If not related to fraud, 10% or 20% of the tax amount will apply, but if it is related to fraud, it will increase to 40% of the tax amount. In particular, if it relates to international transactions, a penalty of 60% of the tax amount applies.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- The supply of goods and services performed by a taxable person in Kosovo
- Importation of goods in Kosovo, regardless of the status of the importer
- Services supplied to taxable persons in Kosovo by service providers whose place of business is outside Kosovo
- Certain supplies of services rendered by service providers whose place of business is outside Kosovo to nontaxable persons in Kosovo, such as digital services and services related to an immovable property located in Kosovo

C. Who is liable

Any person (entity or individual) who independently carries out any economic activity in a regular or non-regular manner, whatever the purpose or results of that economic activity, is liable to VAT.

Taxable activities also include "the exploitation of tangible or intangible property for the purposes of obtaining income therefrom on a continuing basis."

A taxable person established in Kosovo is obliged to register for VAT purposes and charge VAT when his annual turnover within a calendar year exceeds the threshold of EUR30,000. Any supply made by the taxable person after the threshold is exceeded shall be subject to VAT. In this case, the taxable person is required to apply for VAT registration within 15 days after exceeding the threshold. Consequently, the part of the supply that exceeded the threshold will be taken into account for purposes of VAT in the first tax period after registration.

Every person who meets all conditions of the definition of taxable person in Kosovo but does not exceed the VAT registration threshold may voluntarily register for VAT. Persons involved in import or export activities and fixed establishments of nonresident persons must register for VAT regardless of the amount of turnover from the commencement of an economic activity in Kosovo.

Exemption from registration. The VAT law in Kosovo does not contain any provision for exemption from registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. Persons may voluntarily apply for VAT registration regardless of their turnover and must remain registered for a minimum of one year after the registration year.

Group registration. The Kosovan VAT law does not allow group registration.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that does not have a fixed establishment in Kosovo. No VAT registration threshold applies to taxable supplies made in Kosovo by a non-established business.

A non-established business must register for VAT in Kosovo by appointing a VAT representative if it engages in any of the following taxable supplies:
- Supply of goods located in Kosovo at the time of supply
- Supply of certain services to nontaxable persons in Kosovo, such as digital services and services related to an immovable property located in Kosovo
- Import and export activities in Kosovo

Tax representatives. A non-established business must appoint a resident VAT representative to register for VAT purposes in Kosovo regardless of the amount of turnover, unless the reverse-charge mechanism applies. The VAT representative may act on behalf of the taxable person for all purposes related to VAT and is jointly and severally liable for compliance with all VAT obligations of the non-established business.

If the recipient of the services supplied in Kosovo, is a nontaxable person or a taxable non-registered person, the supplier of the service should also appoint a VAT representative to pay VAT in Kosovo.

Where the non-established business does not appoint a VAT representative in Kosovo, the nontaxable person or the taxable non-registered person that is the recipient of the supplies will be liable for the VAT liabilities and penalties.

Reverse charge. The reverse-charge mechanism applies to supplies of services made by non-established business to taxable persons in Kosovo. A non-established business is not required to register for VAT if all its supplies in Kosovo fall under the reverse-charge mechanism.

Domestic reverse charge. A domestic reverse charge applies in Kosovo for supplies of construction works (including repair, cleaning, maintenance, alteration and demolition services in relation to the immovable property). Effectively, any supplies that are in line with the Law on Construction in Kosovo and are equipped with the relevant construction permits by the competent bodies are covered by this provision.

Digital economy. Kosovo follows the destination principle with regard to cross-border digital services supplied to nontaxable persons in Kosovo. The place of supply of cross-border digital services to nontaxable persons is the place where the nontaxable person is established or where he has his permanent address or usually resides. Therefore, a foreign service supplier providing digital services to a nontaxable person in Kosovo should register for VAT purposes in Kosovo by appointing a VAT representative in the country to account for and pay the VAT liability.

Online marketplaces and platforms. The same rules as the above apply for online marketplaces and platforms, i.e., the place of supply for services supplied by electronic means is the place where the nontaxable person is established or where he has his permanent address or usually resides. Services supplied electronically are considered those services that do not correspond either to the supply of movable tangible goods or to the supply of "traditional" services or telecommunications services.

Registration procedures. The application for registration cannot be done online. A person applying for VAT registration shall personally or through an authorized person submit the VAT registration form with the respective regional office of TAK. The VAT registration application form is available online (http://www.atk-ks.org/wp-content/uploads/2017/10/FRTVSH_en-US.pdf). The application must be accompanied by a copy of the business registration documents, the Certificate of the Fiscal Number and an official identification photo (passport, identity card, etc.).

The TAK determines whether to issue the VAT Registration Certificate or not within five working days from receipt of the application form, after ensuring that the information provided in the registration form is accurate and that the taxpayer has complied with all tax obligations.

Deregistration. Every taxable person registered for VAT purposes may request to be deregistered if over the last calendar year the turnover fell below the VAT registration threshold. Taxable persons ceasing their economic activity are liable to request to be deregistered within 15 days from the termination of their activity. Deregistration enters into force two months after the date of the deregistration request.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 18%
- Reduced rate: 8%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services and imports, unless a specific measure allows a reduced rate or an exemption.

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods and services, unless a provision of law introduces a reduced rate or a temporary higher rate for specific supplies of goods or services, which cannot be lower than 5% or higher than 21%.

The use of goods or services purchased or produced in the course of business activity for private purposes, or other nonbusiness purposes, or their disposal free of charge (other than goods for business use as samples or as gifts of small value) shall be treated as taxable supplies, to the extent the VAT on those supplies was deductible.

Some supplies are treated as "exempt-with-credit," which means that no VAT is chargeable, but the supplier may recover the input tax.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%
(i.e., exempt with credit)

- Export of goods
- International transport
- Supplies under diplomatic and consular arrangements
- The supply of goods or services to international and inter-governmental bodies
- Supply of gold to the Central Bank of Kosovo
- Related supply of services by intermediaries taking part in the above transactions

Examples of supplies of goods and services taxable at 8%

- Water, except bottled water
- Electricity, central heating, waste collection and other waste treatment
- Grains such as barley, corn, maize varieties, oats, rye, rice and wheat
- Products made from grain for human consumption
- Oils made from grains or oilseeds for use in cooking for human consumption
- Dairy and dairy products for human consumption
- Salt appropriate for human consumption
- Eggs for consumption
- Lending of books from libraries, including brochures, leaflets and similar printed materials; children's picture books; drawing and coloring books; music printed texts and manuscripts; and maps, hydrographic charts and similar materials
- Textbooks and serial publications
- Information technology equipment
- Supply of medicines, pharmaceutical products, instruments, and medical and surgical devices
- Medical equipment, ambulances, aids and other medical devices to facilitate activity or treat a disability for exclusive use by the disabled, including the repair of such goods and supply with children's vehicle seats

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Hospital services and medical care
- Education
- Health insurance, life insurance, reinsurance and related services performed by insurance brokers and agents
- Financial services
- Welfare services
- Betting, lotteries and other forms of gambling
- Supply of land or land on which a building or house stands
- The supply of houses, apartments or other accommodations used for residential purpose, including garages and basements
- Leasing of immovable property

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Kosovo.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due (or chargeable event occurs) is called the "time of supply." VAT is due when one of the following events occurs:

- Supply of goods or services
- Issuance of an invoice in respect of a supply of goods or services before the goods or services are supplied
- Receipt of advance payment before the goods or services are delivered

Special rules apply to continuous supplies of goods or services, which are considered as being completed at intervals of one month. Long-term contracts including long-term construction contracts and long-term installation contracts shall be regarded as completed at regular intervals but at least at the end of each calendar year.

Deposits and prepayments. When the payment is to be made or is made on account before the goods and services are supplied, VAT shall become chargeable when payment is received.

In case of any amount paid or retained in form of a guarantee deposit in relation to the performance of a supply of goods or service, VAT shall become chargeable at the moment the deposit is received. In case the amount of deposit is returned to the customer, then the necessary adjustment should be made for VAT purposes.

Exemption from the above is granted to the guarantees deposited in a bank deposit account or to a third party, without the right of use. In such case, VAT shall become chargeable at the moment the deposit guarantee is executed.

Continuous supplies of services. Supplies of goods and services performed on a continuous basis, within a period of time, including construction operations, shall be deemed to have been made in the same month in which the invoice is issued.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules in Kosovo for supplies of goods sent on approval for sale or return. As such, the general time of supply rules apply.

Reverse-charge services. The VAT is due on the reverse-charge services in the month when the foreign invoice is received by the customer in Kosovo. VAT is not due until the invoice is issued.

Leased assets. In cases of leased assets, the VAT becomes due at the time when the periodic monthly payments are invoiced to the lessee. In cases of a financial lease, the VAT becomes due at the time of each periodic payment and at the time of final payment for the sale of the asset if the option to buy the leased assets is exercised.

Imported goods. In the case of imported machinery and equipment, either new or secondhand that is used for business purposes and that fall under the Kosovo "Harmonized Nomenclature of Goods System," the VAT is due at the time of import. However, payment of the VAT due may be postponed for a period of a maximum of 12 months from date of the import, provided that the VAT is declared as postponed import VAT in the VAT return and several conditions are met from the taxpayer.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax, which is the VAT charged on taxable goods and services supplied to the person for business purposes. A taxable person generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax, which is the VAT charged on supplies that he makes.

Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services supplied in Kosovo, VAT paid on imports of goods and VAT applied to reverse-charge services.

Nondeductible input tax. Generally, input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods or services that are not used for business purposes.

The following list provides some examples of items of expenditure for which input tax is not deductible.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Expenditure on yachts and boats intended for sport and recreation, private aircraft, cars and motorcycles used not for business purposes and fuels, lubricants, spare parts and services closely linked thereto
- Expenditure as regards cars used for both private and business purposes, with the right to deduct input tax limited to 50%
- Expenditure for representation, which shall include costs for entertainment and amusement during business or social contacts, food costs including drinks and accommodation costs
- Expenditure for immovable property forming part of a taxable person's business assets that is used for both business and private purposes of the taxable person, used for his or her personnel, or used generally for nonbusiness purposes, with the right to deduct the VAT only to the extent this property is used for business purposes of the taxable person

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Employee expenses
- Business use of phones
- Hotel accommodation

Partial exemption. If a supply of a good or service is used partly for purposes of taxable supplies and partly for exempt supplies, the taxable person may not deduct input tax in full. This situation is known as "partial exemption." The calculation of the amount of input tax that may be recovered is made on a pro rata basis by using the following formula:

$$\text{Amount of relevant input tax x } \frac{\text{turnover enabling VAT credit}}{\text{total annual turnover}}$$

Supplies of capital goods and the incidental supply of financial services are excluded from turnover for this purpose.

The pro rata of VAT shall be determined on an annual basis as a percentage and shall be rounded up to the next whole number.

The pro rata VAT calculation is tentatively based on the preceding calendar year's results. It must be adjusted by 31 January of the following year in case of differences between the provisional pro rata and the actual pro rata. The pro rata is not based on the financial year of the company.

Taxable persons are invited to use a pro rata for each individual activity of their business separately, provided they maintain separate accounts for each individual activity and notify the tax authorities.

Capital goods. Capital goods are items of capital expenditure used for the production of other goods and services with a useful service life of one year or more and acquired for a cost price equal to or more than EUR1,000. The services which have the same attributes as the capital goods and of which the cost exceeds EUR20,000 should be considered as capital goods. Input tax is generally deducted in the VAT period in which the goods are acquired. If the business comprises both taxable and exempt supplies and the capital goods do not serve only taxable supplies, the amount of input tax recovered depends on the taxable person's partial exemption recovery position in the VAT year of acquisition. The amount of input tax recovered is adjusted over time if the taxable person's pro rata changes during the adjustment period.

The capital goods adjustment applies to the following assets for the number of years indicated:

- Immovable capital assets: 10 years

• Movable capital assets: five years

The adjustment is applied each year following the year in which the goods were used for the first time, to a fraction of the total input tax (1/5 for movable capital goods and 1/10 for immovable capital goods).

The adjustment is not made if the value of the adjustment is less than 3% of the input tax amount.

Refunds. A taxpayer may claim a VAT refund if the following conditions are met simultaneously:
• The taxpayer carried forward the relevant amount as a VAT credit balance for three consecutive months.
• The amount of VAT credit balance exceeds EUR3,000 for three consecutive months
• The taxpayer submitted all VAT declarations and declarations of other taxes for all previous tax periods.
• The taxpayer possesses sufficient documentation to prove the entitlement to the VAT reimbursement claim.

For exports, a refund may be claimed after each tax period provided that the following conditions are met:
• The amount of VAT credit exceeds EUR3,000 at the end of the tax period.
• The taxable person has complied with all applicable customs and VAT provisions.
• All VAT returns and other tax returns for all past periods have been duly submitted.
• The taxpayer possesses sufficient documentation to prove the VAT reimbursement claim.

Where new legislation outlines that the taxable person carrying the VAT credit from the first VAT period of the previous year has the right to request for VAT refund regardless of the VAT credit amount if all the VAT returns and returns of other taxes for all the previous tax periods have been submitted. The taxpayer must file a "request for refund" form with the relevant tax office. The tax office must verify the fulfillment of the refund conditions and approve the refund within 60 days. Interest is applicable after exceeding the 60-day period if no reason for delay exists.

The Minister of Economy and Finance has to issue a relevant regulation to determine alternative procedures for refunding VAT to persons not required to submit VAT returns, to persons who cease their economic activity and to taxable persons and customers who are not established in Kosovo.

Pre-registration costs. A taxable person cannot recover any input tax incurred on goods or services supplied to it before the registration for VAT purposes.

Write-off of bad debts. Taxable persons who have not received partial or total payment for a taxable supply may claim VAT charged in respect of that supply after initiating court procedures for the recognition of the bad debt for amounts above EUR500.

The VAT deduction shall be allowed in each tax period after the debt becomes a bad debt and may start no sooner than six months after closing the tax period for which VAT has been applied in respect of the supply. The procedures for writing-off of the bad debt should be initiated within 24 months from the payment due date, otherwise the non-collected payment will not be considered as bad debt.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred in relation to noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Kosovo.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Non-established businesses not registered for VAT in Kosovo may not recover Kosovo VAT incurred. The relevant regulation to determine the refund procedure for non-established businesses is still pending.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A Kosovan taxable person must issue invoices for all taxable supplies made, including exports. A VAT invoice is necessary to support a claim for input tax deduction or a refund. In order to qualify as valid an invoice should comply with the requirements set out in the Kosovan VAT law. There are no requirements with regard to the language of the invoice. However, for inspection purposes, the VAT authorities may ask for a translation of the invoice into an official language of Kosovo (Albanian and Serbian).

Credit notes. A VAT credit note may be used to reduce the VAT charged on a supply of goods or services; a debit note may be used to increase the amount of VAT. Tax credit and debit notes must be cross-referenced to the original VAT invoice.

Electronic invoicing. The Kosovan VAT law permits electronic issue of invoices subject to acceptance by the recipient. The authenticity of the origin and the integrity of their content must be guaranteed by means of advanced electronic signature or by means of electronic data interchange EDI as defined by European arrangements and recommendations.

Simplified VAT invoices. Taxable persons are allowed to issue summary invoices if they carry out several separate supplies of goods or services during a tax period that corresponds to a calendar month.

Simplified VAT invoices can only be issued where the supply is equal to or less than EUR500 and is made to nontaxable persons. The Tax Procedures Instruction stipulates that a taxable person must issue an invoice to a nontaxable person before the 15th day of the month following the month in which any of the following chargeable event occurs:

- The supply of goods or services to another taxable person takes place.
- The payment is performed before the goods or services are supplied.
- A continuous supply of goods (such as electricity) or service (such as a fixed telephone line) takes place, in which case the continuous supply is considered to take place in monthly intervals.

The businesses that are neither registered for VAT, nor required to be registered for VAT issue an invoice without VAT and have no right to benefit from VAT or charge VAT.

Self-billing. The customer can bill themselves on behalf of the supplier for supplies of goods or services received by a taxable person if a previous agreement is in place between both parties and provided that the goods/service provider accepts the invoice issued on his behalf.

Proof of exports. All persons are required to obtain an export certificate prior to undertaking any export activities. Each export certificate will have a unique serial number.

Exports of goods shall be verified and documented with customs export documentation, as provided in the relevant legislation. Moreover, invoices related to an export sale should contain the legislative reference on export of goods in it.

Foreign currency invoices. Invoices may be issued in any currency, provided that the taxable amount and the amount of VAT due is expressed in euros. Where the taxable amount of a transaction, other than the importation of goods, is expressed in a foreign currency, the conversion of this amount into the domestic currency euro shall be the latest selling rate as defined by the Central Bank of Kosovo recorded at the time VAT becomes chargeable. Where the value and factors used to determine the taxable amount on importation are expressed in a foreign currency, the conversion of this amount into euro shall be made by applying the exchange rate determined in accordance with the Customs regulations governing the calculation of the value for customs purposes.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. When a taxable person makes a supply of goods or services to private consumers, the taxable person issues a coupon from an electronic device instead of a fiscal invoice. However, in case the private consumer performs economic activities, it can request to the taxable person to issue a fiscal invoice.

Records. A taxable person must retain all the information contained in invoices, coupons, debit or credit notes or in other documents serving the same purposes, issued by the taxpayer. Such information must be recorded in the books and records to be kept by the taxpayer. All documents must be kept in chronological order and must be cross-referenced to each other if they refer to the same taxable event.

Every taxable person that has the obligations and rights imposed by the VAT law, may decide on the place of storage of all his documents but he must inform TAK of that place.

TAK must have access to that place and all documents must also be made available to TAK at the place where the taxable person has his business or has his fixed establishment, or, in the absence of such a place, the place where he has his permanent address or usually resides in Kosovo, without undue delay whenever TAK so requests.

Record retention period. A taxable person must keep his books required by the law for a period of at least six years, which starts on 1 January of the year after the year when the taxable event took place. The retaining of documentation related to immovable property for 20 years is an exception to this general rule. The same rules are valid in respect of electronic storage of such documents, books, records and registers.

Electronic archiving. The taxpayer should retain copies of the information technology programs that are used for the administration of the accounting and tax records, books and all other related documents and provide paper copies of these programs that allow them to be read. Producing and storing invoices and all other tax documents, books and records referred to in the VAT law in a suitable electronic format or similar system such as microfilms, microfiches and scanned formats, can only be authorized by the General Director of TAK after receiving a written request from the taxable person. This request must be accompanied by a detailed description of the system and must contain the necessary evidence that all security in respect of producing and storage requirements for invoices, books and recordkeeping are met.

I. Returns and payments

Periodic returns. The tax period is a calendar month. The taxable persons must submit the VAT returns due not later than the 20th of the calendar month following the end of each tax period. For imports, VAT is payable upon importation.

For a taxpayer that is newly registered the first tax period begins on the date of the registration, as stated in the certificate of registration. The last taxable period for a taxable person undergoing a deregistration procedure shall end on the date of the deregistration having begun on the first day of that month.

For a taxable person against whom a liquidation or bankruptcy procedures has been initiated, the tax period shall begin on the day of the opening of the liquidation or bankruptcy procedures and shall end on the date of the decision on the conclusions of such procedures.

Periodic payments. The taxable persons must submit the VAT due by the same time as the VAT return submission deadline, i.e.,. by the 20th of the calendar month following the end of each tax period. All VAT payments must be made through the electronic declaration system (see Electronic filing subsection below).

Electronic filing. The TAK has developed the electronic declaration system (EDI), which enables taxpayers to open an online account that will enable them to declare and pay their tax liabilities, including VAT. This system also enables any correction of tax returns.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Kosovo.

Special schemes.

Travel agencies. This scheme applies to transactions where the travel agency deals with customers in its own name and uses the supplies of other taxable persons in the provision of travel services. The taxable amount and the price exclusive of VAT in respect of the single service provided by the travel agent shall be the travel agent's margin, being the difference between the total amount, exclusive of VAT, to be paid by the traveler and the actual cost to the travel agent of supplies of goods or services provided by other taxable persons, where those transactions are for the direct benefit of the traveler.

The special scheme does not apply to travel agencies that act only as intermediary, in which case the supplies and services of other taxable persons can be treated as disbursements.

Secondhand goods, works of art, collector's items and antiques: profit margin scheme and special arrangements for sales by public auction. The profit margin of the taxable dealer shall be equal to the difference between the selling price charged by the taxable dealer for the goods and the purchase price of these goods. The taxable amount in respect of the supply of secondhand goods, works of art, collector's items and antiques shall be the profit margin made by the taxable dealer, less the amount of VAT relating to the profit margin.

The Minister of Finance may apply special provisions different from the above in respect of the determination of the taxable amount of supplies of secondhand goods, works of art, collector's items or antiques effected by an organizer of sales by public auction, acting in his or her own name, pursuant to a contract under which commission is payable on the sale of those goods by public auction, on behalf of persons as will be determined with a sublegal act by the Minister of Finance. Special obligations shall be imposed on the organizer of the sale by public auction in respect of the issue of an invoice or a document in lieu to the purchaser as well as in respect of the content of such documents.

Flat rate scheme for farmers. This taxation scheme aims to offset the VAT charged on purchases of goods and services made by the flat rate farmers by adding an additional amount to the price of supply these farmers charge to their customers (taxable persons). This is calculated as a percentage of the price and shall be called the flat rate percentage, which will differ depending on the agriculture category. The flat rate percentages shall be defined based on statistical, relevant and macroeconomic data that enable the calculation of the VAT refund for purchases made by flat rate farmers.

Electronically supplied services. The Minister of Finance may permit by sub-legal act the use of this scheme by any non-established taxable person in Kosovo supplying electronic services to a nontaxable person who is established in Kosovo or who has his or her permanent address or usually resides in Kosovo. The information that the non-established taxable person must provide to TAK when they start a taxable activity shall contain the following details: name; postal address; electronic addresses, including websites; national tax number, if any; and a statement that the person is not identified for VAT purposes in Kosovo. The non-established taxable person shall notify TAK of any changes in the information provided.

Investment gold. Special obligations exist for taxable persons trading in investment gold. The supply and importation of investment gold is an exempt supply with the right to opt for taxation. A taxable person making a subsequent supply of investment gold may deduct the input tax incurred in respect of investment gold supplied to him or her by a person who opted for taxation. Taxable persons shall keep records of investment gold transactions and keep documentation for 10 years after the end of the year to which such documents refer, regardless of what is defined in the relevant law on tax administration and procedures.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Kosovo.

Supplementary filings. Taxpayers registered for VAT should declare on a monthly basis the VAT ledgers and VAT return. However, there are no penalties imposed for not declaring the VAT ledgers. Recently the tax authorities have notified that if the taxpayer opts not to declare the VAT ledgers, then he should declare on a yearly basis not later than 31 March of the following year the list of purchases if his purchases are equal to or greater than EUR500.

Digital reporting. No digital reporting requirements apply in Kosovo.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. Every person who has not applied for registration in due time shall be registered by TAK with retroactive effect as of the date the threshold was exceeded and shall be liable for the VAT retroactively plus an administrative penalty, if failure to register is due to negligence. The penalty equals 15% or 25% of the VAT due, depending on whether the taxable supplies made prior to registration were less or more than EUR10,000. In addition, default interest is applicable.

Penalties for late payment and filings. Late filing of VAT return is subject to a penalty of 5% of the tax due for each month of delay, capped at 25% of the unpaid tax liability. In addition, default interest is applicable.

Late payment of a tax obligation triggers a penalty amounting to 1% of tax due for each month or part of the month in delay up to maximum of 12 months. In addition, interest is applicable.

Penalties for errors. Failure to issue a VAT invoice or issuance of an inaccurate invoice that results in a decrease of the VAT due or an increase of the VAT credit shall be subject to a penalty of 15% of the VAT amount where this was due to the negligence of the taxable person. The penalty will increase to 25% in case of failure to issue an invoice for a taxable supply in excess of EUR1,000 or issuing an incorrect invoice that is more than EUR500 above or below the amount that should have been included in the invoice of the taxable person. In addition, default interest is applicable.

Erroneous completion of a tax filing or a tax refund claim is subject to a penalty of 15% of the undeclared tax liability or the excess tax refund claimed where such understatement or overstatements is 10% or less of the VAT due, or 25% where the understatement or overstatements is more than 10% of the VAT due. In addition, interest is applicable.

Penalties for fraud. Criminal offenses carried out by taxpayers are penalized under the Criminal Code. These offenses relate to certain situations, including, but not limited to, the following:
- Taxpayers willfully evade partially or entirely the payment of taxes or gain unwarranted tax refunds or tax credits
- Taxpayers provide false information relevant for the collection of taxes
- Taxpayers act as a member of a group formed for the purpose of repeatedly committing tax evasion

Kuwait is a Member State of the Gulf Cooperation Council (GCC). The GCC consists of Bahrain, the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Oman, Qatar and the United Arab Emirates. The GCC has agreed that VAT will be implemented by each Member State.

At the time of preparing this chapter, the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, United Arab Emirates and Bahrain are the only GCC Member States to have implemented VAT. The Kuwait Cabinet has approved a bill that approves the GCC Unified VAT Framework Agreement and the GCC Unified Selective Tax Agreement. The bills are submitted for the approval from the National Assembly.

The GCC Common VAT Agreement contains the main principles of the GCC VAT system and sets out the options that individual Member States may choose in terms of the VAT treatment applicable to certain supplies and business sectors. The options are primarily administrative, and where aspects are not dealt with by the GCC Common VAT Agreement, then each Member State may determine individually.

At the time of preparing this chapter, the GCC Common VAT Agreement has no direct effect in the GCC Member States, except if the respective Member States' domestic VAT law specifically refer to the provisions in the Common Agreement.

The summary set out below is based on the GCC Common VAT Agreement.

Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses	There are provisions under the GCC VAT Framework Agreement that allow VAT refund for nonresidents, subject to the satisfaction of the stipulated conditions.

Transitional provisions

Each Member State shall outline in their domestic VAT law the transitional provisions, which include the following:

- VAT due on the supplies of goods and services and the import and export of goods shall be effective from the date of the enforcement of the local VAT law in the Member State.
- Each Member State shall determine the VAT registration deadline for taxable persons who are obliged to register from the date of the enforcement of the local VAT law.
- Each Member State may ignore the date of the invoice or the date of the payment and consider the tax due date the same as the date of supply. This is regardless of any other relevant regulation. This includes cases where the tax invoice is issued, or payment is received, ahead of the date of the enforcement of the local VAT law, or ahead of the VAT registration date, and where the supply took place after this date.
- For continuous supplies that are carried out partially ahead of the date of enforcement of the domestic VAT law, or ahead of the VAT registration date, and partially after this date, the part that is carried out before the date of enforcement or registration, shall not be taxed.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:

• The supply of goods, including the supply of goods within the EU and exports of goods

- The supply of services in Latvia
- The intra-Community acquisition of goods in Latvia from another EU Member State
- The importation of goods into Latvia, regardless of the status of the importer
- The acquisition of new vehicles within the EU by a non-registered or nontaxable person
- The supply of new vehicles from Latvia to any other EU Member State
- Self-supply (consumption) of goods and services
- Reverse-charge services received by a taxable person established in Latvia
- Distance sales of goods in Latvia made to nontaxable persons

C. Who is liable

A taxable person is any natural or legal person or group of such persons bound by agreement, or the representative acting for a group of persons, who performs economic activities and who is registered with the State Revenue Service Register of VAT taxable persons. VAT groups and fiscal representatives are also considered to be taxable persons.

The VAT registration threshold for local businesses is turnover subject to VAT in excess of EUR40,000 in the preceding 12 months. If a business exceeds the VAT registration threshold, it must register for VAT by the 15th day of the month following the period in which the threshold is exceeded. However, voluntary VAT registration is possible before reaching the VAT registration threshold.

Mandatory VAT registration is also required prior to supplying services to taxable persons in another EU Member State, if the services are deemed to be supplied in that other Member State and the recipients of the services must account for VAT under the reverse-charge mechanism.

For intra-Community acquisitions, nontaxable legal persons and private individuals who perform economic activities but have not triggered the obligation to register for VAT (i.e., non-registered taxable persons), must register for VAT if the value of their intra-Community acquisitions (excluding VAT) in a calendar year is equal to or exceeds EUR10,000.

A state or municipal authority or a municipality that is not registered for VAT with the State Revenue Service and that has entered into a contract with a supplier of construction services for the supply of construction services according to the procurement procedure prescribed by the Public Procurement Law, or is involved in a public-private partnership project as a public partner according to the Public-Private Partnership Law shall be registered as a VAT taxable person with the State Revenue Service before these services are received.

Exemption from registration. In Latvia there are specific rules and conditions for exemption from registration, which are for Latvian taxable persons, taxable persons of other EU Member States and taxable persons of third countries/third territories.

Exemption from VAT registration for taxable persons established in Latvia. Taxable persons established in Latvia are not obliged to register for VAT if the total value of goods and services supplied by them in the preceding 12-month period does not exceed EUR40,000. This exemption does not apply if a taxable person established in Latvia, supplies services to a taxable person from other EU Member States, as well as if a taxable person established in Latvia receives services from a person from outside Latvia (i.e., from other EU Member States or from any third country/third territory), which does not conduct economic activity in Latvia.

The registration threshold of EUR40,000 shall not include the value of fixed assets and intangible investments supplied by a taxable person established in Latvia, if such a supply is carried out once within a time period of 12 months.

Taxable persons established in Latvia are not obligated to register for VAT purposes, if after one transaction the registration threshold of EUR40,000 is exceeded, but the taxable person does not intend to carry out other taxable transactions during the next 12 months. Taxable persons established in Latvia are also not obligated to register for VAT purposes if they occasionally supply new vehicles, which are dispatched or transported to the customer by the customer itself, the supplier, or by a third person on behalf of the supplier or the customer, to a destination outside Latvia but within the territory of the European Union.

Exemption from VAT registration for taxable persons of other EU Member States. A taxable person of other EU Member States is not obliged to register for VAT purposes if:
- It carries out a supply of goods or services for which VAT is paid by the recipient of goods or services (i.e., subject to the reverse-charge mechanism)
- It carries out supplies of Community goods already undergoing export customs procedures or non-Community goods in customs warehouses or free zones
- It carries out such transactions where non-Community goods or Community goods for which exit customs procedures have been commenced are moved from one inland customs warehouse/free zone to another inland customs warehouse/free zone or customs warehouse/free zone of other EU Member States
- It supplies stocks of production goods or stocks of wholesale goods to a registered taxable person and, in accordance with an agreement entered into between such persons, the property right to the abovementioned goods shall be transferred to the registered taxable person, which is the recipient of goods only at the time of resale or use
- It carries out intra-Community acquisition of goods in Latvia and supplies of goods, that are part of a triangular supply chain
- It carries out the supply of goods which are dispatched or transported by the taxable person or another person on its behalf from Latvia to a destination outside the territory of the European Union, except goods that are intended for equipping or supplying pleasure boats, private aircraft or any other means of transport for private use
- It is represented by a fiscal representative in relation to the relevant resident transactions
- It supplies goods or services in Latvia to headquarters of allied forces recognized by the Republic of Latvia (effective from 1 January 2018)

Exemption from VAT registration for taxable persons of third countries/third territories. A taxable person of third country/third territory is not obliged to register for VAT purposes if:
- It carries out the supply of goods or services for which VAT is paid by the recipient of goods or services
- It carries out supplies of Community goods already undergoing export customs procedures or non-Community goods in customs warehouses or free zones
- It carries out such transactions where non-Community goods or Community goods for which exit customs procedures have been commenced are moved from one resident customs warehouse/free zone to other inland customs warehouse/free zone or customs warehouse/free zone of other EU Member States
- It is represented by a fiscal representative (i.e., a registered taxable person which on the basis of a written contract, assumes VAT liabilities, pays tax into the State budget and represents a taxable person of another Member State or of a third country/territory. The fiscal representative status is only with respect to VAT.) in relation to the relevant inland transactions
- It carries out the supply of goods that are dispatched or transported by the taxable person or another person on his behalf from inland to a destination outside the territory of the European Union, except goods that are intended for equipping or supplying pleasure boats, private aircraft or any other means of transport for private use
- It supplies goods or services inland to headquarters of allied forces recognized by the Republic of Latvia

Voluntary registration and small businesses. A taxable person can register for VAT voluntarily even if it is not required to register for VAT under the VAT law in Latvia. No explicit restrictions for voluntary VAT registration are laid down in VAT law in Latvia.

Group registration. A group registration for VAT purposes is possible in Latvia. Legal entities that are closely connected (through capital or management) may choose to register as a VAT group. A VAT group is treated as a single taxable person, where members of the VAT group are not regarded as independent taxable persons. Only persons established in Latvia may be part of a VAT group. As a result, any establishments (seat or fixed establishment) of such persons outside Latvia may not be part of a VAT group. The group members share a single VAT number and submit a single VAT return.

The following are the rules for the registration of VAT groups:
- The value of VAT taxable transactions of at least one member of the VAT group in the preceding 12 months was EUR350,000).
- Each member of the VAT group must be separately registered for VAT.
- A member of a VAT group cannot be a member of another VAT group.
- VAT group members can be capital companies belonging to the same group of companies as well as Latvian branches of foreign legal entities, provided that, under the Law on Groups of Companies, the foreign legal entity belongs to the group of companies comprising other members of the VAT group.
- The members establishing the VAT group must enter into a valid contract.
- The members of the VAT group must be reachable at their legal addresses.
- The group members are jointly and severally liable for VAT group tax liabilities.

The VAT cost-sharing exemption has been implemented. This provides an option to exempt support services that the cost-sharing group supplies to its members, providing certain conditions are met (in accordance with VAT Directive 2006/112/EEC Article 132(1)f and specific requirements laid out in Latvian VAT law).

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that does not have a permanent establishment in Latvia. A non-established business must register for VAT if it makes supplies of goods or services for which it is liable to pay VAT in Latvia. If a non-established business performs intra-Community acquisitions of goods in Latvia or supplies of services and if it fails to register for VAT, in certain cases, the liability to account for reverse-charge VAT transfers to the recipient of the goods or services in Latvia (provided the recipient is a VAT-registered person). An entity registered for VAT in another EU Member State is not required to register for supplies made to taxable persons established in Latvia if the reverse charge applies (that is, the recipient of the service must account for the VAT on behalf of the supplier). The reverse charge does not apply to supplies made to private persons.

To register for VAT, a non-established business must submit. the following documents to the State Revenue Service:
- A completed application form provided for in the Cabinet Regulations
- A copy of the registration certificate
- Confirmation of the address of the business in Latvia, if such an address exists

The documents can be submitted via the following methods:
- Paper form by submitting them in person to the office of the State Revenue Service
- Online via the Electronic Declaration System of the State Revenue Service (if the taxpayer has an account there)
- Sending the necessary documents to the State Revenue Service by mail (subject to rules of secure electronic signatures). The person who submits the application must be either a person who has signature rights in the company or the applicant's authorized person. The person who submits the application must also present a passport or ID card as proof of identity.

Tax representatives. VAT fiscal representatives (called tax representatives in some other countries) are taxable persons who, based on a written contract, remit to the tax authorities the VAT due by a nonresident taxable person whom they represent, and fulfill on their behalf the administrative obligations relating to the following transactions:

- The importation of goods and the subsequent intra-Community supply of the imported goods
- The importation of goods and the subsequent domestic supply of the imported goods
- The receipt of goods in Latvia that are to be exported and that are stored under warehousing arrangements, and the subsequent exportation of those goods
- The intra-Community acquisition of goods that are to be exported and are stored under warehousing arrangements, and the subsequent exportation of those goods

VAT fiscal representatives must present a power of attorney, and they are responsible for payment of the VAT liabilities of the nonresident taxable person whom they represent. They must file monthly VAT returns in electronic format.

Persons established outside the EU are no longer required to appoint a fiscal representative to register for VAT purposes, and they can register in their own names. However, they may still opt to appoint a fiscal representative.

Reverse charge. The "reverse-charge" provision applies generally to supplies of goods and services made by non-established businesses to taxable persons and other nontaxable legal persons established in Latvia, provided that VAT is due on these supplies. Under the reverse-charge provision, the taxable person or legal person that receives the supply must account for the VAT due. If the reverse charge applies, the non-established supplier may not account for VAT in Latvia. The reverse charge does not apply to supplies made to private persons.

Timber products and related services. Domestic supply of timber products and related services are subject to the reverse-charge mechanism if the supplier and customer are registered taxable persons.

Scrap materials and related services. Domestic supplies of specified scrap materials and related services are subject to the reverse-charge mechanism if the supplier and customer are registered taxable persons and the customer is licensed to purchase scrap materials in Latvia or, lacking such a license, has obtained a permit for performing A- or B-category polluting activities or for collecting, handling, sorting or storing waste. Scrap materials include certain ferrous and nonferrous scrap, car wrecks, electrical and electronic waste, and batteries.

Construction products, services and construction-related services. The domestic supply of construction services (such as construction of new buildings or reconstruction of a part or the whole of existing buildings) and construction-related services is subject to the reverse-charge mechanism if the supplier and customer are registered taxable persons.

The domestic supply of construction products is subject to the reverse-charge mechanism if supplier and customer are taxable persons. The domestic reverse-charge mechanism is applicable to construction products from 1 January 2018 but will end on 1 January 2020.

Mobile phones, tablets, laptops and integrated circuits. The domestic supply of mobile phones, computer hardware and integrated circuits is subject to the reverse-charge mechanism if the supplier and customer are taxable persons. As of 1 January 2018, domestic reverse-charge mechanism is applicable also to supplies of game consoles.

Grain crops and industrial crops. The domestic supply of grain and industrial crops is subject to the reverse-charge mechanism if the supplier and customer are registered taxable persons.

Precious metals and semi-finished products of precious metals. The domestic supply of precious metals, precious metal alloys and precious clad metal is subject to the reverse-charge mechanism

if the supplier and customer are registered taxable persons. The domestic reverse-charge mechanism is applicable to grain crops since 1 July 2016.

Plated metals, scrap and waste. The domestic supply of semi-finished goods of precious metal, plated metal, scrap and waste are subject to the reverse-charge mechanism if the supplier and customer are registered taxable persons. The domestic reverse-charge mechanism is applicable to plated metals, scrap and waste since 1 January 2017.

Metal products, semi-finished metal products and related services. Effective from 1 January 2018, the domestic supply of metal products, semi-finished metal products and related services are subject to the reverse-charge mechanism if the supplier and customer are registered taxable persons.

Electronic and electric household appliances. The domestic supply of electronic and electric household appliances is subject to the reverse-charge mechanism if the supplier and customer are registered taxable persons. The domestic reverse-charge mechanism is applicable to electronic and electric household appliances from 1 January 2018 but will end on 1 January 2020.

Digital economy. In case of digital services, telecom services or broadcasting services supplied in a business-to-business (B2B) context, the place of supply is the place where the recipient is established. No Latvian VAT should be charged, and reverse charge applies unless supplier and customer are established in Latvia.

In case of digital services, telecom services or broadcasting services supplied in a business-to-consumer (B2C) context Latvian VAT is always due in case of supply to customers established in Latvia, without regard to whether the supplier is established inside or outside the EU. See the section on the "Mini One-Stop-Shop" (MOSS) below for more information.

Mini One-Stop Shop. The Mini One-Stop Shop (MOSS) scheme allows all taxable persons supplying telecommunications services, broadcasting services and electronically (TBE) supplied services to nontaxable persons in EU Member States in which they do not have an establishment to account for the VAT due on those supplies via a web portal in the Member State in which they are identified.

This scheme was introduced in connection with the change to the place of supply rules with respect to electronically supplied TBE services rendered cross-border within the EU. The supply of these services is generally considered as taking place in the Member State of the customer, not the Member State of the supplier. The MOSS allows qualifying taxable persons to avoid registering in each Member State of consumption and it is available both for taxable persons established and not established in the EU.

The MOSS generally mirrors the scheme that is in place now for non-EU established suppliers of electronically supplied TBE services to customers. Persons already registered under the pre-existing scheme for electronically supplied TBE services, should retain their existing individual VAT identification numbers for the purposes of the MOSS.

The registration threshold for non-established businesses providing electronically supplied services to private consumers in Latvia is EUR10,000. This is based on the total value (excluding VAT) of the electronic communications, broadcasting and electronically supplied services in the preceding or the current calendar year.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Latvia.

Vouchers. Latvia has implemented Council Directive (EU) 2016/1065), applicable from 1 July 2019.In Latvia the "single-purpose voucher" and "multi-purpose voucher" are defined as follows:

- "Single-purpose voucher" is a voucher where the place of supply of the goods or services to which the voucher is related to, and the VAT due on those goods or services, are known at the time of issue of the voucher.
- "Multi-purpose voucher" is a voucher with respect to which none of the features that defines a single-purpose voucher are known at the moment of issue of the voucher.

Any transfer of a single-purpose voucher by a taxable person acting in his own name shall be treated as a supply of goods or services covered by the voucher. The actual delivery of goods or the provision of actual services in exchange for a single-purpose voucher accepted by the supplier or provider as full or partial consideration shall not be considered as an independent transaction.

The transfer of a "multi-purpose voucher" shall not be regarded as a supply of the goods or services. The actual supply of goods or provision of services in exchange for a multi-purpose voucher accepted by the supplier or service provider as a full or partial consideration shall be deemed to be an independent taxable transaction.

Registration procedures. Taxable persons must register with the VAT authorities that are competent for the area where their place of business is located (i.e., the local branch of the tax authority). Nonresident taxable persons with a fixed establishment in Latvia must register with the competent VAT authorities according to the place where the fixed establishment is located.

Taxable persons are given a VAT identification number (13 digits), beginning with a two-digit country code (LV). VAT identification numbers are important in controlling the correct remittance of VAT to the tax authorities within the European Union.

Applicants submit the registration application form, which contains information on company/person, its authorized persons and business activities along with supplementary documentation (e.g., register of companies extract, passport/ID card copy(s) of signatory person(s), applicable power of attorneys). The decision on registration is taken by tax authorities within five business days from receipt of required information and documents.

Generally, there is an option to submit any documents (including VAT registration and deregistration documents) to the tax authorities via email, however, such documents shall be verified by sender using the "secure electronic signature," a form of advanced electronic signature that may be acquired from respective authorities in Latvia. However, this option is not commonly used, and generally the VAT registration documents are submitted as hard copies.

Additionally, taxpayers registered in Latvia are obliged to use the Electronic Declaration System (EDS) of the tax authorities, which is subject to an additional registration procedure.

Deregistration. The State Revenue Service has the right to exclude a person from the register of taxable persons if:
- The taxable person submits an application for removal from the VAT register.
- The taxable person has been liquidated or reorganized.
- The economic activity of the taxable person is suspended.
- The taxable person does not submit a VAT return within one month of the submission deadline, or he or she provides false information in a VAT return and does not correct this, following a written request to do so from the tax administration.
- The taxable person cannot be reached at his or her legal address or the declared place of residence (or if the address does not exist).
- A VAT group no longer complies with the registration conditions.

The State Revenue Service has the right to suspend a taxable person's registration number if possible fraudulent activities are identified.

In addition, the State Revenue Service has the right to exclude a person from the register of taxable persons if either of the following conditions exists:
• The taxpayer is considered to be a risk person.
• The taxpayer has not had economic activity for three months.

A person is excluded from the taxable persons register by the State Revenue Service if any of the following conditions exist:
• Material, technical or financial transactions of the taxable person do not match the field of its economic activity.
• The taxable person's registration number has been suspended and they do not apply for renewal of the registration code.
• The taxable person doesn't provide the State Revenue Service with requested information regarding its material, technical and financial activities.

Persons that are registered in the register of taxable persons must notify the State Revenue Service in case of any changes in company requisites (e.g., legal address, name, etc.) or legal status of company.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
• Standard rate: 21%
• Reduced rate: 12% and 5%
• Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services, unless a specific measure provides for the reduced rate, the zero rate or an exemption.

Examples of supplies of goods and services taxable at 0%

• Exports of goods and related services
• Intra-Community supply of goods
• International transport
• Tourism services provided outside Latvia

Examples of goods and services taxable at 5%

• Foodstuffs that are fresh fruit, berries and vegetables listed in the VAT law, including washed, peeled, shelled, cut and packed but not cooked or otherwise prepared (for example, frozen, salted, dried).

The reduced rate of 5% is applicable until 31 December 2020.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 12%

• Mass media and subscriptions thereto, except erotic material and pornography
• Specialized products for infants
• Medicines and medical devices (those authorized by state pharmaceutical authorities)
• Literature printed especially for schools and universities, as well as original literature (specified by Latvian National Library)
• Firewood and fuel wood supplied to natural persons
• Supply of thermal energy to natural persons
• Public transport services provided in Latvia
• Accommodation services provided in Latvia

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not subject to VAT and that do not give rise to a right of input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Financial services
- Insurance and reinsurance services
- Health and welfare services
- Education and cultural services
- Postal services provided by Latvijas Pasts
- Betting and gambling and other forms of gambling, including gambling and lotteries that are organized through electronic communication services

Options to tax. Real estate transactions are generally exempt except for the sale of unused real estate or part of it and the sale of building land. In general, a plot of land is considered to be building land if building permission was issued after 31 December 2009. An option to tax is also in place for supplies of "used" real estate made to taxable persons.

E. Time of supply

In general, VAT is due when the following events occur:

- For local supplies and intra-Community supply of goods, the time when goods are delivered, or service is performed, and the VAT invoice is issued.
- A prepayment is received in accordance with the prepayment invoice issued, except in the case of an intra-Community supply of goods.

However, for a supply of services subject to the new place of supply rules under EU Directive 2008/8/EC, VAT is due when the service is performed or the prepayment is received.

A VAT invoice must generally be issued within 15 days after services are rendered or goods are supplied. If the transaction is performed continuously over a long period of time, the VAT invoice may be issued for a period not exceeding 1, 6 or 12 months, depending on the type of transaction.

Deposits and prepayments. VAT paid on goods supplied or services provided is to be paid into the State Budget during the filing period in which the goods were dispatched or the services provided, and the tax invoice issued (except for intra-Community supply of services) or an advance payment made (except for intra-Community supply of goods) in accordance with the tax invoice. This means that if an advance payment or a prepayment is received before the supply is performed, VAT is due at the end of the filing period in which the advanced consideration is received.

Continuous supplies of services. If a local supply of services is performed without interruption over a long period of time, the tax shall become payable/declarable at the time payment for the service is received or the relevant filing period ends, but not less frequently than once in every six-month period.

Where an intra-Community supply of services is performed without interruption over a period of time that exceeds one year, and during this period no tax invoices are issued and no payments made, the tax becomes payable/declarable at the end of each year until the moment when the supply of services is fully completed.

Where an intra-Community acquisition of services is performed without interruption over a period of time that exceeds one year, and during this period no tax invoices are received, and no payments made, the transaction becomes declarable at the end of each year until the moment when the purchase of services is fully completed.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. The VAT law in Latvia does not contain any special provision on the time of supply for goods that are sent to the customer to be approved, before the goods are sold or then returned.

Reverse-charge services. Generally, the reverse-charge VAT is also applicable to the purchase of services from other EU and non-EU VAT taxable persons, as well as on intra-Community acquisitions of goods. Additionally, the local reverse-charge mechanism applies to the transactions subject to the domestic reverse charge.

Leased assets. The leasing or hiring of movable goods, including means of transport, is a supply of services in so far as the lease qualifies as an operational lease. According to the VAT law, a financial lease (lease of movable goods where at the end of the lease period the ownership of the movable goods is transferred to the lessee) is considered as a supply of goods.

Imported goods. Import VAT becomes due when goods are released for free circulation.

VAT on imports that is paid to the state budget may be deducted as input tax on VAT returns filed for the period in which the goods are released for free circulation, that is, when the import VAT has been paid into the state budget.

Under the Latvian VAT law, the principle of postponed accounting rules (declaration of VAT by way of reverse-charge mechanism) can be applied to the importation of fixed assets if the following conditions are satisfied:
- The importer of goods is a VAT taxable person, it performs the import of goods within the framework of its business activities and it has obtained the special authorization/permit from the tax authorities.
- The importer of goods is a fiscal representative representing VAT taxable person of another EU or non-EU country and it has obtained the special authorization/permit from the tax authorities.

Postponed VAT accounting corresponds to the principle that instead of physical payment of import VAT, the taxpayer may declare it by way of reverse-charge VAT. The postponed VAT accounting mechanism can also be applied to the importation of goods that are to be released in free circulation in the EU. However, a taxable person is entitled to apply the postponed accounting mechanism only if the person has received in advance a special permit from the Latvian State Revenue Service. To receive this permit, the following conditions must be satisfied:
- The taxable person must have registered its economic activities in Latvia.
- The taxable person is a registered client of the State Revenue Service electronic reporting system.
- On the date of submission of the application to receive the permit, the taxable person does not have a tax debt relating to previous tax periods, or such tax debt is paid within five working days after the submission date of the application.
- The employee who has authority to sign the application has not been punished for criminal offenses of an economic nature.
- By a date specified by the State Revenue Service, the taxable person provides informative reports or additional information that is necessary to determine the amount of tax payable to the State budget or the amount of an overpayment.

Nevertheless, the taxable person is still authorized to apply the postponed accounting rules with respect to import of goods even without the special authorization/permit if the following conditions are met:
- The taxable person imports fixed assets, which are intended fully or partially for use in its taxable transactions within a period of at least 12 months from the time of importation of the fixed assets.
- The value of the fixed assets (excluding VAT) is at least EUR700.
- The taxable person does not have a tax debt for previous tax periods.

A passenger car would qualify as such a fixed asset if imported by a taxable person engaged in the basic activity of leasing or hire-purchase transactions with passenger cars or the provision of taxi services and vehicle driver training.

Intra-Community acquisitions. The acquisition of goods in the territory of the European Union has taken place at the time when the acquisition of goods has been physically carried out, but not later than the time when the goods are received.

VAT related to the intra-Community acquisition of goods must be paid when the goods are received, and the VAT invoice is issued.

If a tax invoice has not been issued within the allowed number of months, the VAT due must be included in the VAT declaration for the tax period following the period in which the intra-Community acquisition is made.

Intra-Community supplies of goods. An intra-Community supply of goods is one whereby the goods are dispatched or transported from Latvia to another Member State by or on behalf of the supplier or the person to whom the supply is made.

The time of supply of goods shall be the time when the supply of goods is physically carried out, but not later than the time when the goods are received by the recipient of goods. Where the supply of goods within the territory of the European Union takes place permanently over a continuous time period and exceeds one calendar month, it shall be deemed that the transaction has occurred in the end of each calendar month until the time when the supply of goods is completely finished.

Supply of goods with assembly or installation shall be deemed as taken place when the assembly or installation is finished.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may deduct input tax, which is the VAT charged on goods and services supplied to it for business purposes. A taxable person generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax, which is VAT charged on supplies made.

Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services supplied in Latvia, VAT paid on imports of goods, and VAT self-assessed for intra-Community acquisitions of goods, for reverse-charge services received from foreign persons, as well as for domestic reverse-charge services, namely, supplies of specified scrap materials, supply of timber products and related services, supply of electronics (e.g., mobile phones, computer hardware, integrated circuits, game consoles), provision of construction services and construction products, supply of cereals and industrial crops, supply of raw precious metals, precious metal alloys and precious clad metal, supply of metal products and related services, as well as supply of electronic and electric household appliances.

The amount of the VAT reclaimed must be supported by a valid VAT invoice.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes (for example, goods acquired for the private use of an entrepreneur). In addition, input tax may not be recovered for some items of business expenditure.

The following lists provide some examples of items of expenditure for which input tax is not deductible and examples of items for which input tax is deductible if the expenditure is related to a taxable business use.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Hotel accommodation (if nonbusiness expenditure)
- Business gifts (except representation gifts with the company logo for which 40% of the input tax is deductible)
- Taxi services (if nonbusiness expenditure)
- Business and employee entertainment

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible
(if related to a taxable business use)

- Purchase, lease and hire of vans and trucks
- Fuel for vans and trucks
- Purchase, lease and hire of cars, including maintenance costs such as fuel and repair costs:
  - — 100% deductible if the car has fewer than eight passenger seats or a vehicle is up to 3,000 kg in weight and registered as a lorry, as well as the car's exclusive use in taxable transactions of the business is documented in accordance with the law's requirements
  - — 50% deductible if the car has fewer than eight passenger seats or a vehicle is up to 3,000 kg in weight that is registered as a lorry (Category N1) and that has more than three seats (including the driver's seat) and car's value is less than EUR50,000 (VAT excluded), i.e., not a luxury car
- Purchase, lease and hire of luxury cars, including maintenance costs such as fuel and repair costs:
  - — 100% deductible, if it can be proved that the luxury car is fully used in making taxable transactions of the business
  - — 0% deductible, if the taxpayer is not able to prove that the luxury car is fully used in taxable transactions of business
- Parking
- Mobile phones
- Advertising
- Books
- Taxi services

Partial exemption. Input tax directly related to performing VAT-exempt supplies is not recoverable. If a taxable person established in Latvia makes both VAT-exempt supplies and taxable supplies, it may not deduct input tax in full. This situation is referred to as "partial exemption."

The amount of input tax that may be deducted by a partially exempt business is calculated based on the percentage of taxable supplies to total supplies made each month. The monthly calculation is adjusted annually.

The percentage of deductible input taxis to be rounded up to the next whole number (e.g., 19.2% is rounded up to 20%).

If a taxable person makes both taxable and VAT-exempt supplies and if the value of its taxable supplies is greater than 95% of the total value of its supplies in the period, the taxable person may deduct input tax in full (without applying the partial-exemption calculation) on a monthly basis. A taxable person that is in this position must adjust its input tax deduction on an annual basis.

Partially exempt taxable persons must apply separate VAT accounting to allocate input tax to taxable and exempt supplies. The use of a pro rata calculation is allowed only in cases where separate accounting cannot be used. The calculation of pro rata is at the discretion of the taxpayer and must reflect the economic reality of the transactions conducted by the taxpayer. The taxpayer is not obliged to notify the State Revenue Service of the pro rata calculation used, however, they must have supporting evidence upholding the calculated pro rata, which can be used if the State Revenue Service would perform tax review activities (e.g., a tax audit) with respect to the pro rata calculation.

Capital goods. Capital goods are items of capital expenditure that are used in a business over several years.

In Latvia, the capital goods adjustment applies to the following assets for the number of years indicated:

- Immovable property: 10 years

- Fixed assets that have a purchase or producing value (expenditure incurred to produce a fixed asset) exceeding EUR70,000 excluding VAT: five years

The amount of input tax recovered depends on the taxable person's partial exemption recovery position in the VAT year of construction, production or acquisition. However, the amount of input tax recovered for capital goods must be adjusted over time if the taxable person's partial exemption recovery percentage changes during the adjustment period.

During the construction, production or purchase phase for real estate or a fixed asset, the input tax is deducted according to the normal rules. The adjustment is applied each year following the year of construction, production or acquisition, to a fraction of the total input tax (1/10 for immovable property and 1/5 for the fixed assets). The adjustment may result in either an increase or decrease of deductible input tax, depending on whether the ratio of taxable supplies made by the business has increased or decreased since the year in which the capital goods were acquired.

An adjustment is not made if the proportion does not change during the tax year.

If immovable property or a part of it is sold as VAT-exempt supply within a period of 10 years after its acquisition or acceptance for service, the taxable person must repay to the state budget an amount of input tax equal to an amount calculated by multiplying 1/10 of the deducted input tax by the number of years that remain in the 10-year adjustment period. This repayment is included in the value of the immovable property, and the purchaser may not deduct it as an input tax.

Refunds. The State Revenue Service may carry forward overpaid VAT incurred to the next tax period within 30 days after it receives the VAT return for the respective tax period.

The transfer of the overpaid VAT to the next tax period may occur after any other tax liabilities of the taxpayer are fulfilled.

If, after the fulfillment of other tax liabilities, an amount of overpaid VAT amount remains, the respective VAT amount may be forwarded to the following tax period.

If, at the end of the tax year, an amount of overpaid VAT for the taxpayer remains, the overpaid VAT is repaid to the taxpayer's bank account within 10 days after the State Revenue Service receives the VAT return for the final month of the respective tax year and approves the overpaid VAT amount.

The State Revenue Service refunds overpaid VAT incurred during the tax period if at least one of the following conditions is met:

- The total amount of the taxpayer's zero-rated transactions and the transactions that have a place of supply not in Latvia account for at least 90% of the total value of taxable transactions.
- The overpaid VAT amount exceeds EUR1,500, and the total amount of zero-rated transactions, reduced-rate transactions and transactions that have a place of supply not in Latvia account for at least 20% of the total value of taxable transactions.
- The overpaid VAT amount incurred for fixed assets exceeds EUR150, and the taxable person requests a refund of the VAT overpayment.
- The overpaid VAT amount exceeds EUR1,500 and it is incurred for goods and services purchased for transactions involving timber, scrap metal, electronics (e.g., mobile phones, computer hardware, integrated circuits, game consoles), cereals and industrial crops, provision of construction services and construction products, raw precious metals, precious metal alloys and precious clad metal, metal products and related services or electronic household appliances and electronic household apparatus.
- The overpaid VAT amount exceeds EUR5,000.

The State Revenue Service may delay the refund of an overpaid tax amount by notifying the taxpayer in writing if any of the following circumstances exist:

- A decision has been made to conduct examinations and audits regarding the transactions and to seek necessary information for such examinations and audits. The period of the delay extends to the date on which the tax administration completes its evaluation of the transactions and reaches a decision regarding the justification for the application.
- The taxpayer cannot provide documentary evidence justifying the application of the 0% tax rate. The period of the delay extends until the date on which the documents are submitted verifying the exports or otherwise confirming the application of the 0% tax rate.
- The overpaid tax must be reduced by the amount of the tax with respect to bad debts. The period of the delay extends to the date on which the reduction takes place.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax may be subject to VAT recovery if the goods or services were acquired up to 15 months before an entity was registered as VAT payer. Administrative services such as rent of premises and fuel costs are excluded, and additional rules apply.

Write-off of bad debts. Taxable persons who supply goods or provide services may recover VAT related to their bad debts if all the following specific conditions are met:

- The bad debt amount is less than EUR430 or there is a court judgement on recovery of debt from the recipient of goods or services and a statement of a bailiff concerning the impossibility of the recovery
- An invoice or tax invoice has been issued for the goods or services supplied
- The debt has arisen during the last three taxation years
- Tax has been calculated for the transaction performed and it is included in the tax return of the relevant taxation period
- The bad debt amount has been written off from the special provision amounts for bad debts or directly as losses (expanses) in the accounting of the registered taxable person in the current taxation period or in any of the previous taxation periods
- The recipient of goods or services and the supplier of goods or services are not mutually related persons
- The supply of goods or services to the relevant recipient of goods and services has been ceased at least six months before and has not been renewed
- A registered taxable person has not transferred their right to claim to another person
- A registered taxable person can prove that they have taken measures for the recovery of bad debt
- The supplier of goods or services has sent information to the recipient of goods and services, who is or was a registered taxable person at the time of supply of goods or services, by 1 March of the post-taxation year that the relevant debt is considered as bad debt

VAT recovery can be performed on an annual basis and additional bad debt recovery rules may apply, depending on specific situations, e.g., partial bad debt recovery options if not all, but specific selected activities from mentioned list are performed, recovery in case of bankruptcy, etc.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred in relation to noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Latvia.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Latvia refunds VAT incurred by businesses that are not established in Latvia nor are required to be registered for VAT there. Non-established businesses may claim Latvian VAT refunds to the same extent as VAT-registered businesses.

EU businesses. For businesses established in the EU, refund is made under the terms of EU Directive 2008/9/EC.For EU taxable persons, the amount of the claim in an application for a complete calendar year must exceed EUR50, and the amount of claim in an application for a period shorter than a calendar year, but longer than three months, must exceed EUR400 or the equivalent in other currency.

For EU taxable persons, the VAT refund request must be submitted via the local tax authorities according to the principles provided by EU Directive 2008/9/EC.

The decision on the VAT refund for persons from other EU Member States is made within four to eight months, depending on whether additional information is required by the State Revenue Service or the tax authorities of the other EU Member States. The State Revenue Service shall transfer the approved tax amount within 30 days after adopting a positive decision. No interest is paid upon refund.

Non-EU businesses. For businesses established outside the EU, refund is made under the terms of the EU 13th Directive.

The application form may be completed in Latvian or in English.

Refund claims may be made for the following periods:
- One calendar year or a period of less than three months if the claim is made for the last three months of the calendar year (that is, the period from 1 October to 31 December)
- A period of at least three calendar months and less than one calendar year

For non-EU taxable persons, a claim for a complete calendar year must exceed EUR50, and a claim for a period of less than a calendar year, but longer than three months, must exceed EUR400.

For non-EU taxable persons, the documents must be submitted to the State Revenue Service within the following time limits:
- For a claim for one calendar year or a period of less than three months (limited to the last three calendar months of the year): by 30 September of the following year
- For a claim for a period of at least three calendar months but not longer than one calendar year: within three months after the end of the period indicated on the application form

The documents must be submitted to the State Revenue Service by 30 September of the period following the requested refund period if the request is for a period of one year, or within three months from the end of request period if the request is for period less than one year. In practice, the VAT could be refunded within a four-month period from the date of submission of the documents. This period may be prolonged if the tax authorities ask for additional information. In such case, the State Revenue Service will make a decision on a tax refund within a period of four months from the date of receipt of all relevant documents and information additionally required and submitted by the respective taxable person. The approved amount of tax shall be refunded within 10 working days after the State Revenue Service has made a decision to refund the tax completely or partially, but no later than within four months after receipt of the application. No interest is paid upon refund.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A taxable person must generally provide a VAT invoice for all taxable supplies made and for exports within 15 days after the supply has been made or advance payment has been received.

Credit notes. A VAT credit note may be used to reduce the VAT charged and claimed on a supply. The document must be clearly marked “credit note,” and it should refer to the original invoice. It is recommended that a credit note also indicate the reason for the correction and any new items arising from it.

Electronic invoicing. Latvian VAT law permits electronic invoicing in line with EU Directive 2010/45/EU (see the chapter on the EU).

Simplified VAT invoices. A registered taxable person has the right to issue a simplified tax invoice in the following cases:

- For an inland transaction the value of which excluding tax is less than EUR150
- In case it uses a document that amends the initial tax invoice or especially and clearly indicates to it, indicating the date of issue of the initial tax invoice and identification number, as well as the particular data to be amended, in the additional simplified tax invoice

A cashier's check or another document may also be used as a simplified tax invoice, where the requirements outlined above are not met, only where it is accompanied by a source document in which the date and number of the cashier's check or another document and the information required for a normal tax invoice is indicated.

In addition, a cashier's check or another document, which does not meet the requirements outlined above, may also be used as a simplified tax invoice if it is issued for a transaction where the value of which (excluding tax) is less than EUR30.

Self-billing. A recipient of goods or services is entitled to issue a tax invoice for themselves on behalf and interests of the supplier of goods or services for the goods or services supplied to them by a registered taxable person or a taxable person of another Member State, if there is a prior agreement between the parties and if the supplier of goods or services applies the mutual recognition procedure of invoices to each invoice.

Proof of exports and intra-Community supplies. The zero VAT rate applies to exports of goods and intra-Community supplies of goods. Export supplies and intra-Community supplies of goods must be accompanied by evidence confirming that the goods have left the territory of Latvia. Suitable evidence includes the stamped customs exportation documentation or international transportation documents such as the CMR or bill of lading.

Foreign currency invoices. If an invoice is issued in a currency other than the euro, the amount of the VAT must be converted to euros if the place of supply is Latvia. The conversion must be done using the official exchange rate quoted by the European Central Bank on the date of the supply or on the date when the advanced payment has been received.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. Invoices for supplies to nontaxable persons may be issued upon request of the customer. However, if no invoice is issued, a supplementary internal document shall be issued for accounting and reporting purposes.

Special rules apply to the place of supply for supplies of telecommunications, broadcasting and electronic services to non-VAT taxable customers. For further details of the VAT rules on electronic services in the EU, please refer to the European Union chapter.

Records. A taxable person shall ensure that tax invoices are stored with them or a third person on their behalf, or the recipient of goods or services has issued, as well as tax invoices that are received by a taxable person shall be kept.

Record retention period. An entrepreneur must store duplicates of the invoices issued and invoices received for a period of five years, except with respect to invoices relating to immovable property. Regarding the latter, invoices shall be stored for a period of 10 years.

Electronic archiving. The duplicates of the invoices should be stored in Latvia, except when they are stored by electronic means and full online access to the data concerned is guaranteed to State Revenue Service representatives.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. In general, VAT returns may be filed monthly or quarterly, depending on the amount of taxable supplies made by the taxable person and the transaction types. A VAT return must be filed by the 20th day of the month following the end of the tax period via the Electronic Declaration System.

VAT returns must be filed on a monthly basis (such tax period is retained for six calendar months after VAT registration) if the amount of taxable transactions performed by a taxable person during the year before the tax year or during the tax year exceeds EUR40,000 or if the taxable person supplies goods or services within the EU.

VAT returns must be filed quarterly if, during the year before the tax year, the amount of taxable transactions of the taxable person did not exceed EUR40,000, and if the taxable person did not perform intra-Community supplies of goods or supply services that had a place of supply in other EU Member States.

Periodic payments. The time limit for the submission of a tax return and transferring the VAT due shall be 20 days after the end of the taxation period. The VAT due shall be transferred to a specifically indicated state budget account. Taxation period can be either a month or a quarter. Payments are made directly through the internet bank online to the account of Valsts Kase (State Treasury of the Republic of Latvia) who is the receiver of the payment.

Electronic filing. Tax returns must be filed via the Electronic Declaration System. The Electronic Declaration System is an e-filing system of the SRS where taxpayers prepare and submit periodic VAT returns and their appendices. It is also used by the SRS to communicate with taxpayers, for example, to request additional information and supporting documents with respect to reported transactions with a right to deduct VAT.

The taxpayers registered in Latvia are obliged to use the Electronic Declaration System of the SRS. Generally, when registering for VAT purposes in Latvia, the taxpayer is automatically registered in EDS. However, in order to define the list of users that will be granted rights to work on behalf of the taxpayer in EDS, a separate document has to be submitted.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Latvia.

Special schemes. There are special schemes for small businesses; farmers; travel agents; dealers in secondhand goods, works of art, collectors' items and antiques; auctions, investment gold and electronically provided services.

Small businesses. The voluntary special regime for small businesses is applicable to a taxable person who complies with at least one of the following criteria:

- Taxable transactions in the previous tax year have not exceeded EUR100,000.
- At the time of VAT registration, there is no expectation that taxable transactions in excess of EUR100,000 will be performed in the tax year.

The special regime provides that small enterprises, as well as persons who produce agricultural products specified in the VAT law, can remit VAT to the State Budget in the tax period in which the payment for supplies of goods or services is received. However, input tax can only be deducted in the period in which invoices from other taxable persons are paid.

Additionally, suppliers of residential house maintenance and management services that exceed the transaction threshold of EUR100,000 may also apply for this scheme if the total value of transactions does not exceed EUR2 million.

Farmers. The VAT law provides a special flat-rate scheme for legal and private persons that produce agricultural products and are not registered as taxable persons.

Farmers subject to the flat-rate scheme cannot deduct input tax. They are also not allowed to charge VAT on their agricultural outputs. Input tax is, therefore, a cost for this type of farmer. The flat-rate scheme is based on the economic assumption that the farmers will and can transfer the burden of VAT, i.e., the price of goods supplied by such farmers includes the nondeductible input tax.

Farmers subject to the flat-rate scheme are indirectly compensated by their customers for their input tax. To avoid the accumulation of VAT, the customer is entitled to deduct the average input tax burden on supplies made to him by the flat-rate farmer. The average VAT burden is set at a percentage of the supply price. The current flat rate is 14% of the farmer's supply price.

The scheme can only be applied to supplies of agricultural goods and services made by farmers in the course or furtherance of their agricultural business. If a farmer has voluntarily registered as a taxable person, the general rules regarding liability to VAT, issuing invoices and deducting input tax apply.

If a flat-rate farmer also runs a non-agricultural business, the farmer's supplies of goods and services from the latter are taxed (unless exempt) according to the normal rules if the farmer is required to register as a taxable person.

If a flat-rate farmer supplies agricultural goods to a taxable person in another Member State, the acquisition is taxed in that other Member State.

If a flat-rate farmer is the recipient of an intra-Community supply of goods and the total of the farmer's purchases is less than EUR10,000, the supply is taxed in the Member State of supply. The flat-rate farmer must register as a taxable person and is liable for VAT in Latvia on acquisitions of goods over this threshold. According to VAT law, a flat-rate farmer can choose to be taxed in Latvia even if the value of the farmer's intra-Community acquisitions is less than EUR10,000.

A taxable person who has been registered as a taxable person for VAT purposes before exceeding the EUR10,000 threshold may submit to the State Revenue Service an application for exclusion from the VAT registry not earlier than two years after registering.

Travel agents. VAT law provides for a special arrangement with regard to the taxation of margins of tour operators. The tax shall be applied to the services provided by tour operators if the tour operator acts in its own name and in favor of a traveler and uses supplies of goods and services provided by other persons for ensuring tourism services provided to the traveler.

All activities performed by inland tour operators related to travel shall be deemed to be a single service that the tour operator provides to the traveler. Such a service is taxable.

The taxable amount regarding services provided by tour operators shall be the difference between the total amount (without tax) paid by the recipient of the service (a traveler) and the actual costs of the supply of goods and services that are provided to the tour operator by other persons.

The tax calculated by a tour operator for the services that it provides (including compiling a travel package, publication of advertising brochures, etc.) shall be included in the total value of the travel package and collected from the recipient of the service. In calculating the amount of the tax payable into the budget, the tax paid for ensuring the tour operator's own services (including lease of premises, telephone calls, electricity, etc.) shall be deductible as input tax.

A tour operator must calculate the value of services provided and include it in the tax declaration for the taxable period in which the service was provided to the traveler and invoices were received from other persons in relation to the supply, but not later than in the next taxable period after the service has been provided to the traveler.

The tax for other tourism-related (travel-related) services (including services of hotels, transport, catering services, etc.), which are actually provided in Latvia by other taxable persons, shall be included in the total value of the charge for the travel services and is collectible from the recipient of the service. The amount of tax collected for these services is transferred, in full, by the tour operator to the actual providers of the services. A tour operator may not deduct this amount as input tax.

The value of the services provided by a tour operator himself is taxable at the standard rate. If the services provided by tour operators are provided both within the territory of the European Union and outside it, the 0% tax rate shall be applied only to that part of the services that is provided outside the territory of the European Union.

Secondhand goods, works of art, collectors' items and antiques. Taxable dealers are taxable persons who have, as their regular business, trade in secondhand goods, works of art, antiques and collectors' items. A taxable dealer who purchases goods falling within one of these categories from a person who did not or was not entitled to deduct the input tax can use the difference between the selling price and the purchase price (the profit margin) as the taxable amount.

A taxable dealer who makes use of the margin scheme cannot show VAT on the invoice. As no VAT is shown on the invoice, the purchaser cannot deduct input tax. The secondhand goods VAT scheme is optional; dealers may choose to apply the general VAT regime.

The margin scheme may be applied where a taxable dealer imports works of art, antiques and collectors' items, or when works of art are supplied to the dealer by the artist, by the successor in title or by a taxable person other than a taxable dealer.

The special margin scheme is not applicable to the supply of new means of transport.

The taxable dealer must issue a "purchase declaration" (iepirkuma akts) to the seller on the purchase of goods.

Supplies through auctions. If a bailiff enforcing an adjudication of a court sells the property of a taxable person, VAT is imposed on the market value (price) or the auction price of the property.

The tax on the sale of the property in the auction must be paid into the State Budget by the bailiff within 20 days of when the amount calculated is applied and cannot be appealed.

Investment gold. Articles 344-356 of the VAT Directive (Council Directive 2006/112) have been implemented into the Latvian VAT law so as to provide for a special arrangement for the supply of investment gold. Investment gold is defined as:

- Gold, in the form of bars and plates, with a purity of at least 995/1,000, whether or not in the form of securities
- Gold coins that:
  - Have a purity of at least 900/1,000
  - Were minted after 1800
  - Are or have been accepted as legal tender in the country of origin
  - Are usually sold at a price which does not exceed by more than 80% the open market value of the gold contained therein

According to the primary rule, the local and intra-Community supply of gold in the above forms is exempt from VAT. Imports and intra-Community acquisitions of investment gold are also exempt from VAT. In addition, the exemption applies to intermediary services supplied by agents.

The following suppliers of investment gold may opt for taxation according to the general VAT rules:

- A manufacturer of investment gold or a person modifying gold into investment gold

- A taxable person who supplies investment gold for industrial purposes in the course of his or her normal business
- An intermediary in the supply of investment gold, provided that the supplier has also opted to tax his or her supply

An option to tax must be made by notifying the tax authorities in advance in writing.

A supplier who does not opt for taxation but, rather, uses the exemption for the supply of investment gold can still deduct input tax on the following:
- The acquisition of investment gold that was supplied by a taxable supplier (in Latvia and other Member States) who exercised an option to tax
- The acquisition of gold other than investment gold from taxable suppliers (in Latvia and other Member States), on the assumption that the supplier changes the gold into investment gold
- Services received for changing the shape, weight or content of investment or other gold

A taxable person who produces investment gold or changes gold into investment gold can deduct VAT in connection with the local acquisition, the import or the intra-Community acquisition of goods or services that have a connection with the production or the modification of that gold.

The reverse-charge mechanism is applicable if the option for taxation is applied.

With regard to a taxable person who performs transactions with investment gold, the documents that are associated with such transactions must be retained for five years after the end of the calendar year in which the transaction occurred.

Cash accounting. Latvia operates a voluntary cash accounting scheme. To use cash accounting, a taxpayer's transactions (threshold) are generally not more than an annual turnover of EUR100,000. A threshold of up to EUR500,000 is applicable to taxable persons in specified industries, e.g., some types of farmers.

Additionally, the supply of residential house maintenance and management services is subject to the voluntary cash accounting scheme if the total value of transactions for a taxpayer in the previous taxation period is between EUR100,000 and EUR2 million.

Annual returns. The taxable person must submit an annual VAT return in the following circumstances:
- The proportion of taxable and nontaxable transactions for the taxation year has changed and it is not provided otherwise by the VAT law.
- Any tax due or input tax deducted is adjusted according to the requirements listed in the VAT law.
- Financial services are performed/supplied.
- A deposit system is applied to reusable packaging according to the packaging regulation.

This must be submitted prior to 1 May of the following year. In addition, the respective tax amount also has to be paid prior to 1 May of the following year.

Supplementary filings. In addition to VAT returns, taxpayers are required to submit Intrastat reports and ESL, EPL as well as local sales lists (LSL), local purchases lists (LPL) and other information (see below).

Intrastat. A taxable person that trades with other EU countries must complete statistical reports, known as Intrastat, if the value of either its sales or purchases of goods exceeds certain thresholds. The applicable form, which must be submitted to the Central Statistical Bureau of the Republic of Latvia, depends on the threshold prescribed for acquisitions and supplies, respectively.

The following are the Intrastat thresholds, effective from 1 January 2019 (no changes for 2020):

- EUR220,000 for intra-Community acquisitions (if this threshold is met, Intrastat 1A must be submitted)
- EUR3.5 million for intra-Community acquisitions (if this threshold is met, Intrastat 1B must be submitted)
- EUR120,000 for intra-Community supplies (if this threshold is met, Intrastat 2A must be submitted)
- EUR5 million for intra-Community supplies (if this threshold is met, Intrastat 2B must be submitted)

The Intrastat return must generally be submitted on a monthly basis. The submission deadline is the 10th day of the month following the return period.

EU Sales Lists and EU Purchase Lists. If a taxable person makes intra-Community supplies of goods and services in a return period, it must submit an EU Sales List (ESL) to the State Revenue Service. An ESL must be submitted as an appendix to the VAT return.

ESLs must be submitted electronically on a calendar monthly basis by the 20th day following the end of the month.

If a taxable person makes intra-Community acquisitions of goods and services in a return period, it must submit an EU Purchase List (EPL) listing intra-Community acquisitions of goods and services to the State Revenue Service. The EPL must be submitted as an appendix to the VAT return.

EPLs must be submitted electronically on a calendar monthly basis by the 20th day following the end of the month.

Local sales lists and local purchases lists. Local sales lists (LSL) and local purchases lists (LPL) and other information regarding the application of specific VAT schemes, such as, capital goods scheme and fiscal representative transactions, are submitted in a form of appendix to the VAT return.

Digital reporting. VAT returns, and Intrastat reports must be submitted electronically. Together with VAT returns, taxpayers are liable to submit transaction ledgers, which include detailed information on transactions performed within the taxation period (i.e., LPS, LSL, EUPL).

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. No specific penalty applies to late registration. However, the following penalties may be assessed if VAT is not paid or if VAT returns are not filed as a result of late registration or non-registration:

- An administrative penalty in the amount of EUR210 to EUR350 may be imposed for non-registration in the VAT taxable person's register.
- A penalty may be imposed for undeclared VAT. In such circumstances, undeclared VAT must be paid, together with a penalty of up to 30% of the unpaid VAT and late payment fines of 0.05% per day.
- A penalty in the amount of 0.05% per day may be imposed for late VAT payments.

Penalties for late payment and filings. Late payment charge is an interest payment imposed for late payment of taxes and duties.

Additionally, to late payment charge:

- In the case of submitting a tax declaration, violating the deadline specified in the regulatory enactments regarding tax by up to 15 calendar days — a fine shall be imposed on natural and legal persons in an amount up to EUR70.

- In the case of submitting a tax declaration, violating the deadline specified in the regulatory enactments regarding tax from 16 up to 30 calendar days — a fine shall be imposed on natural and legal persons in an amount from EUR71 up to EUR280.
- In the case of submitting a tax declaration, violating the deadline specified in the regulatory enactments regarding tax by more than 30 calendar days — a fine shall be imposed on natural and legal persons in an amount from EUR281 up to EUR700.

Penalties for errors. Penalties may be imposed for undeclared VAT. In such case, the undeclared VAT must be paid, together with a penalty of up to 30% of the unpaid VAT amount and a late penalty fine in the amount of 0.05% per day.

Penalities for fraud. Tax infringement is an unlawful, chargeable (deliberate or negligent) act or omission that results in the violation of the legal norms of the law, specific tax laws, and other laws and regulations governing taxes, and legal norms of the European Union and for which liability is provided for.

In the case of evasion of taxes and payments imposed together therewith, as well as the concealment (reduction) of income, profit or other object to which taxes may be applied — a fine shall be imposed on natural persons or board members in an amount from EUR140 up to EUR2,100, with or without depriving a board member of the right to hold certain in the company.

If a taxable person fails to register and carries out taxable transactions, he is liable for VAT without the right to deduct input tax from the day on which he should have registered.

If a taxable person unlawfully issues tax invoices and receives VAT to which he is not entitled, the tax administration may collect the tax unlawfully received and impose a penalty equal to 100% of the tax.

A failure to account for output tax on assets to which postponed accounting applies gives rise to a penalty of 10% of the VAT due.

A failure to account for output tax on reverse-charge services received from abroad, on intra-Community acquisitions or on certain intra-Community services, gives rise to a penalty of 10% of the VAT due.

The penalty for a repeated tax infringement shall be the double amount of the fine.

With respect to a failure to provide necessary information to the tax authorities, a penalty of no more than EUR700 is imposed on a natural person or a board member, with or without depriving the board member of the right to hold certain positions in the company.

For providing false information, a penalty of no more than EUR700 is imposed on a natural person or a board member, with or without depriving the board member of the right to hold certain positions in the company.

For refusal to allow tax officers to enter premises where they have a legal right to enter, natural and legal persons face a penalty up to EUR210. There is no specific penalty here in respect of personal/director's liability. However, personal/director's liability may occur due to a failure to provide necessary information to the tax authorities or providing false information to the authorities.

Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses	Yes, subject to certain conditions

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:

- The supply of goods or services made in Lebanon by a taxable person
- The importation of services by a person resident in Lebanon
- The importation of goods into Lebanon, regardless of the status of the importer

C. Who is liable

A taxable person is an entity or individual who makes taxable supplies of goods or services in the course of doing business in Lebanon, in excess of the registration threshold. In addition, a taxable person is an entity or individual who imports and exports taxable goods or services, regardless of their turnover. This definition includes a permanent establishment of a foreign business in Lebanon. The deadline for registration is two months following the last day of the quarter in which the liability to register arose.

The VAT registration threshold is total turnover of at least LBP100 million in any period varying from one to four consecutive quarters.

Importers and exporters of taxable or of goods or services that are exempt with the right of deduction are now obliged to register with the DVAT regardless of their turnover.

Exemption from registration. The VAT law in Lebanon does not contain any provision for exemption from registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. Any taxable person performing taxable activities or activities related to goods and services that are exempt with the right of deduction may voluntarily register for VAT, provided that the latter had a minimum turnover of LBP50 million in a period of one to four consecutive quarters.

Group registration. The Lebanese VAT law does not allow VAT group registration. Legal entities that are closely connected must register for VAT separately.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that has no fixed establishment in Lebanon. A non-established business must register for VAT if it makes taxable supplies in Lebanon.

Tax representatives. A non-established business must appoint a tax representative resident in Lebanon before it makes any supplies of goods or services there, regardless of its expected level of turnover. The tax representative is jointly and severally responsible for the payment of all VAT liabilities and penalties with the non-established business that it represents. The tax representative is solely responsible for complying with all of the other provisions of the Lebanese VAT law.

If a Lebanese resident receives a taxable supply of services consumed in Lebanon from a non-established supplier that has not appointed a tax representative in Lebanon, the Lebanese resident is liable to pay VAT and any penalties due to the tax authorities.

Reverse charge. Reverse charge is a transfer of liability to account for and pay the VAT on imported services from the person providing the service (the supplier) to the person receiving the service (the recipient). If services are being supplied in Lebanon by a foreign nonresident entity that has no agent in Lebanon to a Lebanese registered entity, it is the responsibility of the Lebanese taxpayer to book the VAT amount due on the service and declare it to the VAT department.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Lebanon.

Digital economy. No special rules apply. However, where a non-established business is selling digital services to a Lebanon resident (i.e., B2C), the non-established business is not considered to be performing services in Lebanon. As such, this means that the non-established business is not required to appoint a tax representative in Lebanon, and not required to register for VAT in Lebanon. Subsequently, no VAT is accounted for on the supply of digital services. The customer cannot self-account for the VAT due, because it is a consumer not a business (i.e., B2C not B2B). Therefore, no VAT is accounted for digital services.

This is a scenario that the Lebanese tax authorities have not yet addressed, and as such, there is no mechanism to declare VAT on supplies of digital services.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Lebanon.

Registration procedures. A taxpayer registering with the DVAT is required to manually fill out hard copies of the necessary registration forms (K1-1, K11-1 and K12-1) along with other required documents and submit them to the DVAT within two months from the last day of the quarter in which the liability to register arose (in case of mandatory registration). The DVAT takes an average of one week to complete the registration.

Deregistration. A taxable person that ceases to carry on business in Lebanon must end its registration. A taxable person whose turnover falls below the compulsory registration limit may also deregister.

A taxable person that is registered voluntarily may request deregistration if its annual turnover does not exceed the compulsory VAT registration threshold.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 11%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods and services, unless a specific measure provides for the zero rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%
- Exported goods
- Exported services
- International transport (from/to Lebanon)

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services
- Postal services and stamps
- Education
- Insurance
- Financial services
- Transfer of real estate
- Medical services and equipment
- Precious metals and precious and semiprecious stones
- Betting and gaming
- Collective transport of persons
- Agricultural activities and products, including livestock, seeds, animal feed and pesticides
- Books, newspapers and magazines
- Basic foodstuffs and baby food
- Diesel oil

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Lebanon.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point." The tax point is the earliest of the following events:
- When the goods are delivered, or the services are performed

- When the consideration is paid if this occurs before the goods are delivered or services are performed
- When the invoice is issued if this occurs before the goods are delivered or services are performed

The time of supply for imported goods is when the liability to pay customs duties arises, that is, either on the date of importation or when the goods leave a duty suspension regime.

A Lebanese resident who uses a service in Lebanon that is acquired from abroad must account for VAT on the service and pay VAT due to the tax authorities. The tax point is when the service is received and the consideration is paid. The Lebanese VAT law does not differentiate between companies and individuals. However, in practice, individuals do not self-account for the VAT, and no VAT is charged on the supply.

Deposits and prepayments. If, before the date of delivery of goods and services, the price has been partly or wholly paid by the customer, then the VAT is due at the date of payment based on the value of the amount paid.

Continuous supplies of services. VAT is due on the earliest of either the invoice issuance, installment payment or installment due date.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. In the case of a sale return, in order to be able to recover the output tax already declared and paid, the supplier should repay the full amount received and get back the goods within three months from the date of supply, and a credit note is required to be issued where the goods are returned.

Reverse-charge services. There is no special time of supply rule for reverse-charge services. As such, the normal time of supply rules apply (see above).

Leased assets. VAT on leased assets classified as operational leases is payable upon payment of each installment. If the asset is transferred to the lessee at the end of the lease term, the VAT is computed based on the purchase price.

The time of supply differs if the asset is classified as a financial lease, under any of the below criteria:

1. Ownership transfers at the end of the lease (upon final payment or required buy out)
2. Written option for bargain purchase
3. The present value of the lease payments is equal or more than 90% of the fair value of the leased property
4. The lease term is equal or greater than 75% of the asset's economic life

When any of these criteria apply, the VAT is due upon the earlier of effective receipt of the asset, issuance of an invoice or payment of an amount.

Imported goods. VAT is paid at customs at the time of importation and clearance of goods.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A VAT payer may recover input tax, which is VAT charged on goods and services supplied to it for business purposes. A VAT payer generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax, which is VAT charged on supplies made.

Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services supplied in Lebanon and VAT paid on imports.

A valid tax invoice or customs document must generally accompany a claim for input tax.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use by an entrepreneur). In addition, input tax may not be recovered for some items of business expenditure.

The following lists provide some examples of items of expenditure for which input tax is not deductible and examples of items for which input tax is deductible if the expenditure is related to a taxable business use.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Business entertainment
- Nonbusiness expenditure

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Accommodation
- Advertising
- Business gifts
- Conferences
- Purchase, lease and hire of cars, vans and trucks
- Business use of home telephone
- Mobile phones (80% provided that the invoices are in the name of the taxpayer)
- Taxis

Partial exemption. Input tax directly related to making exempt supplies is not generally recoverable. If a Lebanese taxable person makes both exempt and taxable supplies, it may not recover input tax in full. This situation is referred to as a "partial exemption." Zero-rated supplies (sometimes referred to as "exempt with the right of deduction" supplies) are treated as taxable supplies for these purposes.

A taxable person that makes both taxable and exempt supplies may generally recover input tax that is related to taxable supplies only. Input tax directly allocated to taxable supplies is deductible, while input tax directly related to exempt supplies is not deductible. The remaining input tax that is not allocated directly to exempt and taxable supplies is apportioned. The apportionment may be calculated based on the value of taxable supplies made compared with total turnover.

However, certain VAT exempt entities, including hospitals, educational institutions and nonprofit organizations, known as "Article 59 entities," are subject to a special VAT recovery regime. Article 59 entities use fixed recovery percentages for recovering input tax, depending on the type of expenditure. The following are the fixed percentages:

- 100% recovery is allowed for purchases of fixed assets.
- 100% recovery is allowed for current expenses.

Capital goods. No specific treatment applies for input tax recovery on capital goods, except for cars that have a special treatment. If the input tax can be allocated to taxable supplies, it could be deducted from the output tax. However, if the input tax could not be allocated to taxable or nontaxable activities, it should be apportioned as mentioned above.

Refunds. If the amount of VAT recoverable in a quarter exceeds the amount of VAT payable, the taxable person earns a VAT credit. The VAT credit is generally carried forward to offset output tax in the following VAT period. A refund of any remaining VAT credit may be claimed at 20 days following year-end provided that the claimed amount would be a minimum of LBP5 million. However, exporters (i.e., anyone who exports) may claim a refund of the VAT credit at the end of each quarter.

The tax authorities should resolve the refund request within three months from the submission deadline. They have the right to extend this period once, for an additional three months, in the case of a tax audit.

If the VAT authority accepted the refund request, then it should pay the taxable person the excess amount of VAT within four months (seven months in the case of a tax audit). Otherwise, interest equal to the average interest of one-year treasury bills is due, and this interest amount should not exceed 9%.

Pre-registration costs. A taxable person who purchases fixed assets and inventory at a date preceding VAT registration can request a refund of input tax on these items once registered. The taxpayer has to submit a letter to the Ministry of Finance in order to refund such VAT. The amount to be refunded is deducted from the VAT amount to be paid starting from the period following the taxable period in which the refund request is approved.

Write-off of bad debts. Output tax accounted for on supplies that do not get paid by the recipient (i.e., a bad debt) cannot be recovered in Lebanon.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred in relation to noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Lebanon.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

The Lebanese tax authorities may refund the VAT incurred by businesses that are neither established nor registered for VAT in Lebanon under certain conditions.

Nonresidents are defined to be foreign or Lebanese businesses and corporations residing outside Lebanon who do not have a permanent place of business nor a place of residence in Lebanon and whose visits to Lebanon are limited to providing/participating in conferences, lectures or exhibitions.

If the above individuals or corporations wish to benefit from the VAT refund, they should be:
1. Registered with the related tax authorities or commercial register in their countries of residence or in the place their business is conducted
2. Not performing any taxable/nontaxable activities in Lebanon

The VAT paid by the latter for the purchased services or goods in Lebanon should exceed LBP1 million (USD664) during a single or multiple visits per year. The input tax to be refunded should be specifically related to expenses resulted from commercial activities in Lebanon (i.e., the conferences, lectures and exhibitions attended or provided should be business related).

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A taxable person must generally provide VAT invoices for all taxable supplies made to other taxable persons and for exports. Taxable persons that supply goods and services primarily to retail customers may issue cash receipts instead of full tax invoices subject to the tax authorities' preapproval.

Credit notes. A VAT credit note may be used to reduce the VAT charged and reclaimed on a supply of goods or services. The value of the supply may be reduced if a supply is canceled, goods are returned (in full or in part) or the contractual price is reduced. The amount of VAT credited must be separately itemized in the credit note. The credit note must be cross-referenced to the original VAT invoice and must contain generally the same information.

Electronic invoices. Electronic invoicing is allowed in Lebanon. However, the stamp duty on the invoice should be settled in advance in such case.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified invoices can only be issued when issuing a regular invoice is impractical, e.g., in case for most retailers, noting that prior approval from the Ministry of Finance should be obtained beforehand and a regular formal invoice should always be prepared based on the client's request.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Lebanon.

Proof of exports. Lebanese VAT is not chargeable on supplies of exported goods, which are zero-rated. However, to qualify as zero rated, an export supply must be accompanied by official customs evidence and port clearance documents, stating that the goods have left Lebanon.

Foreign currency invoices. When the value of goods or services is set in a foreign currency, the taxpayer should calculate in their books of accounts the counter value of the VAT in LBP by exchanging the foreign amount to LBP according to the official exchange rate at the date of transaction. If the official exchange rate at the date of the transaction could not be precisely determined, the taxpayer should use the Banque du Liban (BDL) rates published one day before issuing the invoice and apply this exchange rate.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. No special treatment applies to invoices for supplies to nontaxable persons. Normal invoicing rules apply.

Records.

Record retention period. The taxable person shall retain the records, invoices and other accounting documents for a 10-year period.

Electronic archiving. Companies can maintain their records electronically, but if requested by the tax authorities in paper form at a later stage and in case of tax inspection, then they will have to provide them in the mentioned form.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. Lebanese VAT returns are submitted for quarterly periods. VAT returns must be filed within 20 days after the end of each quarter.

Periodic payments. Payment of VAT due, is required in full is required by the same deadline as the VAT return, i.e., within 20 days after the end of each quarter VAT liabilities must be paid in Lebanese pounds.

Electronic filing. All taxpayers registered with the directorate of VAT should submit their quarterly declarations electronically. In order to do so, the taxpayer should register online and create an account with the Directorate of VAT through the Ministry of Finance's website (www.finance.gov.lb).

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Lebanon.

Special schemes. No special schemes are available in Lebanon.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Lebanon.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in Lebanon.

Digital reporting. No digital reporting requirements apply in Lebanon.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. Late registration for VAT triggers the following penalties:
- LBP2 million for joint stock companies
- LBP1 million for limited liability companies
- LBP300,000 for sole proprietorships and other taxpayers

Penalties for late payment and filings. A penalty is charged for the late submission of a VAT return at a rate of 5% of the tax due for each month or part of a month that the return is late. The minimum penalty is LBP750,000 for joint stock companies, LBP500,000 for limited liability companies and LBP100,000 for other taxpayers, and the maximum penalty is 100% of the tax due. For these purposes, a fraction of a month is considered to be a whole month.

A penalty is charged for late payment of tax at a rate of 1.5% per month or part of a month that the tax is unpaid.

Penalties for errors. Penalties apply to a range of VAT errors and offenses, including the submission of incorrect tax returns (penalty is 20% of the difference between the tax due and tax paid), the issuance of incorrect VAT invoices (penalty is 25% of the tax due on the invoice), the issuance of invoices by unregistered taxpayers (penalty is three times the VAT amount in the invoice).

Penalties for fraud. The tax procedures law does not address specifically the penalties imposed in cases of fraud. However, the below governs the penalties imposed in case of obstruction of the tax control measures.

For each taxable person who refrains from presenting the accounting records and supporting documents for the submitted returns, or refrains from booking certain accounting transactions, a penalty of 50% from the tax due is imposed. The minimum penalty is LBP750,000 for joint stock companies, LBP500,000 for limited liability companies and LBP100,000 for other taxpayers.

In order for the tax authorities to collect their taxes, they have the privilege to access the taxpayers' funds. The privilege also encompasses the funds of the persons held responsible at the company.

Under certain conditions, the tax authorities have the right to issue a decision to withhold the taxpayers' funds in case the latter declines to settle their taxes.

A legal agreement between Switzerland and the Principality of Liechtenstein, states that the Principality of Liechtenstein incorporates the substantive provisions of the Swiss VAT Act into its State Law (agreement between the Swiss Confederation and the Principality of Liechtenstein on the contract regarding VAT in the Principality of Liechtenstein, completed on 12 July 2012, entered into force on 17 August 2012). As such, please refer to the Switzerland chapter for details on the VAT rules in Liechtenstein.

In addition, last resort decisions taken by a Liechtenstein court regarding substantive law provisions governing VAT may be subjected to a public law appeal before the Swiss Federal Supreme Court. The procedure is ruled by Swiss law.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- The supply of goods or services in Lithuania supplied for consideration by a taxable person performing economic activities
- The intra-Community acquisition of goods from another Member State (see the chapter on the EU)
- The importation of goods into Lithuania (subject to import VAT)
- Certain other cases linked to the international traffic of goods (for example, the supply of goods that are intended to be produced to customs and placed in temporary storage, the supply of goods that are intended to be placed in a free zone and the supply of goods that are intended to be placed under customs warehousing arrangements or special inward processing procedure)

C. Who is liable

Persons liable to VAT are:
- A taxable person, i.e., a business entity, an individual established in Lithuania or elsewhere or a collective investment undertaking (fund) that performs an economic activity in the course of its business in Lithuania
- A legal entity that is not a taxable person with respect to intra-EU acquisitions of goods or any person with respect to the intra-Community acquisition of new means of transport

The VAT registration threshold for Lithuanian entities is turnover in excess of EUR45,000 in the preceding 12 months. If the total turnover of all entities controlled by a single entity or by an individual exceeds EUR45,000, all entities are required to register for VAT, even if the turnover of each entity separately does not exceed the threshold.

The VAT registration threshold for farmers engaged in respective activities under a special scheme, legal nontaxable persons and taxable persons who are not eligible for input tax deduction is the amount of intra-EU acquisitions of goods exceeding EUR14,000 in the preceding 12 months (i.e., no threshold for taxable persons). Special rules apply to foreign or "non-established" businesses that have no fixed establishment in Lithuania.

Exemption from registration. There are no exemptions from the VAT registration for Lithuanian entities if their turnover in Lithuania exceeds the EUR45,000 threshold in the preceding 12 months.

Foreign entities are not required to register for VAT if their transactions are exempt, outside the scope of VAT or zero-rated (taxable at 0%). However, for certain supplies, VAT registration is required even though the zero rate of VAT applies. These supplies include the following:
- Exports of goods
- Supplies of goods that are intended to be produced to customs and placed in temporary storage
- Supplies of goods that are intended to be placed in a free zone or in a free warehouse
- Supplies of goods that are intended to be placed under customs warehousing arrangements or special inward processing procedure
- Services linked to the above supplies
- Intra-Community supplies of goods
- Supplies of new vehicles that are transported to another EU Member State

Taxable persons established outside the EU that supply electronic services and taxable persons that supply electronic services through a fixed establishment outside the EU to nontaxable persons established in Lithuania must register for VAT (that is, if the service provider is not yet registered in another EU Member State).

Voluntary registration and small businesses. Certain persons may register for VAT voluntarily. This possibility exists for 1) a business established in Lithuania that has turnover not exceeding the registration threshold (except when it is carrying out or intends to carry out only an activity for which input and/or import VAT on goods and/or services used could not be deductible under the provisions of Lithuanian VAT law) and 2) a person that acquires or plans to acquire goods from another EU Member State (except new means of transport or excise goods). In practice, persons established outside Lithuania may also voluntarily register for VAT.

Group registration. VAT group registration is not allowed under Lithuanian VAT law. Entities that are legally related must register for VAT individually.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that does not have a fixed establishment in Lithuania. A non-established business must register for VAT in Lithuania if it makes taxable supplies of goods or services in Lithuania. No VAT registration threshold applies to supplies made by foreign non-established businesses; that is, registration is required in the event a taxable supply is made in Lithuania, unless the reverse charge applies or unless the supply is outside the scope of VAT or is exempt.

An EU taxable person must register for VAT if it makes distance sales of goods to customers in Lithuania in excess of EUR35,000 in the current or previous year.

Tax representatives. A non-established business must register for VAT through a fixed establishment in Lithuania or appoint a fiscal representative.

A nonresident business that carries out taxable supplies of goods (services) in the territory of Lithuania must register for VAT through its fixed establishment in Lithuania or it must appoint a fiscal representative (also referred to as a tax representative). The requirement to appoint a fiscal representative is not applicable to nonresident businesses that are based in other EU Member States. The requirement to appoint the fiscal representative is also not applicable to non-EU established businesses that are based in the territories where the provisions of Mutual assistance agreements are applied, which essentially are equivalent to the provisions of Directive No 2010/24/EU and Regulation No. 904/2010.

Reverse charge. A non-established business that makes taxable supplies in Lithuania is not required to register for VAT if the reverse-charge rule applies to all its transactions. Under the reverse-charge rule, a Lithuanian customer that is a taxable person established in Lithuania is responsible for the calculation and payment of VAT, unless either of the following circumstances exists:
• The supply is used by a fixed establishment of the person outside Lithuania.
• The supply falls under the list of exceptions.

Domestic reverse charge. Under the domestic reverse-charge rule, a customer that is a VAT-registered person in Lithuania is responsible for the calculation and payment of VAT with respect to supplies of the following goods:
• Natural gas and electricity
• Goods installed and assembled in Lithuania

The Lithuanian VAT law also provides for a reverse-charge procedure with respect to supplies between persons established in Lithuania, including the following:
• Supplies of goods and services while a supplier is under bankruptcy or a restructuring procedure
• Supplies of metal scrap and similar products
• Supplies of timber
• Supplies of construction services as detailed in the law on construction and supplies of certain construction materials

- Supplies of hard drives, provided that the customer is registered for VAT in Lithuania (effective 1 August 2019 until 28 February 2022)
- Supplies of mobile phones, tablets and laptops (classified under CN code 8471 30 00), provided that the customer is registered for VAT in Lithuania (effective 1 August 2019 until 30 June 2022)

Digital economy. For digital services, telecommunication services or broadcasting services supplied business-to-business (B2B), the place of supply is the place where the recipient is established. No Lithuanian VAT should be charged, and the reverse charge may apply unless a supplier and a customer are both established in Lithuania.

For digital services, telecommunication services or broadcasting services, supplied business-to-consumer (B2C) context, effective 1 January 2019, when a resident supplier or a taxable person established outside the EU and having a branch in Lithuania only, provides telecommunication services or broadcasting services to nontaxable persons in other EU Member States, the place of supply of these services shall be deemed to be effected in the territory of Lithuania, if the value of the services provided does not exceed EUR10,000 in the current and previous calendar years. The above taxable persons shall have an option to choose paying the VAT due in another EU Member State rather than Lithuania. The tax authorities should be formally notified about the decision. This option shall apply for at least 24 months.

Mini One-Stop Shop. The optional simplification measure called the "Mini One-Stop Shop" (MOSS) with respect to digital services, telecommunication services and broadcasting services supplied in a B2C context. The supply of these services is generally considered as taking place in the Member State of the customer, not the Member State of the supplier.

The MOSS scheme allows all taxable persons supplying digital services, telecommunication services or broadcasting services to nontaxable persons in EU Member States in which they do not have an establishment, to account for the VAT due on those supplies via a web portal in the Member State in which they are identified.

The MOSS allows qualifying taxable persons to avoid registering in each Member State of consumption. The MOSS simplification is available both for taxable persons established in the EU and outside the EU.

The MOSS generally mirrored the scheme that was in place for non-EU established suppliers of electronically supplied digital services, telecommunication services or broadcasting services supplied to final consumers. Persons already registered under the pre-existing scheme for electronically supplied digital services, telecommunication services or broadcasting services, should retain their existing individual VAT identification numbers for the purposes of the MOSS.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Lithuania.

Vouchers. Effective 1 January 2019, Lithuania adopted provisions of the Council Directive (EU) 2016/1065. Changes in the local legislation defined single-purpose vouchers (SPV) and multi-purpose vouchers (MPV) and set the rules on taxation with VAT of transactions in both cases. New rules shall apply to all vouchers released from 1 January 2019 and onward.

SPVs are defined as vouchers where the place of supply of the goods or services to which the voucher relates, and VAT due on those goods or services is known at the time of issue of the voucher. An MPV is any voucher that is not a single-purpose voucher.

A transfer of an SPV shall be treated as a supply of goods or services to which the voucher relates (i.e., it is treated as a supply), and VAT shall be accounted for accordingly. MPVs shall only be subject to VAT when the voucher is redeemed, i.e., no VAT shall be due when the voucher is transferred through the supply chain. The value on which VAT should be accounted for is either the price paid by the consumer, or if that is not known, the face value of the voucher, less the amount of VAT relating to the goods or services supplied.

Registration procedures. Applications for registration as a Lithuanian taxpayer and as a taxable person can be filed electronically (recommended) or manually through the system Mano VMI. Registration as a Lithuanian taxpayer takes up to five working days, and registration as a Lithuanian taxable person takes up to three working days.

Deregistration. A Lithuanian person who is a taxable person has the right to deregister voluntarily if:
- The taxable person's total turnover does not exceed EUR45,000 in the preceding 12 months.
- The value of intra-EU acquisitions does not exceed EUR14,000 in the preceding 12 months.
- The taxable person finishes its activities due to liquidation or reorganization.
- The taxable person terminates its taxable activities.

A foreign person who is a Lithuanian taxable person has the right to deregister voluntarily if:
- The taxable person finishes its activities in Lithuania.
- In the case of distance selling, the value of goods transported in Lithuania does not exceed EUR35,000 in the preceding 12 months.
- The taxable person finishes its activities due to liquidation or reorganization.

Lithuanian taxable persons may be deregistered on the initiative of the tax administrator as well if:
- The taxable person does not perform economic activities or intra-EU acquisitions (e.g., the Lithuanian taxable person does not submit the VAT returns or does not report taxable supplies), for two months in a row.
- The taxable person finishes its activities due to liquidation or reorganization.
- The taxable person (natural person) is dead.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 21%
- Reduced rates: 5%, 9%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services, unless a specific measure provides a reduced rate, the zero rate or an exemption.

Examples of supplies of goods and services taxable at 0%
- Exports of goods from the EU and related services
- International transport and related services
- Supplies related to ships and aircraft
- Intra-Community supplies of goods
- Work on movable tangible property (certain cases)
- Intermediary services for the above supplies

Examples of supplies of goods and services taxable at 5%
- Medicines and medical aid products, subject to full or partial compensation from the state medical insurance budget, as well as non-compensated prescription medicines
- Technical equipment that is used to assist persons with disabilities as well as for the repair services of such equipment

- Newspapers, magazines and other periodicals, with the exception of those with erotic or violent content or those that do not comply with professional ethics publications, as well as printed productions in which more than 4/5 of the content is paid advertising (valid from 1 January 2019)

Examples of supplies of goods and services taxable at 9%

- Supplies of books and printed non-periodical materials such as encyclopedias, dictionaries, children books and maps
- Heating and hot water supplies to residential premises
- Newspapers, magazines and other periodicals, with the exception of those with erotic or violent content or those that do not comply with professional ethics publications, as well as printed productions in which more than 4/5 of the content is paid advertising (valid until 31 December 2018)
- Passengers and their baggage transport services going on regular routes that are authorized by the Ministry of Transportation or the local authorities
- Accommodation services supplied according to the legislation regulating tourism activities (valid until 31 December 2022)
- Fuel wood and wood products intended for heating households (valid from 1 January 2019)

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Health care services and goods
- Real estate rent and disposals
- Insurance and reinsurance services
- Certain financial services
- Cultural and sporting activities
- Educational services
- Betting and gaming services
- Universal postal services
- Social and related services
- Radio and television services
- Imported goods (certain cases)
- Services supplied by independent groups, as referred in the Articles 132-134 of Directive 2006/112/EC

Option to tax for exempt supplies. A taxable person may opt to charge VAT on the following supplies:

- Rent of real estate
- Disposal of real estate
- Certain financial services

The option is applied only if the above services are supplied to the taxable person. The tax authorities should be formally notified about the decision. A taxable person that has opted to charge VAT on any of the above services should charge VAT on all similar transactions for a period of not less than 24 months.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point." The basic time of supply for goods and services is when the VAT invoice is issued. If an invoice is not issued, the time of supply is when the earlier of the following events occurs:

- Goods or services are supplied.
- Payment for goods or services is received.

A range of other situations have different time of supply rules. Some of these situations are described below.

Deposits and prepayments. The time of supply for a prepayment received before the supply is made is when the prepayment or the total payment is received. This rule applies to contracts that provide for a supply after 12 months. If the prepayment is received and if the supply will be triggered earlier than 12 months beginning on the date of the signing of the contract, the taxable person may choose the date of receipt of prepayment as the time of supply and calculate the VAT on this prepayment.

If the invoice is issued upon the receipt of prepayment, the remuneration indicated in the final invoice shall be reduced by the amount of prepayment. If special margin schemes for travel agents and for secondhand goods, works of art, collectors' items and antiques are applied, the above treatment of prepayments does not apply.

Continuous supplies of services. In the case where long-term services are supplied, i.e., services that are supplied for a certain continuous period such as telecommunications, leases, and also in the case of long-term supply of electricity, gas, heat and other types of energy, VAT shall become chargeable when the VAT invoice for the supply of goods or services during the accounting period is issued. In cases where the VAT invoice is not issued, VAT is chargeable upon receipt of the consideration for the amount of goods or services supplied during the accounting period.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. Lithuania has no separate time of supply rule for goods sent on approval for sale or return (the general time of supply rules set out above apply in these circumstances). Thus, businesses should consider other simplification measures that could possibly apply in these cases (e.g., call-off stock simplification), due to timing of charging VAT, issuing invoices and/or VAT registration obligations.

If the goods are returned to the seller and to the same EU Member State, the transaction is deemed as annulled and it does not result in VAT obligations in Lithuania. If the goods are not sold but are not returned to the seller, the seller may be liable for VAT on the basis of making a fictitious intra-Community acquisition and a supply for private use.

Reverse-charge services. The time of supply for reverse-charge services is the date on which the invoice for the services is issued. If an invoice for the services is not issued, the time of supply for the services is when the earliest of the following events occurs:

- The services are provided.
- The consideration is paid for the services provided.

Leased assets. VAT shall become chargeable when the goods are transferred in cases where goods are transferred under a lease contract or other contract that provides for payment on deferred terms or by installments and under the terms of this transaction the major part of risk and benefit relating to the ownership of the goods as well as the ownership of the goods shall pass to the person to whom the goods have been transferred.

Imported goods. Import VAT shall become chargeable upon the entry of the goods from a third country territory into the territory of Lithuania. Where the goods imported into the territory of Lithuania are subjected to certain actions, procedures or arrangements specified in VAT law, import VAT shall become chargeable upon cessation of the application of said actions, procedures or arrangements within the territory of Lithuania.

Postponed accounting for imports applies to imports made by taxable persons. The import VAT due is calculated by the customs authority, but the VAT is included and recovered on the VAT return in the same taxable period.

Intra-Community acquisitions. The time of supply for the goods acquired from another EU Member State is the date on which the supplier issues an invoice, but not later than the 15th day of the month following the month during which the transport of goods began.

Intra-Community supplies of goods. VAT shall become chargeable for the goods supplied to another Member State when the VAT invoice for the supply of goods is issued, but not later than the 15th day of the month following the month in which the goods were dispatched.

Construction work. The time of supply for the self-construction of a building is the moment when the building begins to be used in economic activities. For an essential improvement on a building, the time of supply is the moment when the works are finished. The time of supply for construction services is when the invoice for the services is issued. If the invoice for construction services is not issued, the time of supply for the services is when the earliest of the following events occurs:
- The services are provided.
- The consideration is paid for the services provided.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person that is registered for VAT and that performs economic activities may recover input tax, which is VAT charged on goods and services supplied to it for business purposes. A taxable person generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax, which is VAT charged on supplies made.

Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services acquired in Lithuania, VAT paid on imports of goods and VAT self-assessed for reverse-charge services received.

The amount of the VAT reclaimed must be detailed on a valid VAT invoice or on cash receipts (for small amounts of VAT).

Specific rules apply for the recovery of VAT incurred before VAT registration in Lithuania.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use by a business), are directly attributable to VAT exempt or out-of-scope activities. In addition, input tax may not be recovered for some items of business expenditure.

The following lists provides some examples of items of expenditure for which input tax is not deductible.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Purchase, lease and hire of cars
- Business gifts (if amount for “small gift” is exceeded)
- 50% of VAT for entertainment expenses provided the expenses do not exceed 2% of revenues, 100% of VAT for entertainment expenses in excess of this limit
- VAT paid on behalf of a third party
- Tourism services if a special VAT scheme applies
- Secondhand and cultural value goods if a special VAT scheme applies

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Accommodation
- Advertising
- Books
- Conferences
- Fees from professional advisors such as accountants, lawyers and tax advisors
- Land and property

- Lease/purchase of vans and trucks
- Mobile phones
- Parking (on and off street)
- Petrol
- Petrol and maintenance costs of trucks and vans
- Subscriptions for periodicals and magazines (related to the business of the company)
- Telephone/faxes used in the office
- Travel expenses (air, rail, bus, boat)

Partial exemption. Input tax directly related to making exempt supplies is not generally recoverable. If a taxable person makes both exempt supplies and taxable supplies, it may not deduct input tax in full. This situation is referred to as "partial deduction."

The amount of input tax that may be deducted is generally calculated using the following two-stage calculation:
- The first stage identifies the input tax that may be directly allocated to taxable and to exempt supplies. Input tax directly allocated to taxable supplies is deductible, while input tax directly related to exempt supplies is not deductible.
- The second stage identifies the amount of the remaining input tax (for example, input tax on general business overhead) that may be allocated to taxable supplies and recovered. The calculation is done using a pro rata method, based on the value of taxable supplies made in the period, compared with the value of total supplies made.

If a taxable person is not able to directly allocate VAT to taxable and exempt supplies, a pro rata calculation may be used for all input tax incurred.

A partially exempt taxable person may provisionally use the recovery percentage calculated for the previous year. If, at the end of the year, the taxable person's actual recovery percentage differs by more than 5% from the provisional percentage used, an adjustment calculation must be made.

Capital goods. Capital goods are items of capital expenditure that are used in a business for more than one year. Input tax is deducted in the VAT year in which the goods are acquired or first taken into use. The amount of input tax recovered depends on the taxable person's partial deduction recovery position in the VAT year of acquisition or first use. However, the amount of input tax recovered for capital goods must be adjusted over time if the taxable person's partial exemption recovery percentage changes during the adjustment period or if the capital goods are either used for nontaxable supplies or written off. The adjustment may result in either an increase or a decrease of deductible input tax, depending on whether the taxable person's recovery percentage increased or decreased in the year, compared with the year in which the capital goods were acquired or first used.

In Lithuania, the capital goods adjustment applies to the following assets for the number of years indicated:
- Property immovable by its nature, including improvement of buildings or structures: adjusted for a period of 10 years
- Other types of tangible capital assets legally required to be depreciated over a period of at least four years for purposes of the taxes on profit or income: adjusted for a period of five years

The adjustment is applied each year following the year of acquisition, to a fraction of the total input tax (1/10 for immovable property and 1/5 for other tangible capital goods).

Refunds. If the amount of input tax that is deductible for a VAT period exceeds the amount of output tax that is chargeable in the same period, the taxable person has a VAT credit. The credit must first be used to offset other taxes payable. If the amount of VAT credit exceeds all taxes payable, the excess is refunded either on a monthly or semiannual basis.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax may be subject to VAT recovery in those cases where VAT was paid on goods or services acquired before an entity was registered as taxable person. Special rules and procedures apply.

Write-off of bad debts. Suppliers may be able to reduce the calculated payable VAT with the output tax amount attributable to bad debts (not applicable to margin schemes and when the supplier of goods or provider of services is a related person). As indicated in VAT law, a receivable remuneration is considered as a bad debt (including output tax), if the person cannot recover such remuneration for at least 12 calendar months from the taxation moment of the supplied goods or provided services and if the output tax amount was calculated and declared.

Noneconomic activities. The following activities are considered as noneconomic activities:
• Employment (under employment contract)
• Activities of state and local government authorities (with exceptions)

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Lithuania refunds VAT incurred by businesses that are neither established nor registered for VAT in Lithuania. Non-established businesses may claim Lithuanian VAT to the same extent as VAT-registered businesses.

For the general VAT refund rules in the EU Directive 2008/9/EC and the EU 13th Directive refund schemes, see the chapter on the EU.

EU businesses. For businesses established in the EU, a refund is made under the terms of the EU Directive 2008/9/EC.

The deadline for refund claims is 30 September of the year following the year when the input tax was incurred. The minimum claim period is three months, while the maximum period is one year. The minimum claim for a period of less than a year is EUR400. For an annual claim, the minimum amount is EUR49.

A taxable person that is not established in Lithuania (that is, registered in another EU Member State for VAT purposes) submits the VAT refund applications to the electronic VAT refund system through the home country tax authorities.

Non-EU businesses. For businesses established outside the EU, a refund is made under the terms of the EU 13th Directive. The refund scheme for non-EU countries applies in accordance with the reciprocity principle and is currently in place with Armenia, Iceland, Norway, Canada, Switzerland and Turkey.

Effective since 1 January 2018, foreign taxable persons established in countries that are members of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD), but that do not have a VAT (or an identical tax) are entitled to apply for a VAT refund and claim the VAT paid in the Republic of Lithuania. Currently, this provision applies only to the taxable persons established in the United States.

To claim a refund, a non-established business must satisfy both of the following conditions:
• It must not have a business establishment in Lithuania through which activities are performed (or if the claimant is an individual, he or she must not be a permanent resident in Lithuania).
• It must not make taxable supplies of goods or services in Lithuania.

However, if the claimant supplies international transport services or sells goods that are taxed through the application of the reverse-charge mechanism, it may still apply for a VAT refund.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A Lithuanian taxable person must generally provide a VAT invoice for all taxable supplies made and for exports. A VAT invoice is necessary to support a claim for input tax deduction.

Credit notes. A VAT credit note may be used to reduce VAT charged and reclaimed on a supply if the taxable value changes (for example, if the customer returns the goods or the supplier grants a discount) or if the VAT rate changes.

Electronic invoicing. Lithuanian VAT law permits electronic invoicing in line with EU Directive 2010/45/EU (see the chapter on the EU).

Electronic invoices that are received in electronic means are acceptable for the deduction of input tax, even without an electronic signature. The authenticity of the original electronic invoice, the integrity of content and legibility must be ensured from the time of issue until the end of the 10-year archiving period. Businesses can decide individually how to ensure the authenticity of the original invoice, the integrity of content and legibility, provided that a reliable audit trail between the invoice and the service is established.

Simplified VAT invoices. With certain exceptions, simplified invoices are permitted where the total value of goods or services supplied does not exceed EUR100 (including VAT). Simplified VAT invoices cannot be issued in the following cases:
- Distance selling
- Intra-EU supply of goods taxed with 0% VAT rate (under Article 49 of the Lithuanian Law on VAT)
- Supply of a new vehicle to another EU Member State
- Supply of services by a taxable person who is not established in an EU Member State in which the services are deemed to be supplied and the customer of the services is liable to account the VAT reverse charge for the services supplied

Simplified VAT invoices may also be issued in the below cases regardless of the value of the invoice:
- Supply of goods or services for private use
- Self-manufacture of assets
- Special cases indicated in Article 9 of the Lithuanian Law on VAT (e.g., transfer of property where it is transferred as a contribution in kind, improvement of the building)

Self-billing. Self-billing is allowed in Lithuania. The customer may issue a VAT invoice on behalf of the supplier provided that both parties agreed on this in advance (a formal written agreement is not required, but is recommended, i.e., the agreement may be made verbally). A reference to self-billing must also be indicated on the invoice (Lith. "Sąskaitų faktūrų išsirašymas").

Proof of exports and intra-Community supplies. Supplies of exported goods or the intra-Community supply of goods are zero-rated. However, to qualify as VAT zero-rated, exports and intra-Community supplies must be supported by certain evidences and proofs. Acceptable proof inter alia includes the following documentation:
- In case of export supplies, a taxpayer should obtain documents substantiating that the goods were exported outside the EU, i.e., transportation documents (e.g., CMR, air waybill, bill of lading), exportation documents (e.g., export notification form IE559), payment documents. The documents should indicate that the transportation was arranged by the supplier or the purchaser or the other person on their behalf.
- In case of intra-EU supplies, in order to apply 0% VAT rate on intra-EU supplies, a supplier must possess either documents, specified in Article 45a of the updated Council Implementation Regulation (EU) 282/2011 or other documents, such as transportation documents (e.g., CMR, air waybill, bill of lading) substantiating that the goods were transported outside the territory of Lithuania, sales-purchases agreements, purchase orders, VAT invoices, etc. The documents should indicate that the transportation was arranged by the supplier or the purchaser or the other person on their behalf. The taxpayer should also hold the proof that the customer had a valid VAT number in another EU Member State at the time of supply of goods. It should be noted that the transportation documents mentioned above must be filled in as per the rules established.

Besides, as a part of the European Commission's action plan on VAT, effective from 1 January 2020 to apply VAT at the zero-rate for intra-EU supplies, two additional mandatory obligations arise. These are as follows:

- Indicating on the invoice a valid customer's VAT identification number, obtained from the customer and issued to them by an EU Member State other than the one from which the goods were dispatched
- Reporting the respective supplies in the EC Sales List (form FR0564 in Lithuania).

Foreign currency invoices. If an invoice is issued in a foreign currency, the VAT amount must be converted to euros and be denoted in euros on the invoice.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. Taxable persons must issue VAT invoices for supplies made to nontaxable persons, except for exceptions outlined in the local legislation. The exceptions do not apply to the supply of a new vehicle to another EU Member State. The exceptions are:

- The supply of goods (services) when a cash register receipt is issued, or the use of a cash register is not required (e.g., public transport tickets, lottery tickets, produce sold at international fairs and exhibitions lasting for up to 10 days, payments received by libraries and schools, sale of goods in outdoor markets)
- Insurance services where an insurance policy is issued
- Financial services, provided that an accounting document is issued in compliance with specific regulation
- Long-term services that are supplied during a continuous period (e.g., telecommunication services, utilities, cold and hot water supplies, electricity, heating energy and gas supplies), provided that an accounting document is issued in compliance with specific regulation
- The supply of goods (services) through vending machines that comply with specific legal and technical requirements
- Services and goods supplied that are related to the renovation of apartments as specified in legislation
- The supply of digital services, telecommunication services, broadcasting services and (or) electronically supplied services under the MOSS scheme

If a cash register receipt is issued, the purchaser has the right to request a VAT invoice.

Records. Taxable persons must keep their accounts according to the procedure prescribed by legal acts in such a way that the accounting information enables a correct determination of the taxable person's obligations with respect to VAT. Taxpayers must also keep registers of VAT invoices received and issued by them. Specific requirements apply for certain transactions (e.g., call-off stock transactions), also for taxable persons engaged in both VAT taxable and exempt activities (partial deduction).

Record retention period. Taxable persons must ensure that VAT invoices issued by them (or by customers or third parties on their behalf), as well as VAT invoices received by taxable persons established in Lithuania shall be retained for 10 years from the date of the issue.

Electronic archiving. Taxable persons shall retain the documents in the same format (hard copy or electronic) in which they were sent or submitted. Taxable persons must archive documents in the territory of Lithuania, unless the documents are stored electronically. Taxable persons that keep invoices by using electronic means, must ensure full access to the documents for the tax authorities for supervisory purposes.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. Lithuanian taxable persons must generally file VAT returns monthly. A taxable person whose taxable supplies did not exceed EUR60,000 in the preceding calendar year may choose to file semiannually (valid until 1 July 2019). A legal taxable person whose taxable supplies did not exceed EUR300,000 in the preceding calendar year may choose to file quarterly (valid from 1 July 2019). Individuals generally file semiannually. However, they may request a different VAT period.

Members of international corporate groups may request to file VAT returns for a different period if the group uses accounting periods other than calendar months. However, the maximum allowable return period is 60 days. In addition, both the beginning of the first period and the end of the last period must coincide with the calendar year (that is, beginning on 1 January and ending on 31 December each year).

Only the monthly VAT return period shall apply to taxable persons acquiring goods from other EU Member States and services where the buyer is liable to calculate and pay VAT reverse charge under Article 95(2) of the Lithuanian Law on VAT (i.e., any other VAT return period shall not be applied).

In general, monthly VAT returns must be filed by the 25th day of the month following the end of the tax period (other dates may apply).

Periodic payments. Payment of VAT due is required in full by the same date as the VAT return deadline, i.e., by the 25th day of the month following the end of the tax period. VAT return liabilities must be paid in euros.

Electronic filing. VAT returns may be filed to the tax authorities both manually or electronically. VAT returns, and all other tax returns must be filed electronically by Lithuanian legal entities. Foreign taxable entities are eligible to submit the return either electronically or in paper. For electronic filing, registration in the Electronic Declaration System is required.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Lithuania.

Special schemes.

Farmers. Farmers can receive 6% compensation from the buyers of their produced agricultural products. The receipt and payment of compensation should be declared to the tax authorities accordingly.

Travel agencies. Travel agencies calculate VAT on the margin of the services bought and sold to customers. Travel agencies have no right to deduct input tax on travel services bought from the third parties. Travel services supplied by travel agencies outside Lithuania are taxed at the zero rate.

Investment gold. The supply of investment gold acquired from another Member State is exempt; agency services for supplies and acquisitions of investment gold are also exempt. However, VAT-registered persons manufacturing investment gold or reworking any gold into investment gold can choose to charge VAT on the supplies they perform. In those cases, agents can also charge VAT for their services outlined above. Persons supplying investment gold that are not registered for VAT can register for VAT and make use of the provision outlined above.

Also, input tax incurred on acquisitions of investment gold for which the VAT has been chosen to charge in the case outlined above, acquisition or import of any gold to be turned into investment gold, acquisition of gold form, weight and purity changing services can be deducted. Persons manufacturing investment gold or reworking any gold into investment gold can also deduct any input tax incurred on acquisitions of any services or goods related to the processes named above.

Telecommunications, broadcasting and electronic services. Taxable persons supplying telecommunication, broadcasting and electronic services in the EU to nontaxable persons can choose to be registered for VAT purposes in Lithuania to fulfill their VAT obligations relating to these services supplied in any Member State.

The sale of secondhand goods such as art, antiques and other collectibles. VAT is calculated on the margin of the goods bought and sold, and if this scheme is adopted, the seller has no right to deduct input tax. However, a seller (taxable person) has the right to calculate VAT on the total value of goods, in which case the seller has the right to deduct input tax paid, but not earlier than the date the goods are sold.

Cash accounting. Lithuania has not implemented Article 167a from Directive 2006/112/EC. However, there is a similar optional regime applicable to agricultural producers. Under this regime, VAT on the supplied agricultural products becomes chargeable upon the payment of the consideration.

Call-off stock simplification. As of 1 January 2020, Lithuania is implementing simplification measures regarding the supply of goods under a call-off stock regime. The call-off stock arrangements shall be deemed to exist where all of the five following conditions are met:
- Goods are dispatched or transported by a taxable person, or by a third party on his behalf, to another EU Member State with a view to those goods being supplied there, at a later stage and after arrival, to another taxable person who is entitled to take ownership of those goods in accordance with an existing agreement between both taxable persons. The agreement must be in a written form.
- The taxable person dispatching or transporting the goods has not established his business nor has a fixed establishment in the EU Member State to which the goods are dispatched or transported.
- The taxable person to whom the goods are intended to be supplied is identified for the VAT purposes in the EU Member State to which the goods are dispatched or transported and both his identity and the VAT identification number assigned to him by that EU Member State are known to the taxable person dispatching or transporting the goods at the time when the dispatch or transport begins.
- The taxable person dispatching or transporting the goods records the transfer of the goods in the goods register or in other appropriate register established by another EU Member State and includes the identity of the taxable person acquiring the goods and the VAT identification number assigned to him by the EU Member State to which the goods are dispatched or transported in the report of the supply of goods and/or services to other EU Member States or other appropriate report established by another EU Member State.
- The taxable person dispatching or transporting the goods shall transfer the right to dispose of the goods as owner to the taxable person who acquires the goods no later than 12 months after their arrival in another EU Member State.

Annual returns. Generally, a taxpayer is obliged to provide an annual VAT return only in cases where its partial exemption recovery percentage has changed or when adjustments in the context of the capital goods scheme are necessary. Otherwise, annual returns are not required in Lithuania.

Supplementary filings. A taxable person that trades with other EU countries must complete statistical reports, known as Intrastat, and EU Sales Lists (ESLs). Taxable persons must begin to report services provided to taxable persons established in other EU countries if these services are subject to VAT in those EU countries.

Intrastat. For the year 2020 the thresholds are as follows:
- If the amount of intra-EU acquisitions within the previous 12 months exceeds EUR250,000, the Intrastat form shall be filed to the Territorial Customs Office.
- If the amount of intra-EU supplies within the previous 12 months exceeds EUR150,000 the Intrastat form shall be filed to the Territorial Customs Office.

Also, additional statistical information needs to be provided in the Intrastat declaration (box 13) if the value of intra-EU supplies exceeds EUR6 million or the value of intra-EU acquisitions exceeds EUR3 million.

The deadline for submission of the Intrastat statement is the 10th working day after the end of the calendar month to which it relates.

Intrastat statements may be submitted both electronically and manually.

EU Sales List. No threshold is applied. However, in cases where there are no transactions in a given period that would need to be reported, it is not required to submit a nil EU Sales List. EU Sales Lists can be submitted either manually or by electronic means.

Electronic VAT ledgers (i.SAF). Taxable persons registered for VAT must also submit monthly data on sales and purchases invoices to the Lithuanian tax authorities by electronic means (i.SAF data file) until the 20th of the month following the reporting period (please refer to Digital reporting subsection below for more details).

Digital reporting.

Standard Audit File for Tax (SAF-T). SAF-T contains the data about the taxpayer's economic activity extracted from its accounting system. SAF-T is one of eight integrated elements of intelligent tax administration systems called i.MAS, implemented to automate the tax data collection and analysis processes while helping to support the tax authorities during their tax audits and other tax administration functions.

SAF-T file must be filed on request of the respective authorities (including tax authorities). Initially, SAF-T is compulsory for Lithuanian companies and for the foreign businesses having a branch in Lithuania following the schedule below:
- From 1 January 2019 when a company's net sales revenue exceeds EUR300,000 in 2017.
- From 1 January 2020 and later periods when a company's net sales revenue exceeds EUR300,000 in the year before the preceding year.

Establishing the accounting registers, the entities obliged or wishing to submit SAF-T shall follow the technical specification of SAF-T and the technical requirements. SAF-T is formed in XML (extensible markup language) format.

SAF-T consists of four parts:
- Header (basic information about the entity)
- Master data file (general ledger accounts, information about customers, suppliers, assets, owners, physical stock, products, etc.)
- GL entries
- Data of the initial documents (information about sales invoices, purchase invoices, payments, movement of goods and asset transactions)

Taxpayers may be imposed with penalties for failing to submit the SAF-T file upon the request of the authorities.

Electronic VAT ledgers (i.SAF). Taxable persons registered for VAT must submit monthly data on sales and purchases invoices to the Lithuanian tax authorities by electronic means (i.SAF). i.SAF data include detailed information (e.g., general information about the legal person, taxable period, taxable amount, tax point, invoice number, information about suppliers, customers) about all performed and received supplies.

i.SAF data may be submitted electronically as an XML data file in the tax authorities' integrated tax administration system or i.SAF data may be filed on the website. i.SAF data shall be submitted by the 20th day of the month following the reporting period.

Please note that i.SAF and SAF-T are different reporting requirements. i.SAF is for invoice registers, whereas SAF-T contains a significant amount of data registered in the ERP of the taxpayer (including the invoice data). i.SAF is filed on a monthly basis, whereas, SAF-T is on an on-demand basis (requested from the tax authorities, and other government bodies, such as the one responsible for financial crime investigation), depending on the annual sales revenue. SAF-T contains much more information.

Transport data reporting (i.VAZ). i.VAZ contains online data on transport documents. The i.VAZ system shall only be applied for goods that are loaded and carried by road transport within the territory of Lithuania. The transport document data has to be reported to the i.VAZ subsystem before the dispatch occurs.

Remote accounting services (i.APS). i.APS is a subsystem of remote accounting services developed for small businesses. Applicable from 2019, i.APS allows self-employed persons and small businesses to manage income-expenditure accounting by electronic means, using data, accumulated in other i.MAS subsystems.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. In practice, penalties and interest are not assessed for late registration or failure to register for VAT. However, based on the Lithuanian Code of Administrative Offenses, failure to register for VAT may cause a warning or a penalty ranging from EUR390 to EUR1,100.

If a business does not register for VAT, it still must calculate and pay VAT. Failure to comply with this obligation may result in penalties and interest, as well as status of an unreliable taxpayer. The concept of an unreliable taxpayer was brought into effect from 1 January 2019. If the taxpayer is deemed unreliable, the following consequences may occur:
- Information about unreliable taxpayer will be available for third parties.
- Longer limitation periods will be applied during the operational inspection.
- Unreliable taxpayers will lose the right to participate in public procurements.
- Unreliable taxpayers will not be able to obtain the status of a beneficiary or will lose the respective status.

Penalties for late payment and filings. The penalty assessed for the late payment of VAT ranges from 10% to 50% of the unpaid tax. Effective as of 1 January 2019, the calculated fine is doubled for a taxpayer who has already been assessed any penalty for the violation of the same tax law during a period of statute of limitation. Voluntary disclosure of the tax underpayment shall not result in penalty assessment, i.e., penalty may be imposed by the tax authorities in case late payments are discovered during a tax audit.

In addition, late payment interest is calculated from the day following the due date for payment up to the date on which the payment is made. The late payment interest rate is 0.03% per day.

Based on the Lithuanian Code of Administrative Offenses, not fulfilling with respective tax reporting obligations may lead to the following consequences:

- Failure to fill taxpayer's declaration procedures, late submission of declaration or failure to provide declarations to the Lithuanian tax authorities would cause a warning notice from the Lithuanian tax authorities or penalties ranging from EUR200 to EUR390.

Penalties for errors.

Error results in tax underpayment. Penalties and late payment interest for errors resulting in tax underpayment are the same as penalties for late payment and filing (please refer to the section above). Moreover, based on the Lithuanian Code of Administrative Offenses, reporting of incorrect data may cause a warning notice from the Lithuanian tax authorities or penalties ranging from EUR200 to EUR390.

Filing amended returns voluntarily does not result in penalties for the taxes unpaid, however, the taxpayer shall be subject to late payment interest and might still be imposed with a fine based on the Lithuanian Code of Administrative Offenses.

Error does not result in tax underpayment. If the error does not result in tax underpayment, the taxpayer may be imposed with an administrative fine. Based on the Lithuanian Code of Administrative Offenses, reporting of incorrect data may cause a warning notice from the Lithuanian tax authorities or penalties ranging from EUR200 to EUR390.

Unreliable taxpayers' status. Effective as of 1 January 2019, due to changes adopted on the Lithuanian Law on Tax Administration, minimum requirements for a reliable taxpayer were introduced.

A taxpayer will be given the status as unreliable, if the tax authorities impose a tax fine and calculate more than EUR15EUR15,000 of taxes for certain violation of tax laws, indicated in the Lithuanian Law on Tax Administration. See the Late registration penalties subsection above for more detail on unreliable taxpayers.

A taxpayer will also be recognized as unreliable if it is imposed with a fine for certain violations indicated in the Lithuanian Code of Administrative Offenses and the fine is no less than EUR1,500 or a taxpayer is imposed with a fine repeatedly for the indicated violaton. A taxpayermay also lose the status of a reliable taxpayer due to other certain violations (e.g., illegal work, fraud, financial crimes).

Penalties for fraud. Based on the Lithuanian Code of Administrative Offenses, fraudulent activity may result in penalties of up to EUR6,000, depending on the amount of taxes underpaid. Moreover, based on the Criminal Code of the Republic of Lithuania, in certain cases a person might be punished by community service or by a fine or even by imprisonment of up to eight years (a legal entity shall also be held liable for the act and criminal liability shall be imposed on the persons liable for the fraud). In addition, taxpayers shall be recognized as unreliable.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- The supply of goods or services made in Luxembourg by a taxable person
- The intra-Community acquisition of goods from another EU Member State by a taxable person or nontaxable legal person (see the chapter on the EU)
- The importation of goods from outside the EU, regardless of the status of the importer

C. Who is liable

A taxable person is any business entity or individual that carries out economic activities independently and regularly. Economic activities include activities such as supplies of goods or services, intra-Community acquisitions (see the chapter on the EU) and importations in the course of a business.

Effective 1 January 2010, for the purpose of applying the rules concerning the place of supply of services, a nontaxable legal person registered for VAT is regarded as a taxable person if it receives services from a taxable person. This rule does not affect the liability for and payment of the tax in the case of local supplies by a Luxembourg taxable person to a Luxembourg nontaxable legal person. However, for cross-border supplies of services, this rule leads to a shifting of the tax liability to a nontaxable legal person registered for VAT, which must self-assess and pay the VAT due in its country of establishment under the reverse-charge mechanism.

No VAT registration threshold applies in Luxembourg. A taxable person that begins activity in Luxembourg must notify the Luxembourg VAT authorities of its liability to register.

Special rules apply to foreign or non-established businesses.

Exemption from registration. The VAT law in Luxembourg does not contain any provision for exemption from registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. VAT taxable persons, established in Luxembourg, whose annual turnover does not exceed EUR30.000, are in principle not subject to the normal VAT rules and only have to notify the authorities their beginning of activity and inform the authorities of their turnover realized on an annual basis. However, they can opt to be subject to the normal VAT rules.

The VAT law in Luxembourg does not contain any other provisions for voluntary VAT registration.

Group registration. VAT grouping is permitted under Luxembourg VAT law if entities are closely bound to one another by financial, economic and organizational links.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that has no fixed establishment in Luxembourg. A non-established business that makes taxable transactions in Luxembourg must register for VAT, unless it is not liable for VAT (for example, because its supplies to taxable persons may be taxed using the "reverse charge" mechanism). Under the reverse charge, the recipient of the supply must account for the tax. The reverse charge does not apply to supplies of goods and services made to private persons. A non-established business must register for Luxembourg VAT if it makes any of the following supplies, which are all subject to Luxembourg VAT (unless an exemption applies):
- Intra-Community supplies or acquisitions
- Distance sales in excess of the threshold (see the chapter on the EU)
- Supplies of goods and services to which the reverse charge does not apply

Tax representatives. Businesses established in the EU that are required to register for VAT in Luxembourg cannot appoint a tax representative.

Businesses established outside the EU may be required by the Luxembourg VAT authorities to provide a security deposit to secure their VAT liability. The deposit must be in the form of cash or a letter of indemnity provided by an approved bank.

The VAT registration application for non-established businesses must be sent to the following address:

Administration de l'Enregistrement et des Domaines
Bureau d'imposition 10
14, avenue de la Gare
L-1610 Luxembourg
L-2010 Luxembourg

Reverse charge. Except if obliged by the VAT Directive, in principle the Luxembourg VAT legislation does not foresee a reverse charge. Hence for local supplies, the supplier should charge VAT, even if it is a non-established business.

Domestic reverse charge. A domestic reverse charge applies in Luxembourg for the transfer of allowances to emit greenhouse gases.

Digital economy. Electronically supplied services are deemed to take place where the customer is established. If the customer is a nontaxable person, established in the EU, the supplier will be liable to charge the VAT of the countries of consumption and either have to register in the countries of consumption or to register under the Mini One-Stop Shop scheme.

Mini One-Stop Shop. By using the Mini One-Stop Shop (MOSS) regime, taxpayers avoid the need to register for VAT in other EU Member States, and the revenue realized outside Luxembourg is reported in the same VAT return.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Luxembourg.

Vouchers. The VAT treatment of vouchers depends on whether they qualify as "single-purpose" (SPV) or "multi-purpose" (MPV) voucher.

An SPV is a voucher where the place of supply of the goods or services to which the voucher relates and the VAT due on the supply is known at the time of the voucher's issue. Each transfer of an SPV qualifies as a supply of goods or services.

An MPV is any voucher other than an SPV. VAT will be due at the time the MPV is used.

Registration procedures. The application file to register for VAT should be submitted in hard copy with the VAT authorities at the latest within 15 days after the start of the economic activity of the VAT taxable person. Online registration is not possible.

The application document should be accompanied by several documents, such as a copy of the articles of association of the company, a copy of the ID cards of the Directors of the company, a copy of a rental agreement or domiciliation agreement, and possibly others. After the filing of a complete application, it usually takes three to five weeks before the VAT number is actually granted.

Deregistration. If a VAT taxable person stops performing the economic activity that had triggered the obligation to be registered, he or she should apply for a deregistration within 15 days after stopping the activity.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 17%
- Reduced rates: 3%, 8% and 14%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 3%
- Food for human consumption, excluding alcohol
- Agricultural products
- Books, newspapers and periodicals, excluding e-books
- Shoes and clothes for children under age 14
- Sale of domestic accommodation
- Pharmaceutical products
- Restaurant services, excluding alcohol
- Water
- Transport of persons
- Admission to cultural events

Examples of goods and services taxable at 8%
- Liquid gas for heating, lighting and fueling engines
- Electric energy
- Plants and other floriculture products
- Hairdressing
- Repair of bicycles, shoes and other leather goods
- Cleaning of private accommodation

Examples of goods and services taxable at 14%
- Wine of grapes with a concentration of alcohol up to 13 grades
- Solid mineral combustibles, mineral oil and wood used as fuel
- Advertising brochures and other prints
- Steam, heating and cooling
- Custody and management of securities
- Management of credits and credit guarantees by an entity other than the entity that granted the credit

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction. However, in Luxembourg some supplies are classified as "exempt-with-credit," which means that no VAT is due, but the supplier may recover related input tax. Exempt-with-credit supplies include exports of goods and related services and intra-Community supplies of goods (see the chapter on the EU).

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services (without VAT credit)
- Real estate transactions
- Supplies of postage and fiscal stamps at face value
- Services of doctors and dentists
- Finance
- Insurance
- Cultural and sporting services

- Welfare services
- Education

Option to tax for exempt supplies. Luxembourg operates an option to tax in respect of supplies and rent of real estate to the extent the purchaser or lessee will use the real estate predominantly for purposes which entitle the right to deduct input tax. There are no other options to treat exempt supplies as taxable.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due (or the chargeable event occurs) is called the "time of supply" or "tax point." For supplies of goods, the basic time of supply is when the goods are delivered, and the power of disposal is transferred. The basic time of supply for services is when the services are completed.

The actual time of supply of goods or services, with the exception of services subject to VAT in the recipient country, may be delayed by the issuance of an invoice (if the issuance of an invoice is mandatory), but no later than the 15th day of the month following the month in which the basic time of supply occurs. If the supplier issues an invoice before this date, the time of supply is when the invoice is issued. Specific rules apply to continuous supplies of services. For supplies of services subject to VAT in the recipient country, the time of supply is when the chargeable event occurs (that is, when the supply is completed).

Deposits and prepayments. If a prepayment is made in advance of a transaction, and there is no obligation to issue an invoice, then VAT becomes due at the time of the prepayment. However, if there is an obligation to issue an invoice, and it is issued with the prepayment, then VAT is due before the 15th of the month following the month during which the transaction takes place.

Continuous supplies of services. In case the customer is liable to self-assess VAT and no statements of account are issued and no payments are made, the VAT becomes due at the end of the calendar year.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. The Luxembourg VAT law does not have a specific time of supply rule for supplies of goods sent on approval for sale or return, and so hence the general rules apply. The time of supply (when the VAT becomes due) is when the supply takes place.

In case the sale of the goods only takes place when the customer approves the sale, then the supply will take place at the time of the approval by the customer.

If the goods are not approved and are returned to the supplier, no supply will take place and there should be no VAT consequences related to the return of the goods.

If the goods are not approved, but are not returned to the supplier, the VAT consequences would depend on what the supplier will do with these goods. Where the goods stay in Luxembourg and are stored in a warehouse, then the supplier will have to perform an assimilated intra-Community acquisition of the goods and have to register for VAT. Where the goods are not stored and sold in Luxembourg (but, for example, destroyed), then no VAT consequences should occur.

Reverse-charge services. For supplies of services subject to VAT in the recipient country, the chargeable event occurs when the supply is completed.

Leased assets. There is no special time of supply rule for leased assets in Luxembourg. As such, the normal time of supply rules apply.

Imported goods. The time of the supply for imported goods is the date of importation or the date on which the goods leave a duty suspension regime.

Intra-Community acquisitions. The time of supply for an intra-Community acquisition of goods is the 15th day of the month following the month in which the acquisition takes place. If the supplier issues an invoice or a document serving as an invoice (other than relating to an installment) before such date, the time of supply is when the invoice is issued.

Intra-Community supplies of goods. Intra-Community supplies of goods are deemed to take place at the time the invoice is issued (at the latest the 15th of the month following the month during which the supply took place or when a payment on account is received) or when the invoice should have been issued if not issued timely.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax, which is VAT charged on goods and services supplied to it for business purposes. A taxable person generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax, which is VAT charged on supplies of goods and services made.

Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services supplied within Luxembourg, VAT paid on imports of goods and VAT self-assessed on intra-Community acquisitions of goods and reverse-charge services (see the chapter on the EU).

A valid tax invoice or customs document must generally accompany a claim for input tax.

Nondeductible input tax. In Luxembourg, input tax may be deducted in full for all items of business expenditure. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes (for example, the private use of an entrepreneur's home telephone or goods acquired for private use).

The following lists provide some examples of items of expenditure for which input tax is not deductible and examples of items for which input tax is deductible if the expenditure is related to a taxable business use.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Private expenditure

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Purchase, hire, lease, maintenance and fuel for cars, vans and trucks
- Parking
- Business gifts
- Attending conferences, seminars and training courses
- Business entertainment
- Business use of home telephone
- Advertising
- Transport

Partial exemption. If a Luxembourg taxable person performs both exempt and taxable supplies, it may only recover a portion of input tax. This situation is referred to as "partial exemption."

The amount of input tax that may be recovered is calculated in the following two stages:

- The first stage identifies the input tax that may be directly allocated either to exempt or to taxable supplies. Exempt-with-credit supplies are treated as taxable supplies for these purposes. Input tax directly allocated to exempt supplies is not deductible. Input tax directly allocated to taxable supplies is fully recoverable.
- The second stage prorates the input tax on mixed expenditures (relating to both taxable and exempt supplies) in order to allocate a portion to taxable supplies (which may be recovered). This treatment applies to the input tax on general business overhead expenses. Alternatively, the Luxembourg VAT authorities may also authorize or direct the use of a special deduction method for each sector of a single business or for certain sectors of the business.

The general pro rata method calculates the amount of recoverable VAT based on the ratio of turnover that entitles the taxable person to deduct input tax (that is, taxable turnover and exempt turnover with credit) to total turnover within the scope of VAT. Incidental supplies of capital goods and incidental real estate and financial transactions are excluded from turnover for these purposes. The recovery percentage is rounded up to the nearest whole number (for example, a recovery percentage of 77.2% is rounded up to 78%).

Alternatively, the Luxembourg VAT authorities may authorize a taxable person to use a special deduction method based on the direct allocation of all or certain goods and services used in making taxable and exempt supplies. The VAT authorities may direct a taxable person to use this method. The administration may also authorize or direct the use of a special deduction method for each sector of a single business or for certain sectors of the business.

Capital goods. Capital goods are items of capital expenditure that are used in a business over several years. Input tax is deducted in the VAT year in which the goods are acquired. The amount of input tax recovered depends on the taxable person's partial exemption recovery position in the VAT year of acquisition and first use. However, the amount of input tax recovered for capital goods must be adjusted over time if the taxable person's partial exemption recovery percentage changes during the adjustment period.

In Luxembourg, capital goods are defined as tangible, movable or immovable goods that are subject to depreciation under income tax law. They also include work that qualifies as investment expenditure under the income tax law.

The capital goods adjustment applies to the following assets for the number of years indicated:
- Immovable capital assets (primarily, buildings): adjusted for a period of 10 years
- Movable capital assets: adjusted for a period of five years

For movable goods, the adjustment period starts 1 January of the year in which the goods are manufactured or purchased. If the goods are first used in a later year, the period begins on 1 January of the year in which the goods are used for the first time. The adjustment is applied each year to 1/5 of the total input tax, unless the goods are sold. If the goods are sold, the adjustment is made once for the total remaining period. The adjustment may result in either an increase or a decrease of deductible input tax, depending on whether the ratio of taxable supplies made by the business has increased or decreased compared with the year in which the capital goods were acquired (or used for the first time).

For immovable goods, the adjustment period starts on 1 January of the year in which the acquisition takes place or construction, or refurbishment work ends or on 1 January of the year in which the immovable property is used for the first time if the year of first use differs from the year of acquisition or the year in which the construction or refurbishment work is finalized. The adjustment is applied each year to 1/10 of the total input tax, unless the immovable property is sold or if the VAT deduction depends on the rental status of the immovable property. In such cases, the adjustment is made once for the total remaining period. The adjustment may result in either an increase or a decrease of deductible input tax, depending on whether the ratio of taxable supplies made by the business has increased or decreased compared with the year in which the immovable property was acquired, constructed or refurbished.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax recoverable in a monthly period exceeds the amount of output tax payable in that period, the taxable person has an input tax credit. This input tax credit may usually be carried forward to the next reporting period. However, a refund may be requested.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax incurred on pre-registration costs in Luxembourg is not recoverable.

Write-off of bad debts. If it can be reasonably expected that the customer will not pay (or not pay the full amount), the taxpayer is entitled to reclaim the VAT on the unpaid VAT amount.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred in relation to noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Luxembourg.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Luxembourg refunds VAT incurred by businesses that are neither deemed to be established in Luxembourg nor registered for VAT there. A non-established business may claim Luxembourg VAT to the same extent as a VAT-registered business. However, VAT may not be recovered on private expenditure.

For the general VAT refund rules of the EU Directive 2008/9/EC and the EU 13th Directive refund schemes, see the chapter on the EU.

EU businesses. For businesses established in the EU, a refund is made under the terms of EU Directive 2008/9/EC.

The deadline for submitting EU Directive 2008/9/EC refund claims is 30 September of the calendar year following the refund period.

For EU Directive 2008/9/EC claims, the minimum claim period is three months, and the maximum period is one year. The minimum claim for a period of less than a year is EUR400. For an annual claim, the minimum amount is EUR50.

Applications for refunds of Luxembourg VAT under EU Directive 2008/9/EC must be submitted to the EU Member State in which the claimant is established via the electronic portal set up by that EU Member State.

Non-EU businesses. For businesses established outside the EU, refund is made under the terms of the EU 13th Directive. Luxembourg does not exclude any non-EU country from the refund scheme (no reciprocity required).

The deadline for EU 13th Directive refund claims is 30 June of the year following the calendar year in which the tax was incurred.

Claims must be submitted in English, French or German. The application for refund must be accompanied by the appropriate documentation.

For EU 13th Directive claims, the claim period is one year. The minimum claim amount is EUR250.

Applications for refunds of Luxembourg VAT under the EU 13th Directive must be sent to the following address:

Administration de l'Enregistrement et des Domaines
Bureau d'imposition XI
Remboursements et franchises
67-69, Rue Verte, L-2667 Luxembourg
L-2010 Luxembourg

The Luxembourg VAT authorities do not pay interest on late refunds of VAT made under the EU 13th Directive scheme.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A Luxembourg taxable person must generally provide a VAT invoice for all taxable supplies made, including exports and intra-Community supplies to other VAT taxable persons or to nontaxable legal persons. Invoices are not automatically required for retail transactions to private individuals, unless the supply is a distance sale, or the customer requests an invoice.

A VAT invoice is required to support a claim for input tax deduction or a refund under the EU Directive 2008/9/EC or EU 13th Directive refund schemes (see the chapter on the EU).

Credit notes. A VAT credit note may be used to reduce the VAT charged and reclaimed on a supply of goods or services. It must be cross-referenced to the original VAT invoice and contain the same information.

Electronic invoicing. Luxembourg VAT law permits electronic invoicing in line with EU Directive 2010/45/EU (see the chapter on the EU).

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified VAT invoices are allowed in Luxembourg, if the amount of the invoice, VAT included, does not exceed EUR100. There are some exceptions to this rule, where the issuance of simplified invoices is not allowed, for instance in case of self-billing.

Self-billing. Self-billing by the acquiror or recipient of a supply of goods or services is allowed, only where there is agreement between both parties and each invoice is subject to an acceptance procedure by the supplier.

Proof of exports and intra-Community supplies. Luxembourg VAT is not due on supplies of exported goods or on the intra-Community supply of goods (see the chapter on the EU). However, to qualify as VAT-free, exports and intra-Community supplies must be supported by evidence proving that the goods have left Luxembourg. Acceptable proof includes the following documentation:

- For an export, a copy of the export document, officially validated by customs, showing the supplier as the exporter. The invoice must include the following language: "Not subject to Luxembourg VAT, article 43, 1, a of the Luxembourg VAT Law — export."
- For an intra-Community supply, a range of commercial documentation such as purchase orders, tax invoices, transport documentation, proof of payment and contracts. The invoice must include the following language: "Not subject to Luxembourg VAT, article 43, 1, d of the Luxembourg VAT Law — intra-Community supplies of goods."

Foreign currency invoices. If an invoice is issued in a foreign currency, the VAT amount must be converted to euros (EUR) using the official rate in force on the date of the invoice, be published by an approved bank, and be indicated on the invoice.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. Special rules apply to the place of supply for supplies of telecommunications, broadcasting and electronic services to nontaxable customers. For further details of the VAT rules on electronic services in the EU, please refer to the European Union chapter.

Records.

Record retention period. All books, documents and information required by the VAT law should be stored for 10 years from the date of the issuance (in case of invoices issued or received) and from the date of closing (in case of accounts) or their date (in case of other documents).

Electronic archiving. In principle, all books, documents and information required by the VAT law should be stored in hard copy. However, electronic storage is allowed, if the data guaranteeing the authenticity of the origin and the integrity of the content are also stored electronically.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. In principle, Luxembourg VAT returns must be filed on a monthly basis. However, the authorities can allow taxable persons whose annual turnover does not exceed EUR112,000 to file only a single annual return for the calendar year. The due date is 1 March of the following year.

Taxable persons whose annual turnover is between EUR112,000 and EUR620,000 may be allowed to submit periodic returns quarterly. In addition, they must file a recapitulative annual return. The due date for the periodic returns is the 15th day of the month following the end of the return period. The due date for the annual return is 1 May of the following year.

Taxable persons whose annual turnover exceeds EUR620,000 must submit periodic returns monthly, plus a recapitulative annual return. The due date for the periodic returns is the 15th day of the month following the end of the return period. The due date for the annual return is 1 May of the following year.

Filing extensions are automatically granted for both the periodic (two months) and the annual returns (eight months). However, these extensions apply exclusively to the filing of the returns. As a result, provisional VAT payments can be requested within the legal deadline.

A Luxembourg taxable person, who only performs transactions, which do not entitle the right to recover input tax should not register for VAT, except if it would be liable to self-assess Luxembourg VAT on services received from non-Luxembourg suppliers or perform intra-Community acquisitions of goods transported from other EU Member States into Luxembourg. In case a company should be registered for VAT, it is in principle liable only to file annual returns. The due date of filing these returns is 1 March (with an automatic extension of eight months).

Periodic payments. Luxembourg VAT-payable amounts, resulting from periodic VAT returns, should be paid at the latest when the returns are filed. If the annual returns result in an additional VAT-payable amount, it should be paid at the latest when the annual returns are filed.

Electronic filing. Taxable persons that are required to submit VAT returns monthly or quarterly must file all returns (periodic and annual returns) and EC sales listings electronically, using the tax administration's electronic portal (eTVA).

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Luxembourg.

Special schemes. Businesses with an annual taxable turnover (excluding VAT) of less than EUR500,000 are eligible to use the cash accounting scheme that allows VAT to be accounted for on the basis of cash or other consideration paid and received. However, if their annual taxable turnover (excluding VAT) subsequently exceeds EUR500,000, they must stop using the scheme. Other special accounting schemes exist in Luxembourg for travel agencies, businesses trading in secondhand goods and artwork (known as the margin scheme) and supplies of investment gold.

Annual returns. Annual returns are required in Luxembourg in addition to periodic returns. However, the authorities can allow taxable persons whose annual turnover does not exceed a certain amount (see Periodic returns) to file only a single annual return for the calendar year. In principle, the annual returns should be the sum of the periodic returns. However, if adjustments or regularizations should be done (e.g., when calculating the definitive deductible prorate), it should occur in the annual returns.

Supplementary filings.

Intrastat. A Luxembourg taxable person that trades with other EU countries must complete statistical reports, known as Intrastat returns, if the value of its sales or purchases of goods exceeds certain thresholds. Separate reports are required for intra-Community acquisitions (Intrastat Arrivals) and for intra-Community supplies (Intrastat Dispatches). Electronic submissions via email are allowed.

The current threshold for Intrastat Arrivals is EUR200,000. The current threshold for Intrastat Dispatches is EUR150,000.

Luxembourg taxable persons must complete Intrastat declarations in euros.

Intrastat returns are due monthly by the 16th working day of the month following the period.

EU Sales Lists. If a Luxembourg taxable person performs intra-Community supplies of goods, it must submit an EU Sales List (ESL) for goods.

In principle, ESLs for goods must be submitted by the 15th day of the month following the end of the month. However, ESLs for goods may be submitted quarterly if the threshold of EUR50,000 of intra-Community supplies of goods to other EU Member States is not exceeded during the concerned quarter or during the four preceding quarters. For a quarterly filing, the ESLs for goods must be submitted by the 15th day of the month following the concerned quarter.

A Luxembourg VAT taxable person must also file an ESL for services rendered. This ESL must provide information regarding services rendered to VAT taxable and nontaxable persons who satisfy the following conditions:
- They are registered for VAT in another EU Member State, and the services are rendered in the other EU Member State.
- The services are not exempt from VAT in the EU Member State where they are deemed to take by application of the basic business-to-business (B2B) rule.
- The recipients are liable to deal with the VAT in the other EU Member State.

ESLs for services must be filed on a monthly basis by the 15th day of each month. VAT- taxable persons may file the lists on a quarterly basis by the 15th day of each quarter.

If no transactions reportable in ESLs are performed, no ESLs need to be filed for the concerned month or quarter.

Digital reporting. The OECD has developed a standard audit file for tax audits (SAF-T) and a standard set of tests to be performed by the local tax authorities during an audit. Luxembourg has adopted the SAF-T. Ficher d'Audit Informatisé AED (FAIA is the name of the file to be provided to the Luxembourg tax authorities, and the Luxembourg law allows the tax authorities to carry out electronic VAT audits. The intention of the authorities is to perform all VAT audits paperless. The law outlines that each taxable person (with some exceptions) using an electronic accounting system is obliged to be able to provide the data in a "FAIA" format on request of the tax authorities. In principle, FAIA (which is a file structured under the XML format) has to include all the information and data concerning the business activity of the taxable person.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. A penalty of between EUR250 and EUR10,000 may be assessed for late VAT registration.

Penalties for late payment and filings. Penalties are assessed for the late payment or late submission of a VAT return in the following amounts:
- For monthly or quarterly returns, the fine may vary from EUR250 to EUR10,000.
- For annual returns, the fine may vary from EUR250 to EUR10,000.

For Intrastat, a penalty may be imposed for late submission or for missing or inaccurate declarations. The fine is generally EUR500 (although the statistical authorities may impose a penalty of between EUR251 and EUR2,500).

For ESLs, a penalty may be imposed for late, missing or inaccurate ESLs. The penalty may vary from EUR250 to EUR10,000.

Penalties for errors. Infringements against VAT compliance obligations, such as the obligation to issue compliant invoices and the timely filing of returns, wherein the correct amounts are reported, can be penalized by a fine, which may vary from EUR250 to EUR10,000.

Some infringements, such as the obligation to provide a FAIA file if requested by the authorities can be penalized by a fine of (maximum) EUR25,000 per day.

Penalties for fraud. In case the taxable person fails to fulfill its VAT obligations, the manager(s) will be considered personally and severally liable for the payment of the VAT owned by the company to the VAT authorities. The liability of the manager(s) is strictly limited to: (i) the delegated administrators of public limited companies, (ii) the managers of limited liability companies, and (iii) ipso jure or de facto managers taking care of the day-to-day management of the company. The manager(s) can only be held liable in the case of blameworthy failure to fulfill their legal requirements.

In the case of fraudulent actions to avoid payment or to illegally obtain the reimbursement of VAT, penalties up to 50% of the evaded VAT can be assessed.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to legal persons carrying out economic activities habitually or occasionally in Madagascar, including such activities as:

- Trade

- Commercial, industrial, agricultural, handmade, mining, hotel activities
- Games exploitation
- Service delivery
- Liberal profession
- Import
- Supply of goods and services
- Construction
- Miscellaneous, except express exemption

The following are outside the scope of VAT and should not be included in the computation of taxable operations:
- Cash discounts and rebates mentioned in the invoice
- Compensation for damages
- Disbursements to service providers in repayment of expenditures paid on behalf of the client

C. Who is liable

Persons with an annual turnover equal to or more than MGA200 million are required to register for VAT.

A specific tax applies to the activities of companies undertaking public procurement contracts that have an annual turnover of less that MGA200 million (contractors). It covers synthetic tax and it is deducted directly from the contractor's payments.

The tax is calculated at a rate of 8% of the total remuneration for the procurement contract, including taxes. The tax amount is withheld by the public accountant in charge of paying the contractor who must pay it directly to the tax authorities by the 15th day of the month following the month of deduction. The contractor is also required to declare the tax within the same time frame.

Exemption from registration. Persons with a total annual turnover less than MGA200 million are exempted from registering for VAT in Madagascar.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. As of January 2019, taxpayers with an annual turnover less than MGA200 million and taxed on 20% corporate income tax (CIT) regime can voluntarily opt for VAT registration. The registration is granted upon request to the tax authority.

Group registration. Group registration is not allowed in Madagascar.

Non-established businesses. Persons with no fixed place of business in Madagascar but who perform taxable services in Madagascar may appoint a legal resident representative who is authorized to act for the nonresident service provider in complying with its VAT obligations.

In practice, the recipient of the service is responsible for the payment of the tax as well as for the filing of the return. This does not have any impact if the Madagascar located person is able to recover the VAT. It does not imply that the recipient will become the legal representative of the nonresident supplier without any official appointment. However, in case of compliance failure by the nonresident supplier, the VAT liabilities shift to the recipient of the service.

Tax representatives. As described above, nonresident service suppliers with no fixed place of business in Madagascar may appoint a legal resident representative that acts on behalf of the taxpayer to comply with VAT obligations.

The appointment consists of sending an official letter to the Ministry of Finances appointing the tax representative to obtain a tax identification number for compliance obligations. This representative would be responsible for filing returns and paying the tax due. However, in practice, it is most commonly the recipient of supplies from a nonresident service provider who ensures VAT compliance and will be liable to tax assessment in case of noncompliance.

Reverse charge. Reverse charge is applicable to services performed in Madagascar by a nonresident service provider who does not have a fixed place of business in Madagascar.

The VAT is paid by the local recipient of the service to the tax authority before the 15th of the month following the month of payment for the service if the nonresident service provider does not have a legal representative in Madagascar.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Madagascar.

Digital economy. Business-to-business (B2B) transactions by a nonresident entity are considered a supply of services. The customer is generally expected to self-assess VAT via the reverse-charge mechanism at a rate of 20% on the payment made by the customer to the supplier.

The VAT may be recovered by the customer as deductible input tax in its own VAT filing to the extent a full right of deduction applies.

For business-to-consumer (B2C) transactions, the application of reverse charge on services supplied by a nonresident entity is not based on the status of the customer (business or individual) but on the nature of the transaction (service) and the status of the supplier (nonresident). Therefore, the reverse charge remains applicable at 20%.

As there is no physical good transmission but only an electronic transmission, such transaction would be treated as a supply of service.

For those supplies to individuals who are not registered for VAT, in practice while the reverse charge remains applicable, it is non-operational. The individual does not have the possibility to pay the VAT, or withhold it from their income tax, and as such no VAT is accounted for.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Madagascar.

Registration procedures. For companies subject to the CIT actual regime (turnover more than MGA200 million), there is no specific VAT registration procedure provided by the General Tax Code, but the tax authority does maintain a roster of VAT-registered taxpayers.

From an administrative perspective, when the relevant person reaches the registration threshold it is automatically subject to VAT.

For companies/individuals which are not subject to the CIT actual regime (turnover less than MGA200 million), the procedure is that the person submits a letter to the tax authority applying for VAT registration. The tax authority will update the Standard Tax Identification Card with the mention of VAT registration. The tax authority does not assign the registrant a specific VAT identification number; the general tax identification number serves for VAT as well.

Deregistration. Companies registered for VAT whose turnover falls below the VAT registration threshold may automatically be exempted from VAT. However, upon request to the tax authority, these companies may remain registered and charge VAT.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 20%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services, unless a specific measure provides for the zero rate or an exemption.

All exports of goods or services are taxed at the zero rate, and those are the only zero-rated supplies.

The term "exempt" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- School fees relating to general, technical and professional education
- Interest paid by the Public Treasury
- Certain operations linked to shares, bonds and other securities
- Interest from receivables, deposits and guarantees of banks having their headquarters in Madagascar, interest charged by credit on financing; interest received from deposits and loans granted to members of microfinance institutions
- Subscription of mixed popular insurance or insurance group linked to supplement retirement with an insurance company having its headquarters in Madagascar; reinsurance premiums granted by local insurance companies to insurance companies that do not have permanent establishment in Madagascar
- Consumption of water and electricity by individuals for their domestic use up to 10m3 for water and 100kWh for electricity
- Services provided regarding health profession
- Import and sale of contraceptives and condoms
- Import and sales of drugs; material and inputs used for drugs manufacturing and packages involved
- Import and sales of newspapers and periodicals, excluding revenue from advertising
- Import and sales of stamps and legal currency
- Import and sales of books, brochures and educational and academic nature
- Import and sales of corrective lenses
- Import and sales of inputs exclusively used for agriculture
- Import and sales of potato seed, corn seed, wheat seed and soybean seed
- Import and sale of breeding animals, agricultural materials and equipment, materials and equipment for the food industry, public sports equipment and equipment for the production of renewable energy
- Subject to reciprocity, goods or services earned by diplomatic agent and consular officers from taxable individuals
- Import and sales of mosquito nets and mosquitos
- Air and sea transport of people and goods to and from abroad
- Membership fees and contributions of members of management centers during their three first years; products of shares for training or information provided to members of the management centers
- Import and sales of kerosene
- Import and sales of rice and paddy
- Import and sale of milk and supplements dietetics for infants and young children
- Import and sales of wheelchairs and other invalid vehicles
- Import and sales of devices and equipment for hemodialysis
- Sale of denatured flammable ethanol locally produced
- Participation and entrance fees for visitors at the fair organized by one or more members of professional interest groups of the private sector
- Import and sales of ready-to-use therapeutic foods
- Training costs as part of the development of professional training, supported by the Ministry in charge of professional training, or engaged for the development of learning, by the National Industry Development agency or for training hosted by the Chamber of Commerce to help their members to develop their activities

- The supply of goods, services and works carried out by a holder of public procurement contracts on behalf of public persons

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Madagascar.

E. Time of supply

The moment when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply," which in Madagascar depends on the good or service being supplied. For imports, the time of supply is the moment of clearance from customs. For operations subject to a special customs regime (warehouse, temporary admission, transit, transshipment, customs deposit), the time of supply is upon release for consumption. For general sales of goods, the time of supply is upon delivery of the goods. For both construction and service delivery, the time of supply is upon receipt of payment.

Deposits and prepayments. Deposits and prepayments are not subject to VAT because they do not consist of remuneration for the price of services or goods. However, when the supply of goods or services is acquired and not returned, deposits and prepayments are liable to VAT as if the additional payment had been made.

VAT is due on prepayment within the month of its receipt for supply of services and upon delivery for supply of goods.

Continuous supplies of services. VAT on services is due on payment. However, the service provider can account for the tax on an accrual basis with the prior authorization of the tax authority.

Goods sent on approval or for sale or return. VAT would apply only when the "goods sent on approval or for sale or return" are booked and recorded as delivered.

Reverse-charge services. Recipients of services provided by nonresident suppliers must self-assess and account for the VAT due on the supply at the time of the payment of the service. The related VAT returns and payment are due on a monthly basis. The due date is the 15th of the month following the taxable month.

There is no reverse-charge mechanism applicable to the supply of goods, as those are imports and subject to the import VAT accounting rules.

Leased assets. In the case of leasing, the lessor is able to deduct input tax applied on the acquisition of any kind of assets dedicated to leasing. In principle, input tax is deductible for the lessee if the assets are used for the normal business of the lessee.

In general, for all types of leased assets, input tax on the following is not deductible:

- Building not dedicated to industrial, commercial, hotel, restaurant, agricultural or mining activities
- Passenger vehicles (except those whose exclusive use is leasing)
- Furniture (except hotel and restaurant furniture)

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

Input tax may be recovered in the usual way by deducting it from output tax due, or in limited cases, by refund.

When offsetting input tax against output tax, the following requirements should be respected:

- Input tax must be clearly labeled on the invoices and linked to the company business
- Input tax paid on imported goods linked to the company business
- Input tax relating to the acquisition of goods in respect of leasing clearly identified
- Input tax linked to goods held in stock and the portion of the tax paid clearly corresponding to the depreciated value of property, machinery and equipment for newly registered individuals/entities

The tax can only be deducted when the chargeability occurs at the supplier side and when the supplier is legally allowed to collect VAT.

VAT credit is the difference occurred when deductible input tax is higher than the output tax due. This credit can be carried forward to the following month's tax deadline. The non-cleared VAT credit of the company with taxable and nontaxable operations at the end of fiscal year can be reported as an expense.

For VAT repayment, only the companies listed below can receive a VAT refund:
- Free-zone companies
- Companies performing exclusive export activities
- Companies making investments that comply with the following conditions:
  - Being registered for VAT
  - Having VAT credit higher than MGA100 million in a month and in which VAT involved must not be less than MGA20 million
  - Concerned investments related to tangible capital assets necessary to the normal company business

Nondeductible input tax. Nondeductible tax is the tax that does not have a link with normal business of the company.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- VAT on construction or acquisition of buildings, or on related services (not applicable to industrial, commercial, mining, craft, hotel and agricultural buildings)
- VAT on purchase of vehicles not used for rental or related services
- VAT on purchase of furniture or related services (not applicable to hotels and restaurants)
- VAT on purchase of energy unnecessary for the operation of the company
- VAT on purchase of food intended for consumption of the company
- VAT on purchase of oil products such as gasoline used for tourism, super fuel, gas-oil and fuel-oil (not applicable to companies in charge of processing and distribution of oil products, industrial companies, aquaculture farms, cargo and hydrocarbons carriers)

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- VAT documented in an invoice (with the tax identification number of the provider) relating to nonexempt products and services that have a link with the normal business of the company
- VAT on import of goods that have a link with the normal business of the company
- VAT on goods representing intangible assets
- VAT on goods and services allocated to deductible operations
- VAT on goods relating to the acquisition of leased assets by the lessor; and VAT on rent paid by the lessee to the lessor
- VAT on import of oil products carried out by companies in charge of processing and distribution of oil products; VAT on purchase of oil products made by industrial companies for fixed motors used in their production operations; VAT on oil products used in aquaculture farms; VAT on purchase of oil products performed by professional carriers of hydrocarbon cargo
- VAT on goods held in stock and nonamortized machines and materials for newly taxable persons

Partial exemption. Where input tax is attributable to both taxable and exempt supplies, only the portion of input tax attributable to taxable supplies is recoverable. The taxpayer must calculate and document taxable supplies as a percentage of total supplies.

Examples of partially exempt items

- Operations linked to shares, bonds and other securities are exempt, but operations relating to stock and management of shares, bonds and securities are taxable, as are securities representing goods and shares giving the holder de jure or de facto rights of possession of property or enjoyment of an immovable property.

- Consumption of water and electricity by individuals for their domestic use up to 10m3 for water and 100kWh for electricity is exempt, while consumption above those levels is taxable.
- Import and sales of newspapers and periodicals are exempt, but income from insertion of advertising is taxable.

Capital goods. Input tax incurred on capital goods dedicated to the normal business of the company is accepted as deductible.

If the company subject to VAT carries out exclusively taxable transactions giving rise to the right to deduct, VAT on these goods is fully deductible.

For a company that does not perform exclusively taxable operations, goods constituting capital goods are considered to be mixed-use. Therefore, the amount of the input tax is computed on the basis of the ratio between the annual amount of taxable transactions and the annual amount of turnover related to all transactions made. The turnover to be used includes all fees and taxes except VAT. The pro rata defined is computed provisionally according to the turnover of the previous exercise.

For a newly registered company or newly subject to VAT, the ratio is provisionally calculated on the basis of forecast turnover for the current financial year.

The amount of input tax is finalized no later than the expiry of the VAT return that follows the four months of the end of the financial year.

Refunds. Free-zone companies, companies performing export activities, certified financial lessors and companies making a specified amount of investment are allowed to apply for a VAT refund.

For free-zone and export companies, the amount subject to refund is determined by the proportion between the amount of the annual turnover on export and the amount of the total taxable annual turnover of the previous year.

The application for the refund is made at the time the VAT return is submitted.

The refunds should be done within 60 days from the receipt of the application by the tax authority.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax incurred on pre-registration costs in Madagascar, is not recoverable. Write-off of bad debts. Although the VAT laws do not expressly deal with the VAT treatment of bad debts, the tax authority generally agrees that an output tax write-off on bad debt is allowable.

This does not arise for supply of services. Since the tax point is the time payment is received, relief for bad debt is automatic.

Noneconomic activities. Noneconomic activities are considered to be activities performed by a taxable person that are not part of a profit-making enterprise. Individuals and entities performing noneconomic activities are not subject to VAT.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

A non-established business is not allowed to recover VAT.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. There is no special VAT invoice format in Madagascar. However, there are mandatory pieces of information that must be included on VAT invoices, which are as follows:

- Date and signature of the issuer.
- Chronological sequence number and, for both the provider and the customer:
  — The commercial name
  — The statistical number
  — The tax identification number
- Quantity and price of the delivered goods or services
- Settlement date
- Payment method
- Amount and VAT rate

The invoice should comply with these mandatory requirements to be considered as regular invoice for both VAT and CIT purpose.

Credit notes. The same rules for VAT invoices apply to credit notes. A VAT credit note may be used to reduce the amount of VAT charged on a supply. The credit note must reflect a genuine mistake, an overcharge or an agreed reduction in the value of the original supply.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is available in Madagascar, but it is not mandatory. Electronic invoices should comply with the same requirements as regular nonelectronic invoices above.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified VAT invoicing is not allowed in Madagascar. As such, full VAT invoices are required.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Madagascar.

Proof of exports. Supplies of services and goods are treated as exports if the ultimate beneficiary is located outside Madagascar and the payment is made to a foreign bank in a foreign currency. Customs documents are also required for export of goods.

Foreign currency invoices. Foreign currency invoices are only allowed for the export of goods or services or supplies made to local free-zone companies. Otherwise, invoices should be in local currency, MGA.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. There are no specific rules for VAT invoices issued for supplies made by taxable persons to private consumers. Invoices issued between taxable persons have to comply with the regular requirements.

Records. Regarding indirect tax, regular accounting is mandatory for taxpayers. This regular accounting is done manually or by means of computer systems in accordance with the local GAAP, the "Plan Comptable Général 2005" established by the Decree n° 2004-272 of 18 February 2004.

The accounting must include the regulatory books provided by the abovementioned Decree. These books, on numbered pages, are quoted and initialed before being put into service by the authorities provided for in the Madagascar Commercial Code or by the tax authorities with territorial jurisdiction.

The operations are written in French or Malagasy, day by day, without white or erasure.

In the event of a failure to keep regular accounting, the taxpayer is liable to automatic taxation or an automatic tax assessment.

Record retention period. Archiving requirements involve storing and making available the financial statements, ledgers, invoices and all supporting documents (agreements, etc.) relating to each transaction for 10 years after the transaction.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is allowed in Madagascar, however, it is not mandatory. Physical archiving (i.e., by paper) is also allowed.

I. VAT returns and payment

Periodic returns. VAT returns are due on a monthly basis: the due date is the 15th of the month following the taxable month.

The monthly return is mandatory even if there is no payment due in the taxable month. In case of omission of input tax, the registered person is allowed to make an adjustment in any of the VAT returns in the subsequent three months.

Periodic payments. VAT due must be paid by the same date as the VAT return deadline, i.e., .the due date is the 15th of the month following the taxable month.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is allowed for certain companies that have reached the prescribed annual turnover.

Taxpayers with annual turnover between MGA200 million and MGA4 billion are assigned to the Services Régionaux des Impôts. Taxpayers with annual turnover more than MGA4 billion are assigned to the Direction des Grandes Entreprises. These two tax offices have discretion to allow electronic filing according to rules they establish. Taxpayers with annual turnover lower than MGA200 million are assigned to the Centre fiscal where no electronic filing is permitted.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Madagascar.

Special schemes.

Cash accounting. Cash accounting is only permitted for persons that satisfy two criteria:
• They have an annual turnover less than MGA200 million.
• They do not opt for 20% corporate income tax (CIT) regime.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Madagascar.

Supplementary filings. The following documents must also be filed to the tax authority at the same time as the VAT return:
• Ventilation sheet
• Debit advice
• Deposit slip

Digital reporting. Digital reporting is mandatory for both large companies (the NIFONLINE platform) managed by the large-scale investment Directorate (Direction des Grandes Enterprises) and for small businesses (the E-Hetra platform).These systems allow taxpayers to pay the monthly tax returns, as well as the annual returns: filing and payment of the corporate income tax, synthetical income tax, VAT and payroll tax.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. Penalties in case of late registration are the following:
• Fine for default of submission of the return:
 — MGA100,000
 — MGA200,000: for taxpayers subject to the actual taxation regime
 — MGA100,000: For taxpayers subject whose turnover is between MGA50 million and MGA200 million
 — MGA20,000 for taxpayers whose turnover is less than MGA50 million
• Delay interest penalty: 1% of the tax due per month

Penalties for late payment and filings. In case of late payment, the following penalties apply:
• Fine for default of submission of the return:
 — MGA200,000 for taxpayers subject to the actual taxation regime
 — MGA100,000 for taxpayers subject whose turnover is between MGA50 million and MGA200 million

— MGA20,000 for taxpayers whose turnover is less than MGA50 million
- Delay penalty interest: 1% of the tax due per month

The abovementioned fixed fine only applies for cases outside of any tax audit period, where a voluntary disclosure is made. Once the tax audit is started, though the tax assessment notice is not yet issued or definitive, penalties range from 40% to 80% of the additional due tax. Where the taxpayer makes a voluntary disclosure, a fixed fine of MGA100,000 applies.

Penalties for errors. Proportional fines have been introduced for errors relating to the VAT annexures. These fines are 0.5% of the following:
- The amount declared, including tax of omitted or inaccurate transactions
- The actual amount declared, including tax of the error declared
- The amount declared, including tax of the transaction in case of error on the information relating to the transaction

Penalties for fraud. In case of deficiency, inaccuracy, omission, reduction or falsity in the VAT return, the fine would be 40% of the additional tax due. In the case of fraudulent practice or intentional noncompliance, the penalty is computed at 80% of the additional tax due. In case of misrepresentation on zero-rated taxable transactions and on exempted transactions, the applicable fine would be 40% of a fictitious tax calculated at a rate of 20%.

B. Scope of the taxes

VAT is charged on the following:
- Every supply of goods and services made in Malawi
- Every importation of goods
- The supply of any imported service, other than exempt goods and services

A taxable supply is a supply of goods or services made by a taxable person for consideration in the course of, or as a part of his or her business activities and includes:
- The processing of data or supply of information or similar service

- The supply of staff
- The making of gifts or loans of goods
- The appropriation of goods for personal use or consumption by the taxable person or by any other person
- The sale, transfer, assignment or licensing of patents, copyrights, trademarks, computer software and other proprietary information
- Exports

A supply is made as part of the business activities of a person if a supply is made by them as part of or incidental to any economic activity they conduct. Where a person produces goods by processing or treating the goods of another person, the supply of goods shall be regarded as supply of goods. The supply of any form of power, heat, refrigeration or ventilation shall be regarded as supply of goods.

A supply is made for consideration, if the supplier, directly or indirectly, receives payment wholly or partly in money or in kind from the person supplied or any other person.

C. Who is liable

VAT is due on the following:

- In the case of a taxable supply, by the taxable person making the supply
- In the case of imported goods, by the importer
- In the case of imported services, by the receiver of the services

Voluntary registration and small businesses. A person may voluntarily register for VAT if he qualifies as a taxable person or has grounds to believe that he will qualify as a taxable person by applying voluntarily to the Commissioner General within 30 days of qualifying or having grounds to believe that he will qualify as a taxable person.

Group registration. Two or more corporate bodies may apply to be registered as members of a VAT group if each body is a registered as a corporate body in Malawi and has an established place of business in Malawi. One of the corporate bodies should have control of the other or other members of the group or one corporate body controls all the members of the group.

For purposes of payment of VAT, the group is registered as one designated taxable person.

Non-established businesses. The Commissioner General may refuse to register the applicant if he is satisfied that the taxable person has no fixed place of abode or business.

Tax representatives. A tax representative (normally referred to as the public officer) may be appointed by the taxpayer if the taxpayer operates offshore and has no physical presence nor has employees in Malawi. The taxpayer is required to notify the tax authority of the appointed tax representative who fulfills the relevant tax obligations on behalf of the taxpayer.

Reverse charge. The reverse-charge mechanism is applicable in Malawi on importation of services by the recipient of the services.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Malawi.

Digital economy. There are no provisions in the VAT Act on digital economy. As such, normal VAT rules apply.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Malawi.

Registration procedures. After submission of the application form and upon successful consideration of the application by the Malawi Revenue Authority, the applicant is issued with the registration certificate, which includes the trading name, taxpayer identification number, place of business and the effective date of registration. The certificate is displayed at the principal place of business of the taxpayer.

Deregistration. Upon cessation of carrying on business, the taxable person shall notify the Commissioner General in writing within 30 days from ceasing operations for cancellation of registration.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 16.5%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate, the zero rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%
- Exports of goods and services
- Laundry soap
- Exercise books
- Goods shipped as stores on aircraft and vessels leaving the territory of Malawi
- Fertilizers
- Sheath contraceptives (condoms)
- Salt
- Motor vehicles for transport of goods
- Pharmaceutical products
- Buses
- Military equipment
- Building materials for factories and warehouses
- Goods for use in tourism industry
- Miscellaneous chemical products
- Cycle ambulances
- Motorcycle ambulances
- Syringes with or without needles
- Mosquito and sand fly nets
- Poultry or chicken feed
- Liquified petroleum gas (LPG)
- Gas cylinders
- Wood cook stoves
- Solar products
- Energy efficient bulbs

The term "exempt" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services
- Banking and life assurance services
- Live animals
- Postal services
- Transport of exports
- Educational services
- Medical equipment
- Animal products

- Vegetable products in raw state
- Printed matter
- Petroleum products
- Vehicles other than railway and train way rolling-stock
- Industrial machinery and construction machinery
- Coin
- Banking and life insurance services
- Funeral service
- Medical services
- Rentals and sale of properties used for residential purposes
- Betting and gaming including lotteries
- Rail locomotives and parts
- Medical surgical or laboratory sterilizers

Option to tax for exempt supplies. Exemption of VAT is applicable where certain projects are agreed with the Government of Malawi by privileged organizations.

E. Time of supply

The general time of supply rule in Malawi is considered the earliest of the following:
- The goods are removed from the premises, or from other premises of the taxable person where the goods are under the control of the taxable person
- The goods are made available to the person to whom they are supplied
- The services are supplied or rendered
- Payment is received for all or part of the supply
- A tax invoice is issued

Deposits and prepayments. Any deposit or prepayment, whether refundable or not, given in respect of supply of goods or services, shall not be regarded as a payment for the supply of goods or services, or a taxable transaction unless the supplier applies the deposit as payment or part-payment for the supply.

Where the deposit or prepayment is paid in the expectation that it will form part of the total payment for a particular supply, the time of supply is the receipt of the deposit or prepayment.

Continuous supplies of services. VAT applies, provided there is:
- The performance of services for another person
- The making available of any facility or advantage
- Toleration of any situation or refraining from the doing of any activity

In light of the above, if services are supplied continuously and payment is made periodically, a tax point is created each time a payment is made or a VAT invoice is issued, whichever occurs earlier.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. When goods have been supplied on sale or return, the tax point shall be the earliest of:
- The date when the purchaser chooses to keep the goods
- The issue of the tax invoice by the seller
- The receipt of payment by the seller
- The expiry of the period within which the customer may return the goods

Reverse-charge services. The beneficiary of imported services is responsible for payment of VAT. They self-declare output tax by declaring the VAT on the imported services. The tax point for reverse-charge services is when the service is performed.

Leased assets. The supply of leased assets occurs on the date the leased assets are made available under the lease agreement.

Imported goods. The time of supply for imported goods is the date of importation.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may seek a refund of the excess VAT if the input tax is more than the output tax due.

A taxable person that is in a refundable position for a continuous three months may apply for a VAT refund. Evidence in form of supplier fiscalized invoices that are VAT allowable, are required for a pre-refund audit before MRA issues out a refund check. The Commissioner General is supposed to give the refund within 30 days of the application being submitted, but MRA usually delays refunds due to lack of funding.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use). Input tax cannot be recovered on invoices that are more than 12 months from the date of issue and also cannot be recovered from invoices that are not supported by the mandatory fiscal slips.

In addition, input tax may not be recovered for some items of business expenditure. The following lists provide some examples of items of expenditure for which input tax is not deductible and examples of items for which input tax is deductible

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Repairs, hiring and maintenance of motor vehicles and purchase of spare parts, unless the taxpayer is engaged in the business of hiring motor vehicles or selling motor vehicle spare parts
- Entertainment, hotel expenses, restaurant and meals, unless the taxpayer is in the business of providing entertainment

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Communication costs
- Office rentals
- Stationery
- Utilities, e.g., electricity and water
- Office furniture

Partial exemption. A taxable person is considered partially exempt if they make both taxable and exempt supplies of goods and services. They can only claim input tax that is directly attributable to the taxable supplies. An apportionment formula is used to determine the deductible input tax.

A refund of VAT is possible where the amount of input tax exceeds the amount of output tax and the excess credit remains outstanding for a continuous period of three months or more.

Capital goods. Input tax incurred on capital goods acquired for the business is claimable, except for motor vehicles as indicated above. A taxable person who is registered from a specified effective date, and has in stock capital goods that have been held for a period not exceeding a period of six months, from the date of their registration, may claim credit or refund of VAT. There are no further special input tax recovery rules for capital goods. Normal input tax recovery rules apply.

The input tax on capital goods at hand on the date of registration acquired six months prior to the effective date of VAT registration is claimable and the deduction has to occur within 12 months from the effective date of registration.

Refunds. Where the amount of input tax which is deductible exceeds the amount of output tax due in respect of the accounting period, the excess amount shall be credited by the Commissioner

General to the taxable person. Where the taxable person remains in an excess VAT position for a continuous period of three consecutive months or more, a refund shall be made.

Pre-registration costs. A taxable person may recover the VAT on stocks purchased prior to registration if the goods are still in possession of the taxable person at the time of registration and if the purchase or importation of stocks occurred not more than four months prior to the date of registration.

Write-off bad debts. VAT on sales that are declared bad is supposed to reduce the output tax payable by making the necessary adjustments on the VAT return.

Noneconomic activities. The VAT Act does not define noneconomic activities. However, the basic rule for claiming input tax is that the VAT should be wholly, exclusively and necessarily in the course of their business.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Malawi does not refund VAT to businesses that are not established in Malawi.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A taxable person shall, on supply of taxable goods or services to a customer, issue to the customer a tax invoice prescribed by the Commissioner General.

Credit notes. Where a tax invoice has been issued and the amount shown as VAT on the tax invoice exceeds the VAT properly chargeable in respect of the supply, the taxable person making the supply shall issue a credit note to the recipient of the supply.

Electronic invoicing. Every VAT-registered operator is required by law to issue electronic tax invoices as prescribed by the law and be in possession of the mandatory electronic fiscal device (EFD). In circumstances where the EFD is not working, an authorization letter from the tax authority should be obtained to permit the VAT operator to issue non-fiscalized invoices up until the machine starts functioning.

A taxable person who does not receive a fiscal invoice may request the taxable person who supplied the goods or services to him to provide a tax invoice in respect of the supply. The maximum retention period for the tax invoices received from suppliers is six years and input tax is claimable only if the fiscal invoices are available as basis for claiming input tax.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified VAT invoicing is not allowed in Malawi. As such, full VAT invoices are required.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Malawi.

Proof of exports. Exports of goods and services are zero-rated. For proof of exports, the following are mandatory export documents:
- Customs Declaration Form 12
- Supplier's commercial invoice
- Currency Declaration Form CD1
- Carrier's Cargo manifest
- Certificate of Origin

Foreign currency invoices. Invoices in a foreign currency but relating to the supplies made in Malawi should be converted in the local currency, Malawian Kwacha (MWK) for purposes of claiming input tax where VAT is explicitly shown on the invoice.

The exchange rates to use for such conversions are the Reserve Bank of Malawi's exchange rate at the date of the time of supply.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. A tax invoice is supposed to be issued for any supply of goods or services, even if the supply is made to nontaxable persons. There are penalties for not issuing fiscal invoices.

Records.

Record retention period. Records, as prescribed by the Minister or directed by the Commissioner General must be kept for a minimum of six years at such a place and time as gazetted. Written permission of the Commissioner General to destroy any book, document, account or record which is less than six years old, should be obtained. The permission granted shall specify the book, document, account or records to which the permission relates.

Electronic archiving. Archiving must be made in paper form only.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. VAT returns are due on the 25th of the following month to which the VAT return relates. VAT returns are submitted physically to the tax offices.

Periodic payments. Payment of VAT due must accompany the filing of the VAT return, i.e., by the 25th of the following month to which the VAT return relates. Payment of VAT can be made through the ePayment platform.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is not allowed in Malawi. All returns must be physically filed to the relevant tax office in Malawi.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Malawi.

Special schemes. No special schemes are available in Malawi.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Malawi.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in Malawi.

Digital reporting. No digital reporting requirements apply in Malawi.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. The penalty for late registration for VAT in Malawi is MWK100,000.

Penalties for late payment and filings. The penalty for late payment of VAT is an additional sum of 15% of the amount of VAT involved, plus a further additional sum of 5% per month or part thereof for the period during which the VAT remains unpaid.

Interest is charged on the unpaid amount at the prevailing bank lending rate plus 5% per annum.

Penalties for errors. Fine of MWK200,000, plus imprisonment for 10 years for falsification and alteration of documents. The goods involved are confiscated.

Penalties for fraud. The penalty for VAT fraud is a fine not exceeding 20 times the amount of VAT involved and imprisonment for 5 years.

B. Scope of the taxes

Sales tax. Sales tax is a single-stage tax, applied to sales of locally manufactured taxable goods as well as to taxable goods imported for domestic consumption.

All taxable goods manufactured in, or imported into, Malaysia are subject to sales tax, unless they are specifically exempted by law. However, sales tax does not apply to goods manufactured in, or imported into, Labuan, Langkawi, Tioman, (inter-country) Joint Development Area, free zones, licensed warehouses or licensed manufacturing warehouses.

The term "manufacture" is defined as the conversion of materials by manual or mechanical means into a new product by changing the size, shape, composition, nature or quality of such materials and includes the assembly of parts into a piece of machinery or other products. However, this does not include the installation of machinery or equipment for construction purposes. With respect to petroleum products, the term "manufacture" pertains to the process of refining that includes the separation, conversion, purification and blending of refinery streams or petrochemical streams.

Service tax. Service tax shall be charged and levied on any taxable services provided in Malaysia by a registered person in carrying on his business or self-assessed on any imported taxable services. It is applicable to specific taxable services prescribed under the First Schedule of the Service Tax Regulations 2018. Services that are not included in the prescribed list are not taxable. There are nine major groups of taxable services that currently form the prescribed list. Taxable services include, but are not limited to, accommodation, food and beverage, night clubs, private clubs, golf clubs, betting and gaming, professional services (legal, accounting, employment services, consultancy services, management services, engineering services, architectural services), credit card and charge cards and other specific services (insurance, advertising, telecommunication services, customs agents, parking, motor vehicle repair, etc.).

Effective 1 January 2020, foreign service providers will be required to register and charge 6% service tax on digital services (SToDS) that they provide to consumers (B2B or B2C) in Malaysia where the services exceed a threshold of RM500,000.

There were changes being proposed in the 2020 budget, as follows:
- Introduction of an Approved Major Exporter Scheme has been proposed where full tax exemptions are to be granted to traders and manufacturers of exempted goods upon importation/purchase, without the requirement to reconcile the importation/purchase with the quantity of goods to be exported. This initiative has been set out in the Finance Bill 2019.

The following changes were also proposed as part of the 2020 Budget Announcement speech but are pending further details:

- The conditions for the intragroup exemption (see Section D. Rates, Service tax below for detail on the current exemption) will be relaxed effective 1 January 2020 by allowing taxpayers to provide a certain minimal amount of professional taxable services to third parties. This is provided that income from the third parties does not exceed 5% of the total value of services provided and a threshold of RM500,000.
- A deferred payment facility will be introduced by the Royal Malaysian Customs Department to expediate the clearance process for the cross-border movement of goods.
- From a dispute resolution perspective, the Government will merge the Special Commissioner of Income Tax and the Customs Appeal Tribunal into one combined Tax Appeal Tribunal, which will commence operation in 2021.

C. Who is liable

Sales tax. Any person that manufactures taxable goods in the course of doing business must apply for a sales tax registration.

Exemption from registration. The following manufacturers are excluded from registration:
- Manufacturer of nontaxable goods (not eligible for voluntary registration)
- Manufacturer below the registration threshold (RM500,000)
- Subcontractor manufacturer below threshold (RM500,000)
- Manufacturing activities that have been exempted from registration

Importers. An importer of taxable goods does not need to apply for a sales tax registration. Sales tax on imported goods is assessed and collected when the goods are cleared by the Royal Malaysia Customs Department, together with any customs duties payable.

Service tax. Subject to the relevant registration thresholds provided in the service tax regulations, any person that carries on a business of providing taxable services must apply for service tax registration.

Mandatory registration is required where:
- The historical taxable annual turnover is more than the prescribed threshold (RM500,000).
- There are reasonable grounds that the future taxable annual turnover will be more than the prescribed threshold (RM500,000).

The following examples indicate businesses subject to the existing service tax registration thresholds (these lists are not exhaustive):

Examples of businesses with nil threshold
- Customs clearance agents
- Credit card or charge card services provider regulated by Bank Negara Malaysia

Examples of businesses with a RM500,000 threshold
- Professional engineer
- Courier service operator
- Parking operator
- Consultancy services excluding research and development companies

Example of businesses with a RM1.5 million threshold
- Caterer
- Food court operator
- Operator of restaurant, bar, snack bar, canteen, coffee house or any place that provides food and drinks
  - — Eat-in or take-away
  - — Excluding canteens in an educational institution or operated by a religious institution or body

Voluntary registration and small businesses. If the value of taxable supplies made by a business is below the registration threshold, the business may apply to register for SST voluntarily.

Group registration. A business that operates through branches or divisions must determine whether it is liable to be registered based on the aggregate total taxable supplies of all the branches and divisions. Divisional registrations ease the SST administration for such businesses. On approval, each branch or division may apply to register individually under the name of that branch or division. Supplies made between divisions within the divisional registration are disregarded for SST purposes.

Non-established businesses. With effect from 1 January 2020, a foreign service provider who provides digital services to consumers in Malaysia (i.e., individuals or businesses) is liable to be registered for service tax on digital service (SToDS) when the total value of digital services provided to a consumer in Malaysia exceeds RM500,000 per year. Foreign service providers who are liable to register for SToDS shall apply for registration not later than the last day of the month following the month in which they exceed the threshold. Foreign service providers may register from 1 October 2019 by completing and submitting the DST-01 form online via the SToDS portal.

Aside from the SToDS, there are no additional special rules for non-established businesses.

Tax representatives. Tax representatives are not required in Malaysia.

Reverse charge. Service tax at a rate of 6% shall be charged and levied on any imported taxable services acquired on or after 1 January 2019 by any person carrying on a business in Malaysia. The recipient of imported taxable services is required to self-account and pay 6% service tax based on the actual value of the imported taxable services. There is no input tax recovery.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Malaysia.

Digital economy. With effect from 1 January 2020, service tax at the rate of 6% shall be charged and levied on any qualifying digital service provided by a foreign registered person to consumers (i.e., businesses or individuals) in Malaysia. A foreign service provider who provides digital services to consumers in Malaysia, where the value of these services during a period of 12 months or less exceeds the threshold of RM500,000, will be required to register for service tax on digital service (SToDS). The value of the digital services can be determined based on either the historical or future method.

Online marketplaces and platforms. In Malaysia an online marketplace and platform is defined as any person outside Malaysia operating an online platform (for buying and selling goods or providing services), and who supplies the provision of digital services on behalf of any person (would be considered as a foreign service provider). Example of online platforms include offering online advertising space on an intangible media platform and offering platform to trade products or services.

To the extent that the value of the digital services provided by the online platform operator to consumers (B2B or B2C) in Malaysia exceeds the prescribed threshold for registration, the operator would be liable to be register for SToDS.

Registration procedures. For sales tax and service tax, businesses may apply for registration by completing and submitting the form SST-01 electronically via the MySST portal not later than the last day of the month following the month in which the business is liable to be registered. Foreign service providers who are liable to be registered for SToDS shall apply for registration via the DST-01 Form electronically via the SToDS portal not later than the last day of the month following the month in which the threshold has been exceeded.

Once the application has been approved, the businesses will be notified in writing and assigned a registration number by the Malaysian tax authorities (RMCD).

Deregistration. A business that ceases operations must cancel its SST registration. The business is required to notify the RMCD within 30 days from the date of such occurrence.

For SToDs, a foreign-registered person may apply to cancel its registration if his liability to be registered has ceased or the Director General (DG) determines that the person is not liable to be registered. The foreign-registered person shall notify the DG in writing of that fact and the date of cessation within 30 days from the date of cessation. This can be done by completing the DST-Adm1 online.

Designated area (DA). The duty-free islands are free from all types of customs duties and excise duties. For the purposes of SST, the duty-free islands are known as DA and currently refer specifically to the islands of Labuan, Langkawi and Tioman. Generally, any supplies of taxable goods or taxable services made by any person within or between the DAs are not subject to SST unless they are prescribed otherwise by the Minister. Further, any goods imported from overseas are not subject to sales tax unless they are prescribed by the Minister.

At the time of preparing this chapter, the Government has submitted an application to gazette Pangkor Island as a DA. However, no further information has yet been published.

D. Rates

Sales tax. Sales tax is an ad valorem tax and different rates apply based on the customs classification (HS codes) of the taxable goods. It is, therefore, crucial that the correct HS code classification is assigned to each of the products to ensure accuracy of the sales tax rate being applied.

The term “taxable goods” refers to goods that are of locally manufactured, as well as imported goods, both of which that are not exempt under the sales tax law.

The sales tax rates are:
- Standard rate: 10%
- Reduced rates: 5% and specific rates (imposed on certain petroleum products)
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of sales tax applies to all supplies of goods unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate, the zero rate or an exemption.

Example of goods and services taxable at 5%

- Nonessential goods (including among others, foodstuffs and building materials)

The term “exempt” refers to supplies of goods that are not liable to tax.

Nevertheless, the Minister of Finance has the power to exempt the following:
- Any goods or class of goods from the whole or any part of the sales tax, subject to conditions as he deems fit.
- Any person or class of persons from payment of the whole or any part of the sales tax which may be charged and levied on any taxable goods manufactured or imported.

Example of exempt supplies of goods

- Raw food (e.g., meat, vegetables, seafood)
- Bricks, blocks, tiles
- Bicycles and other cycles (including delivery tricycles), not motorized
- Trucks, motorcycles

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Malaysia.

Service tax. Service tax is imposed at a rate of 6% on the price, charge or premium for the taxable service. A specific rate of RM25 applies per year for each principal and supplementary card upon activation and subsequent years on the provision of credit card or charge card services by banks and financial service providers regulated by the Bank Negara Malaysia.

Specific exemptions are available for service tax registered persons, as follows:

- Intragroup exemption may apply when a company in a group of companies provides services to a related party company, provided all the following conditions under Regulations 3 to 8, First Schedule of the Service Tax Regulations 2018, as amended, are met:
  - i. Taxable services fall under items (a) to (i), Group G, First Schedule of the STR 2018. The underlying services in question can be classified under one of the following taxable services:
    - — Legal services
    - — Accounting, auditing, bookkeeping and other services by public accountants
    - — Surveying services, including valuation, appraisal and estate agency services
    - — Engineering services
    - — Architectural services
    - — Consultancy services
    - — Information technology services
    - — Management services
  - ii. Control requirement:
    - Two or more companies are eligible to be treated as companies within a group of companies if one company controls each of the other companies.
    - A company shall be taken to control another company if the first mentioned company holds directly, indirectly through subsidiaries, or together directly or indirectly through/from subsidiaries:
      - — More than 50% of the issued share capital of the second mentioned company
        Or
      - — From 20% to 50% of the issued share capital of the second mentioned company and the first mentioned company has exercisable power to appoint or remove all or a majority of directors in the board of directors in the second mentioned company.
  - iii. Exclusivity requirement — services only provided within the group:
    - Where a company provides any such specified Group G taxable services to another person outside the group of companies, all such taxable services (whether provided to a company within or outside the group of companies) shall be taxable services.
    - Where a company in a group of companies acquires the abovementioned professional services from any company within the same group of companies outside Malaysia, such service shall not be an imported taxable service, with effect from 1 September 2019.
    - Business-to-business (B2B) exemption is applicable to a service tax-registered person who acquires the same taxable services as provided by him, from another service tax-registered person. Specifically, the B2B exemption will only apply to certain specific professional services as follows:
      - — Legal services
      - — Legal services on Islamic matters
      - — Accounting, auditing, bookkeeping and other services by public accountants
      - — Surveying services, including valuation, appraisal and estate agency services
      - — Engineering services
      - — Architectural services
      - — Consultancy services
      - — Information technology services
      - — Management services
      - — Advertising services

E. Time of supply

Sales tax is due on goods manufactured in Malaysia when the goods are sold, used or disposed of by a taxable person. The definition of "disposal" includes the manufacturer diverting the goods for its own use, destroying the goods, giving away or donating the goods, and making a supply of manufactured goods for no consideration.

Service tax is due when payment is received for taxable services rendered. If payment is not received within 12 months after the date of issuance of an invoice, the tax is due on the day immediately after the expiration of the 12-month period. Service tax on imported services is due upon the earliest of payment or invoice receipt date.

Deposits and prepayments. There are no special time of supply rules for deposits and prepayments for sales tax in Malaysia. As such, the normal time of supply rules apply.

In principle, advance payments are subject to service tax upon receipt of payments from the customer. However, payment as a deposit is not subject to service tax until such deposit is realized as payment for the taxable service rendered and invoice have been issued.

Continuous supplies of services. If services are supplied continuously and payment is determined in whole or in part or payable periodically or from time to time, the tax is to be reported when the payment is received, or the tax invoice is issued, whichever is earlier.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules for goods sent on approval for sale or return in Malaysia. As such, the normal time of supply rules apply.

Reverse-charge services. Service tax in respect of imported taxable services shall be due and payable at the time when the payment is made, or invoice is received for the service, whichever is earlier.

Leased assets. Lease or rental of assets is not a taxable service under the First Schedule of the Service Tax Regulations 2018.

Imported goods. Sales tax is due on imported goods at the time the goods are cleared by the Royal Malaysia Customs Department or removed from a customs bonded warehouse.

F. Recovery of SST by taxable persons

SST is a single stage tax that is a cost to businesses. It is not passed onto businesses and customers within the supply chain.

Sales tax is a single-stage tax, applied to sales of locally manufactured taxable goods as well as to taxable goods imported for domestic consumption. Service tax is charged and levied on any taxable services provided in Malaysia by a registered person in carrying on their business or self-assessed on any imported taxable services.

There are only certain specific exemptions or the drawback facility under the sales tax regime. The following persons are exempted from sales tax:
- Schedule A: Class of person, e.g., ruler of states, federal or state government department, local authority, inland clearance depot, duty-free shop
- Schedule B: Manufacturer of specific nontaxable goods — raw materials, components, packaging to be used in manufacturing activities
- Schedule C: Registered manufacturer — exemption of tax on acquisition of raw materials, components, packaging to be used in manufacturing of taxable goods

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax incurred in Malaysia is generally not recoverable.

Partial exemption. Deduction of input tax is not allowed in Malaysia.

Capital goods. Input tax incurred on capital goods in Malaysia is not recoverable.

Refunds. There are several credit facilities and refunds available for sales tax and service tax, as follows:

Sales tax

- Drawback – Drawback of sales tax may be allowable to any person on which sales tax has been paid, if the taxable goods have been exported within six months from the date sales tax was imposed, subject to conditions.
- Deduction of sales tax – A registered manufacturer is eligible to make a deduction of sales tax paid, at the rate of 2% or 4% of the total value of taxable goods purchased (i.e., raw materials, components or packaging materials) used solely in the manufacturing of taxable goods, from a person other than a registered manufacturer, subject to certain conditions.
- Refund of erroneously paid or overpaid tax — Any person who has overpaid or erroneously paid any sales tax, surcharge, penalty, fee or other money shall make a claim for refund in the prescribed form (i.e., JKDM Form No. 2), subject to conditions.

Service tax

- Contra system — It is a facility that allows any registered person to deduct his return the amount of service tax paid but subsequently refunded to his customer because of either cancellation or termination for taxable services. An application can be made to the Director General of RMCD, subject to conditions.
- Refund of erroneously paid or overpaid tax — Any person who has overpaid or erroneously paid any sales tax, surcharge, penalty, fee or other money shall make a claim for refund in the prescribed form (i.e., JKDM Form No. 2), subject to certain conditions.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax incurred on pre-registration costs in Malaysia is not recoverable.

Write-off of bad debts. Claiming for bad debt is allowed for any person who is or has ceased to be a registered manufacturer or person provided that the SST has been paid, the whole or any part of the tax payable has been written off as bad debt. The claim for a refund on the whole or any part of the service tax paid shall be made within six years from the date the service tax is paid by the business.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred in relation to noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Malaysia.

G. Recovery of SST by non-established businesses

Input tax incurred by non-established businesses in Malaysia is not recoverable. This is because under the SST legislation, there is no input tax mechanism/ability to claim tax under the sales tax or service tax regime.

H. Invoicing

SST invoices. For both sales and service tax, every registered manufacturer/person who sells/provides any taxable goods/service is required to issue an invoice to customers containing prescribed particulars in the national (Bahasa Melayu) or English language. The amount of sales/service tax payable is to be stated separately from the total amount payable.

Credit notes. Adjustments generally arise as a result of the cancellation of a transaction, a change in the amount previously invoiced or a change in tax rate. Adjustment notes (i.e., debit and credit notes) should contain the prescribed particulars under the regulations and must cross-reference the original tax invoice number and date it relates to. The Director General (DG) may disallow any deduction where the credit notes presented are untrue or incorrect.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is permitted. The Malaysian SST Act presumes that an invoice has been issued to the customer, even though there is no delivery of any equivalent document in paper form to the customer, as long as the requisite information is recorded in a computer and is transmitted to the customer by electronic means or produced on any material other than paper and delivered to the customer.

Simplified SST invoices. Under the current SST regime, the document to support the SST-relevant transaction is referred only as an "invoice." However, the DG may allow any particulars specified in the SST regulation not to be stated on an invoice issued, upon request in writing.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Malaysia. However, the Director General has the power to reconsider these rules for certain exceptions.

Proof of exports. Exports of goods are exempt from sales tax. To qualify for exemption, it must be proven that the goods have been exported from Malaysia. Acceptable documentation includes a customs export declaration and an export sales invoice issued by a registered manufacturer.

Foreign currency invoices. If an invoice is issued in foreign currency, the total amount payable before SST, the total SST chargeable and the total amount payable (including SST) must be converted to Malaysian Ringgit by using the selling rate of exchange prevailing in Malaysia at the time of sale of taxable goods or when the taxable services are provided. In the case of SST levied on the importation of goods, the exchange rates published by RMCD that are updated every week, would be applied.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. There are no special invoicing rules for supplies to nontaxable persons in Malaysia. As such, full VAT invoices are required.

Records.

Record retention period. Taxable persons are required to maintain their SST records for seven years and the records must be in English or in the national language (Bahasa Melayu) Any records shall be kept in Malaysia, except as otherwise approved by the Director General.

For digital services, a foreign-registered person can keep their documents or records related to service tax on digital services outside Malaysia as long as the records are readily accessible when required.

Electronic archiving. Records can be kept electronically, where they shall be kept in such manner as to enable the record to be readily accessible and convertible into writing. If the record is originally in a manual form and is subsequently converted into an electronic form, the record shall be retained in its original form prior to the conversion.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. Every taxable person is required to account for tax by submitting an SST-02 return on a bimonthly basis (every two months). As of 1 January 2019, any nontaxable businesses that acquire services from overseas will also need to pay and file a separate SST-02A return.

The SST-02 return is required to be furnished to the DG not later than the last day of the month following the end of the taxable period. If a taxable person's taxable period does not end on the last day of the month, the SST-02 return should be furnished no later than the last day of the 30-day period from the end of the varied taxable period. On the other hand, SST-02A return is required to be furnished to the DG not later than the last day of the month following the end of the month in which the payment on the service has been made by him or invoice is received by him.

The DG, upon receiving any application in writing, may reassign the taxable period other than the period previously assigned to them, as they deem fit.

Periodic payments. The taxable person who is in the payable position must pay to the DG the amount of tax due and payable by him. Any tax due in respect of a taxable period becomes payable not later than the last day on which the taxable person is required to furnish the SST returns, i.e., by no later than the last day of the 30-day period from the end of the varied taxable period. Payment must be made by way of electronic fund transfer, checks, bank draft, money order or postal order.

Electronic filing. For SST-02 and SST-02A returns, the taxable persons may submit the SST return in one of three ways:
• Electronically
• By posting to the Customs Processing Center
• By couriering it to the Customs Processing Center

For SToDS, a foreign service provider needs to submit the DST-02 returns and make payments electronically via the SToDS portal.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Malaysia.

Special schemes. No special schemes are available in Malaysia.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Malaysia. However, the DG, subject to their approval, may vary the length of the taxable period or the date on which the taxable period begins or ends, upon receiving application in writing.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in Malaysia. However, taxpayers are allowed to submit supplementary SST returns, provided that they have additional tax amounts to be reported to RMCD, via the MySST portal.

Digital reporting. No digital reporting requirements apply in Malaysia.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. A taxable person that fails to apply for a sales or service tax registration is liable for a penalty, which may include imprisonment for a term not exceeding 24 months, a fine not exceeding RM30,000 or both. Please note that the Director General also has the power to raise an assessment, upon conviction, of from 10-20 times the amount of sales or service tax or up to 5 years imprisonment or both for the first offense and from 20-40 times the amount of sales or service tax or up to 7 years imprisonment or both for the second offense.

Penalties for late payment and filings. Any person who fails to submit the return as required will commit an offense and may upon conviction be liable to a fine not exceeding RM50,000 or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three years or to both.

Effective 1 September 2018, the penalty for late payment is:
• For the first 30-day period that the tax is not paid, 10% of the SST amount due
• For the second 30-day period that the tax is not paid, an additional 15% of the SST amount due
• For the third 30-day period that the tax is not paid, an additional 15% of the SST amount due

After the expiry of the 90-day period, any person who fails to pay to the DG, may upon conviction, be subject to a maximum penalty of 40% or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three years or to both.

Penalties for errors. Any person who makes an error in any return furnished, i.e., submits an incorrect return by omitting information, understating output tax or overstating input tax or giving any incorrect information commits an offense and shall, upon conviction, be subject to a fine not exceeding RM50,000, imprisonment for up to three years or both; plus, a fine equal to the amount of tax that has been or would have been undercharged.

Penalties for fraud. Any person who with the intent to evade or assist any other person to evade sales and service tax by making, using or authorizing the use of any fraud will be imposed penalties.

For the first offense, the person will be liable to a fine of not less than 10 times and not more than 20 times the amount of SST or to a term of 5 years or to both.

For the second or subsequent offense, the person will be liable to a fine of not less than 20 times and not more than 40 times the amount of SST or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 7 years or to both.

K. Transitional provisions

Final GST return. The submission of the GST-03 return under section 40 of the Repealed GST Act 2018, for the last taxable period was to be furnished and corresponding payment of GST made not later than 120 days from 1 September 2018 (i.e., on or before 29 December 2018).

Any declarations by non-GST registrants under subsection 42(1) of the Repealed GST Act 2018 were to be submitted and GST paid not later than 30 days from 1 September 2018 (i.e., on or before 30 September 2018).

Notwithstanding the above, RMCD has allowed a GST-registered person to make any adjustments in the final GST return until 31 August 2020. This is to cover cases after 29 December 2018 where there are GST credit or debit notes issued due to a change in consideration for the taxable supplies in relation to the goods sold or services rendered during GST era.

Input tax claims. Any input tax claim credit allowable shall be claimed within 120 days from 1 September 2018 to 29 December 2018. Application for extension of time to claim input tax after the expiry of 120 days, shall be made to the DG for his approval. The approval for extension of time may only be given depending on the merits and grounds that are acceptable and reasonable, such as in the case of retention sums where defect liability is given for a period beyond 29 December 2018.

Any input tax that has not been refunded by the DG as of 1 September 2018 shall be paid by the DG within six years from 1 September 2018.

GST closure audit. A mandatory GST closure audit will be performed on all taxpayers as a prerequisite for GST registrants to be deregistered, following the repeal of the GST Act 2014. A GST closure audit is a historical audit to be performed by the RMCD, to verify that GST has been properly accounted for in all applicable business transactions, and to ensure that the relevant information has been correctly reported in the GST-03 returns. GST closure audit will continue until the end of 2020. Further updates are expected to be published by the DG.

B. Scope of the tax

GST applies to the supply of goods or services made in the Maldives by a taxable person.

TGST applies to the following:
- Goods and services supplied by tourist resorts, tourist hotels, guest houses, picnic islands, tourist vessels and yacht marinas authorized by the Tourism Ministry
- Goods and services supplied by shops, diving schools, spas, water sports facilities and other such places in establishments specified in the law (subsection (a)(1)), excluding shops operating exclusively for the employees of such establishments
- Goods and services supplied by travel agency service providers authorized by the tourism ministry
- Goods and services supplied to foreign tourist vessels entering the Maldives by their agents
- Goods and services provided by domestic air transportation service providers to persons other than Maldivian citizens

C. Who is liable

The following persons are required to register for GST if the value of their taxable supplies exceeds MVR1 million (USD64,851) per year:
- Companies registered under the Companies Act of Maldives (Act Number 10/1996)
- Nonresident companies that operate and earn profits from sources inside the Maldives
- Partnerships registered under the Partnership Act (Act Number 9/1996)
- Cooperative societies and associations

The following persons are required to register for TGST irrespective of their taxable supplies:
- Tourist establishments (tourist resorts, tourist hotels, guesthouses, picnic islands, tourist vessels and yacht marinas authorized by the Tourism Ministry)
- Diving schools, shops, spas, water sports facilities and any other such facilities being operated within the tourist establishments specified above
- Travel agency service providers authorized by the Tourism Ministry
- Agents providing goods and services to foreign tourist vessels entering the Maldives

Persons carrying on taxable activities in the Maldives must register with the MIRA within 30 days from the date of commencement of the business activity if:
- The value of the person's taxable supplies during the past 12 months exceeded MVR1 million (USD64,851)
- The value of the person's estimated taxable supplies for the following 12 months exceeds MVR1 million (USD64,851)
- The person provides tourism goods and services

Persons that import goods into the Maldives must register for GST in the Maldives (it is mandatory) and must apply to register with the MIRA within 30 days from the date of commencement of import activity. Please note that there is no separate import GST in the Maldives.

Persons who meet the above criteria shall submit a standard form called MIRA 105 to the MIRA, and the MIRA will confirm the registration by issuing a notification of GST registration.

Exemption from registration. Persons with a total annual turnover of less than MVR1 million (USD64,851) are exempted from GST. There is no exemption from registration for TGST. Importers of goods to the Maldives and suppliers of tourism goods and services are required to register even if the value of their supplies do not exceed the MVR1 million threshold.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. A person conducting an authorized trade or providing an authorized service may request permission of the Commissioner General to register with the MIRA.

Group registration. Group VAT registration is not allowed in the Maldives.

Non-established businesses. A foreign business with no establishment in the Maldives, that supplies goods or services to customers in the Maldives, is not required to register for GST. The rules are the same for supplies of goods and for supplies of services and irrespective of whether supplies are made to business or private customers.

If the foreign business physically supplies goods or services via a branch or office, etc., or has the authority to conclude contracts in the Maldives, it will qualify as a permanent establishment in the Maldives. In this case if such permanent establishments meet the thresholds mentioned they will be obliged to register for GST.

There is no specific threshold for foreign businesses. The general threshold for GST registration applies, i.e., if the total taxable sales (including zero-rated goods and services) for the previous 12 months exceeded MVR1 million or expected taxable sales (including zero-rated goods and services) for the next 12 months is expected to exceed MVR1 million.

Tax representatives. A taxpayer may choose to appoint a tax agent to act on its behalf in relation to tax matters; it is not compulsory to do so. The obligation of the tax agent is to review or file tax returns on behalf of the taxpayer, but all payment obligations, fines and compliance obligations would still fall upon the taxpayer.

If the taxpayer wishes to appoint a licensed tax agent, it must submit a completed "appointment of tax agent" (MIRA 114) form together with the information and documents specified therein, to the tax administration (MIRA). A tax agent cannot represent any taxpayer prior to the submission of the necessary form to the MIRA. A taxpayer may appoint only one licensed tax agent.

Reverse-charge services. There is no reverse-charge mechanism in the Maldives. A foreign business with no establishment in the Maldives, that supplies goods or services to customers in the Maldives, is not required to register for GST. The rules are the same for supplies of goods and for supplies of services and irrespective of whether supplies are made to business or private customers.

The only scenario where the reverse-charge mechanism would apply, is for business-to-business (B2B) digital transactions, the customer is expected to self-assess GST and TGST on the payment to the nonresident business. See the Digital economy sub-section below for more detail.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charge in the Maldives.

Digital economy. For B2B digital transactions, the customer is expected to self-assess GST and TGST on the payment to the nonresident business. The self-assessed GST/TGST is eligible for an immediate credit to the extent that the customer's business allows the customer to take input tax credits.

GST/TGST does not apply to business-to-consumer (B2C) digital transactions.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in the Maldives. If the registration rules are met, the service provider must register and declare GST on the services provided. Registration is only compulsory for local online marketplaces/platforms.

Registration procedures. To register for GST, the taxpayer must submit the GST registration form (MIRA 105) to the tax authorities. Taxpayers must register before the end of the month following the month in which the threshold of MVR1 million was reached.

Deregistration. Persons registered with the MIRA may apply for termination of registration under the following circumstances:

- The person's taxable supplies at the end of any 12-month period fell below MVR500,000 (USD32,425).

- The person's taxable supplies at the beginning of any 12-month period are forecasted to fall below MVR500,000 (USD32,425).
- The person has ceased taxable activities, with no intention to resume them during the following 12 months.

Registered persons are required to pay tax on goods in their possession at the time of termination of their registration if input tax on the goods has already been claimed.

A registered person who is an importer of goods into the Maldives whose registration is canceled or terminated must submit to the MIRA an account of the goods in his possession out of the goods imported by him. Goods specified in an invoice submitted accordingly shall be sold after a tax invoice is issued. Tax shall be paid on the sale of such goods, and a tax invoice shall be issued accordingly.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of GST, including the zero rate.

The GST rates are:
- Standard GST rate: 6%
- Standard TGST rate: 12%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of GST applies to all supplies of goods and services unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate, the zero rate or an exemption.

All services provided by a business registered with the tourism ministry of the Maldives (unless otherwise exempted) is subject to the standard rate of 12% TGST.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Essential goods specified in the GST Act, such as:
  - Rice
  - Sugar
  - Flour

Note: Rice, sugar and flour refer to such goods imported by the State Trading Organization at any given time and sold at controlled prices.
- Salt
- Milk
- Cooking oil
- Eggs
- Tea leaves
- Deep sea fish, reef fish, all types of fish packed in the Maldives, and rihaakuru (fish paste)
- Vegetables such as potatoes, onions, carrots, cabbage, beans and tomatoes
- Ingredients used in making curry paste (cumin, fennel, coriander, turmeric, garlic, ginger, chili, chili powder, cinnamon, cardamom, peppercorn, any other such ingredient)
- Dhiyaahakuru, coconuts (kaashi, kurun'ba, kurolhi)
- Carrots, cabbage, beans and tomatoes among vegetables
- All kinds of fruits
- Bread, buns and faaroshi (rusk)
- Baby diapers
- Baby food
- Cooking gas
- Diesel
- Petrol

- Adult diapers
- Sanitary napkins, tampons, menstrual cups and other such products
- Goods and services exported from the Maldives, including goods exported by an export license holder or re-export license holder, goods supplied by duty free shops and services exported by a registered person. Services exported are services provided by a person in the Maldives to a person outside the Maldives and consumed outside the Maldives.
- Sale of a going concern. The disposal of a going concern shall be a zero-rated supply if the purchaser of the business is registered with the MIRA under the GST Act or the purpose of the disposal transaction is to transfer the ownership of a business owned by an individual or individuals to a company at least 99% of the share capital of which is held by the same individual or individuals.

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to GST and do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Electricity service
- Water facilities
- Postal service (not including courier services)
- Sewerage facilities
- Education
- Health services
- Medical devices and drugs
- Financial services
- Rent earned from lease of immovable property
- International transportation services
- Payments collected as fines
- Day care services provided by day care centers registered with the relevant Government authority or State institution
- Flats, land and buildings sold by the Government or by the Government through a third party under social housing schemes in which the Government has the discretion to control the price of the property being sold

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax-exempt supplies is not available in the Maldives.

E. Time of supply

The time of supply of goods or services is the time at which the tax invoice for such good or service is issued or the time at which the recipient of such good or service makes full or partial payment, whichever occurs earlier.

Where payment for supply of goods and services has been agreed to be made within a stipulated period under an installment agreement, payments made accordingly shall be regarded as separate taxable transactions. The time of supply of goods and services in relation to any such transaction shall be deemed as the date on which the installment payment was received or the date on which the installment payment would otherwise be due, whichever is earlier.

Deposits and prepayments. Irrespective of the amount received as deposit or prepayments, GST/TGST shall be declared on the amount received.

The tax declaration point will be identified based on the time-of-supply rules described above.

Continuous supplies of services. If services are supplied continuously and payment is made periodically, a tax point is created each time a payment is made, or a tax invoice is issued, whichever occurs earlier in each designated period.

Goods sent on approval or for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules in the Maldives for supplies of goods sent on approval or sale or return. As such, the general time of supply rules (as outlined above) apply.

Reverse-charge services. There is no reverse-charge mechanism in the Maldives.

Leased assets. There are no special time-of-supply rules in the Maldives for supplies of leased assets. As such, the general time of supply rules (as outlined above) apply).

Imported goods. The time of supply of imported goods or services is identified based on the time-of-supply rules described above.

F. Recovery of GST by taxable persons

A registered person supplying goods and services to another registered person shall charge tax on the value of such goods and services in accordance with the GST Act, and such tax shall be the input tax of the recipient of the good or service.

Input tax in relation to a good or service purchased by a registered person shall not be set-off against such person's output tax if:
- The recipient of the good or service does not possess a valid tax invoice issued by the supplier.
- Twelve months have elapsed from the end of the taxable period under such person's accounting basis in which the input tax could have first been claimed.
- The good or service is not supplied in the Maldives.

For a company to claim GST, a tax invoice has to be obtained for the purchases from a supplier registered for GST. If a supplier is not registered for GST in Maldives, or if it is an offshore supplier, GST input cannot be claimed for the purchases.

Nondeductible input tax. Expenses that are not related to the business or purchase of goods that are exempt from GST cannot be used to claim against output GST. A taxpayer is only required to declare the purchases of goods and services subject to GST when filing the tax return.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- All purchases relating to exempt supplies
- Private expenditure

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Expenses relating to taxable supplies

Partial exemption. VAT directly related to making exempt supplies is not recoverable. A registered person who makes both exempt and taxable supplies cannot recover input tax in full.

VAT that relates to making both taxable and exempt supplies must be apportioned using a method acceptable to the tax authorities to allocate the VAT between taxable supplies and exempt supplies. Input tax related to taxable supplies may be deducted in full. VAT related to exempt supplies may not be deducted.

Capital goods. If the capital expenditure incurred by a registered person for the supply of a good or service is directly attributable to such supply, input tax in relation to such expenditure shall be deducted from the output tax in the following manner based on the amount of gross capital expenditure:
- MVR500,000 (USD32,425) or less: input tax deductible in full in the taxable period of supply
- If the gross capital expenditure incurred is less than MVR500,000, the GST input could be deducted within 12 months

- If the gross capital expenditure is more than MVR500,000, the GST could be deducted equally over 36 months

Refunds. Excess payments made to the MIRA shall be refunded when the taxpayer terminates all the taxable activities in the Maldives.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax incurred on pre-registration costs in the Maldives, is not recoverable.

Write-off of bad debts. Irrecoverable GST/TGST on bad debts can be claimed as a deduction from the output tax.

The amount of tax paid on irrecoverable debts may be offset against the output tax of subsequent taxable periods with the authorization of the Commissioner General. In requesting the Commissioner General's authorization, the registered person shall submit the following documents:
- Copies of all tax invoices, receipts, credit notes and debit notes related to that supply
- Documents proving that the registered person has accounted for and paid tax on that supply
- Documents confirming consideration required to be paid for that supply has occurred

Noneconomic activities. GST incurred in the course of nonbusiness activities is generally not recoverable.

G. Recovery of GST by non-established businesses

The Maldives does not refund GST to businesses not established in the Maldives.

H. Invoicing

GST invoices. A registered person that supplies goods or services to another registered person shall at the request of the recipient provide that recipient with a tax invoice within 28 days of the request. Only one invoice shall be issued in relation to a given transaction.

Credit notes. If the value of a transaction for the supply of goods or services falls or is reduced for any reason after a tax invoice has been issued, the recipient of such goods or services shall be issued a credit note including the following:
- "Credit Note," written prominently
- Name, address and TIN of the supplier of goods or services
- Name, address and TIN of the recipient of goods or services
- Date of issue
- Credit note number
- Reason for issuing the credit note
- Original tax invoice number, date, amount of tax specified in that tax invoice, amount of tax calculated after the change in value, and the difference between the two amounts

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is permitted in the Maldives. An electronic invoice has to contain all the details required when issuing a full tax invoice in accordance with the GST act. There are no other specific electronic invoicing conditions in the Maldives.

Simplified VAT invoices. If the value of the goods or services supplied by a registered person is lower than MVR5,000 (USD324) inclusive of tax, a registered person shall issue a tax invoice exclusive of the name, address and TIN of the recipient of goods or services.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in the Maldives.

Proof of exports. GST on exports is zero rated subject to following conditions:
- The service is supplied to a nonresident and the nonresident is outside the Maldives at the time that the service is performed.

- The actual physical flow of the service is not to a person in the Maldives that receives or benefits from that service.
- The services are not supplied directly in connection with any property in the Maldives at the time that the services are performed.

The export holder shall retain the following documents in relation to the export:
- Valid export/re-export license
- Proper tax invoice
- Documents supporting the export

Foreign currency invoices. Only taxpayers providing tourism goods and services may issue invoices in a foreign currency (such as US dollars) that is accepted by the Maldives Monetary Authority (MMA), as determined by the Commissioner General.

The rule for converting foreign currency on an invoice is that the rate used must be plus or minus 2% of the rate published by the MMA, at the time of supply.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. A registered person may issue a receipt in relation to the supply of goods or services if the supply was made to a person other than a registered person. Such a receipt shall include the following:
- Name, address and TIN of the registered person
- Date of payment
- Receipt number
- Details of services provided, or quantity and details of goods sold
- Total value of goods or services supplied, excluding the tax charged on the value of goods or services
- Tax charged on the value of goods or services supplied
- Value of goods or services inclusive of tax, or, if the amount of tax has been included in the price of the good or service, a statement to such effect

Records.

Record retention period. Records should be kept for a minimum of five years in the Maldives. There are no special rules in addition to this.

Electronic archiving. Records can be kept archived electronically. There is no restriction on this matter.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. Every registered person shall calculate the amount of tax payable for each taxable period in accordance with the GST Act and the regulations made pursuant to it and shall file a tax return to the MIRA in accordance with the regulation.

Taxpayers registered for general sector goods and services (GGST) are required to file a GST return (MIRA 205). Taxpayers registered for tourism sector goods and services (TGST) are required to file a TGST return (MIRA 206).

A tax return must be filed on or before the 28th day of the month following the end of the taxable period or the date determined by the Commissioner General where the Commissioner General has decided to postpone the date for submission of tax returns due to any reasonable grounds.

The frequency of making payments and filing returns depends on the taxpayer's taxable period. The taxable period is mentioned in the letter issued to the taxpayer with the GST Registration Certificate. If the taxpayer's average taxable sales exceed MVR1 million per month, the taxable period is a calendar month. If the taxpayer's taxable sales do not exceed MVR1 million per month, the taxable period is quarterly (based on calendar quarters, i.e., January-March, April-June, July-September, October-December).

In the event a registered person is deceased or has ceased to carry out all taxable activities, the part of the tax return for the current taxable period up until the time of death or cessation of operations shall be filed by the legally obliged person on or before the 28th day of the month after the end of such taxable period.

Unless proven to the contrary, it shall be presumed that tax returns filed under the GST Act on behalf of a registered person have been prepared either by the principal or with the principal's authorization.

Periodic payments. Registered persons shall calculate tax payable in respect of each taxable period and pay such tax to the MIRA before the deadline for filing tax returns attributable to that taxable period in accordance with the provisions of the GST Act.

Electronic filing. The vast majority of GST-registered businesses (with some limited exceptions) are required to submit their GST returns online using the MIRA electronic GST service and pay any GST due electronically. Any business with an annual income of less than MVR5 million is allowed to file manual (i.e., paper) returns with the MIRA.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in the Maldives.

Special schemes. No special schemes are available in the Maldives.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in the Maldives.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in the Maldives.

Digital reporting. No digital reporting requirements apply in the Maldives.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. According to the Tax Administration Act, the penalty for non-registration is MVR50 (USD3.24) per day of delay, up to a maximum of MVR5,000 (USD324).

Penalties for late payment and filings. Penalties apply as follows:
- Nonpayment of tax: 0.05% of amount outstanding per day
- Failure to file GST return by due date: if there is no tax liability, MVR50 (USD3.24) per day of delay; if there is tax liability, both MVR50 per day of delay is due as well as 0.5% of the tax payable is due
- Failure to submit document or provide information to the MIRA by due date: if there is no tax liability, MVR50 (USD3.24) per day of delay; if there is tax liability, both MVR50 per day of delay is due, as well as 0.5% of amount of the tax payable is due

Penalties for errors. If an error has been detected during a MIRA audit, fines will be applicable from the required date of filing on the excess amount of tax that has been assessed by MIRA. Any errors made with an intention to evade tax shall incur penalties as described above. Penalties may be reduced or eliminated if the business makes an unprompted disclosure to the MIRA. The degree of mitigation depends on the extent of the disclosure.

Penalties for fraud. Fines are applicable on filing and payment, calculated from the date of the filing requirement. If a company fails to file or pay as per the deadline, fines shall be applicable on an accumulating basis.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- The supply of goods and the rendering of services in Malta by a taxable person for consideration, in the course or furtherance of an economic activity
- Intra-Community acquisition of goods (subject to certain conditions; see the chapter on the EU)
- Intra-Community acquisitions of new means of transport (see the chapter on the EU)
- Intra-Community acquisitions of excise goods
- The importation of goods into Malta (other than exempt importations)

C. Who is liable

A taxable person is any person that carries on an economic activity, regardless of the purpose or result of that activity.

Exemption from registration. A Maltese established taxable person exclusively involved in exempt without credit supplies (or in supplies that take place outside Malta and are not subject to the reverse-charge mechanism in another EU Member State) as a general rule is not required to register for Maltese VAT purposes (save for any intra-Community acquisitions of goods in excess of EUR10,000 per annum or receipt of taxable services from a non-Maltese established services provider that both trigger a Maltese VAT registration obligation).

A non-Maltese established taxable person is not required to register for VAT purposes in Malta as long as no supplies are rendered/received in Malta upon which he is the person liable for the payment of VAT.

Such persons, even though not registered for Maltese VAT, would still be considered as taxable persons on the basis that they are carrying on an economic activity (excluding pure holding companies).

Voluntary registration and small businesses. A taxable person who is not required to register for VAT purposes in Malta may still apply for a Maltese VAT registration to claim back any Maltese input tax incurred on expenses on the basis that the supplies carried out to which such expenses relate (both within and outside of Malta) carry a right of refund, even though such supplies do not trigger a VAT registration obligation.

Group registration. VAT grouping was introduced in Malta on 1 June 2018. Subject to certain conditions, a group of related entities may register for Maltese VAT purposes as a single taxable person.

Non-established businesses. A “non-established business” may be any of the following persons:
- A taxable person that has not established its economic activity
- A taxable person that has no fixed place of establishment in Malta
- A physical person who has not established his or her economic activity in Malta
- A physical person who does not have a fixed place of establishment in Malta, has no permanent address in Malta or does not usually reside in Malta

A non-established business that makes supplies in Malta may appoint a tax representative or may be required by the Maltese tax authorities to do so. The Commissioner for Revenue may designate, by means of a written notice, a person resident in Malta with whom the non-established business has a business relationship to be the tax representative of the non-established business, unless the non-established business has already designated a representative. The representative must be nominated in writing to the VAT authorities. A tax representative is jointly and severally liable with the person represented.

Tax representatives. Persons who are not established in Malta and who are required to register for VAT purposes in Malta may nominate a person resident in Malta to act as their fiscal representative. This is to be made in writing to the Commissioner for Revenue and is subject to his approval. Such a request may also be made by the Commissioner for Revenue himself.

The representative is liable in the same manner and to the same extent as the person for whom he acts as representative, for all obligations imposed by the VAT Act.

Reverse charge. Under the VAT directive, certain supplies received as a customer from a supplier outside Malta are required to be treated in a different way to normal supplies. In such situations, rather than being charged VAT by the supplier, the customer will account for any VAT due. This is known as the "reverse-charge" mechanism.

Where the reverse-charge mechanism applies, the Maltese recipient must act as both supplier and recipient of the services for VAT purposes. On the same VAT return, therefore, the Malta taxable person must account for output and input tax.

Where a Maltese supplier supplies certain goods or services to a taxable person not established in Malta, generally, no VAT is due in Malta, and VAT should not be accounted for. However, in order to avoid double taxation, nontaxation or distortion of competition, the Director General of VAT may, with regard to the supply of the services referred to in Articles 44, 45, 56 and 59 of the EC Directive 2006/112/EC:
- Consider the place of supply of any service as being situated outside the EU, if the effective use and enjoyment of the services takes place outside the EU
- Consider the place of supply of any service as being situated within Malta, if the effective use and enjoyment of the services takes place within Malta

Domestic reverse charge. There is a domestic reverse charge in Malta for certain construction-related services. However, there are special rules in place for this domestic reverse charge. The use of the domestic reverse charge must be approved in writing by the Maltese VAT Department on a case-by-case basis subject to the satisfaction of certain conditions upon a request to be submitted in writing.

Digital economy. Special rules apply regarding the place of supply of telecommunication services, broadcasting services and electronically supplied services. As a general rule, such services when provided to nontaxable persons will be deemed to take place in the country where the customer is established. Some minor changes in connection with the invoicing rules of such services, and for sales less than EUR10,000 and EUR100,000, came into effect from 1 January 2019, in line with Council Directive (EU) 2017/2455 and Council Implementing Regulation (EU) 2017/2459.

Mini One-Stop Shop. The Mini One-Stop Shop (MOSS) became effective 1 January 2015 and registration started effective 1 October 2014.

The Maltese VAT Department issued a notice stating that persons supplying services under the MOSS in terms of Articles 359 and 369b of the EU VAT Directive 2006/112/EC shall not be required to issue fiscal receipts for such B2C services.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Malta.

Vouchers. The provisions of Council Directive (EU) 2016/1065 of 27 June 2016 amending Council Directive 2006/112/EC as regards the treatment of vouchers were transposed into local Maltese legislation as from 1 January 2019.

Single-purpose voucher (SPV) means a voucher where the place of supply of the goods or services to which the voucher relates, and the VAT due on those goods or services, are known at the time of issue of the voucher. Multi-purpose voucher (MPV) means a voucher, other than a single-purpose voucher.

Each transfer of a SPV made by a taxable person acting in their own name shall be regarded as a supply of the goods or services to which the voucher relates. The actual handing over of the goods or the actual provision of the services in return for a SPV accepted as consideration or part consideration by the supplier shall not be regarded as an independent transaction.

The actual handing over of the goods or the actual provision of the services in return for a MPV accepted as consideration or part consideration by the supplier shall be subject to VAT pursuant to Article 4 of the VAT Act, whereas each preceding transfer of that MPV shall not be subject to VAT.

Registration procedures. A taxable person established in Malta who carries on an economic activity (or a non-Maltese established taxable person who is liable to charge Maltese output tax on his supplies) is liable to register for Maltese VAT under Article 10 of the VAT Act within 30 days of making a supply for consideration in Malta, other than an exempt-without-credit supply.

Maltese established taxable persons that qualify as a small undertaking may register under Article 10, but also may opt for a simpler VAT registration under Article 11, depending on the type of economic activity involved and the level of turnover, as follows:
- For new registrants who principally supply goods: those with an annual turnover lower than EUR35,000 (the "entrance threshold") may register as a small undertaking. Taxpayers currently registered under the normal regime may reregister as a small undertaking if their turnover falls below EUR28,000 (the "exit threshold").
- For new registrants who principally supply services with relatively low value added, those with an annual turnover lower than EUR24,000 may register as a small undertaking. Such taxpayers currently registered under the normal regime may reregister as a small undertaking if their turnover falls below EUR19,000.
- For new registrants who principally supply other services, those with annual turnover lower than EUR20,000 may register as a small undertaking. Such taxpayers currently registered under the normal regime may reregister as a small undertaking if their turnover falls below EUR17,000.

Moreover, anyone who carries on an economic activity is not registered under Article 10 and intends to make an intra-Community acquisition in Malta is liable to register for Maltese VAT under Article 12, by not later than the date of that acquisition if his total intra-Community acquisitions in Malta during that calendar year exceed EUR10,000.

A taxable person established in Malta who is not registered under Articles 10 or 11 and who supplies services within the territory of another Member State for which the tax is payable solely by the recipient shall apply to be registered under Article 10 by not later than 30 days from the date on which he makes a supply for consideration. Moreover, a taxable person established in Malta, other than a taxable person registered under Article 10, who receives services for which he is liable to pay the tax (reverse-charge mechanism) shall apply to be registered under Article 12 by not later than the date on which he receives a service.

A Maltese VAT registration should be accompanied by the necessary due diligence documentation and is usually processed within 5 to 10 working days from when all information is made available to the Maltese VAT Department.

Deregistration. An online VAT deregistration form needs to be filed whenever a VAT-registered person wants to deregister for VAT purposes. This includes listing among other things the reason for deregistration, whether the business will be transferred or not and details pertaining to any assets held.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
• Standard rate: 18%
• Reduced rates: 5% and 7%
• Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services, unless a specific measure provides a reduced rate, the zero rate or an exemption.

Some supplies are classified as “exempt with credit,” which means that no VAT is due, but the supplier may recover related input tax.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0% (i.e., exempt with credit)

• Food, excluding catering
• Pharmaceutical goods
• International transport
• Exports of goods and related services (to territories outside the EU)
• Supplies to ships
• Supply of gold to the Central Bank of Malta

Examples of supplies of goods and services taxable at 5%

• Confectionery
• Medical equipment and accessories
• Printed matter (including e-books/audio books as from 1 January 2015)
• Supply of electricity
• Items for the exclusive use of the disabled
• The importation of works of art, collectors’ items and antiques

Examples of goods and services taxable at 7%

• Tourist accommodation
• Use of sporting facilities

The term “exempt supplies” refers to supplies of goods and services not liable to tax and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

• Letting and transfer of immovable property
• Health and welfare
• Education
• Postal services
• Banking and insurance
• Grant and negotiation of credit and the management of credit by the grantor
• Supply by nonprofit organizations of approved services related to sports or physical recreation
• Sports
• Lotteries
• Broadcasting
• Water

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Malta.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is referred to as the “date when tax on supplies becomes chargeable” or “tax point.”

The basic tax point for a supply of goods is the earlier of the date on which the goods are delivered or otherwise made available to the recipient of the supply or the date on which payment is made.

The basic tax point for a supply of services is the earlier of the date on which the services are performed or the date on which payment is made.

If a VAT invoice is issued before the basic tax point or by the 15th day of the month following the basic tax point, the date on which the VAT invoice is issued becomes the actual tax point. The actual tax point overrides the basic tax point.

Deposits and prepayments. The basic tax point for a supply of goods is the earlier of the date on which the goods are delivered or otherwise made available to the recipient of the supply or the date on which payment is made. The basic tax point for a supply of services is the earlier of the date on which the services are performed or the date on which payment is made.

Continuous supplies of services. When the supply of services gives rise to successive statements of account or payments they shall be treated as performed, up to the value covered by those statements, on the last day of each period to which such statements of account or payments refer (basic tax point).

Provided that, when a continuous supply of services does not give rise to statements of account or payments during a year, it shall be regarded as being completed at least at intervals of one year.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. The Maltese VAT law does not provide for a specific time of supply rule for these circumstances.

Reverse-charge services. The basic tax point for a supply of services is the earlier of the date on which the services are performed or the date on which payment is made.

If a VAT invoice is issued before the basic tax point or by the 15th day of the month following the basic tax point, the date on which the VAT invoice is issued becomes the actual tax point. The actual tax point overrides the basic tax point.

Leased assets. In cases of leased goods (where the delivery of goods pursuant to a contract for the hire of goods for a certain period or for the sale of goods on deferred terms, which provides that in the normal course of events ownership shall pass at the latest upon payment of the final installment) such supplies shall be treated as supplies of goods with the basic tax point being the earlier of the date on which the goods are delivered (or otherwise made available to the recipient) or the date on which payment is made.

Imported goods. When goods are, on importation, placed under a customs duty suspension regime the chargeable event takes place and the tax becomes chargeable on the date when they cease to remain subject to that regime.

Intra-Community acquisitions. The tax on an intra-Community acquisition becomes chargeable on the earlier of the following two dates — (a) the 15th day of the month following the date of the acquisition; (b) the date on which a tax invoice is issued to the person making the acquisition for the supply of goods in question.

Intra-Community supplies of goods. The basic tax point for an intra-Community supply of goods is the earliest of the 15th day of the month following the date when the chargeable event takes place or the date on which a tax invoice is issued for that supply.

If a VAT invoice is issued before the basic tax point or by the 15th day of the month following the basic tax point, the date on which the VAT invoice is issued becomes the actual tax point. The actual tax point overrides the basic tax point.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A VAT-registered person may recover input tax, which is VAT charged on goods and services supplied to it for business purposes. Input tax is recovered by deducting the amount from output tax, which is VAT charged on supplies made in the same period.

Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services supplied in Malta, VAT paid on imports of goods and VAT self-assessed for reverse-charge services received from outside Malta.

For a claim for input tax to be valid, the following conditions must be met:
- The claim must be supported by a tax invoice.
- The person claiming the expense must have the document in its possession and provide it to the Director General of VAT if and when requested.
- The amount of tax claimed must be properly accounted for in the records held by the claimant.
- The VAT is recoverable to the extent allowable by the VAT Act.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use by an entrepreneur). In addition, input tax may not be recovered for some items of business expenditure.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Nonbusiness expenditure
- Purchase, repair and maintenance, lease, fuel and hire of vehicles (excluding commercial vehicles)
- Business and employee entertainment
- Tobacco and alcohol
- Works of art and antiques

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Business expenditure (excluding blocked deductions)
- Mobile phones
- Hotel accommodation (purely for business purposes)

Partial exemption. Input tax directly related to the provision of exempt without credit supplies is generally not recoverable. If a registered person makes both exempt without credit supplies and taxable supplies, the person may not deduct input tax in full. This situation is referred to as "partial attribution" or "partial exemption." The amount of input tax that may be deducted from output tax by a taxable person making exempt without credit supplies is based on the percentage of taxable supplies made compared with total supplies made. Attribution is based on a provisional rate in the first year (year 1) and is then adjusted to a definitive rate, which is based on the level of taxable supplies made compared with total supplies made on an annual basis. The definitive rate (as amended at the end of the first year) is used as the provisional rate in the second year (year 2).

Capital goods. Capital goods are items of capital expenditure that are used in a business over several years. Input tax is deducted in the VAT year in which the goods are acquired and first taken into use. The amount of input tax recovered depends on the taxable person's partial attribution recovery position in the VAT year of acquisition. However, the amount of input tax recovered for capital goods must be adjusted over time if the taxable person's partial attribution recovery percentage changes during the adjustment period or if the use of the capital goods changes.

An adjustment may be necessary to the initial VAT deduction with respect to capital goods and immovable property, resulting from either a change in the circumstances of the business or a change in the proportion of use of the asset in the business. In the event of such change in circumstances, an adjustment to the initial deduction is made. The adjustment period is five years with respect to capital goods other than immovable property and 20 years with respect to immovable property.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax recoverable in a tax period exceeds the amount of output tax payable in that period, the taxable person ends up in an excess credit position. A taxable person is entitled to a refund of such excess credit if the excess credit is not set off against any VAT due in the subsequent tax period. The refund must be paid within five months after either the due date of the VAT return or the date on which the return is submitted, whichever is later.

The VAT authorities pay interest on VAT refunds that are paid late at a rate of 0.75% per month or part of a month. Interest is payable for the period beginning with the date on which the refund becomes payable and ending on the date on which the refund is paid.

Pre-registration costs. As a general rule no amount shall be treated as input tax of a person unless it is supported by a tax invoice (including all necessary details such as VAT identification number) in respect of the tax relating to goods or services supplied to him.

Write-off of bad debts. A claim for a deduction by way of a bad debt relief shall be subject to such directives as the Maltese VAT Department may give as to the circumstances in which it may be made and the documents or other evidence that should be produced.

The conditions for claiming bad debt relief, are as follows:
- Claim for bad debt relief may be made following a final court judgment showing beyond doubt and to the satisfaction of the Commissioner that the debt can never be recouped.
- The claim must reach the Commissioner by not later than 12 months from the date of delivery of the final judgment.
- VAT in connection with the claim must have already been accounted for and paid to the department.
- All VAT returns and payments due as at the date of the claim must have been submitted by that date.
- The debt must have been written off in the claimant's day-to-day VAT accounts and transferred to a separate bad debt account.
- The supply must have been made to the customer, or to a third party through the customer.
- The value of the supply must not be more than the customary selling price.
- The debt must not have been paid, sold or factored under a valid legal assignment.

To claim a refund, an application to claim bad debt relief must be made by means of a registered letter addressed to the Commissioner, providing:
- A copy of the relative final court judgment
- The date and number of any invoice issued for each supply to the customer, which is included in the claim
- For each relevant supply, the amount that has been written off as a bad debt
- The amount of the claim

The Commissioner shall subsequently examine the case, accept or reject the claim and inform the claimant accordingly.

The claimant may deduct the tax relative to the bad debt relief claim in Box 41 of the VAT return for the tax period following that in which the Commissioner has authorized the relief.

Noneconomic activities. Sometimes goods or services are not or will not be wholly used in the course or furtherance of an economic activity. In those situations, the deductible input tax is such proportion of the tax chargeable on the supplies, intra-Community acquisitions or importations in question, taking into account the proportion of the use of those goods or services in the course or furtherance of the economic activity to their total use.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

The VAT authorities refund VAT incurred by businesses that are neither established nor registered for VAT in Malta, under the terms of Council Directive 2008/9/EC and the EU 13th Directive (see the chapter on the EU).

EU businesses. For businesses established in the EU, refund is made under the terms of Council Directive 2008/9/EC.

Claims for refunds by persons established in other EU Member States must be made online in accordance with Council Directive 2008/09/EC.

Non-EU businesses. For businesses established outside the EU, refund is made under the terms of the EU 13th Directive.

Claims for refund under the EU 13th Directive must be made on an appropriate form and sent to the following address:

Commissioner for Revenue
Value-Added Tax Department
Centre Point Building
Ta' Paris Road
Birkirkara BKR 4633
Malta

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. Registered persons must generally provide tax invoices for all taxable supplies of goods and services made and for exports. Fiscal receipts must be issued for retail sales. A purchaser who receives a fiscal receipt for a supply must retain it for a period of at least 24 hours because the purchaser may be required to produce the receipt for inspection by the VAT authorities.

Credit notes. A credit note may be used to reduce VAT charged and reclaimed on a supply. A credit note must be cross-referenced to the original invoice.

Electronic invoicing. Maltese VAT law permits electronic invoicing in line with EU Directive 2010/45/EU (see the chapter on the EU).

Simplified VAT invoices. For amounts not exceeding EUR100, a simplified invoice can be issued, which contains less details compared to a normal tax invoice.

Self-billing. Tax invoices may be drawn up by the customer in respect of supplies of goods or services made to them by a taxable person. A prior agreement between the two parties must be in place, along with an agreed procedure for the acceptance of each tax invoice by the taxable person supplying the goods or services. The Commissioner may require that such invoices be issued in the name and on behalf of the taxable person.

Proof of exports and intra-Community supplies. VAT is not chargeable on exports and intra-Community supplies of goods dispatched to a destination outside of Malta. Both supplies must be accompanied by evidence that confirms the goods have left Malta. Suitable evidence includes the stamped customs exportation documentation and other conditions as stipulated in the EU VAT Quick Fixes 2020 (see the European Union chapter).

Foreign currency invoices. Invoices may only be issued in euros. Foreign currency may only be quoted as a reference. The selling rate quoted by the European Central Bank on the date on which the supply takes place must be used.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. Special rules apply to the place of supply for supplies of telecommunications, broadcasting and electronic services to non-VAT taxable customers. For further details of the VAT rules on electronic services in the EU, please refer to the European Union chapter.

Maltese suppliers of these services to nontaxable persons are not required to issue a tax invoice to nontaxable customers but are required to issue a fiscal receipt. Moreover, the Maltese VAT Department issued a notice stating that persons supplying services under the MOSS in terms of Articles 359 and 369b of the EU VAT Directive 2006/112/EC shall not be required to issue fiscal receipts for such B2C services.

Records. Every registered taxable person established in Malta must keep full and proper records of all transactions carried out in the course or furtherance of their economic activity. Every person who is liable to tax on any transaction or who identifies as a person registered under the Maltese VAT Act for the purpose of any transaction shall keep full and proper records of any such transaction.

Record retention period. As a general rule, the records shall be kept and stored in a manner that contains details that can be supported by such information, documents and accounts as set out in the 11th Schedule to the Maltese VAT Act. Such records, information, documents and accounts shall be retained for a period of at least six years from the end of the year to which they relate, or such other period or periods as the Minister may, in special cases, by regulations prescribe. Certain exceptions may apply in case of capital goods, adjustment forms, appeals, etc.

Electronic archiving. Invoices shall be stored in the original form in which they were sent or made available, whether paper or electronic. Additionally, in the case of invoices stored by electronic means, the Maltese VAT Department may require that the data guaranteeing the authenticity of the origin of the invoices and the integrity of their content shall also be stored by electronic means.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. In most cases, registered persons file VAT returns quarterly. VAT returns must be filed within one-and-a-half months after the end of the tax period to which they relate.

Recently Maltese VAT law was amended to ensure that businesses sending their VAT declarations and making payments online are not charged interest and administrative fines if the declaration or payment is sent within seven days after the current deadline.

Periodic payments. Payment of the VAT due is required in full on the same date as the VAT return submission deadline, i.e., within one-and-a-half months after the end of the tax period to which they relate. Return liabilities must be paid in euro.

Electronic filing. VAT returns may be filed electronically and there are certain benefits to incentivize the use of electronic filing (mainly a seven-day extension for the filing of the VAT return and the payment of the respective VAT due, if any). The Maltese VAT Department is moving toward full/complete electronic filing and from 2019 only certain micro-enterprises will be permitted an element of manual paper filing.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Malta.

Special schemes. The Maltese VAT Act, in the 14th Schedule, contemplates the following special schemes:

- Professional services. A special scheme restricted for warrant holders whereby they can apply the cash accounting system for VAT accounting (as opposed to accrual accounting)

- Secondhand goods, works of art, collectors' items and antiques. A special scheme whereby VAT is mainly charged on the profit margin generated on the supply of such goods
- Supplies by retailers and by civil, mechanical and electrical engineering contractors. A special scheme whereby these contractors can apply the cash accounting system for VAT accounting (as opposed to accrual accounting)
- Travel agents. The tour operators/travel agents margin scheme
- Tax in danger. A scheme that allows the domestic reverse-charge mechanism only in connection to construction-related supplies and subject to approval by the Maltese VAT Department
- Investment gold. A special scheme regarding the VAT accounting for investment gold
- Telecommunications, broadcasting or electronically supplied services. The MOSS for EU and non-EU established service providers of telecommunication, broadcasting and electronically supplied services
- Cash accounting. Professional service providers and retailers, as well as civil, mechanical and electrical engineering contractors, may use cash accounting if they have not exceeded the threshold of EUR2 million, subject to the condition that the right to deduct input tax shall be postponed until the tax on the goods or services supplied to them has been paid.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Malta.

Supplementary filings.

Intrastat and EU Sales Lists. A taxable person that trades with other EU countries must complete statistical reports, known as Intrastat returns and EU Sales Lists (ESLs). The thresholds for Intrastat Arrivals and Intrastat Dispatches is EUR700 per return.

Recapitulative statement. In general, recapitulative statements must be prepared for each calendar month with respect to the following:
- Intra-Community supplies of goods
- Intra-Community supplies of services made to a customer that is liable to pay the tax on that service in the EU Member State in which it is established, except when such service is exempt in that Member State

Recapitulative statements must be submitted online to the VAT Department by the 15th day of the month following the relevant calendar month.

However, recapitulative statements may be submitted online for each calendar quarter by the 15th day of the month following the end of the quarter if the total amount of the supplies of goods, excluding VAT, did not exceed in the relevant quarter or in any of the four preceding quarters EUR50,000. If the EUR50,000 threshold is exceeded, the recapitulative statements must be submitted by the 15th day of the month following the relevant month.

Notwithstanding the above, if a person provides only supplies of services, it may submit an online recapitulative statement for each calendar quarter regardless of the total value of services supplied.

The values of supplies of goods or services required to be reported in the recapitulative statement must be declared in the period of submission over which VAT was due.

Digital reporting. There are no digital reporting requirements that apply in Malta.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. A penalty for late registration is assessed on an amount equal to the higher of the following:
- 1% of the excess, if any, of the output tax due over input tax (and any allowable deductions) for the first VAT period following registration

- EUR20 for every month or part of a month that the registration is late

The penalty is capped at a maximum of 20% of the output tax due over input tax (and any allowable deductions) for the first VAT period following registration.

Penalties for late payment and filings. A penalty for default in submitting a tax return equals the greater of the following two amounts:
- 1% of the excess, if any, of the output tax over input tax for the period (disregarding any excess credit brought forward from a previous tax period and any allowable deductions)
- EUR20 for every month or part of a month that the return is late
- Capped at EUR250

Interest is assessed on VAT paid late. The current rate is 0.54% for each month or part of a month. The interest rate may change.

Penalties for errors. For the filing of a tax return containing errors that are discovered during a VAT inspection, a penalty equal to the sum of the following is imposed:
- 20% of the excess, if any, of the correct amount of output tax over the output tax declared in the return
- 20% of the excess, if any, of the deductions declared in the return over the correct amount of the deductions

If an error is voluntarily disclosed before it is discovered by the VAT Department, the penalty is reduced to 10%. This reduction also applies if the person involved cooperates with the Commissioner for Revenue, accepts an agreement and pays the amounts due within one month after signing the agreement.

Penalties for fraud. On conviction of certain irregularities in records, fraud, false representations, etc., a person shall be liable to the following penalties:
(i) To a fine of not less than EUR6,000 and not exceeding EUR10,000 for certain offenses committed
(ii) To a fine of not less than EUR700 and not exceeding EUR3,500 for certain offenses committed

In addition, where tax amounting to more than EUR100 would be endangered, to a further fine equal to two times the endangered tax or to imprisonment of not more than six months or to both such fines and imprisonment:

Provided that, the two times fine for the endangered tax shall in no case be less than EUR1,000.

In addition, on a request by the prosecution, the court shall order the offender to comply with the law within a time sufficient for the purpose, but in any case not exceeding one month, and, in default, the offender shall be liable to the payment of a further fine of EUR5 for every day on which the default continues after the lapse of the time fixed by the court.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:

- The supply of goods or services made in Mauritius by taxable persons
- Reverse-charge services received by taxable persons in Mauritius
- The importation of goods from outside Mauritius

Certain persons, such as airlines and other organizations approved by the Director-General, Mauritius Revenue Authority (MRA), are exempt from VAT on specified supplies.

C. Who is liable

A taxable person is any entity or person that is required to be registered for VAT.

VAT registration is compulsory if annual turnover from a trade or profession exceeds MUR6 million.

However, persons engaged in certain businesses or professions must register for VAT, regardless of their level of turnover. This rule applies to the following businesses or professions:

- Accountants
- Agents in the importation of secondhand motor vehicles
- Auditors
- Advertising agents
- Advisors
- Architects
- Attorneys
- Barristers with more than two years' standing at the Bar
- Clearing and forwarding agents
- Customs house brokers
- Engineers
- Estate agents
- Land surveyors
- Notaries
- Opticians
- Project managers
- Property valuers
- Quantity surveyors
- Sworn auctioneers
- Tour operators
- General sales agents of airlines

Exemption from registration. A taxable person whose turnover is exclusively zero-rated may choose not to apply for registration.

A taxable person whose turnover is exclusively exempt from VAT may not apply for registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. A person may register for VAT voluntarily if its taxable turnover is below the VAT registration threshold. A person may also register for VAT voluntarily in advance of making taxable supplies.

Group registration. Group VAT registration is not allowed in Mauritius.

Non-established businesses. In the context of services, a nonresident business needs to have a permanent establishment in Mauritius to be able to register for VAT. A nonresident business supplying goods within Mauritius may register for VAT in Mauritius. Currently, the law does not distinguish between supplies made to businesses (B2B) and private consumers (B2C). If VAT registration is compulsory, the nonresident business is not allowed to avoid registration, even if the recipient of the service applies the reverse-charge mechanism. The same registration threshold applies to resident and nonresident businesses. A nonresident business cannot register on a voluntary basis so that it can recover any VAT incurred in Mauritius.

Tax representatives. Tax representatives are not required in Mauritius.

Reverse charge. If a nonresident person supplies services that are performed or used in Mauritius to a VAT-registered person, the VAT-registered person must account for the VAT due under "reverse-charge" accounting; that is, the registered person must charge itself VAT. The self-assessed VAT may be deducted as input tax depending on the taxable person's partial exemption status. This measure does not apply to supplies that are exempt from VAT under the Mauritian VAT law. Further to the amendment made by the Finance (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act 2016, certain non-VAT registered persons will also have to apply the reverse-charge provisions. The regulations on the persons who are excluded from the application of this new provision have not yet been issued and to date the measure is not yet effective.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Mauritius.

Digital economy. For business-to-consumer (B2C) transactions, the reverse-charge provision does not apply to an individual who is not required to be registered under the Business Registration Act. Currently, VAT registration does not apply to non-established businesses that supply cross-border supplies of goods or electronic services (i.e., services supplied using the internet provided) to customers in Mauritius for business-to-business (B2B) transactions and B2C transactions.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Mauritius.

Registration procedures. An application form for registration should be submitted to the MRA. The form is submitted in hard copy and registration may be completed within a week.

Deregistration. A taxable person that ceases to be eligible for VAT registration must deregister. The person must write to the Director-General, MRA, who determines the effective date of deregistration.

D. Rates

In Mauritius, the term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 15%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services, unless a specific measure provides for a zero rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%
- Printed books and booklets
- Sugar
- Fertilizers
- Margarine
- Rice
- Yogurt
- Edible oils
- Transport of passengers and goods by sea or air
- Electricity and water
- Export of goods and services
- Chilled deep-sea water used for the provision of air conditioning services
- Photovoltaic systems
- Bread
- Cooking gas in cylinders of up to 12kg for domestic use
- Transport of passengers by light rail

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not give rise to a right of input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Baby food
- Breakfast cereals
- Entrance to cinemas, concerts and shows
- Films, including royalties
- Educational services
- Certain financial services
- Insurance
- Public transport
- Land
- Medical services
- Training services approved by the Mauritius Qualifications Authority

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Mauritius.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point." The tax point under the Mauritian law is the earlier of the receipt of payment or the issuance of an invoice or VAT invoice.

For hire-purchase agreements, the tax point arises when the agreement is made.

Deposits and prepayments. The receipt of a deposit or prepayment normally creates an actual tax point if the amount is paid in the expectation that it will form part of the total payment for a particular supply. A tax point is created only to the extent of the payment received.

Continuous supplies of services. If services are supplied continuously, a tax point is created each time a payment is made, or an invoice or VAT invoice is issued, whichever occurs earlier.

Goods sent on approval or for sale or return. The tax point for goods sent on approval or for sale or return is the earlier of the issuance of an invoice or VAT invoice or when payment is received.

Reverse-charge services. The tax point for reverse-charge services is when the consideration for the services is paid. If the consideration for the services is not in money, the tax point is the last day of the VAT period during which the services are performed.

Leased assets. The time of supply for the supply of leased assets is the earlier of the issue of an invoice or receipt of payment.

Imported goods. The time of supply for imported goods is the time when the goods are removed from customs.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax, which is VAT charged on goods and services supplied to it for business purposes. A taxable person generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax, which is VAT charged on supplies made.

A valid VAT invoice or customs import declaration must generally support a claim for input tax.

Input tax on expenditure incurred before registration is not generally allowable.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use by an entrepreneur). In addition, input tax may not be recovered for some items of business expenditure.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Purchase of a car
- Accommodation
- Assets transferred as part of a going concern
- Business entertainment and hospitality

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Conferences, exhibitions and seminars
- Staff welfare
- Certain motor vehicles, that are used for the transport of goods

Partial exemption. Input tax directly related to making exempt supplies is not recoverable. If a taxable person makes both exempt and taxable supplies, it may not recover input tax in full. This situation is referred to as "partial exemption."

A taxable person that makes exempt supplies may calculate the recoverable amount of VAT by an alternative method if approved by the MRA. The standard partial exemption calculation method is a two-stage calculation. The following are the two stages for this calculation:

- The first stage identifies the input tax that may be directly allocated to taxable and exempt supplies. Input tax directly allocated to taxable supplies is deductible, while input tax directly related to exempt supplies is not deductible.
- The second stage identifies the amount of the remaining input tax (for example, input tax on general business overhead) that may be allocated to taxable supplies and recovered. The calculation of recoverable VAT may be performed using the proportion of the value of taxable supplies to total turnover in the preceding year. An adjustment is made after the year so that the proportion is based on actual figures.

If the standard calculation provides an unfair result, the taxable person may agree on a special calculation method with the MRA.

Capital goods. Capital goods for VAT purposes in Mauritius are any building or structure, plant, machinery or equipment. The qualifying input tax is determined in accordance with the tax point: the input tax is apportioned where the person has mixed supplies. No subsequent adjustment is made where the proportion of the recoverable VAT changes, except for the yearly adjustment that applies to any input tax used to make taxable and exempt supplies.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax (VAT on purchases) recoverable in a period is greater than the amount of output tax due (VAT on sales), the excess may be refunded in certain circumstances.

A registered person may make a claim for repayment of the amount of input tax allowable with respect to capital goods amounting to MUR100,000 or more if it has excess input tax in the relevant tax period. The MRA may refund all or part of the claim.

In addition to any amount repayable relating to capital goods and certain intangible assets of a capital nature, a registered person may also make a claim to the MRA for a repayment of that part of the excess amount that corresponds to the proportion of the total value of zero-rated supplies made compared to the total value of taxable supplies made in that tax period.

The recoverable input tax may be deferred if all the following conditions are met:

- The duty-paid value of the capital goods is MUR1 million or more
- The capital goods are to be used in the course of, or for the furtherance of, the VAT-registered person's business
- The VAT-registered person is compliant with the obligations under the revenue laws
- A security is furnished to cover the deferred VAT
- Proper records are kept

A VAT refund scheme exists for selected industries, and does not have any time limit. The relief applies to specified equipment and services to the following persons:
- Bakers
- Planters or horticulturists
- Livestock breeders (including pig breeders)
- Apiculturists
- Fishermen
- Tea cultivators
- Member of the Mauritius Society of Authors

Pre-registration costs. Input tax on trading stocks and capital goods acquired within three months immediately preceding the date of registration can be recovered provided that the VAT is substantiated by receipts or invoices or customs import declaration. The input tax should be certified by a qualified auditor.

Write-off of bad debts. Relief is available for any output tax accounted on any supplies that is subsequently written off. The debt should be written off for accounting purposes. No detailed guidance is provided on the conditions that should be satisfied for the output tax to be deductible.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred in relation to noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Mauritius.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Mauritius does not refund VAT to businesses that are not established in Mauritius.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. Taxable persons must provide VAT invoices for all taxable supplies made to other registered persons in Mauritius. A VAT invoice is necessary to support a claim for input tax deduction or a refund.

Credit notes. A VAT credit note may be used to reduce the VAT charged and reclaimed on a supply. The credit note must reflect a genuine mistake, an overcharge or an agreed reduction in the value of the original supply.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is allowed in Mauritius, but it is not mandatory. There are no specific rules in the VAT laws and regulations in respect of electronic invoicing.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified VAT invoicing is not allowed in Mauritius. Simplified invoicing rules do, however, apply for supplies made by non-VAT registered persons (where no VAT is charged), and a receipt is allowed to be issued.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Mauritius.

Proof of exports. In connection with the export of goods, documentary evidence regarding customs control should be kept.

Foreign currency invoices. If an invoice or a VAT invoice is issued in a foreign currency, the VAT due must be converted into Mauritian rupee using the prevailing exchange rate at the time of the issuance of the invoice.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. Full VAT invoices must be issued to any person, such that the same invoicing requirements apply for supplies to registered and non-registered persons.

Records. Every taxable person is required by the VAT law to keep in the course or furtherance of their business a full and true written record in English or French language of every transaction made.

Record retention period. A taxable person is not allowed to furnish any information and/or produce any books and records after five years immediately following the last day of the taxable period in which the transaction occurs. The time limit of five years does not apply in the case of willful neglect, evasion or fraud.

Electronic archiving. Records may be kept electronically in Mauritius, but it is not mandatory, and therefore physical records (i.e., paper) can also be used. The manner the electronic records should be kept is not specified in the law.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. VAT returns are submitted either quarterly or monthly. The quarterly return periods end in March, June, September and December. Returns must be submitted within 20 days after the tax period. The time limit of 20 days does not apply to a person that is required to submit its VAT return electronically. In such a case, the time limit is the end of the month following the taxable period. If the statutory date is the end of December, the due date for the submission of the return is two days, excluding Saturdays and public holidays, before the end of December. A list of taxable supplies to any person, other than retail supplies, showing the invoice number and value of supply is required to be submitted every month at the time the VAT return is submitted.

Periodic payments. VAT payments must also be made within 20 days after the tax period. Like the return date, the time limit of 20 days does not apply to a person that is required to submit its VAT return electronically. In such a case, the time limit is the end of the month following the taxable month. The last date to pay the tax for the month of November is two days, excluding Saturdays and public holidays, before the end of December.

Electronic filing. Where the VAT return is submitted electronically, the submission date and payment of the tax is a month within the taxable period.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Mauritius.

Special schemes. VAT annual accounting scheme is allowed for small enterprises. A small enterprise is defined as a person with an annual turnover that does not exceed MUR10 million. The scheme only applies if the person is also taxed under a cash basis for income tax purposes: to date the manner in which the cash basis applies has not yet been determined.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Mauritius.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in Mauritius.

Digital reporting. The MRA may require any person to use an electronic fiscal device to record any matter or transaction that impacts the VAT liability to tax that person. However, at the time of preparing this chapter, the regulations on the type, description and application of this provision has not yet been issued.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. A penalty applies to late registration. The penalty is 5% of the unpaid tax plus interest at a rate of 1% of the unpaid tax per month. The penalty is reduced to 2% of the unpaid tax in the case of a small enterprise (for this purpose a small enterprise means a person with an annual turnover of less than MUR10 million). The penalty for failure to apply for compulsory registration is MUR2,000 per month and is restricted to MUR20,000. In the case of a small enterprise, the maximum penalty is MUR5,000.

Penalties for late payment and filings. A penalty applies for the late submission of a VAT return. It equals MUR2,000 per month, up to a maximum of MUR20,000. For a small enterprise, the maximum penalty is reduced to MUR5,000.

For late payment of VAT, the penalty is 5% of the unpaid tax; the penalty is reduced to 2% in the case of a small enterprise (for this purpose a small enterprise means a person with an annual turnover of less than MUR10 million). Interest is computed at a rate of 1% per month. The Director-General, MRA may waive the penalty and interest if the Director-General is satisfied that the error was attributable to a just or reasonable cause. Where an assessment is raised, a penalty not exceeding 50% of the tax claimed shall apply. The MRA is empowered to issue an additional assessment.

Penalties for errors. A penalty of 20% applies to any excess claim for repayment. The penalty is limited to MUR200,000. Otherwise, there is no specific penalty for errors made by a registered person.

Penalties for fraud. Any person who commits an offense for the purposes of the VAT law may be liable to a fine not exceeding MUR50,000 and to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three years. A principal officer of a private company may be personally liable for the VAT liability of a company. A principal officer for this purpose means an executive director or any other person who exercises control or who is entitled to exercise control of powers that would fail to be exercised by the board of directors.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:

- Supply of goods and independent services provided in Mexico
- Importation of services (subject to the reverse charge, see Section C)

- Grant of temporary use or exploitation of goods
- Importations of goods, regardless of the status of the importer

C. Who is liable

Any business entity or individual that carries out, in Mexican territory, any of the taxable transactions described above, as provided in the VAT law.

A taxable person that receives a supply must withhold the VAT due from the supplier and must pay the corresponding VAT. It applies to a variety of transactions, including the following:
- Fees paid by companies to individuals
- Acquisitions of scrap material
- Ground transportation (freights) of goods
- Commissions paid by companies to individuals
- Lease or acquisition of tangible goods from residents abroad
- Companies that receive outsourcing services

Exemption from registration. The VAT law in Mexico does not contain any provision for exemption from registration.

Note that a VAT registration on its own would not be possible in Mexico. In case an entity would start taxable activities in Mexico, it would need to establish a local entity or a permanent establishment, which would be subject to all the different taxes in Mexico.

The only exception for creating a permanent establishment is for provision of digital services. If foreign companies carry out other business activities in Mexico, such as selling goods on an ordinary basis, they may create a permanent establishment and as such be subject to complying to the VAT rules in the same way as any other Mexican company.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. The VAT law in Mexico does not contain any provision for voluntary VAT registration, as there is no registration threshold (i.e., all entities that make taxable supplies are obliged to register for VAT).

Group registration. VAT grouping is not allowed under the Mexican VAT law. Legal entities that are related to each other must register for VAT individually.

Non-established businesses. VAT registration is only required for non-established businesses that carry out taxable activities in Mexico.

A foreign legal entity with an establishment in Mexico must submit an application for all federal tax purposes such as corporate income tax and VAT. For VAT purposes, it must file monthly VAT returns and issue electronic invoices and file electronic accounting like any other Mexican resident. In addition, when applicable, income tax obligations must be fulfilled.

Tax representatives. Powers of attorney can be granted by the taxpayer and they must be for general administrative purposes.

In Mexico, it is not possible to register for VAT alone. A registration applies for all taxes. To incorporate a company in Mexico or in the case of the creation of a permanent establishment it is necessary to appoint a legal representative. The only case when a foreign entity without a permanent establishment needs to appoint a legal representative is if it provides digital services. Please see the Digital economy subsection below.

Reverse charge. Taxpayers who import intangible goods or services are subject to VAT at 16% rate, which can be credited in the same monthly return pursuant to the VAT law.

It is important to point out that although the invoice issued by the nonresident business would not include the VAT amount, the customer (business) has to reflect it in its accounting records and in the VAT returns submitted, otherwise tax authorities may challenge the VAT credit and request the tax.

There are no domestic reverse charges in Mexico.

Digital economy. The reform to the VAT law for 2020 includes the taxation of certain digital services, at the 16% VAT rate, when they are provided by foreign business to Mexican individuals. The rules will enter into force on 1 June 2020.

The tax reform does not distinguish between business-to-business (B2B) and business-to-consumer (B2C) transactions. Therefore, the rule would apply to all suppliers. However, the provisions appear to focus on B2C transactions. The following providers are subject to the rules and responsible for the collection, reporting and payment of VAT:
- Category 1: Those that provide for the download/access to images, movies, music, text, information, video, gaming, ring tones, news online, traffic, weather, online clubs, dating sites and other multimedia content, online learning, tests and exercises
- Category 2: Those that perform intermediation services between potential sellers and buyers of products and services

Providers of financial services, payment services, data storage and the use or sale of software would not be subject to the new requirements.

Digital services are deemed to be rendered in Mexico when the recipient of the services:
- Has declared a domicile in Mexico
- The consideration of the digital services is paid through an intermediary (for instance, a financial institution) located in Mexico
- The IP address used corresponds to Mexico
  Or
- Has provided a phone number with a Mexican country code

Obligations of foreign entities providing digital services in Mexico are as follows:
- Register in the Mexican Federal Taxpayers Registry (RFC)
- Break down VAT from the prices of digital services offered
- Keep records of digital services provided monthly and report them to the MTA on a quarterly basis
- Compute monthly VAT collected for digital services and submit the VAT return through the MTA's website
- Issue and deliver the corresponding invoices (simplified invoices)
- Appoint a legal representative and provide a tax domicile in Mexico
- Obtain the electronic signature from the MTA

The fulfillment of these requirements does not constitute the creation of a permanent establishment (PE) in Mexico. The recipients of services will be entitled to credit the VAT paid in terms of the VAT law.

Noncompliance with obligations to register, appointment of a legal representative and tax domiciles, or else failure to file three returns will grant the tax authorities the right to block the internet webpage.

Non-Mexican residents acting as intermediaries will be also obliged to:
1. Publish on their website, application, platform or in any other similar media the applicable VAT on goods and services offered by them as intermediaries
2. When the intermediary makes collections on behalf of third parties, they should:
   (i) Withhold from individuals 50% of the VAT collected (100% if no RFC is provided)
   (ii) Pay withholding by the 17th day of the following month
   (iii) Issue withholding e-invoices within the following five days*
   (iv) Register in the RFC as a withholding agent

3. Report to the MTA information about clients, no later than on the 10th day of the following month

* Beginning 2021, providers of Category 2 intermediation services will have to issue formal withholding VAT electronic invoices.

Online marketplaces and platforms. See detail above under the Digital economy subsection.

Registration procedures. The taxpayer must request a tax identification number (federal taxpayers registry) from the tax authorities (SAT). The registration is done electronically, through the SAT's website (www.sat.gob.mx). In addition, the taxpayer goes to the SAT office to complete the registration with the following information:
- Bylaws of the entity
- Proof of the tax address in Mexico
- Notarized power of attorney granted to the legal representative
- Identification card of the legal representative

In addition, the entity is obligated to obtain the Mexican electronic signature for tax purposes (known as e.firma) through its legal representative. This procedure takes place in the SAT's office.

Deregistration. Through a liquidation process, the taxpayers can cancel the tax identification provided by the tax authorities.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 16%
- Reduced rate: 8%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate, the zero rate or an exemption.

All temporary importations made by companies who operate under the IMMEX program are subject to VAT at the standard rate. However, a 100% credit of VAT is applicable over the temporary importations for those entities that obtain a certification for VAT/excise tax purposes.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%
- Exported goods
- Certain exported services
- Unprocessed food and milk
- Patented medicines

Examples of goods and services taxable at 8%
- Supply of goods and services, use or enjoyment of goods in locals or establishments located in the cross-border zone.

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT. Exempt supplies do not give rise to a right of input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services
- Books, newspapers and magazines
- Constructions used for residential purposes
- Transfer of copyright by authors
- Education

- Public transport of passengers by land
- Transport of goods by sea for nonresidents
- Local and foreign currency and credit instruments (including shares)

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Mexico.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point." The basic tax point for supplies of goods and services is when the customer effectively pays the consideration. As a result, VAT is determined on a cash-flow basis.

The cash-flow mechanism applies in Mexico, and therefore VAT is triggered when the payment of taxable activities is received, or in the specific case of importation of tangible goods, when those goods are imported within Mexican territory, even when it is a temporary importation.

On the other hand, if a taxpayer receives the return of transferred goods, grants discounts or rebates or refunds the advance payments or deposits previously received, for the purpose of engaging in activities taxed under this law, the taxpayer will deduct the amount of said items from the value of the activities for which the tax is payable, in the tax returns or returns following the corresponding calendar month, provided that it is expressly stated that the charged value added tax was refunded.

In addition, tax provisions set forth that in case of returns, discounts and rebates, taxpayers shall issue a digital tax invoice, which must fulfill the same requirements as invoices in accordance with federal tax code and its regulations.

Deposits and prepayments. There are no special time of supply rules in Mexico for deposits and prepayments. This is because the cash-flow mechanism applies in Mexico, and therefore VAT is triggered when a payment (i.e., deposit or prepayment) is received.

Continuous supplies of services. There are no special time of supply rules for continuous sup plies. This is because the cash-flow mechanism applies in Mexico, and therefore the VAT is triggered when payment is received (i.e., the service is paid for by the customer).

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules in Mexico for supplies of goods sent on approval or for sale or return. This is because the cash-flow mechanism applies in Mexico, and therefore VAT is triggered when a payment is received.

Reverse-charge services. The reverse-charge mechanism in Mexico only applies in cases of:
- Purchasing of services from a supplier in another country
- Importation of intangible assets

Only in these two scenarios the reverse charge would apply and be subject to the fulfillment of tax requirements. The reverse charge has to be recognized at the time that the consideration is effectively paid (cash-flow basis).

Leased assets. There are no special time of supply rules in Mexico for supplies of leased assets. This is because the cash-flow mechanism applies in Mexico, and therefore VAT is triggered when the service is (periodically) paid for.

Imported goods. The time of supply for imported goods is when the goods clear all customs procedures.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax (also known as credit VAT), which is VAT charged on goods and services acquired for business purposes. A taxable person generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax (also known as debit VAT), which is VAT charged to customers.

Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services supplied in Mexico, granting of temporary use of goods, VAT paid on imports of goods and VAT withheld on reverse-charge goods and services.

To be deductible, input tax must relate to the acquisition of goods and services that qualify as deductible expenses for income tax purposes. If an item of expenditure is only partly deductible for income tax purposes, input tax may be credited only with respect to the deductible portion of the expense.

A valid digital tax invoice, the valid digital tax payment invoice (received at the time payment is made to the supplier) or customs document must generally support a claim for input tax.

Nondeductible input tax. When taxpayers carry out activities that are not related to their business or when such activities are not subject to VAT (exempt activities), the input tax generated for these transactions is not recoverable.

Likewise, when the transaction does not comply with the creditable requirements set forth in the VAT law, the input tax is not recoverable. In general terms, such requirements are the following:
- Strictly indispensable expenses for engaging in taxable activities
- That the VAT has been expressly notified to the taxpayer and verified separately in the tax receipts
- That the VAT charged to the taxpayer is effectively paid in the month in question
- That in the case of charged VAT, withheld pursuant to article 1-A of this law, such withholding is paid over on the terms and within the periods established therein

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible
- Business gifts
- Entertainment of employees

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if fully related to a taxable business use)
- Business entertainment
- Accommodation
- Purchase of a vehicle, up to MXN175,000
- Lodging, up to MXN3,850 per day
- Meals, disbursed in Mexico, up to MXN750 per day, and disbursed in foreign countries, up to MXN1,500 per day
- Lease of a vehicle, up to MXN850 per day
- Mobile phones
- Travel expenses

Partial exemption. Input tax directly related to carrying out exempt or nontaxable activities is generally not recoverable. If a taxable person carries out exempt or nontaxable activities, as well as makes taxable supplies, it may not recover input tax in full.

A taxable person must calculate its input tax credit based on a “credit factor.” The credit factor is determined based on the percentage of taxable turnover compared with total turnover (including taxable and exempt or nontaxable supplies) in the month of the payment.

Capital goods. There are no special rules for the recovery of input tax incurred on the acquisition of capital goods.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax (credit VAT) in a month exceeds the amount of output tax (debit VAT), the excess credit may be carried forward to crediting output tax in the following tax periods, or it may be refunded upon request. The tax authorities refund a VAT credit by depositing the refundable amount into the taxable person’s bank account. By law, refunds must be made within 40 business days after the date on which the refund request is filed.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax incurred on pre-registration costs in Mexico, is not recoverable.

Write-off of bad debts. Output tax accounted for on supplies that do not get paid by the recipient (i.e., a bad debt) cannot be recovered in Mexico.

Noneconomic activities. The VAT law provides that taxpayers can only recover the VAT paid in the same proportion in respect to the taxable activities that they perform. It means that if a business carries out activities that are not taxable for VAT purposes, input tax paid will not be creditable.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Mexico does not refund VAT incurred by businesses that are neither established nor registered in Mexico. If a foreign business has an establishment in Mexico for tax purposes and makes taxable supplies there, it may request a refund of any VAT credit balances through the general refund procedure for taxable persons.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A taxable person must provide an electronic tax invoice for all taxable supplies made, and for all collections regarding such supplies made at the moment of the deposit, including exports. The VAT must be expressly notified to the taxpayer and verified separately in the digital tax invoice.

Valid digital tax invoices are required to support a claim for input tax deduction. Such invoices are the valid digital tax invoice of the purchase or goods and services and the valid digital payment tax invoice received at the time payment is made to the supplier.

Credit notes. A VAT credit note may be used to reduce VAT charged and reclaimed on the supply of goods and services. A credit note must contain the same information and fulfill the same requirements as a VAT invoice.

Electronic invoicing. In Mexico it is mandatory to issue digital tax invoices with regard to the taxpayers' activities or income, or payments made, or the tax withholdings they carry out, and that those invoices must be issued through the tax administration service's webpage. Invoices must be kept for at least five years.

In order to increase visibility on payments performed for the delivery of goods/provision of services, a new compliance obligation was introduced as from 1 September 2018. The new obligation basically sets forth that when consideration is not paid in a lump sum, a digital tax invoice shall be issued through the internet for the full amount of the relevant transaction at the moment in which it is executed; and a digital tax invoice shall be issued through the internet for each payment received thereafter.

This is particularly relevant, as the VAT system in Mexico is based on a cash-flow basis, meaning that VAT only becomes due when payment is performed.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified invoicing is permitted by the VAT law for those issued by foreign entities (i.e., non-established businesses).

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Mexico.

Proof of exports. Mexican VAT is charged at the 0% rate on exported goods. However, to qualify, exports must be supported by evidence that proves that the goods have left Mexico. Suitable proof includes customs export documentation for the transaction.

Foreign currency invoices. If a VAT invoice is issued in foreign currency, the values for VAT purposes must be converted into Mexican pesos (MXN) using the exchange rate that the Central Bank publishes in the Federal Register on the day before the contributions are incurred (date of payment).

Supplies to nontaxable persons. There are no special invoicing rules for supplies from taxable persons to private consumers. Full VAT invoices are required to be issued for all supplies.

Records.

Record retention period. Accounting records and supporting documentation must be kept for a period of five years.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is allowed in Mexico. Physical archiving (i.e., paper) is also allowed.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. VAT returns are filed electronically and must be submitted monthly. VAT returns are due no later than the 17th day of the immediately following month. In addition, monthly information of transactions with suppliers must be submitted electronically during the following month through an informative tax return known as DIOT.

Periodic payments. Returns must be paid in Mexican pesos, through a wire transfer.

Electronic filing. VAT returns, and all other tax returns must be filed electronically. VAT credits may be refunded on request through the SAT's website (www.sat.gob.mx). The usual documentation necessary for filing with the tax authorities is a formal letter explaining the taxpayer's motives for the return, along with the electronic format filed in the application FED "Formato Electrónico de Devoluciones" (including appendix A, 7 and 7-A, according to the type of VAT return), the corresponding paper work that shows the summary of the VAT transactions, the corresponding bank account of the person or entity (that does not exceed two months from the moment the return is requested), among others.

Taxpayers are obliged to file electronic accounting that includes a chart of accounts, trial balance and journal entries.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Mexico.

Special schemes. The Mexican tax authorities issue special schemes for VAT recovery for certain sectors, such as taxpayers engaged in the production and distribution of food products, medicines and fixed asset investment projects. In these cases, taxpayers may obtain their refund claims within a maximum of 20 business days, pursuant to the fulfillment of certain requirements.

Tax authorities provide administrative facilities to automatically recover favorable VAT for a maximum amount of MXN1 million. Some compliance requirements must be filled to access this benefit.

Annual returns. Appendix 2 of the Annual Informative Return must be filed regarding payments and VAT withholdings for professional services, leasing and transportation services, etc.

Supplementary filings. Monthly returns of transactions with third parties must be filed. Such returns must include information regarding the supplies and suppliers.

In addition, intermediary digital service providers must also file returns. Please see the Digital economy subsection above.

Digital reporting. Mexico has an almost 100% electronic tax compliance environment that includes electronic filing of returns and tax payments.

Also, taxpayers have to issue their invoices electronically. These invoices must include a specific code provided by certain suppliers who are authorized by the Mexican tax authorities.

However, the accounting records (e.g., journal entries, trial balance, accounting records, etc.) must be generated in an xml format and be submitted to the Mexican tax authorities website.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. The penalties related to late or extemporary registration include the following:
- Register could lead to an extension of the period of review by the tax authorities up to 10 days
- Not submitting registration when it is obligatory and/or failure to submit a registration application in the name of a third party when legally bound or doing so extemporary — from MXN2,740 to MXN8,230
- Not submitting notices or extemporary — from MXN3,420 to MXN6,830
- In case of digital services, noncompliance with obligations to register grants the authorities the right to block the internet webpage

Penalties for late payment and filings. Any amount of tax that is not paid by the due date must be adjusted for inflation. A monthly surcharge is also applied to the amount of tax owed at a rate of 1.13% per month. If the taxable person corrects the error voluntarily or if the late payment is due to factors beyond the taxable person's control, no fines are imposed. However, the surcharge and inflation restatement apply.

Interest is assessed on late payments of tax at a monthly rate of 1.13%.

Penalties for errors. There are penalties imposed on taxpayers if they do not submit returns on time or if submitted returns contain errors. Examples of errors include following:
- In VAT return, incorrect tax domicile, a penalty — from MXN1,430 to MXN28,490, per error
- In summary of clients and suppliers return, missing data or incorrect data, a penalty— from MXN30 to MXN90, per each one
- When taxpayers do not pay their taxes within the specified time frame — from MXN1,400 to MXN34,730, per omission

Penalties for fraud. Criminal offenses are punishable by fines, which may be a percentage of the tax lost or a specified amount. Tax crimes may also be penalized with a term of imprisonment of three months to nine years, or longer, depending on the circumstances.

The purpose of the Federal Law against Organized Crime is to establish rules for the investigation, prosecution, punishment and penalties for crimes committed by someone who is part of organized crime. Its provisions are public order and applicable throughout the national territory.

The Reform to the Federal Law against Organized Crime includes, as part of the activities considered as a crime, the following:
- Contraband
- Tax fraud
- When the figures, quantity or value of the tax receipts that cover nonexistent operations, false or simulated legal acts, exceed three times the amount established in the federal Tax Code, which is approximately MXN7.8 million.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- The supply of goods or services made in Moldova by a taxable person in the course of a business
- Importation of services received in Moldova by a taxable person (using the "reverse-charge" mechanism)
- Importation of goods

C. Who is liable

A taxable person is any person or legal entity that is registered for VAT in Moldova. An entity that has a fixed place of business or carries out commercial or professional operations on a regular basis in Moldova must register for VAT.

The mandatory VAT registration threshold is turnover or imported services of MDL1.2 million in a period of 12 consecutive months.

Voluntary VAT registration is allowed for persons intending to provide taxable services, irrespective of their turnover value.

Exemption from registration. The VAT law in Moldova does not contain any provision for exemption from registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. Voluntary VAT registration is allowed for persons planning to perform taxable supplies of goods and services, irrespective of their turnover value.

Group registration. VAT grouping is not allowed in Moldova. Legal entities that are closely connected must register for VAT individually.

Non-established businesses. Foreign traders are not allowed to have a VAT registration number. If a foreign entity undertakes entrepreneurial activity in Moldova that results in a permanent establishment (PE), it must register for VAT locally. It is then treated in the same way as a resident entity.

Tax representatives. Tax representatives are not required in Moldova.

Reverse charge. The reverse charge is a form of self-assessment for VAT, under which the recipient of a supply of goods or services accounts for the tax.

Services rendered by nonresidents to entities that carry on business in Moldova are regarded as imported if the place of supply is deemed to be Moldova.

The recipient of the service is required to account for the VAT due in Moldova. The tax is due by 25th of the month following the month in which the service was imported or paid, whichever is the earlier. VAT paid for imported services is eligible for input tax recovery.

The information relating to VAT on imported services is declared to the tax authorities in a separate box of the VAT return.

Domestic reverse charge. The domestic reverse-charge mechanism was introduced in the local tax legislation as of 1 January 2020. It is applicable to business entities that procure on Moldovan territory the property of other business entities registered as VAT payers, declared in the insolvency process (according to the provisions of the Insolvency Law). In the case of goods sold by the insolvent business entity (seller) to another business entity (buyer), the latter calculates and pays the VAT amount to the budget, subsequently having the right to deduction. The taxable object constitutes the value of the acquired property of the insolvent entity.

Digital economy. From 1 January 2018, there are some changes to the place of supply of digital services. According to these new amendments, the place of supply of digital services (i.e., electronic communication services, broadcasting and television services, services provided by radio-electronic means) is considered to be the place/residence of the customer.

This means that for business-to-business (B2B) and business-to-consumer (B2C) transactions, the customer is required to pay VAT on the imported services under the reverse-charge mechanism.

For B2C supplies, the individual should pay the VAT simultaneously with the payment for the imported digital services and declare the related VAT until the 25th of the month following the reporting month by filing a VAT return. However, in practice this is not commonly carried out.

Online marketplaces and platforms. From 1 April 2020, nonresidents that provide services through electronic networks (i.e., digital services) to Moldovan resident individuals, as well as nonresident intermediaries who receive payments from Moldovan resident individuals for the services provided through electronic networks, for which the place of supply is considered in Moldova, are subject to VAT. The respective mechanism applies to B2C supplies only.

Registration procedures. In order to register as a VAT payer, the local entity should file a VAT registration application form before the last day of the month during which the VAT registration conditions are met. The application form shall be filed in a hard copy format or electronically by online registration, together with a list of supporting documents required by the local tax authorities. A tax audit is usually performed for VAT registration purposes, where additional documentation and information can be asked by the tax authorities.

The taxpayer is considered to be VAT registered starting the first day of the month following the month during which it filed the application form and with the condition that the VAT registration requirements are met. Although the local legislation does not provide for a specific deadline during which the tax authorities should finalize the tax audit and confirm the VAT registration, in practice this process can take up to 30 days after filing of the registration application form.

Referring to the nonresidents that provide services through electronic networks (i.e., digital services) to Moldovan resident individuals, as well as to the nonresident intermediaries who receive payments from Moldovan resident individuals for the services provided through electronic networks, for which place of supply is considered Moldova, they are not required to register for VAT in Moldova under the general registration procedure. They are subject to a simplified registration scheme.

Deregistration. Deregistration as a VAT payer is subject to a tax audit to be performed by the tax authority. The date of deregistration is considered the date of issuance of the tax audit report based on which the tax authority decided to perform the respective deregistration.

In case of suspension of the VAT taxable supplies, the VAT payer is obliged to inform the tax authority. Deregistration is performed according to the procedure provided by the state fiscal inspectorate.

Additionally, the tax authority has the right to deregister the VAT taxpayer if:
- The VAT taxpayer has failed to file the VAT tax return for a certain amount of tax periods (arguably for at least 12 months)
- The VAT taxpayer has presented untruthful information with regard to its headquarter registration address

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a VAT rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 20%
- Reduced rates: 8%, 10%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services, unless a specific measure provides a reduced rate, the zero rate or an exemption.

Some supplies are classified as exempt from VAT with the right to deduction (i.e., zero-rated), which means that no VAT is chargeable, but the supplier may recover the related input tax.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%
(i.e., exempt with credit)

- Exports of goods and related services
- International transport of persons and freight
- Electric and thermal power

- Supplies of water to the public

Examples of goods and services taxable at 8%

- Bakery products
- Dairy products
- Agricultural products
- Drugs
- Natural and liquefied gas produced and imported in Moldova
- Phytotechnics and horticulture products in natural form, zootechnical products in natural form, live and slaughtered produced and/or delivered within the territory of Moldova
- Beet sugar produced, imported and/or delivered within the territory of Moldova

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Dwellings
- Land
- Cars
- Long-term tangible assets contributed into share capital under the special rules approved by the government
- Tractors and other agricultural machineries
- Food for children
- Financial services
- Educational services
- Insurance
- Betting and gaming
- Books and periodicals

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Moldova.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point." In general, a VAT payer becomes liable to account for VAT at the time of the earliest of the following events:
- The receipt of partial or total payment from the customer
- The performance of the supply
- The issuance of the fiscal invoice

VAT payers must make payments for every tax period. The standard tax period is a calendar month.

Deposits and prepayments. There are no special time of supply rules in Moldova for deposits and prepayments (refundable or nonrefundable). As such, the general time of supply rules apply.

Generally, a VAT payer becomes liable to account for VAT if it receives (or received) a partial or total prepayment from the customer in relation to a supply of goods or a supply of services. If no supply is performed and the prepayment is returned to the customer, the VAT payer should be able to adjust/claim back VAT it accounted before on the received prepayment.

Continuous supplies of services. If the goods and services are supplied regularly (continuously) during a certain period of time stipulated in the contract, the time of supply is considered the date of the performance of the supply or the receipt date of each regular payment, whichever is the earlier.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules in Moldova for supplies of goods sent on approval for sale or return. As such, general time of supply rules apply.

Reverse-charge services. Tax is payable on reverse-charge services by 25th of the month following the month in which the service was imported or paid, whichever is the earlier.

Leased assets. If the assets are supplied under a leasing contract (financial or operational), the time of supply is considered the date of the lease payment specified in the contract. In cases of receiving the lease payment in advance, the time of supply is considered the date of this advance payment.

Imported goods. The time of supply for imported goods is either the date of importation or the date on which the goods leave a duty suspension regime.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax, which is VAT charged on goods and services supplied to it for business purposes. A taxable person generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax, which is VAT charged on supplies made.

Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services supplied in Moldova, VAT paid on imports of goods and VAT self-assessed on reverse-charge services.

A valid tax invoice or customs document must generally accompany a claim for input tax. The right of deduction may be exercised in the tax period in which the purchase documents are entered into the recipient's books of account.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use by an entrepreneur). In addition, input tax may not be recovered for some items of business expenditure.

The following lists provide some examples of items of expenditure for which input tax is not deductible and examples of items for which input tax is deductible if the expenditure is related to a taxable business use.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Private expenditure
- Cost of goods that are lost, stolen or destroyed
- Expenditure that is not allowable for income and corporate tax purposes
- Business gifts
- Bad debts (a purchaser acquired goods and services but never paid the supplier)
- Goods and services purchased based on fiscal invoices that are not registered in the state general electronic fiscal invoices register (if the supplier has the obligation to register the fiscal invoices and if the buyer does not inform the tax authorities about this registration infringement)
- Repair, maintenance and operating expenses of cars used by company management above the specific limits provided by the legislation

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Hire, lease, maintenance and fuel for cars used by the company management, subject to certain limits
- Purchase, hire, lease, maintenance and fuel for vans and trucks
- Parking
- Books
- Attendance at conferences, seminars and training courses

- Mobile phones
- Advertising
- Transport
- Hotel accommodation

Partial exemption. Input tax deduction is not available when it relates to supplies that are exempt from VAT without the right to deduction. If a taxable person makes supplies that are both taxable and exempt from VAT without the right to deduction, it may recover only input tax related to supplies that are taxable. Supplies that are exempt from VAT with the right to deduction are treated as taxable supplies for these purposes. Taxpayers who make supplies that are taxable and exempt from VAT without the right to deduction may deduct VAT paid on purchases if they satisfy the following conditions:
- The taxpayer maintains separate records of payments made for goods and services used for supplies that are both taxable and exempt from VAT without the right to deduction.
- The recoverable amount of VAT is determined on a monthly basis by the application of the pro rata method to the amount of VAT related both to supplies that are taxable and exempt without the right to deduction.

Capital goods. Capital goods are items of capital expenditure related to fixed tangible and intangible assets subject to depreciation. Input tax incurred on capital goods that are used wholly for taxable supplies, can be recovered in line with normal input tax recovery rules. Input tax is deducted in the month in which the goods are acquired.

If the capital goods are used for both taxable and exempt supplies, the partial exemption rules described above shall apply. Where the use of the capital good changes from taxable to exempt, the input tax related to the net book value of the capital good is not allowed for deduction and is reported to costs or expenses.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax recoverable in a monthly period exceeds the amount of output tax payable in that period, the taxable person may request a refund of VAT if the excess VAT results from any of the following:
- Supplies that are exempt from VAT with the right to deduction
- Supplies made by companies that produce and sell bread and dairy products
- Capital investments by business entities registered as VAT payers, except for investments made in certain types of buildings and means of transport
- Capital investments in motor vehicles for passenger transportation
- Capital investments (expenditures) made under public-private partnership projects of national interest
- Overpaid tax

The following special procedure applies if a taxpayer requests a VAT refund:
- The taxable person must submit a request to the tax authorities.
- Before the repayment is made, the tax authorities perform a special tax audit to ensure that the amount claimed is accurate.

In practice, it may be difficult to receive a refund in these circumstances and substantial delays may be experienced.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax incurred on pre-registration costs in Moldova is not recoverable.

Write-off of bad debts. If the output tax related to a supply in the VAT return, is all or part of it is considered, according to the legislation, as a bad debt, the taxable person has the right to adjust the amount of VAT calculated starting with the fiscal period in which the bad debt was detected.

The tax code allows the recovery of VAT on bad debts, subject to the following conditions:

a) The liquidated entity has no successor of rights.b)The business entity declared insolvent does not have any goods.

b) The individual who does not perform any business activity and the farmer, or the individual entrepreneur does not have, within two years from the day of the appearance of the debt, goods or is in insufficient of goods that could be collected in order to extinguish this debt.
c) The individual has died and there are no more persons obliged by law to honor his obligations.
d) The individual, including the farmers' household members or the individual entrepreneur, who left his residence, cannot be found during the limitation period established by the civil legislation.
e) There is a respective act of the court or of the executor (decision, conclusion or other document provided by the legislation in force) according to which debt collection is not possible.
f) The debt is up to MDL1,000 with an expired limitation period.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use by an entrepreneur).

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Moldova does not refund VAT incurred by businesses that are neither established nor registered for VAT in Moldova.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. In general, a taxable person must provide a fiscal invoice for all taxable supplies, except in several circumstances provided for by the Moldovan law. A fiscal invoice is necessary to support a claim for an input tax deduction.

Credit notes. No laws exist with respect to credit notes. The taxable amount of the taxable supply of goods and services, after their supply or payment, can be adjusted, if there are supporting documents providing the following conditions are met:
a) The amount of the taxable supply, agreed initially, has changed as a result of changing prices.
b) The taxable supply was returned to the seller, either partially or in the full amount.
c) The taxable amount of the taxable supply was reduced due to a discount provided.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is allowed in Moldova, but it is not mandatory. It is permitted for all VAT taxpayers that are users of electronic tax services and have digital or electronic signatures issued in accordance with local legislation.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified VAT invoicing is not allowed in Moldova. Full VAT invoices are required.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Moldova.

Proof of exports. VAT is not chargeable on supplies of exported goods. However, to qualify as VAT-free, export supplies must be supported by evidence confirming that the goods have left Moldova. The law provides for a specific list of supporting documents proving the exportation, which vary according to the type of exported goods or services.

Foreign currency invoices. A fiscal invoice must be issued in leu (MDL), which is the currency of Moldova.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. Generally, in case of retail supplies made by taxable persons to private consumers, no fiscal invoice is required to be issued, unless it is requested by the purchaser.

A fiscal receipt should be issued, instead, for retail supplies made to private consumers if these supplies are paid by cash.

Records. Each taxable person is obliged to keep track of the entire volume of goods and services delivered, as well as of all the goods and services purchased. The fiscal invoices related to purchases/deliveries are recorded in the respective ledgers in the order of their receipt/release. Damaged or canceled fiscal invoices shall be also kept by the business entity. The purchases and sales ledgers shall be prepared and filled within one month from the end of the reporting month. The accounting documents are kept by the entity on paper or in electronic form.

For each reporting month, a generalized record must be kept, which includes the following:
a) Input tax amount on acquired goods and services
b) Output tax amount on delivered goods and services
c) Adjustments that impact the VAT amount
d) The VAT amount to be paid to the budget or the input tax amount to be carried forward
e) VAT amount paid to the budget
f) The VAT amount to be carried forward to the next fiscal period
g) VAT amount subject to be refunded from the budget

Record retention period. According to the local legislation, the fiscal invoices, as well as the accounting ledgers must be kept for six years.

Electronic archiving. For archiving purposes, VAT returns as well as other related registers and supporting documentation, should be printed and kept in hard copy by the VAT payers.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. VAT return periods are generally monthly. The VAT return periods for the provision of digital services by nonresidents to Moldovan individuals are quarterly.

Returns must be filed by the 25th day of the month following the end of the return period.

Periodic payments. Payment in full must be made by the same date as the VAT return deadline, i.e., by the 25th of the month following the end of the return period. However, VAT with respect to reverse-charge services must be paid to the tax authorities when the recipient pays for the services.

Electronic filing. VAT payers are obliged to file the VAT returns by using a specific online electronic program provided by the local tax authority.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Moldova.

Special schemes. A special scheme applies to nonresidents who provide services through electronic networks (i.e., digital services) to Moldovan resident individuals, as well as nonresident intermediaries who receive payments from Moldovan resident individuals for the services provided through electronic networks, for which place of supply is considered Moldova. The respective mechanism applies to B2C supplies only. The nonresident should register on its own name with the local tax authority, under a simplified procedure, within three days after the services are supplied.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not available nor required in Moldova.

Supplementary filings. Generally, no supplementary filings are required in Moldova. However, where a voluntary disclosure is required to be submitted to the tax authority for the underpayment of VAT, the taxpayer should file an amended VAT return for the respective period.

Digital reporting. The VAT return must be submitted electronically in Moldova.

Invoice register. A state general electronic fiscal invoice register (the register) has been introduced in Moldova. VAT taxpayers must register all fiscal invoices (except for electronic fiscal invoices) with a total value of VAT taxable supply in excess of MDL100,000 within 10 working days after the issuance date.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. Failure to register or late registration for VAT is penalized with a fine from 7% to 10% of the amount of taxable supplies, excluding supplies exempted from VAT with the right to deduction.

Penalties for late payment and filings. Failure to comply with the tax reports preparation and filing rules (including non-filing, late filing or filing of untruthful information) will be penalized with a fine, from MDL500 to MDL1,000 for each tax report, but no more than MDL10,000 for all tax reports subject of tax infringement, applied to business entities.

A penalty/interest for delay in payment of the understated taxes, is calculated for the period starting with the due date until the day (including) of effective transfer to the budget (the rate varies from year to year based on the refinancing basic rate, provided by the National Bank of Moldova plus five points). For example, the annual interest rate for 2020 year is equal to 13%.

Penalties for errors. The understatement of VAT by submitting to the tax authorities a VAT return with invalid information or data is sanctioned with a fine from 20% to 30% of the understated VAT amount.

Failure to issue in time the tax invoice, as well as failure to register the tax invoice in the general electronic register of the fiscal invoices will be penalized with a fine from MDL3,000 to MDL3,600 per each fiscal invoice but not more than MDL72,000.

Penalties for fraud. Evasion from calculation and payment of VAT will be penalized with a fine from 80% to 100% of the respective VAT amount.

If the infringement is qualified as a tax evasion and the income tax exceeds in total 50 average forecasted salaries (approximately MDL397,650), criminal investigations could be initiated (both for the company and its responsible person), subject to a list of financial and other type of sanctions to be imposed based on the decision taken by the court.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following types of transactions of individuals and legal entities:
- All types of goods sold in Mongolia
- All types of works and services provided in Mongolia
- All types of goods, works and services provided to customers in another country
- All types of goods, works and services received from suppliers in another country

The provision of services includes but is not limited to the following:
- Providing electricity, heat, gas, water, sewers, postal services, communication and other utilities
- Leasing, possessing or using goods
- Renting immovable and movable property (other than rental of houses for residential purposes) or allowing possession or use of them in other forms
- Selling, transferring or leasing new inventions, new product designs, patents, copyright-protected work, trademarks, know-how, software and other proprietary information
- Performing work and services provided for repayment of debts owed to other entities
- Sale of goods and provision of works and services by a nonresident person to a resident
- Organization of lottery, paid quiz or gambling games
- Providing intermediary services (intermediary of special rights, trade representation, commission and similar services)
- Receiving interest, fines and penalties arising from misconduct or noncompliance
- Offsetting of any debts through the transfer of goods, performance of works or provision of services

C. Who is liable

In general, a taxpayer (or VAT agent) is any individual or legal entity (including a foreign legal entity and individual) that is engaged in the import and export of goods, as well as the sale and manufacturing of any goods, performance of work and rendering of services in the territory of Mongolia. Any individual permanently or temporarily employed under a labor contract is deemed not to be a VAT taxpayer.

Taxpayers must be registered for VAT when taxable turnover exceeds MNT50 million in a given financial year (subject to certain anti-avoidance measures).

Exemption from registration. If a taxpayer has not reached the registration threshold of MNT50 million within a given financial year, the taxpayer is exempted from VAT.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. Taxpayers can voluntarily register for VAT when taxable turnover reaches MNT10 million. Supporting documents are required to prove the expected sales reach MNT50 million in the next 12 months, such as contracts and sales orders, etc.

Group registration. Group VAT registration is not allowed in Mongolia.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that does not have a fixed establishment in Mongolia.

Foreign legal entities or individuals that sell goods, perform work or render services in the territory of Mongolia will be subject to VAT. As such, the recipient of the services or goods must act as a tax agent and withhold the VAT under the Mongolian reverse-charge VAT system. Foreign legal entities and individuals are not entitled to recover any input tax (VAT on purchase) unless they have permanent establishment that is registered for Mongolian VAT purposes.

Tax representatives. Tax representatives are not required in Mongolia.

Reverse charge. Reverse-charge VAT is applied to payments for works and services supplied by foreign legal entities and individuals not registered as taxpayers in Mongolia to Mongolian legal entities or individual entrepreneurs. Under the reverse-charge mechanism, the liability to impose, pay and report VAT rests with the recipient of the supply that acts as a tax agent.

However, input tax incurred on reverse-charge VAT paid on services provided by nonresidents is non-recoverable in Mongolia. See Section F. Recovery of VAT by taxpayers for more detail.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Mongolia.

Digital economy. There are no specific rules relating to the taxation of the digital economy. Normal VAT rules apply.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Mongolia.

Registration procedures. Individuals and legal entities shall submit a request letter to register and application form ТТБ-01-А for VAT registration, to the relevant tax office within 10 business days from the date the documents proving the threshold has been met. Non-exhaustive proof of documents include bank statements, cash receipt orders, sales contracts, company certificates and electronic invoices.

Deregistration. An individual or legal person registered for VAT shall be excluded from the taxpayers' registry and their certificate shall be canceled if it has been proven by financial statements for a business entity or organization or by income and tax sheet for an individual that their taxable income amount for the subsequent 12 months after being registered for VAT is less than MNT50 million.

D. Rates

The term "sale" refers to a transfer of the ownership of goods to another person or the performance of services. The term "goods" includes all types of property other than money capital, and the term "services" include any activity.

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 10%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods (works and services) unless a specific measure provides for the zero rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%
- Goods exported from the territory of Mongolia and declared with the customs organization
- Passenger and cargo transportation services rendered from the territory of Mongolia to foreign countries, from foreign countries to the territory of Mongolia, as well as from foreign countries to third countries transiting through the territory of Mongolia, pursuant to the international treaties to which Mongolia is a signatory
- Services provided in a foreign country (including tax-exempt services)
- Any rendering of services (including "nontaxable services") to a nonresident person
- Any services of air navigation management, technical and fuel services, and cleaning that shall be provided for both foreign and domestic airplanes conducting international flight and sale, food and drink services provided for air crew members or passengers during flight
- State medals and coins manufactured domestically on the order of the Government or the Bank of Mongolia
- Mining finished products that are exported (government approves list of final mining products)

The term "exempt" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services
- Passengers' personal-use goods (subject to permitted amounts and approval by customs authority)
- Goods received through humanitarian and grant aid from foreign governments, NGOs and international or humanitarian organizations

- Special purpose appliances, equipment and machinery designed for physically challenged persons
- Civil passenger airplanes and spare parts thereof
- Revenues from the sale of establishments used for housing or portions thereof
- Blood, blood products and organs to be used for purposes of specified treatment
- Gas fuel, gas fuel containers, equipment, special purpose machineries, mechanisms and related mechanics
- Sale of gold
- Experimental products related to research and scientific work
- Mining products other than mining finished product that was exported
- Cereal, potatoes, seeds, vegetables and fruits domestically grown and sold by farmers and domestically produced flour
- Asset-backed loan portfolio or claiming rights derived from financial leasing arrangements transferred by banks, nonbanking financial institutions (NBFI) or other legal entities to other banks, special purpose companies or mortgage corporations
- Imported woods, timbers, cut materials, planks, wooden pieces and semi-processed wooden materials
- Exported cashmere and leather that has been raw processed (cleaned and brushed)
- Import of special purpose machinery, equipment, parts, raw materials, and chemical or explosive substances imported by contractors and subcontractors to be used for crude oil and nontraditional crude oil industry for the first five years of an exploration period or for exploration periods of less than five years
- Import of equipment, tools and accessories for renewable energy production and research
- Currency exchange
- Banking services, such as the receipt or transfer of money, or any dealing with money, any security for money or any note or order for the payment of money and the operation of any savings account
- Services of insurance, reinsurance and registration of property
- The issuance, transfer or receipt of any securities and shares, and underwriting of such securities
- The issuance of loans
- The provision or transfer of an interest related to a social and health insurance fund
- Loan interest, financial lease interest, dividends, loan guarantee fees or insurance premiums by banks, NBFIs, or saving and loan cooperatives
- Rental of residential houses and apartments
- Medical services
- Services of religious organizations
- Services provided by a government organization; this shall include public services provided by the government, its agencies and budgetary organizations
- Public transportation services
- Tour operating services

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Mongolia.

E. Time of supply

The moment when VAT becomes due is called the "time of tax imposition," called in many countries the time of supply.

For taxpayers, the time of tax imposition is the earliest of the following dates:
- The date when the seller receives the payment for goods, works or services
- The date when the seller invoices for sold goods, performed works or rendered services
- The date when the purchase of goods, works or services is exercised

Deposits and prepayments. The time of supply for a deposit, prepayment and advance payment is the end of the calendar month (VAT return period) in which the prepayment is received, even if the supply has not yet been made. This treatment applies to both supply of services and goods.

Continuous supplies of services. There are no special time of supply rules for goods and services that are provided against periodic payment. As such, the general time of supply rules apply.

Goods sent on approval or for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules in Mongolia for supplies of goods sent on "approval" or for "sale or return" conditions. As such, the general time of supply rules applies when the goods are sold and it can be reversed with approval of the buyer. Mongolia employs an electronic VAT system where all supplies of goods and services are recorded. The seller can request a return of the goods to the buyer through the electronic VAT system.

Reverse-charge services. There are no special time of supply rules in Mongolia for the supply of reverse-charge services. As such, the general time of supply rules apply.

Leased assets. Leased assets are subject to VAT. The time of supply rule for the supply of leased assets that results in a transfer in ownership shall be in accordance with the agreed schedule for the finance lease payment.

Imported goods. Imported goods are subject to customs VAT at the time of customs clearance. Payment of import VAT is required for imported goods to enter into Mongolian territory The time of supply for imported goods shall be at the earliest date of the following operation:
- The day when the vendor receives a sales revenue
- The day when payment receipt invoiced for goods and services sold
- The day when goods and services purchased

F. Recovery of VAT by taxpayers

A taxpayer may recover input tax, which is VAT charged on goods (works and services) supplied for carrying out activities within the scope of VAT. A taxpayer generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax, which is VAT charged on supplies made.

Input tax includes VAT charged on goods (works and services) in Mongolia, VAT paid on the import of goods and VAT paid to the Mongolia budget by a buyer acting as a tax agent with respect to the acquisition of goods (works and services) from a foreign legal entity.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax cannot be recovered on purchases of goods (works and services) and property rights that are not used for making supplies within the scope of VAT (for example, goods purchased for private use by an entrepreneur).

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Personal expenses
- VAT paid for the spare parts of auto vehicles
- Reverse-charge VAT paid on services provided by nonresidents
- VAT incurred on mineral exploration and pre-mining operations
- VAT incurred for the purpose of tax-exempt supplies

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Inventory
- Utility bills

Partial exemption. If a Mongolian taxpayer makes both exempt supplies and taxable supplies, the taxpayer must account for them separately. Input tax directly related to taxable supplies is recoverable in full, while input tax directly related to exempt supplies is not recoverable and must be expensed for Mongolian profit tax purposes. Input tax that may not be directly attributed to taxable or exempt supplies (such as VAT on business overhead costs) must be apportioned. The statutory method of apportionment is a pro rata calculation, based on the value of taxable supplies made compared with the total turnover of the business.

Capital goods. Input tax incurred on capital goods of businesses shall not be allowed for input credit or refunds. The law stipulates that input tax paid on purchasing, procuring or developing capital goods (i.e., fixed assets) is unrecoverable irrespective of whether the particular supply is taxable or tax exempt.

Refunds. The VAT refund application must be sent to the appropriate tax authority. The appropriate tax authority will review, confirm the ending balance and submit its proposal to the Mongolian Tax Authority (MTA) within 15 working days. The MTA will review the application and proposal within seven working days and submit its opinion including name of the taxpayer, registration number, bank account, refundable amount within two working days to the Ministry of Finance who will refund the amount within 45 days after the receipt of opinion. However, a refund of VAT shall not exceed 30% of the total VAT revenue to be paid into the state budget in a given month, quarter or year. Thus, a refund may take some time if the amount is sizable.

The VAT law requires the tax authorities to pay a refund no later than 45 days following the positive decision regarding the VAT refund claim of a taxpayer. In practice, however, refund payments are often delayed.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax is recoverable only if it was incurred after the individual or legal entity is registered as a taxpayer with the tax authority.

Write-off of bad debts. Output tax accounted for supplies that do not get paid by the recipient (i.e., a bad debt) cannot be recovered in Mongolia.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred in relation to noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Mongolia.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

VAT recovery is made exclusively by registered persons that make taxable supplies in Mongolia. VAT incurred by a foreign legal entity or individual is not recoverable.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. In general, a VAT taxpayer must provide a VAT invoice. Invoices must be issued in Mongolian, but bilingual invoices may also be issued in Mongolian and any other language.

A VAT invoice may be issued in paper or electronic format.

Credit notes. Credit notes are not allowed in Mongolia. A separate document is not issued for discounts, refunds and agreed price changes, etc. In practice, taxpayers must cancel the previous VAT invoice issued, and then reissue it with the different (agreed) amount. Also, if necessary, the submitted VAT return must also be amended.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing in Mongolia is allowed. Mongolia uses an electronic VAT system to reduce noncompliance. It is mandatory for all businesses (providing services or goods) to enter sales information into the system, regardless of their VAT status or type of services, goods and work.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified VAT invoicing is not allowed in Mongolia. As such, full VAT invoices are required.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Mongolia.

Proof of exports. Goods exported from Mongolia as well as some types of work and services related to exports are subject to a 0% VAT rate in Mongolia. To confirm the applicability of the 0% rate, the supplier must attach a customs declaration as supporting documentation. For works and services, a written agreement, invoice and bank statement should be attached as supporting documentation.

Foreign currency invoices. The issuance of a VAT invoice must be in Mongolian currency.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. For supplies from VAT-registered businesses to private consumers, a "payment receipt" must be issued by the seller for B2C transactions each time when goods or services are supplied. The payment receipt is generated from the designated equipment with unique payment number, date of payment, name and address of the seller and description, code and quantity, and price and amount of the payment.

Records.

Record retention period. All tax records must be held for Maximum of four years. for tax records according to statute of limitations of four years.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is not allowed in Mongolia. All records must be held in physical (i.e., paper) form.

While in practice, taxpayers aren't required to keep their VAT receipts in paper form because they are already in the VAT system, it is recommended to keep paper copies, because electronic archiving is not legally accepted in Mongolia.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. Taxpayers must file VAT returns on a monthly basis. The submission process is online. Taxpayers fill in lines with amount of sales and expenses. The purchases and sales must match the electronic invoice system for taxpayer to be able to submit.

Periodic payments. The VAT amount per VAT return must be paid within the 10th day of the following month. VAT payable under the reverse-charge mechanism is accounted in the same VAT return.

Electronic filing. Taxpayers shall submit a monthly VAT return by the 10th of the following month. There is no requirement to transmit a hard copy of VAT return to the MTA, but the taxpayer shall keep a copy for further reference.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Mongolia.

Special schemes. Mongolian VAT returns are universal, and as such, there are no special schemes available for taxpayers in different industries/operations, etc.

Annual return. Annual returns are not required in Mongolia.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in Mongolia.

Digital reporting. No digital reporting requirements apply in Mongolia.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. If an individual or legal entity that has exceeded the threshold for registration has not registered with the respective tax authority, then a competent state inspector shall assess and impose the VAT due and additionally impose an administrative penalty equal to the assessed VAT due.

Penalties for late payment and filings. Failure to remit tax to the tax authority is subject to a daily late payment penalty of 0.1% of the due tax. Late payment shall start from due date of 10th of the following month.

Penalties for errors. Failure to charge tax on taxable goods and service is subject to penalty equal to 30% of the due tax. Errors include the failure to register as VAT agent when threshold is met and failing to impose VAT on supplies, when registered for VAT.

Penalties for fraud. A penalty for tax evasion is due tax and additional 30% of due tax as penalty. Types of tax evasion are: concealed taxable income, understated taxable income or overstated expenses in the accounting records and destroyed/omitted accounting records on purpose. The penalty for a tax advisor is USD150 for an individual, USD1,500 for an entity, if guilty for assisting any fraudulent activity.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to all transactions involving the supply of goods and services performed in Morocco and to the importation of goods and services, including the one-off supply or importation of goods.

C. Who is liable

A taxable person is a person or legal entity that carries out a taxable transaction. A taxable transaction is a transaction involving the sale or importation of goods or services that is subject to VAT even if such transaction occurs only once. A person liable to VAT in Morocco must register with the local tax service.

Morocco does not provide a VAT registration threshold. A business registers for VAT when it registers for corporate or income tax purposes.

Exemption from registration. Morocco does not have a VAT registration threshold, and as such all businesses must register for VAT.

However, agricultural products (non-transformed), noncommercial activities, nonindustrial activities and civil acts are outside the scope of VAT. Therefore, a VAT registration is not required for individuals/entities exercising these activities.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. There is no threshold for VAT registration in Morocco, and as such VAT registration is mandatory. However, for certain businesses, VAT registration is not mandatory and voluntary VAT registration is allowed for the following. Voluntary VAT registration is allowed for:

- Traders and service providers who directly export products, objects, goods or services for their export turnover
- Manufacturers and service providers who do not exceed an annual turnover of MAD500,000
- Traders who sell without transformation, product and foodstuffs other than those that are exempted without the right to deduct the input tax
- Persons who affect premises for professional use intended for rental (other than furnished premises for professional use located in commercial complexes).

The taxpayer should send the application for optional VAT registration to the local tax administration office that is responsible for the taxpayer and takes effect after the expiry of thirty (30) days following the date of the notification.

Group registration. Group VAT registration is not allowed in Morocco.

Non-established businesses. Nonresident companies that perform a taxable activity in Morocco are liable to Moroccan VAT.

Tax representatives. Under the VAT law, nonresident companies must appoint a tax representative to handle their VAT obligations (VAT returns, filings and payments). If a nonresident company does not appoint a tax representative, the Moroccan customer becomes liable for the declaration and the payment of VAT due on behalf of the nonresident supplier on its own VAT return (autoliquidation).

Reverse charge. Nonresident entities performing VAT taxable activities are required to appoint a tax representative in Morocco in order to comply with VAT obligations and pay due VAT to the tax authorities on their behalf. In case the foreign entity does not appoint a tax representative, the mechanism of the VAT reverse charge applies. This mechanism provides that, in case a tax representative is not appointed, the Moroccan client is required to report and pay VAT on behalf of its foreign provider using its own VAT ID number. In other terms, VAT registration of the nonresident company is not mandatory if the Moroccan client declares and pays VAT to the tax authorities on its behalf.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Morocco.

Digital economy. The Moroccan tax code states that any service used or rendered within the Moroccan territory is subject to Moroccan VAT. For digital services, the VAT rate applicable is 20%. As the services rendered by the provider will be used in Morocco, the operation will be subject to VAT in Morocco.

For business-to-business (B2B) transactions, nonresident companies that are performing taxable activities in Morocco are required to appoint a tax representative to handle their VAT obligations (VAT returns filings and payments). If no tax representative is appointed, the Moroccan business should report and pay VAT on behalf of the nonresident company using its own VAT ID number.

For business-to-consumer (B2C) operations, there are no special VAT rules for digital services, or supplies relating to the digital economy. Normal VAT rules apply.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Morocco.

Registration procedures. When taxpayers apply for a registration, they must provide the following documents:
- "Declaration d'existence" a printed form delivered by the tax administration that includes, in addition to the corporate name of the nonresident company, the following information:
  Information regarding the nonresident company:
  — Name and place of the company's registered office
  — Phone number of the registered office and, where applicable, that of the company's main office in Morocco
  — The professions and activities carried on in each establishment and branch mentioned in the declaration
  — The location of all the company's establishments and branches located in Morocco
  — Names, professions or activities and addresses of the natural or legal person resident in Morocco, accredited by the tax authorities
  — The indication, where applicable, of the option for flat-rate taxation in respect of corporate income tax
  Information regarding the foreign provider's legal representatives (individuals):
  — Last and first name of the legal representative(s)
  — Function of the representative(s)
  — Address
  — City
- Copy of the contract signed by the nonresident company with the Moroccan client
- Representation letter signed by the nonresident company that allows the representative to collect, declare and pay VAT on its behalf
- Letter from the tax representative stating that it commits itself to fulfill VAT obligations of the nonresident company

The tax administration usually provides the VAT ID certificate within one week.

The procedure above is applicable to nonresident companies. For resident companies, a unique tax identification (VAT, CIT) is given upon the registration process of a company in Morocco.

Deregistration. Once the nonresident entity ends its activities in Morocco and has appointed a tax representative, it is required to deregister from VAT.

In practice, the deregistration process consists of sending a "deregistration letter" to tax authorities in which the nonresident entity requests to be deregistered from VAT.

The tax authorities do not provide a deregistration certificate.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 20%
- Reduced rates: 7%, 10% and 14%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate, the zero rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%
(i.e., exempt with credit)

- Exported goods/services
- Goods placed under customs suspensive regime
- Fertilizers
- Machinery for exclusively agricultural use
- Investment goods recorded as fixed assets, acquired by taxpayers, for a period of 36 months as from the start of the activity, excluding vehicles acquired by car rental agencies

Examples of goods and services taxable at 7%

- Water
- Rental of water and electricity meters
- Pharmaceutical products and non-recoverable packaging of pharmaceutical products

Examples of goods and services taxable at 10%

- Petroleum products
- Banking transactions
- Hotel operations
- Restaurant operations
- Sales and delivery operations relating to art objects
- Edible fluid oils
- Solar water heaters

Examples of goods and services taxable at 14%

- Transport services (excluding rail transport of passengers and goods)
- Butter, excluding homemade butter
- Electricity
- Services rendered by any direct selling agent or insurance broker in respect of contracts brought by him to an insurance company (without the possibility to offset input tax)

The term “exempt” refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services
(i.e., exempt without credit)

- Sales, other than for consumption on the spot, of goods including fresh, frozen, whole or cut fish products
- Sales of recovered metals and water pumps that use solar energy or any other renewable energy used in the agricultural sector
- Services provided by insurance and reinsurance companies

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Morocco.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the “time of supply” or “tax point.” In Morocco, the “tax point” generally corresponds to the time when the payment is made.

The Moroccan tax code provides that the tax point is the date of cash receipt. After a company receives cash, VAT becomes due, even if the cash received represents only part of the total outstanding amount for the goods or services provided.

The Moroccan tax code provides an optional regime under which VAT is due when the transaction is booked in the accounts of the seller or service provider. However, if the payment precedes the invoicing, the time of payment constitutes the tax point. Any company that wants to use the optional system must file a declaration to the tax administration before 1 January. A list of the company's customers that sets forth the unsettled VAT for each of the customers must be attached to the declaration. Newly registered taxpayers must file the declaration within one month after the commencement of their activity.

Deposits and prepayments. A prepayment or deposit constitutes a tax point. As a result, the time of effective delivery of the goods or services is ignored for VAT purposes.

Continuous supplies of services. If services are received continuously but payment is made periodically, a tax point is created each time payment is made, unless the "debit system" is opted for (see the Leased assets subsection below for more detail) or a VAT invoice is issued, whichever is earlier. No specific regulation provides for the VAT treatment of continuous services.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. The tax point for goods sent on approval is when the customer accepts the goods and a supply is made.

Reverse-charge services. The declaration and the payment of VAT to the tax authorities has to be performed during the month following the payment of the nonresident provider of services.

Leased assets. The time of supply for leased assets is the date of rent income cash collection. However, under the debit regime, the VAT is due when the rent income is booked in the accounts of the owner/lessor.

The following types of leases are not subject to VAT:
- Rental of unfurnished premises, whether or not intended for professional use
- Rental of equipped premises that does not exceed MAD500,000

The following types of leases are subject to VAT:
- Furnished premises
- Premises that are equipped for professional use
- Premises located in commercial complexes (malls)
- Machines
- Vehicles

Imported goods. VAT on imported goods is due at the time of customs clearance.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

Input tax is VAT charged on goods and services acquired by an entity for business purposes. A taxable person generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax (VAT charged on supplies made). Input tax consists of VAT charged on goods and services purchased in Morocco and VAT paid on imports of goods.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes and that are considered to be nondeductible expenses for corporate tax purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use by an entrepreneur). VAT charged on purchases, works or services, where the amount exceeds MAD5,000 per day and per supplier and MAD50,000 per month and per provider, is not recoverable unless settlement is made by a check, bill of exchange, magnetic means of payment, bank transfer, electronic process or by compensation.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible
- Goods and services not related to the business requirements
- Transport cars not used for the business needs
- Petroleum products not used as fuel
- Water pumps that run on solar energy or any other renewable energy used in the agricultural sector (introduced by the 2019 finance law)

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible
(if related to a taxable business use)

- Purchases and services related to a business use
- Transport cars of a business use

Partial exemption. Input tax deduction is granted for taxable supplies and for supplies that are exempt with a right to deduct. If a taxable person makes both taxable supplies and exempt supplies without credit, it may recover only the input tax related to supplies that are taxable or exempt with a right to deduct.

The portion of deductible input tax is calculated as follows:
—In the numerator, the amount of turnover taxable and exempt with credit
—In the denominator, the numerator amount increased by the amount of turnover from transactions exempt without credit or transactions out of VAT scope

Capital goods. Companies may offset input tax incurred on purchases of fixed assets (non-capital expenses) against output tax on the same month's VAT return.

No specific rules apply for the input tax recovery for capital goods. In cases when capital goods are used for both taxable and nontaxable activities, the portion of VAT which can be offset is determined as detailed in the previous section.

Capital goods are defined as production tools which aim to create wealth within the company for a period of use of more than one year.

The basis of input tax calculation is the acquisition cost which is calculated as follows:
— The purchase price plus customs duties and other non-recoverable taxes and duties, less trade discounts obtained and taxes legally recoverable
— Related ancillary purchasing expenses such as transports, transit costs, hospitality expenses, insurance — transport excluding legally recoverable taxes

Refunds. If the amount of input tax recoverable in a period exceeds the amount of output tax payable in the same period, a refund is not generally granted. In most cases, the taxable person must carry the excess forward to a future VAT period. Refunds of the excess are generally only available with respect to the following VAT:

- VAT incurred on supplies of exported goods except for recycling metals (ferrous and nonferrous)
- VAT incurred on supplies of goods and services that are exempt with a right to deduct
- VAT incurred on purchases of equipment goods (fixed assets)
- VAT incurred on purchases of other assets except office equipment and certain passenger transport vehicles
- VAT incurred on financial leasing activities

Pre-registration costs. Input tax incurred on pre-registration costs in Morocco, is not recoverable.

Write-off of bad debts. Output tax accounted for on supplies that do not get paid by the recipient (i.e., a bad debt) can be recovered in Morocco, when the client is defaulting, except when the loss is justified through a complete judicial remedy.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred in relation to noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Morocco.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Nonresident entities conducting taxable activities in Morocco are not eligible for VAT refunds. Nevertheless, input tax incurred in Morocco by nonresident entities may be offset against output tax.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. Moroccan taxable persons must provide VAT invoices for taxable supplies, including exports, made to other taxable persons. Recipients of supplies must maintain copies of invoices.

Credit notes. Credit notes must be issued with VAT included. These are generally issued in cases of return of goods or products to the supplier; additional commercial/financial discounts; billing error to the advantage of the customer, etc. No specific conditions apply in Morocco to credit notes.

Electronic invoicing. In Morocco, electronic invoicing is not mandatory, but it is allowed. However, in case of a VAT refund request, the tax administration requires the original invoice in hard-copy format, including the company stamp.

If taxpayers issue electronic invoices, then they must use an electronic billing system connected to the central billing station of the tax administration.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified invoices are not allowed in Morocco. As such, full VAT invoices are required. However, see the Supplies to nontaxable persons subsection for more detail.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Morocco.

Proof of exports. Moroccan VAT is not chargeable on supplies of exported goods. However, to qualify as VAT-free, export supplies must be supported by evidence confirming that the goods have left Morocco. The evidence required is the customs declaration, which must clearly identify the exporter, the customer, the goods and the export destination, and must provide invoice information.

Foreign currency invoices. A VAT invoice for a domestic supply is generally issued in Moroccan dirhams (MAD). VAT based on the applicable VAT rate must be shown on the invoice. It is possible to issue a VAT invoice in a foreign currency. This is, however, not allowed for supplies made to a resident business, (generally, VAT is invoiced in foreign currency if it is invoiced to a non-resident business).

Supplies to nontaxable persons. For supplies to nontaxable persons (i.e., private individuals), the receipt may be used as an invoice.

Such receipt must include at least the following information:
(a) The date of the operation
(b) The identification of the seller or service provider
(c) The description of the product or service
(d) The quantity and selling price, with an indication, where applicable, of the value added tax

Records.

Record retention period. Accounting records must be kept for no less than 10 years. This fine is issued by roll without any procedure.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is optional in Morocco.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. The filing of VAT returns may be on a monthly or quarterly cycle based on certain criteria.

The following taxpayers must file monthly VAT returns:
- Taxpayers that had taxable turnover during the preceding year of MAD1 million or more
- Nonresident persons that carry out taxable activities in Morocco

The following taxpayers must file quarterly VAT returns:
- Taxpayers that had taxable turnover during the preceding year of less than MAD1 million
- Taxpayers operating through seasonal establishments, practicing periodic activities or carrying out occasional activities
- New taxpayers in their first calendar year of activity

The above taxpayers can opt for the monthly declaration system by filing a request with the tax administration before 31 January.

Taxpayers under the tele-declaration and tele-payment system must file VAT returns within one month after the end of the relevant month or quarter.

Other taxpayers must file their VAT returns before the 20th day of the month following the relevant month or quarter.

Periodic payments. Taxpayers under the tele-declaration and tele-payment system must make VAT payments within one month after the end of the relevant month or quarter.

Other taxpayers must pay VAT due before the 20th day of the month following the relevant month or quarter.

Electronic payment is mandatory for all companies, regardless of the turnover performed.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is mandatory for all companies, regardless of the turnover performed, through the tax administration's platform ("SIMPL").

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Morocco.

Special schemes. There is one optional regime, called the "debit regime." This is where the VAT is due when the rent income is booked in the accounts of the owner/lessor.

The following types of leases are not subject to VAT:
- Rental of unfurnished premises, whether or not intended for professional use
- Rental of equipped premises that does not exceed MAD500,000

The following types of leases are subject to VAT:
- Furnished premises
- Premises that are equipped for professional use
- Premises located in commercial complexes (malls)
- Machines
- Vehicles

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Morocco.

Supplementary filings. Input tax incurred on petroleum products, which is claimed by a taxpayer, must be reported in a special VAT return. Such supplies must be reported:
- Gasoline used for the operating requirements of vehicles of collective road transport of persons and goods and road transport of goods carried out by taxable persons on their behalf and by their own means
- Gasoline used for the operating needs of rail transport of persons and goods
- Gasoline and kerosene used for air transport purposes

Digital reporting. All VAT returns must be filed electronically on the Moroccan tax administration's platform ("SIMPL").

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. Late filing of the statement of corporate existence ("Declaration d'existence") is subject to a penalty of MAD1,000. Besides, VAT due for the period preceding registration results in late filing and payment penalties.

Penalties for late payment and filings. In case of late filing of the VAT return beyond the deadline:
• Thirty days within the deadline: 5% penalty
• Beyond 30 days following the deadline: 15% penalty

Please note that in case of tax reassessment procedure due to lack of filing, the above penalty is increased up to 20%.

In the case of a tax audit, the applicable penalty is increased up to 30%.

If no VAT is due, the penalty equals MAD500. In case of late payment of VAT due:
• A penalty of 20% on the VAT amount due
• Additional 5% penalty in case of late payment within the first month and 0.50% per additional month (or fraction of month)

If the VAT declaration provides that no tax is due, the amount of any VAT credit is reduced by 15%. This means that where input tax exceeds output tax in the same period, this generates a VAT credit in the VAT return for the taxpayer. However, where the return is filed late (after the legal deadlines), then the VAT credit for that period is decreased by 15%.

An increase of 1% is applicable on the VAT due or that would have been due in the absence of exemption, in case of noncompliance with the obligations of electronic filing and payment.

Penalties for errors. When the tax administration identifies material errors in submitted returns, it will notify the taxpayer by way of a letter, inviting the taxpayer to submit a corrective return within 30 days as of the date of receipt of the said letter.

For late submission of a VAT return, a 5% surcharge applies. In case the rectification gives rise to payment of a supplementary tax, the additional penalties/surcharges apply:
• A 10% penalty
• A 5% surcharge for the first month of delay
• A 0.50% for each additional month or fraction of a month of delay

In the event of adjustment of the turnover for a fiscal year in the frame of a tax audit, a 30% surcharge is applicable, in addition to the abovementioned penalties and surcharges for late payment. The 30% surcharge is increased to 100% when the taxpayer's bad faith is revealed.

As such, a fine equal to MAD50,000 per financial year is applicable to taxpayers who do not keep their accounting documents or copies thereof in electronic form for 10 years or failing that, in paper form.

Penalties for fraud. A fine equal to 100% of the amount of tax evaded shall be applicable to any person who has participated in maneuvers designed to evade the payment of tax or assisted or advised a taxpayer in the execution of such maneuvers, regardless of disciplinary action if he/she performs a public function.

No implications are foreseen for tax advisors, unless their direct involvement in the fraud is demonstrated.

A. At a glance

Name of the tax	Commercial tax (CT)
Local name	Commercial tax (CT)
Date introduced	31 March 1990
Trading bloc membership	Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN)
Administered by	Myanmar Internal Revenue Department (MIRD) (www.ird.gov.mm)
Rates
Standard	5%
Other	8%, 3%, 1%, zero-rated (0%) and exempt
CT number	Changes yearly for the taxpayers assessed under the Official Assessment System (as CT registrations are renewed annually). For the taxpayers assessed under the Self-Assessment System, CT number is same as the tax identification number and company registration number (i.e., 9-digit number).
Return periods	Quarterly and yearly
Threshold
Registration	None
Recovery of CT by non-established businesses	No (unless the non-established business is registered for CT in Myanmar)

B. Scope of the tax

CT applies on the following transactions in Myanmar:
- Sale of goods/special goods produced domestically
- Examples of special goods subject to CT are tobacco, liquor, wine, beer, timber logs and wood cuting, raw/finished gemstones, petrol, diesel, kerosene and natural gas, among others
- Importation of goods/special goods
- Sale of imported goods/special goods
- Provision of services and trading activities
- Buildings developed and sold
- Sale of golden jewelry
- Export sale of electricity and crude oil

C. Who is liable

The following are subject to register for CT:
- An importer of goods
- Any person or entity that has taxable proceeds from the sale of goods/special goods, export sales of electricity and crude oil, receipts from services or sale of a building after development

CT registration must be made one month before the commencement of business. There is no registration threshold applicable for CT registration in Myanmar.

The MIRD must be notified of the commencement of business within 10 days after commencement.

The taxpayer is required to notify the MIRD of any changes to its name, including the company name, address, or the nature of the business on which the tax is being levied within 15 days after the change.

Exemption from registration. A business may be exempt from CT registration if its transactions are not subject to CT.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. A business may voluntarily register for CT in Myanmar so that its input CT can be used as credit against its output CT incurred.

Group registration. Group CT registration is not allowed in Myanmar.

Non-established businesses. Non-established businesses must register and pay CT if they have any transactions subject to CT in Myanmar. Typically, non-established businesses must appoint a local representative (e.g., Myanmar customer) to comply with their CT obligations.

Tax representatives. A non-established business must appoint a local tax representative to comply with CT obligations in Myanmar.

Reverse charge. The reverse-charge mechanism is not available in Myanmar. The obligation to collect CT solely lies with the service provider. Typically, overseas service providers may request the recipient or appoint a local representative (e.g., Myanmar customer) to comply with their CT obligations. This means the local company may be requested to act as a representative by the overseas company to comply with its CT obligations.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Myanmar.

Digital economy. Currently, there are no specific CT registration rules that may be applicable to foreign companies providing cross-border goods or services (e.g., digital supplies) to Myanmar customers.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Myanmar.

Registration procedures. Taxpayers are required to register each year as CT operators. To register, an applicant must appear in person at the MIRD and submit the following documents in hard copy:

- Forms KaThaKha-1 and KaThaKha-3
- Corporate documents, such as the company registration certificate, company/overseas corporation extract from the Directorate of Investment and Company Administration (DICA) and two photographs of any of the company's authorized managing director/directors

There is no online registration system. Foreign entities who do not have branches in Myanmar must appoint a local representative in Myanmar to register as a CT operator in Myanmar.

Deregistration. A business that ceases operations must cancel its CT registration by filing a request for deregistration with the tax authorities within 15 days after the date of ceasing operation.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of CT, including the zero rate.

The CT rates are:

- Standard rate: 5%
- Other rates: 8%, 3% and 1%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of CT applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate, the zero rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Exports

However, the export of certain items, such as crude oil (5% CT) and electric power (8% CT), is subject to CT upon export.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 8%

- Export of electricity

Examples of goods and services taxable at 3%

- Buildings developed and sold in Myanmar

Examples of goods and services taxable at 1%

- Sale and importation of gold jewelry

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to CT and do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Food (e.g., paddy rice, split rice, soft bran, rough bran, paddy husk, various maize and pulses, peanut oil, sesame oil, fresh fruits, vegetables, fish, prawns, meat, seedless corn, milk, dairy products and yogurt)
- Agriculture and livestock (e.g., fertilizers, insecticides, fungicides and pesticides, farm equipment, machines, spare parts, tractors and raw cotton plant)
- Office and school supplies
- Merchandise regarding health (e.g., raw materials used for pharmaceuticals, including traditional medicines)
- Goods used for religious and social welfare
- Transportation-related equipment and goods (e.g., machines, equipment and spare parts for aircraft and helicopters, jet fuel for outbound planes)

- Goods related to manufacturing and production (i.e., including goods listed for tax exemption with an approval of Union Hluttaw and notifications issued by Union Government)
- Defense-related goods
- Pure gold (standard qualified gold bar, gold coin)
- Goods imported under a duty drawback arrangement or imported for temporary admission
- Solar panels, solar chargers and inverters
- Foreign affairs
- Defense
- Religious and cultural services (e.g., funeral services, Myanmar traditional massage and massage performed by a blind person)
- Transportation services (e.g., parking lot rental, freight transport services, except for transportation with pipeline; toll fees collection services, mail and courier delivery service operated by Union Government)
- Education and information services (e.g., license fees paid to government organizations)
- Health care services (excluding cosmetic surger)
- Planning and finance services (e.g., life insurance, microfinance, banking and financial services under the permission of the Central Bank of Myanmar, capital market services and custom clearance services)
- Social welfare, relief and resettlement services (e.g., child care services)
- Industry and electricity services (e.g., custom manufacturing services)

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Myanmar.

E. Time of supply

The time of supply for output CT is the earlier date of invoice date and payment receipt date from the customers.

The time of supply for input CT is the time of payment to suppliers with the prescribed Form 31.

Deposits and prepayments. There are no special time of supply rules in Myanmar for deposits and prepayments. As such, the general time of supply rules apply.

Continuous supplies of services. There are no special time of supply rules in Myanmar for continuous supplies. As such, the general time of supply rules apply.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules in Myanmar for supplies of goods sent on approval for sale or return. As such, the general time of supply rules apply.

Reverse-charge services. Myanmar currently does not have CT reverse-charge/self-assessment mechanism. The obligation to collect CT solely lies with the service provider. Typically, overseas service providers may request the service recipient or appoint a local representative (e.g., Myanmar customer) to comply with their CT obligations. This means the local company may be requested to act as a representative by the overseas company to comply with its CT obligations.

Leased assets. There is no special time of supply rules in Myanmar for supplies of leased assets. As such, the general time of supply rules apply.

Imported goods. The time of supply rules for imported goods is at the time of customs clearance, which is borne by the importer. The importer of record must pay the CT due to the customs authority, which collects the CT on behalf of the MIRD at the time of importation.

F. Recovery of CT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax (CT) that it paid on most goods that were supplied to it for business purposes, including goods produced and sold, trading goods and imported goods. A taxable person generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax, which is CT charged on supplies made/services provided.

Input tax includes CT charged on goods supplied in Myanmar and CT paid on imports of goods into Myanmar. In addition, the input tax can also be recovered on services.

Nondeductible input tax. The purchase of goods that are not used for business purposes, but instead are acquired for private use by an entrepreneur, does not give rise to a right to deduct CT paid. The CT paid on the fixed assets or capital assets of the business does not give rise to recovery of CT paid.

Examples of business expenditures for which input tax is nondeductible

- Damage and losses of raw material when producing finished goods
- Damage and losses of semi-finished goods
- Damage and losses of trading goods
- CT paid on fixed assets or capital assets

Partial exemption. There are no specific rules that input tax incurred for both taxable and exempt supplies require apportionment. In practice, the input tax paid on general business overheads should be able to offset against the output tax when it obtains the prescribed "CT Form 31" and copy of valid commercial tax registration certificate for each relevant fiscal year from their suppliers or service providers.

Excess input tax will not be refunded but it may be carried forward to the next period in certain conditions (e.g., for the advance rental payment). Otherwise, excess input tax will be treated as a deductible expense for corporate income tax calculation purposes within the same financial year.

If a business makes purely CT exempt supplies, the input tax incurred on purchases, can be treated as a deductible expense for corporate income tax calculations.

Capital goods. Input tax incurred on capital goods in Myanmar is not recoverable.

Refunds. Section 42 of the CT Regulation allows the CT creditable system to CT-registered companies, such as manufacturing companies, trading companies and service providing companies.

The CT Law and Regulation doesn't describe the available partial exemption mechanism. However, in practice, when computing the CT payable amount, the input CT on purchase to be offset shall not exceed the output CT on the sales according to Section 42 of the CT Regulation, and the remaining excess amount of input CT may be carried forward to the next period in certain conditions (e.g., advance rental payment) or shall be allowed to be deducted as a business expense as per the tax officer's judgment.

Individual procedures relating to the claim of input CT varies on a case-by-case basis, depending on the case officers allocated to each entity by the Myanmar tax authorities.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax incurred on pre-registration costs in Myanmar, is not recoverable.

Write-off of bad debts. Output tax in relation to bad debts is not recoverable in Myanmar, but it should be treated as deductible expense for corporate income tax calculation purposes within the same financial year provided that the bad debt is trade related and there is a proper documentation providing proof of the efforts made to collect the debt in place.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred in relation to noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Myanmar.

G. Recovery of CT by non-established businesses

There is no CT recovery allowed by non-established businesses (unless the non-established business is registered for CT in Myanmar.).

H. Invoicing

CT invoices. There is no specific timing requirements for the issuance of tax invoices in the Myanmar CT Law. However, in practice, the invoice should be issued upon the supply of goods and services. There is no prescribed form for invoices, but CT Regulations define the mandatory data to be stated in each invoice for manufacturing and trading businesses as follows:

- Invoice number
- Name, address and registration certificate number of vendor
- Name, address and registration certificate number of customer
- Transaction date
- Name, type, description of goods or services
- Quantity, price or rate and amount of goods or services
- Amount of CT collected

Credit notes. There are no specific CT rules in Myanmar for credit notes. As there is no guidance on the conditions and criteria for issuing a credit note, in practice it is accepted that the credit notes are issued within the framework of the basic accounting principles.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing must contain the mandatory data.

Simplified CT invoices. Simplified CT invoicing is not allowed Myanmar. As such, full CT invoices are required.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Myanmar.

Proof of exports. Taxpayer must present the completed export declaration form issued by customs.

Foreign currency invoices. Invoices can be issued in a foreign currency or MMK, but CT shall be paid in local Myanmar kyats (MMK). Income in foreign currency shall be converted from the foreign currency to MMK based on the official rate of Central Bank of Myanmar.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. For business-to-consumer (B2C) transactions, there are no special rules for CT invoices issued by taxable persons to private consumers.

Records. All accounts and records are required to be kept and maintained in Myanmar. They cannot be stored overseas.

Record retention period. All records must be kept for a period of seven years from the date of the original transactions in Myanmar.

Electronic archiving. Records may be archived electronically or physically with the approval from MIRD.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. CT returns are submitted within one month from the end of respective quarter (for quarterly returns) and within three months from the end of the end of respective year (for annual returns). All taxpayers in Myanmar are required to file quarterly and annual commercial tax returns based on revenue declared in its accounts.

Periodic payments. A supplier of goods and services must collect CT from the purchaser of the goods or service and remit it to the MIRD by the 10th day of the month following the month in which the tax point is triggered.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is not allowed in Myanmar. CT returns must be physically submitted within one month after the end of the respective quarter and within three months after the end of the respective year.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Myanmar.

Special schemes. No special schemes are available in Myanmar.

Annual returns. Annual return must be submitted to the MIRD within three months after the end of respective year. It is mandatory to file an annual return within the prescribed period.

Supplementary filings. Before filing the CT return, a taxpayer must ensure that the declaration of the paid preparer and declaration of the taxpayer/representative have been signed.

Digital reporting. No digital reporting requirements apply in Myanmar.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. Failure to register for CT or notify about changes regarding taxpayer information (including failure to apply for cancellation of tax registration) results in a penalty of 10% of the CT payable in the relevant assessment year.

Penalties for late payment and filings. Failure to pay the monthly tax within the stipulated time results in a penalty of 10% of the additional CT payable in the relevant assessment year.

Failure to file tax returns in accordance with the prescribed timelines results in a penalty at higher of:
1) 5% of the tax due and an additional 1% of the tax due for each month (or the proportionate amount if less than a month) from the due date of the return until the date of the IRD assessment
   Or
2) MMK100,000

The penalty for failure to provide correct disclosures (such as using fraudulent or incorrect TINs, issuing incorrect invoices or receipts, issuing incorrect receivables or payable records, and providing invoices, receipts receivables and payables not according to tax laws or failure to provide, is MMK250,000.

Penalties for failure to provide the documents or records as requested by the tax officer, comply with a notice requesting personal attendance for an examination relating to the assessment results. The penalty shall be as follows:
1) MMK250,000
2) One-year imprisonment
3) Both 1 and 2

Penalties for errors. The penalty for failure to maintain records depends on the amount of tax payable as follows:
1. MMK5,000 per day of failure for taxpayers with tax payable up to MMK500,000
2. MMK50,000 per day of failure for taxpayers with tax payable up to MMK5 million
3. MMK100,000 per day of failure for taxpayers with tax payable in excess of MMK5 million

*The Director General may grant relief from penalty up to (30) days.

Penalties for fraud. For fraudulent activity resulting in underpayment CT:
- If underpayment is not more than MMK100 million or underpayment of tax does not account for more than 50% of actual tax due, the penalty is 25% of the deficient tax.
- If the underpayment exceeds MMK100 million or the underpayment of tax accounts to more than 50% of the actual tax due, the penalty is 75% of the deficient tax.

The penalty for disclosure of inaccurate or misleading information to the tax officer. shall be MMK150,000 and in addition higher penalty of the following:

1) The difference between the tax liability that should have been paid and the actual tax paid
   Or
2) The difference between the tax refund that should have been claimed and the actual tax refunded

The penalty for to provide the requested information by the Director General of the MIRD shall be MMK500,000.

Compulsory registration	Annual taxable supplies of NAD500,000
Voluntary registration	A reasonable expectation that future taxable supplies will exceed NAD200,000 in a 12-month period
Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses	Yes (subject to certain conditions)

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:

- The supply of goods or services made in Namibia by a registered person
- Reverse-charge services received by a person in Namibia that is not entitled to claim full input tax credits (referred to as imported services)
- The importation of goods from outside Namibia, regardless of the status of the importer

Goods that are imported from countries in the Southern African Customs Union (Botswana, Eswatini, Lesotho, Namibia and South Africa) are not subject to customs duty but are subject to import VAT.

C. Who is liable

A VAT-registered person is required to account for output tax on all goods and services supplied, unless the supply is specifically exempted by the Value-Added Tax Act. Exempt supplies are specified in Schedule IV to the VAT Act.

A VAT-registered person is a person (business entity or individual) carrying on an activity in Namibia or partly in Namibia on a continuous or regular basis if, in the course of the activity, goods or services are supplied to another person for consideration exceeding the registration threshold or who has voluntarily registered for VAT. This includes persons who are registered for VAT in Namibia as well as persons who are required to register for VAT.

A person is required to register for VAT if the value of taxable supplies exceeds (or is expected to exceed) NAD500,000 in any consecutive 12-month period.

A VAT registration only becomes effective from the first calendar day of the month after registration was approved. The earliest the registration can become effective is the first day of the calendar month following the month in which application for registration was filed.

In addition to actual goods and services supplied by a registered person, the VAT Act also deems certain supplies to be supplies of goods or services. The person making the deemed supply is liable to pay VAT. Deemed supplies include the following:
- Ceasing to be a registered person
- Short-term insurance indemnity payments
- Change in use
- Acquisition of used goods (excluding immovable property) from a person not registered for VAT

Goods imported into Namibia are subject to import VAT. The import VAT is payable at the time of import unless the importer has obtained approval from the Directorate of Inland Revenue to maintain a VAT import account, in which case the payment of the import VAT can be deferred and paid when the import VAT return is due for submission (see Section I). The Commissioner may require security or impose additional conditions before registration of a VAT import account.

Exemption from registration. The VAT law in Namibia does not contain any provision for exemption from registration if the value of taxable supplies made exceeds the registration threshold of NAD500,000 in a 12-month period.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. A person whose turnover is below the compulsory registration threshold may register for VAT on a voluntary basis provided that there is a reasonable expectation that taxable supplies will be made for consideration after a period of time and that there is a reasonable expectation that future taxable supplies will exceed NAD200,000 in a 12-month period.

Group registration. VAT grouping is not allowed under the Namibia VAT Act. All legal entities must register for VAT individually, and all activities carried on by such person must be accounted for on one registration number. VAT is charged on transactions between separately registered entities within a commercial group in accordance with the general VAT rules and subject to the rules relating to supplies between related persons.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that has no fixed establishment in Namibia. A non-established business that makes taxable supplies of goods or sevices continuously or regularly in Namibia must appoint a tax representative and open a Namibian bank account to register for VAT.

Tax representatives. Persons who make supplies in Namibia may appoint a representative who is responsible for registration and payment of VAT on behalf of the registered person.

Reverse charge. Recipients of services who make exempt supplies are liable to pay VAT on imported services, subject to specific provisions. Imported services are exempt from VAT if the import is specified in Schedule V of the VAT Act.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Namibia.

Digital economy. There are no special rules for the taxation of the digital economy in Namibia. For business-to-business (B2B) and business-to-consumer (B2C) transactions, the nonresident business will only be liable to register for and levy VAT on the supply if it carries on a taxable activity in Namibia or partly within Namibia. To the extent that the customer is registered for VAT, VAT paid on invoices can be claimed as an input tax deduction. To the extent that the non-resident business will not be liable to register for and levy VAT, no VAT liability will arise unless the customer makes exempt or mixed (taxable and exempt) supplies, in which case VAT on imported services will be payable by the customer.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Namibia.

Registration procedures. The VAT registration application (VAT 1) must be completed and submitted to Inland Revenue in hard copy. The person applying for VAT registration should have a Namibian bank account and a fitness certificate for the premises from which they will be conducting the taxable activity. The VAT registration, once approved by Inland Revenue, becomes effective on the first calendar day of the second month after the registration letter was received from Inland Revenue. On specific application the registration can become effective on the first calendar day of the month following the receipt of the registration confirmation.

Deregistration. A person may apply for deregistration if the value of such person's taxable supplies in a period of 12 months (begin on the date of application) will be less than NAD500,000.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
• Standard rate: 15%
• Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for the zero rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

• Exports of goods and related services
• International transport of passengers and goods and related services
• Certain supplies of goods that are used exclusively in an export country
• Services supplied outside Namibia and to foreign branches and head offices
• Certain basic foodstuffs
• Supply of land to be used solely for residential accommodation purposes
• Supply of goods or services to erect or extend a residential building

- Supply of a business capable of separate operation as a going concern (provided that all of the requirements are met)
- Supply of goods subject to the fuel levy
- Supply of telecommunication services, electricity, water, refuse removal and sewerage to residential accounts
- Supply of livestock on the hoof
- Supply of intellectual property for use outside Namibia
- Supply of services to nonresidents subject to certain provisions
- Supply of goods or services to an export processing zone enterprise

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Financial services as defined
- Fare-paying public passenger transport
- Educational services
- Medical services provided by registered medical professionals
- Hospital services provided by registered hospitals
- Rental of residential accommodation
- Fringe benefits provided by an employer to employees
- Services supplied to members in the course of the management of a body corporate
- Supplies of goods or services to heads of state
- Supply of services by a trade union to or for the benefit of members if the supply is made from members' contributions

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Namibia.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point." In Namibia, the basic time of supply is the earlier of the issuance of an invoice or the receipt of payment.

Other tax points are used for a variety of situations, including betting transactions, construction, supplies made from vending machines and "lay-by" sale agreements.

Deposits and prepayments. There are no special time of supply rules in Namibia for deposits and prepayments. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above). Deposits will only be subject to VAT once it is applied as a consideration for a supply.

Continuous supplies of services. The tax point for continuous supplies is the earlier of the date on which payment is due or the date on which the invoice relating to the payment is issued.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules in Namibia for supplies of goods sent on approval for sale or return. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

Reverse-charge services. The import of services shall take place 30 days after the time of the import. The normal time of supply rules (as outlined above) will apply to the time of the import.

Leased assets. The supply of goods under rental agreements is deemed to take place at the earlier of when a payment becomes due or is received.

Imported goods. The tax point for imported goods varies depending on the source of the goods being imported. The following are the applicable rules:

- For goods that are imported from a member of the Southern African Customs Union — when the goods enter Namibia at the border post

- For goods imported from other countries — when the goods are cleared for home consumption
- For goods imported and entered into a licensed customs and excise storage warehouse — when the goods are cleared from the warehouse for home consumption

Periodic supplies. The tax point for periodic supplies is the earlier of the date on which payment is due or the date on which the invoice relating to the payment is issued.

Installment credit agreements. For installment credit agreements, the supply is deemed to take place at the earlier of when the goods are delivered, or any payment of consideration is made.

Immovable property. The supply of immovable property is deemed to take place at the earlier of the following dates:
- The date on which the registration of the transfer is made in a deed's registry
- The date on which any payment in respect of selling price is received (excluding deposits)

Supplies between related persons. The tax point for supplies of goods between related persons is when the goods are removed by or made available to the purchaser or recipient of the goods. The time of supply for supplies of services between related persons is when the services are performed. For services such as management services, the tax point is at the end of each calendar month.

Supplies to a branch or main business outside Namibia. The tax point for goods consigned or delivered to a branch or main business outside Namibia is when the goods are consigned or delivered. The tax point for services supplied to a branch or main business outside Namibia is when the services are performed.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A VAT-registered person may recover input tax (that is, VAT charged on goods and services supplied to it for business purposes) by deducting it from output tax (VAT charged on supplies made) provided the VAT-registered person is in possession of a valid tax invoice.

Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services supplied in Namibia and VAT paid on the importation of goods.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for taxable purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use by an entrepreneur or goods and services used for making exempt supplies). In addition, input tax may not be recovered for specifically excluded business expenditure, such as entertainment.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Purchase or rental of a vehicle principally designed to carry nine or fewer seated people including the driver (referred to as a passenger vehicle in the VAT Act)
- Business and staff entertainment, which includes accommodation, meals and beverages when travelling for business purposes
- Club subscriptions (excluding subscriptions to professional bodies)
- Acquisition of capital goods prior to being registered for VAT

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible
(if related to a taxable business use)

- Purchase, hire and maintenance of vans and trucks
- Attendance at conferences and seminars
- Vehicle maintenance costs (including passenger vehicles, excluding if provided as fringe benefit)
- Mobile phones (excluding if provided as fringe benefit)

- Air transport of goods within Namibia
- Aviation fuel
- Trading stock
- Raw materials
- Marketing expenditure
- Stationery

Partial exemption. Input tax directly related to the making of exempt supplies is not recoverable. If a taxable person makes both exempt and taxable supplies, it may recover only a portion of the input tax incurred.

In Namibia, the deductible portion is determined using the following two-stage calculation:
- The first stage identifies the input tax directly attributable to taxable and exempt supplies. Input tax directly attributable to taxable supplies is deductible, while input tax directly related to exempt supplies is not deductible.
- The second stage identifies the amount of the remaining input tax (for example, input tax on general business overhead) that cannot be directly attributed to the making of taxable or exempt supplies. Such input tax may be deducted only to the extent that it relates to the making of taxable supplies. In general, the deductible portion is determined by comparing the value of taxable supplies to total supplies. However, a registered person may apply to the Directorate of Inland Revenue for another equitable apportionment method (for example, apportionment based on floor space or activity), particularly if significant investment income, foreign-exchange gains or other nontaxable passive income is realized. The input tax ratio calculated for a financial year is applied to the following financial year and amended annually when a financial year comes to an end. A de minimis rule applies, and if taxable supplies are 90% or more of the total supplies, the full input tax deduction may be claimed and there will be no requirement to apportion the input tax claim.

Capital goods. Capital assets are defined in the VAT Act as any asset, or a component of any asset, which is subject to the deduction of capital allowances in terms of the Income Tax Act. The normal input tax recovery rules apply in respect of the acquisition of capital goods. Only the portion of capital goods used to make taxable supplies can be claimed as an input tax deduction. The normal timing rules apply.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax recoverable in a period exceeds the amount of output tax payable in that period, a refund of the excess may be claimed.

Pre-registration costs. No VAT paid may be claimed prior to the effective date of registration unless it relates to trading stock or consumables on hand at the date the VAT registration becomes effective and the goods were acquired within four months of the effective date of the VAT registration. The VAT paid in respect of the acquisition of capital goods prior to registration may not be claimed.

Write-off of bad debts. A registered person will be entitled to claim the VAT as an input tax deduction where bad debts have been written off. There should be proof that the registered person did in fact try to recover the bad debts before the VAT can be claimed back. The tax fraction will be applied to the total debt amount to the extent it includes VAT.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred in relation to noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Namibia.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

VAT incurred by businesses that are neither established nor registered in Namibia may be recovered only with respect to goods that are subsequently exported from Namibia. A refund may be claimed from the VAT refund administrator. No claim may be made in respect of services (such as hotel accommodation and restaurant meals) consumed in Namibia.

A business rendering services on a continuous or regular basis in Namibia may be liable to register for VAT even though the business is neither established nor registered in Namibia. In this instance, the non-established business registered for VAT may recover input tax through the normal VAT return process.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. Registered persons are required to issue a tax invoice for all supplies made if the consideration (that is, the total amount received exclusive of VAT) amounts to NAD100 or more. If the total amount in money for the supply is less than NAD100, the supplier may issue an abridged tax invoice. Only hard copy tax invoices qualify as valid tax invoices.

In order to claim input tax, the claimant must be in possession of a valid tax invoice for each supply including periodic supplies.

Credit notes. A tax credit note, or debit note may be used to reduce VAT charged and reclaimed on a supply of goods or services. A credit note, or a debit note may be issued only if the tax charged is incorrect or if the supplier has paid incorrect output tax as a result of one or more of the following circumstances:
- The supply has been canceled
- The nature of the supply has been fundamentally varied or altered
- The previously agreed consideration has been altered by agreement with the recipient of the supply
- All or part of the goods or services has been returned to the supplier

If a credit note adjusts the amount of VAT charged, it must be clearly marked "tax credit note" and must refer to the original tax invoice. It must briefly indicate the reason that it is being issued and provide sufficient information to identify the transaction to which it refers.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is not allowed in Namibia. The Namibian VAT Act requires that all tax invoices be issued in hard-copy.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified invoices are permitted in Namibia. There is no requirement to issue a tax invoice if the supply is for less than NAD100. A receipt is sufficient.

Self-billing. Self-billing is permitted, provided the Commissioner has provided prior written approval for the issue of tax invoices by a recipient. The recipient and the supplier must agree in advance that the supplier shall not issue any tax invoices where the recipient has issued a tax invoice in this regard. Then the tax invoice is provided to the supplier, and a copy thereof retained by the recipient.

Proof of exports. Exports can be classified as either direct exports or indirect exports. Direct exports (that is, the seller is responsible to deliver the goods at an address outside Namibia) can be zero-rated if the documentary requirements are met. The seller may not zero-rate exports if the goods are not delivered or consigned and delivered at an address in a country outside Namibia.

Documentation that must be retained to substantiate an export includes the following:
- The original customs export documentation (such as Form SAD500, Form 178 and any export certificate or certificate of origin)
- Commercial and tax invoices for the supply

These documents have to be stamped by the customs and excise officials at the port of export.

The import documentation into the country of import may also be requested by the Directorate of Inland Revenue in support of the export from Namibia.

Foreign currency invoices. In general, a tax invoice must be issued in Namibia dollars. If an invoice is issued in a foreign currency, the Namibia dollar (NAD) equivalent must be determined using the appropriate exchange rate on the date on which the invoice is issued and must be reflected on the tax invoice.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. Full tax invoices are only required to be issued if requested by the purchaser. It is, therefore, not a requirement to issue full VAT invoices to private consumers; abridged tax invoices should be sufficient.

Records.

Record retention period. All records should be retained for a period of five years after the end of the tax period to which it relates.

Electronic archiving. The original tax invoices, tax credit notes and tax debit notes received, and copies issued, should be kept physically in Namibia. Accounting records can be kept outside Namibia but should be maintained on a centralized computer system that is linked to the registered person's place of business in Namibia.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. The tax return period is bimonthly for all registered persons other than those persons who conduct only farming activities. Registered persons who carry on only farming activities may elect four-monthly, semiannual and annual tax periods.

VAT returns must be filed by the 25th day after the end of the tax period. If the due date falls on a Saturday, Sunday or a public holiday, the due date is the next business day.

Import VAT returns for the declaration of the import of goods are due monthly by the 20th day of the month following the month of import and must be submitted even if no goods were imported in a particular month.

Periodic payments. Payment of VAT is due in full by the same date as the VAT return submission deadline, i.e., by the 25th day after the end of the tax period.

Payment of import VAT is due in full by the same date as the import VAT return, i.e., by the 20th day of the month following the month of import. If the payment date falls on a Saturday, Sunday or a public holiday, the due date is the next business day.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is allowed in Namibia. Inland Revenue's new electronic system, Integrated Tax Administration System (ITAS), became operational from 1 January 2019. Tax return submissions can be made online through ITAS.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Namibia.

Special schemes. No special schemes are available in Namibia.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Namibia.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in Namibia.

Digital reporting. No digital reporting requirements apply in Namibia.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. A person who fails to register will be liable for the payment of a penalty equal to double the amount of output tax payable from the time such person becomes liable to be registered until they file an application for registration. No input tax may be claimed in respect of the period that has lapsed during which the person was not registered.

Penalties for late payment and filings. A penalty equal to 10% of the net VAT due is imposed if the VAT payment is made after the due date. The penalty is calculated as 10% for each month or part of a month the VAT remains outstanding, but the total penalty is limited to the tax due. However, a registered person may request that the Directorate of Inland Revenue waive the penalty if the delay was not due to the intent of the VAT-registered person to postpone payment.

An additional penalty of NAD100 is imposed for each day the VAT return or import VAT return is submitted after the due date.

Interest is charged at 20% per annum on late payments of the VAT liability or import VAT liability.

Penalties for errors. A person who fails to maintain proper records in respect of any tax period, will be liable for the payment of a penalty of NAD3,000 for each day during which the failure continues.

Penalties for fraud. Additional tax not exceeding double the value of the VAT due may be levied in the case of evasion and where any person knowingly or recklessly makes a false or misleading statement.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:

- The supply of goods or services made in the Netherlands by a taxable person acting as such
- The intra-Community acquisition of goods from another EU Member State by a taxable person acting as such (see the chapter on the EU)
- The intra-Community acquisition of goods from another EU Member State by a nontaxable legal person in excess of the annual threshold (see the chapter on the EU)
- Reverse-charge goods and services received by a taxable person and nontaxable legal entities in the Netherlands (that is, goods and services for which the recipient is liable to pay the VAT)
- The importation of goods from outside the EU, regardless of the status of the importer

C. Who is liable

A taxable person is any business entity or individual that makes taxable supplies of goods or services, or intra-Community acquisitions or distance sales, in the course of a business, in the Netherlands, on a continuing basis (i.e., not occasionally). Taxable activities also include "carrying on a profession" or the "exploitation of tangible or intangible property in order to obtain income on a continuing basis."

No VAT registration threshold exists in the Netherlands. A taxable person that begins an activity must notify the VAT authorities of its liability to register.

A domestic taxpayer may also be liable for Dutch VAT (see Reverse charge below).

Special rules apply to foreign or "non-established" businesses.

Exemption from registration. VAT law in the Netherlands does not contain a provision for exemption from registration, but from 1 January 2020, businesses of which the global turnover does not exceed EUR20,000 per year can apply a special scheme. Under this scheme, these small and medium enterprises (SMEs) will have to register for VAT, but they will not have to issue invoices or file VAT returns. This means that they also cannot deduct any input tax. Businesses that decide to opt out of this scheme cannot re-apply for a three-year period.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. VAT law in the Netherlands does not contain any provision for voluntary VAT registration.

Group registration. Taxable persons established in the Netherlands (including fixed establishments) may form a VAT group if the members are closely bound by "financial, economic and organizational links." The formation of a VAT group no longer requires a decree from the tax office, which is issued after a written request. However, the tax office may also issue a VAT group decree on its own accord. For legal certainty, it is recommended that persons meeting the conditions for group registration inform the tax office.

The effect of VAT grouping is to treat the members as a single taxable person. As a result, transactions between members of the VAT group are disregarded for VAT purposes. Members of a Dutch VAT group may file a single VAT return, or members may elect to file individually. Each member of a VAT group is jointly and severally liable for all VAT that becomes due during the period in which the respective person was a member of the VAT group.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that has no fixed establishment in the Netherlands. A non-established business that makes supplies of goods or services in the Netherlands must register for VAT if it is required to account for VAT on those supplies.

A non-established business that makes supplies of goods or services in the Netherlands must register for VAT if it is required to account for VAT on those supplies.

Tax representatives. Nonresident businesses may register for VAT without appointing a tax representative. In limited circumstances, businesses that are established outside the EU must appoint a tax representative resident in the Netherlands to register for VAT (for example, for distance sales made from another EU country). Non-established businesses, regardless of whether they are established in or outside the EU, may choose to appoint a representative. In some cases, the appointment of a resident tax representative may be advantageous (for example, for dealing with imports using the "postponed accounting" system; see Section E).

Non-established businesses that do not appoint a representative must register at the Tax Office for Nonresident Businesses in Heerlen, at the following address:

Belastingdienst/kantoor Buitenland
Postbus 4486
6401 DJ Heerlen
Netherlands

Reverse charge. The "reverse charge" provision applies generally to supplies of goods and services made by non-established businesses to taxable persons and to other nontaxable legal persons established in the Netherlands, provided that Dutch VAT is due on these supplies. Under the reverse-charge provision, the taxable person or legal person that receives the supply must account for the VAT due. If the reverse charge applies, the non-established supplier may not account for VAT in the Netherlands. The reverse charge does not apply to supplies made to private persons.

Domestic reverse charge. For certain specific transactions, even if they are carried out between locally established businesses, the recipient of the transaction is liable for the Dutch VAT on the supplies. This applies, for example, to:
- The supply of used material that cannot be re-used in the same state, scrap, industrial and non-industrial waste, recyclable waste, partly processed waste and certain appointed goods and services
- Supplies of mobile telephones, integrated circuit devices such as microprocessors and central processing units, if the total value of the supply exceeds EUR10,000
- Supplies of telecommunications services between telecommunications services providers

Digital economy. Digital services that are rendered to nontaxable persons are taxable in the country where the nontaxable recipient of the electronic service is established. See more in the chapter on the EU.

Mini One-Stop Shop. There are two schemes for the Mini One-Stop Shop (MOSS). Companies can register for the EU-scheme if they are established (either permanent or fixed) in the Netherlands. Companies can register for the non-EU scheme if they are not established (both permanent and fixed) in the EU and do not have an EU VAT registration. More information is included on the website of the Dutch tax authorities: https://www.belastingdienst.nl/wps/wcm/connect/bldcontentnl/belastingdienst/zakelijk/internationaal/btw_voor_buitenlandse_ondernemers/digitale_diensten_door_ondernemers_uit_niet-eu-landen/eu-btw-melding_met_moss_voor+ondernemers_uit_niet-eu-landen/.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in the Netherlands. As a result of new EU rules, this will change from 1 January 2021.

Vouchers. The Dutch VAT treatment of vouchers mirrors the EU VAT rules. With regard to face-value vouchers, a distinction is made between single-purpose vouchers (SPVs) and multi-purpose vouchers. A voucher qualifies as an SPV if, at the time of issuing or transferring the voucher, the place of supply of and the VAT amount due regarding the underlying transaction are known. If this is not the case, the voucher qualifies as an MPV. Issuing and transferring SPVs is treated as performing the taxable transaction for which the voucher can be redeemed. The actual redemption is not subject to VAT. This is the other way around for MPVs: issuing and transferring them is not subject to VAT and VAT will become due upon redemption. Other specific VAT rules exist in the Netherlands for transactions involving different types of "vouchers," such as tokens, coupons and discount vouchers.

Registration procedures. The easiest way to register is to register online with the Dutch Chamber of Commerce (http://www.kvk.nl/). However, it is also possible to register with the Dutch tax authorities. More information can be found online http://www.belastingdienst.nl/rekenhulpen/registratie_buitenlandse_ondernemers/en/. Registration usually takes two to six weeks.

Deregistration. If a taxpayer is no longer considered to be a taxable person for VAT purposes they can deregister by sending a letter to the Dutch tax authorities stating that his VAT registration has to be ended.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate (0%).

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 21%
- Reduced rate: 9% previously
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services, unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate, the zero rate or an exemption.

Some supplies are classified as "exempt-with-credit," which means that no VAT is chargeable, but the supplier may recover related input tax, e.g., certain financial services provided to a customer established outside the EU.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Exports of goods
- Intra-Community supplies of goods
- Supplies to ships and aircraft used for international transportation

Examples of goods and services taxable at 9%

- Foodstuffs
- Books (hard copy as well as electronic publications)
- Paintings and other "cultural goods"
- Entrance to museums, concerts and similar events
- Passenger transport
- Hotel accommodation

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Supply of immovable property
- Medical services
- Financial services
- Insurance services
- Betting and gaming
- Educational services

Option to tax for exempt supplies. For the supply and letting of immovable property, the supplier and customer can opt for taxation. Several conditions must be met. The most important condition is that the customer use the property for purposes that allow them to deduct at least 90% (in some specific cases at least 70%) of the VAT that is due on the supply or lease of the immovable property.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point." The basic EU VAT rule for determining the time of supply for goods is when the goods are supplied. The basic rule for determining the time of supply for services is when the service is rendered or completed.

In the Netherlands, an invoice must be issued ultimately the 15th day of the month following the month in which the supply takes place if supplies are made to businesses and in other specific cases. The actual tax point is then the date on which the invoice is issued. However, if no invoice is issued or if the invoice is issued late, tax becomes due, at the latest, on the day on which the invoice should have been issued. If the purchaser is not a taxable person, the tax becomes due on the date of the supply.

If the consideration is paid in full, or in part, before the invoice is issued, the actual tax is due on the date on which payment is received (for the amount received).

However, some taxable persons are permitted to account for VAT on a cash basis (cash accounting). If cash accounting is used, the tax point is the date on which the payment is received.

Deposits and prepayments. If the customer pays the consideration in installments or makes a prepayment, the supplier must issue an invoice for each installment before the date when it falls due or when it receives the prepayment. The tax point is the date of the invoice.

Continuous supplies of services. For continuous supplies of services, the main rule (time of invoice) is applicable. However, there is at least one tax point per year.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. The Netherlands does not have a specific time of supply rule for supplies of goods sent on approval for sale or return.

Reverse-charge services. For B2B services that are subject to the reverse-charge mechanism, the tax point is the time at which the services are rendered.

Leased assets. For operational leases, the section about continuous supplies of services is applicable. For financial leases, which are normally treated as the supply of a good rather than a service, the tax point is basically the time the invoice is issued (or should have been issued).

Imported goods. The general rule for determining the tax point for imported goods is the date of importation or the date on which the goods leave a duty suspension regime. However, taxable persons may delay that tax point by applying for permission to use the "postponed accounting" facility. Under this facility, import VAT is reported in the taxable person's VAT return (and recovered in the same tax period as input tax, depending on the taxable person's VAT recovery status, e.g., partially exempt).

A non-established business must appoint a tax representative resident in the Netherlands to use the postponed accounting facility.

Intra-Community acquisitions. The tax point for an intra-Community acquisition of goods is the date on which the invoice is issued, unless it is invoiced late (i.e., after the 15th day of the month following the month in which the acquisition occurred). In that case, the tax point is the date on which the invoice should have been issued (i.e., the 15th day of the month following the month of the acquisition).

Intra-Community supplies of goods. For intra-Community supplies of goods, the tax point basically is at the time the invoice is issued or should have been issued (i.e., at the latest on the 15th day of the month following the month in which the supply was made).

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax, which is VAT charged on goods and services supplied to it for business purposes. Input tax is generally recovered by deducting it from output tax, which is VAT due on supplies made.

Input tax includes VAT incurred on invoices for goods and services supplied in the Netherlands, VAT paid on imports of goods and VAT self-assessed on the intra-Community acquisition of goods and reverse-charge goods and services (see the chapter on the EU).

A valid tax invoice or customs document must be kept in the accounts to support a claim for input tax.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes (for example, goods acquired by a business for private use). In addition, input tax may not be recovered for some items of business expenditure if the value of the private benefit to an employee exceeds an amount of EUR227, excluding VAT, per person per year. If the goods or services are used for private purposes, in specific situations, the business is deemed to make a supply of goods or services and output tax is due.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Private expenditure
- Business gifts (if the value exceeds EUR227 per recipient per year and the recipient cannot recover the input tax in his own right)
- Restaurant drinks and meals
- Home telephone costs

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Purchase, hire, lease, maintenance and fuel for vans and trucks
- Car hire, subject to special rules, as well as the purchase, hire, lease, maintenance and fuel for cars put at the disposal of employees, subject to special rules
- Conferences, seminars and training courses (restaurant meals are excluded)
- Advertising
- Taxis
- Business travel costs
- Business gifts (valued at less than EUR227 a year or if the recipient of the gift could have recovered the input tax in their own right)
- Business entertainment (subject to the limit of EUR227 a year on employee expenses)

Employee expenses. A maximum limit of EUR227 annually applies to the value of expenses incurred per employee on which input tax may be recovered, including drinks, meals from a discounted company cafeteria and company parties, mobile phones and computers made available to employees at home. The EUR227 limit relates to the net cost or value of the expenses incurred, rather than the amount of VAT recovered. VAT on employee expenses can only be recovered if a valid tax invoice has been issued to the employer. Costs regarding company cars put at the disposal of employees are excluded from this adjustment method and therefore also from the calculation of the EUR227 threshold.

The employer may recover input tax on employee expenses in full throughout the year. At the end of the year the employer must calculate the average cost of expenses per employee. If the average cost of expenses per employee exceeds EUR227, all of the VAT recovered on these expenses throughout the year must be repaid (not just the VAT on expenses in excess of the EUR227 limit).

As mentioned, the EUR227 threshold does not apply to cars that are put at the disposal of staff. For these transactions, the input tax can be fully deducted and VAT is payable on the private use, which is treated as a taxable supply made for consideration to either a fixed amount per year or the actual cost of the private use.

Partial exemption. Input tax directly related to making exempt supplies is generally not recoverable. If a taxable person makes both exempt and taxable supplies, it may not recover input tax in full. This situation is referred to as "partial exemption." Supplies that are exempt with credit are treated as taxable supplies for these purposes.

In the Netherlands, the amount of input tax that a partially exempt business may recover is calculated in the following two stages:

- The first stage identifies the input tax that may be directly allocated to taxable and to exempt supplies. Input tax directly allocated to taxable supplies is 100% deductible, while input tax directly related to exempt supplies is not deductible.
- The second stage identifies the amount of the remaining input tax (for example, on general business overhead) that may be allocated to taxable supplies and recovered. This takes place via the "pro rata" calculation. The pro rata calculation is a calculation that is normally based on the percentage of the values of taxable and total supplies made in the period of a financial year. The recovery percentage is rounded up to the nearest whole number (for example, 5.2% becomes 6%). In specific situations other methods of apportionment may be used, based on the actual use of goods and services.

Capital goods. Capital goods are items of capital expenditure that are used in a business over several years. Input tax is deducted in the financial year in which the goods are acquired or first used (if this is a later year). The amount of input tax recovered depends on the taxable person's partial exemption recovery position in the financial year of acquisition or first use. However, the amount of input tax recovered for capital goods must be adjusted over time if the taxable person's partial exemption recovery percentage changes during the adjustment period.

In the Netherlands, the capital goods adjustment applies to the following assets, for the number of years indicated:
- Immovable property: adjusted for a period of nine years after the year of first use
- Movable property subject to depreciation for income tax purposes: adjusted for a period of four years after the year of first use

The adjustment is applied each year following the year of first use, to a fraction of the total input tax (1/10 for immovable property and 1/5 for other movable capital goods). The adjustment may result in either an increase or a decrease of deductible input tax, depending on whether the ratio of taxable supplies made by the business has increased or decreased compared with the year in which the capital goods were acquired.

The adjustment is not made if it is insignificant (that is, less than 10% of the previously deducted amount for that specific year).

Refunds. If the amount of recoverable input tax in a period exceeds the amount of payable output tax in that period, the taxable person has an input tax credit. A taxable person may claim a refund of the credit by submitting the VAT return for the period. The refund is paid in cash.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax on pre-registration costs is deductible as long as the (future) taxpayer can demonstrate that the goods or services were issued in preparation of a future economic activity. In practice this means the VAT on these costs can be deducted in the first VAT return of the company.

Write-off of bad debts. When the payment of a debtor is not expected to be received anymore, the VAT that was due on this payment can be reclaimed.

Noneconomic activities. The input tax on costs related to noneconomic activities is not deductible, unless and in so far as, the noneconomic activity is subservient to the taxpayer's (taxable) economic activities.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

The Netherlands refunds VAT incurred by businesses that are neither established in the Netherlands nor registered for VAT there. A non-established business may claim Dutch VAT to the same extent as a VAT-registered business.

For the general VAT refund rules contained in EU Directive 2008/9/EG and the EU 13th Directive, see the chapter on the EU.

EU businesses. For businesses established in the EU, refunds are made under the terms of EU Directive 2008/9/EG. Under EU Directive 2008/9/EG, the formal deadline for refund claims to EU businesses is 30 September of the year following the year in which the input tax is incurred. However, a claim may be submitted within five years after the year in which the input tax is payable. In the case of such late claims (i.e., claims filed after 30 September of the year following the year of incurrence, but within the five-year period), no appeal is possible against negative decisions. Refund claims must be submitted electronically to the local tax authorities of the EU applicant. For further information, see the chapter on the EU.

The minimum claim period is three months, while the maximum period is one year. The minimum claim for a period of less than a year is EUR400. For an annual claim, the minimum amount is EUR50.

Under EU Directive 2008/9/EG, the Dutch VAT authorities must make refunds of Dutch VAT within four months and 10 days after the date on which the refund claim has been submitted. In the case of a late refund, the claimant is entitled to interest at the government interest rate in force at the time, in addition to the repayment.

Non-EU businesses. For businesses established outside the EU, refunds are made under the terms of the EU 13th Directive. The Netherlands does not exclude any non-EU country from the refund scheme.

The formal deadline for refund claims under the EU 13th Directive is 30 June of the year following the year in which the input tax is incurred. However, a claim may be submitted within five years after the year in which the input tax is payable. In the case of late claims, no appeal is possible against negative decisions.

Claims may be submitted in Dutch, English or German. The application for refund must be accompanied by the appropriate documentation (see the chapter on the EU).

The minimum claim period is three months, while the maximum period is one year. The minimum claim for a period of less than a year is EUR400. For an annual claim, the minimum amount is EUR5.

Applications under the EU 13th Directive for refunds of Dutch VAT must be sent to the following address:

Belastingdienst/kantoor Buitenland
Postbus 2865
6401 DJ Heerlen
Netherlands

For EU 13th Directive refunds, the Dutch VAT authorities have committed to make refunds within six months after the date on which the claim is submitted for the refund.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A taxable person must generally provide a VAT invoice for all taxable supplies made to other taxable persons, including export supplies and intra-Community supplies.

A VAT invoice is required to support a claim for input tax deduction or a refund under the EU Directive 2008/9/EG or EU 13th Directive refund schemes (see the chapter on the EU).

Credit notes. A VAT credit note may be used to reduce the VAT charged and reclaimed on a supply. It must be cross-referenced to the original VAT invoice.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is permitted for all businesses that must issue invoices. No specific requirements apply, as long as the issuer of the invoice ensures the authenticity, integrity and legibility of the invoice. It is not required to use a specific method, e.g., EDI or electronic signature, although these two meet the above requirements by definition. It is not necessary to receive an explicit agreement from the customer to be able to use e-invoicing (they may agree tacitly) and no prior approval from the tax authorities is required.

Simplified VAT invoices. Invoices are not automatically required for retail transactions, unless requested by the customer. However, the issuance of invoices for wholesalers is required.

A simplified invoice may be issued with respect to local supplies where the taxable amount of the supply is less than EUR100. Also, for credit notes, a simplified invoice may be issued. Simplified invoices should at least mention the following details:
- The date of issue
- Identification of the taxable person supplying the goods or services
- Identification of the type of goods or services supplied
- The VAT amount payable or the information needed to calculate the VAT amount
- Where the invoice issued is a credit note, a specific and unambiguous reference should be made to the initial invoice and the specific details which are being amended

Suppliers of public transportation services, petrol stations and hotel and restaurant services do not have to issue a VAT invoice. However, VAT recovery is allowed on public transportation tickets and taxi receipts and petrol station receipts (the latter only if the means of payment allows for identification of the purchaser).

Self-billing. The Netherlands allows self-billing. Both parties involved have to agree to self-billing (there is no prescribed confirmation for this, but it is recommended to do this in writing). If the supplier on behalf of which the invoice was issued, does not want to accept the invoice issued on his behalf, he must inform the recipient (the issuer) of his objections. In that case, the invoice loses its status of VAT invoice. The supplier will have to issue an invoice himself, unless parties can agree on a way of adjusting the original self-invoice. Beside the standard invoicing requirements, the following applies: each self-invoice must contain a sequential number that uniquely identifies the invoice and in addition, the self-invoice must contain the references "Self-billing" and "Issued in the name and on behalf of the supplier."

Proof of exports and intra-Community supplies. VAT is not chargeable on supplies of exported goods or on the intra-Community supply of goods (see the chapter on the EU). However, in order to qualify as VAT-free, exports and intra-Community supplies must be supported by evidence that proves that the goods have left the Netherlands. Acceptable proof includes (a combination of) the following documentation:
- For an export, customs documentation, transport documentation, order forms and proof of payment issued by a foreign bank
- For an intra-Community supply, a copy of the invoice indicating the customer's valid VAT identification number (issued by another EU Member State), plus a range of commercial documentation (such as purchase orders, transport documentation, proof of payment and contracts) as well as a timely filing of the European Sales Listing that includes the transaction.

Foreign currency invoices. A VAT invoice can be issued in any currency, but the VAT amount must be indicated in euros (EUR), using the daily conversion rate published by the European Central Bank.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. It is not required that VAT invoices are issued to private individuals.

Records.

Record retention period. Taxable persons must retain invoices and all other documents/records that are relevant for VAT for a period of at least for seven years. For invoices and other records/documents related to real estate, a taxable person must retain these for a period of 10 years.

Electronic archiving. Documents that are not originally in electronic form may be converted to a digital format, as long as the business can guarantee the authenticity, the integrity and the legibility of the documents. Businesses have to decide for themselves how they do this. In practice, the Dutch tax authorities do not issue written approval of a system used by a business for this purpose. Also note that businesses will have to keep certain documents in their original form, such as documents that determine the amount of duties due upon importation or exportation, e.g., certificates of origin of goods.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. VAT returns are submitted electronically in the Netherlands. They are submitted for monthly or quarterly periods, depending on the amount of VAT payable. Annual VAT return filing periods can be used in exceptional situations, but no longer for periods as of 2020 and beyond.

As a main rule, VAT returns must be filed quarterly. Filing the VAT return on a monthly basis can be requested by the taxable person at the tax authorities. If the VAT due is not paid on time, the tax authorities also may require the taxable person to file the VAT returns monthly. The return must be filed by the last day of the month following the end of the reporting period, together with full payment.

Non-established businesses registered for VAT in Heerlen must file their VAT returns before the last business day of the second month after the reporting period.

Periodic payments. The VAT due must be paid by the same date as the VAT return submission deadline, i.e., the last day of the month following the end of the reporting period.

Non-established businesses registered for VAT in Heerlen must pay the VAT due before the last business day of the second month after the reporting period.

The VAT amounts due must be paid in euros (EUR).

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is allowed under the Dutch legislation. When analog data is transformed into digital data, it needs to be guaranteed that the data is transferred one-on-one. The data must be preserved in such a way that they can be made readable in reasonable time. A digital administration therefore needs to be easily accessible. If a change of computer system occurs, it needs to be secured that the data from the "old" computer system is still readable. Also, the data needs to be stored appropriately. This means in particular that a backup will have to be made regularly.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in the Netherlands.

Special schemes. In the Netherlands, special VAT schemes exist for the following:
- Small and medium enterprises. Such businesses can apply to be exempt from filing VAT returns and issuing invoices if their annual turnover is less than EUR20,000.
- Cash accounting. Certain types of businesses, such as retailers and other businesses can, upon request, account for VAT based on the payments received for their supplies instead of the invoices issued.
- Supplies of art, antiques and secondhand or used goods. Such businesses that trade in these goods on a regular basis account for VAT on the margin instead of the full sales price, where they cannot deduct VAT included in their purchase price and where special invoicing rules apply.
- Investment gold. Special VAT rules apply to transactions regarding investment gold.
- Tour operators. Special VAT scheme applies to tour operators (the "Tour Operator Margin Scheme" or "reisbureauregeling," which resembles the margin scheme for used goods, art and antiques but also has special rules for determining the place of supply and some other specifics.
- Fish. In the Netherlands, the importation of fish, shellfish, crustaceans and mollusks that are brought in by ships returning from fishing, as well as the supply of these animals to auctions are VAT exempt with credit.
- Telecommunications, broadcasting and electronic services. Such supplies are subject to special rules (see the Mini One-Stop Shop subsection above).

Cash accounting. The Netherlands operates a cash accounting scheme, for retailers and comparable businesses. Under this system, an input tax deduction is allowed, even before the effective payment of the consideration.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in the Netherlands and do no longer exist as of 1 January 2020.

Supplementary filings. Dutch law requires businesses to file a supplementary VAT return as soon as they establish that an original VAT return was filed incorrectly (i.e., VAT was either underpaid or overpaid). This supplementary VAT return must be filed electronically using a specific electronic form. If the underpaid or overpaid VAT amount is less than EUR1,000, businesses are allowed to include the adjustment in the current VAT return.

Intrastat. A taxable person that trades with other EU countries must complete statistical reports, known as Intrastat, if the value of its sales or purchases of goods exceeds the applicable threshold. The threshold applies to intra-Community supplies (Dispatches) and intra-Community acquisitions (Arrivals) separately. Separate reports are required for Arrivals and Dispatches.

The threshold for Intrastat Arrivals for the 2018 calendar year is EUR1 million. This has remained unchanged for 2019. The threshold for Intrastat Dispatches for the 2018 calendar year is EUR1.2 million. This has remained unchanged for 2019. At the time of preparing this chapter, the Intrastat thresholds for 2020 for the Netherlands are not yet known.

The Intrastat return period is monthly. The submission deadline is the 10th day following the return period. Intrastat declarations must be completed in euros.

EU Sales Lists. If a taxable person makes intra-Community supplies in any return period, it must submit an EU Sales List (ESL). An ESL is not required for any period in which the taxable person has not made any intra-Community supplies.

ESLs must be filed on a monthly basis if the total value of the supplied goods exceeds EUR50,000. If the total value of the supplied goods does not exceed EUR50,000, the ESLs may be submitted on a quarterly basis.

Taxable persons must submit ESLs for services if all of the following conditions are satisfied:
- The place of supply of business-to-business (B2B) services is located in another EU Member State.
- The VAT due in that EU Member State is reverse charged to the customer.
- The service is not exempt from VAT in the other EU Member State.

The ESLs for services must be submitted on a monthly basis, but a business can opt to submit the ESLs on a quarterly basis.

Digital reporting. The Netherlands uses a standardized electronic form for the filing of VAT returns and EU Transaction Lists. These lists are filed electronically.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. No specific penalty is imposed for late registration. However, if the late registration results in the late payment of VAT or the late submission of VAT returns, penalties may be imposed.

Penalties for late payment and filings. Penalties are assessed for the late submission of a VAT return or for the late payment of VAT, in the following amounts:
- For the late submission of a VAT return, the maximum fine is EUR131.
- For the late payment of VAT, the minimum fine is EUR50, and the maximum fine is 10% of the VAT due, up to a maximum amount of EUR5,278.

- If the late payment is caused by negligence, intent or fraud, fines ranging from 25% to 100% of the VAT payable may be imposed.

For Intrastat, a penalty up to a maximum amount of EUR16,000 may be imposed for (structural) failure to comply with Intrastat filing and reporting obligations.

For ESLs, if a business does not file an ESL on time, it receives a reminder. If the return is still not filed, the VAT authorities may impose a fine. The amount of the penalty depends on the number of successive omissions. The following penalties apply:
- For the first omission, a fine of 2.5% to a maximum of EUR5,278 is imposed.
- For the second and third omissions, a fine of 5% to a maximum of EUR5,278 is imposed.
- For a fourth or subsequent omission, a fine of 25% to a maximum of EUR5,278 is imposed.

Under certain conditions, the VAT authorities may impose a maximum fine of EUR5,278 for missing ESL reports or ESLs with systematic errors or omissions.

Penalties for errors. Penalties in the following amounts are assessed for VAT errors:
- For errors in the payment of VAT, the maximum fine is 10% of the VAT due, up to a maximum amount of EUR5,278.

In addition, taxpayers must file supplementary returns if it appears that the information provided was inaccurate and/or incomplete. Noncompliance with the duty to file supplementary returns is subject to an offense penalty of up to 100% of the amount of the unpaid tax. This penalty may be imposed if the taxpayer knew or should have known that the tax levied fell below the amount that was actually due.

Penalties for fraud. Penalties for gross negligence, intent and fraud, are assessed for the following:
- If a taxable person knows that errors were made in the payment of VAT and did not notify the tax authorities accordingly, a penalty may be imposed up to 100% VAT that was not reported and paid as a result of the error, i.e., 25% is the typical penalty for gross negligence, 50% for intent and 100% for fraud.

B. Scope of the tax

GST applies to the following transactions:
- The supply of goods or services made in New Zealand by a registered person
- The importation of goods into New Zealand, regardless of the status of the importer

Remote services. The supply of "remote services" by nonresidents to New Zealand non-registered customers is subject to GST at the standard rate (see Section D). The definition of "remote services" includes any services supplied digitally or remotely, including electronic services and remotely provided traditional services (e.g., accounting, legal and consultancy work).

Remote services supplied to GST-registered New Zealand customers will be outside the scope of New Zealand GST unless the supplier chooses to treat the supplies as zero-rated (see Section D). Specific rules apply for determining the residence and registration status of the recipient of remote services.

Low-value goods. From 1 December 2019, offshore suppliers are required to register, collect and return GST on supplies of "distantly taxable goods" to New Zealand non-registered customers, if the volume of such supplies (and any other taxable supplies) exceeds the GST registration threshold of NZD60,000 per annum. Distantly taxable goods (also known as "low-value goods") are defined as goods that:
- Individually have a value of NZD1,000 of less
- Are outside New Zealand at the time of supply
- Are supplied by a nonresident
- Are delivered to New Zealand

For low-value goods, New Zealand Customs Service (NZCS) will not be collecting GST/duty at the border when the goods are imported. This is with the exception of fine metal, alcohol and tobacco products, which are subject to GST, excise taxes or customs duties at the border regardless of the value.

For imported goods valued more than NZD1,000 ("high-value goods"), no GST will be required to be charged by the offshore supplier. NZCS. will continue to collect duty and/or GST on the import. To minimize the compliance costs of identifying high-value goods, the offshore supplier can elect to charge GST on such goods, provided the total high-value goods are less than 25% of the total goods supplied to NZ customers. Once GST is charged, certain documentation is required to be provided to NZCS, so that no GST would be required to be paid on these goods at the border. NZ GST does not apply to supplies of low-value goods where the recipient identified themselves as a GST-registered business or provided their GST registration number or New Zealand Business Number. However, to minimize the compliance costs of identifying business-to-business (B2B) supplies, the offshore supplier may choose to charge GST on B2B supplies if such supplies are less than 50% of their total supplies to NZ customers.

C. Who is liable

A "registered person" is any business entity or individual that is liable to register for GST in New Zealand.

A person is liable to register if the taxable supplies made exceed the GST registration threshold of NZD60,000. The registration threshold applies in the following ways:
- Retrospectively to taxable turnover in the current month and the preceding 11 months
- Prospectively to taxable turnover in the current month and expected turnover in the following 11 months

GST may be recovered before the incorporation of a company if certain criteria are met.

Exemption from registration. The GST law in New Zealand does not contain any provision for exemption from registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. A small business with taxable turnover of less than NZD60,000 a year may voluntarily apply to become a registered person.

Group registration. Group registration is allowed for corporations or other taxable persons that are "under common control." For these purposes, a corporation is "controlled" if one or more persons own at least 66% of either the voting power in the corporation or the corporation's common market value interests.

Other taxable persons may form a group if any of the following control conditions is satisfied:
- One group member controls each of the others.
- One person (outside the group) controls all the members of the group.
- Two or more persons carrying on a taxable activity as a partnership control the members of the group.

Certain investment funds may join a GST group with other companies or other investment funds that meet the eligibility criteria. A listed portfolio investment entity can also become part of a group for GST purposes.

Nonresident companies registered under the new "enhanced" registration system for non-established entities cannot group with resident companies.

A group must appoint a representative member. Group members making supplies outside the group must issue tax invoices if requested to do so. The representative group member must account for GST with respect to all group members' taxable activities and file returns. Group members must adopt the same tax periods and accounting basis for GST purposes. Group members are also jointly and severally liable for all GST liabilities.

Transactions between group members may be disregarded for GST purposes. This measure applies on the condition that the supply is made to a group member that would have been entitled to input tax recovery if the supplier had not been a member of the group.

If a taxable person's business is organized in branches or divisions, it may register the divisions or branches separately for GST purposes. To register separately, a branch or division must maintain its own accounting system and it must either be in a separate location or carry out different activities from the rest of the legal entity. A branch or division that is separately registered must obtain its own GST registration number and complete a separate GST return. GST is charged on supplies made between branches and divisions that are registered separately and the rest of the legal entity.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that has no fixed establishment in New Zealand. A foreign or non-established business must register for GST if it makes taxable supplies in New Zealand that exceed NZD60,000 in any 12-month period. A non-established business may also register for GST voluntarily if its supplies are below the annual registration threshold.

A non-established business that does not make taxable supplies in New Zealand may register for GST, in order to recover GST incurred in New Zealand. GST imposed by customs cannot be recovered by a business registered under this regime. However, the recipient should be able to recover the import GST in the following circumstances:
- GST paid to customs prior to 30 March 2017, cannot be recovered by non-established businesses who do not incur more than NZD500 of GST charged by NZ GST-registered suppliers.
- In other cases, the recipient may be deemed to have incurred the import GST and should be able to recover the import GST in certain circumstances. With effect from 30 March 2017, legislation has been amended to remove the NZD500 threshold for the non-established businesses. As such, they are entitled to register for GST in New Zealand under this regime. Once registered, the non-established suppliers can recover the GST by entering into an appropriate arrangement with the recipient of the goods, who is deemed to have incurred the import GST and accordingly may be entitled to recover the GST from Inland Revenue.

Tax representatives. A foreign business is not required to appoint a New Zealand resident tax representative in order to register for GST.

Agents. When a registered person makes a supply to a customer using an agent, the customer and registered person (or principal) are considered to be dealing directly with each other for GST purposes.

A supplier and its agent may agree in writing to opt out of this rule so that a supply by the principal to the customer using an agent is treated as two supplies: one from the principal to the agent and the other from the agent to the customer. A purchaser and its agent may also agree in writing to allow agents and principals to opt out of the agency rules for a supply made to the principal. Opting out enables the parties to account for GST as though the supply was two supplies: between the supplier and agent, and between the agent and principal.

Reverse charge. A compulsory reverse-charge regime applies if all of the following circumstances exist:
• A supply of services is made by a nonresident to a resident.
• The supply would be taxable if made in New Zealand.
• The recipient of the supply is registered (or required to be registered).
• The recipient makes taxable supplies that total less than 95% of the recipient's overall supplies.
• The recipient of the supply meets one of the following conditions:
  — At the time of acquisition, it estimates that the percentage of intended taxable use of the services is less than 95%.
  — It determines that the percentage of actual taxable use is less than 95%.

The reverse charge is 15% of the consideration for the supply. An input tax credit may be claimed with respect to the reverse charge to the extent that the service was used or available for use in making taxable supplies.

Domestic reverse charge. There is no domestic reverse charge in New Zealand.

Digital economy. Nonresident suppliers of "remote services," and from 1 December 2019, low-value goods must register and account for GST in New Zealand if the annual value of those goods and services supplied to non-GST-registered New Zealand consumers exceeds NZD60,000 (approximately EUR35,000 or USD40,000).

Online marketplaces and platforms. Suppliers who only supply remote services and or low-value goods to New Zealand customers through an "electronic marketplace" operated by a nonresident person will generally not be required to register for GST in respect of the supplies made through the marketplace. Instead, the nonresident operator of the marketplace is generally liable to register and return GST on behalf of its underlying suppliers, unless the supplier agrees to the GST obligation, the operator does not authorize the charge or delivery of the goods or services and various steps are taken to ensure the operator is not seen to be the supplier.

From 1 December 2019, a re-deliverer of low-value goods who arranges or assists a non-GST registered NZ customer in the purchase of goods outside of New Zealand could be held responsible for collecting GST on the low-value goods if neither the supplier nor an operator of a marketplace delivers or assists in delivering the goods to New Zealand. A nonresident operator of a non-electronic marketplace through which remote services are supplied to New Zealand customers can also register and return GST on behalf of its underlying suppliers if it obtains approval from Inland Revenue to do so.

Registration procedures. GST registration can be undertaken by submitting a hard copy form, or by registering online. Registration online is done instantly, whereas registration by way of a hard copy form can take several weeks. The registration can be submitted either by the taxpayer or by an agent of the taxpayer. Online registration can be completed at www.ird.govt.nz.

The registration process for nonresident suppliers who only make supplies of remote services or low-value goods has been simplified, and the registration form can be submitted through email or posted to Inland Revenue, or by registering online.

Deregistration. A taxable person that ceases to make taxable supplies must notify the New Zealand GST authorities within 21 days after ceasing operations. If the GST authorities are satisfied that the taxable person's operations are not expected to recommence within 12 months, they may cancel the taxable person's GST registration.

A taxable person may deregister voluntarily if it can satisfactorily prove to the GST authorities that its taxable turnover in the following 12 months is expected to be less than NZD60,000.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to GST, including the zero rate.
The GST rates are:
- Standard rate: 15%
- Reduced rate: 9%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of GST applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate, the zero rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%
- Sale of a business as a going concern
- Exported goods
- Exported services (excluding exported services that are acquired to enable or assist a change in the physical or legal status of land located in New Zealand)
- Services performed outside New Zealand
- First sales of refined precious metals for investment purposes
- Supplies of financial services to businesses that make taxable supplies in excess of 75% of total supplies where the supplier has elected to do so
- Certain transactions involving emissions units
- Exported secondhand goods if the recipient gives the supplier an undertaking in writing that the goods will not be reimported into New Zealand
- Certain supplies of which land is a component by GST-registered vendors to registered persons
- Supplies of remote services made by nonresident suppliers to GST-registered New Zealand customers, where the supplier chooses to zero-rate

Some specific supplies have an effective rate of 9% through the GST valuation rules.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 9%
- Supplies of accommodation and other domestic goods and services in a rest home where nursing care and other services are provided
- Supplies of long-term accommodation in a hotel or motel

The term “exempt supplies” refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to GST and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Financial services (although some qualify for the zero rate)
- Sales of donated goods by nonprofit organizations
- Certain real estate transactions
- Supply of precious metals

Option to tax for exempt supplies. In some cases, suppliers of financial leases can elect to treat their interest income as taxable supplies instead of exempt supplies.

E. Time of supply

The time when GST becomes due is called the “time of supply” or “tax point.” Under the general rule, a supply takes place when an invoice is issued or when payment is received by the supplier, whichever is earlier.

Taxable persons may opt to account for GST using the invoice basis, the payments basis or the hybrid basis. These methods are described below:

- Under the invoice basis of accounting, a taxable person must account for GST when an invoice is issued or when payment is received, whichever is earlier. Input tax is recoverable on the basis of tax invoices received (see Section F).
- A taxable person may use the payments basis of accounting if the total value of its taxable supplies in the preceding 12 months did not exceed NZD2 million or if its turnover is not expected to exceed this figure in the following 12 months. Under the payments basis of accounting, a taxable person must account for GST on the basis of payments received (except for a supply for which the consideration is more than NZD225,000 and a supply that is not a short-term agreement for the sale and purchase of property or services). Input tax is recoverable on the basis of invoices paid (see Section F). Nonresidents registered under the “enhanced” GST registration system must account for GST on a payments basis. Under the hybrid basis of accounting, a taxable person accounts for GST when an invoice is issued or when a payment is received, whichever is earlier. Input tax is recoverable on the basis of invoices paid (see Section F).
- Where the supplier and recipient are associated entities, the time of supply is the earliest of the issuing of an invoice, the receipt of payment by the supplier, or the making available of the goods, removal of movable goods, or performance of the services.

Deposits and prepayments. Where a binding contract exists, the receipt of a deposit applied to the benefit of the vendor may trigger the time of supply. This is regardless of whether at the time of the receipt the contract is conditional or unconditional. Where a deposit is paid to a person as a stakeholder, there will have been no receipt by the supplier and the time of supply will not be triggered. For nonrefundable deposits, if the facts show that the supplier is entitled to the deposit from the moment of payment, then the time of supply will have been triggered. For refundable deposits, if the facts show that the deposit is paid to a stakeholder and cannot be applied to the supplier’s benefit until the happening of a specific event, then the time of supply will not be triggered until the event has occurred and the stakeholder obligations are at an end.

If a deposit is received but the supply does not take place (for example because the contract has been canceled), the vendor is still required to account for GST. However, the GST effect of entering into the contract will be reversed in the period in which the agreement is canceled.

The treatment of deposits does not depend on whether the supply is in relation to goods or services.

Continuous supplies of services. Under the following instances, each periodic payment is deemed to be a separate supply and the time of supply is deemed to take place whenever any periodic payment becomes due, is received, or any invoice relating only to that payment is issued, whichever is the earlier:

- Goods that are supplied progressively or periodically pursuant to any agreement or enactment that provides for the consideration for that supply to be paid in installments or periodically and in relation to the periodic or progressive supply of those goods
- Goods and services supplied directly in the construction, major reconstruction, manufacture or extension of a building or an engineering work and are supplied pursuant to any agreement or enactment that provides for the consideration for that supply to become due and payable in installments or periodically in relation to the progressive nature of that construction, manufacture or extension

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There is no special time of supply rule for goods sent on approval for sale or return. As such, the normal time of supply rules apply.

Reverse-charge services. The normal time of supply rules apply (i.e., the earlier of when an invoice is issued, or any payment received) with an exception where the supplier and recipient are associated persons.

Where the supplier and the recipient are associated parties, the time of supply is generally the earlier of the following:

- The end of the taxable period that includes the date that is two months after the recipient's balance date for the year in which the service was performed
- When an invoice is issued
- When any payment is received

Leased assets. Where goods are supplied under an agreement to hire (which generally includes leases where title to the assets is not expected to pass to the lessee), or where services are supplied under any agreement or enactment which provides for periodic payments, the time of supply is deemed to take place when a payment becomes due or is received, whichever is the earlier.

Where goods and services are supplied under a hire purchase agreement (which generally includes leases where there is an option to purchase the leased assets), the time of supply is deemed to take place at the time the agreement is entered into.

Imported goods. Not applicable, no separate time of supply treatment for imported goods.

F. Recovery of GST by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax, which is GST charged on goods and services supplied to it for business purposes. A taxable person generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax, which is GST charged on supplies made. Input tax includes GST charged on goods and services supplied in New Zealand and GST paid on imports.

Nonresidents may recover GST costs without making taxable supplies in New Zealand under the "enhanced" GST registration system.

A valid tax invoice or customs document must generally accompany a claim for input tax for a supply greater than NZD50 (including GST).

A taxable person is effectively restricted from claiming input tax credits with respect to supplies that are greater than two years old except in certain circumstances.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use by an entrepreneur).

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Nonbusiness expenditure
- 50% of business entertainment expenses

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Purchase, lease, hire, maintenance and fuel for cars, vans and trucks
- Conferences and seminars
- Advertising
- Accommodation
- Mobile phones
- Business gifts
- Travel expenses
- Capital raising costs

Partial exemption. A registered person may recover GST, to the extent that the acquired goods or services are used for making taxable supplies. This input tax regime replaces the "principal purpose" test described below with an apportionment test. Under the new regime, a taxpayer apportions GST incurred on the acquisition of goods and services and claims an input tax deduction for goods or services that are used for making taxable supplies.

To determine the extent that goods or services are used for making taxable supplies, a taxpayer must estimate how it intends to use the goods or services and choose a determination method that provides a fair and reasonable result. The taxpayer then uses the estimated intended taxable use of the goods and services to determine the proportion of the input tax that corresponds to the estimated intended taxable use.

A taxpayer is not required to apportion input tax if it makes both taxable and exempt supplies and has reasonable grounds to believe that the total value of its exempt supplies is no more than the lesser of NZD90,000 or 5% of the revenue from all taxable and exempt supplies for the period beginning at least 12 months from acquisition of the goods and services and ending on the person's balance date.

Taxpayers may be required to make further adjustments if the actual taxable use of an asset is different from its intended taxable use.

Taxpayers may obtain approval from the Inland Revenue to use an alternative method of apportionment and adjustment that is "fair and reasonable" if the taxpayer is making supplies exceeding NZD24 million in a 12-month period, or the taxpayer is associated with a specific industry.

A special rule has been introduced for situations in which land is used concurrently for a taxable purpose and a nontaxable purpose, such as when land is simultaneously advertised for sale (taxable use) and rented out as a dwelling (nontaxable use). The new rule requires a registered person to calculate the percentage that the land is used for making taxable supplies by using the following formula:

$$\frac{\text{Consideration for taxable supply}}{\text{Total consideration for supply}} \times 100$$

In the above formula, "consideration for taxable supply" is the amount paid on a disposal of land in the adjustment period or the market value of the land at the time of making the adjustment. "Total consideration for supply" is the consideration for taxable supply, as described in the preceding sentence, plus the total exempt rental income payable since the acquisition of the land.

Special apportionment rules apply where certain assets (land, boats and planes) are used for both income-earning and private activities. If an asset is not used for at least 62 days per income year, expenditure relating to such assets is to be apportioned according to the following formula:

GST amount * (income days / (income days + private days))

In the formula, days can be substituted for a comparable unit, such as flying hours for planes or nights for accommodation. Some expenditure is fully deductible, such as costs incurred to repair damage caused when the asset is used to earn income, expenditure solely relating to the use of the asset for deriving income that derives no personal benefit (such as advertising), and expenditure incurred to meet regulatory requirements.

If goods and services were acquired principally for making taxable supplies but were also used for making exempt supplies, an output tax adjustment was required to the extent that the goods and services were used for making exempt supplies.

If goods and services were acquired principally for making exempt supplies or for nonbusiness purposes, an input tax adjustment was required to the extent that the goods and services were used for making taxable supplies. Some transitional rules relate to specific aspects of the changes discussed above.

Capital goods. Capital goods are items of capital expenditure that are used in a business over several years. Input tax is not recoverable to the extent that the capital goods are purchased by a business for private use. Similarly input tax is not recoverable to the extent that capital goods are used to make exempt supplies (assuming the value of the exempt supplies is more than NZD90,000 or 5% of the total supplies made by the registered person).

For land, the actual taxable use must be determined by reference to the percentage taxable use of the asset over the entire period from the purchase date to the end of the adjustment period. The resulting taxable use percentage is effectively the weighted average of the annual taxable use percentages calculated over the ownership period. Capital goods are subject to annual wash-up adjustments as stated above. The number of GST adjustments required is determined by reference to the value of the capital goods.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax recoverable in a period exceeds the amount of output tax payable, a refund may be claimed. GST refunds are generally made within 15 working days after the Inland Revenue receives a correct return unless the Inland Revenue investigates the return and determines that the registered person has not complied with its GST obligations.

However, a refund can be withheld for up to 90 days for nonresidents registered under the new "enhanced" GST registration system.

Pre-registration costs. Costs incurred prior to registration may be claimed provided they were legally incurred by the company or person seeking to recover them, and they relate to the taxable activity of that company or person. Pre-incorporation expenditure cannot be claimed where the goods or services were acquired more than six months prior to the date of incorporation of the company. Input tax on pre-registration costs are claimable in the GST return period covering the income tax balance date. This includes goods or services acquired prior to the incorporation of a company, where the costs were incurred by a person who became a member, officer or employee of the company and was fully reimbursed for the costs, and where the goods and services were acquired for the purpose of a taxable activity to be carried out by the company and have only been used for that purpose.

Write-off of bad debts. The GST on bad debts may be recoverable provided the debts are both bad and written off.

Noneconomic activities. A registered nonprofit body resident in New Zealand may recover input tax on expenses to the extent that the acquired goods and services are not used for making exempt supplies.

G. Recovery of GST by non-established businesses

A non-established business that does not make taxable supplies in New Zealand may register for GST to recover GST incurred in New Zealand. The following rules will govern the scheme:
- The non-established business must be registered for GST or VAT in its own country.
- The GST refund resulting from the first GST return must be more than NZD500.
- The GST input tax credits only arise when the nonresident has paid for the expenditure.
- The nonresident cannot form a New Zealand GST group with New Zealand resident entities unless the nonresident is registering for GST under the ordinary rules.
- The nonresident must not be making supplies of services that are likely to be received by a person in New Zealand who is not registered for GST.
- The tax authority will not be legally obliged to refund the GST until 90 days after the GST return has been lodged.

H. Invoicing

GST invoices. A New Zealand-registered person must generally provide a tax invoice for all taxable supplies made to other taxable persons within 28 days after a request for the invoice. A tax invoice is generally required to support a claim for deduction of input tax for items that cost more than NZD50 (including GST).

Nonresident suppliers of only remote services are not required to issue tax invoices to New Zealand customers. However, they can choose to issue an invoice where GST was incorrectly charged on a supply made to a GST-registered person and both of the following conditions are met:
- The consideration for the supply was less than NZD1,000 (by reference to the foreign currency amount converted into NZD at the time of supply).
- The customer has informed the supplier that it is GST-registered or has provided its GST/IRD registration number or New Zealand business number.

Offshore suppliers of low-value goods are not required to issue tax invoices to New Zealand customers. However, the supplier can choose to issue a tax invoice if the NZ customer is registered for GST and the supplier elects to treat their B2B supplies as being subject to GST (see section B above). Alternatively, a tax invoice may be issued where GST is charged on a B2B supply of low-value goods by mistake. This allows the customer to submit a GST claim to Inland Revenue for the GST they incorrectly paid to the supplier.

Offshore suppliers are required to issue receipts to the customers for the supplies of low-value goods if GST is charged on the supply. The customer can then provide the receipt to NZCS as evidence that GST was charged at the point of sale, so that NZCS does not collect GST again when the goods are imported into New Zealand.

Credit notes. A credit note may be used to reduce the GST charged and reclaimed on a supply if the value originally charged was incorrect. A credit note must indicate the reason why it was issued and must refer to both the GST originally charged and the corrected amount.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is permitted, but it is not a mandatory requirement for GST taxpayers in New Zealand. Where the originals are in hard copy form, the electronic recording of the documents is accepted provided that the soft copy, if printed, is identical in format and all other aspects to the original documents. Further, the information must be readily ascertainable and must meet the requirements of the Electronic Transactions Act 2002.

Simplified GST invoices. A simplified GST invoice is allowed when the supply is less than NZD1,000. A simplified invoice means the name and address of the recipient and the quantity or volume of the goods and services supplied are not required to be shown on the invoice, but the invoice should include the consideration for the supply and a statement that GST is charged.

Self-billing. A buyer created tax invoice (BCTI) can be issued by a recipient of a taxable supply. A BCTI is required to include the same information as a standard tax invoice. In addition, the supplier and the recipient must agree that the supplier will not issue a tax invoice for the same supply. The recipient must obtain approval from Inland Revenue to issue the buyer created tax invoice. If approval is granted, the invoice must contain the words "buyer created tax invoice — IRD approved" in a prominent place, and the document must be provided to the supplier, with a copy to be retained by the recipient.

Proof of exports. In order to apply zero-rating to a supply of exported goods, the following documents are accepted by customs as proof of export:
• Delivery evidence (e.g., bill of lading showing export by sea, or air waybill for export by air)
• Packing list or delivery note showing overseas delivery address
• Insurance documents
• Purchase order showing overseas delivery address

There is no specific wording requirement for an invoice issued relating to an exported sale.

Foreign currency invoices. Invoices must be issued in New Zealand dollars. If a tax invoice is issued in foreign currency, the values used for GST purposes may be converted to New Zealand dollars based on the exchange rate in effect at the time of supply.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. There are no specific rules in relation to the invoices issued for supplies made by taxable persons to private consumers. No tax invoices are required to be issued by a supplier of remote services, or if the value of the supply is less than NZD50. In other cases, the general tax invoicing requirements apply.

Records.

Record retention period. Records must be kept for seven years.

Electronic archiving. Records may be kept in a manual or electronic format. It is a requirement to store the records in New Zealand, unless approval is obtained for offshore storage. Suppliers of remote services or low-value goods can store records outside of New Zealand without approval from Inland Revenue.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. GST returns are generally submitted monthly or bimonthly. Two cycles of bimonthly returns are provided to stagger submission dates. A taxable person may request a change in its GST return cycle to ease administration.

A registered person whose taxable turnover exceeds NZD24 million in a 12-month period must submit GST returns monthly. Other taxable persons may opt to submit GST returns monthly if they receive regular repayments of GST or if they find it easier to account for GST on a monthly basis.

A registered person whose annual taxable turnover does not exceed NZD500,000 may submit GST returns on a six-months' basis. A person may also apply for a six-monthly filing frequency even though their taxable supplies exceed the NZD500,000 threshold, if 80% or more of their taxable supplies in an income year are made within a six-month period that ends at any day within the last month of the person's income year, and the person had not had a six-monthly filing frequency under this criterion in the 24-month period before the application.

A nonresident supplier who only makes supplies of remote services in New Zealand (and whose taxable supplies exceed the registration threshold of NZD60,000) must submit GST returns on a quarterly basis.

GST return periods generally end on the last day of the month. However, taxable persons may request different periods to align with their accounting records. GST return due dates fall on the 28th day of the month following the end of the return period, except for the periods ending 30 November and 31 March. The due dates for these periods are 15 January and 7 May, respectively. The GST return form indicates the due date for each return.

For registered persons that are provisional taxpayers, provisional tax installment dates should coincide with the GST return due dates. A provisional taxpayer is a person that pays its anticipated yearly income tax liability in installments during the income year.

Periodic payments. GST payment due dates fall on the 28th day of the month following the end of the return period, except for the periods ending 30 November and 31 March. The due dates for these periods are 15 January and 7 May, respectively.

Electronic filing. Currently, it is not a mandatory requirement for GST taxpayers to file their returns electronically. There are proposals to introduce a requirement for electronic filing of GST returns for registered persons with turnover above a certain threshold. The threshold has not yet been determined and will be set by Order in Council following appropriate consultation. Retention of electronic records is subject to special requirements.

Payments on account. For registered persons that are provisional taxpayers, provisional tax installment dates should coincide with the GST return due dates. A provisional taxpayer is a person that pays its anticipated yearly income tax liability in installments during the income year.

Special schemes. Nonresident suppliers of remote services or low-value goods are subject to special filing frequencies with quarterly filing as detailed above. Otherwise, the GST law in New Zealand does not provide for any special GST accounting schemes or GST returns for certain groups of taxable persons.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in New Zealand. No supplementary filings are required in New Zealand.

Digital reporting. Currently, it is not a mandatory requirement for GST taxpayers to file their returns electronically. There are proposals to introduce a requirement for electronic filing of GST returns for registered persons with turnover above a certain threshold. The threshold has not yet been determined and will be set by Order in Council following appropriate consultation. No other digital reporting requirements apply in New Zealand.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. There are no penalties specifically imposed for late GST registration in New Zealand.

Penalties for late payment and filings. A penalty is assessed for the late payment of GST. A penalty of 1% of the tax due is assessed on the day after the due date. If the tax remains outstanding, the following additional penalties apply:

- 4% of the tax that is due seven days after the due date
- 1% of the tax due each month that the tax remains unpaid

A late filing penalty may be imposed of NZD250 if the registered person accounts for GST payable on an invoice basis or NZD50 if the registered person is using the payments basis.

A penalty of NZD250 will apply for taxpayers that are required to file their GST return electronically but fail to do so.

Penalties for errors. Penalties are also assessed for underpayments of GST. This "shortfall penalty" is assessed as a fixed percentage of the tax due, depending on the nature of the error, in the following amounts:

- Lack of reasonable care: 20% of the tax due
- Gross carelessness: 40% of the tax due
- Tax evasion: 150% of the tax due
- Adopting an abusive tax position: 100% of the tax due

Penalties may be reduced by the tax authorities in certain circumstances by up to 75%.

A reduction of the shortfall penalty to zero may apply if the penalty is imposed for not taking reasonable care and if the registered person makes a voluntary disclosure before notification of an Inland Revenue audit or investigation.

In addition, interest is calculated for underpayments and overpayments of GST. Effective from 29 August 2019, the rate of interest is 8.35% for underpayments and 0.81% for overpayments. Interest rates are subject to change.

Penalties for fraud. A shortfall penalty can be imposed for "tax evasion" or "adopting an abusive tax position." See the detail above for more information.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:

- Transfer and supply of goods
- Supply of services within Nicaragua
- Use or enjoyment of goods
- Importation of goods
- Exports of goods and services

Taxable events include the sale, importation and nationalization of goods, the export of goods and services, the rendering of services and the use and enjoyment of goods.

C. Who is liable

No separate VAT registry exists in Nicaragua. All businesses must register as taxpayers and obtain a RUC. The RUC is also used for VAT purposes. A taxpayer for VAT purposes is any entity or individual that engages in taxable operations in Nicaragua.

Exemption from registration. The VAT law in Nicaragua does not contain any provision for exemption from registration for entities or individuals that make taxable supplies.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. The VAT law in Nicaragua does not contain any provision for voluntary VAT registration.

Group registration. Grouping of separate legal entities for VAT purposes is not allowed under the Nicaraguan VAT law. Legal entities that are closely connected must register for VAT individually.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that has no fixed establishment in Nicaragua. In principle, a non-established business must register for VAT if it supplies goods or services in Nicaragua. To register for VAT, a non-established business must provide the VAT authorities with a copy of its articles of incorporation, legalized by a Nicaraguan consulate, together with an official translation in Spanish.

Tax representatives. It is not mandatory to appoint a tax representative in Nicaragua, however, it is permitted. A tax representative can be appointed through a tax power of attorney. A permanent power of attorney can be registered with the tax administration.

Reverse charge. Nicaraguan tax legislation does permit the reverse charge. There is no registration threshold in Nicaragua and as such non-established businesses that make supplies to domestic business customers in Nicaragua, must register for VAT.

For imported services there is no VAT due on such supplies. This means that if Nicaraguan businesses buys services from a non-established business, the recipient doesn't self-account for VAT, and the supplier doesn't have to register and charge VAT either. As such, no VAT is accounted on the supply.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Nicaragua.

Digital economy. There are no specific rules regarding the taxation of the digital economy for VAT purposes. However, the general taxable events should always be observed regardless of whether or not they are transacted by digital means.

A VAT liability will arise when the digital transaction involves one of the following:
- Transfer and supply of goods
- Supply of services within Nicaragua
- Use or enjoyment of goods
- Importation of goods
- Exports of goods and services

Furthermore, there is no different treatment for business-to-business (B2B) and business-to-consumer (B2C) supplies, for example, if a nonresident provides services within Nicaragua to a resident, it is subject to VAT. However, please consider that there is no reverse-charge mechanism in Nicaragua.

Online marketplaces and platforms. Services provided from outside Nicaragua (i.e., abroad) through online marketplaces and platforms to be consumed/used in Nicaragua are not subject to VAT.

Services provided from a local Nicaragua supplier (taxpayer) through online marketplaces and platforms to be consumed/used in Nicaragua are subject to VAT. VAT applied on services rendered by a foreign supplier to a local taxpayer should be incorporated as part of the acquisition cost.

Sales of goods from outside Nicaragua (i.e., abroad) through online marketplaces and platforms to be consumed/used in Nicaragua are not subject to VAT. However, the importations of such goods must comply with the importations VAT rules.

Sales of goods from a local Nicaragua supplier (taxpayer) through online marketplaces and platforms to be consumed/used in Nicaragua are subject to VAT.

Registration procedures. Taxpayers must register before the tax administration at the time they start selling goods or rendering services subject to VAT. For this purpose, taxpayers should file a registration form, incorporation documents of the company, the registration of the company in the public register and copies of the identification number of the shareholders. The registration as a taxpayer takes approximately one week. The legal representative or person who holds a special power of attorney is entitled to do the registration.

Deregistration. To deregister as VAT taxpayer, the following documents must be filed before the tax administration:
- Letter requesting VAT deregistration
- Accounting books
- Last invoice and the other invoices that taxpayer will not use
- VAT declaration of final inventory
- Annual declaration of income tax
- Tax identification (RUC)

D. Rates

The term “taxable supplies” refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 15%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services, unless a specific measure provides for as the zero rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Exports

The term “exempt supplies” refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Live animals and fresh fish
- Domestically produced fruits and vegetables that are unprocessed
- Basic foodstuffs, such as corn tortillas, rice, beans, certain dairy products, eggs and meat
- Used goods (unless imported)
- Crude oil
- Real estate transactions
- Life and health insurance
- Domestic transport
- Education
- Certain financial services
- Construction of social housing (as defined by law) and leasing of unfurnished accommodation
- Equipment used for agriculture

- Irrigation for agriculture and forestry
- Electricity used for irrigation
- Importation of goods, machinery and equipment for use by the media
- Books, newspapers and magazines
- Medicines and vaccines
- Local production of sanitary protection products and toilet paper
- Matches, kerosene, butane and electricity
- Veterinary products
- Insecticides, fungicides, fertilizers and seeds

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Nicaragua.

E. Time of supply

The time when the taxable event is considered to have taken place and when VAT becomes due, is called the "tax point." Under the tax law (Ley de Concertación Tributaria), for VAT purposes, the taxable event varies depending on the type of supplies. The applicable rules are summarized below.

The time of supply for the sale of goods is when the invoice or corresponding legal document is issued, when the goods are delivered to the new owner or when the new owner has the ability to dispose of the goods as the owner or when the price is fully or partially paid.

The time of supply for the rendering of services is when the purchaser becomes legally liable for payment.

Deposits and prepayments. In Nicaragua, the payment, in part or in full, of the price of goods and services is considered a tax point. Therefore, prepayments and deposits would trigger the payment of VAT when they are considered an advanced payment of the price.

Continuous supplies of services. In Nicaragua, there are no special time of supply rules for continuous supplies. As such, the general time of supply rules apply, and the taxable event is the issuance of the invoice.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. In Nicaragua, there are no special time of supply rules for supplies of goods sent on approval for sale or return. As such, the general time of supply rules apply; VAT would be due when the goods are sold.

Reverse-charge services. In Nicaragua, there are no special time of supply rules for supplies of reverse-charge services. As such, the general time of supply rules for services apply.

Leased assets. In Nicaragua, the leasing of assets is subject to VAT as a service, even if it doesn´t result in a transfer in ownership of the underlying assets. There are no special time of supply rules in Nicaragua for the supply of leased assets. As such, the general time of supply rules for services apply.

Imported goods. The time of supply for the importation of goods is when the goods are made available to the importer at the fiscal warehouse.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxpayer may recover input tax, which is VAT paid on the purchase of goods and services used to generate other goods and services subject to input tax is generally credited against output tax, which is VAT charged or collected on the sale of goods or the rendering of services. To deduct or credit input tax, all of the following conditions must be satisfied:

- The goods or services must be part of the economic process of transferring goods or providing services. This measure also applies to zero-rated operations.

- The payment must meet the deductibility requirements for income tax purposes even if the taxpayer is not subject to income tax.
- The payment must be adequately documented.

Nondeductible input tax. VAT is not creditable in the following cases:
- When VAT is paid on purchases related to the exempt transfer of goods
- Services that are exempt from VAT
- Self-consumption

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Any item acquired that is not directly linked to the taxpayer's economic activity is not creditable for VAT purposes.

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- VAT paid to produce goods or services subject to VAT

Partial exemption. Generally, taxpayers may recover VAT paid for the purchase of goods and services used to generate other goods and services subject to VAT (i.e., taxable supplies). This is known in Nicaragua as VAT liquidation, which is determined by subtracting VAT credits paid on transactions needed to generate taxable income for VAT purposes (input tax) from VAT collected on the sales of goods or the rendering of services (output tax). VAT paid on transactions to generate nontaxable income for VAT purposes (exempt goods bienes exentos) are not allowed as VAT credits.

VAT incurred by a taxpayer related to the making of exempt goods or the provision of exempt services does not generate VAT credit (i.e., it should be registered as an expense). Taxpayers must identify the VAT incurred in exempt and taxable supplies to recover the tax related to taxable goods or services. If such distinction is not possible, taxpayers may apply a percentage based on taxable turnover vs. total turnover.

Capital goods. Capital goods are not defined in the local legislation, however, they are generally understood as the goods necessary for the generation of income. There are no special input tax recovery rules for capital goods. The normal input tax recovery rules, as outlined above, apply. As such, when a taxpayer purchases a capital good that is used exclusively for taxable activities, the input tax incurred gives rise to the right of tax credit in the same month of acquisition.

When a taxpayer purchases a capital good that is used for both taxable and exempt activities, the input tax incurred must be apportioned based on the percentage of taxable activities over the total activities made by the taxpayer, as per the Partial exemption subsection above.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax recoverable in a month exceeds the amount of output tax payable, the taxpayer may carry forward VAT credits to offset output tax in subsequent VAT periods. Exporters and taxpayers that provide exempted activities may use their excess credits to offset other taxes (such as income tax) and then may request a refund.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax incurred on pre-registration costs is not recoverable in Nicaragua.

Write-off of bad debts. Output tax accounted for on supplies that do not get paid by the recipient (i.e., bad debts) cannot be recovered in Nicaragua.

Noneconomic activities. VAT incurred in the course of nonbusiness/economic actiivities cannot be recovered in Nicaragua. As a general rule, taxpayers may recover VAT paid for the purchase of goods and services used to generate other goods and services subject to VAT (i.e., taxable supplies).

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Nicaragua does not refund VAT incurred by foreign or non-established businesses unless they are registered as Nicaraguan VAT taxpayers.

Diplomatic consular delegations and international organizations and agencies are exempt from VAT. Consequently, these organizations are also entitled to a reimbursement for VAT paid in Nicaragua if reciprocal treatment is granted to delegates from Nicaragua.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A taxpayer must generally provide a VAT invoice for all taxable activities. An invoice is generally necessary to support a claim for an input tax credit.

Credit notes. A credit note may be used to reduce the VAT charged and reclaimed on a supply if the value is reduced for any reason (for example, a discount or bonus is granted, the price is changed, or the goods are returned). A credit note must generally include the same information as a tax invoice.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is currently not allowed in Nicaragua.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified VAT invoicing is currently not allowed in Nicaragua. As such, full VAT invoices are required.

However, there are special tickets issued by retailers (i.e., supermarkets) to final consumers. But these are not authorized to be used as support for input tax recovery. If the taxpayer requires the invoice to support input tax recovery, they should request a full VAT invoice instead.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Nicaragua.

Proof of exports. Invoice and declaration of exportation. A Nicaraguan exporter must issue an export invoice on a free on board (FOB) basis. Once the goods pass the flange in the local port, they should be considered as exported. An “export invoice” is the same general invoice but used for exportation purposes. Therefore, there is no difference between a general invoice and an invoice for exportation purposes.

Foreign currency invoices. All invoices must be made in Nicaraguan córdobas (NIO).

Supplies to nontaxable persons. In Nicaragua, there are no special rules for invoices issued to private consumers. Full VAT invoices must be issued for all supplies.

Records.

Record retention period. As a general rule, the statute of limitations is four years. Therefore, the record retention period should be at least four years. However, there are some cases, as for example the acquisitions of certain goods, that the retention period should be longer, for example, for depreciation purposes, for machinery. The records should be kept for the period of depreciation (i.e., 10 years for machinery), even though the statute of limitations corresponds to 4 years.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is allowed in Nicaraguan, as an additional proof. However, a physical record is mandatory in Nicaragua.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. VAT returns must be submitted on a monthly basis. Monthly returns must be submitted by the 15th day of the month following the end of the return period.

Periodic payments. Return liabilities must be paid in Nicaraguan córdobas. VAT returns must be filed on a monthly basis by the 15th day of the following month (submitted using form 124). Taxpayers registered as large taxpayers (in Spanish "grandes contribuyentes") (defined as those with an annual income greater than NIO160 million) must present an advanced biweekly VAT return in the first 5 business days after the 15th day of each month and a definitive return in the first 15 days of the following month.

Electronic filing. In Nicaragua, electronic filing is allowed for all VAT taxpayers. The VAT return (form 124) should be filed through the Tributary Electronic Window (in Spanish "Ventanilla Electrónica Tributaria") attaching a spreadsheet table describing the invoices issued, sales prices and VAT credit (output tax). The Tributary Electronic Window issues automatically a Tax Information summary (in Spanish "Boleta de Información Tributaria (BIT)") indicating the amount of tax to be paid. The BIT should be paid immediately (on the same day as it is issued) to avoid fines and other charges.

Payments on account. Large taxpayers must also make an advance payment of VAT within the first 15 days after the end of the VAT return period. They must make the full payment of VAT within five days after the advance payment.

Special schemes. No special schemes apply in Nicaragua.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Nicaragua.

Supplementary filings. In Nicaragua, for the electronic filing of the VAT return, a supporting spreadsheet table must be filed with the VAT return, describing the invoices issued, sales prices and output tax.

In addition, it is possible to make a supplementary filing/rectify a VAT return in case of excess payments to the tax authorities. An amended VAT return should be filed through the Tributary Electronic Window (in Spanish "Ventanilla Electrónica Tributaria") attaching a spreadsheet table describing the invoices issued, sales prices and output tax (credit). The tax administration may request more information from the taxpayer regarding this amendment. A new BIT/information indicating the amount to be paid or considered as credit should be issued by the Tributary Electronic Window.

Digital reporting. In Nicaragua, electronic filing is allowed for all VAT taxpayers. In addition, for the electronic filing of the VAT return, a supporting spreadsheet table must be filed with the VAT return, describing the invoices issued, sales prices and output tax. See the Supplementary filings subsection above for more detail.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. In case of late registration, a penalty of between 30 and 50 penalty units may be assessed. A penalty unit equals approximately USD1.

Penalties for late payment and filings. In the case of late registration, a penalty of between 30 and 50 penalty units may be assessed. Interest is charged on the tax due at a rate of 5% per month for the late submission of a VAT return. In addition, a penalty fine applies, computed as a minimum of 70 units of fine, with a cap of 90 units of fine (each unit equals NIO25).

Other penalties may also apply, including a 25% penalty and surcharges ranging from 5% to 50%, both computed on the amount of unpaid VAT.

Penalties for errors. In the case of supplementary fillings for any errors, a penalty of between 30 and 50 penalty units may be assessed. A penalty unit equals approximately USD1. Also, interest is charged on the tax due at a rate of 5% per month for the late submission of a VAT return. In addition, a penalty fine applies, computed as a minimum of 70 units of fine, with a cap of 90 units of fine (each unit equals NIO25). Other penalties may also apply, including a 25% penalty and surcharges ranging from 5% to 50%, both computed on the amount of unpaid VAT.

Penalties for fraud. Tax evasion that does not constitute fraud is deemed to occur if the taxpayer files an inaccurate return that results in the underpayment of VAT. The penalty for tax evasion is 100% of the VAT amount due.

Tax fraud is deemed to exist when information has been altered in a manner that causes the tax authorities to incorrectly compute the amount of VAT due. Tax fraud is punishable by a term of imprisonment from six months to eight years.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- Supplies of goods and services other than those specifically exempt under the VAT Act
- Goods and services imported into Nigeria

C. Who is liable

Taxable persons are persons that make supplies of goods and services. They are expected to register for VAT. The following are examples of taxable persons:
- Individuals or bodies of individuals, families, corporations with one shareholder, trustees or executors that carry out economic activities
- Persons exploiting tangible or intangible property for the purpose of obtaining income from the property in the course of a trade or business, including persons from or agencies of the government performing such actions

The following are required to deduct VAT on their suppliers' invoices and remit the VAT to the FIRS:
- Oil and gas companies including oil-service companies
- Governments and government ministries, agencies and departments
- Resident entities engaging in transactions with nonresidents carrying on business in Nigeria

Voluntary registration and small businesses. The Nigerian VAT Act does not contain any provision for voluntary VAT registration, as there is no registration threshold (i.e., all entities that make taxable supplies are obliged to register for VAT).

Group registration. Group VAT registration is not allowed in Nigeria.

Non-established businesses. A non-established company carrying on business in Nigeria is required to register for VAT using the address of the Nigerian customer with which it has a contract.

Tax representatives. A taxpayer may register for VAT and file returns directly in person or appoint an accredited tax representative to act on its behalf.

Reverse charge. There are no specific reverse-charge provisions in the VAT Act. Under the act, however, the taxable person in Nigeria to whom the supply is made is required to withhold the VAT included in the invoice and remit to the FIRS if:
- The supplier is a nonresident company carrying on business in Nigeria.
- The consumer is a company operating in the oil and gas sector.
- The consumer is a government ministry, department or agency.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Nigeria.

Digital economy. The Nigerian VAT Act does not make specific provisions for e-commerce. However, nonresident companies carrying on business in Nigeria are generally required to register for tax using the address of the person/entity with which it has a subsisting contract. This means the address of the customer based in Nigeria, and if the nonresidential company has more than one customer, providing the address of one of its customers is sufficient.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Nigeria.

Registration procedures. To register for VAT in Nigeria, the taxpayer is required to complete the VAT registration forms and provide its company registration documents to the tax authority. Upon completion, a tax identification number is assigned to the taxpayer.

Deregistration. There is no provision for deregistration in the Nigerian VAT Act but there is a cessation requirement that the tax authorities should be notified in writing of the winding up or cessation of a business.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 7.5% (with effect from 1 February 2020)
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods and services unless a specific measure provides for the zero rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Non-oil exports
- Goods and services purchased by diplomats
- Goods and services purchased for humanitarian donor-funded projects
- Imports of commercial aircraft, aircraft spare parts and machinery and equipment used in the solid minerals sector

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- All exported goods and services (aside from non-oil exports)
- Medical goods and services and pharmaceutical products
- Basic food items
- Locally produced sanitary napkins
- Books and educational materials
- Plant, machinery and goods imported for use in free-trade zones
- Plant, machinery and equipment purchased for the utilization of gas in downstream petroleum operations
- Tractors, plows and agricultural implements purchased for agricultural purposes
- Services rendered by community banks and mortgage institutions
- Plays and performances by educational institutions as part of learning
- Proceeds from the disposal of short-term federal government of Nigeria securities and bonds
- Proceeds from the disposal of short-term state, local government and corporate bonds, this exemption will only last 10 years from a commencement date of 2 January 2012

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Nigeria.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply." The VAT Act does not define "time of supply." In practice, the "time of supply" is the date on which the related invoice is issued, or payment is made, whichever is earlier.

Deposits and prepayments. There are no special time of supply rules in Nigeria for deposits and prepayments. As such, the general time of supply rules apply.

Continuous supplies of services. There are no special time of supply rules in Nigeria for continuous supplies. As such, the general time of supply rules apply.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules in Nigeria for supplies of goods sent on approval for sale or return. As such, the general time of supply rules apply.

Reverse-charge services. The VAT Act does not provide for reverse charge.

Leased assets. There are no special time of supply rules in Nigeria for supplies of leased assets. As such, the general time of supply rules apply.

Imported goods. VAT on imported goods is payable at the time of importation.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax that is charged on business purchases by offsetting it against output tax that is charged on taxable supplies. If the input tax exceeds the output tax, the taxable person is allowed to claim a refund of the excess input tax. An input tax refund may be claimed in any of the following manners:

- Credit method

- Direct cash refund
- By both credit method and direct cash refund

The most common practice is the credit method under which the taxable person may offset the excess input tax against the output tax in the subsequent month.

Input tax is deductible from output tax if it relates to goods purchased or imported directly for resale and goods that form the stock-in-trade used for the direct production of any new product on which the output tax is charged. Refund is also available for input tax paid on zero-rated goods and services.

Nondeductible input tax. A taxable person cannot reclaim VAT paid on goods and services used for nonbusiness purposes. In addition, input tax incurred on the purchase of fixed assets and expenses such as general administration and overhead costs, cannot be recovered from output tax.

Recovery of input tax is not allowed with respect to the supply of services and exempt supplies.

VAT on fixed assets should be capitalized together with the cost of the assets, but VAT on general administration, overhead costs and services should be expensed in a company's profit-and-loss account.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Supply of services
- Plant and machineries
- Rent

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Raw materials used in production of a taxable good
- Taxable goods purchased for resale

Partial exemption. There are no specific provisions in the Nigerian VAT Act with respect to partial exemption. However, based on the law, input tax is recoverable on supply of taxable goods. Hence, in this instance where the supply consists of both taxable and exempt supplies, there is a need for a mechanism to be put in place to apportion the input tax between the taxable and exempt supplies in order to determine the recoverable input tax.

Capital goods. Based on the provisions of the VAT Act input tax on capital expenditure/fixed assets should be capitalized along with the cost of the asset. For capital assets, the input tax should be capitalized along with the cost of the asset. As such, no input tax deduction is allowed for such assets (depreciable), sold or used in the production of the goods.

Refunds. The FIRS Establishment Act provides for a cash refund within 90 days, subject to a refund application by the taxpayer and an appropriate audit by the FIRS.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax incurred on pre-registration costs in Nigeria, is not recoverable.

Write-off of bad debts. Output tax accounted for on supplies that do not get paid by the recipient (i.e., a bad debt) can be recovered in Nigeria. However, based on accounting principles, there should be appropriate supporting documentation and approval(s) available to support the write-off of such bad debts to avoid this treatment being challenged in the event of a tax audit.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred in relation to noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Nigeria.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Nonresident, unregistered businesses may not recover input tax in Nigeria.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A taxable person that makes a taxable supply is required to furnish the purchaser with a tax invoice for that supply. A tax invoice must be issued at the time of supply, regardless of whether payment is made at the time of supply. VAT is payable in the currency of the transaction.

Credit notes. There are no specific provisions on credit notes in the VAT Act. However, as a principle in accounting, a VAT credit note should be used if the VAT payable on a supply is reduced or reversed because of a subsequent allowance or discount or an error. In practice, an annual reconciliation of total VAT per audited account with total VAT per monthly returns filed is carried out to ensure accurate VAT accounting and remittances. Accordingly, it will be helpful to have in place a credit note indicating a reversal of revenue and VAT initially recognized and accounted for.

The details of information to be contained in the credit note are essentially the same as that required in a tax invoice. However, the credit note should give a description of the initial invoice, the amount of which is reversed or reduced for ease of reference.

Electronic invoicing. There are no specific provisions in the VAT Act on electronic invoices. In Nigeria, invoices are not submitted to the Nigerian tax authority when filing tax returns. However, a detailed review of physical invoices are carried out upon tax audit or investigation.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified VAT invoicing is not allowed in Nigeria. As such, full VAT invoices are required.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Nigeria.

Proof of exports. There are no specific provisions in the VAT Act on this. However, documentary evidence that goods physically left Nigeria and evidence within the accounting system to confirm that a transaction took place should suffice. This documentation should be kept accessible should the Nigerian tax authority request this. In the event that no document is provided on request by the tax authority, a company may be required to account for VAT on an export sale.

Foreign currency invoices. There is a specific provision to remit the tax on a foreign currency denominated transaction in the currency of the transaction.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. There are no special invoicing requirements in Nigeria for supplies to private consumers (i.e., non-VAT-registered customers). Full VAT invoices are required to be issued for all supplies.

Records.

Record retention period. The statute of limitation for document retention is six years. Furthermore, the tax provisions provide that tax audits may be conducted on accounts dating as far back as six years. As such, tax documentation should be retained for at least six years.

Electronic archiving. There are no specific provisions with respect to the form in which records should be archived in Nigeria. This would depend solely on the policy of the organization. In practice, electronic archiving is not allowed in Nigeria. Archiving must be made in paper form only.

I. Returns and payments

Periodic returns. VAT returns must be submitted monthly on VAT Form 002. A taxable person is required to submit a VAT return on or before the 21st day of the month following the month in which supplies are made.

Periodic payments. A taxable person must pay the tax due by the due date when filing the VAT returns, i.e., by the 21st day of the month following the month in which supplies are made. Payment must be made via a bank-certified check/draft or wire transfer through designated banks to the local tax office that issues a receipt after confirmation of such payment.

Electronic filing. Both paper and electronic filing are available, but the electronic method is still in transition. As such, paper manual method is still the predominant method. Electronic filing is available, but taxpayers find it difficult to use, due to network issues. At the time of preparing the chapter, the tax authorities are looking into resolving the network issues, for the storage of the cloud capacity.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Nigeria.

Special schemes. No special schemes are available in Nigeria.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Nigeria. However, it is recommended that such annual returns (true-up filing) for reconciliation purposes are done at the end of the reporting period, ahead of desk examination review or tax audit conducted by the FIRS, to avoid additional tax liabilities being imposed.

Supplementary filings. The VAT return must be accompanied by a schedule containing details of the supplies made and received within the tax period. For VAT deducted at the source by tax agents, there is a need to attach the schedule containing the details of the related transactions to the VAT return.

Digital reporting. No digital reporting requirements apply in Nigeria.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. The VAT Act provides for a late-registration penalty of NGN10,000 for the first month and NGN5,000 for every subsequent month in which the default continues.

Penalties for late payment and filings. The VAT Act provides a penalty of 5% for late remittance of VAT; the FIRS Establishment Act provides a penalty of 10% for late payment of any tax (including VAT). Section 68 of the FIRS Establishment Act gives it supremacy over other tax laws, and the FIRS currently applies the penalty at 10%.

The failure to submit returns results in a fine of NGN5,000 for every month in which the failure continues.

The failure to remit VAT results in a fine of 5% per year of the amount of tax not remitted, plus interest at the bank lending rate.

The failure to collect tax results in a penalty of 150% of the amount not collected, plus 5% interest above the Central Bank of Nigeria's "rediscount" rate (monetary policy rate).

Penalties for errors. The failure to issue tax invoice results in, on conviction, a fine of 50% of the cost of the goods or services for which a tax invoice was not issued.

The failure to maintain proper records results in a fine of NGN2,000 for every month in which the failure continues.

Penalties for fraud. Furnishing a false document results on conviction to a fine of twice the amount underdeclared. There are no specific provisions on the implication of such action for the tax advisors.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:

- The supply of goods and services made in North Macedonia by a taxpayer within the scope of its business activity
- The importation of goods into North Macedonia (other than exempt importations)
- Reverse-charge supplies by foreign legal entities to North Macedonian legal entities

C. Who is liable

A taxpayer is a person that permanently or temporarily performs an independent business activity, regardless of the purposes of and the results from such business activity.

Taxpayers must register for VAT when their total supplies in a year exceed MKD2 million. Also, they must register if, at the beginning of a business activity, they project the making of total annual supplies exceeding MKD2 million. Taxpayers may voluntarily register for VAT at the beginning of each calendar year or at the beginning of their business activity.

Exemption from registration. The VAT law in North Macedonia does not contain any provision for exemption from registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. Taxpayers may voluntarily register for VAT at the beginning of each calendar year or at the beginning of their business activity, regardless if they have reached the VAT registration threshold.

Group registration. North Macedonian VAT law allows VAT group registration. Several VAT-registered entities may decide to be registered as a single VAT-registered taxpayer if they have a proprietary, organizational or managerial relationship. There is no prescribed limit for the duration of the VAT group. In addition, if the tax authorities detect violation of tax principles or the possibility for violation of such principles as a result of proprietary, organizational or managerial relationship among particular entities registered as separate VAT taxpayers, they can issue a decision ordering the entities to register as a single taxpayer.

In case of a VAT debt from any member of the VAT group, all members of the VAT group shall bear the liability for the debt. Also, any VAT debt and interest prior to the registration as a member of the VAT group, the representative and any person in the VAT group will assume the responsibility for paying the VAT debt.

Non-established businesses. Foreign traders may not have a VAT registration number. If a supply is made by a taxpayer that does not have headquarters or a branch office in North Macedonia, the VAT reverse-charge mechanism applies.

Tax representatives. Tax representatives are not required in North Macedonia. There is no possibility to appoint a fiscal representative or tax agent. in Macedonia.

Reverse charge. In North Macedonia, the reverse charge applies to the supply of goods and services by foreign non-established legal entities to North Macedonian established taxpayers. Under the reverse-charge mechanism, the recipient of the goods or services bears the responsibility for the calculation of VAT, the submission of a VAT tax return, the payment of tax and the payment of interest in the event of a late payment.

Domestic reverse charge. In North Macedonia, the reverse charge applies to the following:
- Supply of construction services by a domestic constructor to an investor
- Supply of construction services by a domestic subcontractor to principal constructor
- Supply of waste and scrap

Digital economy. The VAT law does not stipulate specific rules relating to the taxation of the digital economy. Digital supplies, as any other supply, are taxable in North Macedonia if the place of supply is deemed to be in North Macedonia based on the general place of supply rules of the VAT law. Based on the law, the place of supply of telecommunication, broadcasting, software and engineering services is where the customer is established, has its permanent address or usually resides. Digital services other than the latter mentioned are generally taxable where the supplier is established, has its permanent address or usually resides.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in North Macedonia.

Registration procedures. Taxpayers apply for VAT registration by filing a hard copy form (DDV-01) with the tax authorities the Public Revenue Office (Regional Directorate Office; 11th October St. 27, Skopje 1000, North Macedonia) or electronically through the e-tax system (www.etax-fl.ujp.gov.mk). The electronic VAT registration can be submitted by an authorized accountant. The relevant form can be submitted by the legal representative or by an authorized person of the taxpayer. The deadline for submission of the VAT registration form is 15 days from the day the taxpayer meets the VAT registration obligation. The average time for the tax authorities to complete registration is seven working days following the day the registration form is submitted.

Deregistration. Taxpayers stay VAT registered for at least five years following the year of VAT registration. If in the fifth year, the taxpayer does not reach the VAT registration threshold of MKD2 million, he is entitled to request to be deregistered at the beginning of the following year.

The tax authorities may deregister the taxpayer before the five-year period lapses in any of the following circumstances:
• During one calendar year the taxpayer submits tax returns with no supplies and input tax.
• During two calendar years the taxpayer submits tax returns with no supplies, zero VAT supplies or input tax from investments made or import of goods.
• The taxpayer fails to submit tax returns for two consecutive tax periods.
• The tax authorities cannot find the taxpayer at the business address reported by the taxpayer.
• The taxpayer is registered in a VAT group.

The related party may decide to terminate the group registration by applying for de-registration. The tax office shall accept or reject the application within 90 days from its filing.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services and imports that are subject to VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
• Standard rate: 18%
• Reduced rate: 5%
• Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services, unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate, the zero rate or an exemption.

Some supplies are classified as "exempt-with-credit" (i.e., zero-rated (0%)), which means that no VAT is due, but the supplier may recover related input tax.

Examples of supplies of goods and services taxable at 0%
(i.e., exempt-with-credit)

• International air transport of passengers
• Supply of precious metals for the central bank
• Supply, repair and maintenance, chartering and leasing of aircraft

Examples of supplies of goods and services taxable at 5%

• Potable water from public water supply entities
• Food products
• Computers
• Pharmaceuticals and medical devices
• Raw oil for production of food for human consumption
• First sale of new residential buildings (within the first five years)
• Services provided by commercial tourist facilities (hotels, motels and similar facilities)

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not subject to tax and that do not give rise to a right of input tax deduction. Some supplies are classified as "exempt with credit," which means that no VAT is due, but the supplier may recover related input tax.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Rental of residential buildings and apartments that are used for housing
- Banking and financial services
- Insurance and reinsurance
- Games of chance
- Educational services

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in North Macedonia.

E. Time of supply

The moment when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or the "tax point." The tax point is the earlier of the following two dates:

- The date on which goods are dispatched (transferred) and services are completely delivered
- The date on which the payment is received if the payment is made with respect to future supplies of goods or rendering of services

In the case of periodical or continuous supplies for which subsequent payments are prescribed, the tax point is the date on which the invoice is issued for the relevant period or, if earlier, the date on which the payment for the relevant period is received.

Deposits and prepayments. VAT becomes due on advance payments at the moment when the prepayment is received. The VAT is due proportionally on the amount of the payment made before the taxable event. The prepayment is considered to be VAT inclusive. The VAT should be charged, and invoice should be issued within five days after receipt of the advance payment.

There is no difference in the time of supply rules for deposits and prepayments for supplies of goods or services, and also if the amounts are refundable or nonrefundable.

If the supply does not take place, and the prepayment is refunded, the supplier should correct the VAT charged on the prepayment and submit a corrective VAT return for the period in which the VAT was charged.

Continuous supplies of services. The time of supply for periodic or continuous supplies is the date of each payment or the date when the payment is due, whichever is the earlier. If a supply is rendered continuously for more than one year and if no payment is made or due during that period, the date of supply is considered the end of the calendar year.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. The VAT law in North Macedonia does not contain specific provision for goods sent on approval for sale or return. Under the general tax point rules, VAT is due on the earliest of the supply of goods, the receipt of payment or the issue of invoice. In case of return of goods, the taxpayer is entitled to correct the VAT charged earlier by making appropriate correction of the VAT return of the tax period when the VAT was charged.

Reverse-charge services. Reverse-charge VAT applies to amounts charged for goods or services supplied by foreign legal entities to North Macedonian legal entities. Under the reverse-charge mechanism, the recipient of the goods or services bears the responsibility for the calculation of VAT, the submission of a VAT return, the payment of tax and the payment of interest in the event of a late payment.

Leased assets. The time of supply for leased assets may vary in view of the type of lease and the specific contractual arrangements:

- Operational leases (rentals) are taxed for Macedonian VAT purposes as supplies of services. VAT becomes chargeable proportionately on each installment, and the time of supply follows the rules for periodic and continuous supplies (see below).
- Finance leases are taxed either as a supply of services (rentals) or as a supply of goods depending on the contractual arrangements. VAT becomes chargeable proportionately on each installment if the lease is considered a supply of rental service. A finance lease qualifies as a supply of goods (and the time of supply is upon handing over of the leased asset) if the legal title over the leased asset will transfer upon expiry of the lease term or an option for transferring the title on the leased asset is envisaged, but the total amount of the lease installments, less the interest payments, equals the fair value of the leased asset. VAT on the total price of the goods received under financial leasing with option to transfer their legal title, would be chargeable upon the handing over of the goods if the total amount of the lease installments is identical to the fair value of the leased goods upon inception of the lease.

Imported goods. Imported goods are subject to VAT unless they are exempt from VAT under law. The import VAT is calculated by the customs authorities based on the customs value of goods, increased with the customs duty, excise duty and commission, transportation and insurance fee. The import VAT is paid to the customs office simultaneously with the payment of the customs and excise duties.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxpayer may recover input tax, which is VAT charged on goods and services supplied to it for business purposes. A taxpayer generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax. The difference between the output and input tax is refunded to the taxpayer based on a written claim stated in the taxpayer's tax return.

Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services supplied in North Macedonia, VAT paid on imports of goods, and VAT self-assessed under the reverse-charge mechanism with respect to goods or services supplied by non-established entities.

VAT is recoverable for supplies provided to taxpayers by other taxpayers if a valid invoice or a customs declaration containing a separate statement of the tax collected on the import is issued and if such document is recorded in the accounting books of the taxpayer.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use by an entrepreneur). In addition, input tax may not be recovered for some items of business expenditure.

The following lists provide some examples of expenses for which input tax is not deductible and examples of expenses for which input tax is deductible if made for business purposes.

Examples of items for which input tax is not deductible

- Representation expenses
- Audio and video devices
- Hotels
- Restaurant meals

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible

- Advertising
- Consultancy services
- Telecommunication services
- Equipment

Partial exemption. Input tax directly related to taxable supplies is fully recoverable, while input tax directly related to exempt supplies is not recoverable. If the domestically supplied or imported goods or services are used by the taxpayer to make both supplies with the right to deduct input tax and exempt supplies without the right to deduct input tax, such person may deduct only the portion of the input tax corresponding on a pro rata basis to the supplies giving rise to an input tax deduction.

There is no requirement for the taxpayer to notify the tax authorities (or obtain approval) in advance to use the above calculation. No special methods are allowed in North Macedonia.

Capital goods. There are no special input tax recovery rules for capital goods. As such, normal input tax recovery rules (as outlined above) apply.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax recoverable in a tax period exceeds the amount of output tax in that period, the taxable person earns an input tax credit. In general, the input tax credit is carried forward to offset output tax in the following tax period. However, a taxable person may claim a refund of the input tax credit in the VAT return for the relevant tax period. The refund of the difference between the input and output tax is made within 30 days after the date of the submission of the tax return.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax incurred on pre-registration costs in North Macedonia is not recoverable.

Write-off of bad debts. Output tax accounted for on supplies that do not get paid by the recipient (i.e., a bad debt) cannot be recovered in North Macedonia.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred in relation to noneconomic activities is not recoverable in North Macedonia.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

On the condition of reciprocity North Macedonia refunds VAT incurred by businesses that do not have a headquarters or a branch office in the country and that satisfy the following additional conditions:
- They do not make any supplies in the country.
- They do not owe any outstanding VAT.

The deadline for refund claims is 30 June of the year following the calendar year in which the tax becomes chargeable. The application for refund must be submitted to the North Macedonian tax authorities and must be accompanied by the appropriate documentation.

A refund application must be processed within six months after the date of submission of the application and supporting documents.

The claim period varies between one month and several consecutive months in one calendar year. The minimum claim for these periods is MKD30,000. In the claims for the last month of the calendar year, input taxes from previous claim periods may also be taken into account. The minimum claim for this period is MKD15,000.

Claims are paid in domestic currency (MKD) into a bank account opened by the applicant in North Macedonia.

One of the mandatory conditions is the business must have an opened nonresident bank account prior to the submission of the application for the VAT refund. The applicant should meet the following conditions:
- Reciprocity
- Has not performed any trading activities in the country except for services related to import, export and transit

- Has performed business activity in the country for which the recipient of the goods or the purchaser of the services shall bear the tax in accordance with the law on VAT
- The amount of the tax return to be at least equal to the minimum threshold of MKD30,000 (approximately EUR500,00)

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A North Macedonian taxpayer must issue invoices for all of its taxable supplies. A document qualifies as a valid invoice if it complies with the requirements set out in the North Macedonian VAT Act. The invoice must be issued within five working days after the date of the supply.

If an invoice is issued both for taxable supplies and nontaxable supplies, each supply must be stated separately. If a nontaxable supply is made, it must be stated on the invoice that "the value-added tax is not calculated."

A taxpayer delivering taxable goods to recipients of goods or services who are not taxpayers (end consumers) must record the supply through a cash register and issue a receipt, regardless of whether the recipient of such goods or services requests a receipt.

Credit notes. A credit note may be used to reduce VAT charged and claimed back on a supply. A credit note must be cross-referenced to the original invoice. However, no official rules have been issued with respect to credit notes.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is permitted for North Macedonian taxpayers. Based on the law, the supplier must obtain explicit written consent by the recipient of the electronic invoices, to allow them to receive electronic invoices. Electronic invoices should be protected from any subsequent alteration and modifications and signed with an electronic signature of the person authorized for signing invoices on behalf of the legal entity. The electronic signature of the authorized person must be issued by an authority authorized for issuance of electronic signatures.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified VAT invoicing is not allowed in North Macedonia. As such, full VAT invoices are required.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in North Macedonia.

Proof of exports. The taxpayer must hold an export customs clearance issued by the customs authorities as proof that the goods are exported from the country. If the export customs procedure does not require an export clearance to be issued, the taxpayer must hold a document issued by the customs authorities that displays the name and address of the taxpayer and the foreign recipient of the goods, trade name of the goods and the quantity of the goods exported, place and date of export.

Foreign currency invoices. In general, VAT invoices must be issued in domestic currency (denars (MKD) if the place of supply is North Macedonia. If a VAT invoice is issued in a foreign currency, all values required for VAT purposes must be converted into denars for tax purposes, using the rate published by the National Bank of North Macedonia on the date of the invoice.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. A taxpayer delivering taxable goods or services to persons who are not taxpayers (private consumers) must record the supply through a cash register and issue a till receipt, regardless of whether the recipient of such goods or services requests a receipt.

Records.

Record retention period. Taxpayers should keep records of all documents (invoices, supporting documentation, etc.) for a minimum of five years. Considering that the status of limitation is 10 years in case of fraud, taxpayers must keep their records for the period of 10 years.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving of the submitted tax returns and any related supporting documentation is permissible.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. The tax period is the calendar month if the total turnover in the preceding calendar year exceeded MKD25 million. Taxpayers that had a total turnover in the preceding year of less than MKD25 million must file VAT returns and pay VAT quarterly. Newly registered taxpayers projecting an annual turnover of more than MKD2 million must register for VAT and make quarterly VAT return filings. Taxpayers must calculate the VAT for the relevant tax period for all supplies made that are subject to VAT. Taxpayers must submit a tax return within 25 days after the end of the relevant tax period.

Periodic payments. For monthly filing, provided that the amount of the total turnover of the taxpayer in the preceding year is at least MKD25 million, the taxpayer is obliged to file a monthly VAT return. The filing and the payment are performed no later than the 25th of the month following the reporting month.

For quarterly filing, provided that the amount of the total turnover of the taxpayer in the preceding year is below MKD25 million, the taxpayer is obliged to file a VAT return on quarterly basis. The filing and the payment are performed no later than the 25th of the month following the month when the respective reporting period ends.

Electronic filing. All taxpayers must submit tax returns electronically. After the VAT registration and before the deadline for filing the first tax return, the taxpayers must register for electronic filing.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in North Macedonia.

Special schemes. No special schemes are available in North Macedonia.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in North Macedonia.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in North Macedonia.

Digital reporting. The reporting with the tax authorities is performed electronically. The VAT returns are submitted with the tax authorities through the E-tax system. Every taxpayer has its own profile on the E-tax system and may authorize someone to prepare and submit the return on its behalf.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. For late registration, a legal entity is fined EUR1,200, and the responsible person at the legal entity is fined 30% of the penalty imposed on the legal entity.

For failure to register, the fine is EUR2,500 for the legal entity and 30% of the penalty imposed on the legal entity for the legal representative.

Penalties for late payment and filings. A legal entity is fined the MKD equivalent of EUR1,500 for a late VAT return filing.

Failure to file a VAT return is subject to a fine of EUR2,500. The same penalties apply if the legal entity fails to pay the VAT into the authorities' bank account into which registered VAT payers must pay their VAT or if the legal entity makes inaccurate VAT accounting entries. Separate fines apply to the legal representative of the company. Criminal sanctions apply if the offenses are intentional.

Taxpayers that make a late VAT payment are liable to pay interest on the tax due at a rate of 0.03% for each day of delay.

Penalties for errors. For invoices, they should be issued in a period of five days, as of the day when the supply of goods/services was made. A legal entity is fined the MKD equivalent of EUR1,500 for a late issuance of an invoice.

A penalty in the amount of EUR2,500 is imposed to taxpayers that issue invoices that do not contain the mandatory information as prescribed with the law. Separate fines apply to the legal representative of the company, i.e., 30% of the penalty imposed to the taxpayer.

For taxpayers that do not keep their records in accordance with the requirements determined under the law, they may be imposed with a penalty in amount of EUR2,500. Separate fines apply to the legal representative of the company, i.e., 30% of the imposed penalty.

Penalties for fraud. Taxpayers that present inaccurate/false information in the tax returns and in that manner make misrepresentation of their tax position may be imposed with a fine in the amount of EUR5,000. In addition to this, the taxpayer may be penalized with prohibition for performing business activity for a period up to 30 days. Separate fines apply to the legal representative of the company, i.e., 30% of the imposed penalty. There is also potential criminal liability that can be imposed to the legal entity and the responsible person for the tax frauds as regulated with the Criminal Code. This may also apply for director's personal liability.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- The supply of goods or services made in Norway by a taxable person
- Withdrawals of goods from a registered enterprise or an enterprise with a registration obligation for use outside the scope of the VAT Act and withdrawals of services from a registered enterprise or an enterprise with a registration obligation for private use or for purposes not regarding the enterprise.
- Purchase of intangible or remote supply services from abroad by a Norwegian taxable person or public body
- The importation of goods, regardless of the status of the importer

The application of delivery terms affects the deemed place of supply of goods. The supply of services in Norway related to goods or real property is deemed to be liable to VAT in Norway.

C. Who is liable

A taxable person is any business entity or individual that makes taxable supplies of goods or services in Norway, in the course of a business.

The VAT registration threshold is NOK50,000 (EUR5,000) during a 12-month period. However, for charitable bodies and some nonprofit organizations, the 12-month threshold is NOK140,000 (EUR14,000). Special rules also apply to certain partnerships, trading companies and corporations.

The one that is acting as the importer of records (recipient of goods) in the customs declaration is liable to pay import VAT.

Exemption from registration. Nonresident foreign transporters that supply only international, zero-rated transportation services may choose between registering for VAT and thereafter applying for refunds of input tax through their VAT returns or remaining not registered and applying for VAT refunds through the refund regime.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. Norwegian VAT legislation provides an option for voluntary registration for VAT purposes for certain activities. For example, voluntary registration is available for leasing property for use by a taxable business.

Voluntary registration. Norwegian VAT legislation provides an option for voluntary registration for VAT purposes for certain activities. For example, voluntary registration is available for leasing property for use by a taxable business.

Group registration. The Norwegian VAT Act provides that "collaborating companies" may form a VAT group. Group registration may apply if one or more companies own at least 85% of the capital in each company and if the companies are collaborating. Special issues arise for groups of companies with foreign presence.

The VAT authorities must be notified before a VAT group may be formed or dissolved.

Members of a VAT group are regarded as one taxable person liable to payment of VAT. All of the participating companies are jointly and severally liable for the correct payment of VAT. Transactions between companies within a VAT group are generally not subject to VAT. However, the withdrawal of taxable goods or services from a taxable part of the group's business may be subject to VAT.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that has no fixed establishment in Norway. A non-established business must register for VAT if it makes taxable supplies of goods or services in Norway in excess of the registration threshold. Effective 1 January 2013, nonresident foreign transporters that supply only international, zero-rated transportation services may choose between registering for VAT and apply for refunds of input tax on VAT returns or remain unregistered and apply for VAT refunds through the refund regime.

Tax representatives. If a non-established business is required to register for VAT in Norway, it must appoint a resident tax representative, unless it maintains a place of business or a registered office in Norway. Effective from 1 April 2017, the requirement to have a local representative is being abolished for Norwegian-registered foreign enterprises (NUF) domiciled in a European Economic Area (EEA) country that has an assistance agreement with Norway for the collection of VAT. This applies to enterprises domiciled in Austria, Belgium, Bulgaria, Czech Republic, Croatia, Cyprus, Denmark, Estonia, Finland, France, Germany, Greece, Hungary, Ireland, Iceland, Italy, Latvia, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Malta, the Netherlands, Poland, Portugal, Romania, Slovakia, Slovenia, Spain, Sweden, United Kingdom, Faroe Islands and Greenland.

Reverse charge. The reverse-charge mechanism in Norway applies when an entity purchases services that are capable of delivery in Norway from a remote location. Examples include electronically provided services, consultancy, etc. The entity that purchases the service has an obligation to calculate and pay the VAT in Norway.

Domestic reverse charge. The domestic reverse charge must be calculated by the buyer of climate credits and gold with a purity of at least 325 thousandths (of gold in an alloy).

Examples of climate credits can be carbon credits. Businesses or public companies that are not subject to the VAT regulations shall also calculate VAT on the purchase of climate credits. However, this obligation only arises if the total purchase in a term exceeds NOK2,000 (EUR200) excluding. VAT.

Examples of gold can be gold bars, gold dust, etc. The reverse-charge duty does not apply to the sale of gold where the price is based on function, design, etc., and not fineness and weight. Examples can be watches, etc.

Digital economy. Nonresidents who supply electronic services to final consumers in Norway (B2C supplies) are required to register for VAT and charge VAT on services supplied to Norwegian consumers. For these purposes, electronic services include the supply of, for example, e-books, films, music and software. A form of foreign VAT registration, which is intended to be less burdensome in terms of administration, is available for overseas companies, which are required to register for VAT. As an alternative to the use of a fiscal representative, simplified registration and reporting arrangements based on the EU system (one-stop-scheme) have been established.

Online marketplaces and platforms. If electronic services are supplied through a mediator (i.e., an online marketplace or platform), the supplier is considered to sell services to the intermediary and the intermediary, in turn, is considered to transfer services to the buyer (two transactions).

Registration procedures. The taxable person must complete the Coordinated Register Notification Part 1 and 2 which is a common form for registration in the Central Coordinating Register of Norway and the VAT register. Every enterprise registered in the Central Coordinating Register will be given a unique nine-digit organization number. This number is used as a means of identification for the entities by most official registers containing business related information, such as the Register of Employers, the VAT register, etc. The taxable person, his accountant, auditor or advisor are entitled to apply for registration. It is preferable to register the business online.

Deregistration. Different rules apply to deregistration and closures of different types of entities and enterprises, but all deregistrations and closures must be notified using the Coordinated Register Notification form Part 1 and 2. If VAT liable turnover falls under NOK50,000, without the business being deleted, the taxable person remains registered in the Norwegian VAT register for two years.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 25%
- Reduced rates: 12% and 15%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services, unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate, the zero rate or an exemption.

In Norway, the term "exempt with credit" is also used for zero-rated supplies. This means that no VAT is chargeable, but the supplier may recover input tax related to the supplies.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%
(i.e., exempt-with-credit)
- Exports
- Supplies to foreign ships, and aircraft and ships involved in foreign trade
- Books and newspapers (including e-newspapers and e-journals)
- Transfer of a business as a going concern
- International transportation services (goods and passengers)

Examples of services taxable at 12%
- Domestic passenger transportation services (excluding the leasing of vehicles as such)
- Television licenses
- Hotel accommodation
- Museums
- Amusement parks
- Galleries
- Bigger sport events

Examples of goods and services taxable at 15%
- Food (excluding alcohol and tobacco, and supplies in restaurants)

The terms "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services
- Financial services
- Insurance
- Lease of residential property
- Medical services
- Educational services
- Real estate transactions
- Specified cultural and sporting events

Option to tax for exempt supplies. Norway operates an option to tax in respect of the following types of supplies:

- Letting out buildings or hiring out plants for use in VAT-liable activity by an enterprise or in municipal or county municipal activity
- Letting out agricultural properties of at least five dekar (1 dekar is 1,000 m^2) and agricultural land without buildings
- Associations of which the object is to build and maintain forest roads
- Developers who, for nonbusiness purposes, build water or sewage plants under private auspices
- Businesses and public enterprises that make railway installations available against consideration for an enterprise that is VAT registered

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point." The basic time of supply for goods is when they are delivered. The basic time of supply for services is when they are performed. The time of payment does not generally affect the time of supply. If a customer makes an advance payment, the general rule is that the tax point remains the date of delivery of the goods or the date of performance of the services.

The supplier may defer the time of supply by issuing an invoice. In general, an invoice may be issued up to one month after the date of delivery of goods or performance of services. The invoice date then becomes the tax point.

Sales documents issued within the first 15 working days of the month, can state the last day of the preceding month as the document date, provided that the goods or services are delivered at this time.

Deliveries that are invoiced monthly may be invoiced within the first 15 working days of the month following the month of delivery.

Services that are supplied on a continuous basis must be invoiced within one month after the end of the ordinary VAT period in which the delivery takes place.

For services that are delivered on the basis of metered consumption (for example, electricity and telecommunications), sales documentation may be issued for longer periods, up to a maximum period of one year.

For services that are delivered on the basis of a tender or an equivalent pre-agreed price, the parties may agree on the sales documentation, unless the agreed invoicing deviates materially from the actual progress of the service delivery.

Sales documentation for certain services, such as passenger transportation or leases, may be issued in advance.

Deposits and prepayments. Sales documents are to be issued within one month after delivery of both goods and services. VAT is generally not charged on deposits and prepayments.

Continuous supplies of services. Deliveries, regardless of whether they are goods or services, invoiced monthly may be invoiced up to the 15th working day of the month following the month of delivery.

Services delivered on a recurring basis, and goods delivered in connection therewith, must be invoiced no later than one month after the end of the ordinary VAT period.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. The VAT must be charged when the goods are delivered. If the goods are returned to the seller, a credit-note should be issued by the seller.

Reverse-charge services. VAT payable through the reverse-charge mechanism is due on the date of the invoice if the invoice is issued in accordance with the generally accepted accounting principles in the country of the service provider.

Leased assets. Leased assets, regardless of the type of lease, are to be invoiced on a regular basis, at the latest one month exceeding the VAT period.

Imported goods. The time of supply for imported goods is the official date of importation.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover VAT, which is charged on goods and services supplied to it for taxable business purposes. A taxable person generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax, which is VAT charged on supplies made.

Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services supplied in Norway, VAT paid on imports of goods and VAT self-assessed for reverse-charge services received from outside Norway.

The amount of the VAT reclaimed must be detailed on a valid VAT invoice. Consequently, VAT may not be deducted as input tax before a VAT invoice is received. Input tax that is not properly documented may not be deducted. The input tax deduction must be reported in the VAT period in which the invoice is dated.

Effective 1 January 2011, a deduction of input tax may be granted only if the payment is made through a bank or similar financial institution, unless the total payment is less than NOK10,000 (EUR1,000).

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not for use in a business that is subject to VAT (for example, goods acquired for private use). In addition, input tax may not be recovered for some items of business expenditure.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Tobacco and alcohol
- Personal expenses
- Business entertainment
- Restaurant meals
- Purchase and maintenance of passenger vehicles, with certain exemptions for taxi and car-lease companies
- Gifts and handouts for advertising purposes if the value is at least NOK100 (EUR10) inclusive of VAT

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Advertising
- Purchase, lease and hire of vans and trucks not for private use
- Fuel for vans and trucks not for private use
- Conferences
- Business use of home telephones and mobile telephones
- Passenger transportation services that are not for private use

Partial exemption. Input tax directly related to making exempt supplies is generally not recoverable. If a Norwegian taxable person makes both exempt supplies and taxable supplies, it may not deduct input tax in full. This situation is referred to as “partial exemption.” Exempt with credit supplies are treated as taxable supplies for these purposes.

Input tax incurred on purchases that are used for both taxable and exempt supplies must be apportioned to reflect the supplies that carry the right to deduction and those that do not carry such right. The apportionment may also be calculated based on the ratio of taxable supplies to exempt supplies in the preceding financial year if the preceding financial year is representative of the normal pattern of trading.

Capital goods. Capital goods are those assets that are procured with a certain value and duration in a business. In Norway capital goods are the following:

- Machinery, inventory and other fixed assets where the value of input tax of the capital good is higher than NOK50,000 (EUR5,000)
  Or
- Real estate that has been subject of new, extension or redevelopment where input tax amounts to NOK100,000 (EUR10,000) or higher.

Input tax incurred on the capital goods is deducted when the capital goods are acquired. However, the amount of input tax on capital goods depends on the use of the capital good in a 10-year period for real estate and 5-year period for other capital goods. The use of the capital good must therefore be assessed each year in the adjustment period. The initial deducted input tax is adjusted if the use of the capital good changes from VAT deductible to nondeductible purposes (or vice versa).

Refunds. If the amount of VAT recoverable in a bimonthly period exceeds the amount of output tax payable in that period, the taxable person has an input tax credit. A refund claim is triggered automatically if the VAT return shows a VAT credit. Refunds are generally processed within three weeks after the date on which the VAT authorities receive the VAT return. The VAT authorities pay interest on refunds that are paid late. The annual interest rate is 8.5% as of 1 July 2018.

Pre-registration costs. A VAT-registered entity is entitled to deduct input tax on goods and services that were procured up to three years prior to registration in the VAT register (retrospective tax settlement), provided that the procurements are directly related to the VAT-liable activity. The retrospective tax settlement must be claimed no later than three years after registration. Special limitation rules apply for retrospective tax settlement related to "capital goods."

Write-off of bad debts. The taxable person can reverse the calculated output tax if it must be regarded as indefinitely unrecoverable from the recipient of the supply. The debtor (i.e., the recipient of the supply) must not have the ability to pay off the supplier's receivable and the claim must be regarded as indefinitely unrecoverable. It is not enough that the debtor lacks the willingness to settle the receivable. There are strict conditions that need to be met for the VAT to be defined as indefinitely unrecoverable, and therefore reimbursed by the tax authorities as a "bad debt."

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred in relation to noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Norway.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

The Norwegian VAT authorities refund VAT incurred by businesses that are neither established in Norway nor registered for VAT there. A non-established business may claim Norwegian VAT to the same extent that a Norwegian taxable person may deduct input tax incurred in the course of a similar business in Norway.

Norway does not apply the reciprocity principle to refunds. Consequently, it does not exclude claimants based on the country where they are established.

For example, foreign entrepreneurs providing transport services directly to and from Norway are not obliged to register for VAT, but they are entitled to receive a refund of VAT paid on purchases of goods and services in Norway.

A claimant must submit the following documentation to obtain a VAT refund:

- Application Form RF 1032.
- Under the general rule, the original VAT invoices and import documents. If the applicant only has an electronic accounting system, this must be stated in the application. In such case, printouts will be accepted. Original invoices will be returned once the application has been processed.

- A power of attorney if the claimant uses the services of a third party to recover the VAT.
- A certificate of taxable status obtained from the competent tax authorities in the country in which the claimant is established. The certificate, which is valid for 12 months from the date of issuance, must be completed, signed and stamped by the local tax authorities.
- If the claim relates to goods that are located in Norway at the time of submission of the claim form, an explanation of the basis on which the refund is requested.

The deadline for submitting applications is 30 September following the claim year. This deadline is strictly enforced. The forms must be completed in Norwegian, Danish, English or Swedish. The minimum claim period is a calendar quarter, and the maximum claim period is one calendar year. The minimum claim amounts are NOK5,000 (EUR500) for a quarter and NOK500 (EUR50) for an annual claim.

Applications for refunds of Norwegian VAT may be sent to the following address:

Skatteetaten
Postboks 103
N-1501 Moss
Norway

Claims for VAT refunds are generally paid within six months. Interest is not paid on late refunds.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. Under the general rule, invoices and credit notes must be issued by the supplier for all sales and exports. A Norwegian taxable person must generally provide an invoice including VAT for all taxable supplies made. Invoices must support claims for input tax made by Norwegian taxable persons and VAT refunds claimed by non-established businesses.

Credit notes. A credit note may be used to reduce the VAT charged and reclaimed on a supply. The document should be marked "credit note" and it must refer to the original invoice.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is not mandatory. However, electronic invoicing is permitted provided that the electronic invoice is in a non-editable format.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified VAT invoicing can be used by retailers in Norway, for supplies made cash sale to private consumers (for private use). Such supplies can be documented without specification of the buyer, and rather by the receipt from the cash register. The purchase amount must not exceed NOK40,000 (EUR4,000) including VAT, and the payment must not be in cash. When the payment exceeds the above amount or is paid in cash, the vendor's name and address must appear on the invoice.

Self-billing. Self-billing is allowed in Norway for certain supplies. For example, an entity that has a bookkeeping obligation in Norway can issue an invoice for the purchase of goods or services from a seller that does not have a bookkeeping obligation.

Further, when a sale is completed with a part exchange, the invoice can be issued by one of the parties. A joint-number series can be used for such sale documents.

Additionally, there are specific regular invoicing exemptions for the agriculture industry, handicrafts and for purchase where the buyers themselves dispose of information only on the scale, volume, weight, quality, etc.

Proof of exports. Goods and services exported to countries outside Norway or supplied to the Norwegian areas of Jan Mayen and Svalbard are exempt from VAT with input tax credit. To qualify exported goods as VAT-free, the supplier must prove that the goods have been exported. The documentation requirement for goods is as follows:

- A printed copy of the Customs Single Administrative Document where an attestation from the transporter or the Customs has been inserted Foreign currency invoices. If an invoice is issued in a foreign currency, the VAT must be stated in Norwegian kroner, using the official exchange rate for the date of the invoice. No other exchange rate may be used for VAT purposes. Other amounts shown on the invoice may be stated in other currencies.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. No special rules apply for invoicing of supplies to private customers.

Records. Compulsory record reporting must be kept as long as there is a need to check the reporting material. Storage should be in a format that maintains the ability to read the material. Further, the material must be adequately secured against unjustified change, deletion or loss.

Record retention period. The main rule states that primary documentation shall be kept for five years after the end of the fiscal year. Secondary documentation shall be kept for three years and six months after the fiscal year ending period. There are several exceptions from these rules. One important exception is the expanded documentation rules for capital goods that are subject to VAT adjustments, where specific documentation must be kept up to 15 years from the end of the financial year of procurement. Import documents must be kept for 10 years.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is available in Norway. Documentation that is necessary for the preparation of compulsory financial reporting and compulsory specifications, which is available electronically, must stay accessible as such for at least three and a half years after the end of the financial year. Entities with less than NOK5 million in turnover (excluding VAT) are excluded. Entities that are in the process of liquidations shall keep their documentation for six months after the liquidation is completed.

It is up to the entity itself to decide where the ongoing accounting is carried out, as long as the retention requirements are met. As a rule, records shall be stored in Norway under the whole retention period. However, entities that conduct operations abroad may keep records related to this activity in that country, if they are obligated to do so by the law of the country where the operations are conducted. The accounting material must be available for auditing by the tax authorities in Norway without any delay throughout the retention period. Electronic accounting material can be stored in the Nordic countries when this is reported to the Directorate of Taxes. On application, the Directorate may grant an exemption for the storage of electronic accounting materials in other countries as well.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. In general, Norwegian taxable persons file bimonthly VAT returns. However, farmers and fishermen must file returns annually. Businesses with taxable turnover of less than NOK1 million may opt to file annual returns.

VAT groups submit a single, joint VAT return bimonthly.

To ease cash flow, businesses that receive regular VAT refunds may request shorter VAT return periods. Taxable persons must contact the appropriate VAT office to register for annual returns or for permission to use shorter VAT return periods.

Import VAT is declared through the VAT return.

Periodic payments. For bimonthly VAT returns, the VAT due for each period must be reported and paid in full within 1 month and 10 days after the end of the VAT period. For bimonthly reported

VAT, this means that the first term of the VAT report (January and February), is reported 10 April, etc. Return liabilities must be paid in Norwegian kroner.

Electronic filing. It is obligatory to report VAT returns electronically. The opportunity to apply for an exemption for VAT returns by paper has been discontinued.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Norway.

Special schemes. Recipients of remote services who are not registered for VAT in Norway are obliged to report reverse-charge VAT through the government web portal (www.altinn.no) on a separate VAT return for non-registered entities (Form RF-0005). The return is submitted quarterly and payments are done 1 month and 10 days after the end of the VAT period. The threshold is for purchases exceeding NOK2,000 (EUR200) excluding VAT, per quarter year.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Norway.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in Norway.

Digital reporting. Standard Audit File for Tax (SAF-T) will be mandatory in Norway from 1 January 2020. From this date, all entities with a bookkeeping obligation in Norway will be required to submit accounting data electronically using the xml format, when requested by the Norwegian tax authorities. SAF-T is a standard data format for providing accounting data. Companies will be required to convert the requested accounting data to a SAF-T xml file and submit this through the government web portal (www.altinn.no). The primary purpose is to make tax audits more effective and efficient. SAF-T is mandatory for all entities with a bookkeeping obligation in Norway. However, exceptions are made to entities with a turnover of less than NOK5 million and entities with less than 600 accounting transactions per year. Please note that if SAF-T exempt entities have electronically available data, e.g., an ERP system, SAF-T will still be mandatory.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. Any entity that willfully or negligently fails to register for VAT could be subject to fines or imprisonment. Penalties and interest will also be assessed if, because of late registration, a taxable person submits a late VAT return or pays VAT late.

Penalties for late payment and filings. Penalty interest is imposed when an entity is late in delivering the compulsory VAT report or has conducted obvious mistakes. The interest rate is announced twice a year in a decree issued by the Ministry of Finance. The annual interest rate as of 1 July 2017 was 8.5%. An additional penalty of up to 60% of the tax due for a period may be imposed on taxable persons that willfully or negligently contravene the provisions of the VAT Act. However, the normal penalty rate is 20%.

Penalties for errors. The penalties for errors in Norway are the same as those for late payment and filings (see above).

Penalties for fraud. The penalties for fraud in Norway are the same as those for late payment and filings (see above). If criminal charges apply for fraud, fines may apply as well as imprisonment of up to two years.

Oman is a Member State of the Gulf Cooperation Council (GCC). The GCC consists of Bahrain, the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Oman, Qatar and the United Arab Emirates. The GCC has agreed that VAT will be implemented by each Member State. At the time of preparing this chapter, the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, United Arab Emirates and Bahrain are the only GCC Member States to have implemented VAT. Oman has committed to implementing VAT. It is anticipated that VAT will be implemented in Oman in the second half of 2020 or early in 2021.

The GCC Common VAT Agreement contains the main principles of the GCC VAT system and sets out the options that individual Member States may choose in terms of the VAT treatment applicable to certain supplies and business sectors. The options are primarily administrative, and where aspects are not dealt with by the GCC Common VAT Agreement, then each Member State may determine individually.

At the time of preparing this chapter, the GCC Common VAT Agreement has no direct effect in the GCC Member States, except if the respective Member States' domestic VAT law specifically refers to the provisions in the Common Agreement.

The summary set out below is based on the GCC Common VAT Agreement.

Transitional provisions

Each Member State shall outline in their domestic VAT law the transitional provisions, which include the following:

- VAT due on the supplies of goods and services and the import and export of goods, shall be effective from the date of the enforcement of the local VAT law in the Member State.
- Each Member State shall determine the VAT registration deadline for taxable persons who are obliged to register from the date of the enforcement of the local VAT law.
- Each Member State may ignore the date of the invoice or the date of the payment and consider the tax due date the same as the date of supply. This is regardless of any other relevant regulation. This includes cases where the tax invoice is issued, or payment is received, ahead of the enforcement date of the local VAT law, or ahead of the VAT registration date, and where the supply took place after this date.
- For continuous supplies that are carried out partially ahead of the date of enforcement of the domestic VAT law, or ahead of the VAT registration date, and partially after this date, the part that is carried out before the date of enforcement or registration, shall not be taxed.

B. Scope of the tax

Sales tax applies to the following transactions:
- Taxable supply of goods made in Pakistan in the course of a taxable activity carried on by a taxable person
- Taxable import of goods into Pakistan
- Rendering of services specified by federal or provincial law to be taxable

Federal excise duty is levied and collected under the sales tax provisions on the following excisable goods:
- Edible oil
- Vegetable ghee and cooking oil
- Steel billets, ingots, ship plates, bars and other long re-rolled products

Under the Constitution of Pakistan, the provinces have the rights to impose sales tax on services. All the four provinces of Pakistan have set up their own revenue board/authority and enacted legislation regarding the administration, levy and collection of sales tax on services. The provincial tax authorities and the respective laws are as follows:
- Sindh Revenue Board — Sales Tax on Services Act, 2011 — effective 1 July 2011
- Punjab Revenue Authority — Sales Tax on Services Act, 2012 — effective 1 July 2012
- Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Revenue Authority — Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Finance Act, 2013 — effective 1 July 2013
- Balochistan Revenue Authority — Balochistan Sales Tax on Services Act, 2015 — effective 1 July 2015

Sales tax on services in the federal capital territory (i.e., Islamabad) is governed by the Islamabad Capital Territory (Tax on Services) Ordinance, 2001. However, certain services are also taxable under the Federal Excise Act, 2005, under the sales tax provisions.

The following services are listed in the respective schedule of federal and provincial legislation as being taxable services. However, please note that the following list is not exhaustive. Most of the following are similar in all jurisdictions:
- Telecommunication
- Advertisements
- Banking companies and nonbanking financial institutions
- Insurance companies
- Services provided or rendered by persons engaged in the contractual execution of work or furnishing supplies
- Construction services
- Shipping, customs and freight forwarding agents, stevedores and ship chandlers
- Services rendered by money exchangers
- Airport services
- Management services, including fund and asset management services
- Property developers
- Services provided by accountants and auditors and legal practitioners
- Technical, scientific and engineering consultants
- Rent a car and automobile rental services
- Surveyors
- Call centers
- Business support services
- Program producers and production houses
- Event management services

- Labor and manpower supply
- Public bonded warehouse
- Fumigation service
- Maintenance or cleaning service
- Janitorial service, etc.
- Hotels, restaurants, marriage halls, lawns, clubs and caterers
- Franchise services
- Services provided in the matter of manufacturing or processing for others on toll basis
- Services provided by architects or town planners
- Services provided by management consultants, etc.

Islamabad Capital Territory, however, continues to empower the Federal Board of Revenue to administer the tax on their behalf. In view of separate provincial legislation in the four provinces, many service providers are now required to file five separate sales tax returns and make five separate sales tax payments.

C. Who is liable

A taxable person is a business that is required to register for sales tax. Taxable persons include the following:

- Manufacturers
  - Who have an industrial gas or electricity connection
  - Who are not located in a residential area
  - Whose taxable turnover in the preceding 12 months exceeded PKR3 million and has a total labor force exceeding 10 workers
- Retailers who are liable to pay sales tax excluding such retailers required to pay sales tax through their electricity bill
- Importers
- Wholesalers dealers or distributors
- Exporters who intend to obtain a sales tax refund against their zero-rated supplies
- Businesses that provide taxable services. Sales tax registration is required for every taxable person. Supplying taxable goods without a sales tax registration is tax fraud

Importers must pay additional sales tax at a rate of 3% above the normal sales tax rate payable at the import stage. The 3% tax is considered as a minimum value addition tax and can be claimed as input tax. Any excess input tax can be carried forward. However, it is not refundable. The 3% tax does not apply to the following goods:

- Raw materials and intermediary goods meant for use in an industrial process, which are subject to customs duty at a rate less than 16% ad valorem under First Schedule to the Customs Act, 1969
- The petroleum products falling in Chapter 27 of Pakistan Customs Tariff as imported by a licensed Oil Marketing Company for sale in the country
- Registered service providers importing goods for their in-house business use for furtherance of their taxable activity and not intended for further supply
- Cellular mobile phones or satellite phones
- Liquefied natural gas (LNG)/re-gasified liquefied natural gas (RLNG)
- Secondhand and worn clothing or footwear (PCT Heading 6309.000)
- Gold in unworked condition
- Silver in unworked condition
- Goods as specified in the Third Schedule (i.e., goods subject to retail price mechanism)
- Plant, machinery and equipment falling in Chapters 84 and 85 of the First Schedule to the Customs Act, 1969 (IV of 1969), as are imported by a manufacturer for in-house installation or use

All retailers are required to register for sales tax, however, the following retailers, known as "Tier-1 Retailers," are required to integrate their retail outlets with the tax department's systems for real time reporting:

- Retailers operating as a unit of a national or international chain of stores
- Retailers operating in air-conditioned shopping malls, plaza or center excluding kiosks
- Retailers whose cumulative electricity bill in the preceding 12 consecutive months exceeds PKR1.2 million
- A wholesaler-cum-retailer engaged in bulk import and supply of consumer goods on wholesale basis to the retailers, as well as on retail basis to the general body of the consumers
- A retailer whose shop measures 1,000 sq. feet in area or more
- Any other person or class of persons as prescribed by the board Tier-1 retailers will be required to charge sales tax at standard rate, i.e., 17% on their taxable supplies and will be required to file the monthly sales tax return. Such retailers would be entitled to adjust any input tax paid or payable on their purchases. However, a reduced rate of 14% is available on supplies of finished articles of textile, textile made-ups, leather and artificial leather.

In the case of other retailers, sales tax is charged/and collected through monthly electricity bills, issued by the electric companies for such retailers, at the rate of 5%, where the monthly bill does not exceed PKR20,000 and where the bill exceeds the limit, at the rate of 7.5%. Such retailers are not entitled to adjust any input tax nor are they required to file the monthly sales tax return.

Exemption from registration. Persons who are involved in the supply of exempt goods or services are not required to register for VAT. However, a person involved in the supply of goods or services that are subject to sales tax at the 0% (zero) rate are required to register for VAT.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. The federal sales tax law in Pakistan does not contain any provision for voluntary sales tax registration.

However, under the provincial sales tax laws in Pakistan, a person who is not required to be registered may apply for voluntary registration with the relevant provincial sales tax authority and may obtain registration. In the case of voluntary registration, the voluntarily registered person is obliged to fulfill all the applicable requirements that are applicable for all registered persons, such as filing a sales tax return, etc.

Group registration. Group VAT registration is not available under Pakistan sales tax laws.

Non-established businesses. Nonresident businesses (i.e., those who do not have a physical presence/place of business in Pakistan) are not required to register for sales tax under Pakistan sales tax laws. Generally, for services, the recipient pays the respective sales tax under the reverse-charge mechanism (see below) and for goods, sales tax is paid at import stage by the importer on record. However, if it is confirmed that such a person has a place of business in Pakistan (either physically or virtually) and is conducting taxable activity, they would be required to register for sales tax. The registration requirements would be the same as outlined above, however, no mechanism for registering a nonresident businesses involved in rendering services has been introduced by the tax authorities as of yet.

Tax representatives. These persons are authorized by a taxpayer to represent them before the tax authorities.

Only the following persons are authorized to represent a taxpayer:

- Tax practitioners registered under Income Tax rules, Sales Tax rules, Custom Act A person who has retired or resigned after putting in satisfactory service in the sales tax or customs or federal excise departments for a period of not less than 10 years in a post (s) not inferior to that of an assistant commissioner
- Advocates practicing under the Legal Practitioners and Bar Councils Act, 1973
- A person holding a bachelor's or master's degree in commerce

- An accountant
- A person working in the employment of the taxpayer on a full-time basis and holding at least a bachelor's degree

Reverse charge. The reverse-charge mechanism in the case of services operates through withholding of sales tax. Where a service rendered in Pakistan is taxable and sales tax has not been charged by the service provider or the service provider is an unregistered person or a nonresident service provider, the whole amount of the applicable sales tax needs to be withheld and deposited by the registered service recipient.

In case there is an agreement between the service provider and service recipient that taxes in any form will be borne by the service recipient, then instead of withholding the applicable sales tax from the payment due to the service provider, it is deducted and an equivalent amount of sales tax is deposited by the service recipient.

Effectively it becomes the cost of the service recipient. This is quite common where services are rendered by foreign service providers (nonresidents) who may be providing services in Pakistan on a one-off basis and who do not have a permanent establishment in Pakistan.

Input claim on sales tax either deducted or borne by the service recipient above is not available for adjustment against output tax. This is mainly because the precondition of having a valid sales tax invoice issued by a registered person is not fulfilled.

The reverse-charge mechanism on services is operative in the provinces of Sindh, Punjab, Khyber Pakhtunkhwa and Balochistan. In Islamabad Capital Territory, however, only franchise services are subject to the reverse-charge mechanism.

Domestic reverse charge. The reverse-charge mechanism as mentioned above is operative under the provincial sales tax laws and therefore if transactions are taking place between interprovincial jurisdictions, there is a possibility that the reverse-charge mechanism may apply. Legally, there is a provision, however, practically it is not implemented, since provinces have addressed these issues.

Digital economy. The provinces of Sindh and Punjab have amended the applicable sales tax law whereby a person carrying on economic activity through a virtual presence or a website or a web portal or through any other form of e-commerce, etc., in their respective jurisdiction is treated as having a place of business in the respective provinces of Pakistan.

Effectively, persons who are providing taxable services through the above electronic means are now liable to register under the provincial acts of Sindh and Punjab and are required to charge sales tax while rendering taxable services through the electronic means.

Online marketplaces and platforms. Services provided through online marketplaces are currently taxable under the provincial sales tax law of Khyber Pakhtunkhwa. However, there are no other special rules that exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Pakistan.

Registration procedures. Application for sales tax registration needs to be submitted online through the FBR web portal (http://www.fbr.gov.pk). An online application is required to be filed providing data such as the registered office address, email address, cell phone number, bank accounts, utility bills details, etc., through the computerized system, along with supportive documents such as the following, as applicable:

- Computerized National Identity Card (CNIC) of all owners, members, partners and directors
- CNIC of the representative, if any
- Passports of nonresidents
- Registration or Incorporation Certificate, along with Form III or Form A as prescribed under Companies Act, 2017
- Partnership deed

- Bank account certificate issued by the bank in the name of the business
- Lease or rent agreement, along with CNIC of the owner of the premises
- Ownership documents of the premises, such as registered sale deed or registered transfer deed, latest utility bills (electricity, gas, landline telephone and post-paid mobile phones)
- List of machinery
- Maintenance of bank account certificate
- Distribution certificate from the principal showing distributorship or dealership
- Balance sheet/statement of affairs/equity of the business
- Particulars of all branches
- Particulars of all franchise holders
- GPS-tagged photographs of business premises and utility meter (in case of nonmanufacturers)
- GPS-tagged photographs of machinery and industrial electricity or gas meters installed along with manufacturing premises (in case of manufacturer)

The sales tax registration process with FBR has now been simplified, and if all the documents have been furnished, the sales tax registration is provided. After registration, the applicant or the authorized person will have to visit a National Database and Registration Authority (NADRA) center within a month's time for biometric verification. In case of manufacturers, the board may require post verification through field offices or a third party authorized by the board.Taxpayers who are already registered with the FBR and are applying for sales tax registration with provinces will have to opt for e-enrollment, whereby once the process of e-enrollment is completed automatically, the entire data of the taxpayer as present in the FBR database would be transferred to the provincial tax authorities and the taxpayers will obtain sales tax registration with the respective provincial tax authority.

However, where taxpayers are not registered with FBR and are applying for sales tax registration with the provincial tax authorities, the taxpayers will have to fill out an online application on the web portal, and after submitting it, a designated user ID and password will be issued to the taxpayer via email.

Deregistration. A business that ceases operations or whose supplies become exempt from sales tax must apply for cancellation of its sales tax registration.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services and to imports that are liable to a rate of sales tax, including the zero rate. The sales tax rates for goods are:

- Standard rate for goods: 17%
- Reduced rates: 1%, 1.5%, 2%, 5%, 6%, 7%, 8%, 10%, 12% and 14%
- Zero-rate: 0%
- Other rates: 16% FED on goods in sales tax mode

In certain cases, a fixed amount of sales tax is levied on supply of goods, e.g., on import and local supply of mobile phones and bricks The standard tax rate of 17% is imposed on the value of the supply of goods or at the import stage. However, in certain cases, the value of the supply of certain goods is based on the manufacturer's retail price (not the sales price). Exported goods are zero-rated (that is, taxed at 0%). For businesses operating in certain export-oriented sectors, the reduced rate applies to goods they import and to local supplies of goods provided to them.

A further tax at the rate of 3% (with certain exceptions) is chargeable on the supply of goods to persons who have not obtained sales tax registration.

The sales tax rates for services are:

- Standard rates for services: 16%, 15% and 13%
- Reduced rates: 2%, 3%, 5%, 8%, 10% and 15%

• Other rates: 17% and 19.5%

Most services are taxed at 16% in Punjab and Islamabad, 13% in Sindh, and 15% in Khyber Pakhtunkhwa and Balochistan. However, telecommunication services are taxed at 17% in Islamabad and 19.5% in the remaining provinces.

Examples of goods taxed based on the manufacturer's retail price

- Fruit juices and vegetable juices
- Ice cream
- Aerated water or beverages and drink syrups
- Cigarettes
- Toilet soap, detergents, shampoo, toothpaste and shaving cream
- Perfumery and cosmetics
- Powder drinks and milky drinks
- Tea
- Toilet paper and tissue paper
- Spices sold in retail packaging
- Shoe polish and shoe cream
- Fertilizers
- Cement sold in retail packaging
- Mineral/bottled water
- Household electrical goods, including air conditioners, refrigerators, deep freezers, televisions, recorders and players, electric bulbs, tube lights, electric fans, electric irons, washing machines and telephone sets
- Household gas appliances, including cooking range, ovens, geysers and gas heaters
- Foam or spring mattresses and other foam products for household use
- Paints, distempers, enamels, pigments, colors, varnishes, gums, resins, dyes, glazes, thinners, blacks, cellulose lacquers and polishes sold in retail packing
- Lubricating oils, brake fluids, transmission fluid, and other vehicular fluids sold in retail packing
- Storage batteries excluding those sold to automotive manufacturers or assemblers
- Tires and tubes, excluding those sold to automotive manufacturers or assemblers
- Motorcycles
- Auto rickshaws
- Biscuits in retail packing with brand name
- Tiles
- Auto parts in retail packing, excluding those sold to automotive manufacturers or assemblers

Examples of goods taxable at the reduced rates (1-16%)

- White crystalline sugar
- Plant and machinery not manufactured locally and having no comparable local substitutes
- Gold in unworked condition
- Re-importation of foreign-origin goods that were temporarily exported out of Pakistan

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods that are not liable to sales tax, and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods

- Agricultural products, including eggs, meat of bovine animals, sheep and goat, and fresh vegetables (except ware potato and onions)
- Pharmaceuticals
- Newspapers and books
- Educational and scientific materials
- Equipment for fighting AIDS and cancer

- Supplies (excluding electricity and natural gas) made to hospitals run by the federal or provincial government or charitable operating hospitals of 50 beds or more, or to teaching hospitals of statutory universities of 200 or more beds

Examples of zero-rated supplies of goods

- Exports
- Supplies to diplomats, diplomatic missions, privileged persons and privileged organizations
- Supplies of stores and provisions for consumption aboard a conveyance proceeding to a destination outside Pakistan
- Certain stationery goods such as erasers and exercise books, subject to certain conditions and limits

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Pakistan.

E. Time of supply

The time when sales tax becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point." In general, the time of supply is when goods are delivered, or services are performed or the time any payment is received, whichever is earlier.

In the case of services in the provinces of Sindh, Punjab, Khyber Pakhtunkhwa and Balochistan, the time of supply is when the service is provided to the recipient, an invoice is raised or consideration is received, whichever is earlier.

Deposits and prepayments. Payments received in advance on account of a taxable supply of goods or rendering of taxable services are subject to tax in the relevant month. However, there are no specific rules prescribed for treatment of payment or declaration of sales tax on deposits and advance paid or received in the monthly sales tax return or respective adjustments in case of cancellation of transaction.

Continuous supplies of services. The Provincial Sales Tax on Services Act stipulates that where a service is provided over a period of time and payment for the service is made on a periodic basis, it shall be treated as comprising two or more separate and distinct services, each corresponding to the part of the service to which each separate part of the consideration relates.

Even though the Sales Tax on Goods Act is silent on continuous supplies of goods, the same procedure as stated above is also applied in practice. Accordingly, sales tax, invoices and payments should be made on a monthly basis for a continuous supply (e.g., electricity and telecommunications).

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. Goods delivered or made available to the recipient would be considered to be a taxable supply. In the case of a return of taxable goods, there is a procedure for issuing debit/credit notes by the seller and buyer so as to adjust the sales tax charged and reported on such goods in the sales tax return.

Reverse-charge services. Under the provincial sales tax law on services, the liability to pay the applicable tax on services under the reverse-charge mechanism falls on the person receiving the service. The applicable sales tax is required to be paid in the month when the services were received.

There is no concept of reverse charge on the supply of goods.

Leased assets. Taxable goods that are supplied on lease terms, without transfer of ownership and risks and rewards attached to the goods, are not considered as a supply for VAT purposes, and as such no VAT is due.

Imported goods. The time of supply for imported goods is the date of importation or the date on which the goods leave a duty suspension regime.

F. Recovery of sales tax by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax, which is sales tax charged on taxable goods and taxable services supplied to it for business purposes. A taxable person generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax, which is sales tax charged on supplies made. For manufacturers and service providers (with certain exceptions), the registered person may not claim input tax in excess of 95% of the output tax for that tax period. However, any excess may be carried forward.

Input tax includes sales tax paid on goods and services purchased in Pakistan and on goods imported into Pakistan, and federal excise duty levied and collected using the sales tax mechanism.

The provincial sales tax laws provide certain restrictions on the adjustment of sales tax. Input tax must generally be claimed in the month in which the invoice is issued. However, for electricity and gas supplies, the input tax must be claimed in the month in which the invoice is paid. Any input tax not claimed within the relevant period can be claimed in the federal and provincial return for any of the six succeeding tax periods, except in the case of Khyber Pakhtunkhwa, which has not mentioned any time period A separate refund claim should be made for input tax that is not claimed in the aforesaid tax periods.

A valid tax invoice or customs documents must generally accompany a claim for input tax.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use by an entrepreneur). In addition, input tax may not be recovered for some items of business expenditure.

Through the amendments to the federal sales tax law, a new provision has been added in section 73 of the Sales Tax Act that states that a sales tax-registered manufacturer would make taxable supplies only to a person who has obtained registration under the Act. If the following assigned sales limits are exceeded, any sales made to the customers who have not obtained sales tax registration but are required to, would be subject to disallowance of related input sales tax as attributable to such excess sales, i.e., exceeding the below threshold:
- Supplies to unregistered customers PKR100 million in a financial year
- Supplies to unregistered customers PKR10 million in a month

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible
- Purchases used for nonbusiness purposes
- Business gifts
- Business and staff entertainment
- Purchase of vehicles and parts of such vehicles
- Building and construction materials (excluding prefabricated materials), paints, electrical and sanitary fittings; pipes, wires and cables used in or permanently attached to immovable property
- Electrical and gas appliances, furniture, furnishings, office equipment (excluding electronic cash registers) but excluding such goods acquired for sale or resale
- Goods or services on which sales tax has not been deposited by the respective supplier
- Services subject to a reduced rate of sales tax or fixed amount of tax

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)
- Purchases of goods or services used or consumed for making taxable supplies
- Purchase of plant and machinery
- Insurance
- Advertisements
- Other goods and services consumed for business activities

Partial exemption. Goods or services utilized in supplying both taxable and exempt goods/services have to be apportioned using a tax fraction formula (i.e., the value of taxable supplies over the value of total supplies), to the extent that only the input tax relating to taxable supplies can be claimed in any given tax period. This adjustment is provisional, and the taxpayer is required to make a final adjustment at the end of each financial year based on taxable and exempt supplies made during the course of that year.

Capital goods. Under the federal sales tax law, input tax incurred on capital goods/fixed assets is claimable in the relevant tax period. However, under the provincial sales tax law, input tax paid on capital goods is recoverable in 12 equal monthly installments. There are no special input tax recovery rules for capital goods.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax in a sales tax period exceeds the output tax in the same period, the excess credit is refundable. In practice, refunds are generally available to persons that are engaged in making zero-rated supplies.

Pre-registration costs. Sales tax paid on stocks acquired prior to registration are claimable. Local purchase of taxable goods acquired during a period of 30 days before making an application for registration are treated as input tax. In the case of imports, the tax paid during a period of 90 days before making an application for registration shall be treated as input tax.

Write-off of bad debts. In case of bad debts, the sales tax charged and deposited by the supplier can be adjusted through the issuance of debit/credit notes by stating that the supply has been canceled, if the note is issued within 180 days from the date of the relevant supply.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred upon purchases that are used for noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Pakistan.

G. Recovery of sales tax by non-established businesses

Pakistan does not refund sales tax incurred by foreign businesses that are neither established nor registered for sales tax in Pakistan.

H. Invoicing

Sales tax invoices. A taxable person must generally provide a sales tax invoice or cash memo for all taxable supplies made. Tier-1 retailers have to integrate their retail outlets with the boards computerized system for real time reporting of sales.A sales tax invoice is generally necessary to support a claim for input tax credit.

Credit notes. A credit note may be used to reduce the sales tax charged and reclaimed on a supply of goods or services if a valid adjustment is made. The document must be clearly marked “credit note,” and it must detail the reason for the adjustment and must refer to the original sales tax invoice for the supply.

Electronic invoicing. Special procedures for the issuance of electronic sales tax invoices between buyers and sellers are in place, whereby a registered person can opt to issue electronic invoices after approval from the relevant tax authority. However, in practice, electronic invoices are not generally issued.

Simplified sales tax invoices. Simplified sales tax invoicing is not allowed in Pakistan. As such, full sales tax invoices are required.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Pakistan.

Proof of exports. Exports of goods are zero-rated for sales tax. However, to qualify as tax-free sales, export supplies must be supported by evidence that the goods have left Pakistan. The required evidence includes the following documents:

- A copy of the goods declaration for export authenticated by customs
- Copy of house and master bill of lading and airway bill or railway receipt
- The original invoices
- A stock or inventory statement
- Any other business records related to the exported goods

Foreign currency invoices. If a sales tax invoice is issued in a foreign currency, the amounts must be converted to Pakistani rupees (PKR). The conversion must be calculated in accordance with the open market exchange rate.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. Every registered person is required to issue a valid sales tax invoice, regardless of whether the recipient is a registered or unregistered entity or is the final consumer.

Records. A taxpayer is required to maintain and keep records of goods purchased, imported and supplied (including zero-rated and exempt supplies) at their business premises or registered office. These records include, but are not limited to, tax invoices for both purchases and sales, credit/debit notes, double entry sales tax accounts, bank statements and utility bills, etc.

Record retention period. The record retention period varies between each jurisdiction. However, a taxpayer is required to retain the records from 5 to 10 years.

Electronic archiving. In addition to paper records, electronic archiving of the records is allowed.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. All taxable persons other than specific retailers must file monthly returns. The return must be filed by the 18th day of the month following the end of the return period.

Periodic payments. Periodic payments against provision of services on a periodic basis are treated as separate and distinct payments. Accordingly, the payment of tax must to be made by the 15th day of the following month in which the payment is made.

Sales tax withholding. Special rules have been prescribed with respect to sales tax withholding by the federal and provincial tax authorities. The federal withholding rules apply to the purchase of goods and services (acquired in the Islamabad Capital Territory). The provincial withholding rules apply to the taxable services acquired within the territorial jurisdiction of the respective province. These rules apply to taxable goods and services that are supplied to the following persons, which are referred to as withholding agents:

- Federal and provincial government departments
- Autonomous bodies
- Public sector organizations
- "Companies" as defined under the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 and "Persons" registered as exporters
- Persons registered with the respective sales tax authority that consumes services from unregistered persons
- Persons registered for sales tax who are recipients of advertising services

The withholding agents listed in the first three bullets above withhold one-fifth (20%) of the sales tax with respect to acquired taxable goods or services as shown in the sales tax invoice and make payment of the balance to the registered person.

Sales tax registered persons who are recipients of advertising services from persons based in Pakistan or abroad must withhold sales tax and pay the balance to the service provider. The sales tax withheld is the amount indicated in the sales tax invoice issued by the service provider. If the sales tax amount is not indicated, the withheld amount must be calculated by applying the tax rate.

Withholding agents are required to withhold 20% of the sales tax amount mentioned on the invoice for taxable services acquired from the provinces of Sindh, Balochistan and Khyber Pakhtunkhwa. The federal withholding provisions are not applicable when the registered supplier, being an active taxpayer, has supplied goods or rendered services (except for advertisement services) to another registered customer.

The Punjab law requires withholding agents to withhold the entire amount of sales tax from the payments made for taxable services received from persons whether registered or unregistered. However, Punjab law further implies that no sales tax withholding is required in cases where taxable services in the province of Punjab have been acquired from corporate, PRA-registered persons who are active taxpayers. Nonetheless, under the provincial sales tax laws, where taxable services have been acquired from an unregistered person, then sales tax is required to be withheld at the applicable rate.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing of sales tax returns is mandatory for all taxpayers registered for sales tax purpose.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Pakistan.

Special schemes. No special schemes are available in Pakistan.

Annual returns. Every private or public limited company that is registered for federal sales tax purposes is required to file an annual sales tax return. The return for a financial year must be filed by 30 September of the following financial year.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in Pakistan.

Digital reporting. Electronic filing of sales tax returns is mandatory for all taxpayers registered for sales tax purpose.

In addition, the federal government requires Tier-1 retailers to integrate their systems with that of the Federal Board of Revenue (i.e., the federal tax authority) to monitor their sales on a real-time basis. All sales are to be reported through an accredited electronic fiscal device (EFD), however, such retailers are still required to maintain/retain records as required by law.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. A penalty of PKR10,000 or 5% of the tax due, whichever is greater, is assessed for failure to register for sales tax. Failure to register within 60 days after beginning a taxable activity may be punishable by a term of imprisonment of up to three years, if the person is convicted by a special judge, or by a fine of up to the amount of tax involved, or both.

A penalty of up to PKR1 million can be levied if a person fails to register under the Act and if registered fails to integrate his business for monitoring, tracking, reporting or recording of sales, production and similar business transaction with the board or its computerized system.

Penalties for late payment and filings. A penalty of PKR10,000, under both federal and provincial sales tax laws, is assessed for the late submission of a sales tax return. However, if the return is filed within 10 days after the due date, a penalty of only PKR200 or 300 per day applies.

A penalty is assessed for the late payment of sales tax for the greater of PKR10,000 or 5% of the tax due, but the penalty is restricted to PKR500 per day for each day of default if paid within 10 days after the due date. (Failure to pay the tax within 60 days after a notice for payment is issued by a sales tax officer may be punished by imprisonment for up to three years if the person is convicted by a special judge, or by a fine of up to the amount of tax involved, or both).

In addition to any penalty, interest (the default surcharge) is chargeable for the following offenses:

- Late payment of sales tax
- Overclaimed input tax
- Incorrect claim for a sales tax refund
- Incorrect application of the zero rate

The rate of the default surcharge is currently fixed at 12% in the federal jurisdiction. However, it remains the same (i.e., the Karachi Interbank Offered Rate (KIBOR) plus 3% per annum) under the respective provincial sales tax laws.

However, for tax fraud, the default surcharge is payable at a rate of 2% per month.

Under the federal sales tax law, the tax officer is authorized by the Commissioner to conduct an audit of the taxpayer's records once in a year.

In case an assessment order has been passed by the sales tax authorities and an appeal is filed before the Commissioner Appeals, the taxpayer has the option to protect its bank accounts from any coercive recovery proceedings by the tax officials (known as "obtaining automatic stay") and does this by depositing 10% of the amount of tax due with the tax authorities. Where the automatic stay is granted to the taxpayer, the tax officials cannot issue any recovery notice to the taxpayer until the appeal is decided by the Commissioner Appeals Inland Revenue. Similar options also exist under the Provincial Sales Tax Law of Sindh and Punjab, however, the amount to deposit at the time of filing an appeal is 25% instead of 10% of the tax due amount as assessed by the Provincial tax officers.

Penalties for errors. The following defaults are subject to penalties:

- Failure to issue a sales tax invoice: PKR5,000 or 3% of the tax due, whichever is greater.
- Unauthorized issuance of a sales tax invoice: PKR10,000 or 5% of the tax due, whichever is the greater.
- Failure to notify changes related to the taxable person's details or taxable activity: PKR5,000.
- Repeated erroneous calculation in the return of sales tax: PKR5,000 or 3% of the tax due, whichever is greater.
- Failure to maintain records: PKR100,000, PKR10,000 or 5% of the tax due, whichever is the greater. This range of penalties is based on the differences in the Province VAT laws. Under the Pakistan VAT law, the federal government has the jurisdiction of VAT on goods, whereas the Provinces have the jurisdiction of VAT on services. There are five Provincial VAT Acts on services. The Sindh Province VAT law states a penalty of which may extend to PKR100,000 or 5%, whichever is higher on a failure to maintain records, whereas the Punjab Province VAT law states for the same offense a penalty of PKR10,000 or 5%, whichever is higher.

Penalties for fraud. A penalty of PKR50,000 or PKR25,000 or 100% of the tax due, whichever is greater, is assessed for tax fraud, falsifying records, making false statements and declarations, denial or obstruction of access to records and similar offenses. In addition, a person may be punished by imprisonment for up to three years if convicted by a special judge or may be liable for a fine of up to the amount of tax involved, or both.

A penalty of PKR500,000 or 200% of the amount of tax involved (whichever is higher) can be levied on any person who is integrated with the board or its computerized system but conducts transactions so as to avoid monitoring or tracking, reporting or recording of such transactions.

VAT return period	Monthly/quarterly
Thresholds
Registration	Gross annual income of USD36,000 or monthly average above USD3,000
Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses	No

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- The supply of goods made in Panama by a taxable person
- The leasing of movable goods located in Panama
- Supplies of services
- The importation of goods from outside Panama, regardless of the status of the importer

C. Who is liable

A taxable person for VAT purposes is an entity or individual that performs commercial, industrial or financial activities or supplies services, provided its income is greater than USD36,000 per year or has a monthly average greater than USD3,000; non-domiciled persons and importers are liable regardless of their income. Taxable persons that are designated as withholding agents for VAT must appoint a legal representative. All individuals or entities must register as taxpayers, and there is no separate and exclusive registry for VAT taxpayers.

Exemption from registration. All entities and individuals carrying out taxable operations in Panama must be registered as taxpayers before the General Directorate of Revenue and there is no separate VAT registration. Filing of VAT returns will depend not on registration but on whether they meet the minimum threshold or not.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. The Panamanian Fiscal Code and its relevant regulations do not contain any provision for voluntary VAT registration.

Group registration. Group VAT registration is not allowed in Panama.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that has no fixed establishment in Panama. A non-established business must register for VAT if it supplies goods in Panama. To register, a non-established business must file a registration form. A foreign corporation must also submit a copy of its articles of incorporation, legalized by the Panamanian Consul, together with an official translation in Spanish. It is important to highlight that to carry out the sale of goods within Panama, the tax authorities may require an operation notice, for which the company must register before Panamanian Public Registry. Non-established businesses rendering services in Panama are subject to withholding of VAT. The Panamanian recipient would deem that the VAT is included in the invoice and make the withholding. The amount withheld may be offset as an input tax. The non-established business would not receive a refund.

Tax representatives. Tax representatives are not required in Panama.

Withholding agents. According to subparagraph (d) of Article 19 of Executive Decree No. 84 of 2005 (modified by Executive Decree No. 128 of 29 May 2017), entities with annual purchases of goods and services in an amount equal to or greater than USD5 million will be considered VAT withholding agents. A VAT withholding agent is required to withhold 50% of the VAT included in the invoice or equivalent document submitted by the supplier.

In light of this Decree, the Panamanian tax authorities issue an annual publication which contains a list of VAT withholding agents identified according to the new criterion set out in the Decree. The list contains 86 companies, including construction companies and banks.

The withholding agents identified in the list are subject to the withholding obligation.

Reverse charge. VAT on services performed within Panama by a foreign individual or foreign entity to a Panamanian entity or individual must be collected and paid by the Panamanian recipient entity or individual based on a reverse-charge mechanism. Panamanian recipients must deem that VAT is included in the invoices from their nonresident counterparty and make a VAT withholding to be paid within 10 days to the tax authorities. The amounts withheld may be considered input tax and used to offset output tax of the Panamanian party. The amount that the Panamanian party is required to withhold is calculated according to the following formula: the amount included in the invoice multiplied by 0.065421.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Panama.

Digital economy. There are no special rules or regulations regarding VAT for the digital economy. The ordinary VAT rules should be applicable based on the characterization of the transactions being carried out digitally.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Panama.

Registration procedures. The Panamanian tax authorities issue an RUC, which is the taxpayer ID number (it applies to VAT and income tax, among other taxes). The RUC can be registered with the Panamanian tax authorities or via the internet (https://dgi.mef.gob.pa/). To register as taxpayers in Panama, a company or individual must complete and present the following documentation:

- For professional and independent individuals:
  - Copy of ID
  - Copy of last paid utility bill of a public service to prove the domicile of the taxpayer
- Legal entities:
  - Certificate of registration issued by the public registry
  - Copy of legal representative's ID
  - Copy of business registration (Aviso de Operación) or business license issued by the Ministry of Trade and Commerce Industries
  - Copy of last paid utility bill of a public service to prove the domicile of the taxpayer
  - Certificate of Immigration Movement
  - Immigration status

If the taxpayer's information changes, the Panamanian tax authorities should be notified.

Deregistration. Entities that are no longer taxpayers for VAT purposes (because of the income threshold) need to fill out and file a form stating that they will no longer be considered as taxpayers for VAT purposes. A final VAT return and a written request must also be filed before the General Directorate of Revenue of the Ministry of Economy and Finance.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to all supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT.

The VAT rates are:

- Standard rate: 7%
- Special rates: 10% and 15%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods and services, unless a specific measure provides for a special rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 10%

- Alcoholic beverages, such as liquors and beers
- Hotels and other lodging services

Examples of goods and services taxable at 15%

- Cigarettes, cigars and other tobacco products

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods

- Supplies made by agricultural producers
- Unprocessed fish, meat and game supplied by nonindustrial fishermen and hunters
- Exported goods
- Medical and pharmaceutical products
- School materials
- Supplies of goods made in a free zone in Panama
- Supplies of movable goods within an authorized customs warehouse
- Oil and related products (motor oil is subject to VAT)
- Groceries

• Hand tools, fertilizers, insecticides, fungicides and similar products used in agriculture

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Panama.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point."

For the sale of goods, the tax point is when the invoice is issued, or the goods are supplied, whichever is earlier.

For services, the tax point is the date on which the invoice is issued, the date on which the services are rendered or the date on which total or partial payment is made, whichever is earlier.

For recurring annual services, the tax point is when total or partial payment is made. For a lease of movable property, the tax point is when the parties to the lease enter into the contract.

For supplies of goods made by a company to a manager or legal representative of the company for his or her personal consumption, the tax point is when the goods are delivered or when the goods are posted, whichever happens first.

Deposits and prepayments. There are no special time of supply rules in Panama for deposits and prepayments. As such, the general time of supply rules apply.

Continuous supplies of services. There are no special time of supply rules in Panama for continuous supplies. As such, the general time of supply rules apply.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules in Panama for supplies of goods sent on approval for sale or return. As such, the general time of supply rules apply.

Reverse-charge services. There are no special time of supply rules in Panama for supplies of reverse-charge services. As such, the general time of supply rules apply.

Leased assets. There are no special time of supply rules in Panama for supplies of leased assets. As such, the general time of supply rules apply.

Imported goods. The time of supply for imported goods is when the customs return is filed.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax, which is VAT charged on goods supplied for business purposes. A taxable person generally recovers input tax by offsetting it against any output tax due. Output tax is VAT charged on services and supplies made. Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services supplied in Panama and VAT paid on imports. A valid tax invoice or customs document must generally accompany a claim for input tax credit.

Nondeductible input tax. If a taxable person provides services or goods to a VAT exempt customer (for example, certain government institutions), the VAT paid on the purchases or imports of goods and services related to sales to such tax-exempt customer may not be recognized as input tax thus, the VAT would become a cost for the seller. Similarly, the VAT paid on supplies to produce VAT exempted sales should be considered a cost.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

• VAT paid on supplies required by public energy generating companies

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

• VAT paid on import of inventory
• VAT paid for services received

Partial exemption. The VAT paid by a taxable person relating to exempt supplies cannot be considered as an input tax (as it cannot be offset against an output tax), but a cost that should be borne by the taxable person and it will be deductible for income tax purposes.

When taxed and exempt transactions are jointly carried out, the deduction of the input tax must be made in the proportion in which the income corresponds to taxable transactions in relation to the total income, excluding the tax itself.

Capital goods. There are no special input tax recovery rules for capital goods. If a capital good is used for both taxable and exempt supplies, the business must apportion the input tax by using partial exemption (see above). The business should carry out a proportion calculation and apply the percentage of the taxable and exempt revenues over the total revenues for the declared period, excluding the tax itself.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax recoverable in a period exceeds the amount of output tax payable, the taxable person receives an input tax credit. The credit may be carried forward to offset output tax in the subsequent VAT period. If it is not possible to offset the input tax credit in the following period, the taxable person may use the excess as a credit in the following fiscal year. VAT credits are not refunded.

A frequent exporter that regularly has VAT credits may request a document called a "cancellation certificate" from the VAT authorities to help ease cash flow. The exporter may sell the cancellation certificate to other taxpayers that can offset it against their own VAT liabilities.

Law 52 of 2012 grants certain taxpayers' privileges for input tax deduction. This provision applies to manufacturers of foods or medicines and to businesses involved in the agriculture sector whose revenues exceed USD300,000. These taxpayers do not charge VAT, but they may not offset input tax against other tax liabilities.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax incurred on pre-registration costs in Panama, is not recoverable.

Write-off of bad debts. The output tax can only be deducted for bad debts, if the following requirements are met:
- The values are properly recorded for and have been declared as taxable transactions
- The insolvency of the debtor or the prescription of the debt is verified to prove the insolvability of the debtor (e.g., cessation of payment or bankruptcy)

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred upon purchases that are used for noneconomic activities, is not recoverable in Panama.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Panama does not refund VAT incurred by foreign or non-established businesses that are not registered for VAT in Panama.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A taxable person must provide a VAT invoice for all taxable services and supplies made, including exports. An invoice is necessary to support a claim for input tax credit. Special fiscal equipment authorized by the tax authorities must be used.

Credit notes. A VAT credit note may be used to reduce VAT charged (within 180 days) and reclaimed on a supply if the value is reduced for any reason (for example, the price changes or goods are returned as a result of a discount or bonus). A credit note must generally contain the same information as a tax invoice.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is not allowed in Panama. No electronic invoicing rules are effective in Panama. However, the tax authorities are carrying out a pilot scheme to authorize the use of electronic invoices for 43 specific businesses who can participate. At the time of preparing this chapter, the pilot scheme remains unchanged for 2020, and the use of electronic invoices has not been widely implemented for all businesses yet.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified VAT invoicing is not allowed in Panama. As such, full VAT invoices are required.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not authorized in Panama.

Proof of exports. VAT is not chargeable on qualified supplies of exported goods. To qualify, exports must be supported by documents that confirm that the goods have left Panama, such as customs documents, export invoices and copies of bills of lading.

Foreign currency invoices. If a VAT invoice is issued in a foreign currency, the amounts must be converted into Panamanian balboas (PAB), or US dollars (USD).

Supplies to nontaxable persons. All invoices should comply with the minimum requirements, there are no special rules for supplies to private consumers.

Records.

Record retention period. The general statute of limitation for VAT records in Panama is five years.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving may be done electronically, if the archive is compliant with the electronic document law.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. All taxpayers must submit VAT returns monthly. Monthly returns must be submitted by the 15th day of the month following the end of the return period.

Periodic payments. Payment of VAT due must be made in full by the same date as the VAT return submission deadline (i.e., by the 15th day of the month following the end of the return period). Return liabilities must be paid in Panamanian balboas or US dollars.

Electronic filing. It is possible to file the VAT returns electronically, however, in order to do that the individual or entity will need to request an NIT (numero de identificacion tributaria), a tax ID number from the tax authorities. This special number is required for all online tax processes on the website of the Panamanian tax authorities (e.g., tax declarations, statements), enabling corporations to be managed remotely.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Panama.

Special schemes. No special schemes are available in Panama.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Panama.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in Panama.

Digital reporting. It is possible to file the VAT returns electronically, however, to do that the individual or entity will need to request an NIT (numero de identificacion tributaria), a tax ID number from the tax authorities.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. There are no additional specific penalties for late registration of VAT taxpayers.

Penalties for late payment and filings. If a taxpayer does not pay VAT on time, the penalty is 10% of the VAT due plus interest, per month or fraction of a month, from the date the tax should have been paid until the date of payment. The interest rate is 2% over the interest reference rate indicated by the Banking Commission. For fiscal year 2019, the applicable interest rate is 0.8%. This interest rate is updated annually. At the time of preparing this chapter, the applicable interest rate for the fiscal year 2020 has not yet been released.

Penalties for errors. A fine of USD10 may be imposed for late filing if no VAT is due as a result of credits in favor of the taxpayer. Fines of USD100 to USD500 may be imposed for filing inaccurate VAT tax returns that do not result in a reduction in the tax payment, issuing invoices without being registered with the tax authorities and failure to comply with regulations regarding the carryforward of tax credits. Recidivism is penalized with fines ranging from USD500 up to USD5,000 and temporary closure of the business.

VAT returns may be amended only once per period and within a maximum period of 12 months following the date on which the original VAT return was due. The filing of the amended return costs USD100 for individuals and USD500 for legal entities if the amended return is filed more than three months after the due date for the original VAT return. Tax fraud is punished with penalties varying from 5 to 10 times the amount of undeclared VAT or by imprisonment for a period of 2 to 5 years.

Penalties for fraud. A new Code of Tax Procedures for the Republic of Panama (hereinafter, TPC), will predominately enter into force from 1 January 2020. With these changes, tax evasion is now considered as a crime (said disposition has been added to the Penal code and the Tax Code has been modified). Tax evasion will be considered as a crime, whenever someone intentionally avoids taxes (by omitting, hiding, falsifying or deceiving the tax office), for themselves or for a third party, for USD300,000 or above in a calendar year.

Tax evasion will be punished with a penalty of two to four years, who, personally or by an interposed person, receive, possess, deposit, negotiate, transfer or convert money, securities, real estate and other financial resources, knowing that they come from crimes against the National Treasury, in order to hide, cover up or hide their illicit origin, or help evade the consequences legal of such punishable act.

Additionally, it is established that, if the crime has been committed through one or more legal persons, the penalty will be imposed on the legal entity in question and will be a fine of one to three times the amount of the tax defrauded.

On the other hand, crimes against the National Treasury are as follows:

- It will be punished with imprisonment of two to four years, who in own-or third-party benefit and intentionally incur tax fraud against the National Treasury and affect the correct determination of a tax obligation to stop paying, totally or partially, the corresponding taxes.
- It will be punished with imprisonment of two to four years and with a fine of one to three times the amount of the tax defrauded, who gets fraudulently an exemption, return, enjoyment or use of improper tax benefits.

B. Scope of the tax

GST applies to the following transactions:

- Taxable supplies of goods and services, which are supplies connected to Papua New Guinea (PNG) or deemed to be supplied in PNG and made for consideration in the course of a taxable activity by an entity that is registered or that is required to be registered for GST
- Reverse charge on services received from abroad that are made to a registered entity in PNG
- Taxable importations of goods into PNG, regardless of the status of the importer

An activity does not need to be carried on for the purposes of making a profit for it to be registered for GST. “Taxable activity” means a business activity that is carried on continuously or regularly by a person, whether or not for a pecuniary profit, and involves or is intended to involve, in whole or in part, the supply of goods and services to another person for a consideration, and includes any such business activity carried on in the form of a trade, manufacture, profession, vocation, association or club.

C. Who is liable

GST registration is mandatory if either of the following thresholds is met:
- The total value of supplies (excluding exempt supplies) made in PNG in a month and the 11 months immediately preceding that month in the course of carrying on all taxable activities that exceeds PGK250,000.
- The projected GST turnover, which is the value of taxable supplies made or likely to be made in the current month plus the next 11 months, is reasonably likely to exceed PGK250,000.

Exemption from registration. The GST law in PNG does not contain any provision for exemption from registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. An entity that has turnover below the registration threshold may apply to register for GST voluntarily if the entity is carrying on a taxable activity.

An entity that is a not-for-profit body may apply in writing to the Commissioner General of Internal Revenue to register for GST voluntarily if the entity is carrying on a taxable activity.

Group registration. Subject to certain requirements, two or more companies that have an aggregate of common voting interests of 90% or greater constitute a wholly owned group for the purpose of the GST Act and may apply to the Commissioner General of Internal Revenue to form a GST group. Other entities (e.g., partnerships and trusts) that satisfy common control tests may also apply for grouping. The effect of GST grouping is to treat the group members as a single entity for certain purposes. In general, all GST liabilities and input tax credit entitlements for group members are attributed to a representative member of the group, and the group submits a single GST return.

A registered person carrying on its activities in branches or divisions may apply in writing to the Commissioner General of Internal Revenue for a branch or division to be registered as a separate registered person. Certain requirements must be met relating to the nature of the activities and accounting systems of proposed GST branches. In addition, a branch of a registered entity may not be registered as a GST branch if the entity is a member of a GST group.

Non-established businesses. GST applies to taxable supplies and to taxable importations made by nonresident. Branches of foreign entities carrying on taxable or other activities in PNG are required to register and charge GST with respect to their supplies.

Tax representatives. When a GST-registered person dies, or an entity is placed into liquidation or receivership, or becomes bankrupt or incapacitated, the person appointed as personal representative, liquidator, receiver or agent is deemed to be the “specified agent” and carries on the taxable activity from the date of appointment. The specified agent is not personally liable for any liabilities incurred before the date of appointment. The agency period ends when another person is registered in respect of the taxable activity or when the appointment ceases, whichever is the earlier.

Reverse charge. If a service is deemed to be supplied in PNG under the provisions of the GST Act, reverse-charge provisions can apply if all of the following conditions are met:
- The supplier is a nonresident.
- The supplier does not make the supply through an enterprise that it carries on in PNG.
- The recipient is registered (or is required to be registered) for GST.

If a resource company makes exempt supplies, the reverse-charge provisions apply.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in PNG.

Digital economy. For business-to-business (B2B) transactions, the customer is expected to reverse charge the GST liability where the principal is deemed to make the supply in PNG. A PNG GST input tax credit arises for the customer, assuming the supply is acquired for the principal purpose of conducting taxable activities.

For business-to-consumer (B2C) transactions, the individual will generally not be GST-registered (or required to be registered), as the individual will generally not be carrying on taxable activities.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in PNG.

Registration procedures. After a company is registered with the Investment Promotion Authority, it should apply to the IRC for a taxation identification number (TIN). The Form TIN1 application requires various details of the enterprise and the company must attach proof of identity of the authorized signatory. There is no online filing facility, however, a scanned email copy should be acceptable.

Deregistration. An entity that ceases to carry on business may request in writing that the Commissioner General of Internal Revenue cancel its GST registration. An entity must notify the PNG IRC that it is no longer entitled to be registered within 21 days after ceasing operations. An entity that is no longer required to be registered may apply to cancel its registration. However, the Commissioner General of Internal Revenue is not required to cancel the registration if a business has been registered for less than 12 months.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of GST, including the zero rate.

The GST rates are:
- Standard rate: 10%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of GST applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for the zero rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%
- Sale of going concerns
- Supplies of goods and services to foreign aid providers
- Supplies of goods and services to nonprofit bodies, which are religious, charitable or community organizations carrying on charitable activities approved by the Commissioner General of Internal Revenue, provided that the supplies or goods are not used for profit-making taxable activities
- International travel
- Exported goods and services

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to GST and do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services
- Financial services
- Certain fine metals
- Medical services

- Educational services
- Public transport and taxis
- Newspapers
- Supplies of housing or motor vehicles by employers to employees
- Specific exemptions as notified in the National Gazette

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in PNG.

E. Time of supply

For the purpose of the GST Act, a supply of goods and services is generally deemed to take place at the earlier of the time of issuance of an invoice by the supplier or the recipient or the time of receipt of any payment by the supplier with respect to the supply.

Deposits and prepayments. There are no specific time of supply rules in PNG for deposits and prepayments. As such, the normal time of supply rules apply.

Continuous supplies of services. Where goods or services are supplied progressively or periodically, those goods or services are deemed to be supplied successively. Each successive supply is deemed to take place at the earliest of when payment for that supply becomes due, is received or any invoice relating only to that payment is issued.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no specific time of supply rules in PNG for goods sent on approval or returns. As such, the normal time of supply rules apply.

Reverse-charge services. For reverse-charge services, the recipient is required to account for the services in the period in which the services are paid for. If the consideration is not in money, the services need to be accounted for in the period in which the services are performed.

Leased assets. Where goods are supplied under a hire or lease agreement, they are deemed to be successively supplied for successive parts of the period of the agreement. Each of the successive supplies is deemed to take place when a payment becomes due or is received, whichever is the earlier. The treatment is the same irrespective of the type of lease (i.e., whether ownership of the underlying asset is transferred or not).

Imported goods. GST is payable for imported goods at the time of importation. A deferral scheme may apply. Under the scheme, GST on importations is deferred such that where the importer is entitled to a full GST input credit for the import GST, the import GST liability will be offset against that credit.

Goods imported temporarily into PNG under the provisions of the Customs Act are zero-rated for GST purposes and import duty is not applied to these goods. In general, the importer must provide a security bond of 10%. The bond paid for temporary imports is intended to be refunded when the goods are re-exported out of the country. Goods are classified as temporary imports if they are re-exported within 12 months.

If imported goods remain in the country for more than 12 months, the goods are deemed to be permanent imports and the bond is forfeited. The applicable GST can then be claimed as an input credit (subject to the normal rules).

F. Recovery of GST by registered entities

A registered entity may recover input tax credits with respect to creditable acquisitions. These credits correspond to the GST included in the consideration for goods and services that a registered entity acquires for creditable purposes. A registered entity generally recovers input tax by offsetting them against GST payable on taxable supplies.

Input tax credits correspond to GST included in the consideration for goods and services acquired in PNG, GST paid on importations of goods and GST paid under reverse-charge arrangements.

In general, valid tax invoices or customs documents must be retained to support claims for input tax credits.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Housing or motor vehicles provided to employees
- Entertainment or leisure club facilities
- Acquisitions made for purpose of making exempt supplies
- If no valid tax invoice is held

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Imports
- Trading stock
- Business occupancy costs
- Repairs and maintenance

Partial exemption. GST on acquisitions of goods and services used to make exempt supplies or on acquisitions that are not used for business purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use) are not eligible to be claimed as an input credit. Where an acquisition is used for both taxable and exempt supplies, only the proportion of GST that relates to taxable supplies may be claimed as an input credit. The apportionment is generally required to be calculated on a monthly basis with an annual reconciliation of total input and output tax to be done within 60 days of the taxpayer's fiscal year. Where the input credits calculated on the annual basis differ from the total of the monthly calculations any excess input credits based on the annual calculations are refundable. Where the total of the monthly input credits exceeds the annual calculation, the excess is payable at the time the annual reconciliation is due.

Capital goods. There are no specific rules applicable to capital goods. Where the acquisition of capital goods is solely for the purpose of making taxable supplies, the input GST is allowable as an input credit in the taxable period in which the supply was made to the person or the period in which the GST input tax was paid or invoiced in the case of imported capital goods. Where capital goods are used for making both taxable and exempt supplies, the same rules for claiming input credits on other goods apply.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax credits in a period exceeds the GST payable in the same period, the excess amount is technically refundable to the taxpayer. However, in practice, it is often necessary to first satisfy the IRC that the refund is valid.

Pre-registration costs. GST paid on acquisitions made by a person within six months prior to incorporation of a company may be claimed as an input credit by the company after it is registered. The acquisition must have been made by a person who becomes a member, officer or employee of the company and that person must have been fully reimbursed for the consideration paid. The acquisition must also have been for the purpose of a taxable activity to be carried on the company. The input credit is claimable in the taxable period in which the reimbursement is made.

Other than in the above circumstances, GST in respect of pre-registration acquisitions may not be claimed as input credits.

Write-off of bad debts. Where a registered person accounts for GST on the accruals basis and writes off all or part of an amount previously reported as a taxable supply, the person is entitled to claim a deduction for the amount of the GST included in the amount written off as a bad debt in the period in which the debt is written off.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred in relation to noneconomic activities is not recoverable in PNG.

G. Recovery of GST by non-registered businesses

Only entities that are registered for GST may claim refunds of GST incurred on acquisitions in PNG. In general, entities (including nonresidents) that make acquisitions in PNG for the purpose of carrying on taxable activities may register for GST if necessary.

H. Invoicing

GST invoices. In general, a registered person must provide a tax invoice for all taxable supplies made if requested to do so by the recipient of a supply. A tax invoice is not required for supplies with a GST-inclusive amount of PGK50 or less.

In general, a tax invoice is necessary to support claims for input tax credits.

Credit notes. An adjustment note (or credit or debit note) may be issued to reduce or increase the amount of GST payable on a supply if the amount of GST originally charged is incorrect (for example, as a result of an error or an agreed adjustment to the price). The adjustment note must be clearly marked either as an adjustment note or as a tax invoice (provided the amount of any credit is shown as a negative amount), and it must provide detailed particulars of the adjustment made.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is permitted for all taxpayers, but it is not mandatory. To facilitate the electronic transfer of tax invoices, the Commissioner may approve the use of symbols, abbreviations or other notations to represent any particulars normally required to be shown on a tax invoice.

Simplified VAT invoices. Where the consideration for the supply is less than PGK200, neither the name nor address of the recipient nor the quantity or volume of the goods and services supplied is required to be shown on the invoice. Also, where the consideration for the supply is less than PGK50, no tax invoice is required to be issued.

Self-billing. With prior approval of the Commissioner, the supplier and recipient can agree that the supplier does not issue a tax invoice and instead the recipient issues a document with the words "buyer-created tax invoice — IRC approved" in a prominent place.

Proof of exports. Exports of goods are zero-rated (GST-free). To qualify as GST-free, goods must be entered for export under the Customs Act and the Commissioner General of Internal Revenue must be satisfied that the goods have been exported to a place outside PNG. Zero-rating applies if the goods are exported within 28 days, unless unforeseeable circumstances delay the shipment of the goods.

Foreign currency invoices. All invoices must be expressed in PNG Kina and the exchange rate at the time of supply is required to be used. Where the consideration is agreed in a foreign currency, that can also be shown on the invoice.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. There are no specific rules for GST invoices for supplies made to private consumers. However, where the consideration for the supply is less than PGK50, no tax invoice is required to be issued.

Records. The records required to be kept include books of account (manual or electronic) recording receipts of payments of income or expenditure, vouchers, bank statements, invoices, tax invoices, credit notes, debit notes, receipts, and such other documents as are necessary to verify the entries in the books of account. The records need to be in English unless approval of the Commissioner is obtained.

Record retention period. All relevant records must be kept for at least seven years after the end of the taxable period to which they relate and may be kept in electronic format. The seven-year period may be extended if the Commissioner gives notice in writing of audit activity.

Electronic archiving. Copies of invoices are required to be kept in PNG, unless otherwise approved by the Commissioner. Records may be kept in electronic format.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. GST liabilities are reported in a GST return. A registered person must file the GST return in the required form on or before the 21st day of the following tax period (a calendar month).

Periodic payments. GST liabilities must be paid in PNG Kina by the 21st day following the tax period. The payment should be made by electronic funds transfer.

Company directors have personal liability if the company defaults on its GST obligations.

Electronic filing. The IRC has introduced a basic electronic filing option. It is necessary to scan the signed paper form and attach it to an email with details of the electronic funds transfer.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in PNG.

Special schemes.

Secondhand goods. Where secondhand goods situated in PNG are acquired by a registered person by way of a sale that is not a taxable supply, the registered person is allowed to claim an input credit equal to the tax fraction (1/11th) of the consideration in money for the supply.

Accrual basis of accounting. When an entity registers for GST, it automatically goes on an accrual (or invoice) basis of accounting for GST. For businesses that account for GST on an accrual basis, GST is payable with respect to a taxable supply for the tax period in which the invoice is issued or when any consideration is received for the supply, whichever is earlier.

Cash or payment basis of accounting. Entities with annual turnover that does not exceed PGK1.25 million may account for GST on a cash basis. Cash accounting is also available to certain entities regardless of turnover. These entities include local authorities, not-for-profit bodies and other entities subject to the discretion of the Commissioner General of Internal Revenue. Cash accounting is allowed when the Commissioner General of Internal Revenue grants approval in writing.

For entities using cash accounting, GST is payable with respect to a taxable supply in the tax period in which the consideration is received. If only part of the consideration is received in a particular tax period, GST is payable only on that part.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in PNG.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in PNG.

Digital reporting. No digital reporting requirements apply in PNG.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. Penalty for late registration of GST is a liability to a fine not exceeding PGK25,000.

Penalties for late payment and filings. Penalty for late payment is 10% of the unpaid amount at the due date plus 20% per annum on the unpaid amount from the due date until paid.

Penalties for errors. Penalty for errors is a liability to a fine not exceeding PGK25,000.

Penalties for fraud. Penalty for fraud is a liability to a fine not exceeding PGK25,000.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:

- The supply of goods or services made in Paraguay by a taxable individual or business
- The importation of goods from outside Paraguay, regardless of the status of the importer

C. Who is liable

A VAT taxpayer is any business entity or individual that makes taxable supplies of goods or services in the course of doing business in Paraguay. The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to VAT.

The definition of a VAT taxpayer also applies to the following:
- Permanent establishment of a foreign business in Paraguay
- Transparent legal structures (i.e., trusts, investment funds and risk-sharing contracts)
- Undivided successions

Withholding VAT. Companies designated as withholding VAT (WHT) agents must withhold and pay VAT and issue virtual vouchers through the Paraguayan Tax Authority webpage for any tax withheld. Also, they must submit monthly tax returns indicating information related to purchases, sales and withheld tax. Returns must be filed electronically.

Exemption from registration. The VAT law in Paraguay does not contain any provision for exemption from registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. The VAT law in Paraguay does not contain any provision for voluntary VAT registration, as there is no registration threshold (i.e., all entities that make taxable supplies are obliged to register for VAT).

Group registration. Group VAT registration is not allowed in Paraguay.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that has no fixed establishment in Paraguay. A non-established business is not required to become a taxpayer by obtaining a tax ID in Paraguay.

Tax representatives. It is mandatory for all corporate entities (i.e., not individuals) to have their own legal representative in Paraguay.

For non-established corporate entities, if they are to operate in Paraguay, they must have a fixed establishment. If they make supplies that are not physically in Paraguay, then there is no need for a fixed establishment.. For example, if an UK company sells a license for software and supplied it to customers in Paraguay, it is not necessary for that UK company to establish a fixed establishment in Paraguay, to sell the license in Paraguay.

For tax purposes, companies must appoint a legal representative(s) on Tax Form 605 or Tax Form 615. In those forms, the company must complete all the information related to the business, including type of entity, tax obligations and legal representative(s) information, among others.

Reverse charge. Paraguayan tax legislation does not provide "reverse charges" for VAT purposes. VAT on the provision of services by nonresidents is collected by means of WHT (see the subsection Withholding VAT for more detail).

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Paraguay.

Digital economy. For digital business-to-business (B2B) transactions, VAT is applied when the customer located in Paraguay makes a payment to a nonresident business; the Paraguayan customer is obligated to act as the VAT withholding agent for the payment made abroad through virtual vouchers issued by the Paraguayan tax authority webpage.

For digital business-to-consumer (B2C) transactions, VAT is applied when the customer located in Paraguay makes a payment to the nonresident business. Individual customers who are Paraguayan taxpayers are required to act as the VAT withholding agents for the payment made abroad through virtual vouchers issued by the Paraguayan tax authority webpage. An individual who is not a Paraguayan taxpayer cannot act as a withholding agent, consequently it is not possible to issue a virtual voucher as mentioned above.

Individuals who are only taxed by personal income tax and VAT are allowed to issue electronic invoices through the Paraguayan tax authority webpage. The Paraguayan tax authority announced that virtual invoices will be implemented by the end of FY2018 for corporate income taxpayers.

Online marketplaces and platforms. A digital service is deemed to be rendered in Paraguay, and therefore subject to local VAT, when any of the following is located in Paraguay:
- The IP address of the device used by the customer or country code of the SIM card
- The customer billing address
- The bank account used for the payment
- The billing address of the customer as available to the bank
- The financial institution issuing the credit or debit card with which the payment is made

Where a payment for digital services is made through a financial institution in Paraguay, the financial institution is responsible for collecting and remitting VAT at the standard rate of 10% on the payment.

Registration procedures. Registration starts through an online process; immediately after the registering taxpayer will receive a confirmation by email, and present physically the following documents:
- Public deed of incorporation of the company in Paraguay
- Tax Form 605
- Copy of legal representative's ID card

Deregistration. The following documents are required for deregistration of any Paraguayan taxpayer:
- Public deed of liquidation of the company (if the taxpayer is a business)
- Certificate of indebtedness with the Paraguayan Tax Authority
- Cancellation of Tax Validity Number or "Timbrado" number (Tax Form 621)
- Cancellation of tax identification number or "RUC" (Tax Form 623)
- Copy of legal representative's personal ID card (if the taxpayer is a business — if not, the personal ID card of the taxable individual). If the business or individual decides to deregister from VAT only, they must file Form 615 or 610, respectively.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 10%
- Reduced rate: 5%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 5%

- Basic family products
- Pharmaceutical goods
- Sale or housing purposes lease of real estate
- Agricultural products and cattle

A reduced tax base applies to certain supplies, thereby reducing the effective rate of VAT.

Examples of goods and services with a reduced tax base

- Certain imports of goods under specified tax treatment (Decree 1931/19)
- Real estate

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies

- Foreign currency
- Oil by-product fuels
- Interest on public securities
- Interest on bank deposits, books, certificates and shares
- Exportation of goods and exportation freight services
- Transfer of credits is also VAT exempted

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Paraguay.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point." The basic time of supply for goods is when they are transferred. For importations, tax obligation begins at the moment that the goods are registered at the Paraguayan customs office.

For services, the basic time of supply is when they are performed and/or totally or partially collected. Specifically, the obligation to pay VAT begins after any of the following:

- The appropriate invoice is issued
- Partial or total payment for the service is received
- The deadline for payment passes
- The service is totally executed

Invoices must be issued on the date in which the tax point occurs.

Deposits and prepayments. Where a deposit is paid in respect of goods, the goods are considered to have been transferred to the customer and therefore the deposit is subject to VAT. According to tax regulations, any prepayments are subject to VAT for both goods and services. There are no special time of supply rules in Paraguay for deposits and prepayments. As such, the general time of supply rules apply.

Continuous supplies of services. There are no special time of supply rules in Paraguay for continuous supplies of goods or services. As such, the general time of supply rules apply.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules in Paraguay for supplies of goods sent on approval for sale or return. As such, the general time of supply rules apply.

Reverse-charge services. Paraguayan tax legislation does not provide for reverse charges for VAT purposes. VAT on the provision of services by nonresidents is collected by means of WHT.

Leased assets. Lease payments and purchase option executions are subject to VAT. There are no special time of supply rules in Paraguay for leased assets. As such, the general time of supply rules apply.

Imported goods. The time of supply for imported goods is either the date of importation or the date on which the goods leave a duty suspension regime.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person generally recovers input tax by offsetting it against output tax (debit VAT).

Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services supplied in or from Paraguay and VAT paid on imports of goods.

A valid tax invoice or customs document must generally support an input tax credit.

According to Paraguayan tax regulations, there are two different ways for taxpayers to recover VAT related to: 1) exportation of goods and exportation freight services; and 2) local withholding VAT.

Both are expressly regulated with formal procedures that must be followed by Paraguayan taxpayers and must include a Certification of VAT Fiscal Credit to be refunded issued by auditing firms registered with the Paraguayan Tax Authority.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for making taxable supplies or that are used for nonbusiness purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use by an entrepreneur). In addition, input tax may not be recovered for some items of business expenditure.

The following lists provide some examples of items of expenditure for which input tax is not possible to offset and examples of items for which input tax can be offset if the expenditure is related to a taxable business use.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Business gifts
- Private use of business assets

Examples of items for which input tax can be offset (if related to a taxable business use)

- Purchase, lease and hire of cars, vans and trucks, as well as maintenance charges
- Parking
- Taxis
- Travel expenses
- Conferences and seminars
- Mobile telephone advertising and sponsorship
- Overall acquisition of goods and services directly related to business use

Partial exemption. Paraguayan taxpayers can recover VAT fiscal credit for input tax incurred on expenses that relate to taxable activities. If the fiscal credit is directly related to exempt activities, the taxpayer cannot use it. The only exempt activity that input tax can be recovered in relation to, is exportation operations (except agricultural products) The VAT fiscal credits are nonrecoverable for all other input tax incurred in relation to exempt activities. The taxpayer must include a Certification of VAT Fiscal Credit to be refunded issued by auditing firms registered with the Paraguayan tax authority.

Where a taxpayer makes both taxable and exempt activities, they must evaluate the origin of each fiscal credit. If it directly relates to a taxable activity, the taxpayer can get the input tax back in full. If the cost cannot be directly related to a taxable or exempt activity, it has to be proportionally calculated across both activities. The calculation is based on the amount of the last six months' worth of sales (i.e., the turnover of the business in those areas in the last six months).

Capital goods. When a Paraguayan company invests in capital goods, there is an incentive law that applies, and no VAT is charged. This means that the business must initially pay the VAT on the purchase of capital goods, then they can offset it against fiscal credits, as long as they are making local supplies in Paraguay. To apply this regime, specific requirements established by laws must be met.

No special time limits apply to the input tax recovery of capital goods.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax (credit VAT) recoverable in a month exceeds the amount of output tax (debit VAT) payable, the excess credit may be carried forward to offset output tax in the following tax period.

If a VAT taxpayer overpaid VAT or paid VAT in error, it may correct the VAT return and use the overpayment to offset output tax in the following tax period or they could start a very formal process in order to reimburse the VAT paid in error.

Pre-registration costs. A taxpayer can amortize preoperative cost within three to five years, but they cannot recover any pre-registration or preoperative costs.

Write-off of bad debts. Output tax accounted for on supplies that do not get paid by the recipient (i.e., bad debts) can be recovered in Paraguay. The following conditions must be met in order to recover the debt:

- The bad debts are credits which, after 36 months from the date on which they became due, have not been collected
- The credits whose debtors are inhibited from selling goods (this only applies the first year in which the inhibition resolution was enacted)
- The claims of debtors who have been declared in bankrupt by the judicial authority
- The withdrawals granted in concordats approved by the judicial authority
- The bad debts must be recorded in the accounting and tax records

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred on purchases that are used for noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Paraguay.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Paraguay does not refund VAT incurred by foreign businesses unless the foreign businesses have a permanent establishment and are registered to pay VAT in Paraguay.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A VAT taxpayer must generally provide a VAT invoice for all taxable supplies made, including exports (exempted). A VAT invoice is necessary to support an input tax credit.

Credit notes. A VAT credit note may be used to reduce the VAT charged and reclaimed on a supply of goods and services. A credit note must contain a brief explanation stating the reason for the adjustment, and it must be cross-referenced to the original VAT invoice number.

Electronic invoicing. Recent Decree No. 7795/17 established a national system of electronic invoicing, which allows local taxpayers to issue electronic invoices with a previous authorization by the tax administration. Please note that the Paraguayan tax authority is developing a pilot program with selected taxpayers to issue electronic invoices. Electronic invoicing is, nevertheless, available for individuals that are not corporate income taxpayers.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified VAT invoicing is not allowed in Paraguay. Nevertheless, the tax law provides some specifics types of sales documentations, such as airlines tickets, sales notes, public shows tickets, among others. These can only be used for the relevant types of suppliers (i.e., airlines can use airline tickets, micro-businesses can use sales notes and show providers can use public show tickets, instead of full VAT invoices).

Self-billing. Self-billing is acceptable only in exceptional cases. For example, in cases where the supplier is not VAT registered and is selling an asset, the buyer (who is VAT registered) must issue the invoice on behalf of the supplier.

Proof of exports. VAT is not chargeable on supplies of exported goods. However, to qualify as VAT-free, exports must be supported by an exportation file and customs documents proving that the goods have left Paraguay.

Foreign currency invoices. If a VAT invoice is issued in a foreign currency, all amounts must be converted to Paraguayan currency "guarani," using the exchange rate published by the tax authority for recording purposes (local books).

Supplies to nontaxable persons. Full VAT invoicing is mandatory for all transactions. If the buyer does not require an invoice, the seller must complete it with "no name" and an "X" in the RUC space.

However, for supplies to nontaxable persons, taxpayers must still issue a full VAT invoice but without the name of the customer.

Records. All documentation related to taxes, including accounting books and records, documents, invoices, purchase and sales invoices, must be held by taxpayers in Paraguay.

Record retention period. The action for collection of the taxes shall expire after five years from 1 January of the year following that in which the obligation should have been fulfilled. For annual taxes on income or profits, it shall be understood that the taxable event occurs at the close of the fiscal year.

It is mandatory to keep tax files during the abovementioned statute of limitation period.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is permitted in Paraguay if the requirements are met: a digital signature and the documents must be stored for five years in a durable format (e.g., pdf).

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. VAT returns are submitted on a monthly basis as general period, quarterly for agribusiness, biannual for nonprofit institutions and each four months for some minor taxpayers. The due date for VAT returns depends on the last number of the VAT taxpayer's tax identification number.

Periodic payments. The due date for VAT payment depends on the last number of the VAT taxpayer's tax identification number. Return liabilities must be paid in Paraguayan currency.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is not mandatory but optional. However, most taxpayers choose to file VAT returns electronically online (www.set.gov.py under "Sistema Marangatú").

Payments on account. The Paraguayan tax authority may require VAT payments on account at the end of the fiscal period. This is only applicable when a taxpayer does not submit their tax return or pay taxes online on time. In this case, the tax authorities can claim the overdue tax from the previous tax return as a payment on account. However, while this facility is included in the law, it is not enforced in Paraguay and it is not common.

Special schemes.

Tourist VAT system. The Paraguayan tax authority provides a specific list of products that a tourist can buy with a VAT exemption by presenting his/her passport. The taxpayer must be registered in the tourist regime and a copy of the tourist's passport is attached to the VAT exempt invoice.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Paraguay.

Supplementary filings. The Paraguayan tax authority may require a taxpayer to use special books, sales and purchase books, records or forms of accounting for VAT purposes, according to the category of the taxpayer. This would only be required to be submitted where the tax authorities request this from a taxpayer, which can be done by the tax authorities on demand. The tax authorities may also request copies of invoices from certain suppliers.

Digital reporting. All the taxpayer obligations must be presented through the "Marangatu System," which is a software created by the Paraguayan tax authority (https://marangatu.set.gov.py/eset/login). This is an online tax system developed in-house for every taxpayer. This online/electronic system is mandatory for every taxpayer in Paraguay, as all returns and payments have to be submitted through this system. Taxpayers will log on using their own tax ID and password.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. Penalties are assessed for late registration for VAT. In addition, fines and interest are also applicable if the taxable individual owes VAT.

Penalties for late payment and filings. A default penalty is charged on late payments of VAT. The penalty begins at 4% of the tax due and increases by 2% per month, up to a maximum of 14% (charged for a delay of more than five months). In addition to the default penalty, monthly interest is charged on unpaid tax at a rate of 1.5% per month, calculated on a daily basis.

Penalties for errors. Omission of payments is equivalent to 50% of the whole tax unpaid.

Penalties for fraud. A taxpayer who intends to achieve an unlawful gain is deemed to commit fraud. Fraud is punished with a fine equal to one to three times the amount of the tax amount related to the fraud or the intention to defraud.

Penalties for severe cases of nonpayment of VAT, infringement of VAT regulations and fraud include criminal sanctions, such as fines and imprisonment.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- The sale of movable property in Peru

- The provision of services in Peru
- The use of services in Peru rendered by nonresidents
- Construction contracts
- The first sale of real property by the builder
- The importation of goods from outside Peru, regardless of the status of the importer

C. Who is liable

A VAT taxpayer is any business entity that performs any VAT taxable transaction in the course of doing business in Peru. In addition, individuals are liable to VAT if they perform such activities on a "habitual" basis. The Peruvian VAT law does not define "habitual" for transactions performed by individuals; the nature, amount and frequency of the operations must be considered.

No registration threshold applies. The definition of a VAT taxpayer applies to branches, agencies and other permanent establishments of a foreign business in Peru.

Exemption from registration. The VAT Act in Peru does not contain any provision for exemption from registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. VAT law in Peru does not contain any provision for voluntary VAT registration.

Group registration. Group VAT registration is not allowed in Peru.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that has no fixed establishment in Peru. A non-established business must register for VAT if it performs any of the VAT taxable transactions, such as the sale of movable goods or the supply of services in Peru.

Tax representatives. Any person may be appointed by the company's legal representative to represent the taxpayer before the tax administration. For that purpose, the company's legal representative must be registered before the tax administration.

Reverse charge. The reverse charge applies to the import of goods and the services in Peru. Under this mechanism, the importer of goods and user of services is charged with an output tax. This VAT is recoverable as a credit against future output tax charges from the following month of its payment.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Peru.

Digital economy. For business-to-business (B2B) transactions, the digital service charged to a local entity by a nonresident business is subject to VAT under the reverse-charge mechanism. Under this mechanism, the local customer accounts for output tax (18%) on the value of the digital service payment, and in the following month the customer may recover this VAT as a credit against output tax. The nonresident business is not expected to remit VAT.

The sale of intangible goods is subject to VAT if it is performed within Peru. According to Peruvian legislation, it is understood that a sale of intangible goods is performed within Peru when the buyer and the seller are domiciled entities.

For business-to-consumer (B2C) transactions, the operation is not subject to VAT in Peru.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Peru.

Registration procedures. In order to be considered a VAT taxpayer, a tax identification number (Registro Unico de Contribuyente, or RUC) must be obtained. To do so, the tax representative must complete the Form 2119 and provide an identification document, as well as the company's electronic record, provided by the Peruvian Public Registry and any document to accredit its residence. The registration procedure for companies can only be carried out in the tax administration's offices; it has no cost, and the RUC is provided immediately. Online registration is available for individuals.

Deregistration. Under Peruvian tax legislation, there is no VAT registration. However, taxpayers must register in a "Taxpayer Register" (called in Spanish "RUC") in order to be able to comply with its tax obligations before the tax administration (i.e., obtaining a tax ID, filing of tax returns, and payment of taxes, among others).

In that sense, when a company stops its business operations in Peru (i.e., due to a transfer of business, bankruptcy, etc.), it must request before the tax administration the cancellation of its registration in the RUC. The tax administration will approve the cancellation of the taxpayer's register in the RUC. However, it is important to mention that this situation does not release the taxpayer from complying with other tax obligations that might be applicable.

In addition, according to VAT law, a company that stops its business cannot claim any refund of the remaining input tax.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 18%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for an exemption.

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Fruits and vegetables
- Educational services
- Public transportation
- Exports of goods

Option to tax for exempt supplies. It is possible to waive exemption of VAT for the sale and importation of goods listed in Appendix I of the Peruvian VAT law (which principally includes some animals, fruits and vegetables), but not for the provision of services. In this regard, the taxpayer must communicate its decision to the tax administration and comply with all the requirements and conditions laid down. This request comprises all the exempt goods, not specific categories or goods. After the tax administration is notified, it has 45 days to approve or deny the request. Should the request be approved, the VAT will be applicable as of the first day of the month after the request is approved. The election to waive exemption is definitive.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point." The following are the rules for determining the basic time of supply for goods and services:
- Sale of movable property within the country: when the goods are delivered or when the invoice (or payment voucher) is issued or should be issued, whichever is earlier
- Provision of services in the country: when the invoice (or payment voucher) is issued or should be issued or when the payment is made, whichever is earlier
- Use of services in the country rendered by nonresidents: when the invoice (or payment voucher) is registered in the domiciled entity's accounting records or when the payment is made, whichever is earlier

- Construction contracts: when the invoice (or payment voucher) is issued or should be issued or when the payment is totally or partially made, whichever is earlier
- First sale of real property sold by the builder: when the payment is either totally or partially made

The following are the rules for determining the time of issuing invoices:
- Sale of movable property within the country: when the goods are delivered or when the payment is made, whichever is earlier
- Provision of services in the country: when the service has concluded, when the payment is partially or totally made or when the deadline established for the payment of the services has expired, whichever is earlier
- Construction contracts: when the payment is totally or partially made
- First sale of real property sold by the builder: when the payment is totally or partially made

Deposits and prepayments. In general terms, prepayments related to taxable transactions are subject to VAT (there are some exceptions, such as guarantees that do not exceed the 3% value). Thus, partial payments received in advance to the delivery of goods, are subject to VAT on the date of the transaction and for the amount of the partial payment.

Continuous supplies of services. There is no special time of supply rule in Peru for continuous supplies. As such, the general time of supply rules apply.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There is no special time of supply rule in Peru for supplies of goods sent on approval for sale or return. As such, the general time of supply rules apply.

Reverse-charge services. The reverse charge applies to the import of goods and the use of services in Peru.

Leased assets. There is no special time of supply rule in Peru for supplies of leased assets. As such, the general time of supply rules apply.

Imported goods. The time of supply for the import of goods is either when goods clear customs or when the goods leave a duty suspension regime. In the case of import of intangible goods, the time of supply is when the payment is either totally or partially made or when the invoice (or payment voucher) is registered in the domiciled entity's accounting records, whichever is earlier.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

For all of the transactions listed in Section B, VAT payable is determined on a monthly basis by deducting from the gross tax (output tax) the corresponding VAT credit (input tax).

VAT paid on imports of goods or the use of services in the country must be paid directly to the tax administration. For such supplies, VAT payable equals the gross tax and no deduction for VAT credit is allowed. After the VAT is paid, it may be used as VAT credit. As a result, a financial cost may be incurred for the time period beginning with the date of payment and ending on the date on which the VAT credit is used to offset the gross tax on the transactions listed in Section B.

The gross tax corresponding to each taxable operation is determined by applying the VAT rate of 18% to the tax base (for example, the value of goods and services or the value of construction contracts). The VAT credit consists of the VAT separately itemized in the payment voucher (or corresponding document) relating to any of the activities listed in Section B.

The following are requirements for the use of the VAT credit:
- The acquisition cost is allowed as an expense or cost for income tax purposes, and the acquisition is intended for operations in which the obligation to pay the VAT will arise.
- The tax must be stated separately in the payment voucher, and the payment voucher must be completed according to applicable law and registered in the purchase book appropriately.

For nonresident purchasers of goods or services, the VAT paid may not be used as a credit. However, under Peruvian VAT law, reimbursement of the VAT paid when acquiring goods is allowed if the purchaser is a nonresident tourist who remains within Peru between 2 and 60 calendar days, and the acquired goods are taken abroad by the nonresident tourist. The nonresident tourist must request the reimbursement when leaving the country and satisfy all requirements in the VAT law and its regulations.

Exporters are reimbursed for any VAT paid on the acquisition of goods and services. Exporters can apply such reimbursement as a credit to offset VAT or income tax liabilities. Any balance may be refunded by the tax administration.

The early recovery VAT system allows an early recovery of the VAT credit with respect to acquisitions of goods and services, construction contracts, importations and other transactions without having to wait to recover such amount from a client when the corresponding invoice for sales of goods, services or construction contracts, including VAT, is issued to the client.

This regime provides relief of the financial costs (cost of money) with respect to projects that have a significant preoperative stage and if advance invoices transferring the VAT burden cannot be issued periodically to the client.

The law provides for a general and enhanced early recovery system for enterprises performing productive activities.

Under the general system, which applies to all productive companies in a preoperative stage, the VAT paid on the acquisition of capital goods is reimbursed through negotiable credit notes.

The enhanced system is restricted to companies that satisfy the following conditions:

- They have to file a sworn statement describing its investment project and features, detailing the equipment and services under the project.
- They make a minimum investment commitment of USD5 million to projects with a preoperative stage of at least two years.

Under the enhanced system, VAT paid on construction contracts and on the acquisition of new capital goods and intermediate goods and services can be recovered through negotiable credit notes filed on a monthly basis and taxpayers can request the VAT accumulated for up to six months. The negotiable credit notes are able to be exchanged by check as requested by the beneficiary.

The use of one system does not preclude using the other system for different items.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for making taxable supplies or that are not used for business purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use by an entrepreneur). If expenditure relates to both business and nonbusiness activities, only the portion related to the business may be recovered. In addition, input tax may not be recovered for some items of business expenditure.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Personal expenses

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Advertising and sponsorship
- Business gifts, if the value does not exceed 0.5% of the taxpayer's annual gross revenues, with a maximum limit of 40 tax units (approximately USD50,400)
- Business entertainment expenses, if the value does not exceed 0.5% of the taxpayer's annual gross revenues, with a maximum limit of 40 tax units (approximately USD50,400)
- Mobile phones

- Parking
- Fuel
- Taxis
- Travel expenses

Partial exemption. If a taxable person makes both taxable and nontaxable transactions, it may not deduct input tax in full from output tax. It may deduct only the amount of input tax related to the goods and services used in taxable transactions. For this purpose, VAT payers shall maintain separate accounts for taxable and nontaxable transactions, as well as for the services and goods purchased for conducting such transactions. If it is not possible, the amount of input tax subject to deduction in each reporting period must be prorated based on a procedure established by the Regulations of the VAT law.

Capital goods. Capital goods are items of capital expenditure that are used in a business over several years. VAT paid on the acquisition of capital goods may be used as a tax credit (input tax). A tax credit arising from the acquisition of capital goods may be offset with debit VAT (output tax) in the month in which capital goods are acquired.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax (credit VAT) recoverable in a month exceeds the amount of output tax (debit VAT) payable, the excess credit may be carried forward to offset output tax in the following tax period.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax incurred on pre-registration costs in Peru is not recoverable.

Write-off of bad debts. Output tax accounted for on supplies that do not get paid by the recipient (i.e., bad debts) cannot be recovered in Peru.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred in relation to noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Peru.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Peru does not generally refund VAT incurred by foreign businesses unless they have a permanent establishment or business established in Peru. Foreign businesses established in Peru recover VAT in the same manner as all other VAT-registered businesses.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A VAT taxpayer must generally provide a VAT invoice for all taxable supplies made, including exports. A VAT invoice is necessary to support a claim for input tax credit.

Credit notes. A VAT credit note may be used to reduce the VAT charged on a supply of goods and services in certain circumstances (for instance, for rebates, trade discounts, bonuses, returned goods or errant charges). A credit note must refer to the VAT invoice for the original transaction and contain the same basic information.

Electronic invoicing. The use of electronic invoices, credit notes and debit notes is required for taxpayers nominated by the tax administration. Other taxpayers may voluntarily use electronic invoices, credit notes and debit notes, provided that they comply with certain conditions.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified VAT invoicing is not allowed in Peru. As such, full VAT invoices are required.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Peru.

Proof of exports. Exported goods and services are exempt from Peruvian VAT.

For a service to qualify as an export, it must meet the following requirements:

- It is provided for a consideration from another country, which must be demonstrated with the payment receipt issued and recorded in the sales and income register.
- The exporter is a resident entity in Peru.
- The user or beneficiary of the service is an individual nonresident in Peru.
- The use or exploitation of the services provided to the nonresident takes place abroad.
- The exporter of services shall be previously registered in the Register of Exporters of Services of the tax administration (SUNAT).

Also, there is a list of operations that qualify as exports, even when they do not meet the above requirements. These operations include the sale of goods, national or nationalized, to establishments located in an international zone of ports or airports; transportation services for passengers or merchandise rendered by national shipping companies within the country to abroad; and the air cargo transportation services carried out within the country to abroad; etc.

For exports of goods, the sale must be performed from a resident in Peru to a nonresident, and the customs documents must provide evidence that the goods have left the country.

Exporters may recover VAT paid on the acquisition of goods and services. Exporters may apply to be reimbursed for VAT paid through credit notes. Credit notes may be used to offset either output tax or income tax liabilities.

Foreign currency invoices. If a VAT invoice is issued in a foreign currency, the value must be converted to Peruvian Sol (PEN), which is the Peruvian currency, using the sales exchange rate in force according to the time of supply for each transaction.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. There are no special rules in Peru for invoices for supplies to nontaxable persons. Full VAT invoices are required.

Records. Taxpayers must keep their purchase and sales registers to record their acquisitions and sales transactions.

Record retention period. Taxpayers must store, archive and keep the purchase and sales registers for five years or during the statutory period of limitation for taxes.

Electronic archiving. The tax administration has progressively implemented the obligation of taxpayers of keeping electronic accounting books and registers for a five-year period or the statutory period of limitation.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. VAT returns must be submitted monthly. Taxpayers must fulfill their tax obligations between the 7th business day and the 16th business day of the month following the date on which the tax obligation arises.

Periodic payments. The exact date for payment depends on the Tax Terms Schedule, which is approved annually by the Peruvian tax administration. The Tax Terms Schedule indicates the due date for taxpayers based on their tax identification number (RUC). Return liabilities must be paid in Peruvian Sol.

VAT withholding systems must be applied in certain transactions (supply of certain goods and services). Those systems imply an advanced collection of the tax and were designed by the tax administration to prevent tax evasion.

Electronic filing. VAT returns should be submitted monthly using the Virtual Program No. 00621 (http://www2.sunat.gob.pe/pdt/pdtdown/independientes/independientes.htm).Taxpayers use the electronic account known as "CLAVE SOL" (http://www.sunat.gob.pe/) to submit returns. Once the RUC is obtained, the tax administration provides each taxpayer the ID and password for CLAVE SOL.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Peru.

Special schemes. Not applicable.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Peru.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in Peru.

Digital reporting. Taxpayers are obliged to file periodic reports detailing their electronic invoices issued and account books to the tax administration.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. If taxpayers do not follow the registration procedures, there is a penalty of one Tax Reference Unit (UIT), which is approximately USD1,27,260.

Penalties for late payment and filings. No penalties apply in Peru for late payment of VAT. However, interest will be charged for the unpaid taxes (at a monthly rate of 1.2%). For the late filing of the VAT return, there is a penalty of one UIT, which is approximately USD1,272.

Penalties for errors. The penalty for failure to include taxable transactions in the VAT return is 50% of the omitted tax if an amount of VAT is payable. Interest is charged at a monthly rate of 1.2% on late payments or underpayments of VAT. This fine can be reduced by up to 95% under certain conditions.

Penalties for fraud. Criminal tax evasion may be punished by a term of imprisonment, a fine, or both, depending on the severity of the case.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- The taxable sale, barter, exchange, use or lease of goods or property by a taxable person
- The taxable sale or exchange of services by a taxable person (see below)
- The taxable importation of goods from outside the Philippines
- Deemed sale transactions (see below)

The taxable sale or exchange of services includes the following:
- Lease or use of a copyright, patent design or model, plan, secret formula or process, goodwill, trademark, trade brand or other similar property
- Lease or use of industrial, commercial or scientific equipment
- Supply of scientific, technical, industrial or commercial knowledge or information
- Supply of assistance that is ancillary and subsidiary to and is furnished as a means of enabling the application or enjoyment of industrial, commercial or scientific equipment or scientific, technical, industrial or commercial knowledge or information
- Supply of services by a nonresident person or his or her employee with respect to the use of property or rights belonging to the nonresident, or the installation or operation of a brand, machinery or other apparatus purchased from such nonresident
- Supply of technical advice, assistance or services rendered with respect to the technical management or administration of a scientific, industrial or commercial undertaking, venture, project or scheme
- Lease of motion picture, other films, tapes and discs
- Lease or use of or the right to use radio, television, satellite transmission and cable television time

VAT applies to deemed sale transactions such as the following:
- Transfer, use or consumption not in the course of business of goods or property originally intended for sale or use
- Distribution or transfer to shareholders or investors as a share in the profits of a VAT-registered person or to creditors in payment of debt
- Consignment of goods if an actual sale is not made within 60 days following the date such goods were consigned
- Retirement from or cessation of business, with respect to inventories of taxable goods existing as of such retirement or cessation

C. Who is liable

A taxable person is any individual, trust, estate, partnership, corporation, joint venture, cooperative or association that carries out any of the following activities in the course of a trade or business:
- Sells, barters, exchanges or leases goods or property
- Renders services
- Imports goods

In addition, if the importer is exempt from tax, the purchaser, transferee or recipient of imported goods is liable for VAT, regardless of whether such person is a registered VAT taxpayer.

Nonresident persons that perform services in the Philippines are deemed to be making sales in the course of a trade or business even if the services are not performed on a regular basis.

In general, a taxable person with gross sales or receipts that have exceeded or that are expected to exceed PHP3 million over a 12-month period must register as a VAT taxpayer.

A radio or TV broadcasting franchisee must register if its gross annual receipts from the franchise exceeded PHP10 million in the preceding calendar year. (Section 119 of the Tax Code).

A professional person is liable for 12% VAT if its gross receipts or fees for the previous 12 months exceed PHP3 million or will exceed this amount in the next 12 months. A professional that is not registered for VAT is liable for the percentage tax at a rate of 3% if its gross receipts for the previous 12 months were equal to or less than this threshold.

Exemption from registration. The VAT law in the Philippines does not contain any provision for exemption from registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. It is possible for a taxpayer that is otherwise generally not required to register for VAT to become VAT registered on a voluntary basis.

Any person who elects to register under optional VAT registration shall not be allowed to cancel VAT registration for the next three years.

VAT registration is optional for the following persons:
- A VAT-exempt person with gross sales or receipts that do not exceed PHP3 million
- A radio or television broadcasting franchisee with gross annual receipts from the franchise that did not exceed PHP10 million in the preceding calendar year

A VAT-registered taxpayer with mixed transactions may opt for VAT to apply to its otherwise VAT-exempt transactions.

The following persons must register as non-VAT persons:
- A VAT-exempt person that is not registered as a VAT taxpayer
- An individual engaged in business with gross sales or receipts of PHP3 million or less in a 12-month period
- Nonstock, nonprofit organizations or associations engaged in trade or business with gross sales or receipts of PHP3 million or less in a 12-month period
- Cooperatives, except electric cooperatives
- Radio and television broadcasters with gross annual receipts of PHP10 million or less that do not opt to be registered for VAT
- Enterprises registered with the Philippine Economic Zone Authority (PEZA) and other economic zones that enjoy a preferential tax rate of 5% instead of paying all taxes
- Enterprises registered with the Subic Bay Metropolitan Authority (SBMA) or with other free port zones that enjoy a preferential tax rate of 5% instead of paying all taxes

Group registration. Group VAT registration is not allowed in the Philippines.

Non-established businesses. A foreign non-established business (or foreign nonresident not engaged in trade or business in the Philippines) is a foreign business that does not have a branch, headquarters or permanent establishment in the Philippines. A foreign non-established business is subject to VAT for services rendered in the Philippines via a withholding process, but it is not required to register.

Tax representatives. A foreign non-established business is not required to appoint a VAT representative in the Philippines. Any resident who deals with a non-established business and who has control over payment for the supply must act as the VAT withholding agent.

Reverse charge. Under the reverse-charge provision, a taxable person that receives a supply of goods or services must withhold the VAT due from the supplier and pay the VAT. The reverse charge applies in the circumstances described below.

Before paying for each taxable (local) purchase of goods or services, the government must deduct and withhold a final VAT of 5% representing the net VAT payable by the seller. Under the "Tax Reform for Acceleration and Inclusion" (TRAIN), beginning 1 January 2021, the VAT withholding system shall shift from final to a creditable system. The remaining 7% is the standard input tax (see Section F) for sales of goods or services to the government, instead of the actual input tax directly attributable or apportioned to these sales. If the actual input tax exceeds 7% of the gross payment, the excess may form part of the seller's expense or cost. If the actual input tax is less than 7% of the gross payment, the difference must be treated as an expense or cost.

A resident must withhold 12% VAT before paying to a nonresident or foreign non-established business the consideration for a nonresident's lease of properties or for property rights or services rendered in the Philippines. A VAT-registered withholding agent may claim the VAT withheld by it as input tax on its own VAT return, subject to the rule on allocation of input tax among taxable, zero-rated and exempt sales (see Section F). If the withholding agent is a non-VAT taxpayer, the VAT paid forms part of the cost of the purchased services and may be treated either as an asset or as an expense, in accordance with general accounting principles.

Under the TRAIN, payments for purchases of goods and services arising from projects funded by Official Development Assistance (ODA) as defined under Republic Act No. 8182, otherwise known as the "Official Development Assistance Act of 1996," as amended, shall not be subject to the final withholding tax system as imposed in this subsection.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in the Philippines.

Digital economy. Taxable persons conducting online business transactions for the sale, barter or exchange of goods and services with gross sales or receipts in excess of PHP3 million in a 12-month period must register as a VAT taxpayer.

The online merchant or retailer is required among others to issue a registered invoice or receipt, either manually or electronically, for every sale, barter, exchange, or lease of goods and services. If the buyer pays through an online intermediary who controls the collections/payments of buyers or markets products/services for its own account and thus considered the retailer/merchant, they are required to issue the invoice/official receipt for the full amount of the sale to the buyer.

Payment gateways such as banks, credit card companies, financial institution and bill paying services are obliged to issue validated bank deposit slips or payment confirmations in the name of the merchant-seller. Freight forwarders and online website administrators are likewise obliged to issue, either electronically or manually, the BIR registered official receipt for the service fees paid by the merchant or advertisers.

Online marketplaces and platforms. Persons who conduct business through online transactions (i.e., online shopping or online retailing, online intermediary service, online advertisement/classified ads, and/or online auction, as defined under Revenue Memorandum Circular No. 55-13) are required to register the business at the Revenue District Office having jurisdiction over the principal place of business/head office (or residence in case of individuals) and comply with other registration requirements. The existing laws and revenue issuances on the tax treatment of purchases (local or imported) and sale (local or international) of goods (tangible or intangible) or services shall be equally applied with no distinction on whether or not the marketing channel is the internet/digital media or the typical and customary medium. Failure to comply with the applicable registration requirements may trigger penal provisions.

Registration procedures. New VAT taxpayers must file an application for registration as a VAT taxpayer. Corporations and partnerships must fill out BIR Form No. 1903 (Application for Registration) or BIR Form No. 1905 (Application for Registration Information Update) and file it with the Revenue District Office (RDO) having jurisdiction over the place where the head office and branch is located together with the required attachments on or before the first sale transaction. New taxpayers are required to pay an annual registration fee of PHP500 at the Authorized Agent Banks (AABs) of the concerned RDO and submit the requirements for authority to print principal and supplementary receipts/invoices and registration of books of accounts. As soon as all the requirements are submitted, the RDO will issue the Certificate of Registration (Form 2303).

Deregistration. A VAT-registered person may cancel its registration for VAT in any of the following circumstances:

- The taxable person's written application to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue (CIR) satisfactorily shows that its gross sales or receipts for the following 12 months (other than those that are exempt) will not exceed PHP3 million.
- The person has ceased to carry on its trade or business and does not expect to recommence any trade or business in the next 12 months.
- A change of ownership in a single proprietorship occurs.
- A partnership or corporation is dissolved.
- A merger or consolidation of a dissolved corporation occurs.
- The person registers before a planned business commencement but fails to start its business.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:

- Standard rate: 12%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for the zero rate or an exemption.

A taxable person that makes zero-rated transactions may use the input tax as credit against VAT liability, or it may file a claim for a refund or apply for a tax credit certificate (TCC).

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Export sales, including the following:
  - Sales of goods exported from the Philippines to a foreign country
  - Sales of raw materials or packaging materials to a nonresident buyer for delivery to a resident exporter for manufacturing, processing, packing or repacking the buyer's goods in the Philippines
  - Sales of raw materials or packaging materials supplied to an exporter with export sales exceeding 70% of its annual production. Under the TRAIN, the second and third items will be converted into a regular VAT-able transaction (12% tax rate) upon satisfaction of the following conditions:
    - The successful establishment and implementation of an enhanced VAT refund system that grants refunds of creditable input tax within ninety (90) days from the filing of the VAT refund application with the Bureau. As long as all applications filed from 1 January 2018 are processed and decided within ninety (90) days from the filing of the VAT refund application

    And
    - All pending VAT refund claims as of 31 December 2017 are fully paid in cash by 31 December 2019

- Sale of goods, supplies, equipment and fuel to persons engaged in international shipping or international air transport operations: provided that the goods, supplies, equipment and fuel shall be used for international shipping or air transport operations
- Processing, manufacturing or repacking goods for other persons doing business outside the Philippines that are subsequently exported, where the services are paid for in acceptable foreign currency and accounted for in accordance with the rules and regulations of the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas (BSP)
- Services performed by subcontractors and/or contractors in processing, converting, or manufacturing goods for an enterprise whose export sales exceed seventy percent (70%) of total annual production. Under the TRAIN, the immediately preceding two items will be similarly charged at the standard rate of VAT upon satisfaction of the following conditions:
  - The successful establishment and implementation of an enhanced VAT refund system that grants refunds of creditable input tax within ninety (90) days from the filing of the VAT refund application with the Bureau. As long as all applications filed from 1 January 2018 are processed and decided within ninety (90) days from the filing of the VAT refund application

    And
  - All pending VAT refund claims as of 31 December 2017 are fully paid in cash by 31 December 2019
- Services other than processing, manufacturing, or repacking goods rendered to a person engaged in business conducted outside the Philippines or to a nonresident person not engaged in business who is outside the Philippines when the services are performed, the consideration for which is paid for in acceptable foreign currency and accounted for in accordance with the rules and regulations of the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas (BSP)
- Transport of passengers and cargo by domestic air or sea vessels from the Philippines to a foreign country

  And
- Sale of power or fuel generated through renewable sources of energy such as, but not limited to, biomass, solar, wind, hydropower, geothermal, ocean energy and other emerging energy sources using technologies such as fuel cells and hydrogen fuels
- Services rendered to persons engaged in international shipping or air transport operations, provided that these services shall be exclusive for international shipping or air transport operations
- Services of contractors or subcontractors in processing or manufacturing goods for exporters with export sales exceeding 70% of annual production
- Local sales of goods, properties and services by a VAT-registered person to a person or entity that was granted indirect tax exemption under special laws or international agreements

The term “exempt” refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- The sale or import of the following items:
  - Agricultural or marine food products in their original state
  - Livestock or poultry used as, or for producing, foods for human consumption
  - Breeding stock and related genetic materials
  - Fertilizers, seeds, fingerlings, fish, prawn, livestock, or poultry feeds and ingredients used for manufacturing finished feeds that are unfit for human consumption or ingredients that cannot be used for the production of products for human consumption as certified by the Food and Drug Administration (except specialty feeds for racehorses, fighting cocks, zoo animals or pets)
- Import of the following items:
  - Personal or household effects of residents returning from abroad or nonresident citizens coming to resettle in the Philippines if the items qualify for exemption from customs duties

— Professional instruments and implements, tools of trade, occupation or employment, wearing apparel, domestic animals, and personal and household effects belonging to persons coming to live in the Philippines or Filipinos or their families and descendants who are now residents or citizens of other countries (such parties hereinafter referred to as overseas Filipinos) in quantities and of the class suitable to the profession, rank or position of the persons importing said items, for their own use and not for barter or sale, accompanying such persons, or arriving within a reasonable time. The Bureau of Customs (BOC) upon the production of satisfactory evidence that such persons are actually coming to settle in the Philippines and that the goods are brought from their former place of abode, exempt such goods from payment of duties and taxes. Vehicles, vessels, aircrafts, machineries and other similar goods for use in manufacture, shall not fall within this classification and shall therefore be subject to duties, taxes, and other charges

- Services rendered by agricultural contract growers and milling for others of palay (unhusked rice) into rice, corn into grits and sugar cane into raw sugar
- Services subject to percentage taxes
- Domestic common carriers by land (which must be a holder of a valid and current Certificate of Public Convenience to be considered as such) for passenger transport (subject to percentage tax under Section 117 of the Tax Code)
- Garage keepers (subject to percentage tax under Section 117 of the Tax Code)
- International air or shipping carriers (subject to percentage tax under Section 118 of the Tax Code)
- Sales of gold to the Philippines Central Bank (Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas, or BSP)
- Radio or television broadcast franchisees with annual gross receipts of PHP10 million or less (subject to percentage tax under Section 119 of the Tax Code)
- Gas and water utilities' franchisees (subject to percentage tax under Section 119 of the Tax Code)
- Persons, companies and corporations (not cooperatives or associations) engaged in providing life insurance in the Philippines (subject to percentage tax under Section 123 of the Tax Code)
- Fire, marine or other insurance agents of foreign insurance companies (subject to percentage tax under Section 124 of the Tax Code)
- Proprietors or lessees or operators of cockpits, clubs, boxing, professional basketball, jai-alai and race tracks (subject to percentage tax under Section 125 of the Tax Code)
- Individual employees (services rendered by individuals pursuant to an employer-employee relationship)
- Providers for overseas dispatches, messages or conversations from the Philippines (subject to percentage tax under Section 120 of the Tax Code)
- Sales or exchanges of shares listed and traded at the local exchange or by initial public offering (subject to percentage tax under Section 127(B) of the Tax Code)
- Medical, dental, hospital and veterinary services, except those rendered by professionals
- Educational services of government or accredited private educational institutions
- Services rendered by regional or area headquarters established in the Philippines by multinational corporations that act as supervisory, communications and coordinating center for their affiliates, subsidiaries or branches in the Asia-Pacific region and do not earn or derive income from the Philippines
- Transactions exempted under international agreements signed by the Philippines or under special laws
- Sales by agricultural cooperatives to members, sales of their produce to nonmembers and the import of direct farm inputs, equipment or spare parts for producing or processing farm produce
- Lending by credit or multipurpose cooperatives
- Sales by nonagricultural or nonelectric or noncredit cooperatives if a member's capital contribution cap is PHP15,000
- Sales of the following real properties:

  — Real properties not primarily held for sale, lease or use in the ordinary course of trade or business
  — Low-cost housing, up to PHP750,000
  — Socialized housing, up to PHP450,000
  — Residential lots up to PHP1.5 million
  — Houses, lots and other residential dwellings, up to PHP2.5 million
- The lease of residential units for rent not exceeding: PHP15,000 a month
- The sale, import, printing or publication of books and newspapers or magazines appearing at regular intervals that have fixed sale prices and that are not devoted principally to publication of paid advertisements
- Sale, importation or lease of passenger or cargo vessels and aircraft, including engine, equipment and spare parts thereof for domestic or international transport operations
- Importation of fuel, goods and supplies by persons engaged in international shipping or air transport operations. As long as the fuel, goods and supplies are used for international shipping or air transport operations
- Services of banks, nonbank financial intermediaries performing quasi-banking functions, and other nonbank financial intermediaries, such as money changers and pawnshops (subject to percentage tax under Section 122 of the tax code
- Sale or lease of goods or properties or services up to PHP3 million annually
- Transfer of property pursuant to Section 40(C)(2) of the Philippine Tax Code (i.e., tax-free exchanges of property, mergers, and acquisitions)
- Sale of goods or services to "senior citizens," as defined under Republic Act (RA) No. 9994 or the Expanded Senior Citizens Act of 2010
- Sale of goods or services to persons with disability (PWD) under Republic Act (RA) No. 10754 or An Act Expanding the Benefits and Privileges of Persons with Disability

Option to tax for exempt supplies. A VAT registered person may elect that exempt transactions be registered for VAT purposes. Once the election is made, it shall be irrevocable for a period of three years counted from the quarter when the election was made except for franchise grantees of radio and TV broadcasting whose annual gross receipts for the preceding year do not exceed PHP10 million where the option becomes perpetually irrevocable.

E. Time of supply

The time of supply or tax point is the time when the VAT becomes due. The following are the general rules for the time of supply:
- For importations — before the release of the goods (whether or not for business) from customs custody
- For the sale or deemed sale, barter or exchange of taxable goods or properties — at the time of the transaction, regardless of when actual payment is made
- For installment sales of real property — when each actual payment is made or at the constructive receipt date for each installment payment
- For the use or lease of property — when each actual payment is made or at the constructive receipt date for each installment payment
- For supplies of services — when each actual payment is made or at the constructive receipt date for each installment payment

Deposits and prepayments. In general, receipt of a deposit or prepayment creates a tax point if the amount is paid as part of the total payment for a particular supply.

If a prepayment constitutes a prepaid lease rental, it is taxable for the lessor in the month in which the payment is received. However, a security deposit is not subject to VAT until it is applied to the rental.

Continuous supplies of services. For continuous supplies of services, a tax point is created each time a payment is made.

Goods sent on approval for sale ore return. Goods sent on approval are not subject to VAT until they are actually sold.

If an actual sale of consigned goods is not made within 60 days after the date on which the goods were consigned, a sale is deemed to take place, unless the consigned goods are returned by the consignee within the 60-day period.

Reverse-charge services. The tax point for reverse-charge services is when the consideration is paid.

Leased assets. For supplies of leased assets, the time of supply is when each actual payment is made or at the consecutive receipt date for each installment payment.

Imported goods. VAT is imposed on goods brought into the Philippines, whether for use in business or not. It is based on the total value used by the Bureau of Customs (BOC) in determining tariff and customs duties, plus customs duties, excise tax, if any, and other charges imposed prior to the release of the goods from customs custody. If the valuation used by the BOC in computing customs duties is based on volume or quantity of the imported goods, the landed cost shall be the basis for computing VAT. Landed cost consists of the invoice amount, customs duties, freight, insurance, other charges and excise tax, if any. The VAT on importation shall be paid by the importer prior to the release of such goods from customs custody.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A VAT-registered person may recover input tax, which is VAT charged on the person's import of goods or local purchases of goods or services (including property leases) from another VAT-registered person, in the course of the person's trade or business. A VAT-registered person may also recover input tax withheld from payment to a nonresident business for taxable services (i.e., rendered within the Philippines), royalties and rentals. A VAT-registered person generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax, which is the VAT charged on the sale or lease of taxable goods or properties or services. If at the end of the tax quarter, a VAT-registered person's output tax exceeds input tax, the person must pay the excess. If input tax exceeds output tax, the excess is carried over to the next quarter or quarters.

Special rules apply to input tax related to capital goods, mixed, partially exempt and zero-rated transactions (see below).

Input tax related to certain transactions may be creditable against output tax if the tax paid is evidenced by a VAT invoice or official receipt issued by a VAT-registered person. The following table lists such transactions.

- Goods purchased or imported for any of the following purposes:
  - — Sale of the goods themselves
  - — Conversion into a finished product for sale, or goods intended to form part of a finished product for sale, including packaging materials
  - — Use of supplies in the course of business
  - — Use of raw materials in a supply of services
  - — Use in trade or business for which deduction for depreciation or amortization is allowed
- The purchase of real property on which VAT has been paid
- The purchase of services on which VAT has been paid
- Transactions deemed to be sales
- Transitional input tax of 2% of value of beginning inventory or of the actual VAT paid, whichever is higher

- Presumptive input tax of 4% of the gross value of purchases of primary agricultural products used as inputs in the production of sardines, mackerel, milk, refined sugar, cooking oil and packed noodle-based instant meals
- Transitional input tax credits allowed under the law and regulations

For purposes of the above table, transitional input tax is a form of input tax allowed on transition from non-VAT-registered status to VAT-registered status. It may be credited against output tax when the VAT registration takes effect. Presumptive input tax is a form of fixed input tax allowed to persons or firms engaged in the processing of sardines, mackerel, and milk, and in manufacturing refined sugar, cooking oil and packed noodle-based instant meals. In general, it may be credited against output tax on the consummation of purchases of primary agricultural products (used as inputs to production).

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on the purchase or importation of goods and services that are not used for business purposes.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Purchases of a non-VAT-registered taxpayer from a VAT-registered taxpayer that are not related to a taxable business use
- A denied input tax refund claim that does not meet the requirements or elements described above

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Purchases of a non-VAT registered taxpayer from a VAT-registered taxpayer.
- A denied input tax refund claim may be claimed as a deduction from gross income if the loss is actually sustained by the taxpayer; sustained during the taxable year; not compensated by insurance or other forms of indemnity; incurred in the taxpayer's trade, profession, or business; and evidenced by a closed and completed transaction. In the Philippines, when a claim for input tax is denied by the tax authorities, there may be a basis to treat this as a deductible loss instead, as long as the conditions described above are met. Otherwise, the denied input tax (or loss) may be considered nondeductible.

Partial exemption. Input tax that is directly attributed to transactions subject to VAT may be recognized for tax credit. However, input tax that is directly attributable to VAT taxable sales of goods and services to the government is not available for credit against output tax related to supplies made to nongovernment entities.

Input tax that is not directly attributable to either VAT taxable or VAT-exempt transactions must be prorated monthly between VAT taxable and VAT-exempt transactions. Input tax credit is permitted only for the portion of input tax that relates to transactions subject to VAT.

A VAT-registered person making supplies of goods, property and services that are zero-rated (or effectively zero-rated) may apply for a tax credit certificate (TCC) or a refund of input tax attributable to these sales (except for the portion of the excess input tax that has already been applied against output tax). The default claim shall be a cash refund unless the claimant applies for the issuance of a TCC.

Under Section 112 (A) of the Tax Code, as amended, the request may be made within two years after the close of the tax quarter in which the sales are made.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue (CIR) must grant the TCC or refund within 90 days after the date of submission of all documents required with respect to the claim. Should the Commissioner find that the grant of refund is not proper, the Commissioner must state in writing the legal and factual basis for the denial. Failure on the part of any official, agent, or employee of the BIR to act on the application within the 90-day period shall be punishable.

Capital goods. A VAT-registered person's purchases or imports of capital or depreciable goods may be claimed as credit against output tax, in accordance with the rules described below.

If the aggregate acquisition cost exceeds PHP1 million in a calendar month, regardless of the unit cost of the capital goods, and if the capital goods have an estimated useful life of five years or more, a claim for input tax credit begins in the month in which the capital goods are acquired and is spread evenly over 60 months. The credit is spread evenly over the actual number of months of the useful life of the asset if its estimated useful life is less than five years.

If the aggregate acquisition cost does not exceed PHP1 million in a calendar month, the total input tax is allowable as a credit against output tax in the month of acquisition.

The amortization of the input tax shall only be allowed until 31 December 2021, after which taxpayers with unutilized input tax on capital goods purchased or imported shall be allowed to apply the same as scheduled until fully utilized.

Refunds. Any input tax attributable to zero-rated sales by a VAT-registered person may at his option be refunded or applied for a TCC.

The administrative claim for VAT refund or TCC must be filed within two years from the close of the taxable quarter when the zero-rated sales and/or effectively zero-rated sales were made.

The application for VAT refund must be accompanied by complete supporting documents as specifically enumerated in existing revenue regulations. The application shall be denied if the taxpayer fails to submit the complete supporting documents.

The CIR shall have 90 days from the submission of the complete supporting documents within which to decide whether or not to grant the claim. If the claim is not acted upon by the commissioner within the 90 days, such inaction shall be deemed a denial of the claim.

In case of a denial, the taxpayer should file a judicial claim with the Court of Tax Appeals (CTA) (i) within 30 days from receipt of the Commissioner's decision denying the claim (whether in full or in part) within the 90-day period, or (ii) from the expiration of the 90-day period if the Commissioner does not act within the 90-day period. The taxpayer is required to observe the 90 plus 30-day rule before lodging a petition for review with the CTA.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax incurred on pre-registration costs in Philippines, is not recoverable.

Write-off of bad debts. There is no specific provision on relief of VAT on bad debts. The VAT is generally based on the gross selling price (for sales of goods or properties) or gross receipts (sale of services). However, if the bad debts will reduce the gross selling price or gross receipts this may effectively reduce VAT payable.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred in relation to noneconomic activities is not recoverable in the Philippines.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

The Philippines does not refund VAT incurred by businesses that are neither established in the Philippines nor registered for VAT purposes.

A VAT-registered person that acts as a withholding agent for a supply made by a nonresident may recover the VAT withheld as input tax, on filing its own VAT return, subject to the normal rules on allocation of input tax. If the resident withholding agent is a non-VAT taxpayer, the VAT forms part of the cost of purchased services and the VAT may be treated either as an asset or expense (subject to normal accounting principles).

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A VAT-registered person must issue a VAT invoice for every sale, barter or exchange of goods or property or a VAT official receipt for every lease of goods or property and for every sale, barter or exchange of services. An authority to print (ATP) receipts or sales invoices must be secured from the tax authorities. The official receipt or invoice shall be valid for five years from the issuance of the ATP or the full usage of the inclusive serial numbers of the receipts/invoices reflected in the ATP, whichever comes first.

Credit notes. A VAT credit note may be used to reduce the VAT charged on supply of goods or services. Tax credit and debit notes must show the same information as a VAT invoice or receipt.

Electronic invoicing. Within five years from the effectivity of the TRAIN (i.e., 1 January 2018) and upon establishment of a system capable of storing and processing the required data, the Philippine tax authorities shall require taxpayers engaged in the export of goods and services, taxpayers engaged in e-commerce, taxpayers under the jurisdiction of the large taxpayers service to issue electronic receipts or sales or commercial invoices in lieu of manual receipts or sales or commercial invoices, subject to rules and regulations yet to be issued.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified VAT invoicing is not allowed in the Philippines. As such, full VAT invoices are required.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in the Philippines.

Proof of exports. Export sales are subject to the zero rate of VAT if the goods are shipped from the Philippines to a foreign country. The goods must be paid for in acceptable foreign currency (or its equivalent in goods or services), and it must be accounted for in accordance with the rules of the BSP. The sale and shipment of goods must be proven by the following documents:

- VAT invoices that contain the term "zero-rated sale" written or printed on the invoice
- Bills of lading
- Inward letters of credit
- Landing certificates
- Other relevant commercial documents

Foreign currency invoices. If a VAT invoice or official receipt is issued in a foreign currency, all values that are required to be paid must be converted into Philippine pesos, using an acceptable exchange rate.

Supplies to nontaxable person. There are no special invoicing rules for supplies to private consumers. As such, the general invoicing requirements described above apply, and full VAT invoices must be issued for all supplies.

Records.

Record retention period. All taxpayers are required to preserve their books of accounts, including subsidiary books and other accounting records, for a period of 10 years reckoned from the day following the deadline in filing a return, or if filed after the deadline, from the date of the filing of the return, for the taxable year when the last entry was made in the books of accounts. This is provided that within the first five years reckoned from the day following the deadline in filing a return, or if filed after the deadline, from the date of the filing of the return, for the taxable year when the last entry was made in the books of accounts, the taxpayer shall retain hard copies of the books of accounts, including subsidiary books and other accounting records. Thereafter, the taxpayer may retain only an electronic copy of the hard copy (paper) of the books of accounts, subsidiary books and other accounting records in an electronic storage system which complies with the requirements set forth under Section 2-A hereof.

Electronic archiving. Records can be kept and archived electronically.

However, under the TRAIN, within five years from the effectivity of the TRAIN (from 1 January 2018) and upon the establishment of a system capable of storing and processing the required data. the Bureau shall require taxpayers engaged in the export of goods and services, taxpayers engaged in e-commerce, and taxpayers under the jurisdiction of the Large Taxpayers Service to issue electronic receipts or sales or commercial invoices in lieu of manual receipts or sales or commercial invoices subject to rules and regulations to be issued by the Secretary of Finance upon recommendation of the Commissioner and after a public hearing shall have been held for this purpose. This is provided that taxpayers not covered by the mandate of this provision may issue electronic receipts or, sales or commercial invoices, in lieu of manual receipts, and sales and commercial invoices. In addition, the machines, fiscal devices, and fiscal memory devices shall be at the expense of the taxpayers.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. VAT payers that use a manual filing system must file monthly VAT declarations, not later than the 20th day after the end of each month. Taxpayers must also file quarterly VAT returns showing their quarterly gross sales or receipts within 25 days after the close of the tax quarter.

VAT payers that use the electronic filing are classified according to their business industry and they are given deadlines based on their classification. The due dates for filing range from 21 days to 25 days after the end of the month for each monthly VAT declaration. The return for reporting VAT withholding must be filed, on or before the 10th day of the month following the transaction.

Beginning 1 January 2023, filing and payment of VAT shall be done within 25 days following the close of each taxable quarter).

Periodic payments. VAT payers that use a manual filing system must pay the VAT to an authorized agent bank, not later than the 20th day after the end of each month.

VAT payers that use the electronic filing and payment system are classified according to their business industry and they are given deadlines based on their classification. The due dates for payment range from 21 days to 25 days after the end of the month for each monthly VAT declaration. The tax must be paid, on or before the 10th day of the month following the transaction.

Advance payment of VAT is required for the sale of refined sugar and flour. The advance VAT must be paid by the owner or seller to the Bureau of Internal Revenue through an authorized agent bank or revenue collection officer before any refined sugar or flour can be withdrawn from any refinery or mill. In addition, the VAT on imported goods must be paid before the release of the goods from the Bureau of Customs' custody.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing of VAT returns is mandatory for the following taxpayers:
- Taxpayer account management program taxpayers
- Accredited importer and prospective importer
- National government agencies
- Licensed local contractors
- Enterprises enjoying fiscal incentives
- Top 5,000 individual taxpayers
- Corporations with paid-up capital stock of PHP10 million and above
- Corporations with complete computerized accounting systems
- Government bidders
- Insurance companies and stock brokers
- Large taxpayers
- Top 20,000 private corporations

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in the Philippines.

Special schemes. No special schemes are available in the Philippines.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Philippines.

Supplementary filings.

Summary List of Sales. Under the Reconciliation of Listing for Enforcement (RELIEF) system, VAT taxpayers with quarterly total sales/receipts (net of VAT), exceeding P2,500,000 are required to submit a Summary List of Sales. The RELIEF supports the third-party information program of the Bureau through the cross referencing of third-party information from the taxpayers' Summary Lists of Sales and Purchases prescribed to be submitted on a quarterly basis.

Summary List of Sales and Purchases. VAT taxpayers are also required to submit a quarterly Summary List of Sales and Purchases (SLSP) on disc, specifically the compact disc-recordable (CDR) medium. VAT payers that use a manual filing system must file the quarterly SLSP within 25 days after the close of the tax quarter. VAT payers that use the electronic filing and payment system must submit the quarterly SLSP within 30 days after the close of the quarter.

Digital reporting. No digital reporting requirements apply in the Philippines. However, electronic filing of VAT returns is mandatory for the following taxpayers:

- Taxpayer account management program taxpayers
- Accredited importer and prospective importer
- National government agencies
- Licensed local contractors
- Enterprises enjoying fiscal incentives
- Top 5,000 individual taxpayers
- Corporations with paid-up capital stock of PHP10 million and above
- Corporations with complete computerized accounting systems
- Government bidders
- Insurance companies and stock brokers
- Large taxpayers
- Top 20,000 private corporations

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. The commissioner of the BIR may suspend or close a business establishment for at least five days for the failure of a person to register for VAT as required by law.

Any person who becomes liable to VAT and fails to register as such shall be liable to pay the output tax as if they are a VAT-registered person, but without the benefit of input tax credits for the period in which he was not properly registered.

In addition to the tax required to be paid, a surcharge penalty equivalent to 25% of the amount due, is applicable, in the following cases:

1. Failure to file any return and pay the tax due thereon as required under the provisions of this Code or rules and regulations on the date prescribed
2. Unless otherwise authorized by the Commissioner, filing a return with an internal revenue officer other than those with whom the return is required to be filed
3. Failure to pay the deficiency tax within the time prescribed for its payment in the notice of assessment
4. Failure to pay the full or part of the amount of tax shown on any return required to be filed under the provisions of this Code or rules and regulations, or the full amount of tax due for which no return is required to be filed, on or before the date prescribed for its payment

However, under Section 248 (B) of the Tax Code, as amended, in case of willful neglect to file the return within the period prescribed by this Code or by rules and regulations, or in case a false or fraudulent return is willfully made, the penalty to be imposed shall be 50% of the tax or of the deficiency tax, in case any payment has been made on the basis of such return before the discovery of the falsity or fraud.

This is provided that a substantial under declaration of taxable sales, receipts or income, or a substantial overstatement of deductions, as determined by the Commissioner pursuant to the rules and regulations to be promulgated by the Secretary of Finance, shall constitute prima facie evidence of a false or fraudulent return.

Further failure to report sales, receipts or income in an amount exceeding 30% of that declared per return, and a claim of deductions in an amount exceeding 30% of actual deductions, shall render the taxpayer liable for substantial under declaration of sales, receipts or income or for overstatement of deductions, as mentioned herein.

There shall also be assessed and collected on any unpaid amount of tax, interest at the rate of 12% per annum, or such higher rate as may be prescribed by rules and regulations, from the date prescribed for payment until the amount is fully paid.

Also, under Section 115 (b) of the Tax Code, as amended, the Commissioner or his authorized representative is empowered to suspend the business operations and temporarily close the business establishment of any person for the failure of any person to register as required under Section 236 of the Tax Code, as amended.

The temporary closure of the establishment shall be for the duration of not less than five days and shall be lifted only upon compliance with whatever requirements prescribed by the Commissioner in the closure order.

Penalties for late payment and filings. Civil penalties (25% or 50%) and 12% interest are assessed on the amount due for the following offenses:
- Failure to file a return and pay the tax due based on the return as required by law and rules
- Filing a return with an internal revenue officer other than the officer with whom the return is required to be filed
- Failure to pay the full or part of the tax due or the deficiency tax within the prescribed period
- Willful neglect to file a return within the prescribed period
- Failure to file certain information returns
- Failure of a withholding agent to collect and remit tax or refund excess withholding tax

In addition to other administrative and penal sanctions, the commissioner of the BIR may suspend or close a business establishment for at least five days for the failure to file a VAT return.

Penalties for errors. Civil penalties (25% or 50%) and 12% interest are assessed on the amount due for the erroneous issuance of a VAT invoice or receipt by a person not registered for VAT.

In addition to other administrative and penal sanctions, the commissioner of the BIR may suspend or close a business establishment for at least five days for the failure to issue receipts and invoices, and the understatement of taxable sales or receipts by 30% or more of the correct taxable sales or receipts for the tax quarter.

The conviction of a refusal or failure to indicate separately the output tax on the sale of goods and services on a sales invoice or official receipt, each such act or omission is punished by a fine not less than PHP500,000 but not more than PHP10 million and imprisonment of not less than 6 years but not more than 10 years.

For failure to file, keep or supply a statement, list or information required on the date prescribed shall pay and administrative penalty of P1,000 for each such failure, unless it is shown that such failure is due to reasonable cause and not to wilful neglect.

In addition, there is also an aggregate amount to be imposed for all such failures during a taxable year shall not exceed P25,000.

Penalties for fraud. The following are the consequences of issuing an erroneous VAT invoice or VAT official receipt:

(1) If a person who is not a VAT-registered person issues an invoice or receipt showing his taxpayer identification number (TIN), followed by the word "VAT"
    (a) The issuer shall, in addition to any liability to other percentage taxes, be liable to:
        (i) The tax imposed in Section 106 or 108 without the benefit of any input tax credit
        (ii) A 50% surcharge under Section 248(B) of this Code
    (b) The VAT shall, if the other requisite information required under Subsection (B) hereof is shown on the invoice or receipt, be recognized as an input tax credit to the purchaser under Section 110 of this Code
(2) If a VAT-registered person issues a VAT invoice or VAT official receipt for a VAT-exempt transaction but fails to display prominently on the invoice or receipt the term "VAT exempt sale," the issuer shall be liable to account for the tax imposed in Section 106 or 108 as if Section 109 did not apply.

Moreover, under Section 115 of the Tax Code, as amended, the Commissioner or his authorized representative is empowered to suspend the business operations and temporarily close the business establishment of any person for any of the following violations:

(a) In the case of a VAT-registered person:
    (i) Failure to issue receipts or invoices
    (ii) Failure to file a VAT return as required under Section 114
    (iii) Understatement of taxable sales or receipts by 30% or more of his correct taxable sales or receipts for the taxable quarter
(b) Failure to any person to register as required under Section 236
    (i) The temporary closure of the establishment shall be for the duration of not less than five days and shall be lifted only upon compliance with whatever requirements prescribed by the Commissioner in the closure order.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- The supply of goods and rendering of services in Poland for consideration
- Receipt of reverse-charge services by a taxable person in Poland
- Export and import of goods
- Intra-Community acquisition of goods for consideration in Poland
- Intra-Community supply of goods

The following activities are outside the scope of VAT:
- Transactions that cannot be subject to legal agreements (illegal transactions)
- Sales of businesses (transfers of going concerns or part thereof)

C. Who is liable

A taxable person is a business entity or individual that carries on business activities, regardless of the purpose or result of the business activities. Business activities include all manufacturing, trading and service-providing activities. Business activities also include continuous use of goods and intangible rights with the purpose of obtaining income.

The VAT registration threshold is PLN200,000. The limit may apply in one of the following two ways:
- Retrospectively: the value of supplies of goods or services exceeded PLN200,000 in the preceding tax year.
- Prospectively: at the start of business, the value of supplies of goods or services is expected to exceed PLN200,000. If the business begins after the start of the calendar year, the registration limit applies proportionately to the remainder of the year.

If the value of supplies is not expected to exceed the registration threshold, a new business is exempt from VAT (with some exceptions — please see below).

A taxpayer may choose to register for VAT. This decision must be reported to the tax office before the first taxable transaction is made when the taxpayer starts its activities, or before the beginning of the month from which the taxpayer chooses to register for VAT. Moreover, taxpayers who perform activities exclusively exempt from VAT do not have to register for VAT (registration is facultative).

Taxpayers who lose the right to be VAT exempt can benefit from the exemption no earlier than one year after they lose the right to be VAT exempt.

However, it may waive the exemption. The waiver in writing must be submitted to the appropriate VAT office. If the value of sales exceeds the registration threshold, the exemption is automatically no longer valid and the amount of turnover in excess of the threshold is subject to VAT.

The registration threshold is not applied to the importation of goods and services, to intra-Community acquisition of goods and the supply of goods on which the purchaser is liable to account for VAT. In addition, businesses in the following categories must register for VAT at the commencement of activity, regardless of the amount of turnover:
- Businesses that supply products made from precious metals
- Businesses that supply certain excise products
- Businesses that supply new means of transport
- Businesses that supply buildings or building land
- Businesses that provide legal, consulting and professional services
- Businesses that supply services connected with jewelry

The PLN200,000 registration threshold does not apply to foreign businesses.

Exemption from registration. Foreign businesses (i.e., entities that are not based or that do not have a place of business in Poland) that supply certain services in Poland are not obliged to register for Polish VAT. This exemption is for businesses that supply:

- Services and goods where the Polish purchaser accounts for and pays tax under the reverse-charge mechanism
- Certain services that are subject to a zero rate (e.g., services supplied within Polish seaports, connected with international transport, services of air traffic control rendered for foreign providers of air transportation)

Generally, the recipient of goods and services supplied by foreign business is obliged to account for VAT under the reverse-charge mechanism (with some exceptions). However, starting from 1 April 2013, the reverse-charge mechanism cannot be applied if a supplier of goods is registered for VAT in Poland.

Foreign businesses providing distance sales to Polish individuals are obliged to register for VAT purposes in Poland if the value of their goods sold in Poland exceeded in the previous year PLN160,000 or exceeds PLN160,000 in the current year. Excise duty products, new means of transport and installed goods are not taken into account while calculating the limits.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. Generally, each taxpayer may opt for VAT registration in Poland regardless of PLN200,000 threshold. Taxpayers performing only VAT exempt activities may opt for the VAT registration as well. There is no restrictions in this regard in Polish VAT law.

Group registration. Group VAT registration is not allowed in Poland.

Non-established businesses. A foreign business (that is, an entity that is not established in Poland and that does not have a place of business there) must register for VAT in Poland if it makes taxable supplies of goods or services in Poland.

However, in general, a foreign business is not required to register for VAT in Poland if it supplies exclusively the following services:

- Services and goods for which the Polish purchaser is required to account for and pay tax under the reverse-charge mechanism (see Section E).
- Certain services that are subject to a zero rate (for example, services supplied at Polish seaports with respect to international transport, services of air traffic control rendered for foreign providers of air transportation and transport services related to the import of goods if the cost of transport is included in the tax base of goods; see Section D).

Tax representatives. A non-EU business must appoint a Polish resident tax representative before registering for VAT in Poland. The tax representative is jointly and severally responsible for the tax arrears of the foreign business represented by it.

An EU business is not required to appoint a tax representative to register for VAT in Poland, but it may appoint a tax representative if it chooses to do so.

Reverse charge. Reverse-charge mechanism is generally applicable to intra-Community acquisitions of goods or import of services. Reverse charge is also applicable to supplies of services by foreign entities not having seat or fixed establishment in Poland to the Polish taxpayers and local supplies of goods by foreign entities not having seat or fixed establishment in Poland to the Polish taxpayers.

Domestic reverse charge. The domestic reverse charge has been replaced in Poland by the mandatory split payment mechanism. Effective from 1 November 2019, new regulations apply as regards the use of the split payment mechanism (SPM). The obligatory SPM is being used for the supply of goods and services listed in the VAT regulations that includes, i.e., the goods and services that were covered by the domestic reverse-charge mechanism and the existing scope of joint and several liability of the buyer (e.g., supply of construction services and fraud sensitive goods, such as ferro alloys, plastic waste, steel products, stretch foil, smartphones). See the Periodic payments subsection below for more detail.

Digital economy. In cases of electronic, telecommunication and broadcasting services supplied to VAT-registered businesses, the place of supply is determined according to the general rule, i.e., based on the seat of the acquirer. When dealing with services supplied for nontaxpayers, the place of supply is determined by the customer's seat, permanent place of residence or ordinary place of residence.

The above rule is not applied when:
- Service provider is established or possessed fixed establishment only on the territory of one EU country
- Electronic services are provided to non-VAT taxpayers located on the territory of another EU country
- The total value of electronic services (excluding the VAT amount) does not exceed the threshold of EUR10,000 (PLN42,000)

In cases where the above threshold is exceeded, the general rule regarding the place of supply should be applied. The given general rule could also be applied on the request of the taxpayer — in such situation he has to inform the tax office about such a decision before the 10th day of the month following the month in which this decision was taken.

Mini One-Stop Shop. Poland implemented EU provisions regarding Mini One-Stop Shop (MOSS) for supply of electronic, tele-communication and broadcasting services to nontaxpayers.

If a taxpayer decides to benefit from MOSS simplification he should register through the Polish Ministry of Finance portal (using VIU-R form — for entities from EU or VIN-R form — for entities from outside EU).

Taxpayers that decide to use MOSS simplification should submit VAT returns concerning electronic, telecommunication and broadcasting services electronically not later than on 20th day of the month following the quarter (VAT payments should be arranged within this deadline as well). All the amounts enlisted in such return should be indicated in EUR.

Taxpayers should submit those VAT returns to II Urzad Skarbowy Warszawa-Srodmiescie (Jagiellonska 15, Warsaw, Poland).

Apart from the above, taxpayers that enjoy the MOSS simplification should keep the register of all the transactions that fall within the scope of the MOSS mechanism and — upon request — be presented to the tax authorities.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Poland.

Vouchers. As of 1 January 2019, the amendment to the Polish VAT Act introduced new definitions regarding vouchers, i.e., single-purpose voucher (SPV), multi-purpose voucher (MPV), issue of voucher and voucher transfer.

The SPV shall be understood as a voucher where the place of supply of the goods or services to which the voucher relates, and the VAT due on those goods or services are known at the time of issue of the voucher.

In case of SPV, VAT taxation occurs at the time of the transfer of it. The tax base for the sale of this type of vouchers is determined by applying the general rules for determining the VAT tax base — it shall be the amount paid minus the VAT included in that amount.

Any other voucher shall be treated as MPV. The transfer of such a voucher will not result in taxation — VAT will be charged only when the goods or services covered by the MVP have been actually delivered.

The tax base on account of supply of goods or services made in exchange for an MPV redeemed in full shall, in relation to this voucher, be equal to:
- The consideration paid for this MPV less the tax amount related to the supplied goods or services
- The monetary value indicated on the MPV or in the related documentation, less the amount of tax relating to the goods or services supplied — where the information concerning this consideration is not available

Registration procedures. Prior to performing the first taxable activity, a taxpayer should submit the VAT-R and the NIP-2 or NIP-8 registration forms (which may be submitted electronically under certain conditions). The deadline to issue a registration decision is two weeks, however, in most cases it takes less time. Additionally, prior to performing the first intra-Community acquisition or intra-Community supply taxpayers should obtain VAT-EU number (VAT-R registration is also used for this purpose). Moreover, in case of any changes in scope of the information provided within the VAT-R form, a taxpayer should update the tax office accordingly within seven days after the day the change has occurred.

Deregistration. Deregistration may be conducted either based on the taxpayer's application (filed on VAT-Z form) or officially by a Head of a Local Tax Authority Office (as per the jurisdiction for the particular taxpayer).

The Head of a Local Tax Authority Office is entitled to deregister a taxable person from the register as a VAT payer ex officio, for example, in cases where:
- The taxable person does not exist or despite documented attempts, there is no possibility of contacting that taxable person or its authorized representative.
- The data provided in the application for registration is revealed to be inaccurate.
- The taxable person or its authorized representative does not respond to summons of a tax authority.
- No VAT returns are filed for six months (or two quarters).
- No sales and purchases transactions appear in the VAT returns submitted for six subsequent months (or two quarters).
- The taxable person issues invoices that do not reflect actual actions.

D. VAT rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 23%
- Reduced rates: 5% and 8%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate, the zero rate or an exemption.

As of 1 April 2020, the goods subject to reduced VAT rates will be determined based on:
- Combined Nomenclature (CN) for goods
- Polish Classification of Products and Services of 2015 in the field of services

Moreover, from the beginning of April 2020 a new list of goods/services subject to reduced VAT rates will come into force. Also, from November 2019 electronic publications can be subject to reduced VAT rates (5% or 8%).

Examples of goods and services taxable at 5%

- Certain unprocessed basic foodstuffs
- Certain agricultural and forestry products
- Books and certain magazines

Examples of goods and services taxable at 8%

- Musical instruments
- Certain foodstuffs
- Handicraft products
- Books, newspapers and magazines
- Maps
- Hotel services
- Certain entertainment services
- Passenger transport
- Travel services
- Medical products
- Supply of water
- Certain services related to agriculture
- Other services related to recreation — solely within the scope of admission
- Supply, construction, repairs and reconstructions of buildings classified as “social housing”

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Exports
- Intra-Community supplies of goods
- Supplies of certain sailing vessels
- International transport and related services
- Supplies of computer equipment to educational institutions

The term “exempt” refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to tax and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Financial services (with exceptions)
- Supply of real estate (with option to tax)
- Health care services
- Social welfare services
- Public postal services
- Education
- Lease of residential property
- Cultural and sporting events (with exceptions)
- Services connected with science
- Dental engineering
- Betting, gaming and lotteries

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The Polish VAT Act provides option to tax for supply of real estate, which generally benefit from VAT exemption under certain conditions.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the “time of supply” or “tax point.” The basic time of supply for goods is when the goods are delivered. The basic time of supply for services is when the services are performed.

The tax point for exports of goods is created according to the general rules.

Deposits and prepayments. The receipt of prepayments is considered the tax point. The tax point is created only to the extent of the payment.

Continuous supplies of services. The tax point concerning continuous supplies of services (i.e., those services that are rendered for longer than a year) arises at the end of each year until these services are completed. If services are supplied for a period not exceeding a year — the tax point arises at the moment of services' completion. Additionally, if parties of the transaction set clearing or payment periods regarding the continuously supplied services, the tax point arises at the end of each period.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules in Poland for supplies of goods sent on approval for sale or return.

Reverse-charge services. Imported services are subject to a reverse charge, which is a form of self-assessment of VAT. If the reverse charge applies, the recipient of the service accounts for output tax (effectively on behalf of the supplier).

The reverse-charge VAT is deductible as input tax by the recipient of the service (in accordance with the general input tax recovery rules), in the same month (quarter) when the tax point arises or in one of the two following months (quarters).

Leased assets. The tax point concerning leased assets arises at the moment of issuance of the invoice documenting leasing services.

Imported goods. The tax point for imported goods arises when a customs debt is incurred. However, for goods imported under certain customs regimes, the tax point arises when the goods enter the customs regime. The following are the relevant customs regime:
• Inward processing
• Temporary customs clearance
• Processing under customs supervision

Intra-Community acquisitions. The tax point for the intra-Community acquisition of goods is the invoice date but not later than the 15th day of the month following the month in which the supply took place. If an invoice is issued before this date, the VAT is due at the time the invoice is issued.

Intra-Community supplies of goods. The same tax point rules apply to intra-Community supplies of goods as those for intra-Community acquisitions (see above).

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax, which is charged on goods and services supplied to it for business purposes, if it relates to the person's taxable supplies. A taxable person generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax, which is charged on supplies made.

Input tax includes VAT paid on the purchase of goods and services, VAT paid on imports of goods and on intra-Community acquisitions, VAT self-assessed for reverse-charge services received from outside Poland and VAT self-assessed for goods on which the purchaser is liable to account for VAT.

The amount of the VAT reclaimed must be detailed on a valid VAT invoice.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use by the entrepreneur). In addition, input tax is not recoverable for some items of business expenditure.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

• Restaurant meals
• Personal expenses
• Hotel accommodation

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Advertising
- Purchase, lease or hire of passenger cars as well as vans or trucks with high loading capacity
- Fuel (gasoline, diesel oil, propane and butane) for the vehicles listed above
- For passenger cars with low loading capacity (if passenger car is used for taxable activities only, under certain conditions 100% of input tax is deductible, otherwise, i.e., if a passenger car is used for both taxable activities and private purposes — only 50%)
- Travel
- Conferences
- Business gifts
- Advisory services
- Business use of home telephone and mobile phones

Partial exemption. Input tax is not recoverable if it is directly related to making exempt supplies. If a Polish taxable person makes both exempt supplies and taxable supplies, it may not deduct input tax in full. This situation is referred to as "partial exemption."

Input tax directly relating to taxable supplies is recoverable in full, while input tax directly related to exempt supplies is not recoverable. Input tax that is not directly attributable to taxable supplies or to VAT-exempt supplies must be apportioned to each category.

The general pro rata method is based on the ratio of qualifying turnover compared with total turnover during the calendar year. The initial deduction (that is, the deduction made during a tax year) is done based on the pro rata percentage for the preceding year.

The recovery percentage is rounded up to the nearest whole number. The calculation is adjusted using the actual figures for the year in the first period of the next calendar year.

Capital goods. Capital goods are items of capital expenditure that are used in a business for longer than a year. Input tax is deducted in the tax period in which the goods are acquired. The amount of input tax recovered depends on the taxable person's partial exemption status in the VAT year of acquisition. The amount of input tax recovered on the capital item must be adjusted over time depending on the use of the goods. In Poland, the capital goods adjustment applies to the following assets (for the number of years indicated):

- Real estate: adjusted for a period of 10 years
- Capital goods and intangible assets: adjusted for a period of five years

The adjustment does not apply to goods or services that are capital goods and intangible assets with a purchase value of less than PLN15,000.

The adjustment is applied each year following the year in which the capital goods or real estate is made available to a fraction of the total input tax (1/10 for real estate and 1/5 for other capital goods). The adjustment may result in either an increase or a decrease in deductible input tax, depending on whether the ratio of taxable supplies made by the business has increased or decreased compared to the year in which the capital goods were acquired.

Refunds. In general, if a VAT return shows an excess of input tax over output tax, the surplus input tax is carried forward to offset output tax in the following month. Taxable persons may request a direct refund of the surplus within the following time limits:

- 60 days after the date on which the VAT return is submitted
- 180 days from the date on which the VAT return was submitted if the taxpayer did not perform any taxable activity in the relevant period

The refund periods may be shortened to 25 and 60 days, respectively, if the taxpayer submits an appropriate application and if the invoices and other documents regarding the input tax shown in the VAT return are paid or if the collateral is submitted.

Refund in 25 days is possible provided that: payment of invoices occurred from a bank account of the taxpayer and submitted to confirm transfers in the tax office; the taxpayer is not in arrears with taxes more than PLN20,000 and timely settles taxes for at least two years; subject is registered for VAT at least 12 months and it has not been transferred from the previous VAT declarations amount higher than PLN3,000.

If necessary, the tax office may extend the refund period until tax proceedings are completed.

If a repayment is delayed, the tax office must add interest for the delay.

Pre-registration costs. It is possible to deduct input tax from expenses incurred prior to VAT registration under certain conditions. The Polish tax authorities allow such deductions, yet such procedure is not regulated within the Polish VAT Act.

Write-off of bad debts. Under certain conditions, a taxpayer may adjust a taxable amount and the tax due on goods or services supplied in the case of receivables that cannot be collected has been substantiated. The adjustment also concerns the taxable amount and tax amount attributable to a portion of receivables that cannot be collected and has been substantiated. Receivables that cannot be collected are deemed as substantiated if receivables were not settled or disposed of in any form within 90 days following the lapse of their payment deadline stipulated in an agreement or invoice.

On the other hand, if the amount due on the invoice for goods or services supplied is not paid within 90 days from the lapse of payment deadline specified in an agreement or the invoice, a debtor shall adjust a deducted amount of the tax resulting from said invoice in settlement for the period in which the 90th day elapsed from the payment deadline specified in the agreement or the invoice (unless creditor is at that moment in the bankruptcy or liquidation proceedings).

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred in relation to noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Poland.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Poland refunds VAT incurred by businesses that are neither established nor registered for VAT in Poland. A non-established business may claim VAT to the same extent as a Polish taxable person.

To be eligible to claim a VAT refund in Poland, a non-established business must satisfy all the following conditions:

- It must be registered for VAT in the country where it is established.
- It must not make taxable supplies in Poland (with certain exceptions, including supplies of services taxed under the reverse-charge mechanism).
- It must be established in a country that refunds VAT to Polish businesses (the reciprocity principle).

For the general VAT refund rules applicable to the EU 2008/09 and 13th Directive refund schemes, see the chapter on the EU.

EU businesses. For businesses established in the EU, refunds are made under the terms of the EU Directive 2008/09.

The deadline for submitting refund applications is 30 September following the claim year. This deadline is strictly enforced. The forms must be completed in Polish. The claim period is a minimum of a calendar quarter and a maximum of one calendar year. The minimum claim amounts are EUR400 for accounting periods shorter than a year and EUR50 for an annual claim.

Refunds are made in Polish zloty (PLN) into a bank account maintained by the claimant either in Poland or in the state where the claimant is resident or has a place of business. If a transfer is made abroad, the tax office does not cover the remittance costs.

EU businesses must file the application form through their local tax office in their country of establishment.

To claim refunds, the following documents are required:
- Official application form (this form is attached to the Ministry of Finance Decree)
- Original VAT invoices and customs documents
- Certificate of Registration as a Taxpayer issued by the VAT authorities in the country where the claimant is established, stating that the taxpayer is a taxable person for VAT purposes (this form is attached to the Ministry of Finance Decree)

Refunds are made within four to eight months after the claim filing date. The taxpayer is entitled to interest on the late refunds.

Non-EU businesses. For businesses established outside the EU, refunds are made under the terms of the EU 13th Directive.

Refund claims by non-EU businesses must be filed with the following tax office in Warsaw:

II Urzad Skarbowy Warszawa Srodmiescie
Jagiellonska 15
Warsaw
Poland

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A Polish taxable person must generally provide a VAT invoice for the following:
- All taxable supplies made except for exempt transactions
- Exports of goods
- Intra-Community supplies
- Supplies of goods outside the scope of Polish VAT (that is, the reverse-charge mechanism applies)
- Supplies of services outside the scope of Polish VAT (that is, the reverse-charge mechanism applies)
- Triangular transactions (see the chapter on the EU)
- Distance sales (see the chapter on the EU)

VAT invoices are not required if a business exclusively supplies VAT-exempt goods or services. VAT invoices are not required for sales made to private individuals who do not carry on business activities, unless requested. Invoices must support claims for VAT refunds claimed by non-established businesses.

Credit notes. A credit note (called a "correcting invoice") must be issued if any of the following circumstances arise after an invoice is issued:
- A rebate or discount is granted.
- The price is increased.
- An error is detected in the price, rate or amount of tax charged or in any other element of the invoice.

In general, a credit note must be issued to the person to whom the original VAT invoice was issued.

Electronic invoicing. Polish VAT law permits electronic invoicing in line with EU Directive 2010/45/EU (see the chapter on the EU).

Simplified VAT invoices. A simplified invoice may be issued if the aggregate of amounts due does not exceed PLN450 or EUR100, if the amount is specified in EUR, provided that it contains data enabling the determination of the amount of tax at each VAT rate.

Simplified invoices cannot be used in the following cases:
- A distant sale from the territory of Poland and a distant sale into the territory of Poland
- Issuing an invoice at the request of a natural person not conducting business activity
- An intra-Community supply of goods
- Delivery of goods and services on the territory of a Member State other than the territory of the country and the person obliged to pay VAT is the acquirer of goods or recipient of services

Self-billing. The regulations of the Polish VAT Act provide for the possibility for the acquirer of goods or recipient of services to issue the invoice documenting transaction on behalf of and for the benefit of the taxpayer.

Self-billing is possible in Poland, provided that:
- The acquirer of goods or recipient of services is a taxable person registered as an active VAT taxpayer
- There is a prior agreement between the acquirer of goods or recipient of services and the taxpayer in respect of issuing invoices in the name and on behalf of that taxpayer, said agreement specifying the procedure for the acceptance of each invoice by the taxpayer performing these acts

The document issued by the acquirer of goods or recipient of services becomes a full-fledged invoice only when approved by the taxpayer (it is not necessary to sign it physically), who also is required to register it in his system.

When the acquirer of goods or recipient of services issues the invoice on behalf of the taxpayer, the invoice must be marked "self-invoicing" ("samofakturowanie").

Proof of exports and intra-Community supplies. Goods exported from Poland and intra-Community supplies of goods are subject to Polish VAT at the zero rate (see the chapter on the EU). To qualify for zero rating, the supplier must prove that the goods have left Poland. Suitable proof for exported goods includes the Single Administrative Document (SAD) or an electronic document generated by the customs authorities, which confirms that the goods have been removed from the EU (or its authorized copy).

Effective from 1 January 2020, there will be applied unified rules for documenting shipments of goods due to intra-Community supply — two groups of evidence were introduced:
- Documents related to the dispatch or transport of goods, such as a signed CMR document or waybill, bill of lading, invoice for air freight or invoice from the goods carrier
- Evidence including: an insurance policy for the shipment or transport of goods or bank documents confirming payment for the shipment or transport of goods; official documents issued by a public authority confirming the arrival of goods in the Member State of destination; an acknowledgment of receipt issued by the warehouse keeper in the Member State of destination confirming the storage of the goods in that Member State

New regulations implement presumption that the goods were exported when the goods were exported by the seller or a third party acting on his behalf and he is in possession of two noncontradictory documents confirming the shipment. These documents have to come from two different, independent sides.

If the goods are to be exported by the buyer or by a third party acting on his behalf outside these documents, it will be necessary to obtain a buyer's declaration that will include: date of issue; name or address and address of the buyer; quantity and type of goods; the date and place of arrival of the goods; in the case of delivery of means of transport — identification number of the means of transport and identification of the person receiving the goods to the buyer. The buyer will have to provide the supplier with a statement by the 10th day of the month following the month in which the delivery took place.

Foreign currency invoices. The VAT amount on the invoice must be shown in Polish zloty, regardless of the currency in which the amount due is expressed in the invoice. If a VAT invoice is issued in a foreign currency, the output value must be converted into Polish zloty, using the official exchange rate published by the National Bank of Poland (NBP) or European Central Bank (ECB) for the day preceding the invoice issuance date (for invoices issued correctly within the seven-day deadline). However, if an invoice was not issued on time in accordance with the Polish rules (that is, generally, within seven days after the supply), the taxpayer must apply the average rate calculated and published by the NBP or ECB on the last business day preceding the date on which the tax point arises.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. A taxpayer is required to issue the invoice for documenting supply of goods or services to natural persons and non-entrepreneurs upon their request (there is no legal requirement to do so without such request).

If the acquirer of goods or receiver of services requests an invoice, the taxpayer should issue an invoice within:
- Not later than on the 15th day of the month following the month in which the goods were delivered, or services provided that the invoice request is made by the end of the month in which the goods are delivered, or the service is performed
- Not later than on the 16th day from the date of submission of the request — provided that the request for an invoice has been made after the expiry of the month referred to in the previous point

However, if the request for an invoice was made after three months, counting from the end of the month in which the goods were supplied, or the services were provided, or the payment was received in full or in part, then the taxpayer is not obliged to issue an invoice.

Records.

Record retention period. Taxpayers must store the following:
- The invoices, including those reissued, which the taxpayers issued themselves or which were issued in their own names
- The invoices received, including those reissued — broken down by settlement periods, in a manner allowing the invoices to be easily found and guaranteeing the authenticity of the origin, the integrity of the content and the legibility of the invoices from the moment of issue until the expiry of the tax obligation limitation period (that is for five years from the end of the calendar year in which tax payment was due)

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is not obligatory and paper invoices issued and received can be archived under their paper format. Therefore, electronic archiving is allowed in Poland provided that electronic archiving does not alter and modify information submitted in the related document and that the business updates its archiving system in order to comply with the regulations.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. VAT returns are made on a monthly basis, submitted in electronic form. Taxpayers must submit VAT returns to the tax office by the 25th day of the month following the month in which the tax point arises. There are plans of the Ministry of Finance to liquidate the obligation to submit the VAT return and rely solely on a SAF-T filing. At the time of preparing this chapter, there are no draft provisions published on this matter yet (just that plans have been revealed).

Periodic payments. The deadline for making the relevant VAT payment is the same as for submitting the VAT return, i.e., by the 25th day of the month following the month in which the tax point arises. VAT liabilities must be paid by bank transfer and must be paid in Polish zloty.

The Whitelist. The "Whitelist" is an electronic list of VAT payers, in which from 1 September 2019 entrepreneurs can verify data on: entities that were not registered for VAT purposes (or were de-registered), entities registered as the VAT taxpayers (i.e., data on active and exempt VAT taxpayers), including entities whose registration as VAT taxpayers has been restored.

The existing registers were merged into a single list extended by the additional data, such as bank account numbers indicated in the tax identification or update notifications.

The list is made available in the Public Information Bulletin of the Ministry of Finance in a manner enabling checking whether a given entity is on the list on a selected day, not earlier than in the period of five years preceding the year in which the entity is checked.

If the entrepreneur makes a payment to another account (not listed) and the seller does not pay VAT on this transaction to the tax office, the entrepreneur will be jointly and severally liable with the seller up to the amount of tax liability for the transaction.

Split-payment mechanism. Poland introduced a split-payment mechanism, as of 1 July 2018. The mechanism is optional to taxpayers. Each taxpayer is allowed to choose whether it would like to pay its purchase invoices with or without the use of split payment.

As of 1 November 2019, new regulations apply as regard the use of the split payment mechanism (hereinafter: the SPM). The SPM is compulsory for transactions of sale or purchase of a specific group of goods — listed in Annex 15 to the Polish VAT Act. The Annex includes goods determined according to specific Polish Classification of Goods and Services (PKWiU) groups.

The obligatory SPM is being used for the supply of goods and services that were covered by the reverse-charge mechanism and the existing scope of joint and several liability of the buyer — therefore, it mainly covers the steel, fuel and construction services.

In the case of the taxpayer's obligation to apply the SPM:
- Payment of the amount corresponding to all or part of the VAT amount resulting from the invoice received is made to the VAT account
- Payment of all or part of the amount corresponding to the net sales value resulting from the received invoice is made to the bank account or SKOK account of supplier

It covers payments regarding invoices documenting transactions made between taxpayers whose one-off value, regardless of the number of payments resulting from it, exceeds PLN15.000 or the equivalent of this amount.

In order to identify the SPM, the invoice needs to include "Split Payment mechanism" annotation. Lack of this wording results in high sanctions.

Electronic filing. As of January 2018, all VAT returns must be sent electronically. Entrepreneurs will no longer be able to decide whether tax returns will be submitted by paper or electronically. Electronic filing applies to all types of VAT returns, including VAT-EU.

VAT returns can be sent via the internet using tools available on the Ministry of Finance Tax Portal (interactive forms or e-Deklaracje Desktop application). However, there are no obstacles to using commercial software adapted for sending tax documents via the internet.

In order to submit the VAT return electronically to the tax office, taxpayers must appoint a person authorized to sign on their behalf a qualified electronic signature of declarations sent to the e-Deklaracje system. Filing VAT return is made by submitting UPL-1 in paper form (to the tax office responsible for the registration of taxpayers and payers) or by ePUAP (to the Head of the National Tax Administration).

The new JPK_VAT declaration, to be introduced from 1 January 2020, can be signed through the following:
• Qualified signature (Polish or other EU country)
• Trusted profile
• Authorization data

After submitting the correct JPK_VAT, the taxpayer will be able to download the Official Receipt Certificate (UPO).

A taxpayer who, contrary to the obligation, does not provide a declaration or summary information in electronic form, exposes himself to punishment. The penalty for the fiscal offense is a fine from 1/10 to 20 times the minimum remuneration for work (in 2018 it ranges from PLN210 to PLN42,000). However, such matters are generally dealt with in a mandatory procedure, and a fine imposed by a penal fine cannot exceed double the minimum wage (PLN4,200).

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Poland.

Special schemes.

Small businesses. "Small taxpayers" include VAT-taxable persons whose total value of supplies in the preceding VAT year did not exceed the Polish zloty equivalent of EUR1.2 million. The EUR1.2 million threshold also applies to commission sales. The threshold for brokerage houses is EUR45,000 of income from brokerage and other forms of remuneration. A business that meets the small taxpayer conditions may opt for a special VAT scheme, but this treatment is not compulsory.

The status of a small VAT taxpayer is entitled to submit VAT returns on a quarterly basis, or a "specific tax point." The specific tax point for a supply is the receipt of payment. The appropriate VAT office must be notified of the decision to choose this tax point.

Nevertheless, small taxpayers should pay monthly advance payments for VAT liabilities until the 25th day of the month following the settlement period.

Cash accounting. Poland operates a cash accounting scheme with a maximum threshold of EUR1.2 million.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Poland.

Supplementary filings.

Intrastat. A Polish taxpayer that trades in goods with businesses elsewhere in the EU must submit Intrastat forms if its turnover exceeds the following amounts:
• Intra-Community acquisitions: PLN4 million
• Intra-Community supplies: PLN2 million

If the taxpayer's turnover does not exceed certain thresholds, it is not required to complete all items of the Intrastat report form (numbers 12, 15 and 20 may be excluded). The following are the thresholds:
• Intra-Community acquisitions: PLN65 million
• Intra-Community supplies: PLN108 million

Intrastat returns are filed with the Polish customs authorities on a monthly basis. They must be filed by the 10th of the month following the month in which the transactions occurred.

Intrastat returns must be submitted in electronic form. All amounts must be provided in zlotys.

EU Sales Lists. Persons who are registered as EU VAT payers must file EU Sales Lists (ESLs) if they make intra-Community supplies and acquisitions or if they make supplies of services and the place of supply is considered to be the place of establishment of the customers.

No turnover thresholds apply to ESLs under the Polish VAT law.

ESLs must be filed monthly (or in some cases quarterly) with the tax office. ESLs submitted electronically must be filed by the 25th day of the month following the end of the month or quarter. If submitted by paper, ESLs must be filed by the 15th day of the month following the end of the month or quarter.

ESLs may be filed only in paper form. All amounts must be provided in zlotys.

In Poland, ESLs must include the following information:
- The name of the entity submitting the lists and the entity's Polish VAT registration number
- The EU VAT registration numbers of suppliers and customers, together with the appropriate country codes
- The total of intra-Community acquisitions and intra-Community supplies made
- Information about triangular transactions subject to the simplification rule (see the chapter on the EU)
- The total of services supplied that have a place of supply outside Poland

An ESL is not required for any period in which the taxable person does not make any intra-community supplies.

Digital reporting.

Single audit file for tax (SAF-T). Starting from 1 July 2016, entrepreneurs keeping electronic accounting books (including foreign entities, registered for VAT in Poland) are required to provide data to the Polish tax authorities using the single audit file for tax purposes (SAF-T). The SAF-T standard requires covering accounting records, including the books of account, bank account excerpts, VAT sales and purchase registers, sales invoices, warehouse flows and register of revenues.

Therefore, all taxpayers registered for VAT in Poland were obliged to submit monthly SAF-T and simultaneously monthly (or quarterly for some entities) VAT returns.

The main difference between both files was that SAF-T presents all data of the concluded transactions (e.g., VAT number of the contractor, VAT amount) that are required to correctly prepare the VAT settlement of the given transaction (so it is essentially an e-VAT register), whereas VAT returns present the total sums of values of each kind of transaction as well as the sum of VAT to be paid, refunded or carried forward to the next month.

As of 1 April 2020, taxpayers will be required to use the new scheme of monthly SAF-T filings for VAT (JPK_VAT). The idea is to eliminate the obligation to submit a VAT return, as the new file will contain all information that is currently presented in the VAT return (VAT-7 and VAT-7K).

JPK_VAT will contain the following:
- A set of information about purchases and sales, which results from VAT records for a given period
- Items from the current VAT-7 declaration (VAT-7K)
- Additional data that is needed to analyze the correctness of the settlement

The obligation to use the new JPK_VAT files:
- As of 1 April 2020 will cover only large taxpayers

- As of 1 July 2020, it will cover other entities; from 1 April these entities will be able to submit a new JPK_VAT on a voluntary basis, with the first submission of the file forcing the continuation (it will not be possible to return to the form of VAT declaration previously binding for such entities)

JPK_VAT will be submitted only in electronic version for monthly periods, up to the 25th day of the month for the previous month.

Two JPK_VAT variants will apply
- JPK_V7M — for taxpayers who pay monthly
- JPK_V7K — for taxpayers who pay quarterly

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. No specific penalty applies to late VAT registration in Poland. However, penalties are assessed if, as a result of late registration, a taxable person pays VAT late or submits VAT returns late. Penalties may include fines and criminal penalties.

Penalties for late payment and filings. For a VAT return that is submitted late, the individual responsible for the delay may be fined if the tax court determines that he or she is at fault. The fine is imposed on the basis of the Fiscal Penal Code, which determines the penal liability of natural persons for fiscal crimes.

The interest rate applied to delayed payments of VAT is 200% of the National Bank of Poland "Lombard rate." In November 2015, the interest rate for delayed payments was 8% per year.

Penalties for errors. A penalty of 30% is charged for the understatement of tax liability, if it is shown in the tax return the amount of tax lower than the amount payable or overstatement of the amount of input tax.

A penalty of 15% is charged for the understatement of tax liability (overstatement of the amount of input tax), in the case of a taxpayer corrects their settlement after the completion of a tax audit or in the course of the audit procedure. No sanction shall be determined when the taxpayer himself corrects the mistake and will pay the difference of tax to the opening of a tax audit or duty and the understatement of tax due/overstatement of input tax is made by a natural person who bears the responsibility for this act on the basis of Penalty Code.

If the taxpayer sends JPK_VAT containing errors that prevent verification of correctness, he will receive a PLN500 fine for each irregularity found. A way to avoid above sanction will be to send, in a timely manner, correction of the record after receiving a notice from the tax office containing a list of deficiencies.

Split payment. For the split-payment mechanism, as of 1 November 2019, if:
- The buyer, despite his obligation to regulate the amount of VAT shown on the invoice in the split payment mechanism, will regulate this amount in a different way — the buyer will be subject to a sanction of 30% of the amount of the tax indicated on the invoice and will face criminal liability in the form of a fine of up to 720 daily rates.
- The invoice issuer will not place the indication "split-payment mechanism" on the invoice.
- The invoice issuer will be subject to a sanction of 30% of the amount of tax indicated on the invoice and will face penal fiscal liability in the form of a fine up to the equivalent of 180 daily rates.

The Whitelist. For the Whitelist, effective from 1 January 2020, if the buyer pays to his contractor an amount over PLN15,000 to a bank account other than that specified in the Whitelist, then he:
- Will not be able to include in the tax-deductible costs the amount in which the payment exceeds PLN15,000

- Will bear the risk of joint and several liability with his contractor for tax arrears

An entrepreneur who makes a transfer to the wrong bank account number will be able to avoid sanctions provided that he informs the Head of the Tax Office within three days of making the transfer at the latest.

Penalties for fraud. When the excessive amount of the VAT deduction results from that:

- Were issued by a nonexistent entity
- Relate to actions that were not performed — in their part referring thereto
- Provide amounts inconsistent with facts — in their part referring to such items for which the said amounts were provided
- Confirm the acts to which the provisions of Articles 58 and 83 of the Civil Code shall apply — in their part referring to said acts (e.g., sham activity to circumvent regulations) — amount of the additional tax obligation in the part referring to the input tax based on the above mentioned invoices shall be equal to 100%

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- The supply of goods or services made in Portugal by a taxable person
- The intra-Community acquisition of goods and services in Portugal from another EU member state made by a taxable person (see the chapter on the EU)
- Reverse-charge services received by a taxable person in Portugal
- The importation of goods from outside the EU, regardless of the status of the importer

For VAT purposes, the territory of Portugal includes the autonomous regions of Azores and Madeira. However, special VAT rates apply to supplies made in these islands.

C. Who is liable

A taxable person is any business entity or individual that makes taxable supplies of goods or services or intra-Community acquisitions or distance sales in the course of a business in Portugal.

No VAT registration threshold applies in Portugal. (except for one-time taxable events, under EUR25,000). A taxable person that will begin its activity must notify the tax authorities of its liability to register.

Special rules apply to foreign or "non-established" businesses.

Exemption from registration. One-time taxable events, under EUR25,000.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. The VAT law in Portugal does not contain any provision for voluntary VAT registration. Nonetheless, if a taxable business incurs expenses within the Portuguese territory, it may opt to register for VAT in Portugal, if it has output tax related to its operations. This option may be chosen due to the fact that a VAT refund claim may otherwise be very time consuming.

Group registration. Group VAT registration is not allowed in Portugal.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that is not registered nor has a fixed establishment in the territory of Portugal. A non-established business that makes supplies of goods or services in Portugal must register for VAT if it is liable to account for Portuguese VAT on the supplies or if it makes intra-Community supplies or acquisitions of goods.

The reverse charge applies generally to supplies made by non-established businesses to Portuguese taxable persons. Under the reverse-charge provision, the taxable person that receives the supply must account for the Portuguese VAT due. If the reverse charge applies, the non-established business is not required to register for Portuguese VAT. The reverse charge does not apply to supplies to private persons or to nontaxable legal persons. Consequently, non-established businesses must register for Portuguese VAT if they make any of the following supplies:
- Intra-Community supplies or acquisitions (see the chapter on the EU)
- Distance sales in excess of the threshold (see the chapter on the EU)
- Supplies of goods and services that are not subject to the reverse charge

Tax representatives. Businesses that are established in the EU are not required to appoint a tax representative to register for VAT in Portugal. However, EU businesses may opt to appoint a tax representative if they wish to do so.

Businesses that are established outside the EU must appoint a resident tax representative to register for Portuguese VAT. The tax representative is the first entity deemed responsible for the payment of the VAT debts with the business represented by it.

However, a nonresident entity, with head office or established in a third country, registered for VAT purposes in Portugal that intends to cease activity must appoint a Portuguese tax representative established or resident in Portugal. This rule is aimed at ensuring payment of any outstanding tax that may be levied after the cancellation of the activity. Thus, the tax representative is jointly and severally liable for the payment of VAT.

Reverse charge. In cross-border business to business (B2B) supplies of services, the acquirer of the service (VAT taxable entity) should apply the reverse-charge mechanism and self-assess the VAT due on such operation.

Domestic reverse charge. The reverse-charge mechanism is also applicable in the following situations, in which the taxable person to whom the supplies of goods or services are rendered becomes liable for the payment of VAT:
- Supplies of ferrous waste and scrap, residues and other recyclable materials consisting of ferrous and nonferrous metals to a Portuguese VAT taxpayer
- Supplies of civil construction services to a Portuguese VAT taxpayer
- Supplies of services involving emission rights, certified emission's reductions and emission reduction units of greenhouse gases to a Portuguese VAT taxpayer

Digital economy. EU VAT place of supply rules apply to business-to-consumer (B2C) supplies (i.e., supplies to non-VAT taxable customers) of telecommunications, broadcasting and electronic services. These services are taxed in the country where the customer is established (if within the EU). Thus, when the customer is established in Portugal, Portuguese VAT is due.

A use and enjoyment rule applies in Portugal for telecommunications, broadcasting and electronic services. In particular, Portuguese VAT is due when 1) these services are supplied to a person established or domiciled outside the EU, 2) the provider has its head office, a fixed establishment or a domicile from which these services are rendered in Portugal, and 3) the effective use and enjoyment of these services takes place within Portugal.

The Portuguese State Budget Law for 2019 introduced the introduction of changes for the distance selling regime and place of supply rules concerning the supply of telecommunications services, radio or television broadcasting, and electronically supplied services (where Portuguese VAT may, or may not, be due depending on if certain conditions are fulfilled or not).

Under the Portuguese State Budget Law for 2019, the telecommunication, broadcasting, television services and services provided by electronic means (as mentioned in annex D of the Portuguese VAT Code) should be taxed in Portugal where the following conditions are met:
1. The service acquirer is a nontaxable person.
2. The service provider has its head office, fixed establishment or domicile only in Portuguese territory and is not established in any other Member State.
3. The services are rendered to an entity established or domiciled in another Member States.
4. The total value of such services does not exceed, net of VAT, EUR10,000, with reference to the previous year or current year.

Taxable persons who meet the conditions referred above and where the total amount supply of services has not exceeded EUR10,000, may choose to be taxed in the Member State in which the acquirer is established or domiciled, and should maintain this regime for a minimum period of two years.

Mini One-Stop Shop. EU suppliers are permitted to discharge their VAT obligations using the Mini One-Stop Shop (MOSS) scheme, which enables them to fulfill their VAT obligations (VAT registration, reporting and payment) in their home country, including for services provided in other Member States where they are not established. Accordingly, EU suppliers are able to apply a simplification measure similar to the one that is in place for non-EU providers of electronic services.

This scheme is optional and applies to taxable persons established in the Community but not in the Member State of consumption (MSC), and to taxable persons not established in the Community, supplying telecommunications services, broadcasting and television services, and electronically supplied services to nontaxable persons resident or established in the Community.

Taxpayers registered under the MOSS scheme in Portugal are required to submit quarterly a single VAT return and pay VAT to the Portuguese tax authorities, who send the appropriate information and remit the VAT paid to the relevant Member State's tax authority.

Online marketplaces and platforms. The rules mentioned above should be deemed applicable to online marketplaces and platforms. If the supply of goods is made within the EU, the VAT Regime for intra-Community sales of goods may be applicable.

Vouchers. The Portuguese State Budget for 2019 introduced rules concerning the VAT treatment of vouchers (in terms of legal definitions, chargeable event and taxable amount rules). "Single- and multi-purpose vouchers" were included in the Portuguese VAT Code.

A "single-purpose voucher" (SPV) is a voucher for which all the elements necessary for determining the tax due, regardless of the good or service to be supplied, are known at the time of issue or assignment.

For SPVs, VAT shall be due and payable at the time the voucher is issued/ assigned by the taxable person in whose name the transfer of the voucher is made.On the other hand, a "multi-purpose voucher" (MPV) is a voucher for which, at the time of issue or assignment, all the information necessary to determine the tax due is not known.

For MPVs, VAT shall be due and payable at the time the taxable person supplies the goods or services that the voucher relates to, regardless of any assignments that may have previously occurred.

Registration procedures. Entities must register with the National Register of Corporate Entities (Registo Nacional de Pessoas Colectivas — RNPC*)*. A certificate of legal standing of the company must be filed with the registration application form. The company is provided with a Portuguese corporate registration number within 10 working days. This number will be the same as the VAT registration number once the company files for a Statement of Beginning of Activity, together with other relevant documents, with the competent tax office.

The registration of a foreign company for VAT purposes in Portugal may take 10 working days. An online VAT registration system is not yet in force in Portugal.

Deregistration. Individuals or companies subject to VAT must, within 30 days from the date of termination of activity, submit a Statement of Termination of Activity with the competent tax office.

Tax authorities are able to declare, on their own authority, the termination of activity of a company following a judgment under insolvency proceedings determining the winding-up of the company, when it is clear that an economic activity is not being developed or intended to continue to be developed.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT.

The VAT rates in mainland Portugal are:
- Standard rate: 23%
- Intermediate rate: 13%
- Reduced rate: 6%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services, unless a specific measure provides for the intermediate rate, the reduced rate or an exemption.

In the autonomous region of Madeira, the following VAT rates apply:
- Standard rate: 22%
- Intermediate rate: 12%
- Reduced rate: 5%

In the autonomous region of Azores, the following VAT rates apply:
- Standard rate: 18%
- Intermediate rate: 9%
- Reduced rate: 4%

Examples of goods and services taxable at 6%
(5% in Madeira and 4% in the Azores)

- Basic foodstuffs
- Books and newspapers and other periodic publications that occupy predominantly scientific, educational, literary, artistic, recreational or sporting cultural matters in any medium, provided that it is not wholly or predominantly in video or music
- Pharmaceuticals (some)
- Medical equipment
- Passenger transport
- Hotel accommodation

- Refurbishment of immovable property that is directly contracted for with the National Fund for Rehabilitation of Heritage Building by its management company
- Provision of cleaning services and cultural intervention in certain places in terms of fire prevention measures
- Traditional cane honey
- Garments for medical purposes, hair prostheses for cancer patients, as long as duly prescribed
- Services rendered by bullfighting artists, in bullfighting shows to the respective promoters

Examples of goods and services taxable at 13%
(12% in Madeira and 9% in Azores)

- Canned fish and shellfish
- Wine
- Fuel and colored oil marked with government-approved additives
- Musical instruments

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to tax and that do not give rise to a right of input tax deduction.Some supplies are classified as "exempt with credit," which means that no VAT is chargeable, but the supplier may recover related input tax. Exempt with credit supplies include, among others, exports of goods outside the EU and related services, and supplies of banking, financial and insurance services made to a recipient outside the EU (see the chapter on the EU).

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Leasing or letting of immovable property
- Medical services
- Financial services
- Insurance
- Copyrights by authors
- Training provided by public sector institutions

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The Portuguese VAT law foresees the following options for taxation of exempt supplies:

- Supply of training services:
  - —Supply of food and drinks made by employers to their employees
  - —Supply of medical and sanitary services performed by hospitals, clinics, dispensaries and similar establishments, which are not carried out by entities from the public sector, i.e., entities that do not have any agreement with the State
  - —Supplies of services rendered by non-agricultural cooperatives, to their farmer members

In the above cases, if the taxpayer opts to waive the VAT exemption, it must remain under this regime for five years.

- Leasing or supply of immovable property or independent parts thereof to other taxable persons. In this case, the waiver of the exemption must be carried out on a case-by-case basis and supported by a certificate issued by the Portuguese tax authorities.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point." The basic time of supply for goods is when they are delivered. The basic time of supply for services is when they are performed.

An invoice must be issued before the fifth business day following the basic time of supply. The actual tax point becomes the date on which the invoice is issued. However, if no invoice is issued, tax becomes due on the fifth business day after the basic tax point.

If the consideration is paid in full or in part before the invoice is issued, the actual tax point becomes the date on which payment is received (with respect to the amount paid). The VAT invoice must be issued immediately in these circumstances.

Deposits and prepayments. For prepayments or advance payments, the tax point is the date on which the advance payment is received. The supplier must issue an invoice as soon as an advance payment is received.

Continuous supplies of services. Regarding continuous supplies of services based on agreements foreseeing successive payments, the time of supply occurs at the end of the period concerning each payment. However, where the payment schedule is not defined or is greater than 12 months, the VAT is due and shall become chargeable at the end of each 12-month period, for the corresponding amount.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. As a general rule, under the Portuguese VAT rules, a taxable supply of goods is deemed to have taken place when goods are sold and they are not returned to the supplier.

Reverse-charge services. The rules stated above also apply to reverse-charge services. However, the tax point rule is irrelevant for the supplier since no VAT is assessed by the supplier (who must still issue the invoice within five working days after the service is rendered).

The purchaser should self-assess the VAT when receiving the invoice. However, if there is a delay in the supplier issuing the invoice the VAT should be reverse charged on the fifth day (after the taxable event), but the purchaser cannot recover the VAT until he has the original invoice. Therefore, in practice, the reverse charge is normally applied by the purchaser when the invoice is issued, even if more than five days have elapsed from the taxable event.

Leased assets. Since leasing agreements are also considered a continuous supply of services, the time of supply occurs at the end of the period foreseen for each payment.

Moreover, when the client exercises the purchase option, the VAT is due for the supply of goods, for the difference value of the asset.

Imported goods. The time of supply for imported goods is either the date of importation or when the goods leave a duty suspension regime.

Intra-Community acquisitions. The time of supply for an intra-Community acquisition of goods is the 15th day of the month following the month in which the basic time of supply for the goods occurs. If the supplier issues an invoice before this date, the time of supply is when the invoice is issued.

Intra-Community supplies. Although no VAT is chargeable for an intra-Community supply, an invoice must be issued by the 15th day of the month following the month in which the goods are delivered to the customer.

For continuous intra-Community supplies of goods over a period of more than one calendar month, the tax point shall be regarded as being completed on expiry of each calendar month until such time as the supply comes to an end.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax incurred with the acquisition of goods and services for its business purposes. A taxable person generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax charged on the supplies carried out.

Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services supplied in Portugal, VAT paid on imports of goods and VAT self-assessed on intra-Community acquisitions of goods and services and reverse-charged services (see the chapter on the EU).

A valid tax invoice or customs document is usually requested by the tax authorities during their analysis of a claim for input tax.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use by an entrepreneur). In addition, input tax may not be recovered for some items of business expenditure.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Purchase, hire, lease, maintenance and fuel for private cars, vans and trucks
- Business gifts (unless valued at less than EUR50)
- Restaurant meals
- Entertainment and luxury goods and services
- Transport expenses and business travel, including toll costs, incurred outside the scope of the organization or participation in congresses, fairs or exhibitions
- Accommodation and meals incurred outside the scope of the organization or participation in congresses, fairs or exhibitions
- Drinks and tobacco

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- 50% of VAT related to diesel or liquefied petroleum gas (LPG) for vans and trucks
- 50% of VAT related to expenses incurred with respect to organization of conferences, seminars and training courses (for example, travel, food and beverage, accommodation and lease of immovable property)
- 25% of VAT related to expenses incurred with respect to participation in conferences, seminars and training courses (for example, travel, food and beverage, accommodation and lease of immovable property)
- Car-related expenses when the acquisition cost does not exceed EUR62,500 for electric vehicles and EUR50,000 for plug-in hybrid vehicles (values net of VAT)

Partial exemption. Input tax directly related to exempt supplies is not generally recoverable. If a Portuguese taxable person makes both exempt and taxable supplies, it may not recover input tax in full. This situation is referred to as "partial exemption." Exempt with credit supplies are treated as taxable supplies for these purposes.

In Portugal, the amount of input tax that a partially exempt business may recover is calculated by using one of two methods.

The first method consists of the following two stages:

- The first stage identifies the input tax that may be directly allocated to taxable and to exempt supplies. Input tax directly allocated to taxable supplies is deductible (this method is usually referred to as the "direct allocation method"). Input tax directly related to exempt supplies is not deductible.
- In the second stage, the remaining input tax that is not allocated directly to exempt and taxable supplies is apportioned. The apportionment may be calculated based on the value of taxable supplies carried out compared with the total turnover, or by using another acceptable method agreed on with the tax authorities. The recovery percentage is rounded up to the nearest whole number (for example, a recovery percentage of 72.1% is rounded up to 73%).

Under the second method, a taxable person may use a general pro rata calculation based on the value of taxable supplies made compared with total turnover.

Taxable persons may use both methods at the same time for different operations or for different sectors of activity. The Portuguese VAT authorities may also impose the use of one of these two methods to prevent distortions of competition.

Capital goods. Capital goods are items of capital expenditure that are used in a business over several years. Input tax is deducted in the VAT year in which the goods are acquired. The amount of input tax recovered depends on the taxable person's partial exemption recovery position in the VAT year of acquisition. However, the amount of input tax recovered for capital goods must be adjusted over time if the taxable person's partial exemption recovery percentage changes by more than 5% in any year during the adjustment period or if goods are taken from a taxable sector or activity for use in an exempt sector or activity.

In Portugal, the capital goods adjustment applies to the following assets for the number of years indicated:
- Immovable property: adjusted for a period of twenty years
- Movable property: adjusted for a period of five years

The capital goods adjustment does not apply to the following items:
- Goods with a purchase value of less than EUR2,500
- Goods with a useful life of less than five years (for example, computers)

The adjustment is applied each year following the year of acquisition to a fraction of the total input tax (1/20 for immovable property and 1/5 for other movable capital goods). The adjustment may result in either an increase or a decrease of deductible input tax, depending on whether the ratio of taxable supplies made by the business has increased or decreased compared with the year in which the capital goods were acquired.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax recoverable in a monthly period exceeds the amount of output tax payable in that period, the taxable person has an input tax credit. A refund of the credit may be claimed in certain circumstances. If a refund may not be claimed, the input tax credit may be carried forward to offset output tax in a subsequent period.

A refund may be requested if the credit balance is at least EUR250 and if the taxable person has been in a credit position for twelve or more consecutive months. However, if the VAT credit exceeds EUR3,000, a VAT refund may be claimed immediately.

A refund may also be requested before the end of the 12-month period for amounts greater than EUR25 if any of the following circumstances exist:
- The taxable person has ceased operations.
- The taxable person has ceased to make taxable supplies and now exclusively makes supplies that are exempt from VAT.
- The taxable person begins to use the special VAT accounting regime for retailers.

In general, a refund is claimed by submitting the VAT return form by electronic means, together with the following annexes:
- A list of clients
- A list of suppliers

Pre-registration costs. According to the guidelines issued by the Portuguese tax authorities, input tax incurred on pre-registration costs can be deducted under certain circumstances.

The VAT incurred in the acquisition of goods or services that occurs before the delivery of the start of activity declaration and its registration for VAT purposes may be deducted if the transactions represent operations that grant the right to input tax deduction, provided for in the VAT Code.

Write-off of bad debts. Bad debts may be adjusted (and recovered) on periodic VAT returns.

There is a regime applicable to debts overdue effective 1 January 2013 onward, while the older regime still applies with small adjustments for debts overdue before that date. Therefore, both regimes may coexist during a certain period of time.

Moreover, in accordance with the changes introduced in the VAT code, a bad debt is considered to exist for debts for which the nonpayment risk is duly justified, namely when the credit is overdue for more than 24 months and there are objective proofs of its impairment and actions performed regarding its payment, including the asset being recognized in the accounts.

In the case of debts from special judicial or extra judicial processes, the VAT adjustment can be performed before the abovementioned deadlines if the process is decided earlier.

The following debts are not considered as bad debts:

- Credits secured or covered by an insurance, or by any guarantee in rem (i.e., a real warranty, for instance pledges or mortgages or other types of real guarantees as defined in Portuguese civil law)
- Credits over related parties
- Credits over entities declared insolvent or bankrupt before the realization of the transaction
- Credits over the State

Additionally, please note that for credits overdue for more than 24 months, the VAT adjustment requires a prior report certified by a chartered accountant and also a prior electronic authorization request to the Portuguese tax authorities.

Noneconomic activities. In principle, VAT may only be recovered if incurred in the course of an economic activity. If costs are incurred to acquire or maintain assets which are to be used for the purposes of an economic activity, the costs are potentially deductible. If assets are not used for such a purpose, the VAT will not be deductible. Please see Nondeductible input tax above.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Portugal refunds VAT incurred by businesses that are neither established in Portugal nor registered for VAT therein. Non-established businesses may claim Portuguese VAT to the same extent as VAT-registered businesses.

For the general VAT refund rules of the EU Directive 2008/8/CE and EU 13th Directive refund schemes, see the chapter on the EU.

EU businesses. For businesses established in the EU, the refund is carried out under the EU Directive 2008/8/CE.

The deadline for refund claims is the last business day of September in the year following the calendar year in which the tax was incurred.

VAT refund claims by non-established businesses must be submitted electronically to the tax authorities of the country where the claimant is established. Subsequently, such tax authorities remit the VAT refund claim to the Portuguese tax authorities.

The deadline for the approval or denial of the refund is four months, but it may be extended to six or eight months if the Portuguese tax authorities issue one or two requests for additional information or documents.

The invoices underlying the VAT incurred must be provided to the tax authorities electronically only if they are specifically requested.

The minimum amount claim period is three months, while the maximum period is one year. The minimum claim for a period of less than a year is EUR400. For an annual claim, the minimum amount is EUR50.

Claimants may request payment of interest if an EU Directive 2008/8/CE claim is repaid more than 10 working days after the 4-, 6- or 8-month period has elapsed.

Non-EU businesses. For businesses established outside the EU, the refund is carried out under the EU 13th Directive on the condition of reciprocity. Consequently, Portuguese VAT is refunded only to non-EU claimants established in countries that, by their turn, refund VAT or similar tax to Portuguese businesses.

The deadline for refund claims, the approval or denial of the refund and minimum amount claim period for non-EU businesses is the same as EU businesses (as outlined above).

Claimants may request payment of interest if an EU 13th Directive claim is repaid more than 10 working days after the 4-, 6- or 8-month period has elapsed.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A Portuguese taxable person must generally provide a VAT invoice for all taxable supplies made, including exports and intra-Community supplies. A VAT invoice (or equivalent document) is necessary to support a claim for input tax deduction or a refund under the EU Directive 2008/8/CE or EU 13th Directive refund schemes (see the chapter on the EU).

As a general rule, goods in transit within the Portuguese territory must be accompanied by a special delivery note or invoice. DeliveryD notes must be electronically communicated to the Portuguese tax authorities before the beginning of the transport. These transport documents must contain the same information as an invoice, excluding the value of the transaction. These documents must also contain details indicating from where the goods were dispatched, the destination of the goods and the time of commencement of the dispatch.

Portuguese taxable entities with head office, permanent establishment or domicile in Portuguese territory must communicate electronically to the Portuguese tax authorities the relevant data of the invoices issued during a particular month, at the latest on the 12th day of the subsequent month.

Credit notes. A VAT credit note may be used to reduce the VAT charged and reclaimed on a supply. A credit note must be cross-referenced to the original invoice. The mention of VAT on a credit note is optional. If VAT is mentioned, the supplier may reduce the VAT payable with respect to the supply. However, the supplier can make this reduction only if it has written confirmation from the purchaser acknowledging the VAT adjustment.

Electronic invoicing. Portuguese VAT law permits electronic invoicing in line with EU Directive 2010/45/EU (see the chapter on the EU). With the recently published Decree-Law no. 28/2019, of 15 February 2019, new rules will, up to 2021, become into force.

Electronic invoicing is accepted for all transactions and no formal approval is needed from the Portuguese tax authorities in order to implement it, if the invoices are stored in Portugal or in another EU Member State. (If any taxable person established in the Portuguese territory wishes to store its invoices outside the EU, it must obtain prior authorization from the Portuguese tax authorities in order to do so.)

Nevertheless, electronic invoices may only be issued through a certified invoicing program and if the recipient of the services expressly accepts the adoption of such procedure. Also, issuing electronic invoices is only acceptable if the authenticity of origin, integrity of the content and the legibility of the invoice is ensured by business controls that create a reliable audit trail between the invoice and the supply of goods or services.

In practical terms, every electronic invoice should have a digital signature, in order to ensure the authenticity of its origin, the integrity of its content and its legibility. The advanced electronic signature and EDI are examples of technologies that fulfill this requirement.

From 1 January 2020, Portugal is implementing an electronic invoicing obligation for public procurement. This obligation means electronic invoices must be issued from all suppliers who are involved in public procurement contracts, as well as public authorities and like entities.

In the case of public authorities and similar entities, please note that the obligation is that they are issuers and/or recipients of electronic invoices, in the sense that their IT systems must be ready to export and import the electronic invoices.

However, please note that electronic invoicing is not required for the execution of contracts declared to be confidential and/or accompanied by special security measures.

Unstructured invoices raised in HTML, pdf or Word format, as well as invoices in image or paper format that are later scanned, and invoices sent by fax are not included in the concept of electronic invoicing. However, invoices sent by digital image or pdf format may be used in addition to the electronic invoice in order to better assess the information being processed by the entity acquiring the goods or services.

Unique invoice code and QR code. From 1 January 2020 onward, invoices must carry a unique invoice code (UUID) and a QR code. The measure providing for the introduction of both requirements will still be subject to regulation through a government ordinance.

Relief from printing or sending e-invoices in transactions with nontaxable persons. Taxpayers are relieved from printing paper invoices and/or from sending electronic invoices to customers/recipients when the same are nontaxable persons, provided that the following conditions are cumulatively fulfilled:
(a) The tax identification number of the purchaser is included in the invoices
(b) Invoices are processed and communicated to the PTA through a certified computer program
(c) The taxable person has opted for the transmission of invoices in real time to the PTA

This relief is not available when the acquirer explicitly requests the paper or electronic invoice.

Simplified VAT invoices. Under the Portuguese VAT code, simplified invoicing may be used for the sale of goods and/or services up to an amount of EUR1,000 for supplies made to nontaxable persons by retailers or street sellers. For other supplies of goods and/or services, a simplified invoice may be issued if the amount of the transaction does not exceed EUR100 (for instance, the identification number of the nontaxable person is only mandatory if its insertion is required by the nontaxable person).

Self-billing. Self-billing is allowed in Portugal and means that the acquirer raises an invoice on behalf of the acquirer of goods or services. For this procedure to be applicable, the following requirements must be met:
- Prior agreement, in the written form, is made between the acquirer and the supplier of the goods or services.
- The acquirer must have evidence that the supplier of the goods or the service provider has taken notice of the issuance of the invoice and accepted its content.
- The invoice must refer to self-billing ("autofaturação").

Proof of exports and intra-Community supplies. VAT is not chargeable on supplies of exported goods or on the intra-Community supply of goods (see the chapter on the EU). However, to qualify as VAT-free, exports and intra-Community supplies must be supported by evidence that confirms the goods have left Portugal. Acceptable proof includes the following documentation:
- For an export, stamped customs documentation and an indication on the invoice of the Portuguese VAT law article that permits exemption with credit for the supply
- For an intra-Community supply, a copy of the invoice indicating the customer's valid VAT identification number (issued by another EU Member State), plus a range of commercial documentation, such as bills of lading, transport documentation and proof of payment

Foreign currency invoices. If a VAT invoice is issued in a currency other than euros (EUR), to determine the taxable amount, the amount should be converted into euros using the sales rate used by a bank established in Portugal or the exchange rate used by the European Central Banking System on the date on which the tax is chargeable or on the first business day of that month.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. For the sale of goods and/or services up to an amount of EUR1,000 for supplies made to nontaxable persons by retailers or street sellers, simplified VAT invoices can be used. For other supplies of goods and/or services, a simplified invoice may be issued if the amount of the transaction does not exceed EUR100 (for instance, the identification number of the nontaxable person is only mandatory if its insertion is required by the nontaxable person).An invoice does not have to be issued and can be replaced by a sales receipt for supplies of goods made through automatic vending machines and supplies of services for which it is normal to issue a slip, admission or transport ticket.

Records.

Record retention period. In Portugal, VAT records should be retained for a period of 10 years, if another deadline does not result from any special provision. However, the obligation to file and retain all books, registers and supporting documents must be maintained until the taxable person de-registers from VAT in Portugal.

Electronic archiving. Invoices and other tax-relevant documents presented in paper format can be scanned and archived in electronic format.

Scanning and e-archiving must be performed with the necessary technical rigor to obtain and reproduce perfect, legible and intelligible images of the original documents, without loss of resolution and information, to guarantee their consultation and reproduction on paper or electronic support.

Full access must be granted to the documents, and the authenticity of origin, integrity of the content and legibility of any document must be ensured.

It must also be guaranteed that it is not possible to change or destroy the electronic archives.

Electronic copies of invoices must be numbered with a continuous sequence according to a predefined archiving plan (xml file).

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. Periodic VAT returns are submitted in Portugal for monthly or quarterly periods, depending on the taxable person's turnover in the preceding VAT year. All taxable persons must also complete an annual return.

Monthly VAT returns must be filed if the taxable person's turnover in the preceding year exceeded EUR650,000.

Quarterly VAT returns must be filed if the taxable person's turnover in the preceding year did not exceed EUR650,000.

Monthly VAT returns must be submitted before the 10th day of the second month after the end of the return period. Quarterly VAT returns must be submitted before the 15th day of the second month after the end of the return period.

Periodic payments. The time frame for paying the VAT due has been extended, since October 2019, by five days, thus being:
- By the 15th day of the second month following the date of the operations for taxpayers in the monthly regime

- By the 20th day of the second month following the trimester of the operations for taxpayers in the quarterly regime

Electronic filing. In Portugal, VAT returns should be submitted by electronic means. For this purpose, the taxable person should register at the Portuguese tax authority's website to receive an access code.

Intrastat returns, EC Sales List returns and annual VAT returns are submitted by electronic means as well.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Portugal.

Special schemes.

Cash accounting. In accordance with this regime, taxpayers will only pay the VAT due once they receive payment of an invoice from a customer. This regime is optional and will apply to companies with a turnover of up to EUR500,000.

VAT exemption. This special regime applies to entities that are not required to have organized accounting records; that do not import or export goods, or related activities; and whose turnover does not exceed EUR10,000 (retailers EUR12,500).

These taxpayers do not charge VAT on their supplies and input tax cannot be deducted.

Import VAT postponed accounting. The reverse-charge procedure for import VAT (also known as postponed accounting) has been introduced in Portugal. To benefit from this new mechanism, a taxable business must fulfill the following requirements:
(i) It must fall under a monthly VAT regime.
(ii) Its tax situation must be regularized.
(iii) No input tax blocked restrictions apply.

Small retailers. This special regime applies to entities that are required to have organized accounting records; do not import or export goods or related activities; exercise a retail trade activity; have a volume of purchases not exceeding EUR50,000; have a goods purchase volume not less than 90% of the total volume of purchases; do not carry out intra-Community transactions of goods; and have a volume of services, not exempt from VAT, not exceeding EUR250.

The VAT paid by these taxable persons amounts to the 25% of the tax paid on the purchase of goods and raw materials without processing. Moreover, they can only deduct the VAT paid on the purchase or lease of capital goods, and other goods for the company's own use.

Secondhand goods. For supplies of secondhand goods, works of art, collectors' items or antiques, the taxable amount will be the difference between the sale price and the purchase price in accordance with the provisions of special legislation and supported by the documentation underlying the supply.

Annual returns. The annual return is a summary of all the periodic VAT returns for statistical purposes as well as corporate income tax and personal income tax.

The annual return is a global return for all taxes (corporate tax, VAT, etc.). The annual return has a number of appendices attached including VAT — tax and accounting requirements that detail the VAT and net amounts in relation to supplies, carried out and received, and suppliers and customers lists, which provide information on all local supplies and purchases made by a company in Portugal. These listings are used for cross-checking data of purchases and sales with the periodic VAT returns.

Foreign companies that do not have a permanent establishment in Portugal, are only registered therein for VAT purposes and did not carry out any operation in a particular fiscal year (i.e., no periodic returns were submitted) are not required to file the annual VAT return.

In general, annual returns must be submitted by 15 July following the end of the calendar year.

Supplementary filings. In the context of the reporting obligations relating to VAT, in addition to VAT returns there are three more types of obligations, namely, the Intrastat, the EU Sales Returns and the Simplified Business Information (that covers all taxes supported in Portugal).

There are also reporting obligations on invoice details and SAF-T files.

Intrastat. A Portuguese taxable person that trades with other EU countries must complete statistical reports, known as Intrastat statements, if the value of its sales or purchases of goods exceeds certain thresholds. Separate reports are required for intra-Community acquisitions (Intrastat Arrivals) and for intra-Community supplies (Intrastat Dispatches).

The threshold for Intrastat Arrivals for 2018 is EUR350,000. The threshold for Intrastat Dispatches for 20192018 is EUR250,000. These limits apply to the mainland and the Azores. Differently, in Madeira, the threshold for 2019 Intrastat Arrivals and Dispatches is EUR25,000.

The Intrastat return statement is submitted on a monthly basis. The submission deadline is the 15th business day following the end of the return period.

EU Sales Returns. If a Portuguese taxable person carried out intra-Community supplies of goods and/or services, it must submit an EU Sales Return (ESR) by the 20th day of the month following the month in which the operation takes place. An ESR is not required for a period in which the taxable person does not carry out any intra-Community supplies.

ESRs should be submitted quarterly if the VAT returns are submitted quarterly, or monthly if the VAT returns are submitted monthly. If the VAT returns are submitted quarterly but in one of the previous four quarters the amount of the intra-Community supplies of goods exceeded EUR50,000, ESR should also be submitted monthly.

Simplified Business Information. The Simplified Business Information – in Portuguese "Informação Empresarial Simplificada" (IES), must be filed (general rule, by 15 July) electronically and completely paper free, i.e., dematerialized, regarding accounting, tax and statistical reporting obligations.

Part of this file will be automatically filed with reference to the accounting SAF-T.

SAF-T. From 2020 onward (under the new rules provided in Law 119/2019 of September 18), companies will have to report their invoicing SAF-T to the tax authorities by the 12th of each month (in relation to the previous month).

It will also become mandatory to file the accounting SAF-T on an annual basis (by 30 of April of the year following the operations at stake).

Digital reporting. Taxable persons shall report to the tax authorities, by electronic data transmission:

a) The identification and location of the company's establishments in which invoices and other fiscally relevant documents are issued
b) Identification of equipment used for invoice processing and other fiscally relevant documents
c) The program certificate number used on each equipment, where applicable
d) Identification of the distributors and installers who marketed and/or installed the billing solutions

Taxpayers with head office or domicile in Portugal should also communicate by electronic data transmission the elements of invoices issued in accordance with the VAT Code, as well as the elements of the documents enabling the confirmation of goods or the provision of services and receipts (notably by way of filing the SAF-T (PT) file).

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. The following penalties are levied for late VAT registration in Portugal:
- A penalty ranging from EUR600 to EUR7,500 if the taxpayer's actions were not intentional
- A penalty ranging from EUR600 to EUR15,000 if the taxpayer's actions were intentional

Penalties for late payment and filings. The following penalties apply to the late submission of periodic and annual VAT returns:
- A penalty ranging from EUR300 to EUR3,750 if the taxpayer's actions were not intentional
- A penalty ranging from EUR300 to EUR7,500 if the taxpayer's actions were intentional

The following penalties apply to the late payment of VAT:
- A penalty ranging from 30% to 100% of the VAT due, up to a maximum of EUR45,000, if the taxpayer's actions were not intentional
- A penalty ranging from 200% to 400% of the VAT due, up to a maximum of EUR165,000, if the taxpayer's actions were intentional

In addition, interest applies (currently at a 4% annual rate).

Penalties for errors. The General Taxation Infringement Regime only sets forth the difference between negligence and willful misconduct. Additionally, on a provision that states both errors and omissions, the applicable penalty is the same therefore there are no different scenarios.If the reverse charge is not recorded, the penalties may amount to 200% of the output tax not recorded in the case of fault, even if there is no cash flow disadvantage for the State. In the case of negligence, penalties may vary between 30% and 100% of the VAT not self-assessed.

However, these penalties are subject to the following limits:
- In the case of negligence — EUR45,000
- In the case of willful misconduct — EUR165,000

For Intrastat, the maximum penalty for the non-submission, late submission or incorrect submission of an Intrastat statement may range from EUR250 to EUR25,000 for individuals and from EUR500 to EUR50,000 for legal persons.

Penalties for fraud. In Portugal, tax fraud is a tax crime that relates to unlawful conduct typified in the law that aim at the non-assessment, delivery or payment of the tax due or inappropriate grant of tax benefits, refunds or other advantages that may decrease the tax revenues. Thus, tax fraud can take place, for example, when any of the following conduct occurs:
- Concealment or alteration of facts or values that must be contained in the books of accounting or of the statements submitted
- Concealment of undeclared facts or values that should be disclosed to the tax administration
- Entering a simulated business

Tax fraud is punishable with imprisonment up to three years or penalties up to 360 days. Fraud may qualify where there are aggravating circumstances also typified in the law, such as:
- The agent is a public employee.
- The agent has been assisted by a public official.
- The patrimonial advantage is of a value exceeding EUR50,000.

Qualified tax fraud is punishable by imprisonment from 1 to 5 years for individuals and penalties of 240 to 1,200 days for legal persons. However, if the patrimonial advantage exceeds EUR200,000, the penalty is imprisonment from 2 to 8 years for individuals and a penalty of 480 to 1,920 days for legal persons.

B. Scope of the tax

Merchants engaged in businesses that sell taxable items are responsible for collecting the SUT as a withholding agent. In general, the standard tax rate applies to the following taxable items:

- Taxable personal property — property that can be seen, weighed, measured or touched, or is in any way perceptible to the senses. It excludes, among other items, money, cash equivalents, stocks, bonds, insurance, other obligations, automobiles, trucks, tractors, buses, intangibles, gasoline, aviation fuel, gas oil, diesel fuel, electric power and water supplies.
- Taxable services — as a general rule include any service rendered to any person, except services provided by designated professionals and services rendered to other merchants, among others.
- Admission rights — as a general rule this includes, among other things, the money paid for admitting a person or a passenger vehicle to any place of entertainment, sport or recreation; fees and charges paid to private clubs or membership clubs, which provide facilities for the purchase of merchandise or services, either in physical commercial locations or through internet memberships, which allow the acquisition of merchandise, services and benefits in exchange for the payment charges or membership fees.

In general, a person who buys, consumes, uses or warehouses for use or consumption a taxable item is the one responsible for the payment of the SUT to the Puerto Rico Treasury Department (PRTD).

All merchandise introduced into Puerto Rico is subject to the payment of use tax upon introduction. The person responsible for the payment of use tax is the importer of record. To take possession of the merchandise, the importer of record will need to submit a declaration of imports for use and pay the corresponding use tax. A bond can be requested to postpone the payment of the use tax until the 10th of the month following the introduction of the merchandise.

C. Rates

In Puerto Rico, the following are the SUT rates:
- State standard rate: 10.5%
- Municipal rate: 1%
- Special rate on business to business services (B2B): 4%
- Special rate on prepared foods: 7%

A 4% Special SUT rate is applicable to services classified as "designated professional services" and "services rendered to other merchants." The Puerto Rico Internal Revenue Code of 2011, as amended (the Code) also establishes an obligation to self-assess the SUT with respect to services rendered by persons that are not engaged in a trade or business in Puerto Rico to a merchant in Puerto Rico.

As a general rule, the services subject to the 4% special SUT rate include the following:
- Designated professional services: legal services (subject to certain limitations) and services provided by the following professionals licensed by the respective Board of Examiners of the Puerto Rico Department of State: agronomist; architects and landscape architects, Certified Public Accountants, brokers, sellers and real estate companies; professional draftsmen; professional real estate appraisers; geologists; engineers and surveyors; and services rendered by a "tax returns, statements or refund claims specialist"
- Services rendered to other merchants: services rendered to a person engaged in a trade or business or for the production of income, including services rendered by a nonresident person to a person located in Puerto Rico, regardless of the place where the service was rendered, provided that said service is directly or indirectly related with the operations or activities carried out in Puerto Rico by such person

Nevertheless, and pursuant to Act 257-2018 commencing 1 March 2019, "designated professional services" and "services rendered to other merchants" that are rendered by merchants whose annual volume of business does not exceed USD200,000 will not be subject to SUT.

Pursuant to Act 257-2018, a 7% Special SUT rate is applicable commencing 1 October 2019 to the sales of taxable items that are considered "prepared foods," "carbonated drinks," "confectionery products" and "candy" as defined by the Code. Only merchants that comply with all requirements set for by the Department of Treasury will be eligible to obtain authorization to collect and remit the applicable SUT at the 7% special rate. If the merchant does not comply with the requirements imposed by the Department of Treasury, the sale of "prepared foods," "carbonated drinks," "confecionery products" and "candy" by such merchant will be subject to the 10.5% and 1% state and municipal SUT, respectively.

D. Exemptions

SUT exemptions apply to the following, among others:
- Eligible resellers: duly registered merchants that purchase taxable items principally for sale to persons that may acquire them exempt from the payment of SUT or for exportation
- Manufacturing plants: physical facilities wherein raw material, machinery and equipment are used in a manufacturing process. To claim the exemption, all manufacturing plants must have an active manufacturer's ID
- Export sales: taxable items sold for use and consumption outside Puerto Rico, even when the sale takes place in Puerto Rico, if exported from Puerto Rico within 60 days from the date of sale and certain conditions are met
- Export services: taxable services are considered sold for use or consumption outside of Puerto Rico when the purchaser receives the benefit of the rendering of such services outside of Puerto Rico
- Donations: tangible personal property or services intended to be distributed as donations that are not considered inventory

Eligible resellers and manufacturing plants must request a certificate of exemption from the Secretary of the PRTD (Secretary). In addition, a certificate of exempt purchase must be submitted to the seller in each transaction, subject to certain conditions.

The following items, among others, are also exempt from SUT:
- Certain food items
- Funeral services of up to USD4,000
- Prescription medicines
- Machinery and equipment used in exempt manufacturing operations
- Medical-surgical material
- Supplies, articles, equipment and technology used by a hospital unit (under Act 168-1968) to render health services
- Articles and equipment used to compensate for physical or physiological deficiencies of disabled persons
- Tuition and monthly charges paid to licensed child care centers
- Commercial and residential real property leases, provided that in the case of commercial leases, the lessee must prove to the lessor that it complies with the requirements to maintain a fiscal terminal (pursuant to Administrative Determination 19-05, the fiscal terminal requirement will come into effect on 1 July 2020)
- Printed and electronic books
- Certain products for feminine personal hygiene

In addition, the transfer of assets pursuant to a corporate reorganization, including the sale of all or substantially all of the assets of an ongoing business that takes place outside the normal course of business, is generally exempt from SUT.

E. Merchant's registry

A person who wishes to do business in Puerto Rico as a merchant must file with the PRTD a Request for Certificate of Merchant's Registration. This application must be filed with the Secretary before the person, business, partnership or corporation commences the operation of a business. After approval, the Secretary grants the applicant a Certificate of Merchant's Registration, which must be displayed at all times in a place visible to the general public in each place of business for which it is issued.

To be considered a “merchant,” the law provides that “nexus” has been created if a person satisfies any of the following conditions:

- It has an establishment or offices in Puerto Rico or it maintains, or it uses in Puerto Rico, directly or through a subsidiary or affiliate, an office, distribution warehouse or other establishment.
- It has employees, agents or representatives in Puerto Rico who solicit business or carry out business transactions.
- It owns tangible personal property or real property in Puerto Rico.
- It has created a nexus with Puerto Rico in any way, including but not limited to the execution of purchase contracts in Puerto Rico; direct marketing by any means, including but not limited to: mail, radio, television, webpages, electronic commerce or any other electronic means, distribution of unsolicited catalogs, advertisements in magazines or newspapers, billboards, websites, social networks, or any other advertising means of distribution in Puerto Rico, electronic or not, and sales by mail in a continuous, recurrent manner in the ordinary course of business.
- It has an arrangement with residents of Puerto Rico in which the residents refer possible buyers to an online website. Such arrangement will create nexus when the gross income generated from the sales exceeds USD10,000 in a period of 12 months.
- A person that is not a transportation business, a carrier or a third-party intermediary acting in said capacity, sells and sends or causes to be sent, tangible personal property from any state or foreign country to any person in Puerto Rico via link in an internet page, for use, consumption or distribution in Puerto Rico, or for storage to be used in Puerto Rico in a continuous, recurrent manner in the ordinary course of business.
- The person has sufficient connections, or a relationship with Puerto Rico or its residents, with the purpose or objective of creating a sufficient nexus with Puerto Rico.
- Through agreement or reciprocity with another jurisdiction in the United States and such jurisdiction uses its taxing power and jurisdiction over such person in support of Puerto Rico power.
- The person consents, expressly or implicitly.
- A merchant, including one considered affiliated to said person, that is subject to the jurisdiction of Puerto Rico that does any of the following:
  - Sells a product similar to the produce line sold by the person under the same trade name of the person or a trade name similar to that person
  - Uses their employees in Puerto Rico or their facilities in Puerto Rico to advertise, promote or facilitate sales of the person to the buyers in Puerto Rico
  - Maintains an office, a distribution center, warehouse or storage place, or similar business premises in Puerto Rico to facilitate delivery or performance, as applicable, of taxable items sold by the person to buyers in Puerto Rico
  - Uses trademarks, service marks or trade names in Puerto Rico equal to or similar to those used by the person
  - Gives, installs, assembles or renders maintenance services to the person’s buyers in Puerto Rico on taxable items sold by the person to buyers in Puerto Rico
  - Facilitates delivery of tangible personal property sold to the person’s clients located in Puerto Rico, allowing the person’s clients to collect the tangible personal property in an office, distribution center, warehouse or similar place of business maintained by the merchant in Puerto Rico or receives in his facilities the merchandise returned by the person’s clients who bought directly said merchandise from the person
  - Carries out other activities in Puerto Rico significantly associated with the person’s capacity to establish and maintain a market in Puerto Rico for the person’s sales

In 2018, the United States Supreme Court issued its ruling in South Dakota v. Wayfair, holding that physical presence was not a necessary element to create taxable nexus. In the years leading to the Wayfair decision, the Puerto Rico VAT law had been amended to abandon the physical presence nexus standard for SUT purposes. The move to adopt a lower presence threshold was intended to curtail the government’s perceived notion that tax revenue was being adversely impacted by mail order and internet sales, among other types of business transactions. In a way, Wayfair validates Puerto Rico legislation already in place and the requirement set forth by the VAT law requiring businesses to register with the tax authority. For more detailed information, please see the chapter on the United States.

Non-withholding agent. The Code established that the term "non-withholding agent," referring to merchants that conduct sales by mail or internet, and whose only contact with Puerto Rico is through the purchaser who is a resident of the commonwealth or a person dedicated to industry or business in Puerto Rico. See Section F below for more details.

F. Filing and payment system

All merchants must create an account in the merchant portal, SURI, in order to be able to comply with all the monthly filings. All filings will be done electronically through the SURI system.

As previously mentioned, in order to take possession of the merchandise the importer of record will need to file a declaration of imports for use. A declaration must be filed every time merchandise is introduced into Puerto Rico. Furthermore, the declaration must be accompanied by the corresponding use tax payment for the merchandise. If the merchant becomes a bonded merchant, the payment will be postponed until the 10th day of the month following the introduction.

All importers must file a monthly use tax on imports return on or before the 10th day of the month following the introduction of the merchandise. This return will be a summary of all the declarations filed throughout the previous month and will generate a credit to be claimed on the monthly SUT return as long as the merchant has a Reseller Certificate. The credit will be generated with regards to the use tax paid upon introduction of items imported for resale.

All merchants must file a monthly SUT return on or before the 20th day of the month following the month in which the tax was collected. Every merchant will claim a credit for the use tax paid for items bought for resale. Merchants that possess a valid Reseller Certificate will be able to collect a full credit on the liability reflected in the SUT return.

New rules require the following taxpayers to remit the sales tax payment on a bimonthly basis (i.e., twice a month, due on the 15th and last day of the month):
- 50 million or more for the prior tax year)
- Merchants whose prior calendar-year average monthly SUT payment exceeded USD 2,000 (the USD2,000 rule)

These taxpayers will pay the sales tax deposits in installments as follows:
- The first installment is due on the 15th day of each month.
- The second installment is due on the last day of the month.
- If the due date falls on a Saturday, Sunday, or a federal or state holiday, the due date will be the next business day.

The merchant will be deemed in compliance with the monthly sales tax deposits if, during the current month, the amount deposited is the lesser of 80% of the current month sales tax determined or 70% of the sales tax remitted for the same month of the prior calendar year (80/70 safe harbor rule).

A zero-tax return is required if no SUT payment is made. In general terms, the payment of SUT is divided in the following percentages:
- 10.5% to the PRTD
- 1% to the municipality using the form provided by each municipality

Services subject to the 4% Special SUT rate and sales of prepared foods subject to the 7% special SUT must be also reported in the SUT Monthly Return, which must be filed on or before the 20th day of the month following the transaction subject to tax.

Disclosures for non-withholding agents. Merchants that are non-withholding agents are required to file the following notices:
- Each time a purchase is completed, the seller must notify the purchasers in writing that the purchase may be subject to SUT in Puerto Rico and that they should file an Import Declaration and Tax on Imports Monthly Return to report and pay any SUT due.
- Quarterly notice to the PRTD with the seller and buyer information; the date, quantity and description of each purchase; whether the sale is exempt or taxable; and a statement to the effect that purchasers have been notified of the requirement to file an Import Declaration and Tax on Imports Monthly Return in which they report and pay any SUT.
- Annual notice to Puerto Rico purchasers with information similar to the quarterly notice provided to the PRTD.

G. Penalties

Interest. If no payment is made on or before the corresponding due date of the transaction subject to the tax, interest will be imposed at an annual rate of 10% from the date the return was required to be filed until the date of payment.

Surcharges. For any case in which the payment of interest is required, a surcharge of 5% of the balance due applies if the delay exceeds 30 days but does not exceed 60 days. The percentage increases to 10% if the delay exceeds 60 days.

Penalties. Listed below are selected penalties that can be imposed by the PRTD for noncompliance with SUT requirements:
- Failure to register in the Merchants' Registry — USD10,000
- Failure to display merchant certificate — up to USD1,000
- Display of fraudulent merchant certificate — USD5,000
- For each violation for not displaying separately the SUT on a receipt or other evidence of a retail sale — USD100
- Failure to remit the SUT — no more than 50% penalty of the determined insufficiency, and 100% in cases of recurrent failure to remit
- Failure to file SUT returns — the greater of USD100 or 10% of the tax liability

Non-withholding agent penalties. The following penalties can be imposed to non-withholding agents for failure to file notices:
- Not notifying Puerto Rico purchasers at the time of each sale about SUT reporting and payment obligations — USD100 for each violation
- Failure to file quarterly notice to the PRTD — USD5,000 for each violation
- Failure to file annual notice to Puerto Rico purchasers — USD500 for each violation

Qatar is a Member State of the Gulf Cooperation Council (GCC). The GCC consists of Bahrain, the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Oman, Qatar and the United Arab Emirates. The GCC has agreed that VAT will be implemented by each Member State.

At the time of preparing this chapter, the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, United Arab Emirates and Bahrain are the only GCC Member States to have implemented VAT. Qatar has ratified the GCC VAT Agreement, but Qatar has yet to announce its implementation date.

The GCC Common VAT Agreement contains the main principles of the GCC VAT system and sets out the options that individual Member States may choose in terms of the VAT treatment applicable to certain supplies and business sectors. The options are primarily administrative, and where aspects are not dealt with by the GCC Common VAT Agreement, then each Member State may determine individually.

At the time of preparing this chapter, the GCC Common VAT Agreement has no direct effect in the GCC Member States, except if the respective Member States' domestic VAT law specifically refers to the provisions in the Common Agreement.

The summary set out below is based on the GCC Common VAT Agreement.

Transitional provisions

Each Member State shall outline in their domestic VAT law the transitional provisions, which include the following:

- VAT due on the supplies of goods and services and the import and export of goods, shall be effective from the date of the enforcement of the local VAT law in the Member State.
- Each Member State shall determine the VAT registration deadline for taxable persons who are obliged to register from the date of the enforcement of the local VAT law.
- Each Member State may ignore the date of the invoice or the date of the payment and consider the tax due date the same as the date of supply. This is regardless of any other relevant regulation. This includes cases where the tax invoice is issued, or payment is received, ahead of the date of the enforcement of the local VAT law, or ahead of the VAT registration date, and where the supply took place after this date.
- For continuous supplies that are carried out partially ahead of the date of enforcement of the domestic VAT law, or ahead of the VAT registration date, and partially after this date, the part that is carried out before the date of enforcement or registration, shall not be taxed.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- Supplies of goods or services made in Romania by a taxable person

- The Intra-Community acquisition of goods from another EU Member State (see section on the EU)
- Acquisition of general business-to-business (B2B) services taxable in Romania, from EU and non-EU suppliers
- The importation of goods into Romania

C. Who is liable

A "taxable person" is any person who independently makes taxable supplies of goods or services in the course of a business, regardless of the purpose or results of that activity. The VAT registration threshold is turnover of RON300,000 (EUR88,500) a year (this threshold applies only to taxable persons established in Romania). Established taxpayers who estimate or record a turnover of more than the Romanian currency equivalent of EUR88,500 must request the VAT registration within 10 days of the moment the threshold is exceeded or achieved. The date when the threshold was achieved or exceeded is deemed to be the first day of the month following the one in which the threshold was achieved or exceeded. The VAT registration becomes valid starting the first day of the month following the fiscal period month of the request.

Exemption from VAT registration. Taxable persons having the seat of their economic activity in Romania are not required to register for VAT purposes in Romania if their annual turnover does not exceed EUR88,500/RON300,000. However, they may opt to register for VAT purposes.

A taxable person not established in Romania who is liable to pay VAT in Romania, may be exempt from the VAT registration under the following specific situations:

- When performing occasional services in Romania, if these operations do not follow an intra-Community acquisition of goods performed in Romania
- When performing occasional supplies of goods in Romania, except:
  - Distance sales
  - Supplies of goods following intra-Community acquisitions of goods in Romania

The abovementioned supplies of goods and services are considered occasional if they are performed once a year.

Voluntary VAT registration and small businesses. Taxable persons that have a business establishment in Romania, and who do not exceed the VAT registration threshold, may opt to register for VAT purposes in Romania.

Taxable persons not established in Romania may opt to register for VAT purposes in case of:

- Imports of goods
- Sale/rental of real estate subject to VAT

Group registration. VAT grouping is allowed under the Romanian VAT law.Under the rules currently in effect, a minimum of two taxable persons may form a fiscal group for a period of at least two years if all of the members meet the following conditions:

- They are established in Romania.
- They do not belong to another fiscal group.
- They use the same tax period.
- Their capital is held directly or indirectly in a proportion of more than 50% by the same shareholders.

However, VAT grouping is allowed only for VAT reporting (for consolidation purposes).

Non-established businesses. A taxable person that has the seat of its economic activity in Romania is deemed to be established in Romania for VAT purposes.

A taxable person that has the seat of its economic activity outside Romania is considered to be established for VAT purposes in Romania if it has a fixed establishment in Romania, which means that it has sufficient technical and human resources to perform on a regular basis taxable supplies of goods and/or services.

A taxable person that has the seat of its economic activity outside Romania and a fixed establishment in Romania is not deemed to be established in Romania for the supplies of goods and services performed in Romania in which the Romanian fixed establishment is not involved.

The seat of its economic activity is deemed to be the place where the management decisions of a taxable person are taken and where the functions of its central administration are performed. To determine where a taxable person has the seat of its economic activity, certain factors should be taken into account, such as the place where the directors meet and where the company sets its general policy.

In general, a non-established business must register for VAT if it undertakes a range of activities, such as the following:

- Intra-Community acquisitions of goods in Romania
- Intra-Community supplies of goods in Romania
- Transfers of its own goods to Romania
- Sending goods to Romania from another EU country for processing with the finished products not returning to the EU country of dispatch
- Distance sales in excess of the annual threshold of EUR35,000
- Exports of goods

A taxable person that has the seat of its economic activity outside Romania but has a fixed establishment in Romania must register for VAT purposes in Romania before receiving a service for which it is liable to pay the VAT or before supplying a service from this fixed establishment to a taxable person that is liable to pay VAT in another EU Member State.

A taxable person that has the seat of its economic activity in Romania but is not registered for VAT purposes in Romania must register for VAT purposes if it supplies services with a place of supply in another EU Member State, for which the beneficiary is liable to pay the tax.

A taxable person that has the seat of its economic activity in Romania but is not registered for VAT purposes in Romania must register for VAT purposes if it acquires services from a supplier established in another EU Member State and if such taxable person, as the beneficiary of the services, is liable to pay the tax.

VAT registration is not required if an entity that is neither established nor registered for VAT in Romania makes a local supply of goods or services and the recipient is an established taxable person, nontaxable legal person (for example, a public authority) or is a non-established taxable person that is registered for VAT in Romania.

Taxable persons not established and not registered for VAT purposes in Romania may apply for VAT registration if they carry out imports of goods into Romania, taxable supplies of immovable property or rental of immovable property in Romania.

Tax representatives. A non-established, non-EU entity that carries on taxable operations in Romania and that is required to register for VAT purposes must appoint a tax representative. A taxable person that is established in the EU may appoint a tax representative but may also choose to register for VAT in its own right (direct VAT registration).

Reverse charge. The reverse charge applies to the following transactions, among others:

- Intra-Community acquisitions of goods and services
- Local supplies of goods and services made by non-established and unregistered entities to customers that are registered for VAT in Romania

- Imports. The reverse charge may be applied to imports exclusively by persons who have obtained a specific VAT payment deferment certificate, taxable persons benefiting of authorized economic operator and/or local customs clearance procedure

Domestic reverse charge. The domestic reverse charge in Romania applies to the following:
- Local supplies of certain categories of goods, such as ferrous waste, grain crops, wood and transfer of green and CO2 certificates performed between entities registered for VAT purposes in Romania
- Supplies of electrical energy performed by a taxable person registered for VAT in Romania to a Romanian VAT-registered taxable person acting as trader
- Taxable supplies of immovable property in Romania by a taxable person registered for VAT in Romania to a Romanian VAT-registered taxable person
- Taxable supplies of investment gold and taxable supplies of raw materials and semi-finished gold having a title higher or equal with 325 to a thousand (the proportion of fine precious metal contained) to a Romanian VAT-registered taxable person
- Supply of mobile phones, laptops, tablets, game consoles or other devices with integrated circuits by a taxable person registered for VAT in Romania to a Romanian VAT-registered taxable person

Digital economy. There are no special VAT rules for the digital economy, aside from the Mini One-Stop Shop rules (as outlined below).

Mini One-Stop Shop. Romanian VAT Law permits the use of the VAT Mini One-Stop Shop (MOSS), which gives taxpayers making B2C supplies of digital services the simplified option of registering in one EU Member State, from which they can submit VAT returns and pay the VAT due in all Member States.

Taxpayers who perform supplies of digital services to EU consumers and choose to register in Romania should submit a statement of commencement of their activity. No fiscal representative is required in this respect. Electronic declarations should be submitted for each quarter no later than the 20th day of the month following the respective quarter. The VAT payment should be made in euros no later than the 20th day of the month following the quarter for which the reporting is required. If the supplies of digital services are performed in other currency, the payment should be converted into euros using the exchange rate published by the European Central Bank for the last day of the quarter to which the special VAT statement relates.

If Romania is the Member State of consumption, the taxable person non-established in Romania who uses the MOSS regime can benefit from the reimbursement of the VAT incurred on imports and acquisitions of goods/services performed in Romania for the activities that fall under this regime. If the taxable non-established person, beneficiary of this regime, performs in Romania activities that do not fall under this regime and for which the obligation of VAT registration arises, the respective person can deduct VAT for its taxable activities that fall under the regime through the VAT return.

The web portal is available with access granted by use of a digital certificate. Online VAT registration is possible for the MOSS (https://www.anaf.ro/revocat.html?mot=no-client-cert).

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Romania.

Vouchers. Vouchers can have single purpose (SPV) or multiple purpose (MPV). A voucher is defined as an instrument by which a supplier is obliged to accept it as partial or total payment for a supply of goods or services.The payments received for the sale of an SPV are deemed as advance payments for which VAT is due. An SPV is a voucher for which the place of supply and the VAT liability of the goods/services for which the voucher may be redeemed, are known at the time the voucher is issued. An MPV is a voucher other than the SPV. The sale of an MPV does not trigger a VAT lability.

Registration procedures. Established or non-established taxable persons applying (as a requirement or by option) for a VAT registration in Romania must file specific registration forms depending on the type of VAT registration. The forms are available in electronic format and have to be submitted as a hardcopy and only in Romanian language directly by the taxable person or by proxy.

The online VAT registration is possible only for the MOSS.

Foreign operators may register for VAT purposes in Romania as follows:
- Nonresident taxpayers who are not established within the community and who have the obligation to appoint a tax representative are administered by the tax administration with competence for the administration of the tax representative (which keeps the record of the tax representative chosen as taxpayer)
- Nonresident taxpayers established in the community who register directly in Romania are administered by the tax authority with competence for the administration of nonresident taxpayers, namely the specialized section of the Bucharest Directorate General for Public Finance at 13 Prof. Dr. Dimitrie Gerota Street, Sector 2, Bucharest, Romania, telephone number 021.305.70.90
- Nonresident taxpayers who have their business established outside Romania and who are established in Romania through one or several fixed establishments are administered by the tax authority whose territorial competence covers the fixed establishment designated to submit VAT returns

The contact details concerning the departments, addresses, telephone, fax, email and other useful information may be obtained from the webpage of the National Tax Administration Agency (https://www.anaf.ro).

As per the general rule, taxable persons are required to register for VAT purposes in Romania prior to performing the operations triggering the VAT registration obligation.

Depending on the type of VAT registration, the time frame in which the Romanian tax authorities should issue the VAT registration number is:
- Thirty days from the date of submission of the complete documentation when the registration is through a tax representative
- Ten days from the date of submission of the documentation when registration is through other means

The date from which the taxable person is considered registered is the date when the VAT registration certificate is communicated by the Romanian tax authorities (i.e., the hand-over date, the post date, as the case may be). Other dates may apply, depending on the reason for the VAT registration (e.g., the VAT exemption threshold was exceeded).

Deregistration. Taxable persons with annual turnover of less than RON300,000 may request deregistration by the 10th day of the month following the fiscal period applied by the taxable person.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 19%
- Reduced rates: 5% and 9%

- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate, the zero rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%
(i.e., exempt with credit)

- Exports of goods
- Transport services and other services directly linked to exports of goods
- International transport of passengers
- Intra-Community supplies of goods (specific provisions)

Examples of goods and services taxed at 5%

- Books, newspapers, magazines and school manuals (except those intended exclusively for publicity)
- Hotel accommodation and similar accommodation, including the rental of land for camping
- Restaurant and catering services (excluding alcohol, except for draught beer)
- Access to museums, castles, cinemas, zoological and botanical gardens, amusement and recreational parks and sporting events
- The right to use sport facilities
- The passenger transport by trains or historical vehicles with steam powered on narrow lines for touristic or entertaining purposes
- The passenger transport using transport installations on cable
- The passenger transport using vehicles with animal traction, used for touristic or entertaining purposes
- The passenger transport by boats for touristic or entertainment purposes
- Delivery of high-quality food, respectively mountain products, eco, traditional, authorized by the Ministry of Agriculture and Rural Development
- Supply of social housing (including related land). For this purpose, social housing includes, but is not limited to, houses that are a maximum of 120 square meters and that do not exceed RON450,000 in value (net of VAT). The reduced 5% VAT rate applies only if both of the following conditions are satisfied:
  — The house can be used as such after the sale.
  — For individual houses, the surface of the land on which the house is built is less than 250 square meters.

Examples of goods and services taxed at 9%

- Prostheses of any type and accessories (except dental prostheses)
- Orthopedic products
- Medicines for human and veterinary use
- Food (excluding alcohol) having certain classification codes
- Fertilizers, seeds and other agricultural products intended for the sowing or planting, as well as for supplies of services, such as those specifically used in the agricultural sector
- Supply of water for agriculture irrigation
- Irrigation and drinking water supplies

The term "exempt" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Specific banking and financial operations
- Insurance and reinsurance
- Medical services
- Education
- Specific hiring, concession, leasing or letting of immovable property (unless option to tax is exercised)

- Sale of "old" buildings (unless option to tax is exercised)
- Re-imports of Romanian goods repaired abroad (equivalent to the exported goods)
- Imports of natural gas through specific distribution systems and electricity

Option to tax for exempt supplies. Any taxable person may opt to tax the hiring, concession, leasing or letting of immovable property and the sale of "old" buildings by means of a taxation notification submitted to the competent tax authorities.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "chargeability to tax" or "tax point." The basic time of supply for goods is when the goods are delivered. The basic time of supply for services is when the services are provided. Several exceptions apply to these rules.

For intra-Community acquisitions or exempt intra-Community supplies of goods, the tax point arises on the day when the invoice is issued, the day when a self-invoice is issued or the 15th day of the month following the tax point, whichever is earlier.

Deposits and prepayments. The tax point for advance payments is when the payment is received. Special rules may apply in case of a change of tax regime, partial prepayments or partial advance invoices.

The tax point for a supply of goods, including immovable goods, with installment payments occurs when the goods are handed over to the beneficiary (unless an invoice is issued, or a payment is received before that date).

Continuous supplies of services. The time of supply for continuous supplies of services, such as telephone services, water and electricity, is on the last day of the period specified in the contract for payment, or on the date of issuance of the invoice. The settlement period should not exceed one year.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. Romania implemented simplification measures regarding the supply of goods under call off/consignment stock and regarding the supply of goods sent for testing.

In respect of the call off/consignment stock simplification, if the simplification measure is applied, the supply of goods is performed when the goods are taken over/further sold by the consignee to its client. The simplification regime is applied under the following specific conditions:

- The consignee is registered for VAT purposes in Romania
- The EU Member State of origin does not consider the movement of the goods to Romania as a transfer or it applies/accepts a similar VAT simplification regime
- The consignee or the buyer of the goods from Romania is known by the supplier when the goods are transported from another EU Member State in Romania

For the supply of goods sent for testing under the simplification measure, the supply of goods sent for testing/approval, is deemed to take place at the date when the beneficiary accepted the goods. The simplification regime applies for goods which cannot be imported as samples.

Reverse-charge services. Certain services received by a Romanian taxable person from a foreign supplier are taxed in Romania using the reverse-charge mechanism, which means that the Romanian customer must account for the VAT due in the VAT return for the month in which the tax point occurs. In such circumstances, the customer accounts for the VAT as both output tax and input tax in the VAT return. If the beneficiary has a full right to deduct input tax, the charge is neutral for tax purposes.

If no invoice is received from the foreign supplier, the Romanian beneficiary must issue a "self-invoice," which must be in a specified format, by the 15th day of the month following the month in which the services are supplied. The time limit for issuing an invoice is the 15th day of the following month.

If the beneficiary of the service is registered for VAT in Romania, the VAT due must be paid by the 25th day of the month following the month in which the tax point occurs. However, if the beneficiary is not registered for VAT in Romania under the normal regime, the reverse charge must be accounted for by using a special VAT return (with no right of deduction; consequently, the VAT due must be paid).

Leased assets. The VAT tax point shall occur on each payment deadline specified in the contract for making the payment. By way of derogation, VAT shall become chargeable on the invoice date or on the date when an advance payment/prepayment is received, where such cases occur prior to the chargeable event.

Imported goods. The tax point for imported goods is the point when customs duties are due. In principle, the tax point for import VAT is the point when the goods are released into free circulation. Exceptions may apply.

Intra-Community acquisitions. VAT shall become chargeable on the issue of an invoice or self-invoice, as the case may be, or on the expiry of the 15th day of the month following the month of the supply if no invoice/self-invoice has been issued by that time.

Intra-Community supplies of goods. VAT shall become chargeable on the issue of an invoice or self-invoice, as the case may be, or on the expiry of the 15th day of the month following the month of the supply if no invoice/self-invoice has been issued by that time.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax, which is due on goods and services supplied to it for business purposes. A taxable person generally recovers input tax offsetting it against output tax, which is VAT charged on supplies made.

In principle, input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services supplied within Romania, VAT paid on imports of goods, and VAT self-assessed for reverse-charge services received and for intra-Community acquisitions of goods, as well as for certain taxable transactions subject to reverse-charge simplified measures.

Except for certain specific cases, the amount of VAT reclaimed must be requested through the VAT return. The excess of input tax over output tax is generally refundable. Alternatively, it may be offset against future VAT liabilities.

For taxable persons that are registered for VAT purposes in Romania, the minimum amount of a VAT refund is RON5,000 (approximately EUR1,100). Any amount below this threshold may be recovered by offsetting it against other VAT liabilities.

Input tax on fiscal receipts is deductible only if the VAT code of the customer is on the receipt and the total value of the acquisition (including VAT) is lower than EUR100.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used in the performance of operations subject to VAT (for example, goods acquired for private use by an entrepreneur). In addition, input tax may not be recovered for some items of business expenditure.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Personal expenses
- Business gifts if the individual value of each item (tangible good) is higher than RON100 (approximately EUR22) and VAT was deducted on acquisition
- Alcohol and tobacco, unless they are used for taxable supplies of goods or services

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Advertising
- Hotel accommodation
- Conferences
- Purchase of vans and trucks, and leases of cars, vans and trucks
- Business travel expenses

Regarding the deductibility of input taxes on the acquisition of passenger road vehicles weighing no more than 3.5 tons and having a maximum of nine seats, including the driver's seat, two rules apply:
- The deductibility of the input tax on the acquisition of such vehicles — whether by purchase, intra-Community acquisition or import — and on the fuel purchased for them is limited to 50% irrespective of whether the vehicle is used exclusively for business purposes.
- The deductibility of the input tax on the acquisition of such vehicles — whether by purchase, intra-Community acquisition, import, rental or leasing — and on service expenses related to those vehicles is limited to 50%, if the vehicle is not used exclusively for business purposes.

However, a 100% deduction is available for vehicles used for certain specifically mentioned activities (for example, when used to render services against consideration, when used as merchandise for commercial purposes, or when used by sales and purchase agents) are not subject to such provision. In this context, input tax recovery should be supported by backup documentation and log books.

Partial exemption. Input tax directly related to taxable supplies is fully recoverable, while input tax directly related to exempt supplies is fully non-recoverable. Input tax that is attributable to both taxable and exempt supplies (such as VAT paid on overhead costs) is deductible on a pro rata basis. The pro rata method is generally based on the percentage of income generated by supplies with a right to input tax deduction, divided by total income. The calculation of recoverable VAT is based generally on the pro rata percentage for the preceding year. However, a special pro rata percentage may be used if approved by the tax authorities. Pro rata percentages may also be established for each sector of the taxable person's activity that has a partial right to claim deductions.

Input tax related to acquisitions of goods or services that may be allocated to operations allowing VAT deduction right or to operations not allowing VAT deduction right is not deducted based on a pro rata (but based on direct allocation).

In case of acquisitions destined for investments, which will be used both for operations allowing VAT deduction right and for operations not allowing VAT deduction right, the taxable person is allowed to deduct the VAT fully during the investment period. This VAT will be adjusted in the first year when supplies will be performed using the good resulting from the investment.

Capital goods. Capital goods include any fixed tangible assets subject to depreciation, constructions and land of any kind held for the production or supply of goods or services, for rental or administrative purposes. It also includes the construction, transformation or modernization of immovable goods but excludes repairs or works of maintenance on these assets. Fixed tangible assets that are leased are deemed capital goods of the lessor.

Input tax is deducted in the year in which the goods are acquired. The amount of input tax deducted depends on the destination or use of the good and/or on the partial exemption of the taxable person. However, the amount of input tax deducted must be adjusted over time if the destination or use of the goods changes, the capital good ceases to exist or the taxable person's partial exemption percentage changes.

In Romania, the capital goods adjustment scheme applies to the following assets for the number of years indicated:
- 20 years for the acquisition, construction, transformation or modernization of an immovable property, if the transformation or modernization amounts to at least 20% of the aggregate amount of the construction thus transformed or modernized
- Five years for other movable capital goods

Taxable persons shall keep records of the capital goods subject to the adjustment of input tax, so as to allow the verification of the tax deducted and of the adjustments made. This statement shall be kept for a period starting with the date when the tax related to the acquisition of the capital goods becomes chargeable and ending five years as of expiry of the period when adjustment of the deduction can be requested. Any other entries, documents and ledgers on capital goods shall be kept for a similar period.

The adjustment period shall start on 1 January of the year when assets were acquired or manufactured or of the year when assets were first used after transformation or modernization. The VAT deduction shall be adjusted during the tax period when the event triggering the adjustment occurs, once for the entire tax related to the remaining adjustment period.

If during the adjustment period events resulting in the adjustment in favor of a taxable person or in favor of the tax authority take place, the VAT adjustment shall be carried out for the same capital goods successively during the adjustment period whenever such events occur.

Input tax related to capital goods shall not be adjusted where the amount from adjustment of each capital good is lower than RON1,000.

Refunds. If input tax exceeds output tax, the balance (known as the "negative VAT balance") may be treated in either of the following manners:
- Carried forward to the next period.
- Compensated or refunded by the tax authorities, based on an option exercised by the taxpayer in the taxpayer's VAT return. This option may be exercised only for negative VAT balances exceeding RON5,000.

The VAT refund application may cover eligible input tax incurred in the period beginning with the fifth year before the year in which the claim is made (under certain conditions).

In principle, a VAT refund or compensation request must be processed within 45 to 90 days (in practice, this period may be longer). Depending on certain parameters, the VAT refund can be granted with or without a prior VAT audit (the Romanian tax authorities may approve the VAT reimbursement for a taxable person registered for VAT purposes in Romania before performing a subsequent VAT audit in cases where the value of the amount requested for reimbursement is lower than RON45,000). During the VAT refund process, the tax authorities may request additional information from the taxpayer. Consequently, the term for making the repayment may be extended by the number of days between the date of the request for additional information and the date on which the information is received by the tax authorities. If the refund or compensation request is not dealt with by the expiration of this term, in principle, the taxpayer is entitled to receive late payment interest.

Pre-registration costs. Any taxable person is entitled to deduct VAT for the acquisitions made prior to VAT registration, as of when such person intends to perform an economic activity, within a period of five consecutive years. The intention of the person must be assessed based on objective elements, such as the fact that the person starts to incur costs and/or make preparatory investments required for the initiation of this economic activity.

Write-off of bad debts. Bad-debt relief may be applied only where the value of goods or services supplied cannot be received due to the bankruptcy of the beneficiary or as a result of implementation of a restructuring plan acknowledged and approved by a court decision through which a part of or the entire written-off receivable is canceled. In the case of a restructuring plan, bad-debt relief is allowed from the date of the court decision. In a bankruptcy case, bad-debt relief is allowed from the date of the court decision for the closure of the domestic insolvency procedure.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred in relation to noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Romania.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Romania refunds VAT incurred by businesses that are neither established in Romania nor required to be registered for VAT there. Non-established businesses may claim Romanian VAT to the same extent as VAT-registered businesses.

EU businesses. For businesses established in the EU, refund is made under the EU 9th8th Refund Directive.

Claims under the EU VAT Refund Directive may be submitted in the Member State where the applicant is established. The application for refund must be accompanied by the appropriate documentation (see the section on the EU).

In principle, the term established by the tax authorities for processing a refund application is four months from the date of submission of the application and supporting documents.

The minimum claim period is three months, while the maximum period is one year. The minimum claim for a period of less than a year, but greater than three months, is the equivalent in RON of EUR400. For an annual claim or a claim for a period of less than three months, the minimum amount is the equivalent in RON of EUR50.

The deadline for refund claims is 30 September of the year following the calendar year of the reimbursement period.

Non-EU businesses. For businesses established outside the EU, refund is made under the terms of the EU 13th Directive (under the condition of reciprocity).

The deadline, and minimum claim period for non-EU businesses, is the same as the rules for EU businesses (see above).

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A Romanian taxable person must generally provide a VAT invoice for all taxable supplies made.

Credit notes. Invoices that contain errors may be canceled and the taxpayer may issue a “reversal invoice.” The amount credited must be printed on the reversal invoice and must be preceded by a minus sign. A reversal invoice must contain the same information as a VAT invoice and a cross-reference must be provided.

Electronic invoicing. Romanian VAT law permits electronic invoicing in line with EU Directive 2010/45/EU (see the chapter on the EU). For invoices issued by non-EU suppliers, the authenticity and integrity of the content of the invoice should be ensured either through an electronic signature or the electronic data exchange (EDI) procedure.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified VAT invoices are allowed in Romania if the value of the supplies covered by the invoice, including VAT, is not higher than EUR100.

Under certain conditions, if the value of the invoice is higher than EUR100, but lower than EUR400, and if the administrative or commercial practice of the activity sector involved or the technical conditions would make the issuing of a regular invoice extremely difficult, a simplified invoice can be issued.

Self-billing. Self-billing is allowed in Romania, i.e., the customer can issue invoices on behalf of the supplier. For this procedure to be possible, the following conditions must be met:
- The parties must conclude a pre-invoicing agreement through which this invoicing procedure is outlined. The pre-invoicing agreement means an agreement concluded before the commencement of the invoice being issued by the customer on behalf of the supplier.
- An acceptance procedure of each invoice must exist. The acceptance procedure can be explicit or implicit and can be agreed and described in the pre-invoicing agreement or can be represented by receiving the invoice.
- The invoice must be issued on behalf of the supplier by the customer and sent to the supplier. The invoice must contain all the legal requirements for invoicing.
- The invoice must be registered in the sales ledger by the supplier, if it is established in Romania.

Proof of exports and intra-Community supplies. Goods exported from Romania are not subject to Romanian VAT. To qualify as exempt with credit, the supplier must prove that the goods left Romania. In respect of the documentation required to evidence the export of goods, a taxpayer should, in principle, hold the supporting documentation attesting the VAT exempt nature of these transactions (e.g., an invoice compliant with the Romanian VAT legislation requirements, export customs declaration bearing the proof of exit from EU territory of the goods — for exports, transport documents from the Romanian customs authorities confirming that the goods left Romania.

In case the respective documentation is not available during a potential VAT audit performed by the tax authorities, there is a high risk that the tax authorities will deny the applicability of the VAT exemption and assess additional VAT liabilities, as well as late payment charges at the level of the company (depending on its VAT position).In respect of the documentation required to evidence intra-Community supplies documentation, from 1 January 2020, the following is required:
- Invoice containing all the mandatory information provided by the Romanian VAT law, which must contain the VAT number of the beneficiary from another EU Member State
- Proof that the goods were shipped from Romania to another EU Member State (transport documents, e.g., CMR signed/stamped by the beneficiary of the transported goods)
- Other documents such as: contract, sales/purchase order, insurance documents. Also, the supplier should be provided with a valid VAT number of its customer

The invoices should also mention the legal basis (e.g., a reference to the relevant provision of the Romanian Fiscal Code or of the Council Directive).

Foreign currency invoices. If a VAT invoice for a transaction that takes place in Romania is issued in a foreign currency, the VAT amount must be converted into Romanian lei (RON), using the rate published by the National Bank of Romania, the bank in charge of the payment transfers, or the European Central Bank. The conversion must be calculated for the date on which the tax point for the transaction occurred or would have occurred if the VAT cash-in system had not been applied. The parties to the transaction must mention the applicable method in the contract.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. Special rules apply to the place of supply for supplies of telecommunications, broadcasting and electronic services to non-VAT taxable customers.

Romanian suppliers of these services are required to issue invoices to nontaxable customers.

By way of exception, a taxable person is exempt from the obligation to issue full VAT invoices for the following supplies, unless the customer requests a full VAT invoice:

- Supplies of goods and services through retail shops, supplying to the general public, for which the issuance of fiscal receipts is mandatory
- Supplies of goods and services provided to customers that are not VAT registered (nontaxable) other than nontaxable legal persons for which the issuance of approved legal documents without the buyer's nomination is mandatory, such as: transport of passengers based on travel tickets or subscriptions, ticket access to shows, museums, cinemas, sports events, fairs, exhibitions
- Supplies of goods and services provided to customers that are not VAT registered (nontaxable) other than nontaxable legal persons, which by their nature do not allow the supplier to identify the beneficiary, such as: deliveries of goods through commercial vending machines, car parks cash-out and electronic recharging services for prepaid calling cards

Records.

Record retention period. The archiving of the financial accounting documents based on which the VAT statements were prepared, as well as the VAT statements, shall be ensured for a period of 10 years (or equal with the useful life in case of immovable capital goods).

Electronic archiving. The taxable person must ensure the storage of copies of invoices issued (or issued by the customer/a third party on behalf of the supplier), as well as of all invoices received. Invoices may be stored on paper or electronically, regardless of the original form in which they were sent or made available.

The taxable person may decide the place of storage for the invoices, provided such documents are made available to the competent tax authorities without any delays and whenever requested. Nonetheless, such storage place may not be located on the territory of a country with which there is no legal instrument concerning mutual assistance.

By way of exception, taxable persons having the seat of their economic activities in Romania or established in Romania through a fixed establishment must store the invoices issued and received — other than electronic invoices — on Romanian territory.

VAT split payment. VAT-registered persons falling under one of the following situations are required to open and use at least one VAT account:

- As of 31 December 2017, have outstanding VAT liabilities, except for those for which the enforcement procedure is suspended, exceeding RON15,000 for large taxpayers, RON10,000 for mid-sized taxpayers, RON5,000 for other taxpayers, if these liabilities are not paid by 31 January 2018. The entry in the registry of persons applying the VAT split-payment mechanism is done starting 1 March 2018.
- Starting with 1 January 2018, have outstanding VAT liabilities older than 60 working days as of the due date, except for those for which the enforcement procedure is suspended, exceeding RON15,000 for large taxpayers, RON10,000 for mid-sized taxpayers, RON5,000 for other taxpayers. The entry in the registry of persons applying the VAT split-payment mechanism is done starting the 1st day of the second month following the one when the 60 working days deadline as of the due date occurred.
- Fall under the provisions of the national legislation regarding the procedure for prevention of insolvency and of insolvency. The entry in the registry of persons applying the VAT split-payment mechanism is done starting 1 March 2018 for persons undergoing insolvency at 31 December 2017 and starting 1st day of the following month for persons undergoing insolvency starting 1 January 2018.

Persons not registered for VAT purposes, individuals or legal persons not-established in Romania are not required to perform payments in the supplier's VAT account who applies the VAT split-payment mechanism. Certain operations have been specifically excluded from the applicability of the VAT split-payment mechanism, such as:

- Payments performed on behalf of another person
- Financing granted by credit institutions and nonbanking financial institutions in case of assignment of receivables
- Payments in kind
- Compensation

The supplier is allowed to correct an erroneous payment performed by the beneficiary in another account other than the VAT account.

Failure to comply with the VAT split-payment rules may trigger fines (e.g., 0.06%/day for VAT amounts paid to an erroneous account, 10% of the VAT amount paid from an erroneous account).

Taxpayers who are VAT registered not applying the VAT split-payment mechanism are liable to make split payments from their current account to the VAT account of the suppliers applying the VAT split-payment mechanism.

A tax incentive concerning the 5% decrease of the profit tax/income of micro-enterprises will be granted for the entire period during which the VAT split-payment mechanism is optionally applied.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. Taxable persons with annual turnover below the RON equivalent of EUR100,000 must submit VAT returns quarterly. However, taxpayers who submit quarterly VAT returns must submit monthly VAT returns, effective from the date on which they perform a taxable intra-Community acquisition in Romania. All other taxable persons submit VAT returns monthly.

The due date is the 25th day of the month following the end of the return period. All taxpayers must file their VAT returns electronically. The relevant VAT returns must be signed by the taxpayer using a qualified certificate issued by a provider of certification services.

Periodic payments. Payment in full is required by the same date as the VAT return submission deadline, i.e., the 25th day of the month following the end of the return period. All VAT liabilities must be paid in Romanian currency.

Electronic filing. Electronic submission of VAT statements is mandatory for all taxpayers. Such submission is performed through means of a digital certificate, which can be obtained only by Romanian individuals based on specific forms submitted with the competent tax administration.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Romania.

Special schemes. Romania has implemented the following special schemes:

Special scheme for small enterprises. If the turnover is less than EUR88,500 per year, the taxable person can apply the special exemption.

Special scheme for travel agents. Where the taxable base of the services rendered is the profit margin obtained from the sale of the respective services, exclusive of VAT.

Special arrangements for secondhand goods, works of art, collectors' items and antiques. Where the taxable base for the supplies of goods is the profit margin obtained from the sale of the respective goods, exclusive of VAT. By way of derogation, for supplies of works of art, collectors' items or antiques imported by the taxable dealer, the purchase price to be taken into account in calculating the profit margin shall be equal to the taxable base on importation plus the VAT due or paid on importation.

Special scheme for investment gold. Where the supplies, intra-Community acquisitions and importation of investment gold, including investment in securities; and intermediary services in respect of supplies of investment gold.

Special scheme for electronically supplied services. For non-established taxable persons who supplies electronic services to nontaxable persons.

Cash accounting: For taxable persons registered for VAT purposes in Romania and having the seat of its economic activity in Romania, whose turnover in the previous calendar year does not exceed RON2.250 million (approx. EUR500,000), as well as taxable persons established in Romania which apply for a VAT registration during the year and opt to apply the VAT cash accounting system starting with the VAT registration date.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Romania.

Supplementary filings.

Informative statement. All taxable persons that are registered for VAT in Romania must also submit an informative statement to the Romanian tax authorities. In principle, this statement must include all local supplies and acquisitions performed between taxable persons registered for VAT purposes in Romania made in the reporting period.

The Form 394 includes, inter alia, acquisitions from Romanian persons not registered for VAT purposes in Romania, acquisitions from taxable persons established outside Romania and not registered for VAT purposes in Romania and that do not have the liability to register for VAT purposes in Romania — reverse charge at the beneficiary, etc.

The due date is the 30th day of the month following the end of the period, starting with the July 2016 reporting period. The Form 394 should be submitted to the tax authorities even if no transactions were performed in the reporting month. A taxable person that fails to submit an informative statement by the due date is liable for a fine ranging from RON12,000 to RON14,000 (approximately EUR2,600 to EUR3,200) in case of large and medium sized taxpayers and between RON2,000 to RON3,500 (approximately EUR500 to EUR875) for other taxpayers.

Intrastat. A Romanian taxable person that trades with other EU countries must complete statistical reports, known as Intrastat, if the value of either dispatches or arrivals of goods exceeds certain thresholds. Separate reports are required for intra-Community acquisitions (Intrastat Arrivals) and for intra-Community supplies (Intrastat Dispatches).

The threshold for Intrastat Arrivals is RON900,000. The threshold for Intrastat Dispatches is RON900,000.

Romanian taxable persons must complete Intrastat declarations in Romanian lei, rounded up to the nearest whole number.

Intrastat returns must be submitted monthly. The submission deadline is the 15th day of the month following the return period.

EU Sales and Acquisitions Lists. If a Romanian taxable person makes intra-Community supplies or intra-Community acquisitions of goods in any return period, it must submit an EU sales and acquisitions list to the Romanian VAT authorities. The listing of intra-Community supplies or acquisitions is also required for qualifying services that are rendered to or received from a taxable person established in the EU and that are taxed where the beneficiary is established. This list is not required for any period during which the taxable person does not make any intra-Community supplies or acquisitions of goods/services.

The listing of intra-Community sales or acquisitions of goods and qualifying services must be submitted on a calendar monthly basis by the 25th day of the month following the relevant month.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. Penalties of RON1,000 to RON5,000 (approximately EUR250 to EUR1,100) in case of large and medium sized taxpayers and of RON500 to RON1,000 (approximately EUR125 to EUR250) in case of other taxpayers who apply for late registration for VAT purposes.

Penalties for late payment and filings. For the late payment of VAT, late payment interest (0.02% per day of delay) and late payment penalties (0.01% per day of delay) apply. Separate penalties range from RON1,000 to RON5,000 and are assessed for delays in submitting VAT returns.

The interest rate that may be claimed by a taxable person for late refunds will be 0.02% per day of delay.

For Intrastat, a penalty of RON7,500 to RON15,000 may be imposed for late submissions.

For EU Sales and Acquisitions List, a failure to submit an EU sales and acquisitions list reporting sales or acquisitions of goods by the due date is subject to a fine ranging from RON1,000 to RON5,000 (approximately EUR230 to EUR1,100).

Penalties for errors. For obligations unreported or reported inaccurately, a penalty of 0.08% per day of delay applies for unreported obligations established through a tax decision.

For Intrastat, a penalty of RON7,500 to RON15,000 may be imposed for missing or inaccurate declarations.

For EU Sales and Acquisitions List, the submission of such list with incorrect or incomplete amounts is subject to a fine ranging from RON500 to RON1,500 (approximately EUR115 to EUR350). The fine does not apply if the taxable person corrects voluntarily the EU Sales and Acquisitions List by the due date for the submission of the next EU Sales and Acquisitions List.

Penalties for fraud. In case of fraud, a penalty of 0.08% per day of delay penalty is increased by 100%.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- The supply of goods (works and services) performed in "the territory of the Russian Federation and other territories under its jurisdiction" by a taxpayer
- The transfer of property rights by a taxpayer
- The performance of construction and installation and assembling of works for own consumption
- The importation of goods into "the territory of the Russian Federation and other territories under its jurisdiction" regardless of the status of the importer

"The territory of the Russian Federation and other territories under its jurisdiction" means the territory of the Russian Federation and the territories of artificial islands, installations and structures over which the Russian Federation exercises jurisdiction in accordance with the legislation of the Russian Federation and provisions of international law.

In general, supplies of goods (works and services) in the Russian Federation are within the scope of Russian VAT. The following goods are deemed to be supplied in the Russian Federation:
- Goods located in the Russian Federation and other territories under its jurisdiction that are not shipped or transported
- Goods located in the Russian Federation and other territories under its jurisdiction at the moment when shipment or transportation begins

Inland Russian transportation carried out by foreign companies that are not registered with the Russian tax authorities is subject to Russian VAT. VAT withholding formalities must be performed by the Russian customer of the foreign transport service provider.

Works and services that are not specifically covered in the relevant section of VAT law are deemed to be performed at the place of the supplier's activity.

C. Who is liable

In general, a taxpayer is any individual entrepreneur or legal entity (including a foreign legal entity) that makes taxable supplies of goods (works and services) and/or property rights in the territory of the Russian Federation and other territories under its jurisdiction in the course of its business activities or that conveys goods into the territory of the Russian Federation and other territories under its jurisdiction.

All taxpayers are subject to tax registration. Generally, a separate VAT registration is not permitted. A separate VAT registration is permitted only for foreign legal entities providing electronic services.

Exemption from registration. As outlined above, no VAT registration threshold applies in the Russian Federation. However, a legal entity or individual entrepreneur may be exempted from the fulfillment of obligations associated with the calculation and payment of VAT. Exemption may apply if, in the last three consecutive calendar months, revenue from the sale of goods (works and services) did not exceed a total of RUB2 million.

Such exemption from VAT payment obligations is granted on submission of special notification to the tax authorities together with supporting documentation proving entitlement. A legal entity or individual entrepreneur that is granted exemption is not required to charge VAT or submit VAT returns, but it is restricted in its ability to recover input tax on purchases.

Private entrepreneurs and legal entities that are applying the simplified taxation system (including private entrepreneurs who are eligible to apply a patent tax regime since 1 January 2013) or carrying out the activities subject to unified tax on imputed income (the exemption applies with respect to the income from such activities only) are also exempt from VAT payment obligations, except for payment of VAT at customs and VAT payable when acting as a tax agent under the reverse-charge mechanism.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. The Russian tax code does not contain any provisions for voluntary tax registration.

Group registration. VAT group registration is not allowed under the Russian VAT law. Legal entities that are closely connected must register for VAT purposes separately.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that does not have a fixed establishment in the Russian Federation. A foreign legal entity or non-established business may be required to register for tax purposes in the Russian Federation.

In the Russian Federation, a separate VAT registration is permitted only for foreign legal entities providing electronic services. For other foreign legal entities, the obligation to register with the Russian tax authorities arises if a foreign legal entity performs activity in Russia through a branch, a representative office or any other separate subdivision.

If a foreign legal entity performs its activities in Russia through a branch or a representative office, it must file for accreditation of its branch or representative office. The obligation to register also arises if a foreign company owns immovable property or transport vehicles in the Russian Federation or opens a bank account with a Russian bank.

If a foreign legal entity is not registered for tax purposes, the recipient of the supply must act as a tax agent and withhold the VAT due. A foreign legal entity that is not registered in the Russian Federation is not entitled to recover any input tax (VAT on purchases).

On tax registration, a foreign legal entity must act as a common VAT taxpayer and is eligible to recover the input tax incurred in the Russian Federation if the VAT recoverability conditions outlined in Section F are met.

A foreign legal entity providing electronic services that is registered for VAT purposes — is not eligible to recover input tax.

Tax representatives. Tax representatives are not required in the Russian Federation.

Reverse charge. Reverse-charge VAT is applied to payments for goods, works and services supplied by foreign legal entities to Russian legal entities or individual entrepreneurs. Under the reverse charge, the liability to withhold and pay VAT rests with the recipient of the supply that acts as a tax agent. The reverse charge applies in the following circumstances:
- The foreign legal entity is not registered as a taxpayer in the Russian Federation.
- The place of supply for the goods (works and services) is the Russian Federation.

In the Russian Federation, reverse-charge VAT is treated as a withholding tax. In practice, contracts entered into between a Russian legal entity and a foreign legal entity normally contain a "gross-up" provision to ensure that the net payment to the foreign legal entity is not reduced by VAT payable in the Russian Federation and that it equals the agreed contract price for the supplied goods (works and services).

Domestic reverse charge. The domestic reverse charge obliging the recipient of goods (works and services) to account for and pay VAT due acting as a tax agent applies in the following situations:
- Where government, administrative and local government bodies rent federal property, property of constituent entities of the Russian Federation and municipal property in the territory of the Russian Federation

- Where a vessel supplied in the territory of the Russian Federation is not registered in the Russian International Register of Vessels within 90 calendar days after the ownership of the vessel is transferred from the taxpayer to a client
- Where taxpayers (other than taxpayers exempt from performing VAT obligations) sell in the territory of the Russian Federation raw hides and skins of animals, scrap and waste of ferrous and non-ferrous metals, secondary aluminum and alloys thereof and waste paper

Digital economy. The place of supply for electronic services should be determined at the buyer's location. If a customer is an individual (business-to-consumer (B2C) supply) or a legal entity (business-to-business (B2B) supply), a foreign legal entity providing electronic services is required to register for VAT purposes in Russia, charge and pay VAT with respect to such supplies as well as perform VAT reporting obligations.

With respect to B2B supplies, the Russian legal entities purchasing electronic services from foreign suppliers are not obliged to withhold VAT as tax agents. However, the parties may rely on the official (nonbinding) clarification of the Federal Tax Service: if a service provider did not charge VAT to the Russian customer and the latter acted as a tax agent (voluntarily) and claimed VAT for recovery, the tax authorities would not have grounds to require the foreign company to pay the VAT again, nor would they be able to require the customer to recalculate its tax obligations (VAT charged and VAT reclaimed). Thus, if both parties agree, the Russian customer may continue to voluntarily act as a tax agent and pay VAT on electronic services. However, even if VAT is paid by the Russian customer, the foreign supplier is still required to VAT register and submit quarterly nil VAT returns (if there is no other transaction to be reported). The foreign supplier still bears the responsibility in case of nonpayment of VAT to the budget and should, upon the tax authorities' request, provide the documents proving that VAT was paid by the Russian customer.

The foreign legal entity is not required to register if it provides electronic services through intermediaries (both Russian and foreign legal entities) that participate in settlements with Russian customers and have agency, commission or other similar agreements with foreign legal entities providing electronic services. In such case, intermediaries should bear the VAT obligations.

To VAT register, the foreign suppliers should submit to the tax authorities: (i) application and (ii) an extract from the register of legal entities from the country of incorporation for the foreign legal entity. The length of the registration process is not more than 30 days (starting from the moment of submitting the application). After registration, the foreign legal entity gets access to a personal taxpayer office that will enable it to submit returns, pay VAT and communicate with the tax authorities.

Once registered for VAT in Russia, the foreign supplier should account for and pay VAT upon all supplies of goods (works and nonelectronic services) subject to VAT in Russia.

For these purposes, electronic services include, inter alia:
- Provision of rights to use computer programs via the internet
- Provision of internet advertising services
- Provision of services involving the posting of offers to acquire goods and property rights on the internet
- Provision and (or) maintenance of a commercial or personal presence on the internet
- Storage and processing of information on the internet
- Provision of hosting services
- Sale of electronic books, graphic images and musical works via the internet
- Provision of access to internet search engines and the maintenance of statistics on internet sites

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms.

Registration procedures. Tax registration of an accredited branch or representative office of a foreign organization is carried by tax authorities based on respective data from the registry of accredited branches, representative office. Accreditation procedures take at least 25 working days to fulfill. A foreign organization receives the notification of tax registration in five working days.

A foreign organization must file an application to register its separate subdivision, which is neither branch nor representative office, not later than 30 calendar days from the beginning of its activities in the Russian Federation. The format of the application is set by the Federal Tax Service. The application should be submitted by an authorized representative of the organization acting under a power of attorney. Together with the above application, a foreign organization must file the following documents:

- Its constitutive document
- An extract from the register of foreign legal entities confirming the legal status of a founder of a foreign organization
- An application confirming registration of a foreign legal entity with its tax authorities
- A document confirming a decision of an authorized body of a foreign legal entity to register a subdivision and a subdivision-establishing document (or a contract under which a foreign legal entity performs its activity in the Russian Federation if no subdivision is created in the Russian Federation)

All documents are submitted in hard copies. It is not possible to submit for tax registration online.

Deregistration. Deregistration is performed in cases of termination of activities or closing of a branch, representative office or other separate subdivision of a foreign organization.

Deregistration of a branch or representative office is carried out by tax authorities based on respective data from the registry of accredited branches, representative offices.

Deregistration of a separate subdivision of a foreign organization is performed by tax authorities based on an application submitted by the taxpayer. Tax authorities perform deregistration in 10 working days after receiving the application.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:

- Standard rate: 20%
- Reduced rates: 10%, 16.67%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate, the zero rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Exports of goods and related services including logistic services
- International freight-forwarding services
- Supplies to diplomats (if reciprocal arrangements apply)
- Foreign passenger transportation services
- Works (services) performed by Russian rail carriers involving the carriage or transportation of goods that are exported from the territory of the Russian Federation and the removal from the customs territory of the Russian Federation of products of processing in the customs territory of the Russian Federation
- Works (services) connected with carriage or transportation mentioned in the item above, the cost of which is specified in documents of carriage for the carriage of the goods that are exported (processed products that are removed)
- The sale of raw hydrocarbons extracted from the continental shelf, exclusive economic zone and the Russian sector of the Caspian Sea to a destination outside Russia and exportation of goods (stores) for further use in extraction of hydrocarbons from offshore hydrocarbon deposits and certain related transportation services

Examples of goods and services taxable at 16.67%

- Electronically supplied services
- Transfer of going concern

Examples of goods and services taxable at 10%

- Basic foodstuffs
- Certain children's goods
- Medical goods
- Pedigree cattle

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Financial services on granting of loans
- Rendering of services involving insurance, coinsurance and reinsurance of export credits and investments against entrepreneurial and/or political risks
- Public transport
- Medical services
- Lease of office premises and housing to accredited representative offices of foreign entities (if reciprocal arrangements apply)
- Sale of houses, living accommodation and shares in them
- Provision of software and the right to use it under license agreement
- Services rendered by a developer under a shared-construction agreement for the construction of residential properties (except for services rendered by a developer with respect to the construction of objects for production needs)
- Various financial services provided by the licensed institution
- Certain imports, for example:
  - — Goods for commercial use that cost less than EUR200
  - — Goods for personal use that cost less than EUR500
  - — Goods imported as gratuitous aid according to the government list
  - — Medical products according to the government list
  - — Cultural property imported as a gift for Russian cultural institutions
  - — Periodic materials imported as a gift for Russian libraries

Option to tax for exempt supplies. Taxpayers have an option to tax a certain group of exempt supplies. It is not permissible for such operations to be exempted or not depending on who is purchasing the goods, work and services. An exemption from taxation may not be rejected or suspended for a period of less than one year.

The following are examples of exempt supplies that can be opted to tax:

- Banking operations (with the exception of encashment)
- Services associated with the servicing of bank cards
- Insurance, co-insurance and re-insurance services
- Sale of ore, concentrates and other industrial products containing precious metals

E. Time of supply

The moment when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply." For taxpayers, the time of supply is the earliest of the following dates:

- The date when goods (works and services) or property rights are dispatched (transferred).

- The date on which payment or partial payment is made with respect to the future supply of goods, performance of work, rendering of services or transfer of property rights.

With respect to the supply of electronic services by foreign companies, the time of supply is the date on which payment for services is received.

Deposits and prepayments. For advance payments, there are two times of supply — when the advanced payment is made and when the goods (works and services) are dispatched (transferred). The normal time of supply rules mean that taxpayer should account for and pay VAT twice. However, no double taxation occurs, since VAT paid by the taxpayer at the moment of receipt of an advance payment may be refunded by the taxpayer at the moment of dispatch (transfer).

Continuous supplies of services. There are no special time of supply rules for continuous supplies of services in the Russian Federation. As such, the normal time of supply rules apply.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules for goods sent on approval for sale or return in the Russian Federation. As such, the normal time of supply rules apply.

Reverse charge. When the reverse-charge mechanism is applied, VAT should be paid by the tax agent to the Russian budget simultaneously with the transfer of payment to the supplier of goods and services.

Leased assets. For VAT purposes, a lease of goods is treated as a supply of services, provided that the legal title on the goods is not transferred to the recipient. In this case, the general rules on time of supply are applicable. If a lessee purchases the leased property at the end of the lease, such transfer of property will be considered as a supply of good and the moment of determination of VAT based upon supply of good.

Imported goods. The time of supply for imported goods is the date of importation.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxpayers

A taxpayer may recover input tax, which is charged on goods (works and services) and property rights supplied for carrying out activities within the scope of VAT.

Starting from 1 July 2019 an exception with respect to the above general rule enters into force. Specifically, the taxpayers have the right to recover input tax on goods and services used in the provision of services that are not deemed to be supplied in the Russian Federation based on the applicable place of supply rules. There are no restrictions relating to the business sector or location of the purchasers of exported services. The new regime would not, however, extend to services classed as exempt supplies, as they are established in the Russian Tax Code.

A taxpayer generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax, which is VAT charged on supplies made.

Input tax includes VAT charged on goods (works and services) and property rights supplied in the Russian Federation, VAT paid on imports of goods and VAT paid to the Russian budget by a buyer acting as a tax agent with respect to the acquisition of goods (works and services) from a foreign legal entity.

VAT is recoverable after the goods (works and services) or property rights have been received and a VAT invoice has been obtained from a supplier. The same procedure applies to VAT incurred on construction (including construction carried out by the taxpayer for its own use) and creation of intangible assets. For a prepayment to a supplier, the buyer may recover VAT on such prepayment (that is, before the relevant goods, works and services are received by the buyer).

The amount of VAT reclaimed must be indicated separately on a VAT invoice (a special document established exclusively for VAT purposes) issued in conformity with the provisions of the Russian VAT law.

A legal entity and individual entrepreneur registered in Russia and purchasing electronic services from a foreign legal entity providing electronic services has the right to claim VAT charged by the supplier. To execute the right to recover VAT, the following documents should be in place: (1) agreement and/or a settlement document with separately specified VAT, the identification number (INN) and code of the reason for VAT registration of the supplier; and (2) documents for the transfer of payment, including VAT to the supplier.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax cannot be recovered on purchases of goods (works and services) and property rights that are not used for making supplies within the scope of VAT (for example, goods purchased for private use by an entrepreneur), except the supply of services outside of the Russian Federation and not falling within the list of exempt transactions (as described above). In addition, input tax cannot be fully recovered with respect to some business expenses (that is, expenses that are limited for profits tax deduction).

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Personal expenses
- Home telephone expenses
- Parking
- Restaurant meals

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Purchase, lease or hire of a car, van and truck
- Fuel for cars, vans and trucks
- Car maintenance
- Business entertainment and travel (special calculations may apply)
- Conferences (special calculations may apply)
- Advertising (special calculations may apply)
- Hotel accommodation (special calculations may apply)
- Mobile phone expenses

Partial exemption. If a Russian taxpayer makes both exempt supplies and taxable supplies, it must account for them separately. Input tax directly related to taxable supplies and the supply of services outside of the Russian Federation is recoverable in full, while input tax directly related to exempt supplies is not recoverable and must be expensed for Russian profit tax purposes. Input tax that may not be directly attributed to taxable or exempt supplies (such as VAT on business overhead costs) must be apportioned. The statutory method of apportionment is a pro rata calculation, based on the value of taxable supplies (including, for this purpose, the value of services supplied outside the Russian Federation) made compared with the total turnover of the business.

Capital goods. Capital goods are not defined by the Russian Tax Code for VAT purposes; thus, the Russian tax authorities refer to the definition established for corporate income tax. As such, capital goods are assets that are used as instruments of labor in the production and sale of goods (the performance of work, the rendering of services) or for the management of an entity and have a historical cost of more than RUB100,000. Input tax charged upon the purchase of capital goods can be recovered, provided that the general requirements for VAT recovery are fulfilled. The law does not establish limitations with respect to the amount of input tax related to the capital goods which can be deducted within one reporting quarter, nor obliges to spread the deduction over a certain period of time.

In case the capital goods are used in both taxable and exempt supplies, input tax must be apportioned based on the partial exemption rules outlined above. Application of partial exemption rules in relation to the capital goods is not associated with any specific obligations of a taxpayer to monitor or adjust a determined pro rata over time. Similar as with respect to any other types of goods, a previously determined pro rata should be adjusted if there was a change in prices of goods (works, services) supplied within a reporting quarter and taken into account for calculation of the pro rata.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax recoverable in a quarterly period exceeds the amount of output tax payable in that period, the taxpayer is entitled to an input tax credit. After a taxpayer has submitted a VAT return, the tax authorities check the validity of the amount claimed as refundable in the course of performing an in-house tax audit. If the tax authorities confirm the amounts claimed in the relevant VAT return, the decision on the reimbursement of VAT must be adopted within seven days. On the basis of a written application of the taxpayer, the confirmed amount of VAT can be refunded to the bank account of the taxpayer or can be credited towards the other outstanding federal tax liabilities.

Under certain conditions, the reimbursement (offset or refund) of VAT may be granted to taxpayers in advance, that is, before the completion of an in-house tax audit of the returns submitted. If no indebtedness arises from taxes, penalties and/or fines, against which reimbursable VAT may be offset, the amount of VAT may, at the taxpayer's request, be returned in cash to a bank account during the 11-16 days from the moment that the VAT return is submitted to the tax authorities. Alternatively, a taxpayer may claim the amount of reimbursable VAT for offset against future tax payments with respect to VAT or other federal taxes.

If the in-house tax audit subsequently results in the tax authorities' partial or full refusal to reimburse VAT, the relevant amounts of arrears, penalties and interest for using the monetary resources (VAT paid back to the taxpayer) must be paid to the budget.

The right to use the accelerated procedure of VAT reimbursement is granted to the following two categories of taxpayers:

- Taxpayers that are companies whose gross total amount of VAT, excise duties, profit tax and mineral extraction tax (except for the amount of taxes paid on transfer of goods over the border of the Russian Federation and taxes paid by the taxpayer as a tax agent), paid for the three preceding calendar years is no less than RUB2 billion, provided that at least three years have passed from the date of the relevant company's foundation to the date of submission of the VAT declaration
- Taxpayers that have submitted a suitable bank guarantee to the tax authorities with their VAT returns

If assets, intangible assets and property rights are transferred as a contribution to the charter capital of a company or partnership or as share contributions to the share fund of a cooperative or if these assets are subsequently used in carrying out the VAT-exempt operations, the amount of input tax must be repaid or "restored." The amount of restoration is the VAT previously claimed as a deduction or, with respect to fixed assets and intangible assets, an amount proportional to the net book (balance sheet) value without taking account of any revaluation.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax incurred on pre-registration costs is not recoverable in the Russian Federation.

Write-off of bad debts. If a company supplied goods (works or services) to its customers and has not been paid for it, the supplier cannot recover VAT paid to the budget upon such supply.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred upon purchases that are used for noneconomic activities, is not recoverable in the Russian Federation.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

VAT recovery is made exclusively by registered persons that make taxable supplies in the Russian Federation. VAT incurred by a foreign legal entity is not recoverable, unless the foreign legal entity performs VAT-able supplies in the Russian Federation and is registered with the Russian tax authorities.

If a foreign legal entity is registered with the Russian tax authorities as a representative office, VAT incurred on the purchase of goods (including imported goods), works, services and property rights is generally recoverable if the following VAT recoverability criteria are met:
- The purchased goods (works and services) or property rights are to be used in the course of an activity subject to VAT.
- All proper supporting documents (including VAT invoices that contain all required details) are in place.
- The purchased goods (works and services) or property rights are properly reflected in the buyer's accounting ledgers.
- Customs VAT for imported goods is paid to the Russian customs authorities.

The VAT refund application must be sent to the appropriate tax office. The application must be completed in Russian. The refund is made in rubles (RUB) to a bank account held in the Russian Federation. In general, refunds are made only after an in-house tax audit is carried out at the location of the tax authorities (see Section F: Refunds). The tax authorities may request any of the following documentation for the VAT audit:
- Original VAT invoices
- Documents confirming the tax has been paid or withheld
- Contracts
- Sales and purchase ledgers
- Primary documents supporting amounts reflected in the submitted VAT returns

The Russian VAT law requires the tax authorities to pay a refund no later than five days following the positive decision regarding the VAT refund claim of a taxpayer. In practice, however, refunds are often delayed.

If a refund is made with delay, the tax authorities must pay interest, accrued at the refinancing rate of the Russian Central Bank for each day of delay, beginning with the 12th day after the completion of the in-house audit of the relevant VAT return. From 1 January 2016, the annual refinancing rate equals the annual key rate. Starting from 17 September 2018, it was set at 7.5%.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. In general, a Russian taxpayer must provide a VAT invoice for the supplies. Invoices must be issued in Russian, but bilingual invoices may be issued in Russian and another language.

A foreign legal entity providing electronic services is not obliged to issue VAT invoices for the supply of electronic services to either an individual (B2C supply) or legal entity or individual entrepreneur (B2B supply).

Credit notes. Corrective VAT invoices are allowed if there is a change in the value of a transaction, particularly for price changes or changes in the sales volume. The value may be either increased or decreased.

An increase in the value of a transaction results in the supplier charging additional VAT for the tax period in which the transaction takes place. The supplier issues a corrective VAT invoice indicating (among other details) the upward change as a positive amount. The receipt of the corrective VAT invoice provides the purchaser with grounds to offset the amount of VAT arising from the increase in the value of the transaction in the period in which the corrective VAT invoice is received.

On a decrease in the value of a transaction, the supplier issues a corrective VAT invoice indicating (among other details) the downward change as a negative amount. This invoice provides the supplier with grounds to offset the reduction in VAT caused by the decrease in the value of the transaction in the period in which the corrective VAT invoice is issued. The purchaser, in turn, must restore the excess amounts of input tax resulting from a downward change in the value of a transaction.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic VAT invoicing is not mandatory, but it is allowed in the Russian Federation. It is available for all VAT taxpayers. VAT invoices may be prepared in electronic format by mutual agreement between the parties to a transaction and provided that those parties have compatible technical equipment and resources for the acceptance and processing electronic VAT invoices. Electronic VAT invoices should be signed with a qualified electronic signature and should comply with the form and format established by the Russian tax authorities.

The Russian Ministry of Finance establishes the procedure for the issuance and receipt of VAT invoices in electronic format. The Russian Federal Tax Service separately establishes the formats of VAT invoices, journals of VAT invoices received and issued, and sales and purchase ledgers in electronic format.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified VAT invoicing is not allowed in the Russian Federation. As such, full VAT invoices are required.

Self-billing. VAT invoice self-billing is applicable only for transactions, where the tax agent mechanism is applied by the Russian entity registered as a taxpayer.

Proof of exports. Goods exported from the Russian Federation, as well as some types of works and services related to exports, are subject to a 0% VAT rate in the Russian Federation. To confirm the applicability of the 0% rate, the supplier must collect and provide to the tax authorities a package of supporting documents.

Foreign currency invoices. In practice, the issuance of VAT invoices in rubles is preferable. If a VAT invoice is issued in a foreign currency, all values required for VAT purposes must be converted into rubles for tax purposes, using the rate published by the Russian Central Bank. A supplier determines the tax base using the rate of the Russian Central Bank as of the date of dispatch of goods (works and services) and/or property rights. On further receipt of payment, the tax base may not be adjusted by the supplier. A buyer recovers the amount of input tax determined using the rate of the Russian Central Bank on the date when all VAT recoverability criteria are met. On making further payment to the supplier, the amount of recovered VAT may not be adjusted by the buyer.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. When goods are sold to private customers the supplier should issue the private customer with a sales receipt instead of a VAT invoice.

Records. The general accounting records should be kept in accordance with the Russian Accounting Standards. The taxpayer should also keep the sales and purchase ledgers in accordance with the established format. If the taxpayer performs operations as an intermediary in its own name, it should keep the logbooks of issued and received VAT invoices.

There are no specific regulations with regard to where the records must be stored.

Record retention period. Tax reporting records must be maintained for at least four years.

Electronic archiving. Primary accounting documents, accounting registers, shall be drawn up in the electronic form and signed by a qualified electronic signature. The paper archiving is allowed exclusively, if electronic archiving is impossible or prohibited by the federal laws regulating accounting standards and archiving policies. For instance, it is prohibited to store only in electronic format the documents which, due to the company's policy, were originally drawn up on paper.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. Taxpayers file VAT returns quarterly. VAT returns must be submitted to the tax authorities where the taxpayer is registered (specifically each area in the Russian Federation) no later than the 25th of the month following the end of the reporting period, specifically:
- No later than 25th of April
- No later than 25th of July
- No later than 25th of October
- No later than 25th of January

The VAT return must be filed in the prescribed format in electronic form via telecommunications channels through an electronic document interchange operator.

The purchase ledger and sales ledger of the taxpayer represent a part of the VAT return. Therefore, the VAT return contains information from each VAT invoice received or submitted during the reporting period.

Periodic payments. The VAT amount per VAT return must be paid equally in the three months after the relevant tax period. For example, the VAT amount payable according to the VAT return for the first quarter must be paid according to the following schedule:
- One-third of the VAT must be paid by 25 April
- One-third of the VAT must be paid by 25 May
- One-third of the VAT must be paid by 25 June

In general, VAT payable under the reverse-charge mechanism is accounted for separately and must be paid by the tax agent at the same time as payment is made to the supplier.

A foreign legal entity providing electronic services should pay VAT as reported in a quarterly VAT return not later than the 25th of the month following a reporting quarter (i.e., by 25 April, 25 July, 25 October, 25 January).

Electronic filing. All taxpayers must file VAT returns quarterly in electronic format only. Generally, VAT returns must be filed via operators approved for submitting electronic documentation flows. Purchase and sales ledgers, which are an integral part of a VAT return, must also be filed electronically. However, foreign legal entities that are providers of electronic services may submit simplified VAT returns via online personal accounts.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in the Russian Federation.

Special schemes. The Russian tax code does not provide for any special VAT accounting schemes or VAT returns for certain groups of taxable persons. However, taxpayers may submit unified (simplified) tax returns (one return for one or more taxes) if the taxpayer had no taxable operations in the reporting period and no turnover on its bank account.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in the Russian Federation.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary fillings are required in the Russian Federation.

Digital reporting. The VAT return shall be filed prescribed format in electronic form via telecommunications channels through an electronic document interchange operator. No other digital reporting obligations are required in the Russian Federation.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. The Russian tax law provides for several types of fines in the following amounts for tax registration violations:

- A penalty of RUB10,000 is imposed for a violation by a taxpayer of the time limit established in the tax code for the submission of an application for registration with a tax authority on grounds provided for in the tax code.
- The carrying on of activities by an organization or a private entrepreneur without registering with a tax authority on grounds provided for in the tax law results in the imposition of a penalty equal to 10% of income received during that time as a result of such activities, but not less than RUB40,000.

Penalties for late payment and filings. The Russian tax law provides for the following fines with respect to the filing of VAT returns:

- Late filing: penalty ranging from 5% to 30% of the underpaid tax, depending on the duration of the delay
- Nonpayment or partial payment of the tax: penalty of 20% of the underpaid tax
- Willful nonpayment or partial payment of the tax: penalty of 40% of the underpaid tax

Penalties for errors. The Russian tax law provides for the following fines with respect to errors within the VAT return:

- Severe violation of revenue and expenses accounting regulations and objects of taxation in one tax period: penalty of RUB10,000
- Severe violation of accounting regulations and objects of taxation in more than one tax period: penalty of RUB30,000
- Severe violation of accounting regulations and objects of taxation leading to the understatement of the tax base: penalty of 20% of the underpaid tax, but not less than RUB40,000

A severe violation of revenue and expenses accounting regulations and objects of taxation means the absence of primary documents or VAT invoices, books of account or tax ledgers or the systematic (two or more times within a calendar year) late or incorrect recording in accounting records, in tax ledgers and in reports of the taxpayer's economic operations, monetary resources, tangible assets, intangible assets and financial investments.

Penalties for fraud. Administrative and criminal charges may be imposed on company officials for "willful or negligent conduct of business that results in the defrauding of the state."

The following administrative fines may be imposed on the taxpayer's officers:

- RUB2,000 to RUB3,000 — if the taxpayer carries out activities without registration
- RUB300 to RUB500 — if the taxpayer fails to submit VAT return in due time
- RUB300 to RUB500 — if the taxpayer fails to submit information necessary for tax audit
- RUB5,000 to RUB10,000 — if the taxpayer severely violates bookkeeping and financial accounting requirements
- RUB10,000 to RUB20,000 or disqualification to hold certain positions for one to two years — if the taxpayer repeatedly violates bookkeeping and financial accounting requirements

The following criminal liability might be imposed in exceptional cases:

- A fine in the amount from RUB100,000 to RUB300,000 or in the amount of the wage or other income of the convicted person for a period of one or two years, or compulsory labor for a term of up to two years with deprivation of the right to occupy certain positions or be engaged in certain activities for up to three years or without it, or arrest for up to six months, or imprisonment for up to two years with the deprivation of the right to occupy certain positions or be engaged in certain activities for up to three years — if the taxpayer evaded to pay taxes by failure to submit VAT return or included knowingly false information in it in the amount more than RUB5 million or 25% of the whole amount of taxes to be paid

- A fine in the amount from RUB200,000 to RUB500,000 or in the amount of the wage or other income of the convicted person for a period of one or three years, or compulsory labor for a term of up to five years with deprivation of the right to occupy certain positions or be engaged in certain activities for up to three years or without it, or imprisonment for up to six years with the deprivation of the right to occupy certain positions or be engaged in certain activities for up to three years — if the taxpayer evaded to pay taxes by failure to submit VAT return or included knowingly false information in it in the amount more than RUB15 million or 50 % of the whole amount of taxes to be paid

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- The supply of goods and services in Rwanda by a taxable person
- Imported services received by a taxable person in Rwanda
- The importation of goods from outside Rwanda, regardless of the status of the importer (unless the import qualifies for VAT waiver under the investment code or the importer has been granted a VAT exemption)

The exportation of goods and taxable services is zero-rated if, subject to the satisfaction of the tax administration, the export has taken place and evidence exists that the export proceeds will be repatriated into Rwanda.

C. Who is liable

The consumers of taxable goods and services pay VAT. Registered taxpayers (traders), which act as the agents of the government, collect VAT. The Customs Services Department collects VAT on imported goods, while the Domestic Taxes Department collects local VAT and VAT on imported services.

A VAT registration is dependent on the attainment of a turnover threshold of RWF20 million in 12 months or RWF5 million in a quarter. Businesses that do not attain this turnover threshold may voluntarily register.

Exemption from registration. The VAT law in Rwanda does not contain any provision for exemption from registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. It is possible for a taxable business that is not required to register for VAT to register on a voluntary basis. The taxpayer wishing to register voluntarily for VAT must apply to the Commissioner General in writing stating the reasons for which they want to register for VAT. The Commissioner General, if satisfied with the reasons given for the application, will grant permission in writing for such a taxpayer to be registered for VAT.

Group registration. The Rwandan VAT act allows group registration. However, in practice, group registration is allowed in special circumstances only.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that does not have a fixed establishment in Rwanda. A foreign business is not required to register for VAT unless it has a permanent establishment in Rwanda. A permanent establishment of a foreign business must register for VAT if it makes taxable supplies of goods or services. Other non-established businesses are not required to register for VAT. Instead, a person importing goods or services from a nonresident must pay the Rwandan VAT due.

Tax representatives. Any person allowed by law to represent a taxpayer shall file the tax declarations, pay taxes due and comply with all the obligations required under law.

Any person in one of the five following categories must, upon appointment as a tax representative, communicate his new capacity to the tax administration within a period of seven days:
- The guardian or any other person responsible for custody of a minor or an incapacitated person
- A legal or judicial administrator of an estate or of a will or the heirs of such an estate
- The president, accountant or director appointed or any other representative of a company or any other legal person
- The administrator or the representative of a company or any other legal person in liquidation
- Any other person given the mandate to represent the taxpayer

Also, the tax representative could be:
- The owner of an enterprise
- A partner in a partnership that has unlimited liability

Reverse charge. Imported services are subject to VAT at the standard rate of 18%. If the service in question is not locally available in Rwanda, the importer of the service is allowed to account for VAT using the reverse-charge method, that is, by including it in both output and input tax, thereby having a nil net cash flow.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Rwanda.

Digital economy. There are no specific provisions in the Rwandan VAT law for the taxation of the digital economy.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Rwanda.

Registration procedures. Any person who sets up a business or carries noncommercial activities, but which are subject to tax, has the responsibility to register with the tax administration within seven days from the beginning of the business or activity or the establishment of the company.

Any person who carries out taxable activities exceeding RWF20 million in the previous fiscal year, or RWF5 million in the preceding calendar quarter is required to register for VAT within seven days from the end of the year or quarter.

Any person may voluntarily register with the tax administration for VAT. Any changes, whether related to the taxpayer or his or her activities shall be reported in writing to the tax administration within seven days from the day of the notice of the change. Taxable persons must register by submitting the application in hard copy.

Individual entrepreneurs register in their own names using the Individual Enterprise Registration Form. Organizations or enterprises register using the Non-individual Registration Form in the name of the organization. Taxpayers conclude their registration by completing the appropriate registration form, signing and submitting it to the tax administration and by obtaining a tax identification number (TIN).

Deregistration. A taxpayer ceases to be liable to a particular type of tax at any time when the Commissioner General is satisfied that any one of the following circumstances is true:
- The taxpayer has ceased its business or economic activity completely.
- The taxpayer has reduced the volume of its activities to a level that it is not liable to that particular tax.
- The taxpayer has paid all taxes due to the tax administration.

Any registered taxpayer ceasing to be liable for a tax notifies the tax administration using a modified registration form within a period of seven days from the date it is no longer required to be registered.

When the tax administration is satisfied that a person is no longer liable to be registered, it cancels the registration. Granting cancellation of registration does not stop the tax administration from carrying out audits.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 18%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for the zero rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Exports of goods
- Exports of taxable services
- Goods and services supplied to diplomatic and consular missions

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Unprocessed agricultural products
- Financial services
- Educational services
- Medical services
- Agricultural, animal husbandry and horticultural services
- Transportation of passengers (excluding for hire)

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Rwanda.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point." In Rwanda, the tax point is the earliest of the following events:

- The goods or services are supplied.
- An invoice is issued.
- Payment is received for all or part of the supply.

Other tax points apply in a variety of specific situations.

Deposits and prepayments. There are no special time of supply rules in Rwanda for deposits and prepayments. As such, the general time of supply rule apply. However, in practice in relation to construction contracts, advance payments do not qualify as taxable supplies.

Continuous supplies of services. There are no special time of supply rules in Rwanda for continuous supplies. As such, the general time of supply rule apply. Therefore, for supplies of goods and services that are provided against periodic payments (e.g., where there is a monthly billing for an ongoing service), each such installment constitutes a taxable supply for VAT purposes.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules in Rwanda for supplies of goods sent on approval for sale or return. As such, the general time of supply rule apply.

Reverse-charge services. There are no special time of supply rules in Rwanda for supplies of reverse-charge services. As such, the general time of supply rule apply, where the time of supply rule for imported services is the same as for local taxable supplies.

Leased assets. There are no special time of supply rules in Rwanda for leased assets. As such, the general time of supply rule apply.

Imported goods. The time of supply for imported goods is the date on which the goods enter Rwandan territory under the Customs legislation, i.e., at the customs point in accordance with the customs legislation.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax, which is VAT charged on goods and services supplied to it for business purposes. Input tax is claimed by deducting it from output tax, which is VAT charged on supplies made. Taxable persons must claim input tax in the first VAT period after incurring the expense.

Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services purchased in Rwanda and VAT paid on imports of goods and services.

Nondeductible input tax. VAT may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use by an entrepreneur). In addition, input tax may not be recovered on certain business expenses/overheads.

The following list provides examples of expenditures for which input tax is not deductible.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Purchase of cars with a passenger carrying capacity of less than 18 persons
- Business gifts
- Business entertainment
- Fuel for vehicles (apportioned)
- Mobile telephone bills (apportioned)
- Utilities (apportioned)

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Purchase of inventory
- Consultancy services
- Payment of legal fees

Partial exemption. VAT directly related to making exempt supplies is not recoverable. A registered person who makes both exempt and taxable supplies cannot recover input tax in full.

Under Rwandan VAT law, if a taxable person supplies both taxable and exempt goods and services, only input tax attributable to taxable supplies may be recovered. The amount of the claimable input tax is determined using a standard method or an attribution method approved by the Commissioner General.

Capital goods. Input tax incurred in respect of capital goods purchased during the tax period is claimable if all goods or services supplied by a taxpayer during a tax period are taxable supplies. Where a taxable person supplies both taxable and exempt goods and services, only input tax attributable to taxable supplies may be recovered.

Refunds. A taxable person may claim a refund of input tax in excess of output tax.

The claim for a VAT refund can be made within one month after the date on which the tax became payable. Within one month after the date on which a person becomes registered, the person may file a claim for relief from VAT paid on stock held (goods held for trading) before registration.

Pre-registration costs. A newly registered taxpayer is allowed to claim input tax credit in respect of goods that were in his store or stock at the close of the last day prior to registration.

Write-off of bad debts. Output tax accounted for on bad debts cannot be recovered in Rwanda.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred in relation to noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Rwanda.

G. Recovery of VAT by nonresidents

Rwanda does not refund VAT incurred by a foreign business, unless the foreign business has a permanent establishment in Rwanda and is registered for VAT in Rwanda.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A supplier of taxable goods and services must issue a tax invoice to the purchaser at the time of supply. Simplified tax invoices may be used if the sales to any one person in a day do not exceed a threshold determined by the Commissioner General.

Credit notes. A credit note may be used to reduce the VAT charged on a supply of goods or services. Credit notes must show the same information as a tax invoice.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing using electronic billing machines (EBMs) supplied by vendors authorized by the tax administration is mandatory for all taxpayers, unless the taxpayer in question has a specific exemption granted by the Commissioner General from the use of an

EBM. In other words, every commercial invoice issued by a VAT-registered person must invariably be accompanied by a corresponding EBM receipt generated from the EBM that is directly linked to the RRA IT system. There are prohibitive penalties for the non-use or fraudulent use of EBMs by VAT-registered taxpayers.

Simplified VAT invoices. A simplified invoice may be issued instead of a VAT invoice. Approval by the tax administration is required in order to issue simplified VAT invoices.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Rwanda.

Proof of exports. Goods exported from Rwanda are zero-rated. However, to qualify for zero-rated exports must be supported by evidence that proves the goods left Rwanda. Suitable evidence includes the following documents:
- A sales invoice
- A bill of lading, road manifest or airway bill
- A customs export entry (document issued by Customs as evidence that goods have been cleared to leave Rwanda's customs territory)

Foreign currency invoices. Foreign currency invoices are handled in the same manner as invoices in local currency. Foreign denominated invoices are converted using the prevailing National Bank of Rwanda (BNR) exchange rate as at the invoice date.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. There are no special invoicing rules in Rwanda for supplies made by taxable persons to private consumers. Normal VAT invoices must be issued.

Records. A taxpayer must maintain books of accounts and records on the following:
- Sales and purchases records
- Record of assets and liabilities
- Records of daily income and expenses related to the business activity
- Records of stock inventory at the end of the accounting period
- Information related to controlled transactions

Record retention period. The statutory period for archiving of accounting and tax records is five years.

Electronic archiving. There are no specific provisions in the Rwandan VAT law on the electronic archiving of records. In practice, the tax administration requests for physical copies of tax records during a tax audit. It is therefore prudent for a taxpayer who has an electronic archiving system to also maintain physical copies of the invoices.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. The VAT tax period is either one month or calendar quarter. Returns must be filed by the 15th day after the end of the tax period. If the normal filing date falls on a public holiday or on a weekend, the VAT return must be submitted on the next working day after such day.

Periodic payments. Payment is due in full by the same date as the VAT return submission deadline, i.e., by the 15th day after the end of the tax period. A "nil" return must be filed if no VAT is payable. A refund claim return must be filed if input tax exceeds output tax in a given tax period.

Electronic filing. All tax filings in Rwanda are conducted online.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Rwanda.

Special schemes. No special schemes are available in Rwanda.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Rwanda.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in Rwanda.

Digital reporting. No digital reporting requirements apply in Rwanda.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. An administrative fine of 50% of the amount of output tax is assessed for the entire period of operation without VAT registration in the event of late registration by traders that meet the turnover threshold.

Penalties for late payment and filings. Administrative fines for non-declaration and nonpayment of tax are:
- 20% of tax due when the taxpayer exceeds the time limit for declaration and payment for a period not exceeding 30 days
- 40% of tax the taxpayer should have declared and paid, if they pay within a period ranging from 31 to 60 days from the time limit for the payment
- 60% of due tax, if the taxpayer exceeds the time limit for declaration and payment by more than 60 days

Administrative fines for late payment of tax are:
- 10% of due principal tax, when the taxpayer exceeds the time limit for payment for a period not exceeding 30 days from the fixed date of payment
- 20% of the principal tax due, when the taxpayer exceeds the time limit for the payment of a period ranging from 31 to 60 days from the fixed date of payment
- 30% of due principal tax, when the taxpayer exceeds the time limit for payment by more than 60 days from the fixed date of payment

Interest on late payment of tax is charged at a 1.5% per month, not compounded.

Penalties for errors. The penalties for errors in Rwanda are the same as the penalties for late payment of tax (see above).

Penalties for fraud. Penalties for VAT offenses include up to 200% of tax evaded and imprisonment for a term of not less than two years and not more than five years upon conviction.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the supply of goods and services by a taxable person in Saint Lucia and to the importation of goods and services.

C. Who is liable

The Saint Lucia VAT Act imposes a registration requirement on any person in Saint Lucia whose total value of taxable supplies exceeds XCD400,000 during a period of 12 or fewer months.

A person that expects to make taxable supplies in excess of XCD400,000 at the beginning of any period of 365 calendar days shall also apply for VAT registration in Saint Lucia.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. A person who makes or intends to make taxable supplies in Saint Lucia may voluntarily register for VAT in Saint Lucia where their taxable turnover is below the VAT registration threshold. This registration is done by way of an application to the Comptroller in the form approved by the Comptroller and must contain such further information as may be required. The decision to voluntarily register an entity is at the discretion of the Comptroller and an applicant will receive the decision of the Comptroller within 30 days of receipt of the application.

The Comptroller will not accept an application where the person has no fixed place of abode, does not keep good records, the Comptroller has reasonable grounds to believe that the person will not keep proper records or will not submit regular and reliable tax returns, or the person has not complied with the requirements of any law administered by the Inland Revenue Department.

Group registration. VAT grouping is not allowed under the Saint Lucia VAT law. Legal entities that are closely connected must register for VAT individually.

Non-established businesses. Non-established businesses are required to register for VAT if they make taxable supplies in St. Lucia in excess of the registration threshold.

Tax representatives. Where a corporation fails to pay an amount of tax required, the persons who were directors at the time the corporation was required to pay such are jointly and severally liable, together with the corporation, to pay the amount and any interest or penalties attaching to such amount.

Reverse charge. The reverse charge applies to the importation of a taxable service, if the imported service is used to make exempt supplies or is used for a private or domestic purpose. Where this occurs, the person importing the service is responsible for the payment of the VAT chargeable to the service. Otherwise the non-established business must register for VAT and charge VAT locally.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in St. Lucia.

Digital economy. There are no specific rules relating to the taxation of the digital economy. In practice, a non-established business providing digital services would generally be required to register for VAT, and charge VAT on their supplies where the services are physically performed, or used in Saint Lucia.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Saint Lucia.

Registration procedures. Taxpayers are required to register with the Saint Lucia Inland Revenue Department and are required to provide the incorporation documents of the entity being registered. The location is as follows:

Inland Revenue Department
VAT Section
Manoel Street
Castries
Saint Lucia, W.I.

Deregistration. A person may deregister when they cease to carry on taxable activities and notifies the Comptroller in writing of such cessation within five working days. The person will ordinarily be deregistered with effect from the last calendar day of the tax period during which all such taxable activities ceased or from such other time as the Comptroller may determine.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to a supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 12.5%
- Reduced rate: 10%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services, unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate, the zero rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%
- Exported goods and services
- Certain staple foodstuffs
- Fuel
- Goods supplied by licensed duty-free shop operators

Examples of goods and services taxable at 10%
- Hotel accommodation

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services
- Financial services
- Medical services
- Education services
- Residential property sales
- Transportation services
- Betting and gaming
- Certain imports, for example:
  - Goods shipped or conveyed to Saint Lucia for transshipment to another country
  - Goods imported by nationals returning home for permanent residence in specified categories
  - Capital goods where specific conditions are met
  - Goods and services imported during a disaster alert or emergency that are not for resale

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Saint Lucia. Not applicable.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply." In general, the time of supply for goods and services supplied by a taxable person is the earliest of the following events:
- The date of issuance of the invoice by the supplier
- The date on which any consideration is received for the supply
- The date on which the goods are made available to the recipient or the services are performed

A taxable person must account for VAT in the VAT period in which the time of supply occurs, regardless of whether payment is received.

Deposits and prepayments. There is no special time of supply rules for deposits and prepayments in Saint Lucia. As such, the general time of supply rules apply. Not applicable.

Continuous supplies of services. Where goods or services are supplied under an agreement that provides for periodic payments, these supplies are treated as successively supplied for successive parts of the period of the agreement. Each of the successive supplies occurs when a payment becomes due or is received, whichever is the earlier.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules for goods sent on approval for sale or return. As such, the general time of supply rules apply.

Reverse-charge services. There are no special time of supply rules for reverse-charge services. As such, the general time of supply rules apply.

Leased assets. Goods supplied under a rental agreement are treated as successively supplied for successive parts of the period of the agreement, and each of the successive supplies occurs when a payment becomes due or is received, whichever is the earlier.

A supply of goods under a layaway agreement (agreement by which a supplier agrees to hold goods secured by a deposit until the price is paid in full by the purchaser) occurs when the goods are delivered to the purchaser.

Imported goods. VAT is payable on the importation of taxable supplies.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

The VAT paid by a registrant is recoverable as input tax if it relates to goods and services acquired for the purposes of making taxable supplies. Input tax is recovered by offsetting it against output tax (that is, tax charged on supplies made) in the VAT return for each VAT period.

Goods or services are deemed to be for the purpose of making taxable supplies if the supplier acquired, imported or produced the goods or services for any of the following purposes:
- Their supply or resupply as a taxable supply
- Their consumption or use (whether directly or indirectly, wholly or partly) in producing goods or services for supply as a taxable supply
- Their consumption or use (whether directly or indirectly, wholly or partly) with respect to a commercial enterprise

Where the total amount of input tax deductible by a registrant exceeds the output tax for that VAT period, the excess is carried forward to the next tax period and treated as input tax deductible in that period. If any of the excess remains after being carried forward for three consecutive VAT periods, the registrant may file with the tax authorities a claim for a refund of the amount remaining.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Personal vehicles
- Fees for memberships in recreational clubs

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Business entertainment
- Travel expenses

Partial exemption. The Saint Lucia VAT Law states that if all the supplies made by a taxable person during a tax period are taxable supplies, the input tax incurred in the period is deductible in full. However, if some, but not all, of the supplies made by the person during the tax period are taxable supplies, a partial recovery calculation is required.

The amount of recoverable input tax is calculated based on the ratio of the value of taxable supplies made during the period compared to the total value of supplies (taxable plus exempt) made during the period.

Capital goods. There are no specific rules for input tax recovery on capital goods in Saint Lucia. The ordinary rules regarding the recovery of input tax therefore apply. Where a capital good is used to make both taxable and exempt supplies, the registrant is required to apportion the input tax on a reasonable basis (as determined by the registrant, but subject to possible review by the tax authorities).

Refunds. If the amount of input tax recoverable in a VAT period exceeds the amount of output tax payable for that VAT period, the excess may be refunded, provided that all VAT returns due have been submitted and the credit has been carried forward for three consecutive months. A refund can be applied for with the Comptroller of Inland Revenue Department by submitting a completed VAT Form 004. The Inland Revenue Department will verify all refund requests and issue refunds at the end of the following month if no audit is required. Excess credits can also be utilized to clear off any other tax liability.

Pre-registration costs. There is no provision for persons to claim VAT incurred on costs prior to registration.

Write-off of bad debts. A person is allowed to claim bad debt relief for tax paid in respect of a taxable supply made by the registered person where the whole or part of the consideration for the supply is subsequently treated as a bad debt. The registrant claiming this relief must satisfy the Comptroller that reasonable efforts have been made to recover the amount due and payable.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred upon purchases that are used for noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Saint Lucia.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Foreign businesses that make commercial supplies in Saint Lucia may register and recover tax with respect to their local operations in the same manner as resident businesses. Where the business is not registered for VAT in Saint Lucia, it will be unable to recover VAT.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A taxable person must provide a tax invoice for all taxable supplies made to registrants. A tax invoice is necessary to support a claim for input tax deduction.

Credit notes. A credit note, or debit note must be issued when the quantity or consideration shown on a tax invoice is altered. Credit and debit notes must contain broadly the same information as a tax invoice.

Electronic invoicing. There are no provisions in the law for electronic invoicing in Saint Lucia. However, in practice electronic invoicing can be used as long as an electronic invoice meets the same requirements as the standard paper invoice.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified VAT invoicing is allowed where the supply is made to a VAT-registered person, and the total consideration for the taxable supply is in cash and does not exceed XCD50.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Saint Lucia.

Proof of exports. VAT is charged at the zero-rate (0%) on supplies of exported goods. However, to qualify as zero-rated, exports must be supported by evidence that confirms the goods have left Saint Lucia.

Foreign currency invoices. Where an invoice is expressed in a currency other than Eastern Caribbean dollars (XCD):

- In the case of imports, the amount is to be converted at the exchange rate as determined by the Customs (Control and Management) Act.

- In all other cases, the amount is to be converted at the exchange rate applying between the currency and the Eastern Caribbean dollar at the time the amount is taken into account.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. There are no special invoicing rules for supplies to nontaxable persons in Saint Lucia. As such, full VAT invoices are required.

Records. A taxable person must maintain the records in Saint Lucia, and in the English language, including:
- Original tax invoices, sales receipts, tax credit notes and tax debit notes received
- Copies of all tax invoices, sales receipts, tax credit notes and tax debit notes issued by them
- Customs documentation relating to imports and exports by the person
- Accounting records relating to taxable activities carried on in Saint Lucia
- Any other records as may be prescribed by the regulations

Record retention period. Records must be retained for six years after the end of the tax period to which they relate.

Electronic archiving. Records can be kept electronically in Saint Lucia.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. The VAT period in Saint Lucia is the calendar month. The VAT return must be filed within 21 calendar days after the end of the tax period.

Periodic payments. Any tax due for the period must be remitted by the same date as the return deadline, i.e., within 21 calendar days after the end of the tax period.

Electronic filing. An electronic filing system is being implemented in Saint Lucia. However, it is not yet fully operational, and as such in practice, taxable persons are still filing returns manually, i.e., by paper.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Saint Lucia.

Special schemes.

Secondhand goods scheme. Under the secondhand goods scheme, the total amount of input tax allowed as a deduction, is the sum of equal to 70% of the tax fraction, of the lower of the following:
- The lesser of the amount paid for the goods
- The fair market value of the goods, which includes the tax of second-hands goods acquired in St. Lucia during the tax period by a registered person from a person (registered or not registered), in a transaction not subject to tax

Based on the if the goods are taxable at a positive rate and are acquired for the purpose of making taxable supplies.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Saint Lucia.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in Saint Lucia.

Digital reporting. There are no detailed digital reporting requirements in St. Lucia. However, an electronic filing system is being implemented in Saint Lucia. But this is not yet fully operational, and as such in practice, taxable persons are still filing returns manually, i.e., by paper.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. A person who fails to register is liable to a penalty equal to double the amount of output tax payable from the time the person is required to apply for registration until the person files an application for registration with the Comptroller.

Penalties for late payment and filings. A person who fails to file a return within the required due date is liable to a penalty of XCD250 per month or part of the month for the period during which the return remains unfiled. Any VAT payable outstanding by the due date is liable to a penalty equal to 10% of the amount payable. Interest is charged at the rate of 1.25% per month or part of a month for the period the tax remains unpaid.

A person who for two or more VAT periods fails to file returns within the specified time and manner is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding XCD50,000 or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three years or to both.

Penalties for errors. There is no specific provision that speaks to penalties for errors. However, a person who commits an offense for which there is no penalty specified is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding XCD10,000 or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding one year or both.

Penalties for fraud. A person who willfully evades or attempts to evade an assessment, payment or collection of tax is guilty of a criminal offense and is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding XCD100,000 or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three years or both.

A person who knowingly or recklessly makes a statement to a tax officer that is false or misleading in a material particular or omits any matter or thing without which the statement is misleading in a material particular and this results in the tax properly payable exceeding the tax that would be payable if that person was assessed on the basis that the statement were true, that person commits an offense and is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding XCD100,000 or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding four years.

On July 2019 a value-added tax (VAT) Code bill was presented for discussion before the Sao Tomean Parliament. A specialized commission of the Parliament already gave favorable advice on this VAT Code bill. Accordingly, VAT (with a general rate of 10%) is expected to come into force on 1 January 2021 and replace the existing consumption tax.

B. Scope of the taxes

Consumption tax is levied on the value of a determined number of manufactured goods, on the provision of services and on importations.

C. Who is liable

The tax is due by the producer, by the service provider when resident or with permanent establishment in São Tome and Principe (STP) (or by the acquirer through reverse-charge mechanism) and by importers.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. The regulation on consumption tax in STP does not provide for a rule on voluntary registration, as there is no registration threshold (i.e., all entities that make taxable supplies are obliged to register). Exceptions may be applicable to situation where reverse charge on the provision of services may be applicable.

Group registration. Group CT registration is not allowed in STP.

Non-established businesses. Non-established business, without a permanent establishment in STP that provide services within the national territory are liable to consumption tax by way of reverse charge. As there is no specific registration threshold for consumption tax, if a nonresident business with a permanent establishment in STP carries out a business activity, it will also have to register for consumption tax.

Tax representatives. Tax representatives are not required in STP.

Reverse charge. The law is not clear on the rules applicable to the supply of services from outside STP. When a nonresident entity supplies services in STP to a customer resident in STP, the purchaser is responsible for assessing and paying the corresponding consumption tax amounts under general rules. As such, the purchaser should pay the tax due by the 10th day of the following month from which the service was required.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in STP.

Digital economy. There are no special rules for supplies made digitally or within the digital economy in STP. Normal consumption tax rules apply.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in STP.

Registration procedures. There are no specific rules in STP applicable to consumption tax registration. Resident and nonresident businesses with permanent establishment in STP have to file a declaration of commencement of activity. The law is silent on these reporting obligations for nonresident businesses with no permanent establishment in STP, and as such no registration is required.

Deregistration. Resident and nonresident businesses with permanent establishment in STP, are no longer operating in STP, the entities should file a declaration of termination of activity.

D. Rates

The term “taxable supplies” refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of CT, including the zero rate.

The CT rates are:
- Standard rate: 5%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of CT applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate, the zero rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Exports of goods

The term "exempt" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to tax and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Locally produced goods exported directed by the industrial establishment
- Alcohol needed in industrial processes
- Goods imported by international organizations, foreign embassies and consulates, provided there is reciprocity of treatment
- Medical or medical-related services

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax-exempt supplies is not available in STP.

E. Time of supply

General rule dictates that consumption tax is levied upon the sale, supply of services or import of goods. According to the regulation on consumption tax, the tax is due by reference to the sale document. On its turn, the invoice or equivalent document should be issued upon the service or sale's payment, or, by the fifth day following the supply of services or goods. The time of the supply should be the date when the service is deemed finished. As such, the general rule for all supplies, is payment should be made by the 10th day of the following month in which the supply was made.

Deposits and prepayments. For deposits and prepayments, the STP tax legislation foresees that an invoice should be raised accordingly by the moment payments occur (even if priory to the supply of goods or services). In this sense, and although it cannot be directly withdrawn from the STP law provisions, consumption tax should be assessed accordingly.

Continuous supplies of services. There is no special time of supply rule in STP for continuous supplies of services. As such, the normal time of supply rules apply.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There is no special time of supply rule in STP for supplies of goods sent on approval for sale or return. As such, the normal time of supply rules apply.

Reverse-charge services. The recipient of the service must self-assess consumption tax by the 10th day of the following month when the service was acquired.

Leased assets. There is no special time of supply rule in STP for supplies of leased assets. As such, the normal time of supply rules apply.

Imported goods. Consumption tax is due upon importation (together with other applicable import duties).

F. Recovery of consumption tax by taxable persons

Nondeductible input tax. Consumption tax is not operated on an input output model in STP and therefore deduction of input tax is not allowed. Consumption tax paid is deemed final, and no refunds are allowed in STP.

Partial exemption. Deduction of input tax is not allowed in STP.

Capital goods. Input tax incurred on capital goods in STP, is not recoverable.

Refunds. Refunds of consumption tax in STP is not allowed.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax incurred on pre-registration costs in STP, is not recoverable.

Write-off of bad debts. Input tax incurred in relation to bad debts in STP, is not recoverable.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred in relation to noneconomic activities is not recoverable in STP.

G. Recovery of consumption tax by non-established businesses

Input tax incurred by non-established businesses in STP is not recoverable.

H. Invoicing

Consumption tax invoices. Issuing an invoice or an equivalent document is, under the Legal Regime for Invoices and Equivalent Documents, mandatory for the supplies of goods and services made for consideration. Under this regime, only private individuals or corporate entities resident in STP and that sell goods or provide services should comply with the obligation to issue invoices. Taxable persons must issue an invoice for all taxable supplies made — including exports. Additionally, invoices should be issued in duplicate, the original is delivered to the acquired and the copy remains with the supplier.

Credit notes. Under the Legal Regime for Invoices and Equivalent Documents, invoices or equivalent documents are replaced by guides or return notes (guias ou notas de devolução). Whenever the taxpayer has the need to rectify or to replace invoice or equivalent documents, the replacing documents should contain the mention "Rectificação ou substituição" as well as the identification of the document which is being rectified or replaced.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is mandatory in STP. Invoice and equivalent documents must be raised by means of a computer system and contain the expression "Processado por computador." All supply of goods and services made for consideration and by individuals or companies with domicile, headquarters or permanent establishment in STP are obliged to raise invoices (except if the transaction value is equal or lower than STN200,000). These invoices need to be raised by computer.

Simplified CT invoices. Simplified CT invoicing is not allowed in STP. As such, full CT invoices are required. However, invoices are not required to be issued for supplies of goods or services with value equal or lower than STN200,000.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in STP.

Proof of exports. The required document to evidence an export is the export declaration (declaração de exportação), where the elements related to the goods are declared. The customs value should be mentioned in an invoice as, according to the legal framework on invoices, an invoice should be raised per supply of goods.

Foreign currency invoices. All invoices should be issued in Portuguese language writing and in national currency.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. There are no special invoicing rules for supplies to nontaxable persons in STP. As such, full CT invoices are required.

Records.

Record retention period. All invoices or equivalent documents must be kept for five years at the business' headquarters or establishments located in STP.

Electronic archiving. Digital archives of invoices or equivalent documents is allowed but it does nor replace the obligation to store and archive documentation within the national territory.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. Under the regulations for consumption tax there are no periodic returns required to be filed in STP. This said, consumption tax is payable, when due, on a monthly basis.

Periodic payments. Consumption tax is payable at the following times:
- On a monthly basis (by the 10th day of the following month of the relevant operation) for the production of goods and the supply of services, to a tax office of their residency
- Per import, on the moments the assessment is made by the Customs Offices, in line with the Customs provisions currently in force

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is not allowed in STP. Payments should be filed at the local tax authority's office, in paper. The taxpayer visits the tax office, files the tax guide and makes the payment.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in STP.

Special schemes. No special schemes are available in STP.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in STP.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in STP.

Digital reporting. No digital reporting requirements apply in STP.

J. Penalties

The penalties provided hereunder are reduced to half (both the minimum and maximum) when the offense is committed with negligence. Additionally, when the fine depends of the tax amount, the fine cannot be higher than STN100 million.

Penalties for late registration. As there is no registration for consumption tax purposes, this is not applicable under the current scenario in São Tomé and Principe. This said, the general fine applicable to the lack of filing any document (other than a tax return) is of between STN500,000 and STN5 million.

Penalties for late payment and filings. Late payment is punishable in an amount between the amount of the tax due and its double. Nevertheless, if the payments are made within 10 days after the due date, the value of the fine is of 5% of the missing tax, with a minimum of STN5,000.

If the late payment occurs after 90 days of the due date, the amount of the fine increases to between the amount of tax due and its triple.

Late filing of a tax return (up to 30 days of the deadline) is punishable with a fine between STN500,000 and STN5 million. If the tax return is filed after 30 days of the deadline, the applicable fine increases to between STN1 million and STN 5 million.

Penalties for errors. Tax returns and other documents containing omissions and inaccuracies are punishable with a fine between STN1 million and STN50 million.

Penalties for fraud. Fraud with relevant tax documents will be punished with a fine between STN1 million to STN50 million.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- The supply of goods and services made in Saudi Arabia by a taxable person
- The acquisition of goods or services received in Saudi Arabia by a taxable person
- Reverse-charge services received by a taxable person in Saudi Arabia
- Taxable imports of goods received by a taxable person in Saudi Arabia

In some cases, supplies may be outside the scope of VAT, e.g., when supplies are:
- Made by a nontaxable person
- Made outside Saudi Arabia (but note special place-of-supply rules for certain international services, e.g., electronically supplied services)
- Not made in the course of an economic activity

In other cases, supplies not normally in scope are deemed to be taxable supplies (nominal supplies) such as supplies for nil consideration (subject to certain exclusions).

C. Who is liable

A "taxable person" in Saudi Arabia is a person who conducts an economic activity independently for generating income and is registered for VAT in Saudi Arabia or who is required to register.

A person who supplies or intends to supply real estate will be presumed to carry on an economic activity for the purpose of VAT registration, except in cases where prior to the supply, the real estate was used or was intended for use as a permanent dwelling by the person or by a related person.

Every person who has a place of residence in Saudi Arabia, must register for, collect and remit VAT where the total value of all taxable supplies made in Saudi Arabia in the past 12 months or expected taxable supplies in the next 12 months exceeds SAR375,000. The total value of taxable supplies includes all supplies of goods and services made by the person as a supplier, which are subject to a 5% or a 0% rate of tax (where supplied by a VAT-registered person). The total value of taxable supplies also includes the following:
- Nominal supplies
- Receipt of reverse-charge supplies in case goods or services
- After a GAZT order announces the full implementation of VAT in the GCC and the introduction of the Electronic Services System, intra-GCC supplies made from KSA to a VAT-registered person in another GCC Member State will not be subject to KSA VAT but will count toward the total value of taxable supplies

However, the value of taxable supplies does not include the following:
- Value of exempt supplies
- Supplies taking place outside the scope of VAT in Saudi Arabia
- Revenue on sale of capital assets

In cases where the tax authority has evidence or reason to doubt that a taxable person will not make its VAT and associated payments in an accurate and timely manner, it may require that cash security or a bank guarantee is provided as a precondition for VAT registration, subject to several requirements.

Imports into Saudi Arabia by a VAT-registered person or non-VAT registered person are subject to VAT, with the actual payment of VAT required. Authorization may be granted to registered taxpayers in order to make the payment of VAT through its tax return as opposed to at customs. Despite there being a customs union in the GCC, in cases where a resident non-VAT registered person in Saudi Arabia imports goods with a value exceeding SAR10,000 into Saudi Arabia from another GCC Member State, and cannot prove at the time of such entry that VAT was paid on the purchase of those goods in such GCC Member State, that person is deemed to make an import of those goods and VAT shall be payable on such imports.

Goods or services that a taxable business supplies to itself are not taxable (with the exception of nominal supplies). This includes instances where one member of a VAT group provides services to another member of that group.

Exemption from registration. A taxable person who at any time has annual supplies made in Saudi Arabia whose value exceeds the mandatory registration threshold, which are exclusively zero-rated supplies, is excluded from the requirement to register. They may however elect to register voluntarily. Exempt supplies do not count toward voluntary or mandatory registration thresholds.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. A person who has a place of residence in Saudi Arabia who is not obligated to register for VAT (as per the rules outlined above), may apply for VAT registration if its total value of taxable supplies in the past 12 months or expected taxable sales in the next 12 months are between SAR187,500 and SAR375,000. A person can also register voluntarily if their expenses in the past, or next 12 months, equal or exceed SAR187,500.

Group registration. Two or more legal persons may apply for VAT registration as a VAT group if all of the following conditions are met:
- Each group member must perform an economic activity and be legal residents in Saudi Arabia
- 50% or more of the capital of each legal person, or ownership or control of 50%, or more of the voting rights or value, in both or all of the group members, is held by the same person or group of persons, whether directly or indirectly (i.e., under common control)
- At least one of the group members must independently meet the taxable sales threshold for VAT registration

All members of a VAT group shall be jointly and severally liable for the VAT obligations of that VAT group arising during its registration.

An application to form a VAT group must be made by a taxable person. This person will be the representative member of the VAT group and will have the primary obligation to comply with the obligations and the rights of the group on behalf of all members of the group, without prejudice to the joint liability of the other members of the group.

The VAT group registration takes effect from the first day of the month following the month in which the application is approved or such later date as determined by the tax authority. If the application is approved, the tax authority will issue a new VAT identification number to the VAT group representative on behalf of the VAT group, and suspend the existing VAT identification numbers of members who are individually registered for VAT.

The tax authority may issue a notice to two or more taxable persons who are not part of any VAT group, but who are eligible to form one together, that they are considered to be in a VAT group from any prospective date. Such notice may only be issued where the VAT registration of each taxable person results or will result in the accrual of a VAT advantage.

Non-established businesses. Every person who does not have a place of residence in Saudi Arabia, and is not registered with the Saudi Arabia tax authority, but is obligated to pay VAT on supplies made or received by that person in Saudi Arabia, must apply to the tax authority for registration within 30 days of the first supply on which that person was obligated to pay VAT. All nonresident taxable persons must have a local, approved tax representative who is jointly and severally liable for the VAT the business owes.

Tax representatives. The tax authority may approve persons who wish to act as tax representatives or tax agents for taxable persons in respect of their VAT obligations in Saudi Arabia. The tax authority shall publish a list of approved tax representatives and approved tax agents.

All nonresident taxable persons must have a tax representative. That representative, once approved by the tax authority, is able to submit VAT returns and payment to the tax authority and correspond with the tax authority on the taxpayer's behalf. The tax representative shall be jointly liable for the payment of any VAT due by the taxable person, until such date the tax representative is confirmed by the tax authority as ceasing to act on behalf of that taxable person.

A taxable person who is resident in Saudi Arabia may appoint a tax agent to act on that taxable person's behalf in respect of its VAT obligations in Saudi Arabia, by submitting a notification. Notwithstanding the appointment of a tax agent, the taxable person shall maintain individual responsibility for all such obligations.

Reverse charge. The reverse-charge mechanism must be applied when a VAT-registered business imports a taxable service from a nonresident. The taxable person registered for VAT in Saudi Arabia is required to account for VAT on the transaction using the reverse-charge mechanism.

A VAT-registered recipient resident in Saudi Arabia must self-account for the VAT through its VAT return, by way of the reverse-charge mechanism, by assessing and accounting for the VAT charged on the supplies received, if:
- The place of supply for the goods or services is in Saudi Arabia.
- The supplier is not resident in Saudi Arabia.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Saudi Arabia.

Digital economy. Supply of wired and wireless telecommunications services and electronic services have special place of supply rules in KSA.

In cases where wired and wireless telecommunications services and electronic services are provided at a telephone box, a telephone kiosk, a Wi-Fi hot spot, an internet café, a restaurant or a hotel lobby, or in other cases where the physical presence of the customer at a particular location is needed for those services to be provided, the customer consumes and enjoys the services at that location.

In all other cases, the customer consumes and enjoys the service at the place where their usual place of residence is.

Online marketplaces and platforms. There are special rules for taxable persons liable to VAT in cases where electronically supplied services are supplied in Saudi Arabia through an online interface or portal acting as intermediary for a nonresident supplier.

In cases where electronically supplied services are supplied in Saudi Arabia through an online interface or portal acting as intermediary for a nonresident supplier, the operator of the interface or portal is presumed to purchase the services from the nonresident supplier and to supply those same services in their own name. This does not apply in cases where both of the following conditions apply:

- The nonresident supplier is expressly indicated as the supplier during the online sales process, in the contractual arrangements between the parties, and on the invoice or receipt issued by the operator of the interface or portal.
- The operator of the interface or portal does not authorize charging the customer for the delivery of the services or the delivery itself or set the general terms and conditions of the supply.

In cases where both the conditions are present, the intermediary is not considered as acting in its own name as a principal, hence, the nonresident supplier is liable to pay and account for VAT on electronic services supplied.

Registration procedures. Where the person has a requirement to register, they must apply to the tax authority to register within 30 days of the end of that month. The registration will take effect from the start of the next month following the month in which the registration application is submitted or from the start of the first month in which its annual supplies were expected to exceed the threshold.

Businesses can register for VAT using the application portal that is accessible on the GAZT's website. To register for VAT, taxpayers need to have a valid tax identification number (TIN). If the business does not have a TIN, it is required to register for one on the GAZT's website prior to VAT registration.

The tax authority has developed an online portal, which is available on its website, where taxpayers can verify suppliers' and customers' VAT registration numbers.

Deregistration. Where a taxable person ceases to carry on an economic activity, including cases where a legal person ceases to exist as a legal person, that taxable person shall deregister. Deregistration will take effect from the date determined by the Saudi Arabia tax authority after its approval of the deregistration.

Where at the end of any month, a nonresident taxable person has not made any taxable supplies in Saudi Arabia in the most recent 12-month period that the taxable person must deregister.

At the end of any month, a resident taxable person (having been registered for at least 12 months) is required to deregister where all of the following occur:

- The total value of annual supplies or annual expenses in the last 12 months is less than the voluntary registration threshold
- The total value of annual supplies made in Saudi Arabia or annual expenses in the last 24 months does not exceed the mandatory registration threshold
- The total value of annual supplies or annual expenses in that month and the subsequent 11 months is not anticipated to exceed the voluntary registration threshold

A taxable person shall apply for deregistration to the Saudi Arabia tax authority within 30 days of any of the cases above. Where the taxable person does not apply for deregistration to the tax authority, the tax authority may deregister that person. In these cases, the tax authority will issue a notification.

Deregistration is optional if:
- A business's taxable supplies in the last 12 months are between SAR187,500 and SAR375,000
- A business's expected taxable supplies in the next 12 months (current month included) are between SAR187,500 and SAR375,000

The deregistration takes effect on the date determined by the tax authority after its approval of the deregistration. A taxable person may not apply to deregister voluntarily in cases where it has been registered for less than 12 months. The tax authority may refuse an application for deregistration where it does not have sufficient evidence that a taxable person is eligible to deregister.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 5%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate, the zero rate or an exemption.

The following imports of goods, which are not subject to customs duties, are exempt from import VAT:
- Goods for diplomatic and military use that are exempt from customs duties
- Imports of personal effects and household appliances being moved into Saudi Arabia that are exempt from customs duties in accordance with the Unified Customs Law
- Imports of returned goods that are fully exempt from customs duties
- Low value imports of personal items and gifts carried in travelers' personal luggage, within the limits set by the Customs Department for relief from customs duties collection

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

Saudi Arabia will treat intra-GCC products in the same way as non-GCC imports for the purposes of VAT, until the full integration of the Electronic Services System. This means that the concept of the implementing states is currently not live, and that supplies to GCC residents are treated in the same way as supplies to non-GCC residents.

- A direct export from Saudi Arabia to a place outside of the GCC territory
- Services provided to non-GCC residents
- International transportation. Within international transport, zero-rated goods and services include:
  — International transport of passengers and goods
  — Vehicles and equipment to be used for international transportation — Certain goods and services provided in connection with international transportation
- Medicines and medical goods, considered as qualifying medicines and qualifying medical goods as per the classification issued by the Ministry of Health or any other competent authority from time to time. Qualifying medicines and medical goods will be part of the Ministry of Health's formulary drug list
- Investment metals. Two types of transactions involving qualifying investment metals (gold, silver and platinum of 99% purity or higher) are zero-rated:
  - A producer or refiner's original sale of investment metal
  - Any further sale of gold, silver and platinum where the purity level remains

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Certain financial and insurance services. This does not include instances where consideration payable is by way of explicit fees.
- Residential real estate. The supply by way of lease, license or rental of any property classified as residential real estate, or designed or used for residential purposes will qualify to be treated as exempt from VAT. The supply of hotel accommodation, non-hotel but serviced accommodation, or residential property held out for rent in a similar manner to hotel or serviced accommodation will not qualify for exemption. Any commercial property or property designated or used for commercial purposes will not qualify for exemption.

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Saudi Arabia.

E. Time of supply

The general time of supply rules for goods and services is the earlier of:

- Date of issuing a tax invoice
- When the goods or services are supplied
- When any payment is received to the extent of the payment

Special time of supply rules apply for the continuous supply of services, see below for further details.

Deposits and prepayments. A deposit for a supply designed to be paid by the customer as an advance payment that will be considered as an initial payment for the supply or subsequent payments will create a tax point when received.

The tax point for an advance payment is whichever of the following happens first:

- The date the VAT invoice is issued for the advance payment
- The date the advance payment is received

VAT is due on the advance payment in the VAT return for the period when the tax point occurs.

A security deposit is not treated as a consideration for a supply unless the deposit is applied either in part or full as consideration for a supply, or it is forfeited in relation to defaulting the performance of the obligation. Apart from security deposits, a prepayment or deposit intended by the payer and recipient to eventually form part of the consideration for an identifiable supply creates a tax point when received.

Continuous supplies of services. In cases where goods or services are supplied and the invoice or agreement between the supplier and customer states that consideration is due and payable in periodical installments, a separate supply in respect of each installment takes place on the earlier of the due date for the payment of that installment or the date of actual payment.

In all other cases where supplies of goods or services are made on a continuing basis, a separate supply takes place on the earlier of the date an invoice is issued or payment is made in respect of those goods or services, to the extent of the amount invoiced or paid.

In the event that no payment has been received or invoice has been issued in relation to a continuous supply of goods or services by a taxable person, the supply is deemed to take place on the date falling 12 months after the later of:

- The date on which the supply of goods or services commences
- The previous date on which the supply took place by reason of an invoice being issued or payment being made

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. Saudi Arabia does not have a specific time of supply rule for these circumstances.

Reverse-charge services. Saudi Arabia does not have a specific time-of-supply rule for reverse-charge services.

Leased assets. Saudi Arabia does not have a specific time of supply rule for these circumstances.

Imported goods. A taxable person may apply for authorization for the payment of VAT on imports to be made through that taxable person's VAT return, instead of being collected by the Customs Department on importation entry, (effectively postponed import VAT accounting). The tax authority will primarily approve larger-volume importers for this option.

Supply of oil, gas, water or electricity through a distribution network. The supply of oil, gas, water or electricity through a distribution network that is not made on a continuing basis, takes place at the earlier of:
• The date an invoice is issued by the supplier in respect of those goods
• The date that payment is received by the supplier in respect of those goods

Deemed supply on deregistration. A deemed supply made as a result of the cessation of a taxable person's economic activity takes place on the date of deregistration of that taxable person.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may deduct input tax charged on goods and services supplied to it, to the extent these are received in the course of carrying on an economic activity and constitute:
• Taxable supplies, including zero-rated supplies
• Internal supplies, including input tax paid on imports from other GCC Member States. Note that if the supplier resides in a GCC Member State that has not implemented VAT, the import VAT will be treated as if it came from outside the GCC
• Taxable imports from outside the GCC, meaning that VAT paid on taxable imports from outside the GCC is deductible if it used to supply zero rated or standard rated goods or services

A valid VAT invoice or customs document is required for an input tax deduction.

A taxable person may claim a refund of the amount of excess VAT paid, in any of the following circumstances:
• Upon filing a VAT return for a tax period where net tax is an amount due to the taxable person
• Where the taxable person has paid an amount in excess of the amount of VAT paid
• Where the taxable person has a VAT credit balance

In all of these cases, the standard practice is to carry forward the amount in the VAT account, unless the taxable person requests a refund.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used in the course of carrying on the taxable person's economic activity.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

• Any form of entertainment, sporting or cultural services
• Catering services in hotels, restaurants and similar venues
• The purchase or lease of "restricted motor vehicles," related services and fuel used in restricted motor vehicles. This also includes the repair, alteration, maintenance or similar services on restricted motor vehicles
• Any other goods and services used for a private or nonbusiness purpose

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

• Goods and services used in making taxable supplies (e.g., raw materials for use in construction of a dwelling for sale)
• Goods and services used in making out-of-scope supplies, where those supplies would have been taxable if made in KSA

Partial exemption. Input tax directly related to the making of exempt supplies is not recoverable. Where input tax incurred is attributable to both taxable and exempt supplies, only the amount attributable to taxable supplies (in accordance with the partial exemption calculation) can be recovered. The default method of proportional deduction of input tax is calculated on the basis of a fraction where:

- The numerator is the value of taxable supplies made by the taxable person in the last calendar year.
- The denominator is the total value of taxable supplies and exempt supplies made by the taxable person during the last calendar year.
- The value of taxable supplies or exempt supplies made by the taxable person in the fraction, include those supplies that do not take place in Saudi Arabia, but that would have been either taxable or exempt supplies if they had taken place in Saudi Arabia.

The fraction outlined above, shall not include:

- Supplies of capital assets by the taxable person
- Supplies taking place outside of Saudi Arabia that are supplied from an establishment of the taxable person outside of Saudi Arabia

At the end of the calendar year, the taxable person using the default method must compare the values used in the fraction during that year, with the actual values of supplies made in that calendar year and make an adjustment to input tax in the final VAT return for that calendar year to reflect the correct proportional deduction based on the actual supplies for the entire year.

A taxable person may submit an application to use an alternative proportional deduction method to the default method, in cases where that alternative method more accurately reflects the use of goods and services supplied to that taxable person.

In cases where the taxable person incurs input tax on goods and services that are not used to make taxable supplies, but are used for the following:

- In respect of raising capital for an ongoing economic activity to the extent this constitutes the making of taxable supplies by way of the issues of share capital or debt
- For a business activity that is treated as outside the scope of VAT, such as a transfer of an economic activity, or part of an economic activity as a going concern
- For another one-off event that is incidental to the economic activity to the extent this constitutes the making of taxable supplies

Such input tax shall be deductible in accordance with the proportion of the overall economic activity of the taxable person that constitutes the making of taxable supplies, determined using the applicable proportional deduction method.

Capital goods. If capital assets are bought after registering for VAT, then the full amount of input tax can be deducted immediately, in case the full amount is paid up front, and the intended use of the capital asset is the making of zero rated or standard rated supplies. However, if the price is paid in installments, VAT is accounted for with the periodic payments in line with the time of supply rules.

In cases where capital assets have already been bought before registration and VAT has been paid on it, the input tax paid can still be deducted after registration with its value capped by the net book value. Net book value is determined in accordance with the accounting standard of the taxable person such as straight-line depreciation. This is covered in more detail in the Pre-registration costs section below.

A taxable person shall adjust previously deducted input tax in relation to a capital asset in cases where the taxable person's input tax decreases or increases as a result of a change in the way the taxable person uses the asset, or a change in the VAT status of such use.

The adjustment period is 6 years in respect of moveable tangible or intangible capital assets and 10 years in respect of immovable capital assets that are permanently attached to land or real estate, starting from the date of purchase of the capital asset by the taxable person. Should the life of the capital assets (determined in accordance with the accounting practice of the taxable person) be less than the otherwise corresponding adjustment period, the adjustment period shall instead be the life of the capital asset, with any part years counting as one year.

At the time a taxable person acquires a capital asset, input tax shall initially be deducted in accordance with the intended use of the goods. During the adjustment period, an adjustment to the deduction must be made following any year in which the actual use of the capital asset differs from that initial intended use. Capital expenditure incurred on a capital asset already owned by the taxable person (i.e., to construct, enhance or improve it) counts as expenditure or additional expenditure acquiring it, the adjustment period (or additional adjustment period) for such expenditure shall commence on the date of completion of such works.

At the end of each 12-month period, a taxable person shall calculate the amount of input tax potentially subject to adjustment using the fraction, initial input tax deduction divided by the adjustment period, and shall make an adjustment to the amount of the input tax deducted, based on the actual use of the capital asset during that year.

The taxable person shall make an adjustment to the input tax in the tax return for the last tax period that falls in the 12-month period.

In cases where there is a permanent change in the use of a capital asset due to the sale or disposal of the capital asset by a taxable person, the taxable person must adjust the input tax deduction for the remainder of the adjustment period for the capital asset in the tax period in which it is sold. No adjustment to the input tax deducted for the remainder of the adjustment period is needed if the capital asset is destroyed or stolen or ends its useful life earlier than accounted for.

Refunds. When a taxable person submits its VAT return, it can request to receive any refund associated with that return as a tax credit. In that case, the tax authority will automatically apply the refundable amount to the taxable person's balance on its next VAT return or at any other time.

Input tax can be deducted in the tax period when the supply is invoiced, in line with the invoice accounting practices. If the business is approved for cash accounting, then the input tax can only be deducted in the tax period when the invoice is actually paid.

However, a taxable person may submit a request to the tax authority for refund in any circumstances outlined above, at the time the VAT return is filed, or at any other time within five years following the end of the calendar year for which the circumstances relate.

Pre-registration costs. A taxable person is entitled to deduct input tax incurred by it in respect of services supplied to it during the period of six months before the effective date of registration, provided that:

- The services are purchases to be used for supplies outlined in 'Recovery of VAT by taxable persons' section
- The services have not been supplied onward, or used in full, by the taxable person prior to the registration date
- The services are not of a type that is restricted from deduction

A taxable person is entitled to deduct input tax incurred by it in respect of goods supplied to it or goods imported by it before the effective date of registration, provided that:

- The goods are purchased or imported to be used for the supplies outlined in "Recovery of VAT by taxable persons" section, and where the VAT cannot be wholly attributed to such use, an apportionment is used
- In cases where the goods are capital assets, these have a positive book value at the date of registration

- The goods have not been supplied onwards by the taxable person, or used in full by the taxable person prior to the registration date
- The goods are not of a type that is restricted from deduction

Write-off of bad debts. In cases where a taxable person does not receive all or part of the consideration for a taxable supply made by them, the taxable person may reduce their output tax for the VAT amount calculated on the consideration not paid in the VAT return in which all of the following conditions are met:
- The taxable person has previously included VAT calculated on the taxable supply as output tax on a VAT return and made payment of the VAT due
- The consideration is in respect of a supply of goods or services made to a customer who is not a related person
- A period of at least 12 months has passed from the date of the taxable supply
- The taxable person holds a certificate from their certified accountant indicating that the unpaid consideration has been written off in their books
- In cases where the total amounts unpaid by the customer exceeds SAR100,000, formal legal procedures have been taken to collect the debts without success and the taxable person can provide evidence of these procedures, such as the issuance of a judicial ruling, evidence of the debtor's bankruptcy or a court order indicating any other formal recovery procedure

A taxable person using the cash accounting basis cannot make any adjustment for nonpayment, as outlined above.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used in the course of carrying on the taxable person's economic activity.

The tax authority may allow designated persons not carrying on an economic activity, or those engaged in designated economic activity, to apply for a refund of VAT paid by them on supplies of goods or services received in Saudi Arabia. The Minister of Finance may issue an order setting out a list of persons considered an eligible person. Foreign governments, international organizations, diplomatic and consular bodies and missions may also be authorized by the Minister of Finance as an eligible person to request the refund of VAT incurred on goods and services in Saudi Arabia.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

At the time of preparing this chapter, the refund mechanisms outlined below are either not yet available or operative.

GCC businesses. Persons who are registered for VAT in another GCC Member State may submit an application for refund of VAT incurred in Saudi Arabia in accordance with the mechanism agreed between the GCC Member States.

Non-GCC businesses. Persons who carry on an economic activity in a country outside of the GCC territory, may apply to be considered as an eligible person and able to request a refund of VAT incurred on supplies of goods or services made to that person in Saudi Arabia. A person will be considered as an eligible person in the following cases:
- If the person is established in a country with a transaction tax system similar to VAT, and that person is registered for that tax in that country
- If the person is established in a country with a transaction tax system similar to VAT and that country allows a similar mechanism to provide refunds of tax to residents of Saudi Arabia who are charged tax in that country

The person wishing to request a refund of VAT shall submit an application to the tax authority to be an eligible person. Notwithstanding that applications for VAT refunds relating to the 2018 calendar year were to be made within six months from the end of that year, the tax authorities have, at the time of writing, not provided any administrative details on the scheme's operations.

Refund of VAT to tourists. The tax authority may authorize one or more providers to carry out a tourist refund scheme facilitating refunds of VAT incurred in Saudi Arabia by tourists. The tax authority shall publish a list of all authorized providers.

Tourists who can prove they are not resident in another GCC Member State, may apply directly to the approved provider for a refund of VAT on goods that are purchased in Saudi Arabia, which will not be used while in Saudi Arabia and that will be exported to a place outside of the GCC territory.

A refund application must be submitted by the tourist to the authorized provider while the tourist is still present in Saudi Arabia.

The authorized provider shall collect evidence of payment of VAT and on the eligibility of goods for refund. It shall also carry out a check of the application before submitting the applications to the tax authority for approval.

In cases where an application in respect of any tourist is approved, the tax authority will make payment of the refund amount to the provider. The provider is obliged to make payment to the tourist but may deduct a percentage of the VAT refund as a commission.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. VAT-registered suppliers must produce invoices documentation revenue and tax information on all taxable sales. Each taxable person must issue or arrange for the issuance of a VAT invoice in respect of either of the following events:

- Any taxable supply of goods or services that it has made to another taxable person or to a non-taxable legal person.
- Any payment made in respect of a supply of goods or services to a taxable person or nontaxable legal person, before that supply takes place.

Generally, invoices for all supplies must contain relevant details in the Arabic language. However, the tax authority can use their discretion to allow a supplier to recover VAT where the invoices are issued in the English language, provided they contain all the necessary requirements for a tax invoice.

Any such VAT invoice must be issued at the latest the 15th day of the month following the month in which the supply took place.

Credit notes. A VAT credit note may be used to reduce the amount of VAT charged on a supply. Alternatively, if both parties agree, the customer can issue a VAT debit note. A valid debit note places the same legal obligations on both parties as a valid VAT credit note and must fulfill the same conditions. A credit or debit note issued must contain a reference to the sequential number of the VAT invoice issued in respect of the initial supply to which the credit or debit note relates. Such credit or debit note shall include the information required to be shown on a VAT invoice.

Electronic invoicing. Businesses in Saudi Arabia are required to maintain electronic books and records and the VAT regulations specify that VAT invoices can be issued in an electronic format. Manually generated paper invoices are also permitted. Taxpayers are required to maintain their VAT records including invoice copies inside Saudi Arabia. The records must either be physical documents inside Saudi Arabia or stored electronically.

Simplified VAT invoices. A simplified VAT invoice may be issued for a supply of goods or services valued at less than SAR1,000. A simplified VAT invoice may not be issued in respect of an internal supply or an export of goods.

A simplified VAT invoice must include the following details:
- The date the invoice is being issued
- The full name, address and tax identification number of the supplier
- The description of the goods or service supplied
- The total consideration payable for the goods or services
- The VAT payable or a statement that the consideration is inclusive of VAT in respect of the supply of the goods or services

In addition, a summary VAT invoice can be used covering all supplies of goods and services for a given month where this is to the one customer. The monthly summary VAT invoice must meet all the requirements of a normal tax invoice. It may include more than one separate supply of goods or services, provided all supplies included on a summary VAT invoice are made by the same supplier and within the same tax period.

Self-billing. A self-billed VAT invoice may be issued by the customer on behalf of a supplier in respect of a taxable supply made to the customer, provided that a prior agreement between the supplier and the customer has been made to this effect. Such agreement must confirm a procedure for the acceptance of each invoice by the supplier of the goods or services and include an undertaking by the supplier not to issue VAT invoices in respect of those supplies.

Proof of exports. VAT is charged at the zero-rate on supplies of exported goods or intra-GCC supplies of goods. However, to qualify as VAT-free, export and intra-GCC supplies must be supported by evidence that the goods have left Saudi Arabia. Acceptable proof includes the following documentation:
- For exports, export documentation issued by the Customs Department or equivalent Department of another GCC Member State, showing the goods being formally cleared for export on behalf of the supplier or customer of that supply, commercial documentation identifying the customer and the place of delivery of the goods, transportation documentation evidencing the delivery to, or receipt of goods outside of the GCC territory.
- For intra-GCC supplies, commercial documentation identifying the customer and the place of delivery of the goods, transportation documentation evidencing the delivery or receipt of goods in the GCC Member State of destination and a customs declaration if applicable.

Foreign currency invoices. Invoices should always base monetary sums in SAR. If the transactions occurred in another currency, the taxpayer should use the daily conversion rate on the date the tax becomes due provided by the Saudi Arabian Monetary Authority (SAMA) in order to convert the sum to SAR.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. There are no specific rules currently in place in Saudi Arabia for invoicing for supplies to nontaxable persons.

Records.

Record retention period. The invoices, books, records and accounting documents required to be maintained by a taxable person, shall be kept for a minimum of six years from the end of the tax period to which they relate, in case of audit.

Records with respect to capital assets must be kept for a minimum of the adjustment period for these capital assets — six years for tangible and intangible assets and 10 years for immovable assets like real estate — plus an additional five years from the date of purchase. In total that is 11-15 years.

Electronic archiving. Taxpayers are required to maintain their VAT records inside Saudi Arabia. The records must either be physical documents inside Saudi Arabia or stored electronically, where the physical server is also inside Saudi Arabia. This also applies to nonresident taxpayers, in whose case their designated tax representative is responsible for records maintenance according to these principles. Multinational companies that centralize their record keeping outside Saudi Arabia, must have a terminal inside Saudi Arabia where their Saudi Arabian-related VAT records are accessible.

Taxpayers should keep all records related to their calculation of VAT. The records will include VAT returns and invoices but potentially other transaction records as well.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. The VAT return of a taxable person must be filed by the taxable person or a person authorized to act on its behalf for each tax period with the tax authority, no later than the last day in the month following the end of the tax period to which the VAT return relates. This deadline applies whether such date is a working day or a non-working day. A VAT return filed validly on behalf of a taxable person, shall be considered that taxable person's self-assessment of VAT due for that tax period.

For taxable person whose annual value of taxable supplies exceeds SAR40 million during the previous 12 months or expected to exceed in the following 12 months, the tax period shall be monthly. For all other taxable persons, the standard tax period shall be three months. If a taxable person's annual value of taxable supplies does not exceed this value, they may submit an application to use a monthly tax period.

A taxable person who has used the monthly tax period for two years may submit an application to use a tax period of 3 months, provided that taxable person's value of annual taxable supplies during the last 12 months does not exceed the SAR40 million value.

The tax authority may with a reasoned decision, obligate a taxable person to change their tax period.

Periodic payments. Payment of VAT due by a taxable person in respect of a tax period must be made at the latest by the last day of the month following the end of that tax period. The person making the payment must provide details of the tax identification number of the taxable person and the tax period or tax periods to which the period relates.

Businesses must pay the tax authority the VAT they owe via a bank transfer to the tax authority's designated account using the SADAD payment system.

The net VAT payable by a taxable person in respect of a tax period is calculated by deducting the total input tax (including input tax on imports) allowed to the taxable person during the tax period from the total amount of output tax payable in respect of all taxable supplies made by the taxable person in Saudi Arabia during the tax period. This calculation method is known as the invoice accounting basis.

When the tax authority receives a payment from a taxable person, it will first be applied to the balance of the tax period to which the payment refers. Any excess balance will be applied to penalties, fines or charges owing from any previous tax period, and the remainder will then be applied to outstanding balances for other tax periods, starting from the oldest period with a balance payable.

The tax authority may offset any VAT credit balance against any other taxes due by the taxable person. The tax authority shall notify the taxable person where an offset of a credit balance is carried out.

If a VAT return is in a refund position, the balance can be carried forward and set off against a future payment or a refund can be requested. For VAT returns in a net refund, this option is to be selected at the time of submitting the VAT return.

Where any relevant VAT amount is expressed in a currency other than SAR, the amount must be converted to SAR using the daily rate prescribed by the Saudi Arabian Monetary Authority on the date that the relevant VAT amount becomes due.

Electronic filing. All VAT returns must be filed electronically in Saudi Arabia. Taxpayers have to login to the GAZT portal (https://gazt.gov.sa/) and submit the VAT return electronically. Supporting documents can be uploaded and amendments can be filed through the portal. Option for paper filing is not available in Saudi Arabia.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Saudi Arabia.

Special schemes.

Secondhand goods. A taxable person may apply to account for VAT payable on a supply of eligible used goods, using the profit margin method. The taxable person may not use this method until it has received notification from the Saudi Arabia tax authority that it is approved. A supply of eligible used goods must meet all of the following criteria:
- The supply is that of used goods situated in Saudi Arabia, and the goods are of a type that the tax authority has specified are eligible for VAT to be calculated using the profit margin method.
- The goods were purchases by the taxable person in a supply made to the taxable person in Saudi Arabia by a nontaxable person, by a taxable person outside of their economic activity, or by a supplier applying the profit margin method in all cases where such a taxable person did not deduct any input tax on their purchase of the goods.
- The taxable person meets the criteria in respect of the purchase and supply of such eligible used goods.

A supply of goods that are situated outside of Saudi Arabia, or that move to or from Saudi Arabia as part of the supply to, or supply by the taxable person, is not a supply of eligible used goods.

VAT invoices issued for supplies of eligible used goods by a taxable person must clearly refer to the taxable person's use of the profit margin method and must not show any amount of VAT charged in respect of any supply.

In cases where a taxable person purchases the eligible used goods from a nontaxable person, the taxable person must issue an invoice in respect of the purchase to that nontaxable person. This invoice must include:
- The name, address and tax identification number of the taxable person
- The name and address of the nontaxable person
- The date of the purchase
- Details of the goods purchases, including any relevant registration number or other details that the tax authority may specify
- The consideration payable in respect of the purchase of the goods

The profit on a supply of eligible used goods is calculated as the consideration for the supply of the eligible used goods by the taxable person, less the consideration payable in respect of the purchase of the eligible used goods. The profit does not include any expenses or other amounts incurred by the taxable person in respect of the supply. In cases where the profit calculated of any supply is zero, or results in a negative amount, the value of that supply by the taxable person is zero.

A taxable person must not deduct input tax in respect of any amount of VAT charged to it or included in the consideration for the purchase of eligible used goods.

At the time of preparing this chapter, details on what would qualify as "eligible used goods" have yet to be made available.

Cash accounting. As an exception to the requirement to use the invoice accounting basis, a taxable person may apply to calculate net VAT due for a tax period on a cash accounting basis provided that the annual value of taxable supplies in the past calendar year does not exceed SAR5 million, and the anticipated value of taxable supplies in the current calendar year is not expected to exceed SAR5 million.

However, a taxable person who has received notification of a VAT violation in the last 12 months is not eligible to use the cash accounting basis.

A taxable person using the cash accounting basis shall only include output tax and input tax in their VAT return in respect of supplies of goods and services for which and to the extent that payment has been made.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Saudi Arabia.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in Saudi Arabia.

Taxpayers have to log in to the GAZT portal (https://gazt.gov.sa/) and submit the VAT return electronically.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. Any taxable person who has not applied for VAT registration within the set time frame, shall be fined SAR10,000.

Penalties for late payment and filings. If a taxpayer recognizes an error in an already submitted VAT return, it has 20 days to notify the tax authority of the error by submitting a correction form. If the error results in a discrepancy of VAT owed under SAR5,000, the correction can be made by adjusting the net VAT in the business's next VAT return. Any taxable person who carries out the following:

- Files an incorrect VAT return to the Saudi Arabia tax authority.
- Amends a VAT returns after filing, or files any document with the tax authority due by them that results in an error in the calculation of the VAT amount resulting in an amount that is less than the VAT due, shall be liable to a fine equal to 50% of the value of the difference between the calculated VAT and the VAT due. The tax authority has the power to remove or reduce the penalty set out above.

Any taxable person that fails to submit a VAT return within the set time frame, shall be liable to a fine of not less than 5% and not more than 25% of the value of the VAT that they would have had to declare.

Any taxable person who fails to pay the VAT due during the set time frame, shall be liable to a fine equal to 5% of the value of the unpaid VAT for each month or part thereof for which the VAT has not been paid.

An assessment issued by the tax authority in cases where a taxable person has failed to file a VAT return, can be withdrawn after the filing of a completed VAT return for that tax period, by the taxable person or a person authorized to act on its behalf.

The Saudi Arabia tax authority may make a VAT assessment of a taxable person irrespective of a VAT return filed by the taxable person. The tax authority may make a new VAT assessment to amend a previous assessment made by it. The tax authority must notify the taxable person of a VAT assessment.

The tax authority may not issue or amend an assessment in respect of any tax period, after a period of five years has passed from the end of the calendar year in which the tax period falls.

In cases where any transaction is being carried out with the intention of breaching the provisions of the VAT law and regulations, or in cases where a person is required to register but fails to do so, the tax authority may issue or amend assessments up to a period of 20 years from the end of the calendar year in which the tax period falls.

Penalties for errors. In cases where a taxable person becomes aware of an error or an incorrect amount in a filed VAT return, or becomes aware of such facts that should have led it to be aware of such an error or incorrect amount, which has resulted in the amount of VAT payable to the tax authority being understated, that person must notify the tax authority within 20 days of becoming aware of the error or incorrect amount, by filing a submission to correct the VAT return.

In cases where a taxable person becomes aware of an error or an incorrect amount in a filed VAT return that has resulted in the amount of VAT payable to the tax authority being overstated, the taxable person may correct that error at any time, by adjusting the VAT in a subsequent VAT return.

Subject to the above, if the understatement of net VAT by the taxable person is less than SAR5,000, the taxable person may correct that error by adjusting the net VAT in its next VAT return.

No correction to any VAT return relating to an overstatement of VAT in respect of a tax period may be made after a period of five years has passed from the end of the calendar year in which the tax period takes place.

A non-registered taxable person shall be liable to a fine not exceeding SAR100,000 for issuing a VAT invoice, without prejudice to any stricter penalty set out by any other law.

A fine not exceeding SAR50,000 shall be imposed on any taxable person that:
- Has not kept VAT invoices, books, records and accounting documents for the set time frame, and the fine shall be per tax period
- Prevents or obstructs the employees of the Saudi Arabia tax authority or any one working for the tax authority from performing their duties
- Violates any other provision of the law or implementing regulations

If the same violation is repeated within three years from the date of issuing the final decision of a previous penalty, the fine, pursuant to that decision imposed on the violator, may be doubled.

The decision issued by the Saudi Arabia tax authority to impose a penalty, may include the publication of its content at the cost of the violator, in a local newspaper issued in the place of the taxpayer's residence. If there is no newspaper in their place of residence, it shall be published in a local newspaper in the nearest area to them or by any other appropriate means, depending on the type of violation, its gravity and its effects, after the decision is deemed final.

Penalties for fraud. Tax evasion shall be punishable by a fine of not less than the amount of VAT due and not more than three times the value of the goods or services that are the subject of the evasion. For example, this could be where a taxpayer submits false documents to evade the payment of the VAT due or to reduce its value, or where a taxpayer moves goods in or out of Saudi Arabia without paying the VAT due.

Where a supplier charges and collects VAT from customers, without the supplier being VAT registered, they shall be fined up to SAR100,000.

K. Transitional provisions

Registration. Notwithstanding the registration rules in the relevant section of this chapter, a person whose value of annual supplies exceeds the mandatory registration threshold but does not exceed SAR1 million is exempted from the requirement to register in Saudi Arabia until 1 January 2019.

However, any application for such registration must be submitted on or before 20 December 2018. This provision does not affect any person's ability to register on a voluntary basis.

Charging VAT. Any supply of goods or services made in respect of a contract that does not anticipate the application of VAT to the supply, may be treated as zero-rated by the supplier until the earlier of the time the contract expires, is renewed or 31 December 2018 provided that:
- The contract was entered into before 30 May 2017.
- The customer is entitled to deduct input tax in respect of the supply of goods or services in full, or is an eligible person entitled to a refund of VAT.
- The customer provides a written certification to the supplier that input tax is able to be deducted or refunded in full on the supply.

Time of supply. If an invoice is issued or payment is made for goods or services prior to the commencement date of the VAT law, in respect of a supply that occurs on or after the commencement date of the VAT law, the supplier of the goods or services shall be considered to make a taxable supply on the date the goods or services are supplied.

In such cases the taxable person shall issue an additional invoice showing the VAT charged on the supply of goods or services, unless this VAT was included on the invoice issued before the commencement date of the VAT law. The date of a supply occurs on or after the commencement of the VAT law, in the following cases:
- If the date when goods are delivered or made available, occurs on or after the commencement date of the VAT law
- If the date when the performance of services is completed, occurs on or after the commencement date of the VAT law

In relation to continuous supplies that are partially made prior to the effective date of the VAT law, or the VAT registration date, and partially made after this date, the VAT shall not be due on the portion made prior to the effective date or the registration.

Implementation of VAT in other GCC Member States. Any GCC Member State that has not introduced VAT following 1 January 2018 will be considered a country outside of the GCC territory.

Electronic services system in all GCC Member States. Prior to the introduction of the electronic services system in all GCC Member States:
- A taxable person who receives goods into Saudi Arabia from another GCC Member State shall be deemed to have imported the goods into Saudi Arabia and VAT will be collected in accordance with the provisions for other imports.
- Supplies of goods involving transport of the goods from Saudi Arabia to another GCC Member State shall be treated as an export of the goods for VAT purposes.

The date of introduction of the electronic services system will be formally announced by the tax authority by way of an order issued by the tax authority.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:

- The supply of goods and services deemed to take place in Serbia performed by taxpayers in Serbia against consideration while performing their regular business activity
- Importation of goods into Serbia, regardless of the status of the importer
- Services purchased by taxpayer in Serbia from service providers whose place of business is outside Serbia, with Serbia regarded as the place of supply (subject to the “reverse-charge” mechanism)

C. Who is liable

Any person (entity or individual) who supplies goods and/or services, and on that account generates revenues in this regard, in the course of the person's independent business activity is liable for VAT. The obligation to register for VAT purposes and to calculate VAT is triggered when total turnover, except for the supply of VAT-exempt services, in the previous 12 months exceeds RSD8 million. A taxpayer whose VAT-able turnover exceeds RSD8 million in the previous 12 months is obliged to submit a registration form for VAT to the tax authorities no later than the end of the first period for submitting a VAT return.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. An option is available for small taxpayers and farmers (annual turnover below RSD8 million) to register for VAT by submitting a registration VAT form to the tax authorities, thereby acquiring the rights and obligations to compute and deduct VAT. The minimum obligation to be VAT registered from voluntarily registering, to account and pay VAT is for two years.

Group registration. Group VAT registration is not allowed in Serbia.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that does not have a registered establishment in Serbia. A foreign entity that supplies goods or services in Serbia is obliged to appoint a tax representative and register as a VAT payer (only one tax representative can be appointed, either an individual or a legal entity). Foreign entities that make taxable supplies of goods and services provided exclusively to Serbian VAT payers, the State, government departments and similar bodies are not obliged to appoint a tax representative and register for VAT purposes, since in such cases the "reverse-charge" mechanism is applied.

A non-established business that does not make any supplies of goods or services in Serbia may claim a VAT refund, under prescribed conditions.

Tax representatives. A tax representative appointed in the Republic of Serbia by a foreign entity that does not have a legal presence in the Republic of Serbia is considered to be a tax debtor for VAT purposes. The tax representative is jointly and severally liable for all liabilities of the foreign entity. In case the foreign entity fails to appoint a tax representative, the recipient of the goods/services will be considered as a tax debtor for VAT purposes. A VAT representative must be resident in Serbia and have been registered for VAT for at least 12 months before applying to be a tax representative. The tax representative should comply with all of the foreign entity's VAT obligations, including accounting for VAT liabilities and dealing with VAT recovery on behalf of the foreign entity.

Reverse charge. According to Serbian tax legislation, the reverse-charge mechanism is applied for services supplied by a non-established business to a business that is established and registered for VAT in Serbia, i.e., a business-to-business (B2B) supply, for which the place of supply is Serbia, if the foreign services provider does not appoint a tax representative in Serbia.

Domestic reverse charge. A domestic reverse charge also applies on the sale of secondary raw materials and services that are directly related to these goods provided by another VAT taxpayer. Secondary raw materials are defined as the by-product of goods that have undergone a manufacturing process, such as metal, wood, plastic, paper and glass. Services that are directly related to secondary raw materials are the services of sorting, cutting, partitioning, cleaning, polishing and pressing of such materials.

In addition, reverse charge applies in some specific situations of construction services and transfer of real estate.

Finally, in accordance with the amended VAT law, reverse charge also applies in some specific situations of electric power and natural gas supplied through transport grids and distribution networks, where the buyer has acquired these supplies for further sale.

Digital economy. Specific rules apply to electronically provided services. In general, the place of supply of electronically provided services by an overseas business to both businesses and private individuals in Serbia is deemed to be the place where the recipient of services has its seat or a permanent branch office, i.e., Serbia.

Additionally, new guidelines are in place in Serbia, defining the criteria and assumptions for determining the place of establishment, permanent establishment, permanent residence or residence of the recipient of telecommunication services, radio and television broadcasting services and services supplied electronically is applicable as of 1 January 2020. If any overseas business has not appointed a VAT representative, VAT with respect to electronically provided services should be calculated by the service recipient by reverse charge. However, if there is a collection agent in Serbia that charges the individuals (or other non-VAT payers) on behalf of an overseas service provider, such collection agent is obliged to calculate and pay VAT.

Note that if permanent and temporary residence of the provider or recipient of the services are not the same place, the place of supply of the service is determined according to the place of temporary residence.

Online marketplaces and platforms. Online markets are regulated by Serbian electronic trade law. Freedom to provide cross-border services is prescribed and the conditions under which it can be restricted. Cross-border service provision is the provision of services in Serbia or the EU, where the service provider is not established or is not resident in the territory of the country where the service is provided. In particular, the freedom to provide cross-border services enables domestic providers registered in Serbia to provide information society services in EU Member States to beneficiaries established/residing in the EU, under the same conditions as EU service providers would. At the same time, it enables EU providers to provide information society services in the Republic of Serbia.

Vouchers. As of 1 January 2020, the concept of a voucher is introduced. A voucher is defined as an instrument for which there is an obligation to be accepted as a fee or part of the fee for the goods/services provided, under condition that the following is stated on the voucher or related document: type of goods/services provided; identity of the supplier of the goods/services; terms of use of the voucher.

The VAT law distinguishes between single-purpose (SPV) and multi-purpose vouchers (MPV). The essence of distinguishing between SPV and MPV is reflected precisely in the tax treatment of issuing and transferring these vouchers. Namely, in the case of transfer of SPV, any transfer made by the VAT taxpayer on its own behalf is considered as a turnover of goods or services to which the voucher relates, while the delivery of goods or services to the voucher holder is not considered as a separate transaction. On the other hand, the transfer of an MPV is not considered as a turnover of goods and services, but the delivery of goods, that is, the provision of services for which a fee is paid by a voucher is regarded as a taxable event.

Registration procedures. A registration form (EVPPDV) is filed by the taxpayer. After conducting the appropriate procedure, the tax authorities will issue a certificate of VAT registration. The VAT registration form EVPPDV is submitted to the tax authorities electronically via the tax authorities portal. A taxpayer whose VAT-able turnover exceeds RSD8 million in the previous 12 months is obliged to submit a registration form for VAT to the tax authorities no later than the end of the first period for submitting a VAT return.

Deregistration. A VAT taxpayer whose VAT-able turnover is below RSD8 million in the previous 12 months may submit a request for VAT de-registration. This request must contain information about the date when the taxpayer ceased to perform VAT activities, and it should be submitted to tax authorities within the calendar month in which said cessation has occurred. Request for deregistration is submitted on a ZBPDV form electronically via the tax authorities portal. Along with the ZBPDV form, the taxpayer must also submit a census list in pdf form, which must contain the following information:

- Capital assets used within the taxpayer's business, that are held on the date of VAT deregistration activity, for which there is an obligation to correct the previous input tax deduction claim
- Facilities/buildings where the taxpayer carries out its taxable activities, which the taxpayer owns on the date of VAT deregistration, for which there is an obligation to correct the previous input tax deduction claim
- Other goods that the taxpayer possesses at the date of VAT deregistration, on the basis of which it was entitled to recover its previous input tax deduction claim, or on the basis of which it is obliged to calculate VAT as a tax debtor
- Investments in facilities subject to the obligation to correct the deduction of the previous input tax deduction claim, on the date of VAT deregistration
- Investments in objects for which there would be an obligation to correct the deduction of the previous input tax deduction claim, had they been completed by the date of VAT deregistration
- Given advance funds on the basis of which it was entitled to deduct the previous input tax deduction claim

After conducting the appropriate procedure, and if the taxpayer's prior obligations arising from VAT are settled, tax authorities issue a certificate of VAT deregistration on a PBPDV form.

The tax authority merely informs the taxpayer that the deregistration process has been successfully completed. Otherwise the tax authorities would have notified the taxpayer electronically about any perceived deficiencies via the tax authorities' portal. This is used for any changes in a taxpayer's status, and as such no additional notifications are required.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 20%
- Reduced rates: 10%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate, the zero rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%
- Exported goods
- International transportation services and related supplies
- Supplies of goods and services relating to aircrafts and ships used in international traffic

Examples of goods and services taxable at 10%
- Supply of medicines and medical care devices (e.g., prosthesis)
- Supply of a wide range of food products

The term "exempt" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt goods and services
- Properties (except for first-time transfer of ownership)
- Land
- Supply of goods for which acquirer did not have the right to deduct input tax
- Rental of flats if used for housing
- Financial services
- Insurance services

- Postal services
- Education services
- Religious services
- Printing and sale of publications
- Public broadcasting services (except those with commercial character)

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The second and every other transfer of ownership of buildings and building units is not subject to VAT but to non-recoverable transfer tax. However, it is possible that the buyer and the seller (as registered VAT taxpayers) instead opt for application of VAT, provided that the buyer is entitled to fully recover VAT deriving from that supply.

E. Time of supply

The time of supply for a supply of goods takes place on the earlier of the following:
- When the supply of goods is performed
- When the payment is made, if the compensation or a part of the compensation has been collected prior to the sales of goods
- Incurrence of the liability to pay a customs debt on the importation of goods, and if there is no such liability, at the moment on which the liability to pay that debt would arise

A supply of goods is considered to be "performed" on the date when the dispatch or transport of the goods starts, or on the date when ownership of the goods is transferred to the purchaser (if transport is not included). The time of supply of imported goods is considered to be the date on which the goods arrive in the Serbian customs territory.

The time of supply for a supply of services takes place on the earlier of the following:
- When the supply of services is performed
- When the payment is made, if the compensation or part of the compensation has been collected prior to the supply of services
- When the invoice is issued — applicable only for the services of transfer of IP rights and granting the right to use IP rights

Services are considered to be "performed" on the date when the provision of the individual service is finished or when the legal basis for the provision of time (limited or unlimited service) is finished. Apart from this, if periodical invoices are issued for the service, the supply of that service is considered finished on the last day of the tax period for which that invoice relates. If the payment is made before the delivery of goods or services, the moment of supply is the moment when the payment is made.

Special rules apply to construction companies.

Deposits and prepayments. There are no special time of supply rules for deposits and prepayments in Serbia. As such, the general time of supply rules apply.

Continuous supplies of services. There are no special time of supply rules for continuous supplies of services in Serbia. As such, the general time of supply rules apply.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules for goods sent on approval for sale or return in Serbia. As such, the general time of supply rules apply.

Reverse-charge services. There are no special time of supply rules for reverse-charge services in Serbia. As such, the general time of supply rules apply.

Leased assets. The Serbian VAT law does not explicitly distinguish between financial and operating leasing. However, there are separate guidelines that set out the conditions that must be fulfilled for a lease to be regarded as a sale of goods. If a lease is regarded as a sale of goods, the time of supply is when the goods are handed over, i.e., the leasing provider issues an invoice containing the total amount of VAT base and the total amount of the calculated VAT. On the other hand, if a lease is regarded as a sale of services, the time of supply is when the leasing provider issues an invoice for each individual lease installment in which the amount of the lease installment and the amount of VAT (calculated on the lease installment) is disclosed.

Imported goods. VAT upon importation is due once the goods are placed in Serbian customs territory, unless the goods are placed in some of the suspension customs regimes.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax, which is VAT charged on goods and services supplied to the person for business purposes. A taxable person generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax, which is VAT charged on supplies made.

Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services supplied in Serbia, VAT paid on imports of goods and VAT applied to reverse-charge services.

Nondeductible input tax. Effectively, any expenditure that is not business related, is nondeductible from an input tax perspective.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- In many cases, expenditures related to acquisition and import of cars, boats, yachts, motorcycles, aircraft, fuel and spare parts, as well as goods and services related to their maintenance and storage
- Expenditure related to business entertainment, including catering, gifts, sporting events, recreation and other costs incurred in favor of business partners, potential business partners, representatives of business partners and other individuals, for which there is no legal obligation
- Expenditure related to meals and transportation of employees or other persons engaged in work, to or from the work

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Accommodation
- Employee expenses
- Car hire
- Business maintenance costs

Partial exemption. If acquired goods or services are used partly for purposes of taxable supplies and partly for VAT-exempt supplies, the taxable person may not deduct input tax totally. This situation is known as "partial exemption." The taxpayer should divide that part of the input tax relating to taxable supplies and that which does not relate to taxable supplies, based on the economic background of supply. If this is not possible, then the calculation of the amount of input tax that may be recovered is made on a pro rata basis by using the following formula:

$$\frac{\text{Amount of deductible input tax x taxable turnover + exports}}{\text{taxable turnover + exports + exempt supplies}}$$

Total turnover, which is the divisor in the above equation, is the turnover executed from 1 January of the current year until the end of the tax period for which the VAT return is submitted.

There is no requirement to notify or obtain approval from tax authorities, in order to carry out the above calculation. There are also no special methods allowed to be used in Serbia for partial exemption, i.e., there are no other ways of calculating the pro rata.

Capital goods. Capital goods are facilities and equipment that are used in a business over several years. Input tax is generally deducted in the VAT year in which the goods are acquired. The amount of input tax recovered depends on the taxpayer's partial exemption recovery position in the VAT year of acquisition. However, the amount of input tax recovered for capital goods must be adjusted if the taxpayer's partial exemption recovery percentage changes in the period of 5 years from the first usage of the equipment, 10 years from the first usage of the facilities and 10 years from finishing the investment in the facilities.

A capital goods adjustment applies for a period represented in the difference between the aforementioned periods (5/10 years) and the period in which the taxpayer had the right to deduct input tax. Exceptionally, the taxpayer does not have an obligation to adjust input tax on the capital goods in the case of disposal of the equipment and facilities that may be considered as a functional unit.

Refunds. If the input tax is higher than the output tax, the taxpayer has a right to obtain a refund or to use this amount as a tax credit. In order to claim the input tax refund, the taxpayer must tick the box in its VAT return or by submitting a subsequent request to the tax authorities for the input tax refund.

The refund should be performed, at the latest, 45 days after the deadline for submission of the tax return for the current period (or 15 days after the deadline for the taxpayers who mostly perform supply of goods abroad). The tax administration is liable to pay interest on delayed tax reimbursements at the same rate of penalty interest that applies to taxpayers for late payments of VAT (this is the annual reference rate of the National Bank of Serbia, plus 10 percentage points).

Pre-registration costs. This occurs in the tax period in which the supply of goods with the right to deduct input tax was performed.

The VAT payer may deduct input tax for the goods purchased within 12 months before starting to carry out VAT-able activities and which are in its possession on said day, under fulfilling prescribed conditions.

Write-off of bad debts. Output tax accounted for on supplies that do not get paid by the recipient (i.e., a bad debt) can be recovered in Serbia. The taxpayer may claim the bad debt relief on the price that has not been paid by the customer. This is only allowed if they have received a final binding court decision on the completed bankruptcy proceedings and/or on the ground of a certified minutes on compulsory settlement with debtors. No other documentation is required.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred in relation to noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Serbia.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Non-established businesses may obtain refunds of VAT incurred in Serbia solely if they do not perform any supply of goods or services in Serbia (to the extent the input tax deduction would also be allowed for resident/established businesses), except for international transportation services, and under the terms of reciprocity. The refund request is submitted annually, and the deadline for submission is 30 June for the purchases made in previous year.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A taxpayer must provide a VAT invoice for all taxable supplies made, including exports. The invoice must comply with the requirements set out in the VAT law.

Credit notes. A VAT credit note may be used to reduce the VAT charged on a supply of goods or services — provided the buyer is a VAT taxpayer and has confirmed that the input tax has been corrected; a debit note may be used to increase the amount of VAT. Tax credit and debit notes must be cross-referenced to the original VAT invoice.

Electronic invoicing. Serbia has no explicit regulatory framework allowing electronic invoicing for VAT purposes. However, there is a Law on Accounting in conjunction with the Law on Electronic Document, Electronic Identification and Trusted Services in Electronic Commerce that makes it possible to issue valid electronic invoices. This is also confirmed by the Serbian Ministry of Finance. As such, in practice, electronic invoicing is optional in Serbia.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified VAT invoicing is not allowed in Serbia. As such, full VAT invoices are required.

Self-billing. In general, the taxpayer who makes taxable sale of goods and services is obligated to issue an invoice. However, under certain conditions, the invoice may also be issued by the recipient of the goods and services. Specifically, self-billing is allowed under the following conditions:
- The customer receiving goods and services is registered for VAT in Serbia and therefore has the right to state VAT on the invoice.
- There is an agreement between the taxpayers issuing and receiving accounting document that the sale of goods and services is to be accounted by the recipient of goods and services.
- The accounting document has been presented to the taxpayer who has delivered the goods or services.
- The taxpayer who has supplies the goods and services is not in VAT debt with the tax authorities.

Proof of exports. An export declaration with confirmation that the goods have left Serbian territory is required.

Foreign currency invoices. A Serbian VAT invoice for domestic supplies must be issued in Serbian dinars (RSD). If an invoice is received in a foreign currency, the amounts must be converted into RSD. The exchange rate used for imports is determined by customs, while the exchange rate for domestic VAT supplies is the middle exchange rate published by the National Bank of Serbia or the agreed exchange rate applicable on the date when the tax obligation takes place.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. There are no special invoicing rules for supplies to nontaxable persons in Serbia. As such, full VAT invoices are required.

Records. VAT payers are obliged to keep the records of received invoices/transactions and records of issued invoices/transactions. Such evidence should contain certain data on invoice or customs declaration number (in case of import), the net fee paid, the applicable VAT rate, the amount of calculated VAT the total amount of turnover during one VAT period and other data, Record retention period. VAT records and all supporting documents based on which the VAT records are maintained (e.g., invoices) should be kept until the expiry of statute of limitation period for determination and collection of VAT (statute of limitation period is 5 years; absolute limitation is 10 years).

Electronic archiving. The Law on Accounting prescribes that accounting documents may be stored on electronic media as original electronic documents or digital copies, provided that the competent authority has access to the information so stored and provided:
- That the information contained in the electronic document or record can be accessed and is suitable for further processing
- That the data is stored in the form in which it was created, sent and received
- That sender, recipient, time and place of sending and receiving can be determined from the saved electronic message
- Technologies and procedures are applied to sufficiently secure against alteration or erasure of data or other reliable means of guaranteeing the invariability of data or messages, as well as backup database at another location

Hence, both the e-invoice and the email message should be achieved on the computer. Also, please note that if the original document is in paper form and then digitized and authenticated in accordance with the law regarding electronic documentation, such document gives the probative power of the original (paper) document, but the authentication of the digitized document does not mean that the original document can be destroyed. In this case, according to the regulations currently in force, the paper original must be kept.

I. Returns and payments

Periodic returns. The tax period is a calendar month or a quarter depending on the total turnover of the particular taxpayer in the last 12 months (if turnover exceeds RSD50 million).

Both monthly and quarterly VAT payers must submit the tax return within 15 days after the expiration of the tax period.

The obligation to file the VAT calculation breakdown along with the VAT return has been initially postponed due to the fact that the first version of VAT calculation breakdown was too burdensome from the perspective of both taxpayers and tax authorities.

Taxpayers are also obliged to file a POPDV form along with the VAT return. The POPDV (Pregled obracuna PDV) is the official name of the form, and in English would be "Form and Content of the Overview of VAT Calculation." The form provides an overview of the VAT calculations that support the VAT return figures. If the VAT payer fails to file the VAT calculation breakdown on the POPDV form along with the VAT return, it will be deemed as if the VAT return was not filed at all.

Periodic payments. The deadline for VAT payment is the same as the deadline for the filing of VAT returns, i.e., within 15 days after the expiration of the tax period. The VAT payable by a taxpayer for a tax period equals the VAT on the total taxable value of supplies made during the tax period minus any input tax allowed as a deduction.

Electronic filing. The submission of a VAT tax return, as well as the submission of an amended VAT return, is completed electronically. The return is submitted on the prescribed PPPDV form.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Serbia.

Special schemes. Serbia applies special VAT treatment to the following schemes:
- Special scheme for work of art, secondhand goods, antique goods
- Special scheme for small enterprises
- Special tour operator's scheme
- Special scheme for investment gold
- Tax obligation after recovered claim

Collection system. The VAT payer whose total turnover in the previous 12 months is not more than RSD50 million may opt for reporting and paying the VAT once the receivables are collected (whereby input tax is also reported once the payables are settled). VAT is also due if the payment is not received within six months after the supply was performed. Certain types of supplies prescribed by the law are exempt of the application of this "collection system."

Cash accounting. Small and medium-sized enterprises with an annual turnover of less than RSD50 million may opt to pay VAT after they have received payment.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Serbia.

Supplementary filings. There are no supplementary fillings required regarding indirect taxes, except for the POPDV form, which is submitted together with the VAT return.

Digital reporting. VAT returns (and other tax returns) must be filled electronically. Taxpayers must use "E-Taxes portal" which is used for collection of electronic services of the Serbian tax administration, enables all taxpayers to submit online tax forms with digital signatures, follow up on the status of sent applications and have insight into the tax card of a taxpayer, with the purpose of faster and simpler fulfillment of obligations toward tax administration. This system meets high security standards that enable safe and uncompromised electronic data transfer.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. If a taxpayer who is a legal entity fails to register for VAT, a fine ranging from RSD100,000 to RSD2RSD2 million will apply. Also, a responsible person within the legal entity will be fined in the amount from RSD10,000 to RSD100,000 in case of relevant offense. If legal entity submits the registration form after the prescribed deadline, penalties of RSD100,000 may be imposed. Also, a responsible person within the legal entity will be fined in the amount of RSD10,000 in case of said offense.

Penalties for late payment and filings. For late payment and filing of VAT return, monetary penalty of RSD100,000 is prescribed for the legal entity and RSD50,000 for the responsible person.

Penalties for errors. If the taxpayer establishes that the tax return, which he submitted to the tax administration, contains an error that results in a wrongly determined amount of tax liability, or omission of another kind, he is obliged to immediately file, and no later than the expiration of the expiration date, a tax return in which the error is or omission is remedied. The taxpayer may amend the tax return no more than twice by filing the amended tax return.

Incorrect VAT reporting may lead to penalty of 30% of the difference between the correct VAT amount that should have been reported and unreported/incorrectly reported VAT amount but RSD200,000 at the minimum for legal entity, and penalty in the range from RSD10,000 to RSD100,000 for responsible person.

Penalties for fraud. Serbian criminal law stipulates that whoever with intent to fully or partially avoid payment of taxes, contributions or other statutory liabilities, gives false information on legal income, objects and other facts relevant to determination of such obligations, or who with same intent, in case of mandatory reporting (filing of returns) fails to report lawful income, objects and other facts relevant to determination of such obligations, or who with same intent conceals information relevant for determination of aforementioned obligations, and the amount of obligation whose payment is avoided exceeds RSD1 million, shall be punished by imprisonment of up to five years and fined.

Please note, that if the mentioned tax liability exceeds RSD5 million the offender shall be punished by imprisonment of 2 to 8 years and fined, and if tax liability exceeds RSD15 million, offenders shall be punished by imprisonment of 3 to 10 years and fined. As the law uses the term "whoever," this also includes the liability of directors and individuals responsible.

In addition, please note that a legal person may be liable for criminal offenses from a separate part of the criminal law and other laws, provided that the conditions for liability of the legal person are fulfilled.

B. Scope of the tax

GST applies to the following transactions:

- Taxable supplies of goods and services in Singapore, made in the course of a business by a taxable person

- Imports of goods into Singapore
- Imports of services into Singapore, if received by partially exempt businesses (with effect from 1 January 2020)
- Imports of digital services into Singapore, by an overseas supplier to a Singapore non-registered person (with effect from 1 January 2020)

C. Who is liable

A taxable person is a person who is registered or is required to be registered for GST.

The GST registration threshold is SGD1 million. For compulsory registration, the threshold applies in the following ways:
- Retrospectively: prior to 1 January 2019, registration was required if, at the end of any quarter, the value of taxable supplies in that quarter and the preceding three quarters exceeds SGD1 million. From 1 January 2019, registration is required if, at the end of any calendar year, the value of taxable supplies in that calendar year exceeds SGD1 million. However, registration is not required if the Comptroller of GST (the Comptroller) is satisfied that the value of taxable supplies in the next calendar year is not expected to exceed SGD1 million.
- Prospectively: registration is required if at any time reasonable grounds exist for believing that the value of taxable supplies in the next 12 months is expected to exceed SGD1 million.

Under the first test above, a business must notify the Comptroller within 30 days after the end of the relevant calendar year. Under the second test, a business must notify the Comptroller within 30 days after the beginning of the relevant period.

Exemption from registration. Where a taxable person makes substantially zero-rated supplies and his collectible output tax is less than the amount of input tax claimable on his purchases in any 12-month period, the taxable person may request exemption from registration. Approval is subject to the Comptroller's discretion.

However, if any material change occurs with respect to the nature of supplies or proportion of zero-rated supplies, the taxable person is required to notify the Comptroller within 30 days after the date of the change or, if no particular date is identifiable as the date of the change, within 30 days after the end of the quarter in which the change occurred.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. If the value of taxable supplies made by a business is below the registration limit, the business may register for GST voluntarily. Approval is subject to the Comptroller's discretion. A business that registers for GST voluntarily must remain registered for at least two years, unless otherwise allowed by the Comptroller.

Under GST law, "taxable supply" is defined as a supply of goods or services made in Singapore other than an exempt supply. Based on this definition, businesses that make wholly exempt supplies would not be eligible for GST registration. However, the GST Act allows a person that is not liable to be registered to apply for voluntary registration if it makes exempt supplies of financial services (as specified in Paragraph 1 of the Fourth Schedule to the GST Act) and the services would have qualified as international services if they were made by a taxable person.

In addition, a person who is not liable for GST registration may also apply for voluntary registration if the person makes or intends to make the following supplies:
- Supplies outside Singapore that would be taxable supplies if made in Singapore
- Supplies that are disregarded for GST purposes under the warehousing regime or Approved Contract Manufacturer and Trader Scheme and that would otherwise be taxable supplies

However, a person in the above scenarios must have a business establishment in Singapore or have his or her usual place of residence in Singapore.

Group registration. Businesses that are under "common control" may apply to register as a GST group. Each member must be individually registered for GST. After group members are registered as a GST group, they are treated as a single taxable person and submit a single GST return. Supplies made between members within the same GST group are disregarded for GST purposes. Group members are jointly and severally liable for all GST liabilities.

A person that is not resident in Singapore or does not have an established place of business in Singapore may be part of the GST group if certain criteria are satisfied. If the GST group includes a person not resident in Singapore or not having an established place of business in Singapore, the representative member must satisfy additional criteria.

If a taxable person carries on more than one business or operates several divisions, the person may apply to the Comptroller to register any of the businesses or divisions separately. Divisional registrations ease the GST administration for such businesses. On approval, each division is given a separate GST registration number and submits its own GST return. Supplies made between divisions within the divisional registration are disregarded for GST purposes.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that has no business or fixed establishment in Singapore. A business that is not established in Singapore must register for GST if it makes taxable supplies exceeding the registration threshold of SGD1 million.

Tax representatives. A non-established business must appoint a local tax representative to register for GST.

Reverse charge. From 1 January 2020, a reverse charge will apply to services procured from overseas suppliers by a GST-registered person who is not entitled to full input tax credit or belongs to a GST group that is not entitled to full input tax credit. Reverse charge will also apply to a non-GST-registered person who procures services from overseas suppliers in excess of SGD1 million in a 12-month period and who will not be entitled to full input tax credit had it been GST-registered. Persons who are not entitled to full input tax credit include persons making significant exempt supplies (for example, financial institutions) or persons significantly engaged in nonbusiness activities (for example, charities).

Domestic reverse charge. With effect from 1 January 2019, a domestic reverse charge has been implemented for the local sale of prescribed goods supplied by a GST-registered supplier to a GST-registered customer for business purposes, if the GST-exclusive value of the sale exceeds SGD10,000 in a single invoice.

The prescribed goods are mobile phones, memory cards and off-the-shelf software. It is termed "customer accounting" because the supplier is responsible for raising the tax invoice (showing the GST chargeable) and the customer is responsible for accounting for the output tax to the IRAS (i.e., onward paying the IRAS the GST charged).

Digital economy. Supplies of goods transacted over the internet does not alter the taxability of the transaction. A sale of digitized goods such as music and software over the internet is regarded as a supply of service.

From 1 January 2020, the supply of digital services by an overseas supplier to a Singapore non-registered person will be subject to GST via the overseas vendor registration (OVR) regime. "Digital services" are defined in the draft legislation to mean any service supplied over the internet or other electronic network and the nature of which renders its supply essentially automated with minimal or no human intervention, and impossible without the use of information technology, and is inclusive of a non-exhaustive list of prescribed services such as digital products, software and software updates. Under the OVR "pay only regime," the overseas supplier will collect and remit GST without the ability to claim any input tax credits, and be subject to simplified GST reporting and documentation requirements. Under certain circumstances, the operator of an electronic marketplace would also be required to charge and account for GST on digital services made through the electronic marketplace to local consumers, on behalf of the overseas suppliers.

Overseas suppliers and overseas electronic marketplace operators whose global turnover exceed SGD1 million and sale of digital services to consumers in Singapore exceed SGD100,000, are liable for registration under the OVR regime. Local non-GST registered electronic marketplace operators are liable for GST registration if the combined values of digital services made on behalf of overseas suppliers through the electronic marketplace and the electronic marketplace's own taxable supplies, have exceeded SGD1 million at the end of any calendar year or is expected to exceed SGD1 million in the next 12 months.

Online marketplaces and platforms. In Singapore the term "electronic marketplace" is used to define a medium that allows the suppliers to make supplies available to customers and is operated by electronic means. This includes marketplaces operated via a website, internet portal, gateway distribution platform or any other types of electronic interface but excludes payment processors or internet service providers. There are no special GST rules for such marketplaces.

Registration procedures. To register for GST in Singapore, businesses need to complete and submit the form GST F1, "Application for GST Registration," together with the required supporting documents to the Comptroller.

For partnership businesses applying for GST registration in Singapore, an additional form, GST F3, "Notification of Liability to be Registered: Details of All Partnerships and Partners," together with form GST F1, must be completed and submitted to the Comptroller.

For an overseas business with no establishment in Singapore and who makes taxable supplies in Singapore, the overseas business must appoint a local tax representative to be responsible for all its GST matters in Singapore such as collecting GST on local taxable supplies made and timely filing of GST returns.

An application for GST registration is typically processed in about 10 working days. In addition, for businesses applying for voluntary GST registration, the sole proprietor, partner, director or trustee of the business is required to complete two e-learning courses, "Registering for GST" and "Overview of GST" and pass the quiz before applying for the voluntary GST registration (subject to exceptions).

Businesses must apply for GST registration online via myTax Portal by the relevant personnel who have been authorized to use the IRAS website's e-services.

Deregistration. A business that ceases operations must cancel its GST registration. A business that must deregister must notify the GST authorities within 30 days after ceasing to make taxable supplies.

A taxable person whose value of taxable supplies is not expected to exceed SGD1 million in the next 12 months may request deregistration from GST.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of GST, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 7%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate, the zero rate or an exemption.

The Singapore government has announced plans to raise the standard rate of GST by two percentage points, from 7% to 9%, sometime in the period from 2021 to 2025. At the time of preparing this chapter, no further announcement or news has been issued by the government.

Examples of goods and services taxed at 0%

- Exports of goods and international services

The term "exempt" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Sale or lease of residential property
- Importation or supply of investment precious metals
- Certain financial transactions

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Singapore.

E. Time of supply

The time when GST becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point."

The time of supply for both goods and services is generally the earliest of the following events:

- The date of issuance of an invoice
  Or
- The date of receipt of payment

However, exceptions to the above time-of-supply rules exist.

Deposits and prepayments. Where the deposits form partial payment (i.e., prepayment) for the goods or services supplied, the abovementioned time-of-supply rules applies. GST has to be charged on the amount of deposit and the transaction has to be accounted for in the accounting period in which the deposit is received.

Where the deposit is refundable and used as a security, the time of supply will not be triggered, and GST is not chargeable at this stage.

Where the supply does not take place (e.g., the customer cancels the order), the GST-registered supplier would issue a credit note to the customer and refund the payment received. However, commercially, the GST-registered supplier may seek compensation or recover miscellaneous costs incurred as a result of the order cancellation.

Continuous supplies of services. No separate time of supply treatment for continuous supplies, except where the GST-registered business issues a tax invoice for an advance period not exceeding 12 months. If the invoice also contains, in addition to the particulars required of a tax invoice, the following particulars:

- The due dates of each payment
- The amount payable (excluding tax) on each due date
  And
- The rate of tax and the corresponding GST chargeable

Then GST shall be accounted for at the earlier of:
- The due date of each periodic payment
  Or
- The date of receipt of each periodic payment

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. Where goods are supplied on approval, or sale or return, or similar terms to the customers, no sale takes place until the customer approves the goods and confirms the sale, although goods have been sent to the customer. In such cases, the time of supply will be treated as taking place at the earliest of the following events:
- The date of issuance of an invoice
- The date of receipt of payment
  Or
- 12 months after the removal of the goods

Reverse-charge services. There are no special time of supply rules for reverse-charge services apart from certain transitional rules for reverse-charge services that span 1 January 2020 (i.e., the effective date of reverse-charge implementation).

Leased assets. Where the leased assets are transacted under "hire purchase agreement," subject to prescribed conditions, the time of supply for the full value of the goods will be triggered at the time the invoice is issued for the first instalment under the "hire purchase agreement." For other supplies of leased assets, no special time of supply rule applies. As such, the general time of supply rules outlined above apply.

Imported goods. The time of supply for imported goods is either the date of importation, or the date on which the goods leave a duty suspension regime or free-trade zone.

F. Recovery of GST by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover the GST incurred on its expenses as input tax if the input tax is incurred in the making of taxable supplies or certain prescribed supplies. Input tax refers to GST incurred on goods and services supplied to the taxable person or goods imported into Singapore by the taxable person that are used or to be used for the purpose of any business carried on or to be carried on by the taxable person. A taxable person generally recovers input tax through its GST returns, by deducting it from output tax, which is GST charged on supplies made.

A valid tax invoice or import permit must be held to support a claim for input tax.

A taxable person is required to repay to the IRAS any input tax claimed for which payment has not been made to the supplier for more than 12 months from the due date of the payment.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use by a taxable person and fringe benefits provided that these are not for the purpose of business). In addition, input tax may not be recovered for some items of business expenditure. The following lists provide some examples of items of expenditure for which input tax is not deductible and examples of items for which input tax is deductible if the expenditure is related to a taxable business use.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Purchases used for nonbusiness purposes
- Purchase, lease, hire, maintenance and running costs of private motor cars
- Medical and insurance expenses for employees
- Recreational club subscriptions

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Advertising

- Purchase of inventory
- Purchase, lease, hire and maintenance of trucks and vans
- Business entertainment
- Attendance at conferences

Partial exemption. Input tax directly related to making exempt supplies is generally not recoverable. If a taxable person makes both exempt and taxable supplies, the person may not recover input tax in full. This situation is referred to as "partial exemption." Zero-rated supplies are treated as taxable supplies for these purposes.

Unless otherwise approved by the Comptroller, partial exemption recovery is calculated in the following two stages:
- The first stage identifies the input tax that may be directly attributable to taxable and to exempt supplies. Input tax directly attributable to taxable supplies is deductible (unless specifically not deductible under the GST Act), while input tax directly related to making exempt supplies is generally not deductible (subject to exceptions).
- The second stage identifies the amount of the remaining input tax (for example, input tax on general business overhead) that may be allocated to taxable supplies and recovered. The calculation may be performed using the ratio of the value of taxable supplies over the value of total supplies (that is, taxable and exempt supplies), or it may be based on a special calculation agreed with the GST Comptroller.

Notwithstanding the above provisions, if the value of a taxable person's exempt supplies for an accounting period does not exceed both the average of SGD40,000 per month and does not exceed 5% of the total value of taxable and exempt supplies made in that accounting period, the input tax relating to the exempt supplies is treated as entirely attributable to taxable supplies. The GST Act provides relief for certain businesses to be treated as fully taxable if they make only certain types of exempt supplies.

Capital goods. Capital goods in Singapore are defined as items of capital expenditure that are used in a business over several years. There are no special input tax recovery rules for capital goods. The normal input tax rules for GST apply (as outlined above).

Refunds. If the amount of input tax recoverable in a GST period exceeds the output tax in the same period, the excess is refundable. Refunds are generally made within three months after the date on which the Comptroller receives the GST return. If a taxable person submits monthly returns, the refund is generally made within one month from the date of receipt.

Interest at the prime lending rate is payable on the amount of any GST refund that is outstanding. Interest is calculated from the date on which the refund is due from the GST authorities.

Pre-registration costs. Subject to certain conditions prescribed under the GST (General) Regulations, businesses may claim the GST incurred on business expenses incurred prior to its effective date of GST registration in its first GST return. Businesses are required to self-review their eligibility for the claims.

Write-off of bad debts. A taxable person can apply for bad debt relief from the comptroller for the return of the output tax previously accounted for and paid if the taxable person satisfies the following conditions:
- Whole or any part of the consideration for the supply as a bad debt in its accounts have been written off.
- A period of 12 months beginning with the date of supply has elapse or the debtor has become insolvent before the period of 12 months has elapsed.
- Reasonable steps have been taken to recover the debts.
- Value of the supply is equal to or less than its open market value.

- In the case of goods, the ownership must have been transferred to the debtor.

Noneconomic activities. Where a taxable person is carrying on both business and nonbusiness activities, only the input tax attributable to the business activities for the making of taxable supplies is claimable. A taxable person carrying on activities that are partly business and partly nonbusiness has to apportion the input tax and only the portion relating to the making of taxable supplies is claimable.

G. Recovery of GST by non-established businesses

Singapore does not refund GST incurred by non-established businesses that are not registered for GST in Singapore. Non-established businesses that are registered for GST may obtain a refund of GST only through the filing of GST returns.

H. Invoicing

GST invoices. A taxable person must issue a GST invoice for standard-rated supplies made to another taxable person within 30 days from the time of supply.

A GST invoice is necessary to support a claim for input tax credit.

Credit notes. A credit note may be used to reduce the GST charged and reclaimed on a supply of goods or services if a valid adjustment has been made. The document must contain generally the same information as a tax invoice, as well as the amount of tax credited, and it must refer to the date and number of the original tax invoice for the supply. If the date and number of the original tax invoice for the supply cannot be traced or identified, the taxable person must be able to satisfy the Comptroller by other means that the person has accounted for tax on the original supply.

Electronic invoicing. It is not mandatory for businesses in Singapore to issue electronic invoices and businesses need not apply to the comptroller for approval to issue tax invoices electronically. If a business decides to issue electronic invoices, the business is required to comply with the following:
- Establish internal controls to ensure that electronic tax invoices issued and transmitted to customers are complete and accurate
- Ensure that the electronic tax invoices issued and transmitted to customers contain all the details required under the GST legislation, where applicable
- Establish internal controls to ensure that electronic tax invoices cannot be manipulated before and during transmission
- Establish internal controls to ensure that all output tax relating to these electronic transmissions will be fully accounted to the Comptroller in the GST returns
- Do not issue tax invoices in paper form to customers that the business has already issued electronic tax invoices. In the event that the business needs to issue tax invoices in paper form, the business must take the necessary measures to prevent double claiming of input tax by its customers (e.g., invalidate either the paper form or electronic form of the tax invoices issued)
- Print and keep a hard copy of the electronic tax invoices issued if the business does not store the tax invoices in electronic media

Simplified GST invoices. A simplified GST invoice may be issued if the amount payable (including GST) does not exceed SGD1,000.

Self-billing. Self-billing is a billing arrangement between a GST-registered supplier and a GST-registered customer, where the customer, instead of the supplier, prepares the supplier's tax invoice/customer accounting tax invoice and sends a copy to the supplier. The customer can adopt self-billing if it satisfies all the conditions as follows:
- It is more convenient for the customer to self-bill because the customer will determine and verify the final value of the goods and services purchased from the suppliers; or self-billing facilitates the customer's internal controls and accounting system given that the supplier will be working with uniform purchase documentation.

- There is a written agreement with each supplier that the supplier will not issue tax invoices and/or customer accounting tax invoices for goods and services purchased by the customer.
- Instead, the supplier will authorize the customer to issue the tax invoices and/or customer accounting tax invoices on its behalf.
- Each supplier agrees in writing that he will notify the customer immediately if the supplier's GST registration is canceled or issued with a new GST registration number.
- The customer will provide the suppliers with the tax invoices and/or customer accounting tax invoices issued under self-billing and the customer will retain copies of them. The customer will keep the tax invoices/customer accounting tax invoices issued under self-billing for a period of not less than five years.
- The customer must keep and maintain an up-to-date list showing the names, addresses and registration numbers of all the suppliers covered by the self-billing arrangement.
- Each tax invoice or customer accounting tax invoice issued under self-billing must contain all the details required on a normal tax invoice and customer accounting tax invoice respectively as well as the following details:
  - "Buyer created tax invoice — Approved by the Comptroller of GST" in place of the words of "Tax invoice"
  - The statement "The tax shown is your output tax due to the Comptroller of GST"

Proof of exports. Exports of goods are zero-rated for GST purposes if they are supported by evidence confirming the departure of the goods from Singapore within 60 days from the time of supply (subject to exceptions). The evidence required includes the following documents:

- Export permit
- Bill of lading or airway bill
- Original invoice

Export documents prescribed by the Comptroller for supporting the zero-rating GST treatment vary according to the export scenario.

Foreign currency invoices. If a tax invoice is issued in a foreign currency, the total amount payable before GST, the GST chargeable, and the total amount payable including GST must be converted to the Singapore dollar equivalent. The foreign currency must be converted to the Singapore dollar equivalent based on the selling rate of exchange prevailing at the time of supply. The Comptroller allows businesses to adopt their in-house exchange rates if the rates satisfy the following conditions:

- They are reflective of the Singapore money market at the relevant date. For example, exchange rates obtained from local banks, Singapore Customs, locally circulated newspapers, reputable news agencies and foreign central banks without exchange controls are acceptable to the IRAS.
- They are the daily buying rates, average of the buying and selling rates, or a good approximation of the daily exchange rates, corresponding to the time of supply.
- They are updated at least once every three months.
- They are consistently used for internal business reporting, accounting and GST purposes.
- They are used consistently for at least one year from the end of the accounting period in which the method was first used.

If the exchange rates used by businesses do not comply with these conditions, it is necessary for the companies involved to seek the Comptroller's approval of the use of an acceptable exchange rate.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. GST invoices are not required to be issued to non-GST registered customers. However, a simplified GST invoice or a receipt must be issued if requested by the customer.

Records. The taxable person shall maintain records relating to its income and business expense records such as tax invoices, agreements, credit notes and import/export documents.

Record retention period. GST-registered businesses are required to maintain records for a period of five years.

Electronic archiving. Records can be kept electronically using a computer and/or accounting software. Physical copies of source documents need not be kept substantiating the business transactions for tax purposes if the source documents are kept electronically. Businesses should ensure that proper internal controls are put in place to ensure the integrity, completeness, accuracy, availability and reliability of the electronic records, including all transactions executed electronically, where applicable.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. Taxable persons generally file GST returns quarterly. However, taxable persons that receive regular refunds of GST may seek approval to file their returns monthly, to ease cash flow. The GST return is generally due one month following the end of the return period.

Periodic payments. The GST payment in full is generally due the same date as the GST return filing deadline, i.e., one month following the end of the return period.

Electronic filing. All registered businesses must file GST returns (and GST amended returns) electronically (i.e., it is mandatory). Submissions must be made via myTax.iras.gov.sg. GST-registered businesses are not required to submit any other documents when the GST return is filed. Under exceptional circumstances (e.g., business is under liquidation), a business may file paper GST return.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Singapore.

Special schemes. The special schemes available in Singapore are as follows:
- Major exporter scheme
- Approved contract manufacturer and trader scheme
- Approved third-party logistics company scheme
- Import GST deferment scheme
- Approved marine customer scheme
- Specialized warehouse scheme

In addition, there is a special scheme for cash accounting, which more information is provided below.

Cash accounting scheme. Small businesses with an annual taxable turnover (excluding GST) of less than SGD1 million may apply for the cash accounting scheme which allows GST to be accounted for upon receipt of payment from the customers. Similarly, the business will claim the GST on its purchases only upon payment to the suppliers. Once approved, the business is on the scheme for three years. The business also remains on the scheme for the three years even if its taxable supplies exceed SGD1 million per annum during the three years.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Singapore.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in Singapore.

Digital reporting. GST returns (and amended returns) must be filed electronically.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. For late registration or failure to register, businesses may be subject to a fine of up to SGD10,000 and a penalty of 10% of the tax due. Penalties may be waived for businesses that come forward to register for GST in a timely manner.

Penalties for late payment and filings. A penalty of 5% of the tax due is assessed for late payment of GST. If the amount remains outstanding after 60 days, an additional penalty is assessed, equal to 2% of the tax due for each month, up to a maximum of 50% of the unpaid tax.

A penalty of SGD200 after the submission due date and an additional SGD200 for each completed month are assessed for the late submission of a GST return, up to a maximum penalty of SGD10,000.

Penalties for errors. A penalty equal to double the amount of tax that has been undercharged in consequence of such incorrect return or information, or that would have been so undercharged if the return and information had been accepted as correct; and be liable to a fine not exceeding SGD5,000 or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three years or to both.

Penalties for fraud. A penalty of three times the amount of tax that has or would have been undercharged in consequence of the offense or that would have been undercharged if the offense had not been detected, and be liable to a fine not exceeding SGD10,000 or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding seven years or both.

B. Scope of the tax

The revenue tax (RT) applies to the following transactions:

- Delivery of goods or services by a local business in the course of its business in Sint Maarten
- Delivery of goods or services in Sint Maarten by a foreign business in the course of its business

C. Who is liable

A business entity or an individual who delivers goods or performs services (engages in taxable activities) in Sint Maarten. In principle, the business performing the services or delivering the goods is liable for RT. The definition of a business also includes a person who manages an asset to obtain revenue from the asset on a permanent basis also qualifies as a business. For example, leasing of real estate located in Sint Maarten became subject to RT, unless an exemption applies. The business realizing the revenue is liable to RT.

Exemption from registration. The RT law in Sint Maarten does not contain any provision for exemption from registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. The RT law in Sint Maarten does not contain any provision for voluntary RT registration, as there is no registration threshold (i.e., all entities that make taxable supplies are obliged to register for RT).

Group registration. RT grouping is not allowed under the RT law. Group entities that are closely connected must register for RT individually.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that does not have a fixed establishment in Sint Maarten. A non-established business may become liable for RT and accordingly become subject to registration if a fixed establishment is deemed present in Sint Maarten. Sint Maarten law does not provide a definition of a fixed establishment.

Special rules apply to E-zone companies, offshore companies and offshore banks.

E-zone companies are not liable for RT on their supplies of services or goods to nonresidents.

Companies and banks that are taxed under the so-called offshore tax regime and hold a foreign-exchange license are generally not liable for RT, because they are excluded from the definition of a business to the extent that these companies conduct offshore activities. The offshore regime is grandfathered up to and including the year 2019.

Tax representatives. A taxpayer may be represented by a third party based on a power of attorney.

Reverse charge. Nonresident businesses who provide services must in principle pay the RT on these services. For this purpose, a non-established business is deemed to have chosen domicile at the office of the Inspectorate of Taxes.

However, a business resident in Sint Maarten for whom the services are performed must pay the RT if the nonresident business does not report and remit RT on such services. The business resident in Sint Maarten could be held liable for RT not remitted by the nonresident entrepreneur. To avoid noncompliance, the nonresident business and the business resident in Sint Maarten can file a joint request to apply the reverse-charge mechanism, and the business resident in Sint Maarten declares and pays RT.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Sint Maarten.

Digital economy. RT legislation does not specifically mention any regulations in connection with the digital economy. Normal RT rules apply to supplies of digital goods and services.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Sint Maarten.

Registration procedures. In general, a taxable entity that begins taxable activities must register with the Inspectorate of Taxes by completing an online registration.

Deregistration. To deregister with the Inspectorate of Taxes, a taxpayer should provide proof of deregistration as issued by the Sint Maarten Chamber of Commerce and some additional documentation. The deregistration with the Inspectorate of Taxes should be completed once all tax filing and payment obligations have been met by the taxpayer.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of RT. In Sint Maarten, the term "revenue" refers to all payments that the business receives for the delivery of goods or services in the course of its business, excluding interest.

The RT standard rate is 5%. The standard rate of RT applies to revenue realized from the delivery of taxable supplies, unless a specific measure provides for an exemption.

The term "exempt supplies" refers to a supply of goods and services that are not liable to RT.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Medical services
- Basic necessities such as bread, milk and sugar
- Water and electricity services
- Transportation services
- Betting and gaming (casino)
- Postal services
- Lease of real estate that is equipped and designated for permanent residence, to individuals who are residents of Sint Maarten
- Revenue realized from supplies of exported goods by an "export business"

To qualify, exports must be supported by evidence that confirms that the goods have been transported outside Sint Maarten. An "export business" is a business that realizes 50% or more of its total revenue by exporting goods outside Sint Maarten.

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Sint Maarten.

E. Time of supply

The time when RT becomes due is called the "time of supply." The basic time of supply is when the payment for a taxable supply is received.

Alternatively, on request, the time of supply occurs on the date on which the invoice is issued. In Sint Maarten, an invoice must be issued within 15 days following the end of the month in which the supply or service is performed.

Deposits and prepayments. There are no special time of supply rules in Sint Maarten regarding deposits and prepayments. As such, the general time of supply rules applies.

Continuous supplies of services. There are no special time of supply rules in Sint Maarten for continuous supplies. As such, the general time of supply rule applies (i.e., the time of invoice). There must be at least one tax point per year.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules in Sint Maarten for supplies of goods sent on approval for sale or return. As such, the general time of supply rules applies.

Reverse-charge services. There are no special time of supply rules in Sint Maarten for reverse-charge services. As such, the general time of supply rules applies, that the tax point arises upon receipt of payment.

Leased assets. There are no special time of supply rules in Sint Maarten for leased assets. As such, the general time of supply rules apply; the tax point arises upon receipt of payment.

Imported goods. There are no special time of supply rules in Sint Maarten for imported goods. As such, the general time of supply rules applies, that the tax point arises upon receipt of payment.

F. Recovery of RT by taxable persons

RT cannot be recovered in Sint Maarten.

G. Recovery of RT by non-established businesses

RT cannot be recovered in Sint Maarten.

H. Invoicing

RT invoices. A business must provide an invoice for all taxable supplies made, including exports.

Credit notes. If a business issues a credit note, the amount mentioned on such credit note can be deducted from the revenue of the period during which the credit note is issued, provided that the amount indicated on the credit note has not yet been received or, if the amount has been received, such amount will be repaid within a month after issuance of the credit note.

Electronic invoicing. The issuance of electronic invoices is optional in Sint Maarten. In this regard, the same invoice requirements apply for electronic invoices as they do for regular invoices.

Simplified RT invoices. This is allowed for certain industries. This includes entrepreneurs active in the catering industry ("horeca"), retailers, as well as lottery vendors, as they are required to use a cash register system. Such suppliers are required to issue receipts to their customers instead of a full RT invoice.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Sint Maarten.

Proof of exports. To qualify for the RT exemption applicable to the export of goods, the business must avail itself of documents that prove the goods have left Sint Maarten. This documentary proof consists of all of the following:
- A copy of the issued invoice with certain specifications
- A proof of payment
- Transport documentation evidencing that the goods have left the levy territory
- A copy of documentation from authorities in the country of destination evidencing that the goods have reached their destination

Foreign currency invoices. RT legislation does not specifically mention any regulations in connection with invoices to be issued in foreign currency. In practice, invoices are often issued in foreign currency, mostly in USD.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. There are no special invoicing rules for supplies to nontaxable persons in Sint Maarten. As such, full RT invoices are required. However, see above for more information about special invoicing rules.

Records. Taxpayers are required to keep records in such a manner that at any time their rights, obligations and all other information relevant for tax purposes are clear and readily available upon request from the tax authorities.

Record retention period. Taxable businesses must retain copies of invoices for 10 years.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is allowed in Sint Maarten.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. RT returns are generally submitted for monthly periods. However, if certain circumstances exist, the tax authorities may allow annual periods upon request of a business, such as a person who manages an asset to obtain revenue from the asset on a permanent basis. Returns must be filed by the 15th day of the month following the end of the reporting period.

Periodic payments. RT due must be paid by the same date as the return submission deadline, i.e., 15th day of the month following the end of the reporting period. The RT due over the period must be remitted with the return.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is not allowed in in Sint Maarten. RT returns must be filed by paper.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Sint Maarten.

Special schemes. Special rules apply to gambling companies, offshore companies and offshore banks and entities that have a foreign exchange license.

Gambling companies. Revenue derived from providing access to casino games is exempt from RT.

E-zones. In principle, e-zone companies are exempt from RT to the extent their revenue is generated through the delivery of goods and services outside of Sint Maarten, or the rendering of services.

Offshore companies and banks. Companies that have a foreign exchange license ("deviezenontheffing") are not considered as an entrepreneur for Sint Maarten RT purposes. As a result, these companies are not subject to RT. In short, a company is eligible for a foreign exchange license if it has foreign shareholders and does not perform any activities in Sint Maarten.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Sint Maarten.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in Sint Maarten.

Digital reporting. No digital reporting requirements apply in Sint Maarten.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. No specific penalty for late registration is imposed. However, if the late registration results in the late payment of RT or the late submission of RT returns, administrative penalties may be imposed.

Penalties for late payment and filings. RT penalties are assessed for the late submission of an RT return or for the late payment of RT, in the following amounts:
- For the late submission of an RT return, the maximum fine is ANG2,500.
- For the late payment of RT, fines ranging from 5% to 15% of the amount of the additional assessment may be imposed, with a maximum fine of ANG10,000.

Penalties for errors. A negligence tax penalty of up to 100% of the additional tax due can be imposed if the deficit is attributable to the intent or gross negligence of the taxpayer.

Penalties for fraud. For a late payment caused by negligence or dishonest conduct, fines ranging from 25% to 100% of the RT payable may be imposed.

The amount of the penalty depends on the facts and circumstances and is determined at the Tax Inspector's discretion, which is subject to objection.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:

- The supply of goods for consideration in the Slovak Republic by a taxable person acting as such
- The supply of services for consideration in the Slovak Republic by a taxable person acting as such

- The acquisition of goods from another EU Member State for consideration (see the chapter on the EU)
- The importation of goods

VAT also applies to the following transactions:
- The supply of goods or services by the VAT payer for its private use or for the private use of its staff, and of goods supplied free of charge or supplied for any purpose other than that of the VAT payer's business, if the input tax is wholly or partly deductible
- The transfer of goods owned by a taxable person from the Slovak Republic to another EU Member State (or vice versa) effected by the taxable person or on the taxable person's account, for the purposes of the taxable person's business (exceptions apply, see the chapter on the EU)
- The use of tangible assets in the possession of the VAT payer for its private use, for the private use of the VAT payer's staff or for any purpose other than that of its business, if the VAT on such assets is wholly or partly deductible

C. Who is liable

A taxable person is any business entity or individual that independently performs any economic activity regardless of the purpose and results of such activity.

The VAT registration threshold for taxable persons that have their seat, place of business or a fixed establishment in the Slovak Republic (Slovak taxable persons) is a turnover of EUR49,790 measured in a maximum period of 12 consecutive calendar months. A Slovak taxable person of which the turnover equals or exceeds the registration threshold must file a VAT registration application by the 20th day of the month following the month in which the threshold is reached.

For the above purposes, turnover includes the value of supplies of goods and services, made in the Slovak Republic (excluding tax). Revenue (income) generated from supplies that are exempt from VAT without input deduction (see Section D) is generally excluded from turnover for the above purposes. However, revenue (income) from insurance and financial services is included if these services are not provided as ancillary to the main taxable supply. Revenue (income) from the occasional sale of tangible property (except inventory) and intangible property is excluded from the definition of taxable turnover.

Exemption from registration. As mentioned above, foreign businesses are not obliged to be registered for VAT purposes in the Slovak Republic if they are represented by an import VAT representative or intra-Community acquisition VAT representative and if they do not perform any other transactions subject to VAT reporting in the Slovak Republic than the listed ones.

Slovak established persons (i.e., persons having their seat, place of business or a fixed establishment in the Slovak Republic) of which turnover in the immediately preceding 12 consecutive calendar months did not exceed EUR49,790 are not obliged to register for VAT in the Slovak Republic.

A taxable person that plans to supply an immovable property, is obliged to register for VAT before making a supply of the immovable property by which it would exceed the mandatory registration threshold, unless the supply is exempt from VAT.

A taxable person not registered for VAT or nontaxable legal person acquiring goods from another EU Member State is not obliged to register for VAT purposes in the Slovak Republic if the value of intra-Community acquisitions (excluding VAT) does not exceed EUR14,000 in a calendar year. On the other hand, if a taxable person not registered for VAT in the Slovak Republic purchases services from other EU Member State subject to the reverse-charge mechanism, with a place of supply in the Slovak Republic, while being considered as a person liable to VAT, it is obliged to register for VAT purposes in the Slovak Republic before the actual purchase of the services. Similarly, the Slovak established person not registered for VAT purposes in the Slovak Republic is obliged to register for VAT before it supplies services to another EU Member State if these have the place of supply in another EU Member State and the purchaser is considered a person liable to pay VAT.

A foreign person supplying goods to a Slovak nontaxable person using distance selling is not obliged to register for VAT purposes in the Slovak Republic if the value of goods supplied (excluding VAT) during the calendar year does not exceed EUR35,000.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. Taxable persons with any value of turnover or acquisitions may register voluntarily. Voluntary VAT registration is administratively complex and subject to detailed scrutiny from the Slovak tax authorities due to the recently introduced antifraud measures.

Group registration. VAT grouping allows financially, economically and organizationally linked domestic taxable persons (including fixed establishments of foreign entities) to form a single taxable person. The VAT group is assigned a single VAT identification number. Supplies between the members of the VAT group are outside the scope of VAT. However, records of such supplies must be maintained for VAT purposes.

The Slovak VAT group registration becomes effective on 1 January if the group VAT registration application is filed by 31 October of the preceding calendar year.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a foreign business that has no seat, place of business, fixed establishment, residence or habitual abode in the Slovak Republic.

A fixed establishment of a foreign entity in the Slovak Republic is a permanent place of business that has both human and technical resources necessary for performing the business activities of the foreign entity. The registration of a branch in the Slovak Commercial Register does not automatically make the branch meet the fixed establishment criteria.

A non-established business must register for VAT in the Slovak Republic before it begins to perform activities that are within the scope of Slovak VAT, except for the importation of goods. Performance of only the following supplies of goods or services in the country does not trigger the registration obligation:
- Certain zero-rated transport services and zero-rated services ancillary to transport services
- Goods and services subject to the reverse charge by the recipient
- Goods transported to other EU Member States if the goods have previously been imported from a non-EU country and the foreign person has appointed an import VAT representative in the Slovak Republic
- Goods transported to other EU Member States or to non-EU countries if the goods have previously been supplied to the Slovak Republic from another EU Member State and the foreign person has appointed an intra-Community acquisition VAT representative in the Slovak Republic
- Goods supplied within a triangular transaction if the non-established business acts as middle party to the transaction (see the chapter on the EU)
- Gas and electricity supplies, if the recipient of the goods is required to pay VAT
- Goods and services subject to a VAT exemption without the right for input tax deduction
- Certain types of goods supplied in certain types of warehouses defined by the VAT Act

The Slovak tax authorities are obligated to register the non-established person as a taxpayer, to issue a certificate on tax registration to that person, and to allocate the tax identification number immediately, no later than within seven days of the date of delivery of the application for tax registration. The non-established person shall become a VAT payer from the date shown in the certificate on tax registration.

There are no procedural fees related to submission of VAT registration application in the Slovak Republic.

VAT registration is carried out at the following designated office:

Tax Authority Bratislava
(Daňový úrad Bratislava)
Ševčenkova 32
P.O. Box 154
850 00 Bratislava
Slovak Republic

The VAT registration threshold for Slovak taxable persons and for Slovak nontaxable legal persons that acquire goods in the Slovak Republic from other EU Member States is EUR14,000 of goods acquired in a calendar year. This type of VAT registration does not confer on the person the status of a VAT payer (that is, no input tax deduction is possible). It only serves the purpose of allowing the person to pay the VAT due on the goods acquired. Registration is required before achieving the threshold.

Tax representatives. The concept of a fiscal representative has not been introduced into the Slovak VAT act. Nevertheless, foreign or Slovak entities can appoint a representative to act on their behalf in front of the Slovak tax authorities in all tax matters, including VAT registration or compliance process, based on a Power of Attorney.

A non-established business may appoint a VAT representative for the purposes of making importations of goods that are to be treated as exempt from VAT on the basis of their subsequent intra-Community supply (that is, a zero-rated resale to another EU Member State) by the non-established business. The non-established business must appoint the representative using a power of attorney. The VAT representative must submit tax returns on a monthly basis as well as monthly EU Sales Lists on behalf of the importers. The importer of goods is not required to register for VAT purposes in the Slovak Republic.

Effective 1 January 2018, the Slovak VAT act contains provisions about a new type of VAT representative. A non-established business may appoint a VAT representative for the purposes of making intra-Community acquisitions of goods in the Slovak Republic (i.e., acquisition of goods from another EU Member State) provided that these goods are intended to be subsequently supplied to another EU Member State or non-EU country or sold distance selling (with the place of supply in another EU Member State). The VAT representative should be appointed using a power of attorney. The VAT representative is obliged to submit VAT returns, VAT ledgers and EU sales lists on behalf of the represented person on a monthly basis. The person represented by the VAT representative is not required to register for VAT purposes in the Slovak Republic provided that it does not perform any transactions subject to VAT reporting in the Slovak Republic (other than those described above). A VAT representative is allowed to represent more than one non-established business.

Reverse-charge services. A Slovak taxable person must apply VAT with respect to services provided from another EU Member State or a non-EU country if the following conditions are satisfied:
• The services are taxable and the place of supply of the services is in the Slovak Republic.
• The supplier is not the person liable to pay the VAT.

VAT is accounted for using the reverse-charge mechanism; the recipient of the service must account for VAT on the service but is also entitled to recover the self-assessed VAT if certain conditions are met.

A Slovak taxable person is generally not required to apply the reverse charge if the service provider is established for VAT purposes in the Slovak Republic (in that case the service provider must account for the Slovak VAT due). However, the reverse charge applies if a taxable person or an entity that is not a taxable person and that is identified for VAT as a result of intra-Community acquisitions receives services supplied by a non-established person from another EU Member State or a non-EU country and if the place of supply is in the Slovak Republic as a result of the recipient's seat, place of business or fixed establishment (if the service is attributable to the fixed establishment). In such circumstances, the reverse charge applies regardless of whether the non-established service provider is registered for VAT in the Slovak Republic. If these services are provided to persons in their nonbusiness capacity or to private individuals, the country where the supplier is established is considered to be the place of supply for the services.

The person liable to VAT with respect to goods (except in the case of distance selling) and services supplied by non-established businesses (from EU and non-EU countries) to taxable persons established in the Slovak Republic is the recipient of the goods and services, regardless of whether the supplier (foreign person) is registered for VAT in the Slovak Republic.

Domestic reverse charge. A Slovak VAT payer that purchases the following goods from another Slovak VAT payer must apply the reverse charge:
- Gold in the form of raw material semi-finished product or investment gold.
- Metal waste and scrap metal.
- Greenhouse gas emission allowances.
- Immovable property where the option to tax was elected by the supplier.
- Supply of goods following the cession of a reservation of ownership to an assignee and the exercising of this right by the assignee.
- Supply of immovable property within enforcement or bankruptcy proceedings.
- Supply of construction services, supply of construction under a contract of work (or similar type of contract) if it falls under Section F (Constructions or construction works) of the Statistical Classification of Products, and the supply of goods with installation or assembly, if the assembly or installation falls under Section F of the Statistical Classification of Products. In cases when it is not clear whether the construction service falls under Section F, but the supplier reasonably concludes that this service should be subject to the local reverse charge and includes the sentence on the invoice that the "application of reverse charge" applies, the customer is liable to pay the VAT due.
- Supply of goods falling within chapters 10 (cereals) and 12 (oil seeds and oleaginous fruits, miscellaneous grains, seeds and fruit, industrial or medicinal plants, straw and fodder) of the Common Customs Tariff, which are not commonly intended for final consumption in an unchanged state. Previously, this provision applied if the tax base in the invoice was EUR5,000 or more; however, with effect from 1 January 2018, the limit of EUR5,000 is abolished. As of 1 January 2019, this provision does not apply to the sales of goods where a simplified tax invoice (cash register bill) is issued.
- Supply of goods falling within chapter 72 (iron and steel) and items 7301 (sheet piling of iron or steel, whether or not drilled, punched or made from assembled elements, welded angles, shapes and sections of iron or steel), 7308 (structures and parts of structures of iron or steel, plates, rods, angles, shapes, sections tubes and the like, prepared for use in structures of iron or steel) and 7314 (cloth, grill, netting and fencing, of iron or steel wire, expanded metal of iron or steel) of the Common Customs Tariff. Previously, this provision applied if the tax base in the invoice was EUR5,000 or more; with effect from 1 January 2018, the limit of EUR5,000 is abolished. As of 1 January 2019, this provision does not apply to the sales of goods where a simplified tax invoice (cash register bill) is issued.
- Supply of mobile phones that are made or adapted for use in conjunction with a licensed network and work on specified frequencies, if the tax base in the invoice is EUR5,000 or more.
- Supply of integrated circuits such as microprocessors and central processing units in a state prior to integration into end-user products, if the tax base in the invoice is EUR5,000 or more.

Digital economy. The place of supply of telecommunications, broadcasting and electronically provided services to nontaxable persons (B2C) is where the customer is established. From 1

January 2019, a threshold of EUR10,000 was introduced for EU-established suppliers, below which these services remain subject to VAT in the Member State of the supplier (unless the supplier opts to apply the “main” rule, i.e., where the customer is established).

Mini One-Stop Shop. The place of supply of broadcasting, telecommunications and electronic services rendered to nontaxable customers by providers established in the EU is where the customer is estab-lished, has his permanent address or usually resides.

In this regard, the “One-Stop Shop” (which allows non-EU taxable persons supplying electronic services to consumers in the EU to register for VAT in one EU country, regardless of the number of other EU countries to which they are supplying the services) was extended also to the EU suppliers, except if they are established in the Member State of the place of supply.

If a VAT payer applies for the Mini One-Stop Shop (MOSS), the VAT return filing and VAT payment in respect of the local countries will be made in one Member State, but the VAT payer will the place of supply.

Online marketplaces and platforms. In general, there are no specific VAT rules for sale of goods via online platforms in Slovakia.

The suppliers selling goods cross-border have to take the threshold for distance sale into consideration, which is EUR35,000 for Slovakia. If the cross-border distance sales exceed the registration threshold in Slovakia, the supplier has to register in Slovakia for VAT purposes and issue an invoice according to Slovak legislation.

For domestic online platforms (no distance sales), general rules apply for the sale of goods. If the goods are sold to private customer, there is no need to issue an invoice.

Vouchers. In accordance with the Council Directive (EU) 2016/1065, Slovakia has introduced the rules for the application of VAT on vouchers. The rules were introduced in Slovakia with effect from 1 October 2019.

A voucher is defined as an instrument in physical or electronic form and is associated with the entitlement of the holder to receive specific goods or services and the commitment of the supplier to accept such voucher as consideration for the delivered goods or services.

For the VAT purposes, it is necessary to distinguish between so-called “single-purpose” (SPV) and “multi-purpose” (MPV) vouchers.

For SPV, the place of supply of goods or services and the VAT rate are known already at the time of issuance. For MPV, at least one of these facts is unknown.

From 1 October 2019, the sale of a SPV by a VAT payer, acting in their own name, will be regarded as a supply of goods or services against consideration. The supplier charges VAT upon sale of the SPV, while the VAT will not be charged upon the actual supply of goods/services when SPV is redeemed.

On the contrary, the sale of MPV will not be subject to VAT. Only the provision of goods or service itself in return for a MPV will be subject to taxation.

Registration procedures. The following documents should be submitted to Tax Authority Bratislava by the non-established person for the purposes of VAT registration:
• A completed application for VAT registration (submitted electronically).
• An original extract from the Commercial Register or a notarized copy thereof.
• An official translation of the extract from the Commercial Register into the Slovak language (not required for the Czech language).

- If the person has appointed a representative, a power of attorney that does not need to be notarized but which if executed in any language other than the Slovak or Czech languages, must be accompanied by official translation thereof.

The documents may be delivered by the applicant for registration in the form of attachments to the application for registration or they may be submitted for review directly at the Tax Authority Bratislava. The documents may be delivered in hardcopy. In a case where the foreign entity appoints a tax advisor or advocate for this purpose, the documents must be submitted electronically (tax advisors and tax advocates are obliged to communicate with Slovak tax authorities only by electronic means).

Deregistration. VAT payers that cease to conduct economic activities (i.e., activities subject to VAT in the Slovak Republic, as well as in another EU Member State) are obliged to file an application to deregister. The Slovak tax authorities may deregister a VAT-registered person in response to an application or at their own discretion if the VAT-registered person repeatedly fails to comply with administrative duties (e.g., filing of VAT returns, VAT ledgers, payment of VAT or tax audit-related duties).

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 20%
- Reduced rates: 10%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate, the zero rate or an exemption.

If supplies are classified as zero-rated, no VAT is due, but the supplier may deduct related input tax.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Exported goods
- Intra-Community supplies of goods
- Services related to the export of goods
- International transport of persons
- Financial and insurance services provided to a customer that is not established in the EU

Examples of goods and services taxable at 10%

- Selected pharmaceutical products and medical aids
- Specific newspapers, periodicals, books, brochures and leaflets, and books for children
- Certain food products such as meat, fish, milk and bread, certain types of vegetables
- Accommodation services
- Certain goods and services related to social welfare

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Postal services
- Health care (except for supplies of pharmaceuticals and health aids)
- Public radio and television broadcasting (except for broadcasting of commercials and sponsored programs)
- Education

- Financial services
- Services related to sports and physical education
- Cultural services
- Social welfare
- Lotteries and similar games
- Transfer and lease of real estate (options to tax available for both except of residential real estate)
- Insurance and reinsurance services (including public social and health insurance)
- Services provided by a legal person to its members (if certain conditions are met)

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The transfer of immovable property, wholly or partly, carried out five years after the date of the first official approval of use or five years after the first day of the actual usage, or five years after major reconstruction with or without the change in the purpose of using that property is VAT exempt. The VAT payer may opt to tax the transfer of the immovable property, except for the transfer of residential real estate.

Similarly, the lease of immovable property is VAT exempt. Again, the VAT payer that leases non-residential real estate to a taxable person may opt to tax the lease.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "chargeability of tax" or "tax point." In the Slovak Republic, VAT generally becomes chargeable on the date on which goods are supplied or services are performed.

Under the general rule, the tax point for goods or services is the date of the supply of the goods or services, or the date of the receipt of the payment, whichever is earlier. The date of supply of goods is the date of acquisition of the right to dispose of the goods as owner.

Deposits and prepayments. There are no specific VAT rules relating to deposits and potential prepayments in the Slovak Republic.

Continuous supplies of goods and services. If goods or services are supplied in parts or repeatedly, the goods or services are considered to be supplied at the latest on the last day of the period to which the payment for the goods or services relates.

If a payment for partial or repeated supplies of goods or services is agreed to for a period exceeding 12 calendar months, the tax point arises on the last day of the 12th month, until the supply of goods or services is finished.

A special rule applies if the following circumstances exist:

- A service is supplied partially or repeatedly during a period exceeding 12 calendar months and the agreed payment is for a period exceeding 12 calendar months.
- The service is supplied to a taxable person acting as such.
- The place of supply is in the Slovak Republic.
- The person required to pay VAT is the recipient of the service.

In the circumstances mentioned above, the tax point arises on 31 December of each calendar year, until the supply of such service is finished.

Specific rules also apply to partial or repeated intra-Community supplies of goods, partial or repeated supplies of gas, water, heat and electricity that are supplied along with leases of immovable property, and of electronic communication networks and electronic communication services.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. The Slovak VAT act does not contain any specific provisions related to goods sent on approval for sale or return. General conditions should apply in such a case.

Reverse-charge services. For reverse-charge services received by a Slovak taxable person, VAT becomes due on the date of supply of the service.

Leased assets. The delivery of goods based on a lease agreement under which ownership to the subject matter of the lease agreement is acquired, at the latest, upon the payment of the last installment is considered a supply of goods.

A lease transaction with purchase option agreed generally remains to be regarded as a supply of services.

The lease of real estate or its part is VAT exempt, except for:
- The provision of accommodation services (if for less than three months)
- Lease of land for the purpose of parking of vehicles
- Lease of permanently installed equipment and machinery
- Lease of safes

A VAT payer that leases a nonresidential real estate to a taxable person may opt to tax the lease.

Imported goods. The tax point for imported goods is when the customs authority accepts the customs declaration for the release of the goods into a customs regime triggering the payment of VAT. If this is not applicable, the tax point is when the liability to customs duties (including import VAT) arises in a different manner.

Intra-Community acquisitions. For intra-Community acquisitions, the tax point is either the date of the issuance of the invoice or the 15th day of the calendar month following the month in which the goods are acquired, whichever is earlier.

Intra-Community supplies of goods. The tax point for goods that are supplied to another EU Member State and that meet the conditions for exemption from VAT in the Slovak Republic is either the date of the issuance of the invoice or the 15th day of the calendar month following the month in which the goods are supplied, whichever is earlier.

Immovable property. The tax point for a transfer of real estate is the date on which the transfer of the property is registered in the Real Estate Cadastre or the date on which the property is made available for use to the purchaser, whichever is earlier. The tax point for the supply of a newly constructed building is the date of the handing over of the building.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A VAT payer is entitled to recover input tax, which is the VAT charged on goods and services received if it is directly attributable to the taxable person's own supplies for which a deduction entitlement exists (mostly taxable and zero-rated supplies).

Input tax may generally be recovered by deducting it from output tax, which is VAT due on the supplies made. A VAT payer is entitled to deduct input tax if the tax point for the supply in question has arisen with respect to the output and the VAT payer holds a valid VAT invoice or import document. The VAT payer may deduct input tax in any VAT period after the VAT period in which the right to deduct arose up to the end of the calendar year (the financial year, if applicable). The VAT payer must possess the required documents (invoice, import declaration and other documents) by the time of the deadline for submission of the VAT return for that period. If the documents are not available until the end of the calendar (financial) year, the deduction must be made for the period in which the documents are received.

VAT payers submitting a supplementary VAT return due to belated receipts of invoices for intra-Community acquisitions of goods are entitled to deduct the respective VAT in this supplementary return if they have the related invoice at their disposal as of the filing date.

VAT payers are required to correct the amount of deducted VAT within 30 days from the date the VAT base was to be corrected by the supplier, even if the corrective invoice is absent.

For supplies of reverse-charge services and for goods supplied with assembly and installation by a foreign taxable person, it is not necessary for the Slovak recipient to hold an invoice, but inclusion of VAT in the recipient's VAT records is a precondition for deducting.

For imported goods, VAT must have been paid to the customs authority or included in the VAT records to be eligible for deduction.

Non-established taxable persons registered for VAT in the Slovak Republic cannot claim input tax deduction on a VAT return if they only perform reverse-charge supplies in the Slovak Republic (even local reverse-charge supplies). Instead, a VAT refund procedure needs to be followed. This does not apply if supplies such as exports and intra-Community supplies of goods are performed, in which case the deduction of Slovak input tax incurred can be made through the regular VAT return filed.

A taxpayer is entitled to interest on excess VAT if the payment of excess VAT was later than six months after the deadline for its usual refund. The interest is calculated as a percentage of the final amount of excess VAT (as confirmed by the tax inspectors), for the period starting six months after the deadline for its usual refund, until its actual refund. The interest rate applicable should equal twice the European Central Bank rate, valid on the first day of the calendar year for which the interest is calculated, with a minimum applicable annual rate of 1.5%.

Nondeductible input tax. A VAT payer may not recover the following input tax:
- VAT that relates to activities that are not business activities
- VAT that relates to transactions regarded as VAT-exempt supplies
- VAT incurred on items of expenditure for which recovery is specifically excluded (for example, input tax related to meals and entertainment)

The following lists provide some examples of items of expenditure for which input tax is not deductible and examples of items for which input tax is deductible if the expenditure is related to a taxable business use.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible
- Business entertainment
- The part of input tax on the acquisition of goods and services that represents its nonbusiness use, if the VAT payer elects not to apply output tax on this nonbusiness use

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)
- Purchase, lease or hire of vans and trucks
- Taxis
- Hotel accommodation
- Fuel used for business purposes
- Business use of mobile telephones
- Business gifts that are worth less than EUR17 each (not taxed on output)
- Commercial samples of goods for advertising purposes (not taxed on output)
- Parking

Partial exemption. Input tax on goods that are used for both business and for nonbusiness purposes is generally deductible. However, output tax must be paid on the nonbusiness use.

For fixed tangible assets intended to be used for both business and nonbusiness purposes, the VAT payer may opt not to deduct a portion of the input tax that reflects the nonbusiness use of these assets. As a result, the use of these assets for nonbusiness purposes is not subject to VAT.

The above option applies only to movable tangible assets with an acquisition price exceeding EUR3,319.39 (without VAT) and a useful life over one year. For immovable assets, the taxpayer needs to determine the proportion of use of the immovable asset for its business and nonbusiness purposes and deduct the input tax only to the extent of the business use (for further details, see Capital goods).

For services received by a taxable person that are intended to be used for both business and nonbusiness purposes, the VAT payer may not deduct VAT relating to nonbusiness use. However, if the VAT payer does not expect to use the services for nonbusiness purposes, it may deduct input tax relating to the entire consideration for the services. If the services are subsequently used for nonbusiness purposes, the VAT payer must account for output tax (VAT on sales) on the portion of the consideration that is attributable to the nonbusiness use of the services.

For goods and services that are partially used for the provision of exempt supplies, only the portion of VAT related to taxable supplies may be deducted. For these purposes, taxable supplies include zero-rated supplies, and supplies that are specifically excluded from the application of VAT and that are entitled to input tax deduction.

The deductible proportion is calculated based on the total revenue (or income) generated from taxable supplies made (those for which the input tax is deductible), divided by the total revenue (or income) from all supplies made. All values are exclusive of VAT. Because the terms "revenue" and "income" are not defined for VAT purposes, they should probably be understood in terms of their definitions for accounting purposes. "Revenue" is the term used for double-entry bookkeeping, while "income" is the term used for single-entry bookkeeping.

The following taxable supplies are excluded from the calculation of the deductible proportion:
- Incidental financial services exempt from VAT
- The sale of an enterprise or part of an enterprise (transfer of going concern)
- The sale of business assets (capital goods) excluding inventory
- Incidental real estate transactions (transfer or leasing of immovable property)

The deductible proportion is calculated for the entire calendar (financial) year and is rounded up to the nearest whole percentage. During the current calendar (financial) year, the deductible proportion calculated for the preceding year is used. If no percentage exists for the preceding year, the VAT payer may use a percentage agreed to with the tax authorities.

Capital goods. With respect to the purchase of immovable property to be used for both business and nonbusiness purposes, the input tax is deductible only to the extent that the property is used for business purposes. If the nonbusiness use of the immovable property changes over a period of 20 years, a special Capital Goods Adjustment Scheme applies. This rule applies to immovable property acquired on or after 1 January 2011.

The previously valid 10-year period for the adjustment of deducted input tax relating to immovable property is extended to 20 years. Under transitional provisions, the 10-year period applies to immovable property that was subject to the adjustment of input tax deduction in the period from 2004 to 2010, regardless of when the property was acquired. Consequently, the extended 20-year period also applies to immovable property acquired before 1 January 2011 that was not subject to adjustment of the VAT deduction in the period from 2004 to 2010. Taxpayers must retain documentation relating to affected immovable property for a period of 20 years.

Adjustments of deducted input tax relating to capital goods must also be preserved by the legal successor of the entity dissolved without liquidation, such as in cases of reorganizations such as mergers or de-mergers.

Effective 1 January 2019 deducted input tax relating to movable capital goods has to be adjusted if the proportion between business and nonbusiness use changes over a period of five years after the capital goods were acquired.

Refunds. If the amount of deductible VAT in a VAT period exceeds the amount of output tax in that tax period, the VAT payer may offset the difference against a VAT liability in the following tax period. The remaining difference between the amount of deductible VAT and output tax that cannot be offset is refunded to a VAT payer by the tax authorities within 30 days after the date of the submission of a VAT return for the following tax period.

VAT payers may request the refund of excess VAT in a shorter period, which is 30 days after the deadline for submission of the VAT return for the VAT period in which excess VAT was reported, if the following conditions are met:
- The VAT payer is a monthly VAT payer.
- The VAT payer was registered for VAT purposes for at least 12 months before the month in which the excess VAT was reported.
- The VAT payer is not liable for underpayments exceeding EUR1,000 of other taxes, customs duties and mandatory social and health insurance over the six-month period preceding the month in which the excess VAT was reported.

If in the period for refund of excess VAT, the tax authorities deliver an appeal (letter) prompting the removal of defects in the submitted VAT return, the period for refund of excess VAT is interrupted from the day of delivery until the day on which the defects are removed. If the taxpayer generates or increases an amount of excess VAT through the filing of a supplementary VAT return, the tax authorities must refund the respective amount within 30 days after the submission of the supplementary VAT return.

If the tax authorities carry out a tax audit to verify the VAT payer's entitlement to a refund, the refund must be repaid within 10 days after the tax authorities complete the tax audit.

If the excess VAT is refunded in a shorter period (mentioned above) based on a VAT return containing incorrect data, the tax authorities impose a penalty amounting up to 1.3% per month of the excess VAT refunded.

Pre-registration costs. The VAT payer may deduct tax related to goods and to services purchased before the day the person became the VAT payer if such purchases were not included in tax expenses in calendar years preceding the calendar year in which the person became a VAT payer, except for stock. As regards property acquired before the VAT registration, the VAT payer will decrease VAT for property that is depreciated by a proportional part of the VAT corresponding to the depreciation. The VAT payer shall not be entitled to deduct the VAT if the goods and services are not used for the supplies of goods and services as the VAT payer.

Write-off of bad debts. Output tax accounted for on supplies that do not get paid by the recipient (i.e., bad debts) cannot be recovered in the Slovak Republic.

Noneconomic activities. A taxable person shall be any person who independently carries out any economic activity, whatever the purpose or results of that activity.

According to the Slovak VAT act an economic activity shall mean any activity, from which an income is accrued, and which includes the activities of producers, traders and persons supplying services including mining, construction and agricultural activities, activities carried on as a freelance occupation, intellectual creative activity and sporting activity. In addition, an economic activity is also considered to be the use of tangible property and intangible property with a view to obtaining income from the property; if the property is the common property of spouses, its use with a view to obtaining income is considered to be an economic activity in equal proportion of each spouse, unless the spouses decide otherwise.

The execution of activities based on an employment relationship, or other similar relationship, when an individual is obliged to adhere to instructions or orders creating a subordination and super ordination from the point of view of conditions of the executed activities and conditions of remuneration, is not considered an independent execution of activities.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

The Slovak Republic refunds VAT incurred by businesses that are neither established nor registered for VAT there.

EU businesses. In the Slovak Republic, the conditions for refunds are similar for EU businesses and non-EU applicants, except for the electronic request for refund and electronic communication applicable to EU business applicants.

The rules for VAT refunds in the Slovak Republic are in compliance with the general VAT refund rules adopted by Council Directive 2008/9/EC, which is part of the 2008 VAT package adopted by the European Commission.

The refund application for EU applicants must comply with the rules of Council Directive 2008/9/EC. Under the directive, applicants must file the electronic request in the EU Member State in which they have their seat, place of business, fixed establishment, residence or habitual abode.

Non-EU businesses. Non-EU business applicants must file the refund request using the form issued by the Slovak tax authorities.

To claim a refund, a foreign business must meet all of the following requirements:

- It is a registered VAT payer abroad or a registered payer of a similar general consumption tax.
- The foreign entity does not have a registered office, fixed establishment or place of business in the Slovak Republic (for non-EU applicants, the territory of the EU is applicable), during the period for which the VAT refund is requested.
- The input tax is recoverable under Slovak law.
- During the period for which the VAT refund is requested, the foreign entity neither sold goods nor provided services in the Slovak Republic, other than the following:
  - Transportation and auxiliary services related to export and import of goods
  - Services and goods with their assembly and installation, if the Slovak customer was the person liable to pay tax (reverse charge)
  - Electricity and gas if the Slovak customer was the person liable to pay tax
  - Goods supplied to other EU Member States if such goods were imported in the Slovak Republic as VAT-exempt and if the foreign entity was represented by an import VAT representative (see Section C)
  - Goods supplied within a triangular transaction if the foreign business acts as the middle party in the transaction (see the chapter on the EU)

The Slovak tax authorities reject the application for a refund if the non-EU country in which the applicant's foreign business is established does not provide refunds to Slovak payers of VAT or similar consumption tax (reciprocity).

The non-EU business application must be submitted using the form issued by the Slovak tax authorities, completed in the Slovak or English language.

Requests of non-EU applicants must be filed with Tax Authorities Bratislava by 30 June of the year following the year in which the VAT was incurred, or the import VAT was paid. The request must be filed together with the following documents:

- The original invoices or import documents (for imports, documents evidencing payment of the tax must also be included)
- A certificate of status issued by the applicant's local tax authorities confirming that the applicant is registered for VAT in the country where it is established or has its permanent address

An annual claim may be filed if the total VAT incurred exceeds EUR50 for the calendar year. A foreign person from a third country may also file a VAT refund application for half a calendar year if the total VAT requested exceeds EUR1,000. If such a request was filed for the first half-year, the amount of VAT requested in the second half should exceed EUR50. The tax authorities must decide on the application for the refund within six months after the date the request is filed.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A registered VAT payer must issue a VAT invoice for:

- Supply of goods or services having a place of supply in the Slovak Republic rendered to a taxable person or to a nontaxable legal person
- Supply of goods or services with a place of supply in another EU Member State (if a person liable to VAT is the recipient), even if the supply is exempt from VAT
- Supply of goods or services to a taxable person with a place of supply in a non-EU country
- Supply of goods in the form of distance selling with a place of supply in the Slovak Republic
- Intra-Community supply of goods
- Advance payments for goods and services

Taxable persons (non-VAT payers) providing services with a place of supply outside of the Slovak Republic are obliged to issue VAT invoices at the moment of the service being completed or a down payment for that service being received.

The obligation to issue a VAT invoice does not apply to supplies of goods and services with a place of supply in the Slovak Republic that are exempt from VAT with no right of VAT deduction, and to supplies of insurance and financial services with a place of supply in EU countries other than the Slovak Republic or in non-EU countries.

The invoice must be drawn no later than 15 days after the date the tax was chargeable, usually (1) the date of supply of goods or services or (2) the date on which the advance payment is received, or no later than 15 days from the end of the calendar month in which the payment was received if it concerns the provision of reverse-charged service.

For intra-Community supplies and services supplied with a place of supply outside the Slovak Republic, the invoice must be drawn no later than 15 days from the end of the month in which the supply of goods or services took place. In cases of corrective invoices, the deadline of 15 days counts from the end of the calendar month in which the facts giving rise to the correction occurred.

An invoice issued by a member of a VAT group must mention identification details of the group member and the VAT number of the group.

It is necessary to hold a VAT invoice to support a claim for input tax deduction (with the exception of reverse-charge services received from abroad and purchases from abroad of reverse-charge goods supplied with installation or assembly).

Credit notes. If the tax base is corrected as a result of a decrease or increase in the price, the cancellation of all or part of a supply or the return of the goods, the VAT payer must issue a corrective invoice, credit note, or debit note. Each document or notification correcting the original invoice should contain a reference to the serial number of the original invoice and the data subject to change. Such a document or notification is considered to be a simplified VAT invoice.

Electronic invoicing. The law also allows the sending or accessing of invoices electronically, subject to approval by the recipient of services/goods. An electronic format is not specifically determined, but any method chosen needs to provide for authenticity, legibility and integrity of the document content from its issuing until the end of the obligatory archiving period. Actual payment of electronically issued invoice is interpreted as approval to its electronic issuance.

The electronic invoice must contain all the compulsory items as the paper invoice. Where electronic invoices are sent or made available to the same recipient in a batch, the details common to the individual invoices may be mentioned only once where, for each invoice, all the information is accessible.

Simplified VAT invoices. A document produced by an electronic cash register for goods and services can serve as a simplified invoice only if the price of the goods or services including VAT does not exceed EUR1,000 for cash payments and EUR1,600 for noncash payments. Documentation does not need to be produced by the electronic cash register for supplies of goods or services worth EUR100 and less. A simplified invoice does not need to include the unit price and information on the recipient.

Self-billing. Taxpayers may arrange for invoices to be issued by the customer (self-billing) or another person (third-party billing); such invoices must be issued in the name of and on behalf of the VAT payer supplying the goods or services.

Self-billing is subject to a written agreement on the issuance of invoices between the VAT payer and the customer. An agreement needs to set out the conditions to be fulfilled for the supplier to accept invoices issued by the customer. The VAT payer who supplies the goods or services remains responsible for the accuracy of the information on the invoices and the timeliness of their issuance, even if an invoice is issued by a customer or via another person.

In the case of intra-Community transactions, the invoice issued by the customer must be issued according to the invoicing rules valid in the Member State of the place of supply.

Proof of exports and intra-Community supplies. Goods exported outside the EU or supplied to a taxable person in another EU Member State are zero-rated for a VAT payer that sells upon meeting the conditions specified in the VAT legislation. A VAT payer that exports goods or supplies goods to other EU Member States is generally entitled to recover the related input tax.

To qualify as zero-rated, exports must be supported by evidence confirming that goods were exported abroad. A VAT payer must substantiate the export of the goods with the following:
- A certified electronic customs declaration for the release of the goods into the customs regime of export, with the VAT payer required to hold the electronic customs declaration before the sixth month lapses after the month in which the exemption is claimed
- A transport document

To qualify for zero-rating, an intra-Community supply of goods must be supported by the following documents:
- Copy of the invoice
- Proof of dispatch if the transport is arranged by the supplier or the customer through one of the authorized postal service companies, or by a copy of a transportation document in which the receipt of goods in another EU Member State is confirmed by the customer, or by a person empowered by the customer where the transport is arranged through a third party or, if such documentation unavailable, receipt of goods proven by alternative evidence
- If transport is arranged by the supplier or customer using their own means of transport, the supplier's documentation confirming receipt of the goods by the customer or by a person empowered by the customer, which has to include:
  - Identification of the customer, description of the supplied goods and their amount, place and date when the goods were taken over by the customer (if transport performed by the supplier); place and date when transport was finished (if transport performed by the customer)
  - Name and surname of the driver providing the transport and the driver's signature and the registration number of the vehicle used in the transport
- Other documentation, particularly the contract on delivery of the goods, delivery note, payment confirmation on the purchase of goods, confirmation of payment for transportation service

If the transport is arranged by the customer, the VAT payer must have the documents under bullet two above (proof of dispatch, etc.) and bullet three (transport arranged by customer or supplier, etc.) available within six months after the end of the calendar month in which the supply of goods occurred. If this is not met, the VAT payer shall apply output tax in the tax period in which the six-month period elapsed.

As part of the European Commission's Action Plan on VAT, four "VAT Quick Fixes" in relation to intra-EU trade will take effect from 1 January 2020 in Slovakia.

The four VAT Quick Fixes concern the following areas:
• Treatment of call-off stock
• Mandatory VAT identification number to apply the zero VAT rate to intra-EU supplies
• Chain transactions
• Proof of intra-EU supplies

Foreign currency invoices. If the payment for a supply is requested in foreign currency, the total VAT must be converted into euros (EUR), using the exchange rate published by the European Central Bank on the date preceding the date of the tax point. Alternatively, the VAT payer can opt for a customs foreign exchange rate valid on the date of the tax point to be used over a calendar month. This option may not be revoked during the entire calendar year. For imports, the customs foreign-exchange rate rules apply.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. Under the Slovak VAT Act, a VAT payer is not obliged to issue an invoice for supply of goods and services in Slovakia to a nontaxable person (B2C). An invoice must be issued for supplies to a legal person who is not a taxable person.

Records. The VAT payer is obligated to keep detailed records for each tax period on the supplied goods and services and received goods and services; separate records should be kept on delivery of goods and services to another Member State, on acquisition of goods from another Member State and on import of goods.

The records shall contain the information essential for correct computation of the tax.

For the purpose of tax deduction, the taxpayer shall keep the records separately for the goods and services with the input tax deduction and for the goods and services with no input tax deduction and with partial input tax deduction. The taxpayer shall keep records also on any payments received prior to the delivery of goods and services and any payments provided prior to the delivery of goods and services. A member of a VAT group has to keep records on the delivery of the goods and provision of the services to another member of the group.

Separate records have to be kept on:
• Supply of goods free of charge
• Temporary transfer of goods to another Member State
• Provision of services free of charge, privet use of services
• Provision of services to the EU and also outside of the EU, including those that are tax exempt
• Supply of goods with installation and assembly in the EU
• Goods transferred and received in the call-off stock arrangements
• Other records according to Section 70 of the Slovak VAT Act

All the above persons are required, when retaining invoices, to guarantee the authenticity of the origin, the integrity of the content, and the legibility of invoices throughout the retention period. These documents must be retained for ten years following the year in which the sale or purchase took place. Under Section 76 of the VAT Act, VAT payers are required to retain copies of invoices for a period of ten years following the year to which they relate. Under Section 35 of the Accounting Act (Act No 431/2002), as amended, the retention period for documents is five years following the year to which they relate.

Following the EU Invoicing Directive, the Slovak VAT act provides that tax documents in paper form and in electronic form have equal status. The Slovak VAT act also stipulates the requirements for the invoice, whether in paper or in electronic form, which have to be secured from the time of issue until the end of the period for retention of the invoice. These requirements are the authenticity of origin (assurance of the identity of the supplier or the issuer of the tax document), the integrity of content (content of the tax document was not altered) and the legibility of a tax document (it is possible to read the tax document directly or by using a technical device). The tax document may be converted from paper form into electronic form and vice versa for retention purposes.

Record retention period. Generally, an invoice should be archived for 10 years for VAT purposes. However, if the invoice pertains to certain capital goods, it should be archived until the end of the period for the adjustment of VAT deductions.

Electronic archiving. The documents obtained in paper form can be kept and archived electronically under the presumption that the taxable person can ensure (by its technical means) that the authenticity of the origin, the integrity of the content and the legibility during the whole archiving period. The documents obtained electronically can be archived only electronically. The taxable person that stores invoices and other documents by electronic means is obliged to enable the tax authority, for auditing purposes, to access, download and use such invoices, upon request.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. Slovak VAT returns must be submitted by the 25th day after the end of the tax period.

Periodic payments. Payment of VAT liability in full is due by the same date as the return submission deadline, i.e., by the 25th day after the end of the tax period.

Electronic filing. VAT returns and all documents for the tax authorities must be submitted electronically, using either advanced electronic signature or other means of electronic filing agreed with the tax authorities.

The VAT payer has to complete the VAT return in the standard electronic form issued by the Ministry of Finance. All VAT payers are obliged to communicate only electronically with the Slovak tax authorities. In order to do so, the VAT payer should either use the advanced electronic signature or the VAT payer concludes an agreement on electronic filing with the Slovak tax authority in writing.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in the Slovak Republic.

Special schemes. The special schemes available in the Slovak Republic are as follows:
- Special scheme for call-off stock
- Special arrangements applicable to secondhand goods, works of art, collectors' items and antiques
- Special scheme for investment gold
- Special arrangements applicable to persons not established in the territory of the European Community supplying the services electronically
- MOSS for EU and non-EU established businesses providing telecommunications, broadcasting or electronic services to nontaxable persons (final consumers) located in the EU

In addition, there is a special scheme for travel agents and for cash accounting. More information about such schemes is provided below.

Special scheme for travel agents. The range of entities required to apply the special scheme for travel agents includes those that procure goods and services for the purpose of a journey/travel from other taxable persons ("accommodation and travel services") and those that act in their own name toward customers, whether they are taxable or nontaxable persons.

The special scheme for travel agents does not apply only to travel agencies and travel agents in the traditional sense, but to all VAT payers who procure travel services, such as accommodation and transport, in their own name. The taxpayers applying the special VAT scheme for travel agents should follow all specific rules stipulated by the Slovak legislation for this special scheme (e.g., the taxpayers applying the special scheme should not deduct input tax from the acquired goods and services linked to the accommodation and travel services, the recipients of these services should not be able to deduct the input tax from purchased accommodation and travel services. Since the issued invoices for the accommodation and travel services will not show any VAT, the taxpayers should track and keep separate VAT records with respect to the special scheme).

Cash accounting. The cash accounting scheme is available only to domestic VAT payers, who must meet the following criteria:
• The VAT payer's annual turnover did not exceed EUR100,000.
• The VAT payer is not in bankruptcy and has not entered into liquidation.

Under the cash accounting scheme, the chargeable event (tax point) is only after the receipt of payment for the goods or services supplied and for the amount received from the customer. As regards the assigned receivables, effective from 1 January 2018, the tax point of such receivables should be the day of their assignment. General tax point rules do not apply in such a case. The same applies on the input tax deduction right, which arises only after payment of an invoice (if paid partially, only on the amount of payment).

The invoice issued by a VAT payer who has opted for the scheme should include the legible statement "cash accounting scheme." If this information is not stated on the invoice, the VAT liability arises in accordance with standard rules for the determination of the tax point under the Slovak VAT Act. A customer of a VAT payer running the scheme has the right to deduct input tax on the day of payment for the supply (up to the paid amount).

The list of taxpayers who have opted for the cash accounting scheme will be maintained and published on the webpage of the Financial Directorate of the Slovak Republic.

Taxpayers may voluntarily quit the cash accounting scheme only at the end of the respective calendar year; however, if they exceed the turnover of EUR100,000, if they become a member of a VAT group or if their business ceases to exist, they are required to quit the scheme as of the following VAT period.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not possible nor required in the Slovak Republic.

Supplementary filings. When the taxpayer finds out that the tax shall be higher, or the input tax shall be lower than stated in the filed tax return, it is obliged to file a supplementary tax return by the end of the month following the month of finding out the discrepancies. The increased tax shall be due within the same deadline. The taxpayer is obliged to file the supplementary tax return if it does not contain correct data concerning the performed and received taxable transactions for the relevant tax period.

The taxpayer may file a supplementary tax return if it finds out that tax should be lower or the input tax should be higher than reported.

VAT ledger. VAT payers are obliged to submit a detailed VAT ledger report as a separate filing along with the VAT return. The obligation arises for each VAT period, except when zero returns are filed or for re-exports of imported goods. The report should include the information for every invoice received or issued by the VAT payer, including corrective invoices and down-payment invoices, but excluding invoices for exports, zero-rated and exempt supplies. Simplified invoices are to be reported in aggregate values for the tax period. The exception applies only to simplified invoices received by the taxpayer if the total amount of deductible VAT from these invoices exceeds a threshold of EUR3,000 for a tax period. Such documents have to be reported in the VAT ledger separately and not in an aggregate amount. Information will need to be compiled by the VAT payer electronically and filed by means of the electronic filing portal provided by the Slovak Financial Directorate.

The deadline for submission of the VAT ledger is 25 days after the end of the relevant tax period. The deadline is not tied to the date of the VAT return filing.

Intrastat. A Slovak taxable person that trades with other EU Member States must complete statistical reports, known as Intrastat, if the value of goods dispatched or received exceeds the exemption thresholds.

Separate reports are required for intra-Community acquisitions (Intrastat Arrivals) and for intra-Community supplies (Intrastat Dispatches).

Intrastat information is reported each calendar month (the reference period). Each report must be submitted to the local customs authority by the 15th day of the month following the reference period.

The threshold is EUR200,000 for Arrivals and EUR400,000 for Dispatches. If a VAT payer's turnover for the preceding calendar year did not exceed these thresholds, it was not required to submit an Intrastat report.

If the threshold is exceeded, the VAT payer is required to submit Intrastat declarations (so-called complete declarations).

If the VAT payer does not exceed the exemption threshold or if the entity is not a Slovak VAT payer, it is not required to report the intra-Community movement of goods using Intrastat. Eligible VAT payers are required to complete and submit Intrastat declarations, including for those months in which zero movements of goods occur.

EU Sales Lists. A Slovak VAT payer must submit an EU Sales List (ESL) reporting the following transactions:
- Intra-Community supplies of goods
- VAT-exempt transfers of goods to other EU Member States (see the chapter on the EU)
- Supplies of goods within a triangular transaction if the VAT payer acts as first customer
- Supplies of services with the place of supply in another EU Member State to a taxable person or an entity that is not a taxable person but is identified for VAT, for which the recipient is liable to pay the VAT
- Transfer of goods within call-off stock arrangements, including the case of the change of the recipient of the goods and return of the goods

Services exempt from VAT are not reported in ESLs. ESLs must be submitted on a monthly basis by the 25th day following the end of the respective calendar month. If the value of goods supplied during the calendar quarter does not exceed EUR50,000 and if the value of goods supplied during the preceding four calendar quarters did not exceed EUR50,000, the VAT payer can file quarterly ESLs instead of monthly ESLs by the 25th day following the end of the calendar quarter.

The Slovak law requires submission of the ESLs via electronic means.

Digital reporting. The obligation to communicate with tax authorities by electronic means exists for all VAT payers since 2014. As of 1 January 2018, the obligatory electronic communication with tax authorities is effective for all legal entities enlisted in the Commercial Register and as of 1 July 2018, it was extended to individuals registered for income tax.

The electronic communication toward the tax authorities, as well as submission of VAT returns, is made based on a secured electronic signature or based on a written agreement with the tax office on electronic delivery (in which case a secured electronic signature is not necessary). The signature on the agreement must be validated by the notary.

On the other hand, the communication by the tax authorities toward the taxpayer is done exclusively in paper form. Only some minor communication (soft warning, payment clarification) is communicated by the tax authorities to the taxpayer via electronic mailbox.

Electronic cash register (eKasa). During the first half of 2019, the amendment of the Act on use of electronic cash registers introduced the requirement for all cash registers in the Slovak Republic to have a direct online connection to the Slovak Financial Directorate (system called "eKasa"). With the introduction of eKasa, the hardware is no longer relevant for the use and storage of the information as all information is sent automatically directly to the tax authorities. The amendment also introduces the abolishment of the obligation to print bills in case the bill can be send to the customer via email (upon his agreement).

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. The penalty for nonfulfillment of the registration obligation can range from EUR60 to EUR20,000. In principle, the Slovak VAT legislation does not allow a retroactive registration of a taxable person. However, with effect from 1 April 2009, a mechanism for reconciling VAT in the event of a late VAT registration has been introduced into the Slovak VAT legislation. A domestic or non-established person that failed to register for Slovak VAT is able to reconcile their VAT obligations retrospectively in a single VAT return filed for the period before the late VAT registration, covering all transactions in the period during which it should have been registered.

Penalties for late payment and filings. The penalties for noncompliance with the reporting requirements range from EUR30 to EUR3,000. The penalty for the late submission of a tax return (after the statutory deadline) ranges from EUR30 to EUR16,000. If the taxpayer does not submit the tax return by the deadline stipulated by the tax authorities in an appeal, the penalty for late filing ranges from EUR60 to EUR32,000. If the taxpayer commits more than one offense, the tax authority will levy only one aggregate penalty for the offense that has the highest upper limit.

Interest on late payment applies in the following circumstances:
- The VAT liability is not paid before or at the deadline.
- The proper amount of the VAT liability or the amount stipulated in a decision of the tax authorities has not been paid.

The rate of interest on late payment is calculated as the higher of the annual interest rate of 15% or four times the interest rate for main refinancing operations (the basic interest rate) of the European Central Bank.

For Intrastat, a penalty may be imposed for late submission or for missing or inaccurate declarations, up to EUR3,320.

For ESLs, if a VAT payer fails to submit an ESL within the statutory deadline, a penalty for noncompliance with non-monetary obligations ranging from EUR60 to EUR3,000 applies. In the event of a failure to submit an ESL after receiving a request from the tax authorities, the penalty may be imposed repeatedly. Because the amount of the penalty for noncompliance with non-monetary obligations depends on the severity, duration and consequences of the breach of obligations, the penalty for failing to submit the ESL should generally fall in the lower third of the range.

Penalties for errors. A penalty is imposed if the VAT liability or excess VAT refund declared by the VAT payer in the tax return is different from the amount assessed by the tax authorities. This penalty amounts to 10% per annum or three times the base interest rate of the European Central Bank per annum (whichever is higher). The penalty is calculated on the difference between the value declared in the tax return and VAT assessed by the tax authorities.

An option to submit a supplementary tax return within 15 days of the beginning of the tax audit is allowed. This offers taxpayers the possibility of decreasing the imposed penalty, compared to tax audit determination of the tax assessment to 7% per annum or twice the base interest rate of the European Central Bank per annum (whichever is higher).

If the difference is declared by the VAT payer in a supplementary VAT return, the penalty is calculated at 3% per annum or the basic interest rate of the European Central Bank per annum, whichever is higher.

Penalties for fraud. Intentional tax evasion may be regarded as a criminal offense, resulting in fines or imprisonment for a term of up to 12 years, depending on the amount of tax evaded. Similarly, hindering the tax administration (e.g., submission to the tax authorities of documents that give false or misleading information, failure to comply with a statutory obligation or obligations imposed by the tax authority during a tax audit) may be regarded as a criminal offense, resulting in imprisonment for a term of up to eight years.

The Ministry of Finance publishes a list of taxpayers' names on its website detailing amounts of unpaid tax. The list contains taxpayers' tax identification numbers and the amount of tax due in descending order.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:

- The supply of goods or services made in Slovenia by a taxable person
- The intra-Community acquisition of goods from another EU Member State by a taxable person
- Reverse-charge services received by a taxable person in Slovenia
- The importation of goods from outside the EU, regardless of the status of the importer

Special rules apply to intra-Community transactions involving new means of transport and distance sales (see the chapter on the EU).

C. Who is liable

A taxable person is any person who independently carries out in any place any economic activity, regardless of the purpose or results of that activity.

VAT registration is required before the beginning of taxable activities in Slovenia. Under the VAT law, retrospective VAT registration is not possible.

Exemption from VAT registration. Established businesses performing only VAT exempt transactions and non-established businesses that perform only VAT exempt and/or zero-rated export transactions do not have to register for VAT.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. For small businesses voluntary VAT registration is possible in Slovenia. In this case, a small business that wishes to register must notify their choice in advance to the tax authorities and be treated as a taxable person for at least 60 months.

Group registration. VAT group registration is not allowed under the VAT law. Legal entities that are closely connected must register for VAT individually.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that does not have an establishment in Slovenia. A non-established business has to register for VAT purposes in Slovenia if it performs taxable activities in the territory of Slovenia. There is no registration threshold applicable for non-established businesses, which means that a non-established business has to register for VAT purposes prior to performing the first taxable transaction. The VAT registration threshold therefore does not apply for non-established businesses.

Consequently, non-established businesses must register for VAT if they make any of the following supplies:
- Intra-Community supplies
- Intra-Community acquisitions
- Distance sales in excess of the threshold
- Supplies of goods and services that are not subject to the reverse charge (for example, goods or services supplied to private persons)

Non-established businesses that perform only VAT exempt and/or zero-rated export transactions do not have to register for VAT.

Tax representatives. A nonresident business (taxable person) that has its seat outside the EU must appoint a tax representative.

A nonresident business (taxable person) from another EU Member State that does not have a registered business or fixed establishment in Slovenia may appoint a tax representative. Individuals and legal entities that are taxable persons in Slovenia can be appointed as tax representatives if they have an establishment or permanent address in Slovenia and are not a branch of a company.

A nonresident business, either established in another EU Member State or third country that wishes to account for an import in a VAT return has to appoint a VAT representative. The VAT representative is held jointly and severally liable for any VAT due on imports.

Reverse charge. The reverse charge applies to supplies of most services made by non-established businesses to taxable persons registered for VAT in Slovenia. The recipient of the services accounts for VAT using the appropriate Slovenian VAT rate. If the reverse charge applies, the non-established supplier is not required to register for VAT in Slovenia.

The reverse charge does not apply to the following services:
- Real estate
- Restaurant and catering services
- Cultural, artistic, scientific, educational, sporting, entertainment or similar services
- Valuations of movable tangible property or work on such property
- Short-term rentals of vehicles

Domestic reverse charge. Slovenia applies a domestic reverse-charge mechanism for certain supplies. However, if a foreign supplier makes supplies that are subject to the local reverse charge in Slovenia, this does not mean that it is not obliged to register locally for VAT in Slovenia. The following activities fall within the scope of the domestic reverse charge:
- Certain supplies and services falling in Category F of the Slovenian Standard Classification of Activities and the installation of montage houses
- Hiring out of staff used for activities falling in Category F of the Slovenian Standard Classification of Activities
- Supplies of real estate for which the parties opt for VAT taxation
- Supplies of used material waste and scrap (special listed goods)
- Trade of greenhouse gas emissions

If a taxable person performs supplies subject to domestic reverse charge, it has to file a PD-O report. Deadline for the submission of the report is the last working day of the month, following the reporting period.

Digital economy. Special rules apply to the place of supply for supplies of telecommunications, broadcasting and electronic services to non-VAT taxable customers. When telecommunications services, radio and television broadcasting services, or electronic services are supplied to a non-taxable person, the place of supply of these services is the place where that person is established or has his permanent address or usually resides.

The place of supply of the services could be also the place where the service provider is established or, if he is not established, has his permanent residence if the following conditions are fulfilled: the supplier is established or has permanent residence in only one Member State and the service is provided to a nontaxable person established in any other Member State and the total value of the services provided, excluding VAT, in the current calendar year does not exceed EUR10,000 and has not exceeded that amount in the previous calendar year.

Mini One-Stop Shop. Only VAT taxable persons that are established, have a permanent establishment or are VAT registered in Slovenia can register for the Mini One-Stop Shop (MOSS) in Slovenia. A VAT taxable person should be able to file the application for registration of MOSS via the electronic filing system of the Slovenian tax authorities. If a VAT taxable person registered for MOSS in Slovenia also provides electronically supplied services in Slovenia it should report the services provided in Slovenia via a regular VAT return and not through the special MOSS return. VAT refund claims in the member states of consumption of services should be filed through a VAT refund claim and not through the MOSS VAT return.

Online marketplace and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Slovenia.

Vouchers. Slovenian VAT legislation defines two types of vouchers, single-purpose and multi-purpose vouchers.

The supply of goods or services to which the single-purpose voucher relates is deemed to be any transfer of a single-purpose voucher by a taxable person acting on his own behalf. The actual delivery of goods or services in exchange for a single-purpose voucher accepted by the supplier as payment or partial payment is not considered to be a separate transaction.

If the transfer of a single-purpose voucher is made by a taxable person acting on behalf of another taxable person, the supply of the goods or services to which the voucher relates is deemed to have been made by the taxable person on whose behalf the taxable person acts.

If the supply of goods or services is made by a supplier which is not the taxable person who issued the single-purpose voucher in his own name, that supplier is deemed to have supplied the goods or services to which the voucher relates to the taxable person who issued the single-purpose voucher on his own behalf.

In the case of multi-purpose vouchers, the obligation to charge VAT on a such voucher does not arise upon its transfer, but only upon the actual handing over of the goods or the actual provision of the services in return for a multi-purpose voucher accepted as consideration or part consideration by the supplier for that supply or provision.

In the case of a multi-purpose voucher, the consideration for the voucher constitutes the tax base for the supply of goods or services. In the absence of such information, the tax base is the monetary value shown on the voucher itself, which is reduced by the value of VAT paid for the supply of goods or services.

Registration procedures. VAT registration consists of two phases. In the first phase the taxable person and its legal representative are entered in the Slovenian tax register and assigned tax numbers (paper forms available in English). Additionally, the taxable person is registered in the electronic filing system of the Slovenian tax authorities (paper forms available in English). For registration in the electronic filing system a special electronic certificate should be obtained. In the second phase the applicable form for VAT registration is submitted via this electronic system.

Depending on the responsiveness of the tax authorities, the timing of each step varies. A VAT registration usually takes six to eight weeks to complete.

Deregistration. A taxable person can deregister for VAT by submitting a deregistration request to the tax authorities in electronic form through their online portal. The tax authorities should decide within 30 days. The taxable person is deregistered as of the date stated in the tax authorities' decision.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
• Standard rate: 22%
• Reduced rate: 9.5%
• Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services, unless a specific measure provides for the reduced rate or exemption.

Some supplies are classified as zero-rated (i.e., "exempt with the right to deduct input tax") which means that no VAT is chargeable, but the supplier may recover related input tax. Zero-rated supplies include exports of goods outside the EU and related services and intra-Community supplies of goods and intangible services supplied to another taxable person established in the EU or to a recipient outside the EU.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 9.5%

• Foodstuffs (except alcoholic drinks and catering services)
• Water supplies
• Passenger transport

- Books, newspapers and periodicals if they contain no more than 50% of the promotional content, or content that includes no more than 50% of music, movies and games, including lottery, as well as shows and events in the fields of politics, culture, art, sports, science and entertainment
- Services of authors and composers
- Agricultural products and services
- Pharmaceutical products and medical equipment
- Cultural events
- Hotel accommodation
- Use of sports facilities
- Services of undertakers and cemetery services

The term "exempt" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Real estate transactions (except "new buildings")
- Financial services
- Insurance transactions
- Betting, gambling and lotteries
- Public radio and television broadcasts
- Education
- Health care and medical services
- Cultural services

Option to tax for exempt supplies. A taxable person may opt to tax real estate transactions (except "new buildings" and building land), provided that the recipient has the full right to deduct VAT tax authorities do not need to be notified. However, a written agreement about the option to tax has to be made between the contracting parties prior to the supply being made.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "chargeable event" or "tax point." The following are the general rules in Slovenia for determining the chargeable event:

- VAT is due when goods are delivered or when services are performed.
- If no invoice is issued for supplied goods or services, VAT is due on the last day of the tax period (month) in which the goods are delivered, or the services are performed.

Deposits and prepayments. If payment is made before the supply is made (prepayment), VAT is due on the day on which the prepayment is received. For intra-Community acquisitions or supplies of goods, prepayments do not create a tax point.

Continuous supplies of services. In case of continuous supplies of services where periodical invoices are raised, or payments are made, VAT becomes due upon expiry of the period to which the payments or invoices relate. Where services are continuously supplied over a period of more than one year and no invoices are issued, or payments are made during that period, VAT becomes due at the end of each calendar year, until such supplies of services come to an end.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. Slovenia does not have special time of supply rules for supplies of goods sent on approval for sale or return. The general time of supply rules outlined above apply.

Reverse-charge services. For reverse-charge services, VAT becomes due when services are performed.

Leased assets. In case of a financial lease (where the ownership of goods is transferred to the lessee upon payment of the last installment) this is considered a supply of goods and VAT becomes due when the assets are physically handed over. An operational lease is considered a service and VAT becomes due when the service is performed.

Imported goods. VAT for imported goods becomes due when the import is made or when the goods leave the duty suspension regime and are released for free circulation.

VAT on imports can be accounted for in the VAT return, subject to certain conditions.

Intra-Community acquisitions. For intra-Community acquisitions of goods, VAT is due on the day when the invoice is issued. If an invoice for the supply is not issued or is issued before the supply is made, VAT is due on the 15th day of the month following the month in which the goods are delivered.

Intra-Community supplies of goods. For intra-Community supplies of goods, VAT becomes due on the day when the invoice is issued. If an invoice for the supply is not issued, VAT becomes due on the 15th day of the month following the month in which the goods are supplied.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax, which is VAT charged on goods and services supplied to it for business purposes. A taxable person generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax, which is VAT due on supplies made.

Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services supplied in Slovenia, VAT paid on imports of goods and self-assessed VAT on intra-Community acquisitions of goods and reverse-charge services.

A valid tax invoice or customs document must generally accompany a claim for input tax recovery.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use by an entrepreneur). In addition, input tax may not be recovered for some items of business expenditure.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Hospitality costs (accommodation, food and drinks, and entertainment)
- Purchase, lease, fuel and maintenance of cars and boats (except if used by driving schools or for public transportation)

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Advertising
- Purchase, lease, fuel and maintenance of buses and trucks
- Telephones
- Books and newspapers
- Attendance at seminars (except food and drinks)
- Raw materials

Partial exemption. Input tax directly related to the making of exempt supplies is generally not recoverable. If a taxable person makes both exempt and taxable supplies, it may not recover input tax in full. This situation is referred to as "partial exemption."

Input tax directly relating to taxable supplies is fully recoverable, while input tax directly relating to exempt supplies is not recoverable.

To determine the amount of input tax that may be recovered one of the following methods may be used:

- Deduction of input tax using actual data, provided that the taxable person maintains (in its books and accounts or other records) information regarding the total amount of input tax including the amount of input tax that is deductible.

- Determination of the amount of deductible input tax using a pro-rata method for the whole business, if the taxable person is unable to determine the amount of input tax as described above.
- Determination of the amount of deductible input tax using several deductible amounts for each of its various fields of business activity separately. A "field of business activity" is any level of activity of the taxable person according to a standard classification of activities or organizational units of the taxable person (such as a separate plant or business unit).

Under the pro rata method, the total annual supplies on which input tax is deductible (exclusive of VAT) is divided by the total annual supplies, including exempt supplies, state subsidies and grants.

Capital goods. Capital goods are items of capital expenditure that are used in a business over several years. Input tax is deducted in the VAT year in which the goods are acquired and taken into use. The amount of input tax recovered depends on the taxable person's partial exemption recovery position in the VAT year of acquisition and first use. However, the amount of input tax recovered for capital goods must be adjusted over time if the taxable person's partial exemption recovery percentage changes during the adjustment period.

In Slovenia, the capital goods adjustment applies to the following assets for the number of years indicated:
- Real estate: adjusted for a period of 20 years
- Other tangible fixed assets: adjusted for a period of five years

Refunds. If the amount of input tax recoverable in a tax period exceeds the amount of output tax payable in that same period, the taxable person has an input tax credit. An input tax credit is carried forward to the following VAT tax period. However, a VAT-registered person is entitled to a refund of the input tax credit within 21 days after submitting a VAT return form for the tax period (if the VAT credit is claimed in the relevant VAT return).

The tax authorities pay interest on delayed repayments of VAT. The statutory rate of interest is 0.0247% per day.

Pre-registration costs. According to the official guidance issued by the Slovenian tax authorities, a VAT taxable person has the right to deduct input tax incurred prior to the VAT registration in Slovenia (under the assumption that all other conditions for VAT deduction are met).

Write-off of bad debts. If payment for a supply is not received a taxpayer may adjust (reduce) the VAT amount if according to the final court resolution of a completed bankruptcy procedure or successfully completed compulsory settlement the taxpayer's receivables were either not settled or not settled in full. The same applies to a taxpayer who obtains a final court resolution or another document clearly showing that in the closing execution procedure, the taxpayer's receivables were not settled or not settled in full. A taxpayer may also adjust the VAT amount if their receivables were not settled due to the fact that the debtor was deleted from the court register or any other relevant register or prescribed records.

Regardless of the above provisions in the Slovenian VAT legislation, the amount of non-paid VAT for outstanding receivables can be adjusted after submission of a claim for the respective receivable in the bankruptcy proceeding or compulsory settlement. However, this claim should first be recognized by the applicable officials in the bankruptcy proceeding or compulsory settlement.

Noneconomic activities. A VAT taxable person cannot deduct input tax from goods and services that were used for its noneconomic activities.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Slovenia refunds VAT incurred by businesses that are neither established nor registered for VAT in Slovenia. Non-established businesses may claim Slovenian VAT to the same extent as VAT-registered businesses.

EU businesses. Businesses established in the EU can submit a claim for refund with the tax authorities of their country of establishment.

EU businesses can make refund claims for Slovenian VAT in accordance with the procedure in their country of establishment.

Claims filed in Slovenia must be submitted in the Slovenian language. Applications for refund must be accompanied by the relevant documentation (see the chapter on the EU).

The minimum claim period is three months. The minimum claim for a period of less than a year is EUR400. The maximum period is one year. For an annual claim, the minimum amount is EUR50. The claim period can be shorter than three months if this period represents the rest of the calendar year.

The tax authorities must stamp each submitted invoice and import document and return them to the claimant within 30 days of receipt. The tax authorities must also rule on the claim within six months after the submission of the claim. If the claim is approved, the refund is processed within six months after the submission of the claim by either remitting payment into a Slovenian bank account or making a transfer abroad (the claimant is responsible for all expenses related to this repayment).

Non-EU businesses. Businesses established outside the EU can claim a refund under the terms of the EU 13th Directive. Slovenia applies the condition of reciprocity with respect to refund claims. This may exclude applicants from some non-EU countries.

For non-EU businesses, the deadline for refund claims is 30 June following the calendar year in which the tax was incurred. This deadline is strictly enforced.

Applications for refunds of Slovenian VAT by non-EU businesses must be filed with the Slovenian tax authorities in electronic form using the tax authorities' online portal. To gain access to the online portal of the tax authorities, a non-EU business and its legal representative(s) must obtain a Slovenian tax numbers.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A taxable person must generally provide a VAT invoice for all taxable supplies made, including exports and intra-Community supplies. Invoices are not required for a limited range of supplies, including the following:

- Supplies by taxpayers that perform agricultural or forestry activities and sell these products and services to final consumers
- The sale of tickets, season tickets and tokens for passenger transport (trains, buses and cable cars), stamps, court stamps, postal forms, payments for participating in games of chance, periodicals, vending machine sales, sale of mobile phone cards by ATM, GMS network and the internet, sale of tokens from change machines and supplies of services at "teleservice points"
- Exempt financial services performed in Slovenia or outside the EU for which the taxable person issues a large number of documents to recipients

However, the taxable person should issue a consolidated document, such as a separate bank statement, which includes the value of services charged and the clause that VAT is not charged according to the applicable article of the VAT law.

Credit notes. If the taxable amount subsequently changes as a result of the return of goods or the granting of a discount, the tax base is lowered accordingly. The taxable person may adjust (reduce) the amount of VAT payable if it informs the recipient in writing (for example, by issuing a credit note) about the nondeductible amount. A credit note must mention all information prescribed for an invoice including a reference to the invoice.

Electronic invoicing. Slovenian VAT law permits electronic invoicing in line with EU Directive 2010/45/EU (see the chapter on the EU).

Simplified VAT invoices. In general, taxpayers can issue a simplified invoice for the supply of goods or services carried out in Slovenia, if at least one of the following conditions is met:
- The net amount stated on the invoice does not exceed EUR100
- If a taxable person issues a document or a message that changes the original invoice and refers to it undoubtedly
- If the invoice is issued to a final customer

A taxable person who issues a simplified invoice to another taxable person and needs such an invoice in order to claim VAT deduction has to indicate the name and address of the buyer or customer in the invoice.

A taxable person should not issue a simplified invoice for goods or services supplied to another Member State in which VAT is chargeable or if such taxable person's place of establishment in that Member State does not participate in the supply in terms of Article 192a of Council Directive 2006/112/EC and the person liable to pay VAT is the person to whom the goods or services are supplied.

A taxable person who supplies goods and services in the cases where recipients of goods and services act as persons liable for payment of VAT indicates in the simplified invoice that the reverse charge applies.

If a taxable person supplies goods or services at different tax rates, the amount of VAT in a simplified invoice has to be shown by tax rate separately.

Where a taxable person supplies goods or services that are exempt from VAT, he has to make reference in his invoice to the valid provision of the Sixth Council Directive 2006/112/EEC or to the corresponding Article of Slovenian VAT Act or any other reference indicating that the supply of goods or services is exempt from VAT.

Self-billing. A self-billed invoice may be issued by the buyer of goods or services for the goods or services supplied to them by a taxable person (self-invoicing) where both parties agree on this procedure in advance and specifically agree on the method of accepting each invoice by the taxable person by whom the goods or services are supplied. The buyer of goods or services has to indicate on the self-billed invoice that it is issued on behalf and for the account of the taxable person who supplied the goods or services to the buyer.

Proof of exports and intra-Community supplies. Slovenian VAT is not due on supplies of exported goods or on intra-Community supplies of goods (see the chapter on the EU). However, to qualify as VAT-free, exports and intra-Community supplies must be supported by evidence that the goods have left Slovenia. Acceptable proof includes the following documentation:
- For an export, a copy of the export document, officially certified by customs. In certain cases, an invoice stamped by customs, a mail freight declaration, or a transport document is acceptable.
- For an intra-Community supply, an invoice with the purchaser's VAT identification number and corresponding transport document (or other suitable document that clearly refers to the freight of goods related to the invoice).

Foreign currency invoices. Invoices may be issued in a foreign currency. The VAT amount must always be in euros (EUR). The exchange rate that must be used is the foreign exchange rate of the European Central Bank (also published by the Bank of Slovenia) that is valid on the date on which the tax liability arises and that is published by the Bank of Slovenia.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. Special rules apply to the place of supply for supplies of telecommunications, broadcasting and electronic services to non-VAT taxable customers. For further details of the VAT rules on electronic services in the EU, please refer to the European Union chapter.

Slovenian suppliers of these services are required to issue invoices to nontaxable customers.

VAT-registered suppliers can also issue simplified invoices to non-VAT registered customers (private consumers) only where the invoice amount does not exceed EUR100. If the invoice amount exceeds EUR100, then the VAT-registered supplier must issue a normal VAT invoice.

Records. Every taxable person must ensure that copies of the invoices issued by them, or by their customer or, in their name and on their behalf, by a third party, and all the invoices that they have received, are stored.

Record retention period. All received and issued invoices should be archived for 10 years after the end of the year to which they relate (20 years if the invoices relate to immovable property).

Electronic archiving. A Slovenian taxable person may archive invoices outside Slovenia after informing the tax authorities. The basic rule is that invoices must be archived in their original form. The condition for electronic archiving is that a taxpayer ensures that the file content cannot be modified or erased while at the same time it can be reproduced if needed.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. Slovenian VAT returns are submitted for monthly or quarterly tax periods. Quarterly tax periods coincide with the months of March, June, September and December. A tax period for each taxable person is determined on the basis of its turnover in the preceding calendar year in accordance with the following rules:

- Taxable persons with a turnover up to EUR210,000 submit quarterly tax returns, unless the taxable person engages in intra-Community transactions and is liable to submit a recapitulative statement (see Section K).
- Taxable persons with a turnover greater than EUR210,000 submit monthly tax returns.

The tax period for newly established taxable persons is a calendar month for the first 12 months of business activity. The tax period for foreign taxable persons (non-established businesses) is always a calendar month.

VAT returns must be submitted and any VAT due must be paid in full by the last working day of the month following the end of each tax period. If the taxable person performs intra-Community supplies and must file a recapitulative statement (see Section K), the VAT return must be submitted by the 20th day of the month (or earlier if the 20th day is not a working day) following the reporting period (calendar month).

Periodic payments. Any VAT due must be paid in full by the last working day of the month following the end of each tax period. Payers from abroad have to remit the amount payable to the account of the tax authorities.

Electronic filing. VAT returns must be filed through the electronic filing system of the Slovenian tax authorities ("eDavki"). For registration in the electronic filing system a special electronic certificate should be obtained (please see Section C: Registration procedures).

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Slovenia.

However, if a taxable person proves, that due to reasons over which it has no influence, serious economic damage might occur from making its VAT payment, and the deferment of or payment by instalment of the tax would prevent serious economic damage, the tax authorities might grant payment in installments.

Special schemes.

Cash accounting for small businesses. A domestic taxable person whose taxable turnover (excluding VAT and excluding sales of assets) did not exceed EUR400,000 in the previous 12 months and whose turnover is not expected to exceed this limit in the next 12 months, may, under certain conditions, charge and pay VAT on a cash basis; that is, on the basis of payments received for its supplies of goods and services. A taxpayer that uses the cash accounting scheme may deduct input tax on its purchases only when the VAT is fully paid. For related companies, the turnover threshold applies to the whole group.

Small taxable persons. Slovenian taxable person is exempt from charging VAT provided that in the last 12-month period his taxable turnover has not exceeded or is unlikely to exceed EUR50,000.

Farmers. Farmers are entitled to flat-rate compensation for VAT for the supply of agricultural and forest products under certain conditions.

Travel agents. The taxable amount and the price exclusive of VAT in respect of the single service provided by a travel agent is the difference between the total amount, exclusive of VAT, to be paid by the traveler and the actual cost to the travel agent of supplies of goods or services provided by other taxable persons, where those transactions are for the direct benefit of the traveler.

Secondhand goods, works of art, collectors' items and antiques. The taxable amount is the profit margin made by the taxable dealer, less the amount of VAT relating to the profit margin. A taxable dealer may apply the normal VAT arrangements to any supply covered by the special margin scheme.

Investment gold. Taxable persons who produce investment gold or transform gold into investment gold shall have the right to opt for the taxation of supplies of investment gold to another taxable person.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Slovenia.

Supplementary filings.

Intrastat. A Slovenian taxable person that trades with other EU countries must complete statistical reports, known as Intrastat, if the value of either its sales or purchases of goods exceeds certain thresholds. Separate reports are required for intra-Community acquisitions (Intrastat Arrivals) and for intra-Community supplies (Intrastat Dispatches).

For 2020, the threshold for Intrastat Arrivals is EUR140,000 and the threshold for Intrastat Dispatches is EUR220,000.

Intrastat returns must be submitted by the 15th day of the month following the reporting period (calendar month). If the 15th day is a nonworking day, the Intrastat return must be submitted by the last working day before the 15th day of the month.

Intrastat returns have to be submitted in electronic format via the internet (http://intrastat-surs.gov.si/).

EU Sales List. If a Slovenian taxable person performs intra-Community supplies or reverse-charge services that are taxable for VAT purposes in the other EU state in a tax period, it must submit an EU Sales List (also known as "Recapitulative Statement" in Slovenia) to the Slovenian tax authorities. The Recapitulative Statement is not required for any periods in which the taxable person does not make any intra-Community supplies (i.e., nil Recapitulative Statements).

The Recapitulative Statement must be submitted monthly by the 20th day of the month (or earlier if the 20th day is not a working day) following the reporting period (calendar month).

PD-O report. If taxable person performs supplies subject to the domestic reverse-charge, it has to file a PD-O report. The deadline for the submission of the report is the last working day of the month, following the reporting period.

Digital reporting. VAT returns must be filed through the electronic filing system of the Slovenian tax authorities ("eDavki").

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. A penalty may be imposed for late registration or failure to register for VAT in Slovenia and for late filing or failure to file VAT returns.

Penalties for late payment and filings. For late filing or non-filing of a VAT return, a penalty ranging from EUR3,000 to EUR125,000 may be imposed, depending on the size and type of the organization.

For late payment or nonpayment of VAT, a penalty ranging from EUR3,000 to EUR125,000 may be imposed, depending on the size and type of the organization.

Default interest of 3% per year is imposed for the late payment of VAT due, effective from 1 January 2019.

For Intrastat, a penalty of up to EUR1,250 may be imposed for late submission, failure to submit, or for inaccurate declarations. In addition, a penalty of up to EUR125 may be imposed on a person responsible for the return.

For EU Sales Lists, penalties ranging from EUR3,000 to EUR125,000 may be imposed, depending on the size and type of the organization for late submissions, failures to submit, or inaccurate filings.

Penalties for errors. There is no definition of an error in the Slovenian VAT act. The offenses covered by the Act are listed in Articles 140 and 141 of the Slovenian VAT Act. The penalties imposed for errors are set in the range outlined above for late filing.

Penalties for fraud. An offense committed by a responsible person of a taxable entity may result in a fine ranging from EUR1,000 to EUR10,000.

The criminal offense of tax evasion is punishable by a term of imprisonment ranging from one to eight years.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:

- The supply of goods or services made in South Africa by a registered person
- Reverse-charge services received by a person in South Africa that is not entitled to claim full input tax credits (referred to as imported services)
- The importation of goods from outside South Africa, regardless of the status of the importer

Goods that are imported from countries in the Southern African Customs Union (that is, Botswana, Lesotho, Namibia, South Africa and Eswatini (previously known as Swaziland) are not subject to customs duty, but they are subject to VAT.

C. Who is liable

A vendor is required to account for output tax on all goods and services supplied in South Africa, unless the supply is specifically exempted by the Value-Added Tax Act.

A "vendor" (taxable person) is a person (business entity or individual) carrying on an activity in or partly in South Africa on a continuous or regular basis if, in the course of the activity, goods or services are supplied to another person for consideration exceeding the registration threshold. This includes persons who are registered for VAT in South Africa as well as persons who are required to register as vendors.

A person is required to register as a vendor if the value of taxable supplies exceeds (or is expected to exceed) ZAR1 million in any consecutive 12-month period or a signed contract is in place proving that the ZAR1 million threshold will be exceeded in the following 12-month period (except for some electronic services; see E-commerce suppliers).

Importers are liable to pay VAT on imported goods. There are certain exemptions where VAT is not chargeable, like when goods are donated by a nonresident to an association not for gain, personal use goods imported by tourists and goods temporarily admitted for processing or repairs.

Recipients of services are liable to pay VAT on imported services to the extent that the services will be utilized or consumed in the making of nontaxable supplies. Imported services are exempt from VAT if the value of the supply does not exceed ZAR100 per invoice.

In addition to actual goods and services supplied by a vendor, the VAT act also deems certain supplies to be supplies of goods or services. The person making the deemed supply is liable to pay VAT. Deemed supplies include the following:
- Ceasing to be a vendor
- Short-term indemnity payments
- Change in use
- Excess payments not refunded within four months
- Fringe benefits
- Receipts of payments from government by designated entities for purposes of taxable supplies
- Trading stock used for private purposes
- Betting and gambling transactions

Exemption from registration. The VAT law in South Africa does not contain any provision for exemption from registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. A person whose turnover is below the compulsory registration threshold may register for VAT on a voluntary basis if the value of its taxable supplies exceeds ZAR50,000 in any 12-month period (excluding the provision of commercial accommodation, for which the threshold is ZAR120,000). Certain industries such as welfare organizations, projects funded by foreign donors, and municipalities can register even if they don't meet the voluntary registration threshold.

Group registration. VAT grouping is not allowed under South African VAT law. All legal entities must register for VAT individually. VAT is charged on transactions between separately registered entities within a commercial group in accordance with the general VAT rules and subject to the rules relating to supplies between related persons.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that has no fixed establishment in South Africa. A non-established business that makes taxable supplies of goods or services continuously or regularly in South Africa must appoint a tax representative and open a South African bank account to register for VAT. The VAT authorities may appoint any person as an agent for any other person to recover amounts due to the SARS.

Tax representatives. A registered VAT vendor needs to appoint a natural person residing in South Africa as a tax representative to assist in tax matters and to represent the entity in South Africa.

Reverse charge. In South Africa, a reverse charge only applies if the services are intended to be used in the making of nontaxable supplies by the recipient of the services. The recipient of the services is liable to account for the VAT thereon.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in South Africa.

Digital economy. The supply of electronic services by a foreign supplier to recipients in South Africa is subject to VAT. The liability to register for VAT will arise where the electronic services are supplied from a place outside South Africa to a recipient that is a resident of South Africa or where payment to the non-established business originates from a South African bank. This specific inclusion applies where at least two of the following circumstances are present:
- The electronic services are supplied to a South African resident.
- Any payment for such services is made from a South African bank.
- The electronic services are supplied to a person with a business address, residential address or postal address in South Africa where a tax invoice will be delivered.

The term "electronic services" is defined in a regulation. From 1 April 2014 to 31 March 2019 it provided that the following services were electronic services if provided by means of an electronic agent, electronic communication or the internet for consideration:
- Educational services (distance teaching programs, educational webcasts, internet-based courses, internet-based educational programs or webinars, if the person supplying the educational service is not regulated by an educational authority in the foreign country)
- Games and games of chance (electronic games, interactive games and electronic betting or wagering)
- Internet-based auction services
- Miscellaneous services (e-books, audio visual content, still images and music)
- Subscription services (to any blog, journal, magazine, newspaper, games, internet-based auction service, periodical, publication, social networking service, webcast, webinar, website, web application or web series)

Prior to 1 April 2019, the VAT registration threshold for e-service suppliers is e-service supplies in excess of ZAR50,000 with no time period limitation. From 1 April 2019, this threshold is increased to supplies of e-services in excess of ZAR1 million during a 12-month period.

From 1 April 2019, "electronic services" is defined as all services supplied by means of an electronic agent, electronic communication or the internet for consideration qualifies as "electronic services," except for the following:
- Educational services supplied from outside South Africa and regulated by an educational authority in terms of the laws of that country
- Telecommunications services
- Services supplied from a place outside South Africa by a company that is not a resident of South Africa to a company that is a resident of South Africa if both those companies form part of the same group of companies (which requires a direct or indirect 100% equity shareholding) and the company that is not a resident of South Africa itself supplies those services exclusively for the purposes of consumption of those services by the company that is resident of South Africa

Online marketplaces and platforms. Where electronic services are supplied after 1 April 2019 by an intermediary (such as an online marketplace or platform) who is acting on behalf of another person who is the principal for the purposes of that supply, the supply is deemed to be made by the intermediary and not the principal if the following requirements are complied with:
- The intermediary should be a vendor.
- The principal should not be a resident of South Africa and not a registered vendor.

- The electronic services are supplied or to be supplied by the principal to a person in South Africa.

The effect of the above is that the principal is not required to register for VAT and levy VAT on the electronic services, but the intermediary must do so instead.

Registration procedures. A VAT 101 form needs to be completed and supporting documentation such as the following needs to be presented (note that exact requirements change regularly and can differ per office):

- Company registered vendor.
- The electronic services are supplied or to be supplied by the principal to a person in South Africa. with the Companies and Intellectual Property Commission (CIPC):
  - — Copy of certificate of incorporation
  - — Copy of identity document or passport of two members/directors/shareholders/trustees of the company
  - — Bank details
  - — Original letter from bank
  - — Three months' bank statements with original bank stamp
  - — Copy of financial information listed as source under financial particulars (to determine value of taxable supplies (no cash flow projections or business plans will be accepted)
  - — If a practitioner is submitting the application on behalf of a vendor, a power of attorney authorizing the practitioner to act on behalf of the vendor
  - — Copy of identity document, driving license or passport of representative vendor
  - — For holding/subsidiary company or nonresident company
  - — VAT 119i form indemnity for banking details where third party's bank details are used
  - — VAT 121 form if tax period is category E
    - — Confirmation of business address
    - — Recent copy of the business municipal account, or utility bill or CRA01 form
    - — Confirmation of residential address
    - — Recent copy of the above is that residential municipal account, or utility bill or CRA01 form of individual, partner or representative vendor
- Non-established company:
  - — Copy of certificate of incorporation — if in a foreign language it must be translated in writing into English
  - — If the principal is not foreign company has a physical presence in South Africa, copy of the municipal account of the business must be submitted
  - — Where the foreign company has no physical/business address in South Africa; proof of the physical address of the representative vendor is required to register
  - — Certified copy of passport documents of the members directors/shareholders/trustees of the company
  - — Copies of financial information listed as source in the financial particulars section of the application form to determine value of taxable supplies, if the value is not in South African currency, the South African rand equivalent must be provided (no cash flow projections or business plans will be accepted)
    - — Bank details
    - — Original letter from bank
    - — Three months' bank statements with original bank stamp
    - — VAT 119i form indemnity for banking details where third party's bank details are used
    - — Relevant material required for representative vendor/authorized practitioner
    - — In case of a practitioner, a Letter of Authority or Power of Attorney to authorize the practitioner to act on behalf of the applicant
    - — Certified copy of identity document of representative vendor
- "Electronic service" company:

— Copy of certificate of incorporation
— Proof of registration with foreign authority, i.e., issued Tax Registration Certificate issued in the country of residence confirming registration of any tax administered by that foreign country
— Copy of identity document or passport of the appointed foreign representative or specified contact person with regards to the registration application
— Copy of a recent bank statement from the South African registered bank in South Africa (if a bank account was opened in South Africa — it is, however, not a requirement to have a South African bank account in the case of registering a foreign electronic service provider) nonresident

Deregistration. A vendor can apply to SARS to be deregistered if its taxable supplies during a 12-month period is below the ZAR1 million threshold. If a vendor's taxable supplies during a 12-month period is below the voluntary registration threshold of ZAR50,000, the commissioner will automatically deregister the person. The deregistration rules apply to all vendors.

If a vendor ceases to carry on all enterprises, the commissioner must be notified within 21 days.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.
The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 15%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for the zero rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Exports of goods and related services
- International transport of passengers and goods, and related services
- Certain supplies of goods that are used exclusively in an export country
- Services supplied outside South Africa and to foreign branches and head offices
- Certain basic foodstuffs
- Sanitary towels (pads)
- Illuminating kerosene and leaded and unleaded gasoline
- Supply of gold coins issued by the reserve bank
- Supply of an enterprise capable of separate operation as a going concern (provided that all of the requirements are met)
- Supply of fuel levy goods and certain fuels obtained from crude to be refined to produce fuel levy products
- Receipt of certain grants
- Supply of intellectual property for use outside of South Africa
- Supply of services to nonresidents subject to certain provisions
- Triangular supplies (the vendor supplies goods to a nonresident but delivers them in South Africa; special requirements apply)
- The supply of goods that have been imported and entered for storage in a licensed Customs and Excise storage warehouse but have not been entered for home consumption

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Financial services, including Sharia finance premiums
- Fare-paying passenger transport by road or rail

- Educational services
- Child care
- Donated goods supplied by certain nonprofit (charitable) bodies
- Rental of residential accommodation
- Immovable property located outside South Africa
- The supply of goods by a non-established business before the goods are entered for home consumption, unless the non-established business applies in writing to the SARS to have the supplies zero-rated
- Certain supplies made by bargaining councils to their members are exempt from VAT. The exemption was previously limited to situations in which the supplies were covered by membership contributions

Option to tax for exempt supplies. Where a nonresident non-vendor supplies goods in South Africa that have not been entered for home consumption, the supply is exempt from VAT. However, the nonresident may apply to the Commissioner to, having regard to the circumstances of the case, direct that the exemption from VAT shall not apply to the person.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point."

In South Africa, the basic time of supply is the earlier of the issuance of an invoice or the receipt of payment.

Other tax points are used for a variety of situations, including betting transactions, construction transactions, supplies made from vending machines and "lay-by" sale agreements.

The tax point for supplies of goods between related persons is when the goods are removed by or made available to the purchaser or recipient of the goods. The time of supply for the supply of services between related persons is when the services are performed.

The tax point for goods consigned or delivered to a branch or main business outside South Africa is when the goods are actually consigned or delivered. The tax point for services supplied to a branch or main business outside South Africa is when the services are performed.

The supply of immovable property is deemed to take place at the earlier of the following dates:

- The date on which the registration of the transfer is made in a deeds registry
- The date on which payment is received

Deposits and prepayments. The supply is deemed to take place at the earlier of when the goods are delivered, or any payment of consideration is made.

Continuous supplies of services. The tax point for periodic supplies is the earlier of the date on which payment is due or the date on which payment is received.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules for supplies of goods sent on approval for sale or return. As such, the basic time of supply rule (as outlined above) applies and is the earlier of the issuance of an invoice or the receipt of payment.

Reverse-charge services. The time of supply for reverse-charge services is the earlier of when the supplier issues an invoice, or the time payment is made in respect of the supply.

Leased assets. The time of supply for leased assets is to the extent that payment becomes due or is received, whichever is the earlier.

Imported goods. The tax point for imported goods varies depending on the source of the goods being imported. The following are the applicable rules:

- For goods that are imported from a Southern African Customs Union country: when the goods are brought into South Africa at the border post
- For goods imported from other countries: when the goods are cleared for home consumption
- For goods imported and entered into a licensed Customs and Excise storage warehouse: when the goods are cleared from the warehouse for home consumption

Where an importer is registered for VAT purposes and will utilize or consume the imported goods in the making of taxable supplies, the importer may claim the VAT paid on importation as an input tax deduction. Where a customs deferment account is used by the importer (or its clearing agent) the importer needs to ensure that the VAT is paid to SARS before it claims an input tax deduction. The importer is entitled to claim the VAT paid on importation as an input tax deduction in the tax period in which the goods are released in terms of the customs and excise act.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A registered vendor may recover input tax (that is, VAT charged on goods and services supplied to it for business purposes) by offsetting it against output tax, which is VAT charged on supplies made in a particular tax period provided they have valid tax invoices.

Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services supplied in South Africa and VAT paid on the importation of goods.

A vendor is entitled to an input tax deduction on the acquisition of secondhand goods located in South Africa. Secondhand goods are specifically defined as goods that were previously owned and used, excluding animals. The definition of "secondhand goods" excludes gold,, and goods containing gold (i.e., goods consisting solely of gold and gold coins). Other secondhand goods containing gold, such as computers or watches, acquired for the sole purpose of supplying those goods in substantially the same state, still qualify for the notional input tax deduction. In addition, a vendor must hold a completed VAT264 Declaration or supply of secondhand repossessed or surrendered goods form in order to deduct notional input tax on secondhand goods acquired.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for taxable purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use or services used for making exempt supplies). In addition, input tax may not be recovered for specifically excluded business expenditure, such as entertainment.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Purchase or hire of a motor car (subject to certain exceptions)
- Business and staff entertainment (subject to certain exceptions)
- Business gifts (to the extent that the gift constitutes "entertainment," as defined)
- Club subscriptions

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Purchase, hire and maintenance of vans and trucks
- Attendance at conferences and seminars
- Vehicle maintenance costs (including motor cars)
- Mobile phones
- Air transport within South Africa
- Aviation fuel
- Trading stock
- Raw materials
- Marketing expenditure

Partial exemption. Input tax directly related to the making of exempt supplies is not recoverable. If a taxable person makes both exempt and taxable supplies, it may recover only a portion of the input tax incurred. In South Africa, the deductible portion is determined using the following two-stage calculation:

- The first stage identifies the input tax directly attributable to taxable and exempt supplies. Input tax directly attributable to taxable supplies is deductible, while input tax directly related to exempt supplies is not deductible.
- The second stage identifies the amount of the remaining input tax (for example, input tax on general business overhead) that cannot be directly attributed to the making of taxable or exempt supplies. Such input tax may be deducted only to the extent that it relates to the making of taxable supplies. In general, the deductible portion is determined by comparing the value of taxable supplies to total supplies. However, a vendor may apply to the SARS for another equitable apportionment method (for example, apportionment based on floor space or activity), particularly if significant investment income, foreign-exchange gains or other nontaxable passive income is realized.

Capital goods. If a recipient intends to use a capital good (e.g., fixed property) acquired for making taxable supplies, the recipient may deduct the input tax incurred on acquisition, but only to the extent of payment made. If the capital good is intended to be used partially for making taxable supplies and partially for nontaxable supplies, only the portion relating to the intended taxable use may be deducted.

Capital goods are defined as land (together with improvements affixed thereto), any sectional title unit, any share in a share block company that confers a right to or an interest in the use of immovable property, any time-sharing interest, and any real right in any such land, unit, share or time-sharing interest.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax recoverable in a period exceeds the amount of output tax payable in that period, a refund of the excess may be claimed.

The SARS pays interest at the prescribed rate if it does not pay the refund claimed within 21 business days after the date on which the VAT return is received by the SARS. The SARS is not liable for interest if the vendor did not provide bank account details, if the returns furnished were incomplete or defective in any material respect or if the return is being investigated.

Pre-registration costs. Where goods or services are acquired for or on behalf of a company or in connection with incorporation of that company, the goods or services will be deemed to be received by that company if the person who paid the cost was reimbursed and the goods were acquired in the carrying out of that company's enterprise. The goods or services will be deemed to have been paid by that company in the same tax period during which the reimbursement took place. This shall not apply in any of the following circumstances:

- Expenses occurred more than six months prior to incorporation.
- The company does not have sufficient records to substantiate that the goods or services received were taxable supplies.
- The expenses relate to secondhand goods.

Write-off of bad debts. Where a vendor writes off bad debt, it may deduct a portion of the output tax levied on the supply. The portion of output tax levied that may be deducted is calculated as the ratio of consideration written off to total consideration. The requirements that should be complied with to deduct VAT on bad debt written off, are (i) the vendor should have made a taxable supply for consideration in money, (ii) the vendor should have submitted a VAT return wherein the output tax levied on the supply was accounted for, and (iii) the vendor should write off so much of the consideration as has become irrecoverable.

A vendor may not make an input tax deduction in respect of a debt which has:

- Become irrecoverable under an instalment credit agreement if the goods supplied in terms of that agreement have been repossessed by or surrendered to the vendor
- Become irrecoverable if the vendor accounts for tax on the payment basis

- Become irrecoverable in respect of a taxable supply of goods or services to another vendor if the vendor and the recipient vendor are wholly owned members of the same "group of companies" for income tax purposes, for as long both the vendors are wholly-owned members of the same "group of companies"
- Been transferred at face value to another person on a non-recourse basis

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred in relation to noneconomic activities is not recoverable in South Africa.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

VAT incurred by businesses that are neither established nor registered in South Africa may be recovered only with respect to goods that are exported from South Africa. The goods must be exported from a designated port within 90 days after the invoice date. A refund may be claimed from the VAT Refund Administrator. No claim may be made with respect to services (such as hotel accommodation and restaurant meals) consumed in South Africa.

A business that regularly or continuously supplies goods or services in South Africa may be liable to register as a VAT vendor, even though the business is neither established nor registered in South Africa, if it carries on an enterprise and meets the registration requirements. In this instance, the non-established business registered as a vendor may recover input tax through the normal VAT return process.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. Vendors are required to issue a full tax invoice for all supplies made if the consideration (that is, the total amount received inclusive of VAT) amounts to ZAR5,000 or more.In some cases, tax invoices need not be issued (for example, for certain periodic supplies) if the underlying documentation, such as a rental agreement, includes the information contained in a tax invoice.

Credit notes. A VAT credit note, or debit note may be used to reduce VAT charged and reclaimed on a supply of goods or services. A credit note, or a debit note may be issued only if the tax charged is incorrect or if the supplier has paid incorrect output tax as a result of one or more of the following circumstances:

- The supply has been canceled.
- The nature of the supply has been fundamentally varied or altered.
- The previously agreed consideration has been altered by agreement with the recipient of the supply.
- All or part of the goods or services have been returned to the supplier, including goods or services returned to a vendor who acquired a business as a going concern and the goods or services returned were supplied by the previous owner of the concern.
- An error has occurred in stipulating the amount of consideration agreed upon for that supply.

If a credit note adjusts the amount of VAT charged, it must be clearly marked "credit note" and must refer to the original tax invoice. It must briefly indicate the reason that it is being issued and provide sufficient information to identify the transaction to which it refers.

Agents must issue a tax invoice within 21 days of making a supply on behalf of a principal. Furthermore, an agent importing goods on behalf of a principal is required to issue a statement to the principal containing certain particulars in regard to importations for a particular period.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is allowed in South Africa, but it is not mandatory. It should contain the same particulars as nonelectronic invoices, but the format of electronic invoices is not prescribed. The electronic transmission and retention of documents is regulated by the Electronic Communications and Transaction Act, which requires that the following requirements are complied with for documents to be presented or retained in its original format:

- The integrity of the information should be assessed from the time when it was first generated in its final form as a data message by considering whether the information has remained complete and unaltered.
- The information should be capable of being displayed or produced to the person to whom it is to be presented.

Vendors wishing to issue electronic tax invoices must ensure that they meet all these requirements. Vendors do not need prior approval from the Commissioner to implement electronic invoicing.

Simplified VAT invoices. If the total amount in money for the supply is less than ZAR5,000, the supplier may issue an abridged tax invoice, which does not require the name, address and VAT registration number of the recipient to be in the invoice. Where the total consideration for a supply (i.e., VAT inclusive consideration) does not exceed ZAR50, the supplier is not required to issue a tax invoice.

Self-billing. A vendor may issue recipient-created tax invoices subject to the following:
(i) The Commissioner's approval
(ii) The supplier and recipient agreeing that the supplier shall not issue a tax invoice
(iii) The recipient providing the document to the supplier and retaining a copy

The Commissioner has granted pre-approval for issuing recipient-created tax invoices where the recipient carries out the following:
(i) Determines the consideration for the supply
(ii) Is in control of determining the quantity or quality of the supply, or is responsible for measuring or testing the goods sold by the supplier

Proof of exports. Exports can be classified as either direct exports or indirect exports. Direct exports (that is, the selling vendor is responsible to deliver the goods at an address outside South Africa) can be zero-rated if certain documentary requirements are met. In the case of indirect exports (that is where the recipient is responsible for exporting the goods from South Africa), the supplying vendor may only zero-rate the supply if the goods are supplied to a non-established recipient and the supplier ensures that the goods are delivered at a designated harbor or airport from where the recipient exports the goods, or the goods are delivered to the recipients appointed agent that exports the goods via road or rail.

Documentation that must be retained in the case of an indirect export where the supplier is (under certain circumstances) entitled to elect to apply a zero-rate is:

- A copy of the zero-rated tax invoice
- The customer's order or the contract between the customer and supplier
- The customs documentation
- Proof that the movable goods have been received by the customer in the export country
- The transport documentation as required for the relevant mode of transport (i.e., road manifest, a copy of the combined consignment note, and wagon label issued by the rail operator, or a copy of the container terminal order or freight transit order issued by the container operator or the rail operator, the sea freight transport document or the airfreight transport document)
- Proof of payment for the movable goods supplied to the customer

Where the supplier contracts with a cartage contractor to deliver the goods to a customer outside South Africa the following additional documentary proof:

- Proof that the supplier paid the transport costs
- In the case of transport by road, a copy of the proof of delivery issued by the cartage contractor that the movable goods have been received by the customer in the export country

Documentation that must be retained in the case of an indirect export where the supplier elects to apply a zero-rate is:
- A copy of the zero-rated tax invoice
- A copy of the customer's trading license (i.e., a document indicating that the customer is carrying on a business outside South Africa)
- The customer's order or the contract between the customer and supplier
- Proof of payment for the movable goods supplied to the customer
- A letter from the customer authorizing a person to represent the customer and a copy of such person's passport
- Proof of delivery of the goods to the harbor or airport
- Export documentation

Documentation that must be retained in the case of an indirect export where the supplier elects to apply a zero-rate and where the customer's agent exports the goods from South Africa via road or rail is:
- A copy of the zero-rated tax invoice
- A copy of the customer's trading license (i.e., a document indicating that the customer is carrying on a business outside South Africa)
- A letter from the customer authorizing a person to represent the customer and a copy of such person's passport
- The customer's order or the contract between the customer and the supplier
- Proof of payment for the movable goods supplied to the customer (the proof of payment must be in compliance with South African Reserve Bank (SARB) requirements where applicable)
- Proof of delivery of the goods to the customer's agent's premises
- A statement from the customer's agent containing an inventory reconciliation of all the movable goods received from the supplier and exported by the agent or a cartage contractor engaged by either the customer or its agent to the customer
- Confirmation of the proof of export from the customer's agent

Foreign currency invoices. In general, a tax invoice must be issued in South African rand (ZAR). However, if the invoice relates to a zero-rated supply, the tax invoice may be issued in any currency. If an invoice is issued in a foreign currency, the rand equivalent of the net amount, the VAT amount and the gross amount (or just the gross amount with a statement that it includes 15% VAT) must be disclosed on the invoice and must be determined using one of the following exchange rates:
- The daily exchange rate on the date the time of supply occurs
- The daily exchange rate on the last day of the month preceding the time of supply
- The monthly average rate for the month preceding the month during which the time of supply occurs

The exchange rate as published on the following websites may be used:
- The South African Reserve Bank (www.resbank.co.za/Research/Rates/Pages/SelectedHistorical ExchangeAndInterestRates.aspx)
- Bloomberg (www.bloomberg.com/markets/currencies/cross-rates)
- The European Central Bank (www.ecb.europa.eu/stats/exchange/eurofxref/html/index.en.html)

Supplies to nontaxable persons. There are no special invoicing rules for supplies to nontaxable persons in South Africa. As such, full VAT invoices are required.

Records.

Record retention period. Records, including tax invoices, should be retained for a period of five years from the date that the relevant VAT return in which the input tax is deducted, is submitted. Where tax invoices are relevant to an audit or investigation, or if the vendor has objected or filed an appeal against an assessment, tax invoices should be retained until the audit or investigation is concluded or the assessment becomes final.

Electronic archiving. Tax invoices should be retained in their original form or in a form, including electronic form. Where documents are retained in electronic form, the following requirements must be complied with:

- The integrity of the electronic record should satisfy the standard contained in the Electronic Communications and Transactions Act. This effectively means that the vendor should be in a position to prove that the electronic record remained complete and unaltered from the time that it was created in electronic form.
- The vendor should within a reasonable period when required by SARS, be able to provide an electronic copy of the e-invoice to SARS in a format that SARS can access, read and analyze, or be able to send the e-invoice to SARS in an electronic format that is readily accessible by SARS, or provide SARS was a paper copy of the e-invoice.
- SARS should be able to access the electronic records for purposes of performing its functions.
- The e-invoices should be kept and maintained at the place physically located in South Africa. If the e-invoices will be kept at a place outside of South Africa, the vendor will have to obtain preapproval from SARS.
- The vendor must ensure that measures are in place for adequate storage of the e-invoices for the duration of the period that it is required to retain the e-invoices. This includes the appropriate storage of the media on which the electronic records are recorded, the storage of all electronic signatures, login codes, keys, passwords or certificates required to access the e-invoices, and procedures to obtain full access to electronic records of that are encrypted.
- The e-invoices should be available for inspection by SARS at all reasonable times and at premises located in South Africa. The e-invoices should also be available to SARS for audit purposes.
- The vendor should ensure that the electronic system used enables it to demonstrate to SARS during an inspection that these rules are complied with.
- Any electronic signatures, login codes, keys, passwords or certificates that are required to access the e-invoices must be made available to SARS to enable it to carry out an inspection.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. The tax return period is monthly for persons with annual taxable turnover in excess of ZAR30 million. The tax return period is bimonthly for persons with annual taxable turnover below ZAR30 million. Other tax periods are available (biannually (i.e., six-monthly) and annually) for special categories of persons with annual taxable supplies lower than ZAR1.5 million, such as farmers, farming enterprises and nonprofit associations, but only with the prior agreement of the SARS.

VAT returns must be filed by the 25th day after the end of the tax period or, if returns are filed electronically through the SARS e-filing system, by the end of the month following the tax period. If the due date falls on a Saturday, Sunday or a public holiday, the due date is the last business day before the 25th, or the last business day before the end of the month in the case of electronic filing.

Periodic payments. VAT must be paid by the 25th day after the end of the tax period or, if paid electronically through the SARS e-filing system, by the end of the month following the tax period. If the due date falls on a Saturday, Sunday or a public holiday, the due date is the last business day before the 25th, or the last business day before the end of the month in the case of electronic filing.

Electronic filing. Vendors may file returns electronically, via "eFiling," which allows you to make submissions and electronic payments to SARS electronically. Registration for eFiling and the submission of VAT returns via eFiling is compulsory for VAT registered nonresident suppliers of electronic services. Other vendors may still submit paper-based VAT returns at a SARS office.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in South Africa.

Special schemes. No special schemes are available in South Africa.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in South Africa.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in South Africa.

Digital reporting. VAT returns may be filed electronically. No other digital reporting requirements apply in South Africa.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. A taxable person is required to register for VAT within 21 days of becoming liable for registration. A 10% late payment penalty, interest at the prescribed rate (currently 10.5% per annum) and an understatement penalty of between 5% and 200% of the VAT payable may be levied in a case where a person registers late. Where such late registration is made under a voluntary disclosure application, the understatement penalty will not be levied, and the person can apply for a remission of the 10% late payment penalty.

Penalties for late payment and filings. A penalty equal to 10% of the net VAT due is imposed if the VAT return is submitted late or if the VAT payment is made after the due date. The SARS may remit the penalty if satisfied that:

- The penalty has been imposed for a first incidence of noncompliance or involved an amount of less than ZAR2,000
- Reasonable grounds for the noncompliance exist
- The noncompliance at issue has been remedied
- If exceptional circumstances are present

Interest is charged at the prescribed rate on late payments of VAT, calculated for each month or part of a month. A vendor may request the SARS to remit interest if the late payment was due to circumstances beyond the vendor's control (like natural or human disaster, civil disturbance or disruption and serious illness or accident).

Penalties for errors. In the case of an understatement, the taxpayer has to pay, in addition to the VAT payable, an understatement penalty determined according to an understatement penalty percentage table, which ranges between 5% and 200%. An understatement means prejudice to the SARS or the fiscus in respect of a tax period as a result of:

- A default in rendering a return
- An omission from a return
- An incorrect statement in a return

Where a default is disclosed to SARS under a voluntary disclosure application before SARS commences with an audit or investigation, the understatement penalties are reduced to 0%.

Penalties for fraud. In the case of an understatement where the taxpayer's behavior amounts to gross negligence or intentional tax evasion, the taxpayer has to pay, in addition to the VAT payable, an understatement penalty of between 100% and 200%.

Administered by	National Revenue Authority
Sales tax rates
Standard	18%
Sales tax number format	Tax identification number (TIN) 123-345-678
Sales tax return periods	Monthly
Thresholds
Registration	More than SSP12,000 for services and SSP100,000 for goods
Deregistration	Less than SSP12,000 for services and SSP100,000 for goods
Recovery of sales tax by non-established businesses	No

B. Scope of the tax

Sales tax applies to the following transactions:

- Production of goods in South Sudan
- Importation of goods into South Sudan
- Specified services (include hotel, restaurant and bar services)

Please note that sales tax does not apply after production and the goods are exported from South Sudan. Exports are outside the scope of sales tax (i.e., not subject to the standard rate nor exempt).

C. Who is liable

Tax registration is universal for all taxes. Each legal person is required, if liable, to register for sales tax. This is where any persons who manufacture goods or supply prescribed services (hotel and bar services) are subject to sales tax.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. The sales tax law in South Sudan provides for mandatory sales tax registration for businesses supplying specified services worth more than South Sudanese pound (SSP) 12,000 per year. Whereas for local producers the registration threshold is set at supplies worth more than SSP100,000. A business may register for tax including sales tax if its taxable turnover is less than SSP12,000 for specified services and SSP100,000 for local producers.

Group registration. Group registration is not allowed in South Sudan. However, tax registration for a joint venture/partnership is allowed.

Non-established businesses. All businesses are treated the same for tax purposes, and this includes non-established businesses. As such, there are no special rules for non-established businesses. However, in case of restaurant and bar services, non-established businesses that have an annual turnover of less than SSP12,000 or those that do not have a sitting area for customers are exempted from sales tax. Other non-established domestic producers making taxable supplies with a turnover of less than SSP100,000 are also exempted.

Tax representatives. The law allows taxpayers to appoint a tax advisor to represent them on tax matters. A tax representative, a position that carries more responsibility compared to a tax advisor, is not provided in law.

Reverse charge. Reverse charge is not applicable on services purchased abroad. For goods purchased abroad, businesses account for sales tax at the point of clearing the goods through customs. Subsequently, they are not required to file any return if their sales tax is through importation only.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in South Sudan.

Digital economy. No special rules exist for the digital economy in South Sudan.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in South Sudan.

Registration procedures. Tax registration is performed by making a written application to the National Revenue Authority (NRA). The application includes a cover letter, a completed prescribed form. Certificate of registration, Chamber of Commerce certificate, operating license and lease agreement. NRA may request for a site visit before registering a person for tax.

Deregistration. Tax deregistration can occur under any of the following circumstances:
- An incorporated entity closes down, ceases to exist, sells or transfers a business
- In the case of a sole proprietorship, if the individual dies
- In the case of a partnership, if it is dissolved, or change of a partner
- The legal status of the registered person changes
- If a person is registered in error
- In any other case as may be provided by law or regulations

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of sales tax. The standard sales tax rate is 18%. As such, all goods and services liable to sales tax attract tax at the rate of 18%.

Exemption from sales tax is on a case-by-case basis. These exemptions are only granted to diplomatic missions or donor funded projects based on agreements with government of South Sudan.

E. Time of supply

The time of supply rule for produced goods is when goods are released outside the production premises.

The time of supply rule for services is when services are provided.

Deposits and prepayments. There are no specific time of supply rules in South Sudan for deposits and prepayments. As such, the normal time of supply rules apply.

Continuous supplies of services. There are no specific time of supply rules in South Sudan for continuous supplies of services. As such, the normal time of supply rules apply.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no specific time of supply rules in South Sudan for goods sent on approval for sale or return. As such, the normal time of supply rules apply.

Reverse-charge services. There are no specific time of supply rules in South Sudan for reverse-charge services. As such, the normal time of supply rules apply.

Leased assets. There are no specific time of supply rules in South Sudan for leased assets. As such, the normal time of supply rules apply.

Imported goods. The time of supply rule for imported goods is at the time the importation is completed.

F. Recovery of sales tax by taxable persons

Nondeductible input tax. Sales tax is not operated on an input-output model in South Sudan, and therefore deduction of input tax is not allowed.

Partial exemption. Deduction of input tax is not allowed in South Sudan.

Capital goods. Input tax incurred on capital goods in South Sudan, is not recoverable.

Refunds. Refunds of sales tax in South Sudan is not allowed.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax incurred on pre-registration costs in South Sudan, is not recoverable.

Write-off of bad debts. Input tax incurred in relation to bad debts in South Sudan, is not recoverable.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred in relation to noneconomic activities is not recoverable in South Sudan.

G. Recovery of sales tax by non-established businesses

Input tax incurred by non-established businesses in South Sudan is not recoverable.

H. Invoicing

Sales tax invoices. It is mandatory for transactions requiring collection of sales tax to be accompanied by an invoice detailing the name of the business, tax payer identification number, description of sale, sale value and sales tax applicable. This, however, does not include transactions at the time of import.

Credit notes. South Sudan law does not provide detail for the issuance of credit notes. However, in practice credit notes and similar adjustments and other related transactions should be treated in a similar manner as invoices.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is not allowed in South Sudan.

Simplified sales tax invoices. Simplified VAT invoicing is not allowed in South Sudan. As such, full VAT invoices are required.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in South Sudan.

Proof of exports. On exportation, at the point of exit, the South Sudan customs office will sign off and stamp export declaration forms, which serve as evidence of goods having left South Sudan.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. There are no special invoicing rules for supplies to nontaxable persons in South Sudan. As such, full VAT invoices are required.

Records. There are no special record-keeping rules for sales tax.

Record retention period. Records must be kept for at least six years. Each taxpayer shall keep accounts of all transactions and these accounts shall be made available in South Sudan for inspection by a revenue officer.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is allowed.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. Returns must be filed on a monthly basis along with the payment of the tax due. Upon payment of the tax, a tax receipt is issued by the receiving bank. This tax receipt, together with the completed tax return and any other supporting documents, should then be submitted to the nearest National Revenue Authority office.

Sales tax returns must be submitted monthly by 15th of every month.

Periodic payments. Sales tax due must be paid by the same date as the sales tax return submission deadline of 15th of every month. Monthly payments are made directly through a designated commercial bank using a prescribed form.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is not allowed in South Sudan. Taxpayers must present a hard copy return to the nearest tax office in South Sudan.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in South Sudan.

Special schemes. No special schemes are available in South Sudan.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in South Sudan.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in South Sudan.

Digital reporting. No digital reporting requirements apply in South Sudan.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. Late registration for sales tax attracts a penalty of SSP500 for each month or part month during which such failure to register continues. Additionally, criminal charges may be brought against person(s) who fail to register for sales tax.

Penalties for late payment and filings. Late filing of sales tax returns attracts a penalty of 5% per month for each month the sales tax return remains unfiled, up to a maximum of 25%. Additionally, late payment of sales tax attracts a penalty of 5% per month for every month the sales tax remains unpaid. This penalty is not capped.

A monthly interest rate of unpaid tax is at the rate of 120% of average interbank lending rates. At the time of preparing this chapter, the tax authority is using a flat interest rate of 3.6% per month.

Penalties for errors. Where there is an understatement of sales tax, the following penalties may apply:

- Less than 25% of the tax due, the taxpayer shall be liable to a 10% penalty of the understatement
- Exceeds 25% of the tax due, the taxpayer shall be liable to a 50% penalty of the understatement
- Exceeds twice the times of the tax due, the taxpayer shall be liable to a penalty of between 100%-200% of the understatement
- If the error is voluntarily disclosed by the taxpayer, the taxpayer shall be liable to a penalty of 5% of the understatement

Penalties for fraud. Penalty for fraud is not specifically provided in the sales tax law in South Sudan. However, any offense specifically not provided in law when adjudicated for can attract a maximum penalty of one year in prison.

Non-established	None

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- The supply of goods or services made in Spain by a taxable person
- The intra-Community acquisition of goods from another EU Member State by a taxable person
- The importation of goods from outside the EU, regardless of the status of the importer
- Reverse charge on goods and services received by a taxable person in Spain

For VAT purposes, the territory of Spain excludes the Canary Islands, Ceuta and Melilla.

C. Who is liable

A “taxable person” is any business entity or individual that makes taxable supplies of goods or services, intra-Community acquisitions, imports or distance sales in the course of a business in Spain.

No VAT registration threshold applies in Spain. A taxable person that begins its activity must notify the VAT authorities of its liability to register.

Exemption from registration. Exemption from VAT registration in Spain is allowed for the following legal or individual bodies:

- Taxpayers who only carry out transactions that do not give right to the total or partial VAT deduction (e.g., exempt supplies — cultural, medical, financial transactions) or taxpayers who carry out transactions that are subject to the agriculture, livestock and fishing special scheme, or legal persons that do not carry out transactions as professionals or entrepreneurs, when the intra-EU acquisitions of goods carried out by the mentioned legal persons are not subject to VAT
- Bodies that do no act as professionals or entrepreneurs that carry out intra-EU acquisitions of new means of transport
- Bodies that occasionally carry out VAT exempt supplies of new means of transport
- Professionals or entrepreneurs not established in the Spanish VAT territory who only perform in Spain, transactions for which they are not considered to be a taxable person
- Professionals or entrepreneurs not established in the Spanish VAT territory who only carry out supplies in Spain of intra-EU acquisitions of goods and subsequent supplies of those goods

In addition to the above, it is important to note that there are two types of VAT registrations in Spain; this is the full VAT registration and the limited VAT registration.

The limited VAT registration applies in cases where nonresident entities need a VAT number for the purpose of carrying out intra-EU acquisitions of goods, or deemed intra-EU acquisition of goods, or imports of goods. However, they are not deemed as taxable persons in respect of subsequent supplies of those goods performed within Spain (since, for instance, the reverse charge applies to the ongoing local supplies of those goods).

The full VAT registration under the General VAT taxpayer regime is needed when the nonresident entity is going to perform transactions in Spain, for which it is considered to be a taxable person, such as domestic supplies where output tax should be charged; exports of goods, or intra-EU supplies of goods.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. The VAT law in Spain does not contain any provision for voluntary VAT registration, as there is no registration threshold (i.e., all entities that make taxable supplies are obliged to register for VAT in the terms described above).

Group registration. VAT grouping is allowed under Spanish VAT law. Notwithstanding this rule, companies that belong to a VAT group must still register for VAT purposes individually. This is such that the VAT group as a whole will be assigned by a Spanish tax ID number and, in addition, each entity belonging to the group will have its own Spanish tax ID number.

Non-established businesses. A non-established business that makes supplies of goods or services in Spain must register for VAT if it is liable to account for Spanish VAT on the supply.

Tax representatives. A non-established business must register in Spain for VAT purposes if it makes any of the following supplies:

- Intra-Community supplies or acquisitions
- Distance sales in excess of the threshold
- Supplies of goods and services that are not subject to the reverse-charge mechanism
- Exports

In general, non-established taxpayers must appoint a tax representative in Spain.

Taxable persons established in the EU, foreign companies established in the Canary Islands, Ceuta or Melilla, and foreign companies established in a country that has a mutual assistance agreement with Spain, are exempt from the above general rule. However, in practice, the tax authorities require the appointment of a VAT representative even for companies established in the EU, because it is mandatory to have a Spanish address where communications issued by the tax authorities can be easily received.

A fiscal representative is no longer compulsory when an EU company is going to be registered for VAT in Spain. However, a fiscal representative is required for non-EU companies. The fiscal representative must be tax registered and willing to act as the local representative of the company, managing queries and filing obligations of the company for dealings with the tax authorities.

Reverse charge. The reverse-charge mechanism generally applies to supplies made by non-established businesses to taxpayers. Under this mechanism, the taxpayer is the recipient of the goods or services supplied.

If a foreign taxable person supplies goods to a company established in Spain, the recipient of the supply becomes liable for VAT purposes. However, the reverse-charge mechanism does not apply to certain items, including the following:
- Goods acquired through distance or mail order sales
- Exempt exports
- Exempt intra-Community supplies

The reverse-charge mechanism also applies if a foreign taxable person supplies goods in Spain to another foreign taxable person.

If a foreign taxable person supplies services to a company established in Spain, the company established in Spain is treated as the taxpayer.

If a foreign taxable person supplies services subject to Spanish VAT to another foreign taxable person, in general, the supplier is liable for the VAT due.

Domestic reverse charge. Apart from the cases described above, the reverse charge also applies to the following domestic transactions in Spain:
- Supplies of certain kinds of gold and gold-processed products, silver, platinum and palladium
- Supplies of certain wastes from iron, paper or glass industries
- Supplies of services related to rights on greenhouse gases
- Supplies of immovable property on the frame of insolvency proceedings, warranty executions or exempt supplies of immovable property when the exemption is waived
- Work executions
- Supplies mobile phones, videogame consoles, tablets and laptops

Digital economy. The place of supply for services rendered through electronic means to private individuals is the place where the recipient is established.

As from 1 January 2019, new rules apply to the place of supply for supplies of telecommunications, broadcasting and electronic services to non-VAT-taxable customers. Under Council Directive 2017/2455, the Spanish VAT Law and Regulation will include a reference to the new additional requirement to determine the place of supply of telecommunications, broadcasting and electronic services. Disregarding the fulfillment of other requirements, this new condition requires that the total value, exclusive of VAT, of the referred supplies does not in the current calendar year exceed EUR10,000, or the equivalent in national currency, and did not do so in the course of the preceding calendar year.

In case the aforementioned threshold is surpassed, the place of supply would be deemed as the Member State where the recipient of telecommunications, broadcasting and electronic services is established.

Mini One-Stop Shop. In connection with the special scheme applicable to services rendered through electronic means:

- The regime is applicable, not only to business-to-consumer (B2C) services rendered through electronic means, but to B2C telecommunications services, radio and television broadcasting services.
- A simplification is included in order to avoid VAT registration in each Member State for e-suppliers, businesses providing B2C services rendered through electronic means are allowed to file a single, periodical VAT return and payment in connection with its supplies in each Member State.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Spain.

Vouchers. The regulation on the VAT treatment of vouchers has been implemented through the Resolution dated on 28th December 2018, from the Spanish General Tax Directorate, which is based on the Council Directive (EU) 2016/1065 of 27 June 2016 amending Directive 2006/112/EC as regards the treatment of vouchers. According to it, there are two kind of vouchers:

- Single-purpose vouchers (SPV) are those in which the place of supply of the goods or services to which the voucher relates, and the VAT due on those goods or services, are known at the time of issuing the voucher. The taxation of a supply of a SPV is the same as the supply of goods or services to which the voucher is referred. SPV is subject to VAT at the time of its supply.
- Multi-purpose vouchers (MPV): is a voucher which, at the time of its issuance, the taxation of the underlying supply cannot be known. In particular, MPV are those that can be redeemed by goods or services located inside or outside the VAT territory or goods or services taxed at different VAT rates. The supply of the MPV is not subject to VAT. It will be the supply of goods or services for which the MPV is redeemed that will be subject to VAT.

Registration procedures. To obtain a Spanish VAT number, an application must be made in Spanish, which requires certain supporting information such as a memorandum and Articles of Association/an extract from the company's national trade register, a Power of Attorney for the company's fiscal representative or the company/person in charge of the registration or a census form 036 to be filed before the Spanish tax authorities. This form must be filed physically (no electronic filing).

The Spanish tax authorities require the person or persons signing on behalf of a nonresident entity for the purposes of its registration to have a nonresident ID number in Spain. Therefore, a new 030 form is required by the Spanish tax authorities in connection with the registration of nonresident entities.

Although this obligation could be argued according to law (it is not required according to the wording of the VAT act currently in force), the Spanish tax authorities are refusing to register nonresident entities without the ID numbers of their representatives.

In principle, the registration should be performed before the commencement of the economic activity in Spain; however, it is a common practice to request the registration on the same date that the economic activity would start.

Once all the necessary information is gathered, the registration should be obtained on the same day that the registration return (036 form) is filed.

Deregistration. To deregister for VAT purposes, the taxpayer submits, either physically or online, a census return (036 form) to the Spanish Tax Authorities.

Deregistering from the census as a professional entrepreneur involves more, as it cancels the tax identification number. The same census return (036 form) is submitted in the same way, but it must be accompanied by additional documentation.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 21%
- Reduced rates: 4%, 10%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services, unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 4%
- Basic foodstuffs
- Books, journals and magazines
- Pharmaceutical products for humans
- Certain goods and services for handicapped persons

Examples of goods and services taxable at 10%
- Food and drink for human or animal consumption
- Pharmaceutical products for animals
- Prescription glasses and contact lenses
- Certain medical equipment
- Residential dwellings
- Passenger transport
- Hotel and restaurant services
- Garbage collection
- Trade fairs and exhibitions
- Cinema tickets
- Cultural live shows/entertainment

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services
- Immovable property, in certain cases
- Medical services
- Finance
- Insurance
- Universal postal services

Option to tax for exempt supplies. Taxpayers may opt to pay tax on supplies of real estate (land or buildings) if:
- The recipient has the right, total or partial, to deduct input tax.
- The recipient has no right to deduct input tax, but the goods acquired would be destined, totally or partially, to carry out operations giving the right to deduct input tax.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point." The basic time of supply for goods is when the goods are placed at the disposal of the purchaser. The basic time of supply for services is when the service is performed. If the service is ancillary to a supply of goods, the time of supply is when the goods are placed at the disposal of the purchaser. A VAT invoice must generally be issued at the time of supply.

Deposits and prepayments. The tax point for prepayments or advance payments is the date when the advance payment is received.

Continuous supplies of services. The tax point is when each payment is due.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules in Spain for supplies of goods sent on approval for sale or return. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above). However, where the goods are returned, the taxable amount must be modified, and a rectifying invoice should be issued from the supplier.

Reverse-charge services. No specific tax point rules apply. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

Leased assets. The tax point is when each payment is due.

Imported goods. The time of supply for imported goods is the date of importation (according to the customs documents), or the date on which the goods leave a duty suspension regime.

Intra-Community acquisitions. The tax point is the time when the goods are placed at the consumer's disposal. The general rule for prepayments does not apply to intra-Community supplies and acquisitions of goods; that is, a prepayment does not modify the tax point.

Intra-Community supplies of goods. The time of supply is the earlier of the 15th day of the month following the month in which the goods are removed from the supplier or the date when the invoice is issued.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxpayer may recover input tax, which is VAT charged on goods and services supplied for business purposes. A taxpayer generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax, which is tax charged on supplies made. Input tax may be deducted in the accounting period in which the output tax was charged or in any successive period, up to a period of four years from the time of supply.

Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services supplied in Spain, VAT paid on imports of goods and VAT self-assessed on intra-Community acquisitions of goods and reverse-charge transactions.

A valid tax invoice or customs document is required to apply for input tax deduction.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used directly and exclusively for business purposes. In addition, input tax may not be recovered for some items of business expenditure.

In general, input tax may be claimed with respect to travel, hotel and restaurant expenses if the Spanish corporate income tax law allows for a deduction, which is often the case.

The following lists provide some examples of items of expenditure for which input tax is not deductible and examples of items for which input tax is deductible if the expenditure is related to a taxable business use.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Business entertainment
- Business gifts (unless of very low value)
- Alcohol and tobacco
- Private expenditure

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- 50% of purchase, hiring, leasing, maintenance and fuel for cars, vans and trucks (a higher percentage of deduction is allowed if the taxable person provides to the authorities evidence proving that the percentage of time used for business purposes exceeds 50%)

- Attending conferences, seminars and training courses
- Advertising
- Business use of home telephone or mobile phone
- 50% of parking
- Taxis, restaurant meals, hotel accommodation and travel expenses if the expense is allowable under the Spanish income tax or corporate tax law or if the taxable person has the appropriate documentation (generally, an invoice)

Partial exemption. Input tax directly related to the making of exempt supplies is, as a rule, not recoverable. If a Spanish taxable person makes both exempt and taxable supplies, it may not recover input tax in full. The amount of input tax that a partially exempt business may recover is calculated using the general pro rata method or the direct allocation method. The general pro rata method is generally used unless the taxable person chooses the direct allocation method. However, the direct allocation method must be used if the general pro rata method provides a VAT recovery amount that exceeds by 20% (10% starting in 2015) or more the amount of input tax recoverable using the direct allocation method.

General pro rata method. The general pro rata method is based on the ratio of taxable turnover and total turnover during the calendar year. Because the taxpayer cannot know its annual ratio for the current calendar year when filing its periodic VAT returns, the pro rata percentage for the preceding year or an agreed provisional percentage is used. The calculation is regularized in the last period of the VAT year (that is, the actual figures for the year are calculated and applied and any further adjustment is made).

Direct allocation method. The direct allocation method consists of the following two-stage calculation:

- In the first stage, the taxpayer must distinguish between input tax that corresponds to taxable and to exempt supplies. Input tax directly allocated to taxable supplies is deductible, while input tax directly related to exempt supplies is not deductible.
- The remaining input tax that is not allocated directly to exempt and taxable supplies is apportioned using the general pro rata method. The recovery percentage is rounded up to the nearest whole number (for example, a percentage of 16.3% is rounded up to 17%).
- Taxable persons can opt for the direct allocation method in December of the current year. That method is then applied to the deductions for that whole year and in the following two years.

Deductions in different sectors. If a taxable person undertakes activities in different economic sectors, it must apply different methods to calculate the partial exemption deduction for each sector, as if each economic activity were carried out by an independent business. This rule applies if the business undertakes activities that are subject to different pro rata recovery percentages. A business is deemed to undertake such activities in the following circumstances:

- The activities fall under different groups according to the national classification of economic activities.
- The pro rata percentage for VAT recovery for one economic sector of the business differs by more than 50 percentage points (either higher or lower) from another sector of the business.

If goods or services are used in one of the distinct economic sectors, the VAT paid is recovered according to the pro rata recovery percentage for that sector. However, if goods or services are used by more than one economic sector, the amount of VAT recovered must be based on the general pro rata method.

Capital goods. Capital goods are items of capital expenditure that are used in a business over one year and that have an acquisition price exceeding EUR3,000. Input tax is deducted in the VAT year in which the goods are acquired and first used. The amount of input tax recovered depends on the taxpayer's pro rata recovery percentage in the VAT year of acquisition and first use. However, the amount of input tax recovered for capital goods must be adjusted over time if the taxable person's pro rata recovery percentage differs by 10 percentage points during the adjustment period or if the goods are transferred or sold during the adjustment period.

In Spain, the capital goods adjustment applies to the following assets for the number of years indicated:
- Immovable property: adjusted for a period of 10 years (the year of the acquisition and first use and the following nine calendar years)
- Movable property: adjusted for a period of five years (the year of the acquisition and first use and the following four calendar years)

The adjustment is applied each year following the year of acquisition and first use, to a fraction of the total input tax (1/10 for immovable property and 1/5 for other movable capital goods). The adjustment may result in either an increase or a decrease of deductible input tax, depending on whether the ratio of taxable supplies made by the business increases or decreases, compared with the year in which the capital goods were acquired and first used.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax recoverable exceeds the amount of output tax payable, a refund may be claimed. A business may choose to request a refund of the excess VAT or to carry it forward to offset output tax in the following four years.

Two different procedures are available with respect to applications for refund of the excess input tax. These procedures are summarized below.

General procedure. Under the general procedure, the taxable person may only apply for the refund in the last VAT return of the year (monthly or quarterly). The tax authorities have a six-month period beginning on the date of the application to analyze whether the taxable person has the right to obtain the refund. After such term is exceeded, delay interest on the refund due is payable to the taxable person.

Special procedure. Under the special procedure, the taxable person may apply for inclusion in the monthly VAT refund census. Taxable persons included in such a census may apply for the VAT refund in each monthly VAT return. The tax authorities have a six-month period beginning on the date of the application to analyze whether the taxable person has the right to obtain the refund. After such term is exceeded, delay interest on the refund due is payable to the taxable person. However, as of the month following the request the company will be obliged to submit the information related to its invoices through the "Immediate Submission of Information" (ISI) system.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax incurred on pre-registration costs in Spain, is not recoverable.

Write-off of bad debts. Entities with a turnover of EUR6,010,121 or lower could consider that a credit qualifies as bad debt, and thus, the taxable amount could be modified once six months or one year has elapsed as of the date of the accrual.

The term to amend the taxable base is extended from one to three months, as of the date of bankruptcy declaration.

Noneconomic activities. Recovery of input tax incurred in relation to noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Spain.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Spain refunds VAT incurred by businesses that are not established in Spain. Non-established businesses may claim Spanish VAT to the same extent as VAT-registered businesses.

EU businesses. For businesses established in the EU, refund is made under the terms of the EU 2008/9/EC Directive. The condition of reciprocity is not required in connection with input tax borne on accommodation, travel and restaurant services related to attendance at fairs or exhibitions in Spain.

As a result of the entry into force of the EU VAT Package, effective from 1 July 2010, VAT refund applications corresponding to VAT borne in Spain by non-established businesses from the EU are filed in the EU Member State where the business is established instead of with the Spanish tax authorities.

Applications from businesses not established in Spain or in another EU Member State must continue to be filed with the Spanish tax authorities.

The Spanish VAT authorities have made the commitment to pay refunds within four months after the date on which the claim for a refund is submitted, but if additional information is requested, the reimbursement procedure could take up to eight months. Interest is paid on late refunds.

Non-EU businesses. For businesses established outside the EU, refund is made under the terms of the EU 13th Directive on the condition of reciprocity. Spanish VAT is refunded only to non-EU claimants established in Canada, Israel, Japan, Monaco, Norway and Switzerland. A non-EU claimant must appoint a VAT representative in Spain.

The condition of reciprocity is not required in connection with input tax borne on accommodation, travel and restaurant services related to attendance at fairs or exhibitions in Spain.

Effective from 1 January 2019, a new electronic mechanism regarding the procedure for the VAT refund to travelers living or with residence outside the EU will enter into force. It would be compulsory to prove the exemption by a new electronic document, the so-called "DER" (documento electrónico de reembolso).
(i) Acquired goods
(ii) Applicable VAT quota
(iii) Acquirer identification
(iv) Date of birth
(v) Passport or, if applicable, ID number
(vi) QR code

For the purpose of requesting the VAT refund, the goods shall leave the EU territory within the next three months and the traveler has to physically identify the goods before the customs authorities, which would certify that the goods effectively leave the EU territory by sealing the DER. As an alternative, this new document also allows the traveler to validate the DER itself by scanning the QR code in specific locations enabled by the Spanish tax authorities in certain Spanish airports/ports. Once the DER is sealed, the nonresident traveler is entitled to request the VAT refund from the supplier, who must reimburse the VAT quota in the following 15 days.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A Spanish taxpayer must generally provide a VAT invoice for all taxable supplies made, including exports and intra-Community supplies. VAT invoices are not automatically required for certain transactions if the taxable amount does not exceed EUR400 (EUR3,000 for certain retail transactions). Simplified invoices are issued instead, unless requested by the customer.

A VAT invoice is necessary to support a claim for input tax deduction or a refund under the EU 2008/9/EC Directive or the EU 13th Directive refund schemes (see the chapter on the EU).

Credit notes. The Spanish Invoicing Regulations do not foresee the so-called "credit notes" or "debit notes" and consequently the invoices are amended through a rectifying invoice (factura rectificativa) which must be cross-referenced to the original invoice and must contain the same information together with the reason for the amendment and the final corrected position.

Electronic invoicing. The VAT law permits electronic invoicing in line with EU Directive 2010/45/EU. As of 15 January 2015, it is mandatory to issue electronic invoices in connection with the supplies performed with Spanish public entities.

The “Immediate Submission of Information” (ISI) system entered into force on 1 July 2017. This change to the VAT system moves from a system that has been in place for the last 30 years, to a new system whereby VAT books are registered with the electronic office of the Spanish tax authorities, by supplying invoice information on an almost immediate basis.

Companies will be required to keep VAT books with the electronic office of the Spanish tax authorities, by electronically providing invoice details. In this regard, companies are required to send the Spanish tax authorities their invoice data and the Spanish tax authorities will use this information to configure the different VAT books of the company in real time.

In addition, the Spanish tax authorities will use the ISI system to cross-check in real-time information provided by suppliers and clients. Therefore, discrepancies between information provided by the company and information provided by third parties should be avoided, as they can be immediately detected by the Spanish tax authorities and could have negative consequences for both parties. Please see Section I. VAT returns and payment for more detail on the ISI.

Simplified VAT invoices. The Spanish Invoicing Regulation foresees in its article 4 a list of transactions and circumstances under which the transactions can be documented by a simplified invoice (replacing the former “tickets”). Simplified invoices can be generally used if the amount of the invoice does not exceed the threshold of EUR400 (VAT included) and for amending invoices.

In particular, if the amount of the invoice does not exceed the threshold of EUR3,000 (VAT included) and the transactions correspond to the following supplies:
- Ambulance supply of goods or supply of services
- Home delivered supply of goods or supply of services
- Passenger and luggage transport services
- Hotel and catering services provided by restaurants and similar establishments, as well as the supply of drinks or meals to be consumed immediately
- Services provided by dance halls and discotheques
- Telephone services provided through the use of telephone booths for public use, as well as through cards that do not allow identification of the person who is phoning
- Hairdressing services and those provided by beauty institutes
- Use of sports halls
- Photo development and services provided by photographic studios
- Parking services
- Movie rental
- Dry cleaning and laundry services
- Use of toll roads

In addition, for supplies of telecommunications, broadcasting and electronic services to non-VAT taxable customers, Spanish suppliers of these services are required to issue invoices to nontaxable customers.

Self-billing. Self-billing by the recipient of the transactions is allowed in Spain when the following conditions are met:
- There must be an agreement through which the supplier authorizes the recipient to issue the invoices.
- The recipient must forward a copy of the invoice to the supplier, who must accept and approve the invoice.
- These invoices are considered to have been issued in the name and on behalf of the supplier.

Proof of exports and intra-Community supplies. VAT is not chargeable on supplies of exported goods or on intra-Community supplies of goods (see the chapter on the EU). However, to qualify as zero-rated, exports and intra-Community supplies they must be supported by evidence that the goods have left Spain. Acceptable proof includes the following documentation:

- For an export, the documentation consists of the customs declaration (export SAD) with evidence that it was filed and admitted by the customs authorities, transport documents and an indication on the invoice of the article of the Spanish VAT law that allows exemption with credit for the supply.
- For an intra-Community supply, the supplier must retain a copy of the invoice indicating the customer's valid VAT identification number (issued by another EU Member State), together with a range of commercial documentation, such as bills of lading, transport documentation and proof of payment. Such proof for intra-Community supplies are included within the EU Quick Fixes, coming into effect from 1 January 2020.

Foreign currency invoices. If a VAT invoice is issued in a foreign currency, the values for VAT purposes and the VAT amounts must be converted to euros. The exchange rate that is used must be the official selling rate published by the Bank of Spain for the date on which the VAT is due. The VAT amount must be expressly stated in euros.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. The Spanish Invoicing Regulation foresees in its article 4 a list of transactions that can be documented by a simplified invoice (replacing the former "tickets"), for instance in a retail supply (see the subsection above on simplified VAT invoices).

Records.

Record retention period. For tax purposes, all the invoices and records must be kept for four years (statute of limitation period).

However, for commercial law purposes, all the documents must be retained by the taxpayers for at least six years.

Electronic archiving. The Invoicing Regulation envisages the obligation of keeping the invoices in a format that ensures their readability, authenticity and content.

This obligation can be fulfilled by electronic means if the above requirements are met.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. Periodic VAT returns are submitted in Spain on a monthly or quarterly basis, depending on the taxable person's turnover and activities.

Taxable persons whose turnover in the previous year exceeded EUR6,010,121 must file their VAT returns on a monthly basis. Taxable persons included in the monthly VAT refund census must also file monthly VAT returns (and the VAT books [Form 340]), because they are entitled to apply for a VAT refund on a monthly basis.

Quarterly VAT returns must be submitted by the 20th day of the month following the end of the quarter for the first three calendar quarters, and by 30 January of the following year for the last calendar quarter. Monthly VAT returns must be filed by the 20th day of the month following the month of the assessment.

Periodic payments. Periodic VAT returns must be paid by the due date. Quarterly VAT returns must be paid by the 20th day of the month following the end of the quarter for the first three calendar quarters, and by 30 January of the following year for the last calendar quarter. Monthly VAT returns must be paid by the 20th day of the month following the month of the assessment.

Electronic filing. VAT returns (303 forms) and the Informative Annual Summary VAT return (390 form) must be filed through electronic means by using an electronic signature owned by the taxpayer or a third party duly empowered. When the VAT returns (303 forms) result in amounts to be paid or refunded, a Spanish bank account number is required.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Spain.

Special schemes.

Travel agencies. There is a special scheme for travel agencies that includes among others the opt-out possibility in connection with business-to-business (B2B) supplies where the normal VAT regime could be applied.

Cash accounting. Under the cash accounting scheme, taxpayers report the VAT charged on sales of goods or supply of services on the date when the payment is received, and the right to deduct input tax arises when payment is made. The scheme is optional and is subject to certain requirements.

Simplified regime. The simplified regime allows taxpayers to determine the payable amount on the basis of certain indexes, modules and other parameters. This regime can only be applied by individuals and some other entities conducting certain activities envisaged by the law.

Farming, agriculture and fishing. Under this regime, taxpayers are not obliged to charge VAT for their sales and do not have the right to deduct the input tax borne in the purchases. Additionally, taxpayers are released from most of the formal obligations.

Secondhand, art and antiques goods. The special system for secondhand goods are a type of VAT system, applied voluntarily to resellers when acting in their own name and supplying the goods referred to above. These supplies will be charged with VAT by applying the corresponding tax rate on a taxable basis, which will be the profit margin obtained in each transaction.

Investment gold. Mandatory regime applicable to the supplies of gold qualifying as investment gold. In general, the regime implies that the supplies of investment gold are VAT exempt, with a limitation to deduct the input tax and the possibility to waive such exemption.

Retailers. The regime is applicable to retailers selling goods to final consumers, in case the retailer does not carry out any transformation over the goods to be sold. Under the retailer regime, the supplier of the retailer will charge the latter an extra cost in the invoices (in general 5.2%). By doing this, the retailer avoids all the formal obligations (i.e., submission of VAT returns), but it will not be entitled to deduct the input tax.

Annual returns. The Informative Annual Summary VAT return (390 form) contains the information declared in the periodical VAT returns of the corresponding calendar years and additional information. It must be filed electronically between 1 January and 30 January of the following year.

All taxable persons must also complete an annual summary VAT return.

Supplementary filings.

Intrastat. A Spanish taxable person that trades with other EU countries must complete statistical reports, known as Intrastat, if the value of its EU sales or purchases of goods exceeds certain thresholds. Separate reports are required for intra-Community acquisitions (Intrastat Arrivals) and for intra-Community supplies (Intrastat Dispatches).

The current threshold for Intrastat Arrivals in 2019 is EUR400,000. The current threshold for Intrastat Dispatches in 2019 is also EUR400,000.

The Intrastat return submission period is monthly. The submission deadline is the 12th day following each month. A taxable person required to file Intrastat returns must file them each month even if they are nil returns.

EU Sales and Acquisitions List. If a Spanish taxable person makes intra-Community supplies or intra-Community acquisitions of goods and/or services in any return period, it must submit an EU Sales and Acquisitions List (ESAL). An ESAL return is not required for any period in which the taxable person does not make any intra-Community supplies or acquisitions of goods and/or services.

In principle, ESAL returns are submitted on a monthly basis. However, ESAL returns must be filed on a quarterly basis if the intra-EU supplies of goods and/or services performed in the current quarter or during the four preceding calendar quarters do not exceed the threshold of EUR50,000.

Taxable persons whose turnover does not exceed EUR35,000 may file annually under certain conditions.

ESALs must be submitted by the 20th day of the month following the end of the monthly or quarterly filing period. The last monthly or quarterly ESAL for a year must be filed by 30 January of the following year.

Digital reporting.

Immediate Submission of Information (ISI). The "Immediate Submission of Information" (ISI) system entered into force from 1 July 2017. Under the new system, the information related to all invoices issued, received, customs documents and accountancy documents, if any, must be transmitted electronically and almost immediately to the Spanish tax authorities, so that the Spanish tax authorities have all of the information relating to the operations carried out by VAT taxpayers in real time. In particular, the information related to each invoice issued or received must be electronically communicated to the Spanish tax authority within four working days of the date of its issuance or from the date it was accounted for respectively.

The new system is compulsory for businesses and professionals who are required to file VAT returns on a monthly basis, in other words those who:
(i) Have a turnover of over EUR6 million
(ii) Are included in the monthly refund regime
(iii) Are applying the VAT grouping provisions

The system can be used by any other business or professional by filing a census form, whereby they expressly opt to be included in the system.

The deadlines for filing VAT returns for taxpayers who file on a monthly basis is extended to the 30th day of the following month, or for the return relating to January, until the last day of February. Additionally, taxpayers obliged to comply with the ISI are not obliged to file the annual summary, the VAT books form (form 340) and the annual return of transactions with third parties (form 347).

Bookkeeping system for products subject to excise duties (SILICIE). As of 1 January 2020, compliance with bookkeeping requirements relating to products subject to excise duties and, when applicable, raw materials used in their production, will be carried out via the tax agency's e-office with the electronic delivery of accounting records. SILICIE will be compulsory to the owners of factories, tax warehouses, tax stores, receiving warehouses and vinegar factories. Under the new system, the information related to the accounting records must be transmitted electronically and almost immediately to the Spanish tax authorities. In general terms, the information must be electronically communicated to the Spanish tax authorities within 24 hours of the date of the movement, the transaction or the process that is recorded.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. A penalty of EUR400 may be assessed for late registration. This penalty may be reduced to EUR200 if the taxpayer registers voluntarily (albeit late) without receiving a prior request from the Spanish tax authorities.

Penalties for late payment and filings. The following surcharges apply to the late submission of VAT returns or late payment of VAT before any request by the tax authorities:
- Delay up to three months: 5% of the tax due
- Delay between three months and six months: 10% of the tax due
- Delay between 6 months and 12 months: 15% of the tax due
- Delay longer than 12 months: 20% of the tax due plus interest

Delays or failure in the provision of information for the ISI could lead to the imposition of penalties up to 0.5% of the invoice amount, with a quarterly minimum of EUR300 and maximum of EUR6,000.

The penalty for late or incorrect Intrastat filings depends on the level of infringement. Penalties range from EUR60 to EUR30,050.

Penalties may be imposed for late, missing or inaccurate ESALs.

Penalties for errors. The penalties for errors in the VAT returns depend on whether mistake has caused an economic damage to the tax administration or not.

If no economic damage has been produced, the penalty for late filing amounts to EUR200, while the penalty for incorrect filing amounts to EUR150.

If the error has caused an economic damage to the tax authorities (e.g., the taxpayer indicates a lower amount of output/payable VAT) the penalty amounts to 50% of the unpaid amount.

For the purpose of this penalties, an error means any inaccuracy or incorrect data indicated in the VAT returns or any VAT statement to be filed by taxpayers.

Penalties for fraud. Under the Spanish General Tax Law, the use of fraudulent means makes any infringement to qualify as very severe. In such a case, the applicable penalty related to a particular infringement is considerably increased.

Plans to replace the turnover tax with a VAT system in Suriname are ongoing, the exact timing of this is unknown.

A. At a glance

Name of the tax	Turnover tax (TOT)
Local name	Omzetbelasting
Date introduced	30 December 1997
Trading bloc membership	CARICOM (Caribbean Community and Common Market)
Administered by	Inspection of taxes
Standard rate for services provided	8%
Standard rate for delivery of goods	10%
Standard rate for import of goods	10%
Other	25%, zero-rated (0%) and exempt
TOT number format	XXXXX (5 digits)
TOT return periods	Monthly
Thresholds	None
Recovery of TOT by non-established businesses	No

B. Scope of the tax

TOT applies to the following transactions:

- The supply of services in Suriname by an entrepreneur as part of its business
- The delivery of goods that are produced in Suriname by an entrepreneur
- The import of goods in Suriname

C. Who is liable

In principle, a taxable entrepreneur is a business entity or individual who delivers goods or performs services (tax activities) in Suriname.

Exemption from registration. There is no specific exemption from registration in Suriname TOT law.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. Voluntary registration is not available in Suriname.

A small entrepreneur is a resident individual who has a turnover of SRD 6SRD6,000 or less per calendar year. Small entrepreneurs will not be liable and will not be required to submit TOT returns for monthly periods if a request is filed with and granted by the tax authorities. Small entrepreneurs, who are not liable for TOT and are not required to submit TOT returns, will also not be able to deduct the TOT incurred.

Group registration. TOT grouping is not allowed under the TOT legislation. Legal business entities must register for TOT individually.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is able to register for TOT in Suriname.

Tax representatives. A taxpayer may be represented by a third party based on a power of attorney or a license from the Tax Inspector. A tax representative is not a mandatory requirement for a non-established business, it is optional.

Reverse charge. For services provided in Suriname by a non-established business to a resident entrepreneur, the reverse-charge mechanism applies. In this case, the resident entrepreneur that receives these services is liable for TOT and has to report and pay TOT on these services.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Suriname.

Digital economy. There are no specific rules or law relating to the digital economy. However, for a non-established business making supplies of digital services to consumers in Suriname (B2C) it will be required to register for VAT in Suriname, as there is no registration threshold.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Suriname.

Registration procedures. To register, an applicant submits a registration form in hard copy along with certain requested documentation to the tax authorities. Completion of the registration process should take approximately one week.

Deregistration. To deregister with the tax authorities, a taxpayer should provide proof of deregistration as issued by the Suriname Chamber of Commerce. The deregistration with the tax authorities should be completed once all tax filing and payment obligations have been met.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of TOT, including the zero rate.

The TOT rates are:
- Standard rate: 10% (delivery and import of goods) and 8% (services)
- Special rate: 25% (luxury goods)
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of TOT applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for a special rate, the zero rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Exports (to qualify for the 0% TOT rate, export documentation issued by customs must be in place)

Examples of goods and services taxable at 25%

- Video cameras
- Motorbikes

- Automobiles and other motor vehicles for passenger transport
- Television larger than 31 inches
- Speedboats, water scooters and yachts
- Weapons and munition
- Fireworks

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to TOT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Suriname has an exemption for goods related to the so-called "primary necessities of life," such as fresh potatoes, vegetables and fruits. The government publishes an exhaustive list.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Goods related to the so-called "primary necessities of life." The government publishes an exhaustive list, some examples are provided below:
  - Cheese
  - Butter
  - Fresh fish
  - Salt
  - Toilet paper
  - Electric energy and cooking gas

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Suriname.

E. Time of supply

The time when TOT becomes due is called the "time of supply."

In Suriname, the cash accounting scheme applies. On this basis, the actual time of supply is when payments are received for the supply of services and delivery of goods.

Deposits and prepayments. The tax point arises upon receipt of the payment for the goods or services.

Continuous supplies of services. The tax point arises upon receipt of the payment for continuously supplied services.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. In the case of importation, the tax point is upon import. In the case of a local supply, the tax point arises upon receipt of the payment.

Reverse-charge services. The reverse-charge mechanism applies for services supplied to Suriname entrepreneurs by non-established businesses. The tax point arises upon receipt of the payment.

Leased assets. For leased assets, the tax point arises upon receipt of the payment.

Imported goods. For imported goods the "time of supply" is considered to be the moment of importation.

F. Recovery of TOT by taxable persons

The TOT paid on machinery, raw materials, auxiliary or intermediate product or on services used directly for the production of TOT-taxable goods in Suriname can be deducted from TOT due, provided that the invoices on which the TOT is charged by the supplier of the goods or the person who performed the services meet specific requirements. Similarly, TOT paid in a TOT period on imported goods that are used directly for the production of TOT-taxable goods in Suriname is also deductible provided that the TOT paid is stated on the document on which the goods are imported.

As such, input tax deduction is only allowed for locally manufactured goods, and not for bought in goods. There is no input tax deduction at all when it comes to services, bought in or locally supplied.

If the TOT paid exceeds TOT due in a period, the excess will be refunded by decree of the Tax Inspector.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax can only be recovered for locally produced goods. Input tax incurred in relation to any other supplies is not recoverable in Suriname.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Input tax due on services to a manufacturer with services that are not directly related to the production of taxable goods by this manufacturer in Suriname.

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Input tax due on the delivery of raw materials to a manufacturer with raw materials that are used by this manufacturer in Suriname for the production of taxable goods.

Partial exemption. Input tax directly related to making exempt supplies is not recoverable. If a taxable person makes both exempt and taxable goods and services, it may recover input tax partially.

If the same taxable inputs are attributable to both taxable and exempt supplies, the portion of the deductible general input tax is determined based on the proportion of taxable supplies to total supplies.

Capital goods. There are no specific regulations that apply to the refund of TOT for capital goods in Suriname. As such, the normal input tax recovery rules apply.

Refunds. Under certain conditions, refunds of TOT paid with regard to the delivery of goods can be granted to a resident entrepreneur in the event that such entrepreneur is in a disadvantageous competitive position.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax incurred on pre-registration costs in Suriname is not recoverable.

Write-off of bad debts. Output tax accounted for on supplies that do not get paid by the recipient (i.e., a bad debt) cannot be recovered in Suriname.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred in relation to noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Suriname.

G. Recovery of TOT by non-established businesses

Recovery of TOT by non-established businesses is not allowed in Suriname.

H. Invoicing

TOT invoices. A taxable entrepreneur must issue invoices that are dated and numbered for all taxable delivery of goods and services. Taxable entrepreneurs must retain a copy of their invoices for 10 years.

The invoices, which contain the TOT due, must be issued within 15 days after the end of the month in which the goods are delivered or in which the services are provided.

Credit notes. Credit notes are not available in Suriname because of the cash accounting system companies use in Suriname. However, credit invoices are possible in Suriname, but they are not captured by any statutory regulation. Invoices are also less relevant in the Suriname TOT system as the TOT is calculated on the compensations received; that's why reference is made to "cash accounting system." Therefore, whatever the supplier (eventually) receives is the basis of the TOT.

There is a rule that whatever amount is charged by the supplier as TOT should be reported and paid to the tax authorities. So, a business can end up in a position that a compensation is received and a TOT return and payment with the tax authorities is done and that afterward a return or price reduction occurs. There is no specific regulation dealing with this situation.

Electronic invoices. Electronic invoicing is not allowed in Suriname.

Simplified TOT invoices. Simplified TOT invoices are not allowed in Suriname. As such, full TOT invoices are required.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Suriname.

Foreign currency invoices. Upon request of the company, invoices can be issued in USD.

Proof of export. There is no special regulation included in the Suriname TOT legislation with regard to invoices in case of export. However documents of transportation are sufficient for proof of export in Suriname, to evidence the zero-rating.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. There are no special invoicing rules for supplies to nontaxable persons in Suriname. As such, full TOT invoices are required. Invoices should always be issued by the supplier if the delivery of the good or service falls within the scope of the turnover tax. As such, the status of the client is irrelevant, i.e., even if they are retailers. Under Suriname TOT, there is no special category as "nontaxable persons."

Records. Documentation held by taxpayers must be clear and taxpayers must be able to deliver the documents needed within an acceptable time period to the tax authority.

Record retention period. Record retention period is 10 years.

Electronic archiving. No special regulation is included in the Suriname TOT legislation with regard to electronic archiving. In practice, it's possible as long as the company can deliver the documents needed within an acceptable time period.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. TOT returns are generally submitted for monthly periods. Returns must be filed and TOT due must be remitted before the 16th day of the month following the end of the reporting period. The TOT due for the period must be remitted together with the return.

Periodic payments. TOT due must be remitted before the 16th day of the month following the end of the reporting period. The TOT due for the period must be remitted together with the return.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing of TOT returns is not possible. Paper submission required only.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Suriname.

Special schemes. Special TOT regulations do not exist. The cash accounting basis is not a special scheme, as it is one of the general basics that apply to all businesses.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Suriname.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in Suriname.

Digital reporting. No digital reporting requirements apply in Suriname.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. No specific penalty is imposed for late registration. However, if late registration results in a late payment of TOT or late submission of TOT returns, penalties may be imposed.

Penalties for late payment and filings. TOT penalties are assessed for the late submission of a TOT return or for the late payment of TOT due in the following amounts:
- For the late submission of a TOT return, the fine can vary between SRD10 and SRD1,000.
- For the late payment of TOT due, the penalty can vary between SRD10 and SRD1,000.
- If the late payment is caused by negligence or intent, penalties ranging from 5% to 100% of the outstanding TOT due may be imposed.

Penalties for errors. The penalties outlined above for late payment and filings, also apply for penalties for errors.

Penalties for fraud. In Suriname, tax fraud occurs when the taxpayer by any action or omission commits fraud against the tax authorities by incorrectly computing the amount of tax due. TOT fraud is punishable by a term of imprisonment of three months, or the penalty is set at not more than SRD5,000, or if the amount of the TOT that should be paid is higher, the penalty is set at a maximum of 300% on all TOT that still has to be paid.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- The supply of goods or services made in Sweden by a taxable person
- The intra-Community acquisition of goods in Sweden for goods coming from another EU Member State by a taxable person
- Reverse-charge services received by a taxable person in Sweden
- The importation of goods from outside the EU, regardless of the status of the importer

C. Who is liable

A taxable person is an individual or business entity that makes taxable supplies of goods or services, intra-Community acquisitions or distance sales for consideration in the course of a business in Sweden.

A VAT registration threshold of SEK30,000 applies in Sweden. If a taxable person exceeds transactions subject to VAT of SEK30,000 annually, it must notify the VAT agency of its liability to register. Any taxable persons conducting business transactions that have not yet exceeded the threshold for the fiscal year are not liable to report and pay VAT for those transactions unless registered for VAT. Taxable persons whose annual turnover subject to VAT does not exceed the threshold may opt to register for and pay VAT.

Special rules apply to foreign or “non-established businesses.”

Exemption from registration. Taxable persons that only make supplies that are exempt from VAT (i.e., supplies that are zero-rated) are not required to register for VAT.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. A taxable person that is not required to register for VAT as a result of its turnover being below SEK30,000 can still choose to voluntarily register for VAT. If a taxable person does choose to voluntarily register for VAT, it cannot change this decision until at least two years have passed since the end of the business year during which the taxable person was registered for VAT.

Group registration. Companies in the financial sector as well as companies in "an agency relationship" for income tax purposes may form a VAT group. If a VAT group is formed, the group is liable for VAT if it engages in business that accrues a VAT liability.

Only entities with a fixed establishment in Sweden may be part of a Swedish VAT group. A VAT group consists of taxable persons that are closely connected to each other "financially, economically and organizationally." All three of these requirements must be satisfied. The following are the applicable rules:
- A "financial link" exists between two companies if one company holds more than 50% of the votes in the other.
- An "economic link" exists if the companies continually exchange goods or services.
- An "organizational link" exists if the group members have some joint administrative functions, such as joint management or joint marketing.

There is no minimum duration that a VAT group must be in place for. Both the forming of, and the cessation of a VAT group may however only happen following a formal decision by the tax authorities.

Non-established businesses. A non-established business that makes supplies of goods or services in Sweden must register for VAT if it is liable to account for Swedish VAT on the supply or if it makes intra-Community supplies or acquisitions of goods.

The reverse charge applies to supplies made by non-established businesses to taxable persons in Sweden, i.e., a business-to-business (B2B) supply. Under this measure, the taxable person that receives the supply must account for the Swedish VAT due. If the reverse charge applies, the non-established business is not required to register for Swedish VAT. The reverse charge does not apply to the transport of persons, cultural services or supplies made to private persons or nontaxable legal persons.

Consequently, non-established businesses must register for Swedish VAT if they make any of the following supplies:
- Intra-Community supplies or acquisitions (see the chapter on the EU)
- Distance sales in excess of the threshold (see the chapter on the EU)
- Supplies of goods and services that are not subject to the domestic reverse charge

Tax representatives. Businesses that are established in the EU are not required to appoint a tax representative to register for VAT in Sweden. However, EU businesses may opt to appoint a tax representative. This measure also applies to businesses established in any non-EU country that has mutual assistance provisions with the EU or with Sweden.

Businesses that are established outside the EU must generally appoint a resident tax representative to register for Swedish VAT. A tax representative is not jointly liable for VAT debts with the business that it represents.

Reverse charge. The reverse charge applies to supplies made by non-established businesses to taxable persons in Sweden (i.e., a B2B supply).

Domestic reverse charge. The domestic reverse charge applies to the following:
- Supplies of construction and building services to other taxable persons selling construction and building services more than occasionally, trading with emission licenses, gold and other specific metals and scrap metal
- Trading with emission licenses
- Gold and other specific metals
- Scrap metal

Digital economy. Special rules apply to the place of supply for supplies of telecommunications, broadcasting and electronic services to non-VAT taxable customers. For further details of the VAT rules on electronic services in the EU, please refer to the European Union chapter.

Mini One-Stop Shop. Taxable persons who provide electronic services, telecom applications, telecom services and broadcasting services to consumers or other nontaxable persons in another member state are reporting VAT to the state where the buyer is domiciled.

To make it easier for taxable persons to report VAT to different Member States one can use the Mini One-Stop Shop (MOSS) scheme. Suppliers report the VAT to this e-service, which automatically registers the information with the Swedish Tax Agency and transfers the right amount of VAT to the different Member States. With MOSS suppliers report VAT through one declaration and not to each country where they have customers.

To use this service suppliers must be registered for Swedish VAT and have a Swedish electronic identification. That enables them to sign in to MOSS through e-services at www.skatteverket.se and then receive a request for application to the MOSS service.

For such non-established businesses providing electronically supplied services to private consumers, the registration threshold is EUR10,000 (approximately SEK 105,000).

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Sweden. However, as of 2021, there will be specific rules applicable as Sweden adopts the EU e-commerce package. By then, a taxable person that, via online marketplaces and platforms, facilitate distance sales of goods, imported from a country outside the EU at a value less than EUR150, may, under certain circumstances, be deemed as having acquired and supplied the goods.

Vouchers. Sweden implemented the EU Directive on the VAT treatment of vouchers into the Swedish VAT Act as of 1 January 2019. The Swedish VAT Act has specific rules that define a voucher, a single purpose voucher (SPV), a multi-purpose voucher (MPV) and when a taxable event takes place and at what value. A voucher may be described as an instrument that businesses are obliged to accept as full or part payment for goods or services. Vouchers may be physical or electronic.

An SPV is an instrument where it is already at the time for issuance possible to establish all facts that are needed to decide in what country VAT shall be paid and with what amount, i.e., which taxable country, what kind of taxable supply, at what tax rate and at what amount VAT should be calculated on. All vouchers that are not SPVs are deemed as MPVs.

VAT is due when an SPV is sold if the voucher refers to a taxable transaction within Sweden. A MPV, on the other hand, is not subject to VAT when sold at a time before it is used as means as payment for goods or services. The VAT is instead due at the time when the MPV is redeemed against goods and services.

Registration procedures. The most effective way to register is online at https://www.verksamt.se/en/web/international/home. A Swedish electronic identification is required to use the online service. Otherwise, fill out the hard copy SKV 4620. Non-established taxable persons use form SKV 4632, application for foreign entrepreneurs.

The Swedish Tax Agency's website provides a how-to guide, application forms to fill out and other necessary information. The site is also available in English. See www.skatteverket.se. The how-to guide is under the "Employers, Businesses and Corporations" heading and more information is available under the "Tax Information" and "VAT Information" headings.

Normally, it takes between three and six weeks to register for VAT.

Deregistration. To deregister from VAT, the most effective way is to do it online at www.verksamt.se. A Swedish electronic identification is needed to gain access. If you do not have an electronic identification, use form SKV 4639 and send it to the address printed on the form. Non-established businesses must often use hard copies, since a Swedish personal identification number is needed in order to obtain the Swedish electronic identification.

In addition, a notification of changes for the taxpayer, such as change of activities or changes of other information that was provided when registering for VAT, should also be submitted either online at www.verksamt.se or through the use of form SKV 4639.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 25%
- Reduced rates: 6% and 12%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services, unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate, the zero rate or an exemption.

The zero rate in Sweden is referred to as "exempt with credit," which means that no VAT is chargeable, but the supplier may recover related input tax.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%
(i.e.,. exempt supplies with credit)

- Exports of goods and related services
- Supplies of intangible services made to either another taxable person established in the EU, or to any recipient outside the EU (see the chapter on the EU)

Examples of goods and services taxable at 6%

- Books and newspapers
- Copyrights and artistic rights
- Cultural services (apart from cinema services, which are taxed at the standard rate)
- Passenger transport

Examples of goods and services taxable at 12%

- Foodstuffs
- Hotel accommodation
- Restaurant and catering services
- Reparation of bicycles, shoes, leather goods, clothing and household textiles

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Immovable property
- Medical services
- Finance
- Insurance
- Pharmaceutical supplies (exempt with credit)

Option to tax for exempt supplies. Renting property or premises is an exempt service, but the supplier has the option to treat it as taxable when renting to taxable persons. Suppliers can choose the option to tax by issuing an invoice with VAT.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point." The basic time of supply for goods is when the goods are delivered. The basic time of supply for services is when the service is completed. If the consideration is paid in full or in part before the goods are delivered or the services provided, the actual tax point becomes the date on which payment is received (but the tax point only applies for the amount paid).

Deposits and prepayments. For deposits and prepayments, the tax point is the date on which the advance payment is received.

Continuous supplies of services. The VAT law in Sweden does not contain any specific time of supply rules for continuous supplies of services. As such, the normal tax point rules apply as outlined above. However, for continuous cross-border supply of services for which the buyer is liable to report VAT in Sweden, the time of supply is deemed to be at the end of each calendar year if the services are provided over a period of more than one year and no payments are made during the period in question.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. The VAT law in Sweden does not contain any specific time of supply rule for goods sent on approval for sale or return. As such the normal tax point rules apply, as outlined above.

Reverse-charge services. The time of supply for goods or services subject to the reverse charge is the earlier of the date of delivery or the date on which payment is received.

Leased assets. The tax point rules for leased assets, depends if it is a prepayment or not (see above).

Imported goods. The time of supply for imported goods is when the import takes place.

Intra-Community acquisitions. The time of supply for intra-Community acquisitions of goods is the same as the time of supply for domestic supplies.

Intra-Community supplies. An invoice must be issued for an intra-Community supply at the latest on the 15th day of the month following the supply.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax, which is VAT charged on goods and services supplied to it for business purposes. A taxable person generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax, which is VAT charged on supplies made.

Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services supplied in Sweden, VAT paid on imports of goods and VAT self-assessed on intra-Community acquisitions of goods and reverse-charge services (see the chapter on the EU).

A valid tax invoice or customs document must generally support a claim for input tax.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use by an entrepreneur). In addition, input tax may not be recovered for some items of business expenditure.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Purchases of cars
- Business entertainment (in excess of the allowable expense limits)
- Private expenditure

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Purchase, lease, maintenance and fuel for vans with a weight exceeding 3,500 kg and trucks

- Maintenance and fuel for cars and 50% lease of a car used for business (1,000 km a year)
- Conferences, seminars and training courses
- Advertising
- Business use of a mobile phone
- Hotel accommodation (excluding restaurant expenses)
- Restaurant expenses (SEK300 per person and occasionally alcohol included)
- Business entertainment (SEK180 exclusive of VAT)
- Business gifts (with a value of SEK180 or less exclusive of VAT and valued less than SEK225 inclusive of VAT)

Partial exemption. Input tax directly related to exempt supplies is not generally recoverable. If a Swedish taxable person makes both exempt and taxable supplies, it may not recover input tax in full. This situation is referred to as "partial exemption." "Exempt-with-credit supplies" do not create any partial exemption, as these supplies are treated as taxable supplies for these purposes.

The amount of input tax that a partially exempt business may recover is generally calculated in the following two stages:

- The first stage identifies the input tax that may be directly allocated to taxable and to exempt supplies. Input tax directly allocated to taxable supplies is deductible, while input tax directly related to exempt supplies is not deductible.
- The remaining input tax that is not allocated directly to exempt and taxable supplies is then apportioned based on the value of taxable supplies compared with total turnover, or it is apportioned by another reasonable method. If turnover is used to calculate the recoverable amount, the recovery percentage can be rounded up to the nearest whole number.

The use of the above calculation does not need to be approved by the tax authority. However, if any special methods are used instead, it is common that disclosures are made, especially if the calculation deviates from the turnover allocation method, but this is not a requirement. As long as the special method is deemed reasonable and sufficiently accurate it should be accepted.

Capital goods. Capital goods are items of capital expenditure that are used in a business over several years. Input tax is deducted in the VAT year in which the goods are acquired. The amount of input tax recovered depends on the taxable person's partial exemption recovery position in the VAT year of acquisition. However, the amount of input tax recovered for capital goods must be adjusted over time if the taxable person's partial exemption recovery percentage changes in any year during the adjustment period or if goods are taken from a taxable sector or activity for use in an exempt sector or activity, or vice versa.

The capital goods adjustment applies to the following assets for the number of years indicated:

- Investments made on immovable property after 1 January 2001 that cost more than SEK400,000 exclusive of VAT: adjusted for a period of 10 years
- Machinery and equipment that cost more than SEK200,000 exclusive of VAT: adjusted for a period of five years

The adjustment is applied each year following the year of acquisition to a fraction of the total input tax (1/10 for immovable property and 1/5 for machinery and equipment). The adjustment may result in either an increase or a decrease of deductible input tax, depending on whether the ratio of taxable supplies made by the business has increased or decreased compared with the year in which the capital goods were acquired.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax recoverable in a month exceeds the amount of output tax payable, the taxable person has an input tax credit. A refund of the credit is triggered automatically by the submission of the VAT return.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax on pre-registration costs give a right to deduction if connected to a business taxable for VAT. However, the taxable person has the burden of proof showing that the costs are related to the taxable business.

Write-off of bad debts. Businesses are entitled to adjust its output tax when a bad debt occurs. The reduction should be adjusted in the same period as the bad debt loss is confirmed. The bad debt loss is confirmed when the customer is bankrupt or when a debt collector has been used engaged and established that the customer does not have any assets. From a VAT perspective, it is not enough to just send reminders to the customer. The output tax should be reduced in the period in which the bad debt is confirmed, but there are no formal requirements in terms of the correction of VAT returns or additional information to be submitted to the tax authorities.

Noneconomic activities. The input tax needs to be connected and have a direct link to taxable business activities, to be deductible. The right to deduction is dependent on, and connected to, the meaning of "supplies." Supplies mean providing services or goods in exchange for some sort of compensation. The compensation needs to have a direct connection to the supplied goods or services and be determined at the latest time for deliverance.

There are some court cases stating that a business is not considered performing taxable activities if it supplies services or goods without issuing any invoices.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Sweden refunds VAT incurred by businesses that are neither established nor registered for VAT in Sweden. Non-established businesses may claim a refund of Swedish VAT to the same extent as VAT-registered businesses.

EU businesses. A refund is made to businesses established in the EU under the terms of EU Directive 2008/9. For businesses established outside the EU, a refund is made under the terms of the EU 13th Directive. Sweden does not exclude claimants from any non-EU country.

Applicants from EU Member States apply for refunds through their respective domestic tax authority.

Businesses established in the EU may not make an application for a refund on paper to the Swedish tax authority. Instead, they must submit the application electronically to the tax authority where they are established.

The minimum claim period is three months, while the maximum period is one year. The minimum period of three months does not apply to a period ending at the end of a calendar year. The minimum claim for a period of less than a year but of at least three months is SEK4,000, and the minimum amount for an annual claim or for the remainder of a calendar year is SEK500.

The time limit for the tax authority to deal with refund applications from businesses established within the EU is four months. If a claim for a refund is granted, but repaid after the specified time limit, interest is paid (without the need to actively claim it).. This rule applies if the applicant has complied with any requests for extra information from the tax authority within the time limit.

For the general VAT refund rules under EU Directive 2008/9 and the EU 13th Directive, see the chapter on the EU.

Non-EU businesses. For businesses established outside the EU, the deadline for refund claims is 30 June of the year following the calendar year in which the tax is incurred. For businesses established in the EU, the deadline is 30 September.

Claims may be submitted in Swedish, English, French or German. Applications for refund from businesses established outside the EU must be accompanied by the appropriate documentation (see the chapter on the EU).

The minimum and maximum claim periods (and associated conditions) for non-EU businesses are the same as the EU businesses claims (see above).

The average handling period in Sweden for refund claims under the EU 13th Directive is two to three months, and the time limit is six months. However, interest is not paid on late repayments.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A Swedish business must generally issue VAT invoices for all supplies made to other businesses or legal persons. Invoices are not required for retail transactions with private persons.

A VAT invoice containing the information required by the VAT act is necessary to support a claim for input tax deduction or a refund for foreign businesses (see the chapter on the EU).

Credit notes. Credit notes may be issued in the following circumstances:
• They may be used to correct genuine errors or overcharges.
• They may be issued following the cancellation of a supply.
• They may give effect to a bonus or discount.
• They may be issued as a result of the renegotiation of consideration for a supply.

A credit note must show an unambiguous reference to the original invoice and the reduction in value and VAT on the supply.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is permitted in Sweden, in line with EU Directive 2010/45/EU.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified invoices are permitted if one of the following criteria is met:
• The invoice amount does not exceed SEK4,000 (approx. EUR373)
• Commercial trade or administrative practices or technical limitations makes it difficult to follow the normal invoicing rules
• The invoice is a credit note that is to be treated as an invoice in accordance to the Swedish VAT Act

Self-billing. For a buyer to be allowed to use self-billing, the following conditions have to be met:
• There needs to be an agreement in place between the seller and the buyer before the use of self-billing is started.
• There needs to be a system in place to facilitate the seller's possibility to confirm each and every self-billing invoice.
• The invoice itself needs to contain the words "self-billing" or similar, clearly indicating that it is in fact an invoice issued by the buyer on behalf of the seller.

Apart from the above, regular invoicing rules apply to self-billing invoices.

Proof of exports and intra-Community supplies. VAT is not chargeable on exported goods or on intra-Community supplies of goods (see the chapter on the EU). However, to qualify as exports and intra-Community supplies, the export or supply must be supported by evidence confirming that the goods have left Sweden. Acceptable proof includes the following documentation:
• For an export, the stamped customs documentation and commercial documentation (such as bill of lading, copy of the invoice, delivery note and proof of payment)
• For an intra-Community supply, a copy of the invoice indicating the customer's valid VAT identification number (issued by another EU Member State), plus a range of commercial documentation (such as bill of lading, transport documentation, proof of payment and proof of receipt)

The Swedish courts have ruled that the supplier of goods has the burden to prove that the goods have actually left Sweden. From 1 January 2020, Article 45a of Regulation 2018/1912 should be directly applicable in Sweden. As such, meeting the criteria set out in the Regulation should be deemed sufficient in order to prove the removal of goods from Sweden.

Foreign currency invoices. Swedish taxable persons may maintain their accounts in either EUR or SEK depending on the place of supply rules. If a VAT invoice is issued in a different currency, the values for VAT purposes and the VAT amounts must be converted to EUR or SEK.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. Suppliers are not required to issue invoices to private consumers according to Swedish regulation regarding supply of electronic services.

Records.

Record retention period. Invoices and other records for indirect tax should as a minimum be retained for seven years after the end of the calendar year in which the record was received or presented. For certain records for which the capital goods adjustment scheme applies, records need to be retained for seven years after the end of the adjustment period. For immovable property the adjustment period is 10 years, and for other capital goods the adjustment period is 5 years, meaning that the retention period for those records is 17 and 12 years, respectively.

Electronic archiving. Records should be retained in the format in which the record was initially received or presented, meaning that, for example, electronic invoices should be retained electronically, whereas physical invoices should be retained physically. Under certain restrictions, records may be transferred from one format to another, however, records still need to be retained in the original format for at least three years following the end of the calendar year in which the record was received or presented.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. Periodic VAT returns are submitted in Sweden for monthly, quarterly or yearly periods, depending on the taxable person's turnover.

VAT liabilities are normally reported on the same tax return form as payroll taxes and employee income tax amounts withheld by employers. Monthly VAT returns must be filed if the taxable person's turnover exceeds SEK40 million. Otherwise quarterly reporting may apply. However, a taxable person may opt to file monthly. A yearly reporting period applies for taxable persons whose turnover is less than SEK1 million per year.

Monthly VAT returns generally must be submitted by the 26th day of the month after the end of the reporting period. Quarterly VAT returns must be submitted by the 12th day of the second month after the end of the reporting period. The same rules apply to taxable persons that have yearly turnover of less than SEK40 million and that apply for monthly VAT returns. Taxable persons whose turnover exceeds SEK40 million must file monthly returns by the 26th day of the month following the return period.

Periodic payments. VAT returns must be filed with full payment of VAT. Payment must be made by the same deadline as submission of the return (see above). Returns must be completed and return liabilities must be paid in SEK.

Electronic filing. Periodic VAT returns can be submitted electronically by using electronic identification. It is allowed but not mandatory. The electronic identification is personal and only available to someone with a Swedish personal identification number. The right to file electronically can be granted by the authorized signatories of the taxable person, either by using an e-service which requires the authorized signatory to already have obtained electronic identification themselves or by filing in a paper form (SKV 4809). The filing authorization granted applies to multiple filings such as VAT returns, CIT returns, PAYE, excise duty returns and grants reading access to the Swedish tax account of the taxable person.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Sweden.

Special schemes.

Cash accounting. Sweden operates a cash accounting scheme with a threshold of EUR350,000 (approximately SEK3.7 million).

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Sweden.

Supplementary filings.

Intrastat. A Swedish taxable person that trades with other EU countries must complete statistical reports, known as Intrastat, if the value of its annual sales or purchases of goods exceeds certain thresholds. Separate reports are required for intra-Community acquisitions (Intrastat Arrivals) and for intra-Community supplies (Intrastat Dispatches).

The threshold for Intrastat Arrivals is SEK9 million. The threshold for dispatches is SEK4.5 million.

The Intrastat reporting period is monthly. The submission deadline is normally between the 10th and 15th day following the reporting period for paper returns and between the 13th and 18th day for electronic returns.

Intrastat reports must be filed in SEK.

EU Sales Lists. If a Swedish taxable person makes intra-Community supplies in any return period, it must submit an EU Sales List (ESL). An ESL is not required for any period in which the taxable person has not made any intra-Community supplies.

ESLs must be submitted monthly with respect to goods. An ESL regarding supplies of services must be submitted quarterly. However, if a business supplies both goods and services, the reporting must be in accordance with the rules regarding goods. Taxable persons may apply to make quarterly submissions if the total amount of supplies and transfers of goods does not exceed SEK1 million for the current quarter as well as for the preceding four quarters. The due date is the 20th day of the month following the end of the ESL return period for paper ESLs and the 25th day for electronic ESLs.

ESL reports must be filed using amounts expressed in SEK.

Digital reporting. Periodic VAT returns can be submitted electronically by using electronic identification. There are no additional digital reporting requirements that apply in Sweden.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. No specific penalty is assessed for late registration. However, interest is charged on any VAT paid late as a result of late registration.

Penalties for late payment and filings. A penalty of SEK625 is imposed for late filing of a VAT return. The penalty is increased to SEK1,250 if the tax agency has ordered the VAT return to be submitted.

Late payment of VAT results in the imposition of an interest penalty. The interest consists of base interest plus 15%. The base interest is 1.25% as of 1 January 2013.

In principle, penalties may be imposed for late filing of Intrastat reports or for errors or omissions. However, penalties are rarely imposed. If a penalty is assessed, the courts take several factors into consideration (such as the size of the business and its turnover) in determining the amount owed.

A penalty of SEK1,000 is imposed for late, missing or inaccurate ESLs.

Penalties for errors. A tax penalty may be imposed by the Swedish tax agency for incorrect VAT reporting and VAT reporting accrual errors. The penalty is calculated as 20% of the incorrect reported VAT (i.e., as 20% of incorrectly reported input tax or 20% of such output tax that incorrectly has not been reported). In cases of VAT reporting accrual errors, the penalty is calculated as 2%-5 % of the VAT reported in an incorrect VAT reporting period. The tax penalty may be subject to partly or full redemption depending of the matters at hand.

Penalties for fraud. There are no specific tax penalties, besides the tax penalties described above regarding errors, for fraud. Fraud, as well as incorrect VAT reporting, knowingly or by negligence, may, however, be subject to criminal penalties under the Swedish Tax Evasion Act.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:

- The supply of goods or services made in Switzerland for consideration by a taxable person. In this context, it should be noted that Swiss VAT regulation follows a rather broad definition of “supplies of goods” including, e.g., sale of energy (gas, oil, electricity), lease agreements, work performed on goods, even if the goods are not altered by the work but only tested, calibrated, regulated, programmed, checked for their function, etc. Suppliers domiciled abroad that are obliged to be VAT registered in Switzerland must account for the Swiss VAT related to taxable supplies performed in Switzerland.
- The receipt of reverse-charge services or, in some cases, work on immovable goods by any person in Switzerland who purchases the items from an entity that is established outside Switzerland and that is not registered for VAT in Switzerland (services and work on immovable goods for which the recipient is liable for the VAT due). Services and work on immovable goods purchased by nontaxable persons are not subject to the reverse charge if the amount due to the foreign supplier does not exceed CHF10,000 per calendar year.
- The importation of goods from outside Switzerland and Liechtenstein, regardless of the status of the importer.

Liechtenstein and DE-Büsingen is considered to be the domestic territory for Swiss VAT and Customs purposes. Likewise, Switzerland is considered to be part of the territory of Liechtenstein for the purposes of VAT in Liechtenstein (Swiss Customs Territory).

C. Who is liable

A taxable person is any person who, regardless of the legal form, purpose or result, carries out a business in Switzerland. Carrying out the business involves the independent exercising of professional or commercial activities together with the intention to execute regular transactions and acting externally in one's name.

Exemption from registration. An exemption from the liability to register for VAT applies to any person who:
- Generates a worldwide annual turnover from taxable supplies of less than CHF100,000
- Carries on a business based abroad that exclusively makes supplies in the Swiss territory that are VAT exempt with credit and/or supplies of services with its place of supply in Switzerland but subject to the reverse charge in Switzerland
- Provides supplies of electricity power in cables, natural gas via the natural gas distribution grid and district heat by a business to a taxable recipient in Switzerland

Voluntary registration and small businesses. Any person who carries on a business and is exempt from the liability to register (tax liability) has the right to waive exemption from the tax liability, provided that it has an establishment or a taxable activity in Switzerland. Exemption from tax liability must be waived for at least one tax period.

Group registration. Legal entities with their seat in Switzerland or commercial units in Switzerland can form a VAT group if they are related as a result of "joint supervision." The group may include Swiss branches of foreign entities, to the extent that the foreign entities are under the same "joint supervision" as the other VAT group members. Although Liechtenstein is considered to be domestic territory for Swiss VAT purposes (and vice versa), it is not possible to form a VAT group that includes both Swiss and Liechtenstein entities as Liechtenstein and Switzerland have independent tax authorities.

The tax group must appoint a tax representative who will deal with the VAT-related proceedings of the group. The minimum period for which the tax group can exist is one year.

VAT group members are treated as a single taxable person with a single VAT number.

The following are the significant aspects of grouping:
- The VAT group submits a single, consolidated VAT return for all of its members.
- VAT is not chargeable on transactions between group members.
- All VAT group members are jointly and severally liable for the group's VAT liabilities.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that does not have a legal seat or fixed establishment in the territory of Switzerland. A non-established business that makes supplies of goods or services in Switzerland must register for VAT if it is liable to account for Swiss VAT on the supplies.

A foreign business making any local supply of goods or services in Switzerland that are not subject to reverse charge in Switzerland (e.g., a foreign supplier of B2C digital services) becomes liable for Swiss VAT if its global turnover exceeds the CHF100,000 threshold. This results in an obligation for any non-established business with a global turnover of more than CHF100,000 annually, to register for Swiss VAT from the first franc of taxable turnover generated in Switzerland (whereas a Swiss-established business is obliged to register for Swiss VAT only once the threshold of CHF100,000 is reached).

As of 2019 onward, non-established entities supplying low-value goods to Swiss customers for a total of CHF100,000 or more annually need to register for Swiss VAT, import the goods and charge Swiss VAT on the sale to Swiss customers.

Tax representatives. A non-established business must appoint a tax representative if it supplies goods or services subject to Swiss VAT.

Reverse charge. The reverse-charge mechanism applies to the following situations:
- A Swiss recipient receives default rule services from a supplier domiciled abroad who is not registered for Swiss VAT, and the place of supply is in the Swiss Customs Territory (place of supply in the customer country). Exceptions apply for telecommunication or electronic services to nontaxable recipients and also services with non-default place of supply rules.
- Data carriers without market value are imported into Switzerland, and certain services and rights are associated with these data carriers.
- Work on immovable goods located in Switzerland is provided by a business established abroad and not registered for Swiss VAT purposes, and the supply has not been subject to import VAT.
- A supply of electricity power in cables, natural gas via the natural gas distribution grid and district heat by a business that is established abroad and not VAT registered in Switzerland to a taxable recipient in Switzerland.

A Swiss recipient is liable for the settlement of VAT under the reverse-charge mechanism if the recipient is a taxable person or if the value of the supplies received exceeds CHF10,000 per calendar year.

The place of supply for most supplies of services is the customer's country (fallback rule). In the circumstances described above, the customer must account for VAT under the reverse-charge procedure. However, some exceptions exist. These exceptions, for which additional consideration regarding the place-of-supply rules needs to be made, include the following:
- Services that require the physical presence of the customer, who is a natural person, at the place where these services are provided (for example, beauty or curative therapies and treatments, family advisory and child care), even if exceptionally supplied from a distance
- Services of travel agents and event organizers
- Services in the fields of culture, art, sport, science, education or entertainment, and similar services including the activities of organizers and related activities
- Restaurant services
- Passenger transport services
- Services related to immovable property (for example, intermediation, administration, valuation, services in connection with the preparation and coordination of construction works such as architectural, engineering and supervising services and land and building monitoring, and accommodation services)
- Services in the field of international development and humanitarian aid

The rule providing that the place of supply is the domicile of the recipient applies to supplies of electricity power or natural gasoline in pipes, even though those supplies are treated as supplies of goods and not services.

Domestic reverse charge. The domestic reverse-charge mechanism applies to electronic services, supplies of electricity power in cables, natural gas via the natural gas distribution grid and district heat and telecommunication services only if the Swiss service recipient is a VAT-registered business. In addition, the domestic reverse charge also applies to work on immovable goods located in Switzerland, provided by a business established abroad and not registered for Swiss VAT purposes, and the supply has not been subject to import VAT. Consequently, foreign businesses that provide electronic supplies of services to persons who are not registered for VAT must register for VAT in Switzerland and charge Swiss VAT if their turnover exceeds the annual threshold of CHF100,000. For all other services, the reverse-charge mechanism applies regardless of whether the recipient of the services is registered for VAT. If a supplier is registered for Swiss VAT purposes, the reverse charge no longer applies and VAT must be charged on all taxable services supplied to Swiss recipients.

Supplies that are VAT exempt with or without credit are not subject to the reverse charge.

Digital economy. Foreign businesses that provide electronic supplies of services to persons domiciled in Switzerland who are not registered for VAT must register for VAT in Switzerland and charge Swiss VAT if their worldwide turnover exceeds the annual threshold of CHF100,000. Once VAT registered, foreign businesses have to declare all default services rendered to a recipient in the Swiss Customs Territory regardless whether they are registered for VAT or not.

Online marketplaces and platforms. For distance selling supplies, since 1 January 2019, mail-order companies that supply more than CHF100,000 per year of low-value goods to their customers in Switzerland are now obliged to register for Swiss VAT. Concerned distance sellers execute domestic sales with such low-value goods and are by default ruled a VAT-importer. Consequently, they have to charge Swiss VAT to their customers, not only on their sales of low-value goods, but also on all goods for which the amount of import tax exceeds CHF5.

Low-value goods are defined as goods whose import tax amount do not exceed CHF5. (i.e., value of imported goods (including transportation costs), taxable at standard VAT rate of 7.7%, is inferior to CHF65. Low-value goods are exempt from import tax when crossing the border.

Registration procedures. Businesses that intend to register for Swiss VAT need to file an application with the Swiss federal tax authorities. The application must be filed electronically via the Swiss federal tax authorities' webpage, available in German, French and Italian at https://www.estv.admin.ch/estv/en/home/mehrwertsteuer/dienstleistungen/formulare-online/anmeldung-bei-der-mwst.html. On average, the application procedure takes about two weeks.

Deregistration. Taxable persons are required to notify the Swiss federal tax authorities in writing within 30 days after ceasing their entrepreneurial activities in Switzerland or with concluding the liquidation procedure at the latest.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to VAT at any rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 7.7%
- Reduced rate: 2.5%
- Special rate: 3.7%

The standard VAT rate applies to all supplies of goods or services, unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%
(i.e., tax-exempt with credit)

- Exports of goods and services
- Supplies of certain goods and services to airlines
- Services with the place of supply abroad
- Supplies of investment gold (effective 1 January 2014, the scope of the term "investment gold" has been broadened and is not limited to specific forms of investment gold)

Examples of goods and services taxable at 2.5%

- E-books, e-newspapers and e-magazines
- Food and drinks (except provided by hotels and restaurants)
- Drugs
- Water in pipes

Examples of goods and services taxable at 3.7%

- Hotel accommodation, including breakfast

The term "tax-exempt without credit" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to tax and that do not give rise to a right of input tax deduction (see Section F). Some supplies are classified as tax exempt with credit (zero-rated), which means that no VAT is chargeable, but the supplier may recover the related input tax.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services (i.e., tax-exempt without credit)

- Health care (in some cases; unless opted for taxation)
- Financial services
- Insurance
- Education (unless opted for taxation)
- Real estate (unless opted for taxation)

Option to tax for exempt supplies. Certain supplies of goods and services may be voluntarily subjected to tax by openly charging VAT on the invoice (option), e.g., certain health care, educational and cultural services as well as renting or leasing of immovable commercial property. However, restrictions may apply and the right to opt should be reviewed on a case-by-case basis.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or the "tax point." In Switzerland, taxable turnover must be declared for the VAT quarter (or VAT month, if monthly declarations are filed) in which the sales invoice for a supply is issued or in which payment is received (if no invoice is issued). If the declaration is made on a cash basis, the turnover must be declared for the quarter in which payment is collected. Exceptions apply in case of VAT rate changes and various other special events.

Deposits and prepayments. The tax point for a deposit and prepayment is when the supplier receives the consideration or when the invoice is issued, whichever is earlier.

Continuous supplies of services. There are no special time of supply rules in Switzerland for continuous supplies. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above). However, exceptions apply when the VAT rates change, and then specific transitional rules would apply.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules in Switzerland for supplies of goods sent on approval for sale or return. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

Reverse-charge services. The tax point for reverse-charge services for a taxable person is when the invoice is received or when the service fee is paid. In all other situations, including declarations made on a cash basis, the effective payment date is decisive.

Leased assets. There are no special time of supply rules in Switzerland for supplies of leased assets. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

Imported goods. The time of supply for imported goods is the official date of importation.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax, which is VAT on purchases, to the extent that the purchases of goods and services are related to taxable supplies, including tax-exempt supplies with credit and supplies rendered outside the Swiss Customs Territory that would be taxable if rendered domestically. A taxable person generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax, which is VAT charged on supplies made.

Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services supplied in the Swiss Customs Territory, VAT paid on imports of goods and VAT self-assessed on reverse-charge supplies.

According to a recommendation of the Swiss VAT authorities, a valid tax invoice or customs document and proof that the input tax was paid should support a claim for input tax.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for taxable business purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use by an entrepreneur).

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Private expenditure

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Purchase, hire, lease, maintenance and fuel for cars, vans and trucks (output tax is due on the private use of company cars)
- Parking
- Conferences, seminars and training courses
- Books
- Business use of home telephone (output tax is due on the private element)
- Advertising
- Transport
- Hotel accommodation
- Business gifts (subject to restrictions; output tax may be due)

Partial exemption. Input tax directly related to making tax-exempt supplies without credit is generally not recoverable. If a Swiss taxable person makes both tax-exempt supplies without credit and taxable supplies, it may not recover input tax in full. This situation is referred to as "partial exemption."

The amount of input tax that a partially exempt business can recover may be calculated using the following two-stage calculation:

- The first stage identifies the input tax that can be directly allocated to taxable or to tax-exempt supplies without credit. Input tax directly allocated to taxable supplies is deductible, while input tax directly related to tax-exempt supplies without credit is not deductible. Tax-exempt supplies with credit are treated as taxable supplies for these purposes.
- The next stage identifies the amount of the remaining input tax (for example, input tax on general business overheads) that can be partially recovered. The calculation of the recoverable portion can be performed using a general pro rata method based on the respective values of taxable and tax-exempt without credit supplies made. In addition to the general pro rata method, other industry-specific methods are available, such as the lump-sum method for banks.

Capital goods. The input tax recovery is allowed on capital goods in Switzerland. However, the input tax recovery is subject to the capital goods being monitored and corrected in accordance with the actual use of the said capital goods. The useful life of the capital goods is defined as 5 or 20 years and corrections have to be considered pursuant to this duration. Lump-sum models are available.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax recoverable in a period exceeds the amount of output tax payable in the same period, the taxable person is entitled to a refund of the excess amount. A VAT repayment is paid automatically within 60 days after the return is received by the Swiss VAT authorities.

Pre-registration costs. Under certain circumstances, input tax incurred on pre-registration costs is recoverable in Switzerland.

Write-off of bad debts. Bad debt relief applies in Switzerland only once the debt has been written off the accounts and accounted as a loss from a Swiss accounting perspective. Only then, can the output tax due be corrected.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred in relation to noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Switzerland.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Switzerland refunds VAT incurred by businesses that are neither established nor registered for VAT in Switzerland or Liechtenstein and that have not made any supplies in Switzerland or Liechtenstein.

Non-established businesses may generally claim Swiss VAT to the same extent as Swiss VAT-registered businesses. However, restrictions apply to certain types of expenditure for claimants established in certain countries.

Refunds are made on the condition of reciprocity. Repayments are currently made to claimants from the following countries.

Australia
Austria
Bahrain
Belgium
Bermuda
Bulgaria
Canada
Croatia
Cyprus
Czech Republic
Denmark
Estonia
Finland
France
Germany
Greece
Hong Kong
Hungary
Ireland
Israel
Italy

Macedonia
Malta
Monaco
Netherlands
Norway
Poland
Portugal
Romania
Saudi Arabia
Serbia
Slovak Republic
Slovenia
Spain
Sweden
Taiwan
Turkey
United Arab Emirates
United Kingdom
United States

The deadline for refund claims is 30 June following the calendar year in which the supply received was invoiced. This deadline is strictly enforced.

Claims may be submitted in French, German or Italian. The claimant must appoint a representative who is a natural person or a legal entity whose domicile or registered office is in Switzerland.

The claim period is one year. The minimum claim amount is CHF500. Erroneously paid VAT on supplies that are not subject to VAT or exempted from VAT with credit will not be refunded.

The following documentation must accompany the claim (the forms indicated below are available for download at the website of the Swiss VAT authorities):

- Completed VAT refund claim (Forms 1222 and 1223). Form 1222 identifies the Swiss tax representative that needs to be appointed to apply for the refund.
- Original VAT invoices.
- Proof of payment (if requested by the Swiss tax authorities).
- A Certificate of Taxable Status for the claimant, which is issued by the competent tax authorities in the country where the claimant is established, to prove the business status of the claimant.

Applications for refunds of Swiss VAT may be sent to the following address:

Eidgenoessische Steuerverwaltung
Hauptabteilung Mehrwertsteuer
Schwarztorstrasse 50
CH-3003 Bern
Switzerland

Refunds are generally made within six months after the date of application. However, the Swiss VAT authorities pay interest on refunds made after this period if reciprocity rules are observed.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A Swiss taxable person must generally provide a VAT invoice for all taxable supplies made, including exports. A VAT invoice is necessary to support a refund under the VAT refund scheme for non-established businesses.

Credit notes. A VAT credit or debit note may be used to correct the VAT charged and reclaimed on a supply of goods or services. These documents must be cross-referenced to the original VAT invoice.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is permitted. However, data and information transmitted and stored electronically that are relevant for claiming input tax, or levying or collecting tax, have to meet the following requirements in order to be of the same evidential value as data and information readable without auxiliary means:

- Proof of origin
- Proof of integrity
- Dispatch not contested

These requirements can be met by applying an advanced electronic signature.

Simplified VAT invoices. Invoices issued by automatic cash register systems (receipts), do not need to include information on the recipient of the supply, provided that the consideration disclosed on the receipt does not exceed the amount of CHF400.

Self-billing. Self-billing is allowed in Switzerland. No formal additional requirements other than the general invoicing requirements apply to self-billing. However, parties are required to agree on processes, recipient documentation and proxy for self-billing entity.

Proof of exports. Swiss VAT is not chargeable on supplies of exported goods. However, to qualify as VAT-free, export supplies must be supported by evidence that the goods have left Switzerland. Acceptable proof includes the officially validated customs documentation.

Foreign currency invoices. If a Swiss VAT invoice is issued in a currency other than Swiss francs (CHF), the amounts must be converted into Swiss francs, using the appropriate exchange rates published by the federal tax administration, which are available on its website (monthly or daily rates are available). If no clear tax advantage is gained, the use of a group exchange rate may be allowed.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. Swiss VAT law does not, in general, distinguish between B2B or B2C supplies. The only exception is in the context of supplies of electronic services and the application of the reverse-charge mechanism to those services. As such, there are no special rules for invoices issued to private consumers, and therefore full VAT invoices must be issued for all supplies.

Records. Record keeping requirements are provided by the Swiss Commercial Law. There is no specific requirement from an indirect tax perspective.

Record retention period. Considering the 10 years of absolute statute of limitations in Switzerland, the recommended retention period is respectively 16 years (and 26 years for documents related to immovable property).

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is possible in Switzerland. However, electronically stored documents must meet specific criteria of authenticity, origin and integrity (among other).

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. Swiss VAT returns are usually submitted for quarterly periods. If the taxable person has applied to be taxed under the net tax rate method (that is, the tax due is calculated by multiplying the gross total taxable turnover by the balance tax rate authorized by the Swiss tax authorities), VAT returns must be submitted on a half-yearly basis. Taxable persons with a regular excess of input over output tax may apply to submit monthly returns.

VAT liabilities must be paid in Swiss francs.

Periodic payments. The VAT return is due, together with full payment, 60 days after the end of the VAT settlement period.

Electronic filing. Taxable persons can choose to file VAT returns electronically. A one-time registration is necessary (https://www.estv.admin.ch/estv/de/home/mehrwertsteuer/diestleistungen/mwst-abrechnung-online.html). However, filing electronically does not prevent a non-established business from appointing a tax representative.

Data and information that are relevant for claiming input tax or levying or collecting tax can be transmitted and archived electronically or in a similar manner. They have the same evidential value as data and information that are readable without auxiliary means, provided the following requirements are met:
- Proof of origin
- Proof of integrity
- Dispatch not contested

Special legal provisions that require the transmission or storage of the data and information mentioned in a particular form are in place.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Switzerland.

Special schemes.

Net tax rate scheme. If a taxable person does not generate more than CHF5.020 million turnover from taxable supplies annually and in the same period does not have to pay more than CHF109,000 in VAT, calculated at the net tax rate that applies to him, he may report VAT under the net tax rate method. When using the net tax rate method, the VAT due is determined by multiplying the total of the taxable considerations, including tax, generated in the reporting period in Switzerland by the net tax rate approved by the Swiss federal tax authorities. The net tax rates take into account the input tax amounts usual in the relevant branch of the industry. They are fixed by the Swiss federal tax authorities after consultation with the industry association concerned. Authorization to report under the net tax rate method must be requested from the Swiss federal tax authorities and the method must be used for at least one tax period.

Flat tax rate scheme. In principle, the flat tax rate method is similar to the net tax rate method, but may be applied only by public authorities and related institutions, in particular private hospitals and schools or licensed transport undertakings and associations and foundations.

Margin scheme. A VAT margin scheme is applicable to supplies of works of art, antiquities and collector's items.

In general, if the taxable person has acquired collectibles such as works of art, antiques and the like, it may deduct the purchase price from the sales price in order to calculate the tax, provided that it has not deducted any input tax on the purchase price (margin tax). If the purchase price is higher than the selling price, the loss can be offset by subtracting the difference from the taxable turnover. If such collector's items are imported by the reseller, the paid import tax may be added to the buying-in price.

Annual returns. There is no requirement to file an additional annual return in Switzerland. However, if the taxable person discovers errors in his tax returns in the course of drawing up his annual accounts, it must correct them at the latest in the so-called finalization return within 180 days (plus 60 days) after the end of the relevant business year.

Supplementary filings. The preparation of an annual turnover and input tax reconciliation is a mandatory requirement in Switzerland. This document does not, however, have to be filed as such to the federal tax administration. In case discrepancies are revealed further to the filing of a VAT return, a finalization form (or corrective returns) must be filed accordingly.

Digital reporting. Taxable persons can choose to file VAT returns electronically. There are no other digital reporting requirements that apply in Switzerland.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. Taxable persons should be registered with the federal tax administration in writing within 30 days after the commencement of their tax liability or 60 days for persons who become taxable solely because of the acquisition tax. A penalty may be levied for late VAT registration. In the case of tax evasion, fines of up to CHF800,000 may be charged. The amount of the fine varies depending on the circumstances.

Penalties for late payment and filings. Interest at a rate of 4% per annum may be assessed for the late payment of VAT.

Penalties for errors. Any person who willfully or negligently reduces the tax claim to the detriment of the state by wrongly stating output or input tax shall be liable to a fine not exceeding CHF400,000.

In addition, if the tax evaded is transferred in a form that entitles the taxable person to make an input tax deduction, the fine shall not exceed CHF800,000.

However, any person who reduces the tax due to the state by truthfully declaring relevant tax factors, but by willfully qualifying them incorrectly for tax purposes shall be liable to a fine of up to CHF200,000. If the offense is committed through negligence, the fine is up to CHF20,000.

Penalties for fraud. Any person who willfully or negligently reduces the tax claim to the detriment of the state by not declaring in a tax period all receipts; declaring receipts from supplies exempt from the tax that are too high; not declaring all supplies subject to reverse charge; declaring expenses entitling to an input tax deduction that are too high; obtaining an incorrect refund; or obtaining an unjustified tax abatement can be liable for a fine of up to CHF800,000. If the tax advantage obtained by the act is greater than the threatened penalty and the offense was committed willfully, the fine may be increased to a maximum of two times the tax advantage.

B. Scope of the tax

Taiwan imposes business tax, which consists of VAT and GBRT.

Business tax applies to the following:
- Sale of goods in Taiwan. A transaction involving goods is a transfer of ownership of goods to others for consideration. This is not limited to goods exchanged for money. The exchange of goods for other goods is also included.
- Sale of services in Taiwan. A transaction involving services is the rendering of services to others or supplying goods for the use of others for consideration.
- Import of goods into Taiwan by individuals or companies.

Taxable persons may be subject to both VAT and GBRT. For example, a bank may be subject to VAT on its rental sales and GBRT on its interest income.

In general, both VAT and GBRT liabilities are based on the sales amount, which includes all of the consideration received from sales of goods and services, and expense reimbursements.

C. Who is liable

The following persons are considered taxable persons for business tax purposes:
- Business entities that supply goods or services
- Consignees or holders of imported goods
- Purchasers of services supplied by foreign entities that have no fixed place of business in Taiwan. However, if a business entity purchasing services is solely engaged in the operation of goods or services that are subject to VAT in Taiwan (i.e., a fully taxable business and is entitled to fully recover input tax), the business entity is not subject to business tax on its purchases of services supplied by a foreign entity.
- Foreign entities with no fixed place of business in Taiwan, that meet the threshold of annual sales of digital services to individual buyers in Taiwan (business-to-consumer (B2C) supply of digital services)

Exemption from registration. Business entities engaged solely in the business of the sale of exempt goods or services (as outlined below) and government entities of all levels may be exempted from applying for taxation registration.

The following goods or services may be exempted from applying for taxation registration:
- The water supplied to farmland for irrigation
- The medical services, medicine, ward lodging and meals provided by hospitals, clinics and sanitariums
- The social welfare services provided by social welfare organizations or institutions or labor organizations, duly established with permission of the competent authority, and social welfare services consigned by the government
- The education services offered by schools, kindergartens, and other educational and cultural institutions, including cultural services offered under government's consignment
- The goods or services sold by student-run shops of vocational schools that do not serve outsiders
- The proceeds from goods sold in tenders, charity sales and charity shows held by charity and relief institutions organized according to the law, provided that the total proceeds are solely used by said institutions after deducting the necessary expenditures for the tenders, charity sales and charity shows
- The goods or services sold by employee welfare organizations of government bodies, state enterprises and social organizations that are organized and operated under relevant laws and are not open to the public
- The goods or services sold by prison workshops and their finished goods stores
- Services rendered by post and telecommunication offices in accordance with the law; and business consigned under government mandate
- The service of consigned sale of stamp tax tickets and postage stamps
- The goods or services sold by peddlers or hawkers
- Feed and unprocessed raw agricultural, forestry, fishing and livestock products, and by-products; the agricultural, forestry, fishing and livestock products, and by-products of farmers' and fishermen's harvests sold by farmers and fishermen
- The fish caught and sold by fishermen
- The research services supplied by scientific or technological institutions that are established under the approval of the government
- The government at all levels

Voluntary registration and small businesses. The VAT law in Taiwan does not contain any provision for voluntary VAT registration.

Group registration. Group VAT registration is not allowed in Taiwan. Each company shall have its own VAT registration number. Two or more companies or other corporate bodies cannot register as one entity with one VAT registration number.

Non-established businesses. Business tax also applies to the following taxable supplies made by nonresidents:

- Taxable sales of goods in which non-established businesses consign goods to Taiwanese entities, that sell the consigned goods on behalf of the foreign non-established businesses. A consignment agreement shall be in place in order to carry out the consignment of goods
- Taxable sales of services by foreign entities that have no fixed place of business in Taiwan to Taiwanese entities described in the third bullet in Taxable persons
- Taxable sales of digital services by foreign entities with no fixed place of business in Taiwan to Taiwanese individual buyers

The business tax rate is 2% for the purchase of core business-related services from foreign financial institutions that do not have a fixed place of business in Taiwan. For purchases of other services, the business tax rate is the standard rate of 5%.

However, public and private schools at any level or educational or research institutions that purchased services provided by foreign enterprises, institutions, groups or organizations that have no fixed place of business within the territory of Taiwan, for educational, research or experimental purposes are not required to pay business tax.

Tax representatives. Tax representatives are not required in Taiwan. However, filing agents or tax agents are allowed. A filing agent can file the tax returns on behalf of the appointor. Whereas a tax agent can file the tax return and pay the tax on behalf of the appointor; in practice, only filing agents are allowed.

Reverse charge. A nonresident entity is not required to register for VAT in Taiwan, except for the foreign entities that import goods into Taiwan. In this regard, for the importation of goods, the VAT will be borne by the importer, generally the domestic purchaser (i.e., via the reverse-charge mechanism).

For the purchase of services supplied by foreign entities that have no fixed place of business in Taiwan, they will be subject to reverse charge mechanism. However, if a business entity purchasing services is solely engaged in the operation of goods or services that are subject to VAT in Taiwan (i.e., a fully taxable business and is entitled to fully recover input tax), the business entity is not subject to business tax on its purchases of services supplied by a foreign entity.

In addition, for foreign entities making e-commerce supplies who have no fixed place of business in Taiwan and sell e-commerce services to Taiwanese individuals, they may need to register for the VAT purpose in Taiwan (please refer to the “Digital economy” section below).

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Taiwan.

Digital economy. On 24 April 2017, the Taiwan Ministry of Finance released amendments to the value-added and non-value-added Business Tax Act. Under the amendments, foreign suppliers selling e-commerce services to Taiwanese individual purchasers (B2C) and that have annual sales that exceed TWD480,000 must register for business (meaning business purpose, as foreign suppliers are required to register this) and pay VAT directly or indirectly through appointment of a tax-filing agent. The effective date for the amendments is 1 May 2017.

Online marketplaces and platforms. If a foreign e-commerce operator renders digital platform services to local individuals, the foreign e-commerce operator may need to register for VAT in Taiwan (please see the "Digital economy" subsection above).

Registration procedures. Applications for business tax registration shall be filed after the completion of company registration but before commencement of operation in Taiwan. In principle, the business tax registration process is done automatically by a local tax administration office of the national tax authority as soon as it receives the approved and filed basic information related to the company's registration, from the competent authority in charge of company registration. The company may need to submit additional documents if formally requested by a local tax administration office of the national tax authority.

Foreign enterprises, institutions, groups, or organizations, without a fixed place of establishment, providing e-commerce services to Taiwanese individuals are now required to register with Taiwan's tax authority. Foreign e-commerce operators will be assigned a taxpayer ID number that should be used when filing bimonthly VAT returns. The registration and VAT return filing obligations are required if the annual e-commerce sales revenue exceeds TWD480,000 (USD16,000). If the sales revenues are in currencies other than TWD, the amount should be converted to TWD at a buying exchange rate announced by the Bank of Taiwan on the last date of the bimonthly VAT filing.

Deregistration. If there is any change to the details of a registered business, or if there is a merger, consolidation, ownership transfer, dissolution or cessation of a business entity, an application for amendment to registration or cancellation of registration must be filed with the competent tax authority within 15 days after the occurrence of such an event. An application by a business entity, for amendment to registration or cancellation of registration, may only take effect upon the payment in full of taxes, or upon the provision of security, provided, however, that this requirement shall not apply in the case of application for amendment due to merger, consolidation, increase of capital or a change in business address or scope of business.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 5%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for the zero rate or an exemption. Exempt supplies apply to both VAT and GBRT. Zero-rated supplies apply only to VAT.

The following are the GBRT rates:
- 0.1% for traders in the agricultural wholesale market and small businesses supplying agricultural products
- 1% for small businesses and other business entities that are excluded by the MOF from reporting their transactions
- 1% for reinsurance premiums of insurance enterprises (5% for operations other than authorized core businesses)
- 2% or 5% on the sale of services by local financial institutions (for banking and insurance companies: generally, 5%, except for certain transaction types; for the other financial institutions: 2% on their core business revenue and 5% on their noncore business revenue)
- 2% or 5% on the purchase of services from foreign financial institutions

- 15% for nightclubs or restaurants providing entertainment
- 25% for saloons or tearooms, coffee shops, and bars offering companionship (in nightclubs, customers can ask wait staff to sit aside, serve drinks, chat and sing karaoke)

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Export of goods
- Services related to exports
- Services rendered in Taiwan but used outside Taiwan
- Sales of goods or services to taxable persons in bonded areas for the buyers' operations

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Certain essential and unprocessed foods
- Sale of lands
- Certain bonds and securities
- Sales of fixed assets that are not regularly traded by certain business persons subject to GBRT

Option to tax for exempt supplies. Suppliers may opt to treat the above examples of exempt supplies of goods and services as taxable.

E. Time of supply

The following are the rules for the timing of VAT liabilities:

- Goods: at the earlier of the delivery of goods or payment of the proceeds
- Services: in general, on payment of the remuneration or when service is delivered
- Continuous supplies of services: in general, on payment of the remuneration
- For imported goods: on customs declaration

In general, liability for GBRT arises on receipt of payments.

Deposits and prepayments. The VAT law in Taiwan does not contain any provision for deposits and prepayment. As such normal time of supply rules apply.

Continuous supplies of services. The VAT law in Taiwan does not contain any provision specifically related to continuous supplies. As such normal time of supply rules apply.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. The tax is due when the goods are sold. If the goods are returned to the seller, the seller should obtain the qualified documents (e.g., certificate of sales/purchases returns or allowances on merchandise sold) to reverse the entry and adjust the amount of tax payable.

Reverse-charge services. Except for digital services for B2C transactions, the reverse-charge mechanism applies to services rendered by a foreign entity that does not have a fixed place of business in Taiwan. However, if a business entity purchasing services is solely engaged in the operation of goods or services that are subject to VAT in Taiwan (i.e., a fully taxable business and is entitled to fully recover input tax), the business entity is not subject to business tax on its purchases of services supplied by a foreign entity.

The purchaser of such services shall, prior to the 15th day of the period following the period in which the payment is made, compute and pay the tax due on the supply.

In addition, VAT on such goods shall be levied by Customs at the time of importation.

Leased assets. The VAT law in Taiwan does not contain any provision specifically related to leased assets. As such normal time of supply rules apply.

Imported goods. The holder of imported goods is liable to pay the 5% VAT at customs, i.e., at the time of importation.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

Input tax is deductible only with respect to VAT, and not recoverable for GBRT.

Input tax is deductible in the current and next filing periods. If a taxpayer reports the input tax after the next filing period, the taxpayer must provide the reasons in an attachment to the tax return.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax is not deductible if supporting documents with respect to purchased goods or services are not obtained or maintained.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Goods or services that are not used in the principal or ancillary business operations of the purchaser. However, input tax on purchases made for national defense construction, troop morale and contributions to the government is deductible.
- Goods or services for social relations purposes.
- Goods or services provided to individual employees.
- Passenger cars for personal use.

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Any input tax derived from the goods or services that are used in the principal or ancillary business operations of the purchaser shall be deductible, except for the abovementioned nondeductible input tax.

Partial exemption. If a business entity incurring VAT engages on a concurrent basis in the business of tax-exempt goods or services or in the business applying GBRT, the business entity is prohibited from deducting a certain part of the input tax from the output tax. The business entity must classify its purchases and importation of goods and services into for use specifically in its taxable business and for use in its tax-exempt business or for common overhead use. Depending on whether or not the business entity could clearly identify the purchase and importation of goods and services for use, the business entity may choose to employ the proportional deduction method or the direct deduction method to calculate its VAT recovery percentage. The nondeductible ratio is subject to be computed according to the prescribed formula as below.

The nondeductible ratio is the following:
The net sales amount of exempt sales + the net sales amount subject to business as financial industries (e.g., banking enterprise), small business (e.g., vendor), and special food and beverage services enterprises (e.g., night clubs) /the total net sales amount for each period. The net sales amount shall be the balance of the total sales amount deducting sales returns and discounts.

Capital goods. In general, overpaid tax may be offset against future business tax payable and the excess input tax not credited against the output tax in the current VAT return shall be carried over to the next period. According to the VAT Act, the business tax overpaid on fixed assets obtained could be refunded after verification by the competent tax authority. The competent tax authority shall assess the VAT return and the application for VAT overpaid refund within six months starting the next day of the filing deadline.

Refunds. Overpaid VAT is refundable after verification by the relevant tax office if any of the following conditions are satisfied:

- The overpaid amount of VAT resulting from zero-rated sales

- The overpaid amount of VAT resulting from the acquisition of fixed assets
- The overpaid amount of VAT resulting from the cancellation of registration through a merger or consolidation, transfer of ownership, dissolution or cessation of business
- Other special circumstances approved by the MOF exist

Pre-registration costs. Input tax incurred on pre-registration costs in Taiwan, is recoverable.

Write-off of bad debts. Input tax incurred in relation to bad debts is not recoverable in Taiwan.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred in relation to noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Taiwan.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

A foreign non-established entity may qualify for a refund of VAT incurred on the purchases of goods and services with respect to its participation in an exhibition or its engagement in "temporary commercial events" in Taiwan if the following conditions are met:
- The input tax reaches a minimum of TWD5,000 in a year.
- Reciprocal treatment is given by the other foreign jurisdiction under the same circumstances.

For purposes of the above rule, "temporary commercial events" refer to activities including traveling, training, inspection, market research, procurement, organizing or attending international conferences, tender invitations, information exchanges, marketing seminars and other business activities approved by the MOF that are relevant to the core or ancillary business operations of the companies.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. Business entities selling goods or services must issue Government Uniform Invoices (GUIs) to purchasers.

GUIs are generally printed and sold by the government. However, qualified business entities can apply to print their own invoices. The MOF prescribes the forms, items to be recorded and the uses for the invoices.

The tax authority has regulated a new format of GUIs in the cloud ("eGUIs"), which are defined as electronic GUIs and issued by business entities to purchasers via the vehicles (i.e., email address) approved by the tax authority.

Credit notes. In Taiwan, in the case where the sales amount for the GUIs has been declared to reduce the output tax incurred from the sales return or allowances, a certificate of sales returns/allowances issued by the purchaser is required; such a case, however, shall be limited to instances where the original GUI contains the name and uniform serial number of the purchaser.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is permitted for all VAT taxpayers, but it is not mandatory. However, the Taiwanese government has been promoting electronic invoicing since 2010. Registered entities that wish to use e-invoices are required to register for an account (to access the official e-invoice platform) using the electronic certification or signature obtained via the e-invoice service platform or a value-added service center.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified VAT invoicing is not allowed in Taiwan. As such, full VAT invoices are required.

Self-billing. Self-billing is allowed in Taiwan. It is only allowed for goods that are produced, imported or purchased by a business, and are used by the business itself or supplied for no consideration. These scenarios are only where the business entity can issue GUIS to themselves in their own name.

Proof of exports. The following are examples of documentation that may be used to substantiate exports:

- Goods exported: a copy of the international parcel receipt issued by the postal service, except for goods exported through customs that are exempt from such documentation requirement
- For services rendered with respect to exports or services rendered in Taiwan but used outside of Taiwan: a copy of the foreign currency receipt
- For goods sold to entities located in bonded areas: document issued by customs proving that such sale is an export, or a copy of the GUI certified by the bonded purchaser

A business entity applying for a zero-business tax rate on goods or services, for services relating to export or services provided in Taiwan but used overseas must submit the following evidence:

- If the foreign exchange obtained has been settled for sale to or deposited into a bank designated by the Taiwan government, the documentary evidence of the foreign exchange sale or deposit issued by the designated foreign exchange bank
- If the foreign exchange obtained has not been sold and settled or deposited into a bank designated by the Taiwan government, a photocopy of the original receipt of the foreign exchange with the amount specified therein

Foreign currency invoices. GUIs must be issued in New Taiwan dollar (TWD), with the exception of foreign e-commerce companies. The foreign currency can be noted as a remark on the GUIs.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. A VAT invoice is generally required for all sales of goods and/or services.

The foreign e-commerce operators ("FECOs") are required to issue eGUIs aforesaid.

The tax authority announced that there will be no penalties (up to TWD1 million) imposed for FECOs not issuing cloud GUIs from 1 January 2019 to 31 December 2019.

When issuing eGUIs, foreign e-commerce operators can use the business' native language. The transaction date on the eGUI should be recorded in AD (i.e., Anno Domini, e.g., 1 January 2018). This is different for Taiwanese business entities, as they list the transaction date in local description method (i.e., 1 January 2018 would be listed as 1 January 2017, which is the description method for the Taiwanese year) on the GUI. The unit price, the price and the total amount can be listed using the currency native to the business, but the business should indicate the currency used.

Records.

Record retention period. All the accounting documents, except for those that must be permanently preserved or those related to unsettled accounting transactions, must be kept for at least five years after the completion of annual closing procedures.

There is no clear definition on "permanently preserved documents" in Taiwan. In practice, the accounting documentation that the business entity must preserve permanently is based on the entity's own business considerations.

All the accounting books, except for those related to unsettled accounting transactions, must be kept for at least 10 years after the completion of annual closing procedures.

Electronic archiving. A business entity is allowed to maintain its accounting documents, accounting books and financial statements of business entities digitally. All abovementioned accounting records can be held electronically or stored via a data storage medium. The record retention period for accounting records via electronic archiving shall be the same as traditional paper archiving as described above.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. VAT returns must be filed for two-month periods by the 15th day following the end of the period. It is possible to apply for monthly VAT filings if a business entity is eligible for zero-rated VAT. VAT returns must be accompanied with all relevant documentation, and excess output tax must be paid to the tax authorities before the returns are filed.

Periodic payments. VAT taxpayers must declare and pay VAT due on a bimonthly basis in Taiwan. Taxpayers can submit payment via deposit accounts, credit cards or in person at financial institutions and convenient stores. Payments must be made in TWD.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is optional for the taxpayer. It has been widely adopted by most business entities.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Taiwan.

Special schemes. If a business entity is qualified as the definition of "small business," the VAT of the business entity shall be assessed by the tax authority every three months and the VAT return is not required to be submitted to the tax authority.

The term "small business" refers to business entities whose monthly average sales amount is TWD200,000 or less.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Taiwan.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in Taiwan. However, if a business entity wants to disclose other information outside of the VAT return, it may attach such information along with its VAT return.

Digital reporting. No digital reporting requirements apply in Taiwan. VAT returns may be filed electronically.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. Businesses registering late for VAT is subject to the greater of the following penalties:
- Penalty of not less than TWD3,000 and not more than TWD30,000, which may be imposed repeatedly if the registration is not filed within the period prescribed by the tax authority
- Penalty of up to five times the amount of tax evaded

Penalties for late payment and filings. A business entity that fails to file the sales amount or the detailed list of GUIs used within the prescribed time limit may be liable to the following penalties:
- If the filing is past due for less than 30 days, a surcharge for late filing equal to 1% of the tax payable may be imposed for every two days overdue. The surcharge may not be less than TWD1,200 and not more than TWD12,000.
- If the filing is past due in excess of 30 days, a surcharge for non-filing equal to 30% of the assessed tax payable may be imposed. The amount of this surcharge may not be less than TWD3,000 and not more than TWD30,000.
- If there is no tax payable, the surcharge for late filing or non-filing shall be TWD1,200 and TWD3,000, respectively.

Penalties for errors. Under the Taiwan tax regime, there is a grey area between errors and fraud. Generally, whether or not a taxpayer is intentional or unintentional to avoid its tax obligation is subject to the tax authorities' discretion.

Whether the issue is deemed as an error or fraud is up to the tax authority's discretion. Most penalties are categorized as fraud and not errors.

Whereas a taxpayer voluntarily files a supplementary tax return and pays to cover the tax amount failed to pay in the original tax return before any informant's reports or the tax authorities' assessments, the punishments imposed on such tax evasion could be exempted.

Per Article 44 of the Tax Collection Act, if a business entity were found to have failed to issue GUIs or understated sales amount on GUIs before the statutory period for filing a tax return, in addition to paying the tax calculated on the basis of the understated or omitted sales amount at the prescribed tax rate, the business entity shall be fined no more than five times the amount of the tax evaded. But the amount of fines shall not exceed TWD1 million.

Moreover, per Article 51 of the VAT Act, if a profit-seeking entity fails to provide or obtain GUIs to or from others or to keep GUIs as required by the law, upon the verification of the tax authority, a fine equivalent to 5% of the total amount of the relevant GUIs shall be imposed on such entity. But the amount of fines shall not exceed TWD1 million.

Where an event simultaneously violates the Article 44 of the Tax Collection Act (penalty for behavior sanction) and the Article 51 of the VAT Act (penalty for VAT shortfall), the heavier penalty between the two shall be imposed.

Penalties for fraud. A taxpayer may be subject to a fine for tax evasion ranging up to five times of the amount of tax evaded and the closure of the business if any of the following circumstances exist:

- A business is conducted without an application for business registration being filed.
- The sales amount or detailed list of GUIs used is not submitted and the amount of business tax due is not paid within 30 days after the prescribed deadline.
- The sales amount is not reported or is underreported.
- The business is conducted after applying for deregistration or after suspension of business by the relevant collection authority.
- The amount of input tax is falsely reported.
- Business tax is not paid for the purchase of services provided by foreign entities within 30 days after the prescribed deadline.
- Tax is evaded in another manner.

Generally, a taxpayer who evades tax payments by fraud or other unrighteous means shall be sentenced to imprisonment for no more than five years, detention or in lieu thereof or in addition thereto, be imposed with a fine of no more than TWD60,000. Additionally, a person who assists or instigates another person to evade tax payments shall be sentenced to imprisonment for no more than three years, detention or in lieu thereof, be imposed with a fine of no more than TWD60,000. Whereas a tax official, an attorney, a certified public accountant or any other authorized agent commits an offense by assisting or instigating the taxpayer to evade tax payments by fraud or other unrighteous means, the penalty to be imposed on the above enumerated persons shall be increased by up to one-half.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- The supply of goods and services in Tanzania by a taxable person
- Reverse-charge services received by a taxable person in Tanzania
- The importation of goods from outside Tanzania

C. Who is liable

A registered person that makes supplies of taxable goods and services in Tanzania in the course of furtherance of economic activity is liable for VAT.

VAT registration is required on the attainment of annual turnover of TZS100 million. A taxable person must notify the Tanzania Revenue Authority of its liability to register for VAT within 30 days of becoming liable.

If the business activities of a taxable person change, the taxable person must notify the commissioner within 14 days after the date of the change.

Exemption from registration. Businesses whose supplies mainly consist of exempt supplies (such as supplying specified agricultural, fisheries, beekeeping and dairy implements, and specific unprocessed agricultural products) are not required to register for VAT, since their turnover will not generally meet the registration threshold. However, a person supplying zero-rate supplies is required to be registered for VAT if the registration threshold is met. Tanzania does not have any provision to exempt such suppliers from registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. The VAT law in Tanzania provides for voluntary registration for intending traders who expect to reach the registration threshold in a period of 12 months or half of the registration threshold in a period of 6 months. Also, irrespective of whether the registration threshold is met or not, suppliers of professional services are required to be registered for VAT.

Group registration. Group VAT registration is not allowed in Tanzania.

If an economic activity is carried on in divisions or branches, a taxable person shall have a single registration that covers all economic activities undertaken by that person's divisions or branches.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that does not have a fixed establishment in Tanzania. The law requires a non-established business to appoint a resident person in Tanzania to act on its behalf in matters relating to VAT (also see Tax representatives below). A permanent establishment or branch of a foreign business must register for VAT if it makes taxable supplies of goods or services. A person importing goods or services from a nonresident must pay the Tanzanian VAT due.

Tax representatives. According to the provisions of section 64 of the VAT act 2014, where a nonresident business carries on economic activities in Tanzania without having a fixed place making taxable supplies, the nonresident shall appoint a resident representative in Tanzania to act on his or her behalf in matters relating to VAT. Upon acceptance of the representative appointed by the commissioner, the representative will perform on behalf of the taxable person all activities required under the VAT act 2014, including the following:

- Applying for registration, canceling registration and fulfilling other obligations in relation to registration
- Paying any VAT or fine, penalty, or interest imposed on the nonresident

The nonresident shall notify the commissioner, in writing, that a tax representative has been appointed. A resident person who is a VAT representative of more than one nonresident shall register separately for VAT with respect to each nonresident.

Reverse charge. Applicable for imported services whereby the receiver of the service will be assumed to be the service supplier, and so the input tax will be the same as the output tax for the service imported. The obligation to account for VAT on imported services lies with the person whose taxable supplies are less than 90% of its total supplies.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Tanzania.

Digital economy. Nonresident suppliers of business-to-consumer (B2C) telecommunication services and e-services are required to register for VAT.

Online marketplaces and platforms. Generally, Tanzania does not have specific VAT rules for online purchases of goods and services. The online marketplaces and platforms fall within the same rules as ordinary purchases of goods and services. For domestic purchases, these will be subject to VAT at 18%, unless the goods or services in question are exempt. Where the purchases involve importation of goods, VAT on importation may be applicable. In case the online platforms involve the acquisition of imported services by a taxable person, the person will be required to account for VAT (via the reverse charge) on such imported services provided that the taxable supplies of such person are less than 90% of its total supplies.

Registration procedures. If a taxable turnover exceeds TZS100 million, a taxable person is obliged to apply for the VAT registration within 30 days of becoming liable to make such an application. A taxable person or anyone that the company appoints can submit the application. The application should be accompanied by the following documents: copies of Memorandum and Article of Association, Certificate of Incorporation, business license, tax identification number (TIN) certificate, lease agreement and two passport-size photographs for one of the directors. Complete VAT Application Form No. ITX245.02.E, and submit either the hard copy or electronically within 30 days. Online registration is available at www.tra.go.tz. Registration can be completed within 14 working days, if all the required documents are available.

Deregistration. A taxable person who ceases to be liable for registration must notify the commissioner in writing within 14 days after ceasing to become liable. Failure to make such notification, where such failure is made knowingly and recklessly, is punishable by a fine of 100 to 200 currency points (one currency point equals TZS15,000). In any other case, the penalty is from 50 to 100 currency points. Serious failures may lead to criminal proceedings that could result in a custodial sentence.

If the commissioner is satisfied with the notice and if the payment of all VAT due is made, the commissioner cancels the registration, effective from the date of the notification.

The commissioner will cancel the registration if satisfied that the following conditions exist:
• The person is not carrying on an economic activity.
• The person has ceased to produce taxable supplies.
• The person's taxable turnover falls below the registration threshold.

The cancellation of registration shall be effective from the date set out in the notice of cancellation/deregistration.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
• Standard rate: 18%
• Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services, unless a specific measure provides for the zero rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

• Exports of goods
• Supplies of goods and supplies of immovable property to an address outside Tanzania
• Exports of taxable services to an address outside Tanzania

- Supplies of goods to a tourist or visitor by a licensed duty-free vendor who holds documentary evidence that the goods have been removed from Tanzania
- Supply of ancillary transport services for goods in transit through mainland Tanzania, where the service is an integral part of the international transport service and in respect of goods stored at the port, airport or a declared customs area for not more than 30 days while awaiting onward transport

Previous special relief rates are no longer in place in Tanzania. However, a special relief remains for taxable persons who entered into a binding agreement relating to exploration and prospecting of minerals, gas or oil with the government of Tanzania before 1 July 2015, the effective date of the VAT Act, 2014.

The term “exempt supplies” refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Agricultural, horticultural or forestry machinery for soil preparation or cultivation, except lawn mower or sports ground rollers and parts
- Agriculture implements (e.g., liquid and powder sprayers, spades, shovels, mattocks, picks, hoes, forks, tractor trailers)
- Agriculture inputs (e.g., fertilizers, pesticides, fungicides, herbicides, rodenticides, fungicides)
- Fishery implements (e.g., fishing nets, fishing vessels, factory ships and other vessels for processing or preserving fishery products)
- Beekeeping implements (e.g., beehives, honey strainers, bee hive smokers)
- Dairy equipment (e.g., milking machines, cream separators, milking machines)
- Medicine or pharmaceutical products not including food supplements or vitamins supplied to the government entities
- Articles designed for people with special needs (e.g., spectacle lenses, sunscreen for use by albinos)
- Educational materials (e.g., dictionaries, encyclopedias, other printed books, instructional chats, diagrams)
- Health care services (e.g., medical, dental, nursing, convalescent, rehabilitation) provided by an institution approved to provide such services, under the supervision or control of a person who is registered as being qualified to perform the services under Tanzania laws or whose qualifications to perform the services are recognized in Tanzania
- Transportation of persons by any means of conveyance other than taxicab, rental car or boat
- Petroleum products and equipment for natural gas (e.g., petrol, diesel, kerosene, CNG plants equipment, natural gas pipes, transportation and distribution pipes)
- Intermediary services (e.g., financial services supplied free of charge, insurance premiums for aircraft)
- Import of goods by a registered and licensed explorer or prospector for exclusive use in oil, gas or mineral exploration or prospection activities, if also relieved from customs duties
- Educational services
- Immovable property (e.g., sale of vacant land)
- Tobacco not stemmed or stripped
- Preparations of a kind used in animal feeding
- Fertilized eggs for incubation
- A motor vehicle designed for use by persons with disability
- Importation of an ambulance by a registered health facility other than a pharmacy, health laboratory or diagnostic center
- Financial services for which no consideration is charged

In addition to the above list, the Minister for Finance has additional powers to grant exemptions on imports by a government entity or supplies to a government entity of goods or services to be used solely for the implementation of government projects, regardless of how the said project is funded (i.e., whether by the government directly or by a concessional/non-concessional loan, or by a bank or a financial institution representing another government).

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Tanzania.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point." The tax point is the earliest of the following events:

- The time when the invoice for the supply is issued by the supplier
- The time when the consideration for the supply is received in whole or in part
- The time of supply, which is one of the following:
  - The time at which the goods are delivered or made available.
  - The time at which the services are rendered, provided or performed.
  - The time at which the immovable property is "created, transferred, assigned, granted, supplied to the customer" or "delivered or made available," whichever is earliest.

Deposits and prepayments. There is no specified time of supply for deposits and prepayments in the Tanzanian legislation, however, VAT on a taxable supply for which a deposit or prepayment has been made becomes payable when the deposit is made.

Continuous supplies of services. Each periodic or progressive supply is treated as a separate supply for determination of the VAT amount.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. Goods are considered to be supplied at the time when they are delivered or made available.

Reverse-charge services. The time of supply for services is the time when the services are rendered, provided, or performed.

Leased assets. The time of supply of leased assets is the earlier of when the property is transferred or made available to the customer.

Imported goods. VAT on imported goods is charged and payable when the custom duty, tax or levy is payable in accordance with the customs law. VAT on imports of capital goods may be deferred.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax, which is VAT charged on goods and services supplied for business purposes. A taxable person claims input tax by deducting it from output tax, which is VAT charged on supplies made. Taxable persons must claim input tax within six months after incurring the expense.

Input tax credit is only available where the goods or services in which the input tax was incurred, were acquired or imported into mainland Tanzania by a person in the course of economic activity and for the purpose of making taxable supplies.

Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services purchased in Tanzania and VAT paid on imports of goods and services for which input tax is deductible.

Nondeductible input tax. VAT may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use by a taxable person). In addition, input tax may not be recovered with respect to certain business expenses.

The following lists provide some examples of items of expenditure for which input tax is not deductible and examples of items of expenditure for which input tax is deductible if the expenditure is related to a taxable business use.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Purchase of a passenger vehicle or of spare parts, repair services, or maintenance services for a passenger vehicle unless the person's economic activity involves hiring out or providing transport services in passenger vehicles (with seating capacity of more than 16 persons) and the vehicle was hired for that purpose
- Business entertainment unless involved in the ordinary course of the person's economic activity
- Membership or right of entry for any person in a club, association or society of a sporting, social or recreational nature
- An exportation of raw minerals; effective 20 July 2019, there will also be a restriction of input tax credit for the exportation of raw agricultural products, raw forestry products, raw aquatic products and raw fauna products

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Purchases of goods for furtherance of economic activity
- Payments for services, such as audit fees
- Advertising
- Consultancy fees
- Accommodation

Partial exemption. A supplier of both taxable and exempt supplies is required to apportion input tax incurred in respect of supplies made by them. A taxable person may claim the whole of input tax directly attributable to taxable supplies but is not allowed to claim input tax directly attributable to exempt supplies.

VAT directly related to making exempt supplies is not recoverable. A registered person that makes both exempt and taxable supplies cannot recover VAT tax in full. This situation is referred to as "partial exemption."

Under the Tanzanian VAT law, there is only one method for calculating the amount of credit recoverable for input tax purposes if a taxable person supplies both taxable and exempt goods, services or immovable property.

The following are the bases of recovery of input tax:

- If taxable supplies are greater than 90% of total supplies, credit is allowed for all of the input tax.
- If taxable supplies are less than 10% of total supplies, credit is not allowed for any of the input tax.
- In all other cases, there will be partial recovery of the input tax.

Capital goods. Capital goods are defined in Tanzania as goods for use in the person's economic activity that have a useful economic life of at least one year and are neither consumables/raw material nor imported for the principal purpose of resale.

Input tax credit for capital goods is only allowed where a person incurs input tax on capital goods for purposes of making taxable supplies only. Input tax incurred for purposes of making exempt supplies is not recoverable.

Where a person incurs input tax on capital goods partly for the purpose of making taxable supplies (that is input tax incurred for the purpose of making both taxable and exempt supplies), a person will be required to apportion the part of the input tax that relates to taxable supplies in accordance with the formula provided under the law and claim the credit thereof. The claim for input tax credit is available within six months from the date of the fiscal receipt.

Where capital goods are imported, a taxable person may apply for VAT deferment, provided that the VAT payable on each unit of the capital goods should be at least TZS10 million. Once the application is approved, VAT on imported capital goods will not be payable. Unless revoked, the deferment lasts for the period of 10 years from the date of approval.

The basis for input tax calculation for local supplies shall be the cost of the supply while for imports the base is the sum of costs, insurance, freight, import duty and other duties charged on importation (such as railway development levy and customs processing fee).

Refunds. A taxable person may claim a refund of the excess of input tax over output tax on supplies within a tax period. The Commissioner-General of the Tanzania Revenue Authority may grant a taxable person a refund within 90 days after the filing of a VAT refund claim. If excess credits arise in successive periods, the taxable person may apply to the commissioner for refunds to be made monthly.

Each VAT refund claim filed with the commissioner must be approved and supported by a certificate of genuineness issued by an auditor registered with the National Board of Accountants and Auditors (NBAA).

Repayments are made if the taxable person qualifies for a refund. The filing of VAT refund claims can be made within a period of three years after the VAT return is submitted.

At the time of preparing this chapter, nonprofit organizations are no longer eligible to obtain a refund of input tax credit incurred on the acquisition or importation of taxable goods and services.

Pre-registration costs. Input tax incurred on pre-registration costs is not recoverable in Tanzania.

Write-off of bad debts. Where all or part of the amount payable to the supplier for a taxable supply has been overdue for more than 18 months and the supplier has, in his books of account, written off the amount unpaid as a bad debt, the supplier shall be allowed a decreasing adjustment equal to the amount that remains unpaid after the tax period.

For a decreasing adjustment to be applicable, both conditions must be met that the amount unpaid must be overdue for more than 18 months and the supplier must have written off the amount from the books of account.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred in relation to noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Tanzania.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Tanzania does not refund VAT incurred by a foreign business unless the business is registered for VAT.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A supplier of taxable goods and services must issue a fiscal receipt to the purchaser at the time of supply.

A tax invoice must be fiscalized (i.e., issued through an electronic fiscal device), indicate the date, details of the supplier [name, address, taxpayer identification number (TIN), VAT registration number (VRN)], description of services or goods supplied, consideration payable, as well as the details of the buyer [i.e., name, address, TIN and VRN)].

A tax invoice that is short of the requirements shall not be used to support a claim for input tax or any refund claim.

Credit notes. Credit notes and adjustment notes may be used to reduce the VAT charged on supplies of goods or services. Adjustment notes must show the same information as fiscal receipts and the nature of or reason for the adjustment.

Electronic invoicing. There are no specified rules with regards to e-invoicing or managing digital copies of invoices. However, there is a requirement to maintain documents in paper or electronic form for a period of five years from the relevant dates.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified VAT invoicing is not allowed in Tanzania. As such, full VAT invoices are required.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Tanzania.

Proof of exports. Goods exported from Tanzania are zero-rated. However, to qualify for zero rating, exports must be supported by evidence that proves the goods left Tanzania. Suitable evidence includes the following documents:
- A sales invoice
- A bill of lading, road manifest or airway bill
- Export permit
- In addition to the above, any other evidence requested by the commissioner

Foreign currency invoices. Foreign currency invoices are treated in the same manner as invoices in local currency. The tax authorities do not require the use of a standard exchange rate to convert the value of foreign invoices into Tanzanian shillings. In practice, the tax authorities accept the rate used by the taxable person if the rate is within the range of prevailing market exchange rates.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. It is a mandatory obligation for suppliers to use an electronic fiscal device to issue invoices (i.e., fiscal receipts) for all supplies made irrespective of whether the customer is a VAT-registered person or not. Noncompliance with the requirement to issue invoices through an electronic fiscal device is subject to penalties.

Records. A taxable person is required to maintain records of all accounts, documents, tax returns, as well as other records that are required to be maintained under other tax laws, including but not limited to:
- Tax invoices and adjustment notes issued and received by the person
- Customs documentation relating to imports and exports of goods by the person
- Records relating to supplies of imported services to the person, whether or not those supplies were taxable supplies
- A VAT account that records, for each tax period, all the output tax payable by the person in that period, or the input tax credit the person is allowed in that period, and all the increasing and decreasing adjustments that the person is required or entitled to make in that period
- Records showing the deposit of amounts paid to the Commissioner General under the VAT Act

Record retention period. A taxpayer is required to maintain documents for a period of at least five years from the end of the tax period to which they relate; or until a later date on which the final decision is made in any audit, recovery proceedings, dispute, prosecution or other proceedings under the VAT Act relating to that tax period.

Electronic archiving. The records can be archived in whichever method that is convenient to the business, either electronically or paper. There is no limitation on the methods of document retention.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. The VAT tax period is one month. Returns must be filed within 20 days after the end of the tax period. A nil return must be filed if no VAT is payable (either because the taxable person has made no supplies or because input tax exceeds output tax in the period).If the normal submission date falls on a public holiday or a weekend, the VAT return must be submitted on the next working day after that day.

An electronic document is considered filed by a person and received by the commissioner when a document registration number is created using the person's authentication code.

The due date for filing the return is on the 20th day of the month after the end of the period to which the return relates. Where the 20th days falls in a weekend or public holiday, the return may be filed on the subsequent working day.

Periodic payments. Payment of VAT is due in full on the same date as the submission, i.e., within 20 days after the end of the tax period.

Electronic filing. VAT-registered persons are required to file monthly VAT returns by using the TRA web-based system. Daily reports (Z-reports) are filed electronically to record all transactions.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Tanzania.

Special schemes. No special schemes are available in Tanzania.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Tanzania.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in Tanzania. However, a supplier of financial services is required to issue periodic statements to customers that shall be deemed to be tax invoices. The periodic statement must be issued within 10 days following the end of the month to which the tax period relates.

Digital reporting. No digital reporting requirements apply in Tanzania. VAT returns are filed electronically.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. Traders that meet the registration threshold but do not register are liable for a fine of from 100 to 200 currency points where failure is made knowingly or recklessly and a fine of from 50 to 100 currency points in any other case.

Notwithstanding any penalties imposed for late registration, a person is liable to pay interest on the VAT due.

Penalties for late payment and filings. The late filing of a VAT return or failure to pay tax by the due date is subject to a penalty of 2.5% of the amount of tax assessable with respect to the tax return less tax paid by the start of the period or 15 currency points, whichever is higher. The penalty is payable for each month or partial month for which the failure continues.

Penalties for errors. A person is liable for penalty upon making a false or misleading statement. The penalty is where the statement or omission is made without reasonable excuse, 50% of the tax shortfall or where the statement or omission is made knowingly or recklessly, 75% of the tax shortfall.

In case of second or subsequent errors or omission, the penalty will be increased by 10%. Where a taxpayer makes a voluntary disclosure, a penalty will be reduced by 10%.

Penalties for fraud. The penalties for fraud are the same as those for penalties for errors, as outlined above.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:

- The supply of goods or services consumed in Thailand by a taxable person
- The importation of goods or services into Thailand

• The export of goods or services out of Thailand

C. Who is liable

A taxable person is any entity or person that falls into any of the following categories:
• A seller of goods in the course of a business or profession in Thailand
• A provider of services in the course of a business or profession in Thailand
• An importer of goods and services
• Any person deemed by the law to be a trader, such as a local agent of an overseas corporation that sells goods or provides services in Thailand

Exemption from registration. No exemption from VAT registration applies to businesses that carry on taxable activities. However, certain activities are exempt from VAT (see Section D).

Voluntary registration and small businesses. A business may register for VAT voluntarily if its taxable turnover is below the VAT registration threshold (annual revenue of THB1.8 million). A business may also register for VAT voluntarily in advance of making taxable supplies.

Group registration. Group VAT registration is not allowed in Thailand.

Non-established businesses. To register as a VAT operator in Thailand, the non-established business must be engaged in VAT taxable activities in Thailand via a local agent or representative, and have a fixed place of business in Thailand.

A non-established business cannot register for VAT simply to claim input tax if it does not have any activities that generate income in Thailand.

Tax representatives. Tax representatives are not required in Thailand.

Reverse charge. If an overseas service provider or supplier of goods temporarily carries on a business in Thailand but is not registered as a Thai VAT operator or if such person provides services overseas for use in Thailand to a payer of service fees in Thailand, the customer for the goods or services in Thailand must self-assess the VAT due and remit it to the Thai tax authorities. Payment must be made by the seventh day of the month following the month of the payment of the income. If the customer for the goods or services is registered as a VAT operator in Thailand, it may recover the VAT paid by crediting it against the output tax.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Thailand.

Digital economy. For business-to-business (B2B) transactions, the business customer in Thailand would be expected to self-assess for VAT for purchases of digital services provided by an overseas business. The customer will need to lodge a separate self-assessment return together with the remittance of the VAT payable by the seventh day of the following month that the payment is made. The customer (who is VAT registered) is entitled to include the self-assessed VAT remitted as its input tax in computing VAT. The customer is entitled to treat it as input tax in the tax month that the VAT remittance form was filed with receipt obtained from the revenue department, provided that the service payments are related to the VAT-able business and not prohibited under Thai tax law.

For business-to-consumer (B2C) transactions, the customer would also be expected to self-assess the VAT. The customer needs to lodge a separate self-assessment return together with the remittance of VAT payable by the seventh day of the following month that the payment is made. However, from a practical standpoint, there are significant limitations on the enforcement of the self-assessment of the VAT for private individuals.

In January 2020, the Revenue Department proposed the draft VAT bill related to the collection of VAT on services rendered by foreign e-business operators. This is the second version of draft bill after receiving the comments from the Council of State of Thailand.

Online marketplaces and platforms. Under the bill, foreign businesses who provide electronic services to non-VAT registrants in Thailand, for use of the services in Thailand, will be required to register and pay VAT to the Thai revenue department, if annual service income from non-VAT registered customers exceeds THB1.8 million (USD60,000).

According to this draft VAT bill, where electronic services are provided via an electronic platform, the platform operator has an obligation to pay the VAT on behalf of all foreign e-business operators on its platform, with the same duties and responsibilities as an operator. At the time of preparing this chapter, the draft bill is still under consideration and thus is not enforced yet in Thailand.

Registration procedures. VAT registration must be made within 30 days after revenue exceeds THB1.8 million, or before the commencement of business. An overseas trader is eligible to register for VAT only if it will do business in Thailand for at least one year, or at least three months if engaged in a government project funded by a foreign loan or foreign aid.

The application for VAT registration can be submitted in hard copy to the respective area revenue office or online via the revenue department's website.

For a hard copy submission, the registration application and required supporting documents must be submitted to the area revenue office where the business is located. In the case where the taxpayer has several branches, the registration application must be submitted to the revenue office where the head office is located. If all required documents are fully submitted, the VAT registration should be approved on the same day.

For an online VAT registration, the applicant, who already has a tax identification number, can submit its application via the website of the revenue department (www.rd.go.th) 24-hours a day. The supporting documents are not required to be uploaded via the website at the time of registration, but the tax official will visit the applicant's registered office to inspect all supporting documents prior to approving the VAT registration. The result of the registration application will be sent by email to the applicant within 15 days of the submission date.

Deregistration. A business that ceases operations must cancel its VAT registration by deregistering with the tax authorities within 15 days after the date of ceasing operations.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero-rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 7%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services, unless a specific measure provides for the zero-rate or an exemption.

The VAT rate of 7% will apply until 30 September 2020. For the importation of goods from a seller located outside of Thailand or customs-free zone area, the importer must pay the VAT due to the customs authority, which collects the VAT on behalf of the Thai tax authority, at the time of importation.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Export of goods to foreign countries and customs free zone in Thailand
- Export of services , i.e., services performed in Thailand must be used in a foreign country, such as R&D that results in services used in foreign country. If the services are partially used in Thailand, the part of the services used in Thailand (if can be segregated) is subject to VAT at a rate of 7%

- International transport services by aircraft or seagoing vessels
- Sale of goods and provision of services to United Nations Organization, an embassy, legation, consulate-general or consulate
- Sale of goods and provision of service between bonded warehouse and the other bonded warehouse between the supplier who carries on the business in free zone

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Sale of agriculture products, animals and animal products (except canned foods)
- Sales of fertilizers, drugs or chemicals for caring for plants or animals, and insecticides or pesticides for plants or animals
- Sales of ground fishmeal and animal feeds
- Sales of newspapers, periodicals and textbooks
- Rendering of services in the fields of medicine, auditing or litigation
- Hospital services
- Domestic transportation of all types and international transportation by land
- Leasing of immovable property
- Business subject to specific business tax (SBT)

Option to tax for exempt supplies. Operators of the following VAT exempted businesses are entitled to register for VAT:

- Sale of goods not for export or provision of services as follows:
  - Sale of agricultural products
  - Sale of animals
  - Sale fertilizers
  - Sale of fish meals, animal feeds
  - Sale of drugs and chemical products for plants and animals
  - Sale of newspapers, magazines or textbooks
- Provision of domestic transport by aircraft
- Export of goods as the trader in the export processing zone under the laws governing industrial estate of Thailand
- Provision of the service of transporting fuel oils through pipes in Thailand
- Business with the value of tax base not exceeding the value of the tax base for a small business fixed by Royal Decree

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point."

The tax point for the supply of goods is the time of delivery unless one of the following events occurs earlier:

- Ownership transfer
- Receipt of the payment
- Issuance of the tax invoice

The tax point for the supply of services is the receipt of the payment unless one of the following events occurs earlier:

- Issuance of the tax invoice
- In the case of services provided without charge, the use of the services by the service provider or the other recipient persons

The tax point for the import of goods is the time of importation, which is the time of customs clearance.

The tax point for the export of goods is the time of payment of export duty or, if the goods are exempt from customs, the date on which the goods clear customs.

Deposits and prepayments. The time of supply rule for deposits and prepayments (for both goods and services) is the time of receipt of the payment.

Continuous supplies of services. There are no special time of supply rules in Thailand for continuous supplies. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules in Thailand for supplies of goods sent on approval for sale or return. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (as outlined above).

Reverse-charge services. As referred to in the "Reverse charge" section above, the time of supply rule for reverse-charge services is by the seventh day of the following month that the payment is made. If the customer for the goods or services is registered for VAT in Thailand, it may recover the VAT paid by crediting it against the output tax.

Leased assets. The tax point for the supply of leased assets will be triggered upon receipt of rental fee or issuance of tax invoice, whichever happens earlier.

Imported goods. As referred to in the section above, the time of supply for the supply of imported goods is the time of importation, which is the time of customs clearance.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax, which is VAT charged on goods and services supplied to it for business purposes. A taxable person generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax, which is VAT charged on supplies made.

Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services supplied in Thailand, VAT paid on imports of goods into Thailand and VAT self-assessed on reverse-charge services.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use by an entrepreneur). In addition, input tax may not be recovered for some items of business expenditure as prescribed under the Thai VAT law.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Entertainment expenses or similar expenses
- Passenger cars (except for car sales or rental business)
- Goods or services relating to passenger cars such as gasoline and repairs (except for car sales or rental business)
- Construction of buildings sold or used for a non-VAT business within three years after completion

In addition, the following input tax is not recoverable:

- Input tax arising from certain types of business activities that are not subject to VAT
- Input tax shown on an abbreviated tax invoice or a tax invoice that bears signs of correction or alteration of the particulars required by law
- Input tax not substantiated by a tax invoice
- Input tax recorded in an incomplete tax invoice
- Input tax shown on a tax invoice issued by a person not authorized to do so

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

Generally, input tax that is attributable on expenses related to the VAT-able business is deductible for VAT computation:

- Input tax on purchase of raw materials
- Input tax on purchase of capital assets

- Input tax on purchase of goods for resale
- Input tax on royalty payment
- Input tax on sale and marketing expenses
- Import VAT paid to customs department for import of goods into Thailand
- Self-assessed VAT paid to revenue department on reverse-charge mechanism

Partial exemption. A VAT operator who carries on both VAT-able and non-VAT-able activities is required to apportion the input tax attributable on common expenses (i.e., expenses incurred for the benefit of both the VAT and non-activities) in accordance with the proportion of the revenues of each category of business.

The apportionment basis must comply with the rules, procedure and conditions as prescribed under Thai VAT laws.

Capital goods. Input tax on the purchase of the capital goods that are used in VAT-able business, can be fully claimed. Normal input tax rules apply.

Refunds. The VAT refund can be made within three years from the last day of filing date.

Pre-registration costs. Any input tax attributable to the pre-registration costs prior to the VAT registration date is not recoverable.

Write-off of bad debts. The VAT operator carrying on the business of selling goods or provision of services who has issued a tax invoice and has included an output tax in the VAT computation, is entitled to deduct the output tax computing from a portion of bad debts from an output tax in the tax month that the bad debts were written off, if it meets the following conditions:

- Debt must arise from the sale of goods or the provision of service to non-VAT operator.
- The full tax invoice for such sale of goods or provision of service is issued.
- The legal prescription of the bad debt is not expired and there is substantial evidence to file a lawsuit.
- The legal procedure prescribed under Thai VAT laws has been complied.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred in relation to noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Thailand.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

VAT incurred by a non-established business (that is, an overseas legal entity) may not be recovered, unless the non-established business is registered as a VAT operator in Thailand.

To register as a VAT operator in Thailand, the non-established business must be engaged in activities that allow it to generate tax invoices in Thailand.

In order to satisfy this condition, the business must have a local agent, fixed establishment or permanent establishment in Thailand.

As a result, input tax can be matched to the output tax and the non-established business can prove that the input tax is relevant to its business operations in Thailand. A non-established business cannot register for VAT simply to claim input tax if it does not have any activities that generate income in Thailand.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A Thai VAT operator is required to issue a tax invoice for all taxable supplies made, including exports. A tax invoice is necessary to support a claim for input tax deduction or a refund.

Credit notes. A tax credit note may be used to reduce the VAT charged and reclaimed on a supply. The credit note must reflect the reasons for its issuance as allowed by the VAT law. The credit note must be cross-referenced to the original tax invoice and must contain the required information as prescribed under the Thai VAT law.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is not mandatory, but it is allowed in Thailand.

A normal taxpayer can only issue electronic tax invoices if it is approved by the revenue department. Basically, the taxpayer must have a good internal control system and reliable process to prove that the e-tax invoices will contain the same accurate details when they are created and have the electronic certificate from the registered service provider and one digital signature.

The electronic tax invoice could be maintained in an electronic copy for the inspection of the tax authority. Without the approval to issue electronic tax invoices, the taxpayer is liable to issue the tax invoice in hard copy and deliver such tax invoice to its customers when the VAT is triggered and maintain the copy of the tax invoice in hard copy for the inspection of the tax authority.

Simplified VAT invoices. The VAT operator who carries on a retail business is entitled to issue simplified tax invoices if such business meets the following conditions:
- The sale is made directly to customer without intention of resale.
- The service is provided in small transaction to a large number of persons.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Thailand.

Proof of exports. An export of goods may be eligible for the zero rate of VAT if the goods are physically exported and if the export is supported by evidence confirming the departure of the goods from Thailand. The evidence required includes the following documents:
- Customs documentation
- Original invoice

Foreign currency invoices. Tax invoices can be issued in a foreign currency if approval has been obtained from the Revenue Department. The exchange rate applied must be presented on the tax invoice.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. There are no specific invoicing rules for B2C. As such, Thai VAT registered businesses are liable to issue full tax invoices to all its customers, regardless of whether or not the customer has requested it.

Records.

Record retention period. A VAT operator must keep and maintain the records, tax invoices, copies of tax invoices and the supporting documents at the place of business for at least five years.

Electronic archiving. The storage of VAT documents in an electronic format it is not mandatory in Thailand, but it is allowed. The VAT operator must obtain the approval from the tax authority prior to the electronic storage of VAT documents.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. VAT returns are submitted monthly.

Periodic payments. A supplier of goods and services must collect VAT from the purchaser of the goods or the recipient of a service and remit it to the Thai tax authority by the 15th day of the month following which the tax point is triggered (for example, the time of delivery, receipt of payment or issuance of an invoice; see Section E).

Electronic filing. The VAT operator can file its monthly VAT returns provided that it obtains the approval from the Thai Revenue Department. An additional eight days of deadline can apply. This applies to all filings for VAT, not just electronic filings.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Thailand.

Special schemes. No special schemes are available in Thailand.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Thailand.

Supplementary filings.

Reverse-charge services filing. A separate return is required to report VAT on reverse-charge services. So where a Thai service recipient accounts for VAT via the reverse-charge mechanism, it is required to remit a filing summarizing such supplies, to the Thai tax authority by the seventh day of the month following the month in which the payment is made.

Digital reporting. No digital reporting requirements apply in Thailand.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. Penalties are imposed for failure to register for VAT. The penalty is 200% of the VAT payable each month during the period of the failure to register for VAT.

Penalties for late payment and filings. A penalty of 100% of the tax shortfall is assessed for the late payment of VAT, plus a monthly surcharge of 1.5% of the tax shortfall (capped at 100% of the tax shortfall). However, if a taxable person does not receive a notice of call for examination, the penalty may be reduced to the following:

- 2% if the payment is made within 15 days after the due date
- 5% if the payment is made after 15 days but not later than 30 days after the due date
- 10% if the payment is made after 30 days but not later than 60 days after the due date
- 20% if the payment is made more than 60 days from the due date

Penalties for errors. A VAT registrant who issues a tax invoice, a simplified tax invoice, a debit note or a credit note containing incomplete particulars shall be subject to the fine not exceeding THB2,000.

Penalties for fraud. A penalty is imposed for the use of a false tax invoice in computing tax. The penalty is 200% of the VAT payable under the original tax invoice.

In addition, a VAT registrant who intentionally makes use of a false tax invoice for the purpose for tax crediting shall be liable for a fine from THB2,000 to THB200,000 and three months to seven years imprisonment.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT is charged on the entry of goods imported into Trinidad and Tobago and on the commercial supply of goods or prescribed services by a registered person.

C. Who is liable

The Trinidad and Tobago VAT law imposes a registration requirement on any person that makes commercial supplies in Trinidad and Tobago in excess of TTD500,000 in a 12-month period.

A person that intends to make commercial supplies may apply for registration. However, the application must be supported by additional information indicating that the value of the person's commercial supplies will exceed TTD500,000 in a 12-month period. Suitable evidence includes incorporation documents, contracts showing evidence of commencement of business, bank statements and invoices issued.

Exemption from registration. If a nonresident of Trinidad and Tobago wishes to supply goods or services solely to a VAT-registered person, for the purpose of it making commercial supplies in Trinidad and Tobago, the nonresident's supply is regarded as not taking place in Trinidad and Tobago, unless, the supplier and recipient agree that the supply is to be regarded as taking place in Trinidad and Tobago. The nonresident is not required to register for VAT if the supply is treated as taking place outside of Trinidad and Tobago, provided the supplier is not required to be registered as a result of making other supplies.

Voluntary registration. Voluntary registration is not allowed in Trinidad and Tobago.

Group registration. VAT grouping is not allowed under the Trinidad and Tobago VAT law. Legal entities that are closely connected must register for VAT individually.

On request, the Board of Inland Revenue may approve the separate registration of the divisions of a company, and in such cases, supplies between divisions would be subject to tax.

Non-established businesses. A branch of a foreign corporation is registered in the same manner as a resident taxable person. A "non-established business" is a business that does not have a fixed establishment in Trinidad and Tobago. A non-established business that makes commercial supplies in Trinidad and Tobago must register for VAT if it meets the registration requirements.

A foreign individual or company that must register for VAT may need to appoint an agent or manager who is resident to assume the responsibilities of principal relating to compliance under the VAT Act.

Tax representatives. A non-established business that registers for VAT in Trinidad and Tobago is not required to appoint a tax representative, however, the business can choose to appoint one. Any person who carries on a business, in Trinidad and Tobago, on behalf of a principal may perform the functions under the VAT Act.

In the absence of the appointment of a tax representative, the Board of Inland Revenue may deem a person who carries on business on behalf of a non-established business to be its agent for the purpose of compliance and accountability.

Reverse charge. No reverse-charge mechanism applies in Trinidad and Tobago. In Trinidad and Tobago, the responsibility to account for VAT charged on goods and services is with the supplier of the goods or services and not the recipient. VAT incurred on services purchased from abroad is not required to be reported in Trinidad and Tobago and cannot be claimed by the Trinidad and Tobago recipient in its VAT return.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Trinidad and Tobago.

Digital economy. Non-established businesses that make cross-border supplies of goods or electronic services to customers in Trinidad and Tobago are not required to register for VAT in Trinidad and Tobago, as the services are regarded as taking place outside Trinidad and Tobago.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Trinidad and Tobago.

Registration procedures. A written application for registration must be submitted on the prescribed form. The application must be supported by evidence to show that the value of the person's commercial supplies will exceed TTD500,000 in a 12-month period. Such evidence may include incorporation documents, contracts entered into, bank statements and invoices issued. An applicant will be registered within one week after the receipt of the application provided that all the relevant documentation has been provided. There is no provision for online registration.

Deregistration. A registered person who is not required and will not be required under the VAT Act to be registered may apply to the Board of Inland Revenue to have his or her registration canceled. The Board of Inland Revenue may refuse to cancel the registration on the grounds that the person has, within the last two years, made supplies requiring that he or she be registered.

D. Rates

The term “taxable supplies” refers to supplies of goods and prescribed services that are made liable to a rate of VAT. Taxable supplies are referred to as “commercial supplies” in Trinidad and Tobago. The term “prescribed services” means any services not listed as exempt services in Schedule 1 of the VAT Act.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 12.5%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services, unless a specific measure provides for the zero rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Exported goods
- Medicines
- Water and sewerage services supplied by a public authority

The term “exempt supplies” refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Financial services
- Medical services
- Residential property rentals
- Real estate brokerage
- Public postal services
- Prescribed bus and taxi services
- Betting and gaming

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Trinidad and Tobago.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the “time of supply” or “tax point.” In general, the tax point for goods and services supplied by a taxable person is the earliest of the following events:
- The date of issuance of the invoice by the supplier
- The date of receipt of payment for the supply
- The date on which the goods are made available to the recipient or the services are performed

A taxable person must account for VAT in the VAT period in which the tax point occurs, regardless of whether payment is received. A person registered for VAT may recover input tax indicated on the tax invoices.

Deposits and prepayments. For deposits and prepayments, a supply of goods or services takes place when payment is made for the supply. The treatment does not vary for refundable or non-refundable amounts or if the supply does not take place.

Continuous supplies of services. Where a supply of services is continuous (e.g., electricity and telecommunications), the supply takes place when an invoice for the supply is issued by the supplier, but only to the extent of the supply to which the invoice relates.

Where services are supplied under an agreement (e.g., property rental) that expressly provides for the consideration to be paid in periodic payments, whether or not the services are provided periodically, the services are regarded as being successively supplied at the times when the periodic payments are made or become due, whichever is earlier, to the extent that an invoice for the services is not issued by the supplier.

Where goods are supplied progressively or periodically under an agreement that provides for the consideration for the supply to be paid from time to time upon the supplier issuing invoices, the goods are regarded as being supplied at the time when:
(a) An invoice for the supply of the goods is issued by the supplier
(b) Payment for the supply of the goods is made
Or
(c) Payment for the supply of the goods becomes due

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. Where goods are supplied to a person under an agreement whereby the recipient has an option to return the goods to the supplier, the supply takes place when the goods are made available to the recipient.

Reverse-charge services. In Trinidad and Tobago, the reverse charge for services does not apply. As such, there are no special time of supply rules.

Leased assets. Where goods are supplied under an agreement for hire purchase or lease with an option to purchase, the supply takes place when the goods are made available to the recipient.

Imported goods. VAT on the entry of imported goods becomes due and payable at the time when the goods have entered. The importer is liable to account for the tax and must pay it.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

The tax paid on goods and services that are acquired for the purpose of making taxable supplies is deductible as input tax. Input tax is offset against output tax, which is the tax charged on the making of commercial supplies. Input tax is deductible when the goods and services are acquired.

Goods or services are deemed to be for the purpose of making commercial supplies if the supplier acquired, imported or produced the goods or services for any of the following purposes:
- Their supply or resupply as a taxable supply
- Their consumption or use (whether directly or indirectly, or wholly or partly) in producing goods or services for supply as a taxable supply
- Their consumption or use (whether directly or indirectly, or wholly or partly) with respect to a commercial enterprise

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business or where the person only makes exempt supplies.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Input tax is not deductible where invoices do not meet VAT invoicing requirements as set out in the law.

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Rental of premises used in the business
- Inventory used to make finished goods
- Vehicles and equipment used in the business
- Professional and other services provided to the business

Partial exemption. The Trinidad and Tobago VAT law provides that if all the supplies made by a taxable person during a tax period are commercial supplies, the input tax incurred in the period is deductible in full. However, if some, but not all, of the supplies made by the person during the tax period are commercial supplies, a partial recovery calculation is required. The following are the rules for the calculation of allowable input tax:

- All of the input tax for the period that is directly related to the making of commercial supplies (regardless of whether the supplies are made during that tax period) is recoverable.
- None of the input tax for the period that is directly related to supplies that are not commercial supplies (regardless of whether the supplies are made during that tax period) is recoverable.
- A proportion of the input tax for the period that relates both to commercial and noncommercial supplies is recoverable. The recoverable portion is calculated based on the value of commercial supplies made during the period compared with the value of total supplies made during the period.

If a taxable person makes no commercial supplies during the tax period, the recoverable input tax is the portion, if any, of the input tax for the period that the tax authorities consider to be "fair and reasonable."

Capital goods. There are no specific rules for capital goods and there is no definition in the VAT law for capital goods. The same general rules for input tax recovery apply to capital goods.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax recoverable in a VAT period exceeds the amount of output tax payable for that VAT period, the excess may be refunded. VAT returns must be submitted within 25 days after the end of the VAT period. If this deadline is met and if the refund is unpaid after six months, the legislation provides for the tax authorities to pay interest on the outstanding balance, at the rate of 1% per month or part of a month, chargeable from the day after the expiration of the period until the date on which the outstanding amount is satisfied.

Pre-registration costs. Pre-registration input tax is generally not deductible. However, input tax may be claimed in respect of any stock in trade that is on hand at the time of registration. Evidence showing that the inventory on hand was audited by a chartered accountant must be produced at the time of registration.

Write-off of bad debts. Customers can claim relief for VAT paid on goods/services provided, which were not settled by the customers. The claim for VAT on bad debts is made by deducting the VAT on bad debts from the total output tax due for the period. However, for the claim to be made, the debt must be outstanding for at least 12 months, reasonable efforts should have been made to collect the debt and the amount outstanding has been written off as a bad debt.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred in relation to noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Trinidad and Tobago.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Foreign businesses that make commercial supplies in Trinidad and Tobago may register and recover tax with respect to their local operations in the same manner as resident businesses. However, Trinidad and Tobago does not refund VAT paid by foreign businesses that are not registered for VAT in the country.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A taxable person must generally provide a VAT invoice for all taxable supplies made, including exports. A VAT invoice is necessary to support a claim for input tax deduction.

Credit notes. A credit note may be used to reduce the VAT charged and reclaimed on a supply of goods and services. A credit note generally mentions the same information as a VAT invoice.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is not allowed in Trinidad and Tobago.

Simplified VAT invoices. Fast food outlets, gas stations and cinemas are exempted from the requirement to issue a tax invoice, unless one is requested by the recipient of the supply.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Trinidad and Tobago.

Proof of exports. VAT is not chargeable on supplies of exported goods. However, to qualify as VAT-free, exports must be supported by evidence that the goods have left Trinidad and Tobago. Such evidence includes:
- The commercial invoice, which includes a description of the goods exported, quantum and price
- A CARICOM invoice
- Seaway Bill/airway bill as applicable
- The completed Customs Declaration Form (C82 Form), signed and stamped by Customs and Excise

Foreign currency invoices. If a supply is made to a person outside of Trinidad and Tobago, the invoice may be issued in a foreign currency. However, in accounting for the tax payable, the taxable person must account for the tax in Trinidad and Tobago dollars. In converting the invoice, the exchange rate used must be the rate at which the Central Bank of Trinidad and Tobago would have purchased that currency in the form of notes at the time of the supply.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. Fast food outlets, gas stations and cinemas are exempted from the requirement to issue a tax invoice, unless one is requested by the recipient of the supply.

Records. Every registered person shall keep at their principal place of business in Trinidad and Tobago or such other place as the Board may approve such books and records, expressed in the English language and the currency of Trinidad and Tobago, as are appropriate to enable the Board to ascertain the liability of that person to tax. The records required to be kept are, but not limited to, tax invoices, proforma invoices, and certificates of waiver given to them and copies of tax invoices and proforma invoices given by them.

Record retention period. Books and records are to be kept for six years from the end of the VAT period, except where the person has ceased to exist, and the affairs of the person have been wound up.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is not allowed in Trinidad and Tobago.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. The tax year is divided for taxable suppliers into two-month tax periods, and suppliers are required to submit a VAT return covering all taxable transactions up to and including the last day of each tax period. For administrative convenience, the total number of registrants is divided into two basic categories and an ad hoc category, whose tax periods are as follows:
- Category A: two-month periods ending with the last day of January, March, May, July, September and November
- Category B: two-month periods ending with the last day of February, April, June, August, October and December
- Category C: tax periods as determined by the Board of Inland Revenue

Every registrant is required to submit a VAT return on the prescribed form to the Board of Inland Revenue by the 25th day of the month following each tax period.

Periodic payments. Every registrant is required to pay the amount of VAT due, to the Board of Inland Revenue by the 25th day of the month following each tax period.

Electronic filing. VAT returns may be filed physically or electronically. However, to file electronically, the taxpayer must register to obtain a TTConnect ID. To obtain a TTConnect ID, the taxpayer must have two forms of Trinidad and Tobago national identification.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Trinidad and Tobago.

Special schemes. No special schemes are available in Trinidad and Tobago.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Trinidad and Tobago.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in Trinidad and Tobago.

Digital reporting. VAT returns may be filed electronically in Trinidad and Tobago. No other digital reporting requirements apply.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. A penalty of TTD6,000 is imposed for a failure to notify the tax authorities of changes relating to the registration.

Penalties for late payment and filings. Penalties are assessed for errors and omissions with respect to VAT accounting. A fine of TTD1,000 is imposed for the late submission of a VAT return on summary conviction. In addition, a penalty of 8% and interest at the rate of 2% per month or part of a month is charged on late payments of VAT.

Penalties for errors. There are no specific penalties for errors. The penalties for late payment and filings above apply.

Penalties for fraud. Where a person who makes a supply and:

(a) Falsely represents that tax is charged on that supply
(b) Falsely represents the amount of tax charged on that supply
  Or
(c) Recovers or seeks to recover an amount represented to be in respect of tax, the Board may assess that person as being liable to pay an amount of tax on the basis of so much of the amount that it appears to the Board was represented to be charged as tax, or was recovered or sought to be recovered in respect of tax, as exceeds the amount, if any, that he is authorized by the VAT law, to recover in respect of the supply and, where the person is not registered, the assessment shall be made as if that person were registered and his tax period had been such period as the Board may determine

Where an assessment of the tax payable by a person is made or amended under this section wholly or in part as a result of any act or omission of that person that constitutes an offense against the VAT Act, the assessment may include such additional amount by way of penal tax as the Board sees fit, but so that the additional amount does not exceed three times the amount of tax (other than penal tax) that is included in the assessment or amendment as a result of the act or omission that constitutes the offense.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT is applicable mainly to the following transactions:
Supplies of goods and services made in Tunisia

Imports of goods and services

Industrial activities are generally subject to VAT except for the production of agricultural and fish products. Other activities subject to VAT include professional services, wholesale trade (excluding foodstuffs), and retail trade (for traders that make an annual turnover of TND100,000 or more), excluding foods, medicine, pharmaceuticals and products subject to administrative approval tariffs.

C. Who is liable

A taxable person is an individual or legal entity that is registered for VAT in Tunisia and any other entity that engages independently in taxable transactions other than import sales.

In addition, a person (individual or legal entity) that supplies goods or services for consideration as part of that person's business activities, but who is not required to register for VAT, may opt for a VAT registration if any of the following conditions are satisfied:
• It carries out operations that are not within the scope of VAT.
• It carries out export activities that are exempt from VAT.
• It supplies products or services that are exempt from VAT to persons subject to VAT.

Exemption from registration. Even if sales are subject to the zero VAT rate, there are no rules that allow an exemption from a VAT registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. If a Tunisian customer is required to apply the reverse charge to VAT on cross-border payments, a non-established and nonresident supplier may opt for registering for VAT purposes if the supplier incurs input tax on the purchases that are necessary for the services rendered in Tunisia, and if the input tax generates a VAT-credit position or a VAT-receivable position for that supplier. The input tax credit may be refunded upon request.

Group registration. The Tunisian VAT law does not allow VAT grouping. Legal entities that are closely connected must register for VAT individually.

Non-established businesses. Nonresident companies that do not have a permanent establishment in Tunisia but carry out taxable transactions are subject to VAT. Accordingly, Tunisian customers must withhold the entire VAT charge on payments for services supplied by nonresident entities. The nonresident must add Tunisian VAT to its invoice. The customer withholds the VAT amount, remits it to the Tunisian tax administration and pays the amount due for the services, exclusive of VAT, to the foreign provider.

The customer should also obtain a "discharge certificate" in support of the VAT remittance and provide it to the bank transferring the amount due. Failing to be provided with such discharge, the bank performing the transfer could incur penalties of up to 20% of the amount of taxable revenues. However, Tunisian customers that are nonresident, from an exchange regulation standpoint, are exempt from the requirement to obtain such a discharge certificate.

Non-established companies may register for VAT with the Tunisian tax administration. In such case, the VAT withholding procedure is not required.

Tax representatives. Current Tunisian tax legislation does not provide representation for tax purposes.

Nevertheless, where non-established businesses that are not VAT registered in Tunisia provide supplies to a Tunisian customer, the latter shall fully withhold the VAT due in Tunisia.

Alternatively, those businesses may opt to report the VAT withheld directly and deduct the VAT paid on the purchases of goods and services necessary to perform the transactions subject to VAT. To do so, they must:
• Submit a declaration of tax existence by filing a prescribed form with the relevant tax office
• File a VAT return

Reverse charge. The reverse charge applies when services or goods are used/consumed in Tunisia and supplied by nonresident entities.

Domestic reverse charge. The reverse charge is in general not applicable on domestic transactions. According to Tunisian tax rules, it applies only on payments to nonresident and non-established suppliers when the payment corresponds to a taxable operation in Tunisia, other than an importation of goods. VAT is collected on domestic payments by the supplier itself who remains liable for the VAT due.

However, the reverse charge is partially applicable on local payments when payment is processed by State Services, local authorities, public companies and establishments. When payments are processed by these bodies, a WHT on the VAT amount should be processed at the rate of 25%.

Digital economy. There are no VAT rules specifically applicable to the digital economy.

There are no particular VAT registration requirements with regard to non-established business that supply cross-border supplies of goods or electronic services.

For imported goods, there is no requirement for the nonresident supplier to collect the Tunisian VAT (neither by direct payment nor through the reverse charge). In practice, the VAT is paid by the Tunisian importer when the goods are cleared at customs.

For imported intangibles, (i.e., supplies that do not require payment of the VAT at customs), if the Tunisian client is a business, it is required to apply the VAT reverse charge. The VAT that has been declared as output tax under the reverse charge may be refundable as if it qualifies as input tax. For supplies of intangibles made to an individual for their personal use, the Tunisian regulations do not provide a particular rule for the collection of VAT (neither through VAT registration nor the reverse charge).

Pursuant to Article 27 of the Finance Act for the year 2020, nonresident businesses in Tunisia that are selling computer software and internet-based services are subject to a royalty of 3% on the turnover earned with resident individuals and corporate entities. Please note, however, that this royalty is not qualified as VAT. The nonresident companies concerned shall proceed with the filing of their abovementioned turnover on a quarterly basis. Reporting and payment procedures will be established by a governmental decree. At the time of preparing this chapter, further details have not yet been published.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Tunisia.

The same rules as such as those provided for Article 27 of the Finance Act for the year 2020 (as outlined above) are applicable to online marketplaces and platforms.

Registration procedures. Each individual who would practice an industrial, commercial or non-commercial profession, and every legal entity must, before the initiation of the activity, file at the territorially competent tax control office a declaration of existence according to the preset model required by the tax authorities. The declaration of existence must be accompanied by:
- A copy of the Articles of Association for the legal entities
- A copy of the agreement or the administrative authorization, if the activity or the place where the activity is performed are subject to a prior authorization

After filing the declaration of existence, the taxpayer obtains a tax identification card, which includes the tax identification number.

The application for registration must be submitted by the taxpayer itself or its legal representative or by any other person with a power of attorney to register.

There is no online registration for VAT purposes.

Deregistration. In the case of termination of activity, the taxpayer submits a termination application, with the tax identification card and declaration of existence, to the territorially competent tax control office.

In case of a deregistration following an optional VAT registration by a person or legal entity not subject to VAT (because its economic activities), the deregistration, or the renunciation of the status of a taxable person, would be made after 31 December of the fourth year that follows the year of the optional registration. The deregistration in this case leads to the regularization of the VAT which has been deducted on the purchased inventories and assets during the period of the optional registration.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 19%
- Reduced rates: 7% and 13%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods and services unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate, a suspension or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 7%

- Transport of goods
- Activities carried out by doctors and analytical laboratories
- Materials and supplies for pharmaceutical products
- Tourism activities

Please note that pursuant to Article 30 of the Finance Act for the year 2020, the VAT exemption for medicinal and pharmaceutical products retailing ended on 31 December 2019. Thus, these products are subject to the VAT at the rate of 7% as from 1 January 2020. Serums and other blood fractions and vaccines falling under No. 30.02 of the customs duties tariff and medicinal products not having similar products manufactured locally and falling under No. 30.03 and 30.04 of the customs duties tariffs benefit from to the VAT suspension all along the sales stages.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 13%

- Services rendered by lawyers, tax advisors and other experts.
- Sales of low-voltage electricity intended for domestic consumption, and the sale of medium- and low-voltage electricity used from the functioning of water pumping equipment for agricultural irrigation.
- Starting 1 January 2018, the VAT rate of 13% applies to sales of buildings constructed for the exclusive use of housing by real estate developers for the profit of private persons or by public real estate developers (the rate of 13% will increase to 19% effective 1 January 2024). As per the 2019 Finance Act, the supplies of buildings constructed for the exclusive use of housing by real estate are allowed to deduct the VAT charged on the stock held on 31 December 2017. The deduction of the VAT does not give rise to the possibility of refund of the non-attributed VAT credit.

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies

- Banking interest
- Maritime air transport
- Food products (for example, milk and flour)

Examples of supplies outside the VAT scope

- Agriculture is out of the scope of the application of VAT.

VAT suspension. VAT may also be suspended. A special authorization from the tax administration is required to obtain a suspension of VAT on purchases.

A VAT suspension is available to entities engaged in exporting, to financial institutions working mainly with nonresidents, to entities governed by the Hydrocarbons Code and, in certain circumstances, to entities engaged in activities described in the Investment Incentives Code.

Entities subject to VAT may be entitled to VAT suspension on their local purchases of raw materials and equipment to be used in their projects realized abroad exceeding TND3 million.

Other regimes suspend VAT as well, such as the regime for air transport companies in respect of domestic and international transport, the regime for companies responsible for the implementation of social housing, the regime for Tunisian citizens resident abroad who realize projects in Tunisia, the regime for donations as part of an international cooperation, etc.

VAT suspension may be obtained by requesting a VAT suspension certificate from the tax administration. This certificate may be issued annually or for certain transactions. A copy of the certificate and a copy of the original purchase order certified by the tax authorities are presented to the seller to ensure that the seller does not add VAT to the invoice. The tax administration approval is based on whether the company has the right to be eligible for such “incentive” regime and on whether the company’s tax return filings for the different tax heads are up to date.

Option to tax for exempt supplies. According to the tax legislation in force, there is a possibility to opt for the VAT regime regarding services, goods and activities exempt for VAT or positioned out of the scope of VAT.

E. Time of supply

The time when the taxable event is considered to have taken place and VAT becomes due is called the “time of supply” or “tax point.”

The time of supply for the sale of goods is when the goods are delivered to the customer.

The time of supply for services is when the service is rendered or when the payment is made (fully or partially) if the settlement is made before the completion of the service.

Deposits and prepayments. For the importation of goods: the VAT is due (paid to customs) by the customs clearance.

For the domestic supply of goods: the tax is due when the goods are supplied. The taxable event is not linked to deposits and advanced payments. The VAT is generally due by the delivery of goods.

For the provision of services: deposits and advanced payments are considered as the time of supply if the settlement is made before the completion of the service. The VAT is generally due by the completion production of the service, or by the collection of the price or the advances in case they occur before the provision of the service.

Continuous supplies of services. There are no specific time of supply rules for continuous supplies of services. As such, normal time of supply rules apply.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. The tax law does not explicitly refer to goods delivered for approval, the delivery is when the supply is considered to be made. In practice, the VAT is due when the goods are received. If the goods are returned, they should be subject to a credit note on which the amount of the returned goods is mentioned with VAT.

Reverse-charge services. The reverse charge is due when the payment is processed. In fact, the VAT must be withheld by taxpayers registered in Tunisia for tax purposes in one of the following circumstances:

— When the payer is the State, or local authorities, or businesses and public institutions, 25% of the due VAT should be withheld when the payment is processed.
— When the VAT is due on cross-border payments, 100% of the due VAT should be withheld when the payment is processed.

Leased assets. The tax law does not explicitly indicate the time of supply rules for leased assets. However, according to the point 3 of Article 5 of the VAT code, VAT is collected on services, when the service is rendered or when the overall price or advances are collected before the service is rendered. The same rule applicable for services is applicable to leasing operations.

Imported goods. The time of importation for imported goods is when the goods are cleared at customs.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxpayer may recover VAT with respect to purchases of goods and services that are used for business activities and contribute effectively to the realization of taxable transactions. The VAT deduction is made on the basis of a valid invoice, customs document or withholding VAT certificate.

According to article 18 of the Tunisian VAT code, the invoice shall mention:
- The transaction date
- The customer identification, address and tax identification
- The designation of the goods or services and tax prices
- Rates and amounts of VAT
- The terms "export sales" or "sales under suspension of VAT"

Other information may be required to be mentioned on the invoices, depending on the specificities of the activities (e.g., clinics).

Companies partially subject to VAT deduct VAT based on the following rules:
- Full deduction is allowed for VAT on purchases used exclusively in a business activity that is subject to VAT.
- No deduction of VAT is allowed for purchases used exclusively in a business activity that is not subject to VAT.
- Deduction on a proportionate basis is allowed for purchases used in both a business activity subject to VAT and a business activity not subject to VAT.

A withholding tax with regard to VAT is due at the rate of 25% on amounts equal to or exceeding TND1,000 (including VAT) and must be paid by the state, local authorities, enterprises and public institutions in return of their acquisitions of goods, equipment, services, buildings and businesses.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes and that are considered to be nondeductible expenses for corporate tax purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use by an entrepreneur).

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Passenger vehicles used for the transport of persons (other than those representing the purpose of the business such as taxi and car rental companies), cars used by hotels for tourist trips, and also the rental of passenger vehicles and any other expenses incurred in order to ensure their operation and their maintenance
- Purchases made from individuals or legal entities that are outside the scope of VAT but that have invoiced VAT incorrectly
- Goods, properties and services fully paid in cash in amounts equal to or exceeding TND5,000 (excluding VAT)
- VAT on goods and services acquired from residents in territories with privileged tax regime

According to Tunisian rules, input tax that can be deductible is not limited. In fact, any input tax charged on the acquisition of goods or services that are necessary for the operation and so related to a taxable business use can be deductible. However, according to Article 10 of the VAT code, the deduction of VAT cannot be accepted on the items listed below.

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Passenger cars used for the transport of persons other than those which are the object of operation, as well as the rental of passenger cars and all costs incurred to ensure their operation and maintenance
- Products delivered, and the services rendered by the persons who are not subject to the VAT (not liable to collect the VAT)
- Commodities, goods and services of which the amount is greater than or equal to 5,000 dinars exclusive of taxes and which is paid in cash
- Amounts paid to persons resident of established in low tax jurisdictions

Partial exemption. Input tax directly related to making exempt supplies is generally not recoverable. If a taxable person makes both exempt and taxable supplies, it may not recover its input tax in full. This situation is referred to as "partial exemption."

A Tunisian taxable person that makes both taxable and exempt supplies may calculate the amount of input tax it may recover in several ways. The standard partial exemption calculation method consists of the following two-stage calculation:

- The first stage identifies the input tax that may be directly allocated to taxable and to exempt supplies. Input tax directly allocated to taxable supplies is deductible, while input tax directly related to exempt supplies is not deductible. Supplies that are exempt with credit are treated as taxable supplies for these purposes.
- The second stage identifies the amount of the remaining input tax (for example, input tax on general business overhead) that may be allocated to taxable supplies and recovered. The amount of recoverable VAT is determined by making a pro rata calculation based on the respective values of taxable and exempt supplies made.

Capital goods. According to Article 9 of the VAT code, VAT on investments of all types required for operation (except passenger cars intended for the carriage of passengers and not constituting an object of exploitation) is deductible. This includes capital goods.

However, in case of transfer, contribution, change of use of these assets and in the event of cessation or abandonment of the taxable person's regime, a payment must be operated equal to the amount of the deducted VAT or which should have been paid or reimbursed, reduced by one-fifth for each calendar year or fraction of a calendar year of detention in the case of capital goods or equipment, and one-tenth by calendar year or fraction of calendar year of detention in the case of a building.

If capital goods are used for both taxable and exempt activities, the amount of the deductible tax that should be operated, is calculated according to a percentage resulting from the ratio between the following elements achieved during the previous financial year:

- Income subject to VAT plus those resulting from the exportation of taxable goods or services or deliveries made in suspension of such tax and incomes from international air transport operations, including due VAT or VAT of which payment is not required
- The sums referred to in the above paragraph plus income from exempted business or business situated outside the scope of VAT

Refunds. VAT liability (output tax) is computed by multiplying all taxable sales by the applicable VAT rate. The enterprise subtracts the total VAT paid on purchases of goods (input tax) from output tax and pays the net amount to the tax administration. If the input tax exceeds the output tax, the resulting amount is refunded with a restitution claim made to the tax administration and, in the majority of the cases, after a tax audit has been completed by the tax administration.

The regime of VAT credit refunds varies according to the source of the credit and the local tax authority.

The common regime, under which the VAT credit is fully refundable, applies in the following circumstances:
- The VAT credit will be refundable without a tax audit if the credit is due to:
  - —Exports (refund in 7 days)
  - —Withholding tax on VAT
  - —Sales with the suspension of the VAT
  - —Investments made according to the Investment Incentives Code (refund in 30 days)

If the VAT credit is due to:
- The normal course of business (for example, the VAT on purchases exceeds the VAT on sales), then the VAT credit is refundable, if it persists on six consecutive tax returns, as part of one of two processes:
  - —For businesses that have the legal obligation to designate a legal auditor, if the financial statements are certified with an audit report that requires no modification that has an impact on the tax basis, an advance of 50% of the VAT credit is provided before a tax audit, and the remaining amount is refundable after a tax audit (refund in 60 days).
  - —For other cases, an advance of 15% of the VAT credit is provided before a tax audit, and the remaining amount is refundable after a tax audit (refund in 120 days).
- For companies under the control of the Directorate of Large Business (DGE), the VAT credit is fully refundable before a tax audit, in seven days, under the following conditions:
  - —The report of the legal auditor does not contain an amendment affecting the tax basis.
  - —The legal auditor certifies in a separate audit report that the VAT credit to be refunded is accurate.

If, after a tax audit, the tax authorities confirm the validity of a VAT credit, it is fully refundable notwithstanding the appeals procedures that may follow.

Pre-registration costs. The input tax on pre-registration costs appearing on invoices prior to the tax registration cannot be recovered by a future taxable person before having the status (under incorporation) since the deductibility of input tax needs the issuing of an invoice that includes mandatory mentions pertaining to the payer (article 18 of the VAT code) and that cannot be provided during the incorporation stage (such as tax ID).

Write-off of bad debts. Output tax accounted for on supplies that do not get paid by the recipient (i.e., bad debts) cannot be recovered in Tunisia.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred upon purchases that are used for noneconomic activities, is not recoverable in Tunisia.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Nonresident traders that do not have a permanent establishment in Tunisia but are registered with the VAT authority are allowed to recover VAT incurred. To register with the VAT authority, the nonresident taxpayer must be performing a contract in Tunisia.

Nonresident traders that have a permanent establishment in Tunisia but that are not registered for VAT purposes, are subject to a discharging withholding tax in terms of VAT at the rate of 100% of the VAT due.

Nonresident traders that are not registered with the VAT authority may not recover VAT incurred. In addition, such traders are subject to the VAT withholding system described in Section C.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. Tunisian taxable persons must provide VAT invoices for all taxable supplies and services, including exports, made to other taxable persons. Recipients of supplies must retain copies of invoices.

Credit notes. A VAT credit note as such may not be used to reduce VAT charged and reclaimed on a supply of goods or services. Instead, the initial transaction must be voided and a new VAT invoice must be issued for the correction of genuine mistakes.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is permitted for taxpayers. Taxpayers using electronic invoices must submit a declaration to the competent tax authorities together with a certificate provided by the authorized entity's automated management system for electronic invoices processing. Electronic invoicing is mandatory for companies that fall under the Division for Large Enterprises.

Electronic invoicing users are not obliged to maintain digital copies of invoices, the authorized invoicing entity assumes the responsibility of keeping the digital invoices and may issue to the sender or the receiver a digital copy if requested.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified VAT invoicing is not allowed in Tunisia. As such, full VAT invoices are required.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Tunisia.

Proof of exports. Tunisian VAT is not chargeable on supplies of exported goods. However, to qualify as VAT-free, the exported goods must be documented by a customs declaration proving that the goods have left Tunisia. In addition, persons subject to VAT that are primarily or exclusively engaged in activities relating to exports may benefit from suspended VAT on their purchases of goods and services required for the production of exported goods.

Foreign currency invoices. A VAT invoice for transactions performed between two resident entities must be issued in Tunisian dinars, according to the exchange legislation. If one or both of the parties are nonresident, the VAT invoice may be issued in a foreign currency.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. There are no special rules for VAT invoices issued for suppliers made by taxable persons to private consumers.

Records.

Record retention period. The accounting system of businesses, financial statements relating to an accounting period, as well as the documents, books, balance and supporting documents relating thereto must be kept by businesses for at least 10 years.

Electronic archiving. There are no specific VAT rules dealing with electronic archiving. In case of tax audit, all supporting documents should be presented on hard original copies.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. Tunisian VAT returns must be filed on a monthly basis. Returns must be filed by the 28th day of the following month for legal entities and by the 15th day of the following month for individuals.

Periodic payments. Payments must be paid by the 28th day of the following month for legal entities and by the 15th day of the following month for individuals. The payments must be paid in Tunisian Dinar (TND) and, it should be processed electronically for taxpayers of which the annual turnover is equal or exceeds TND500,000.

Electronic filing. The electronic filing of a monthly VAT returns is mandatory for entities whose annual revenue exceeds TND500,000. Below this threshold, electronic filing is optional.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Tunisia.

Special schemes.

VAT suspension regime. For sales and purchases under the VAT suspension regime, the purchaser and the supplier must each make an electronic declaration, before the 28th day of the month that follows the quarter of the calendar year.

The VAT suspension regime may be granted to special taxpayers, e.g., those that wholly export, supply hydrocarbon and those in the mining sectors.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Tunisia for VAT purposes.

Supplementary filings.

Quarterly reporting on purchases with the suspension of VAT. A detailed list of invoices is required to be submitted to the tax authority. These are for invoices issued in suspension of VAT according to a model established by the administration including in particular the invoice number object of the benefit, its date, the customer's first and last name or business name, address, tax identification card number, the price excluding tax, the rate and the amount of value added tax having is the subject of suspension and the number and the date of the certificate of purchase in suspension of VAT relating to the sale transaction in suspension of tax. The filings must be submitted to the competent tax control office during the 28 days which follow each calendar quarter.

Digital reporting. Apart from the e-filing process and the filing of the quarterly reporting on purchases with the suspension of VAT and the supplies with the suspension of VAT, there is no specific digital reporting in Tunisia.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. A fine that varies between TND1,000 and TND50,000 is applicable for late registration of VAT. However, this fine does not apply if the taxpayer regularizes the situation prior to a tax audit.

Penalties for late payment and filings. For late filing of VAT returns or underpayments of VAT, penalties are imposed at a rate of 0.5% per month or fraction of a month for which the return or payment is late.

The following are other penalties related to VAT:
- 1.25% per month or fraction of a month for underpayments of VAT resulting from a tax audit
- 0.75% per month or fraction of a month in certain other cases
- 1% per month or fraction of a month when the taxpayer agrees to pay the tax due, as determined by the audit, and makes payment to the tax administration within 30 days of that acknowledgment (i.e., the penalties will be reduced by 20%)

In addition, by virtue of Article 51 of the Finance Act for the year 2019, a new fixed penalty that applies in case of late payment of tax is instituted at the rate of:
- 1.25% based the amount of the due tax, when the payment delay does not exceed 60 days
- 2.5% of the amount of the due tax, when the payment delay exceeds 60 days

The new fixed penalties are added to the due delay penalties, either in the case of spontaneous delay payment or in case of tax audit.

The new fixed penalty established by the Finance Act cannot be lower than the due minimum penalty equal to TND5 even in the absence of a payable tax amount.

These provisions do not apply to amounts reported on tax returns filed spontaneously prior to 1 April 2009, and to notifications of results of tax audit undertaken before the above date.

For the sales and purchases under the VAT suspension regime, fines and penalties, which would be incurred by the purchaser and the supplier in case they do not comply with some formalities, are as follows:

- The purchaser: In case of undeclared purchase orders, the taxpayer must pay a fine that amounts to TND2,000 per undeclared purchase order for the first five purchase orders and TND5,000 each starting from the sixth purchase order.
- The seller: If the seller makes sales without obtaining an original of a certified purchase order, he would be subject to a fine that amounts to 50% of the VAT that would have been invoiced if the sales had been made out of the exceptional VAT suspension regime.

VAT credits unduly refunded under the full refund without a prior tax audit framework are subject to an administrative tax penalty equal to 100% of the VAT credit:

- Refund of the VAT derived from exportations of goods or services used or consumed out of Tunisia
- Refund of the VAT for the profit of the enterprises under the control of the Directorate of Large Business (DGE)

Penalties for errors. The same penalties for late payment and filings are applicable for the case of errors. There are no specific penalties for errors.

Penalties for fraud. A penalty of imprisonment of 16 days to 3 years and a fine of TND1,000 to TND50,000 for any person who keeps double accounts or uses falsified accounting documents, registers or directories, with the aim of totally or partially to the payment of tax or to benefit from tax advantages or tax refunds.

The above is imposed, in addition to the withdrawal of the license to practice, business agents, tax advisors, experts and all other persons having an independent profession of keeping or helping to keep accounts and who have knowingly established or helped in making false accounts or false accounting documents in order to minimize the tax base or the tax itself. These people are also jointly liable with their customers for the payment of the principal tax and the related penalties evaded by their actions.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:

- The supply of goods or services made in Turkey by a taxable person in the course of performing commercial, industrial, agricultural or independent professional activities
- Services received in Turkey or benefited from in Turkey by a taxable person or any other person responsible for payment of the tax
- Goods and services imported into Turkey

C. Who is liable

A taxable person is any person or legal entity that is registered or must register for VAT in Turkey. Any entity that has a fixed place of business or regularly carries out commercial or professional operations in Turkey must register in Turkey.

No VAT registration threshold applies. VAT registration is granted automatically by the tax office when a business registers for corporate and income tax purposes. It is necessary to have a fixed place of business to register for tax. A fixed place of business includes a residence, place of business and registered head office or business center in Turkey. Only entities that are registered for tax may import goods into Turkey.

Partial VAT withholding. There is a "partial VAT withholding" mechanism in Turkey. Under this mechanism, a certain portion of VAT amount is withheld by the recipient (purchaser, service receiver, etc.), and the recipient pays this VAT directly to the tax office instead of the supplier (seller, service provider, etc.). The portion that is not subject to withholding is declared and paid to the tax office by the supplier.

Partial VAT withholding is applied to a list of transactions which covers but not limited to:
- Construction works
- Maintenance and repair services related to machinery and equipment
- Catering and organization services
- Labor procurement services
- Contract textile manufacturing
- Cleaning, environmental and garden care services
- Delivery of copper, zinc, aluminum and lead products

The rate of withholding varies depending on the type of services.

Exemption from registration. The VAT law in Turkey does not contain any provision for exemption from registration. Evidently, if not established in Turkey, it is not possible to only register for VAT purposes.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. The VAT law in Turkey does not contain any provision for voluntary VAT registration as there is no registration threshold (i.e., all entities established in Turkey that make taxable supplies are obliged to register for VAT).

Group registration. VAT grouping is not permitted under Turkish VAT law. Legal entities that are closely connected must register for VAT separately. Related parties are regarded as separate for tax purposes.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that has no fixed establishment in Turkey. A non-established business may not register for VAT only. If a Turkish taxable person receives services from an entity that does not have a fixed establishment in Turkey, VAT is accounted for using the reverse-charge mechanism (that is, the Turkish recipient of the service must self-assess VAT).

Tax representatives. Tax representatives are not required in Turkey.

Reverse charge. The reverse charge is a form of self-assessment for VAT through which the recipient of services accounts for the tax. The reverse charge applies if certain services subject to Turkish VAT are made by a person that is not resident in Turkey or that does not have a permanent establishment or headquarters in Turkey. The Ministry of Treasury and Finance is authorized to determine the parties responsible for the payment of VAT. The recipient does not need to be a taxable person under Turkish VAT law. The recipient may be an individual or an institution.

The reverse charge applies to the following services performed or used in Turkey:
- Transfers of copyrights, patents, licenses, trademarks, know-how and similar rights

- Import commissions
- Services of independent professionals, such as engineering, consulting, data processing and provision of information
- Interest payments made to foreign entities other than banks and financial institutions
- Rental services
- Transfer or assignment of the right to use capacity for the transmission, emission, or reception of signals, writings, images, sounds, or information of any nature by wire, radio, optical or other electromagnetic systems
- Other services not specified in this list

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Turkey.

Digital economy. VAT on electronically supplied services by non-established businesses (i.e., no residence, business place, legal center and business center) in Turkey to Turkish non-VAT taxpayers (a B2C supply) must be declared and paid by the supplier (the provider of the service). The service providers must register for "Special VAT Registration for Electronic Service Providers." Such service providers declare the VAT related to these transactions electronically with the VAT Return No. 3. There is no VAT registration threshold for these types of suppliers.

These service providers must fill in the form on the Turkish Revenue Administration's website (www.digitalservice.gib.gov.tr) before filing the VAT Return No. 3 for the first time. Upon completing and filing the aforesaid form online, the "Special VAT Registration for Electronic Service Providers" will be registered in the name of the service provider.

VAT is accounted for until the 26thVAT is accounted for until the 24th day of the month following the tax period as per monthly tax periods of the calendar year. The return shall be filed electronically with the VAT Return No. 3 through the internet tax office in Turkish liras.

The VAT declared in this context must be paid until the 26th day of the month for the return period. Payment can be made to tax offices and banks that are authorized to collect taxes or through the Turkish Revenue Administration's website (www.gib.gov.tr) using debit cards of the banks that are authorized to collect taxes or credit cards.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Turkey.

Registration procedures. There is no online registration application system. An application must be submitted to the tax office with the documents listed below:
- Articles of association of the company
- Registration certificate or original trade registry gazette
- Signature circular document indicating the authorized signatories and their signature samples
- Trade registry document of the legal entity founder or authorized signatory (if any)
- Notarized passport copies of the authorized signatories and founders of the company
- Potential tax numbers of the founders and signatories which are obtained from the tax office
- Notarized lease agreement in the name of the company
- Originally signed Form of Commence Business (standard form to be received from the tax authority)
- Power of attorney (only if the application will be conducted by a representative)

Approximately one week after submitting an application with the above documents, the tax officer will conduct an inspection at the registered office of the company. This is to determine whether or not there actually is an office space with adequate equipment. The authorized signatory of the company shall be present for this inspection to sign the necessary documents, or such documents shall be signed by the representative via a power of attorney. Upon completion, the tax number will be issued within a few days.

Deregistration. In the case of the closing down of a business or the dissolution of a legal entity, the person authorized to represent the company must submit written notice to the tax office within one month of the date of closure. After submitting the application for the liability cancellation, a visit to the relevant workplace is performed by the authority to confirm its closure.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 18%
- Reduced rates: 1% and 8%

The standard VAT rate applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate or exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 1%
- Newspapers and magazines
- Basic foodstuffs
- Used passenger cars

Examples of goods and services taxable at 8%
- Foodstuffs
- Books
- Pharmaceuticals
- Medical products
- Some construction equipment
- Admission charges for cinemas, theaters, and operas

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not subject to VAT. "Partially exempt" supplies (as specified in Articles 16 and 17 of the VAT law) do not give rise to a right of input tax deduction (see Section F). Some supplies are classified as "fully exempt," which means that no VAT is due, but the supplier may recover related input tax. These supplies include exports of goods and related services.

Examples of partially exempt supplies of goods and services
- Leasing immovable property by an individual
- Financial transactions
- Supplies to certain cultural bodies
- Supplies by and to certain governmental bodies
- Water for agriculture
- The supply of unprocessed gold, foreign exchange money, stocks and bonds, duty stamps, scrap metal, plastic and certain other items
- Storage services performed at bonded warehouses or temporary storage places
- Delivery of goods or performance of services in free-trade zones

Examples of fully exempt supplies of goods and services
- Exports of goods and services
- Services rendered at marinas and airports for marine and air conveyances
- International transport
- Supplies to persons engaged in petroleum exploration
- Supplies of goods to investment incentive certificate holders
- Sales to the Directorate of the Defense Industry

Option to tax for exempt supplies. Taxpayers may submit a request to opt to tax exempt transactions by applying to the tax office in writing. The taxpayers who have an option to tax approved and become liable for VAT in this way will not be able to change this option for a minimum of three years after the date of the option to tax applying.

The option to tax cannot be requested for:
- Exemptions with the purpose of culture and education, social utility and military
- Exemption regarding the transactions within the scope of banking and insurance tax and the transactions of insurance agents related to insurance activities

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point." The basic time of supply for goods is when they are delivered. The basic time of supply for services is when they are performed. However, if the supplier issues an invoice before the time of supply, VAT applies to the extent that the supply is covered by the invoice.

Deposits and prepayments. A deposit or prepayment does not result in a taxable transaction.

Continuous supplies of services. If services are received continuously but payment is made periodically, the tax is declared every month. If the invoice is issued before the declaration period, the tax point is the date of the invoice.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. The tax point for goods sent on approval for sale or return is when the customer accepts the goods and a supply is made.

Reverse-charge services. There are no special time of supply rules in Turkey for supplies of reverse-charge services.

Leased assets. There are no special time of supply rules in Turkey for supplies of leased assets. Normal time of supply rules apply.

Imported goods. The time of supply for imported goods is either the date of importation or the date on which the goods leave a duty suspension regime.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax, which is VAT charged on goods and services supplied to it for business purposes. A taxable person generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax, which is VAT charged on supplies made.

Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services supplied in Turkey, VAT paid on imports of goods and VAT self-assessed on reverse-charge services.

If the input tax exceeds the output tax, the excess amount is generally not refunded but can be carried forward to subsequent VAT periods.

A valid invoice or customs document must generally accompany a claim for input tax. The right of deduction may be exercised in the tax period in which the purchase documents are entered into the recipient's books of account, but only until the end of the calendar year following the calendar year in which the taxable event takes place.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax is not recoverable if it is charged on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes and are considered to be nondeductible expenses for corporate tax purposes. In addition, input tax may not be recovered for partially exempt transactions.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible
- Input tax of nondeductible expenses in corporate tax law
- Input tax of passenger cars

- Input tax of lost goods (covering all situations where goods were lost, other than an earthquake, flood disaster or fire disaster that has been announced by the Ministry of Finance as a force majeure)

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- All kinds of commercial expenses for operating activities of the entity
- All direct and indirect expenses for commercial purposes of the entity

Partial exemption. An input tax deduction is granted for taxable supplies and for supplies that are exempt with credit. An input tax deduction is not granted for partially exempt supplies. If a taxable person makes both taxable and partially exempt supplies, it may recover only input tax related to supplies that are taxable or fully exempt.

Capital goods. In general, input tax incurred on fixed assets is recoverable. Taxpayers can deduct the whole amount of VAT paid for fixed assets in the taxation period in which the related invoices are recorded in the legal books.

On the other hand, input tax of lost goods is not deductible and needs to be corrected in the taxation period in which the goods became lost.

However, if depreciable assets are lost (due to fire, being stolen, etc.) after completing their useful lives, then there is no need for VAT correction.

If depreciable assets are lost before fully completing their useful lives, then the portion of input tax corresponding to the remaining useful life needs to be corrected.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax recoverable in a period exceeds the amount of output tax payable in the same period, a refund is, as a rule, not granted. In most cases, the taxable person must carry forward the excess amount to a future VAT period. Refunds of the excess are available only for the following:

- VAT related to supplies of goods subject to a reduced rate
- VAT related to supplies of goods and services that are exempt with credit

The amount of the VAT refund may be credited against other tax liabilities.

Pre-registration costs. The amount of incurred VAT for the prior costs and expenditures related to the registration process could be deductible after the registration process is complete.

Write-off of bad debts. Taxpayers must declare and pay the VAT related to their supplies of goods and services, whether or not they receive the consideration for these supplies.

As of 1 January 2019, taxpayers can deduct the VAT that has been calculated and declared related to the receivables which became a bad debt (as per the article 322 of the Tax Procedures Code).

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred in relation to noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Turkey.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Turkey does not refund VAT incurred by non-established businesses, except for the following:

- Expenses by nonresident international transporters on repairs, fuel and spare parts
- Expenses by non-established businesses on fairs and exhibitions (if the business' country of residence is on mutual terms with Turkey)
- Expenses by foreign producers of cinematographic works approved by the Ministry of Culture and Tourism

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. Turkish taxable persons must provide invoices for all taxable supplies and services. Taxpayer recipients of the supplies and services must retain copies of the invoices.

Credit notes. Credit notes may not be used to reduce VAT charged and reclaimed on supplies of goods or services.

Electronic invoicing. The Turkish taxpayers fulfilling the following conditions are required to use an e-invoicing system:

- Taxpayers whose gross sales revenue is TRY10 million or more in 2014 and subsequent fiscal years.
- Taxpayers with licenses from Energy Market Regulatory Authority for their activities in production, importation, delivery, etc., of goods listed in the List I attached to the Special Consumption Tax Law No. 4760 and dated 6 June 2002. Those who have dealership licenses will not be evaluated within the scope of this clause for specifically owning dealership license.
- Taxpayers who produce, import or build goods in List III attached to the Special Consumption Tax Law.

Taxpayers who are permitted to use e-archiving, must e-archive the invoices, and those that are issued electronically, must be archived electronically. Taxpayers who are allowed to benefit from the e-archive application have to issue, deliver, archive and, whenever requested, submit the invoices as e-invoices, which are issued for those who are registered for e-invoicing. Taxpayers may use e-archiving in two methods: through their own information technology system or through a special integrator information technology system that has been authorized by the Revenue Administration.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified VAT invoicing is not allowed in Turkey. As such, full VAT invoices are required.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Turkey.

Proof of exports. Turkish VAT is not charged on exports. However, to qualify as VAT-free, export supplies must be supported by evidence that confirms that the goods have left Turkey. The evidence required consists of the customs declaration, which clearly identifies the exporter, the customer, the goods and the export destination, and invoice information.

Foreign currency invoices. An invoice issued for a domestic sale must be issued in Turkish lira. The invoice may also show the invoiced amount in a foreign currency if the TRY equivalents are stated.

An invoice issued for an export sale may be issued in a foreign currency. The amount of the invoice must be recorded in the supplier's books together with the exchange rate on the date of the transaction.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. For supplies made by taxable persons to private consumers (i.e., not VAT registered), where the price of the supply is below TRY1,200, a till receipt is sufficient to be issued from the supplier to the purchaser, and there is no obligation to issue a full VAT invoice unless requested by the purchaser. At the time of preparing this chapter, the price of supply for B2C invoices is TRY1,200. However, this is the amount for 2019 and the amount for 2020 has not yet been announced.

Records.

Record retention period. The record retention period is 5 years as per the Tax Procedures Code and 10 years as per the Turkish Commercial Code.

Retention period of five years is only valid for tax purposes. Therefore, considering the Turkish Commercial Code, it is recommended to maintain all files for 10 years.

Electronic archiving. Taxpayers using e-archive system archive their data on an electronic environment. However, they are required to archive original hard copy of the documents that were originally issued in hard copy format.

Taxpayers not using e-archive system archive their data and files in their original format. They will be required to submit these data/files to tax authorities when requested.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. The VAT return period is monthly. Returns must be submitted electronically through the internet by the 26th day of the month following the end of the return period. Returns must be declared in the form which was designated according to the provisions of Tax Procedural Law. There are five types of VAT returns:

- VAT Return No. 1: Filed by the taxpayers who are subject to real taxation to declare VAT calculated over their supplies
- VAT Return No. 2: Filed by taxpayers responsible to declare reverse charge and partially withheld VAT
- VAT Return No. 3: Filed by the non-established companies to declare VAT on their electronically supplied services to Turkish real persons (B2C)
- VAT Return No. 4: Filed by the taxpayers who are subject to revenue-based taxation system
- VAT Return No. 5: Filed by the enforcement offices and those who are not subject to real taxation to declare VAT on sales made in auction halls

Periodic payments. Payment in full must be made by the 26th day of the month following the end of the return period (i.e., month of submission). Tax return liabilities must be paid in Turkish lira.

Partial VAT withholding. There is a "partial VAT withholding" mechanism in Turkey. Under this mechanism, a certain portion of VAT amount is withheld by the recipient (purchaser, service receiver, etc.), and the recipient pays this VAT directly to the tax office instead of the supplier (seller, service provider, etc.). The portion that is not subject to withholding is declared and paid to the tax office by the supplier.

Partial VAT withholding is applied to a list of transactions which covers but not limited to:

- Construction works
- Maintenance and repair services related to machinery and equipment
- Catering and organization services
- Labor procurement services
- Contract textile manufacturing
- Cleaning, environmental and garden care services
- Delivery of copper, zinc, aluminum and lead products

The rate of withholding varies depending on the type of services.

Electronic filing. Taxpayers are obliged to submit their tax returns by using the Ministry of Treasury and Finance's system called "e-beyanname." All tax returns must be submitted through this system and are electronically archived. Tax returns from previous periods are easily retrievable from this system.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Turkey.

Special schemes.

Small-scale taxpayers. As of 1 January 2019, a revenue-based taxation system has been established for small-scale taxpayers in Turkey. Accordingly, those operating within the sector and occupational groups determined by the President, if requested, may pay a certain percentage of their proceeds (including VAT) by declaring it without considering the deductible VAT amount. Currently, suppliers of public transportation services who fulfill certain conditions are in the scope.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not filed in Turkey.

Supplementary filings. Taxpayers are required to file BA-BS forms to declare the transactions over TRY5,000 between the purchaser company and seller company. The purchases from other companies are stated within the BA Form, whereas the sales to other companies are stated within the BS Form.

Digital reporting. Taxpayers are obliged to submit their tax returns by using the Ministry of Treasury and Finance's system called "e-beyanname." All tax returns must be submitted through this system and are electronically archived. Tax returns from previous periods are easily retrievable from this system.

In addition, starting from 1 April 2020, it will be mandatory to submit all VAT refund certification reports on electronic environment via the internet tax office.

J. Penalties

No specific penalties relate to VAT offenses. Penalties are prescribed by the Tax Procedures Code, which defines various acts of noncompliance with the tax laws.

Penalties for late registration. In case of late registration, the following penalties could apply:
- Tax loss penalty
- Late payment charge (interest)
- Irregularity penalty

Penalties for late payment and filings. Late submission of tax returns on electronic environment is subject to tax loss penalty and special irregularity penalty. In such a case, the special irregularity penalty is TRY1,900 per tax return and the tax loss penalty is the amount of the tax loss itself.

Late payment of taxes due is subject to late payment interest at the rate of 1.6% (as of 30 December 2019) per month.

Penalties for reverse-charge supplies. Penalties apply to several VAT offenses, including failure to account for VAT under the reverse-charge mechanism. The penalty is the full amount of tax that has not been accounted for (i.e., 100% of the tax due). The amount of interest is calculated starting from the due date of the tax payment until the date on which the penalty notice is issued.

Penalties for errors. Penalties for errors should be evaluated based on the result of error.

If, for example, the error causes a tax loss, then the tax loss penalty may apply. If the error does not cause a tax loss but is only related to form, such as not using the correct line of the return to declare a tax, then the irregularity penalties may apply. The amount of irregularity penalties vary depending on the type of irregularity.

Penalties for fraud. Manipulating or destroying the legal books and accounting records or issuing misleading or forged documents are evaluated under smuggling and penalized accordingly. Smuggling acts may result in jail sentence varying between 18 months and 5 years.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:

- Taxable supplies of goods and services made in Uganda by taxable persons
- Imports of goods other than exempt imports

• Supplies of imported services other than exempt services

C. Who is liable

The persons liable for VAT in Uganda vary according to the type of supply. The following persons are liable for VAT in Uganda:
• Taxable supply in Uganda: the taxable person making the supply
• Import of taxable goods: the importer
• Import of taxable services: the recipient of the services

The annual registration threshold is UGX150 million (approximately USD40,000).

A "taxable person" is defined in the Uganda VAT Law as someone that is registered or required to be registered for VAT in Uganda.

Exemption from registration. The VAT law in Uganda does not contain any provision for exemption from registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. The VAT law in Uganda contains a provision for application for voluntary registration of persons supplying goods or services for consideration. In exercising the discretion whether to grant the voluntary registration or not, the Commissioner General must be satisfied that the person has a fixed place of abode or business; will keep proper accounting records; will submit regular and reliable tax returns and that the person is a fit and proper person to be registered.

Group registration. Group VAT registration is not allowed in Uganda.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that does not have a fixed place of abode or business in Uganda. Non-established businesses are not liable to charge and account for VAT except where they provide specified electronic services delivered remotely to persons who are not taxable persons in Uganda at the time of supply.

Tax representatives. Any individual controlling the nonresident person's affairs in Uganda, such as a manager of a business belonging to the nonresident person or any representative appointed by the nonresident person in Uganda, is referred to as the nonresident person's tax representative. The tax representative is responsible for performing any duty or obligation imposed by the tax law on a taxpayer, including the submission of returns and payment of tax.

Reverse charge. Generally, not applicable except for the import of services made by a contractor or licensee in the petroleum or mining sector, or a person providing business process outsourcing services.

Specifically, reverse charge does not apply in the following cases (two alternatives, not both required):
(i) In cases where the importer of the service is registered (or required to be registered) for VAT in Uganda (i.e., a taxable person), the business of the supplier from which the services are supplied is in Uganda
(ii) In cases where the importer of the service is a nontaxable person, the services are performed in Uganda by a person who is in Uganda at the time of the supply or the services are in connection with immovable property in Uganda or the services are radio or television broadcasting services received in Uganda or the services are electronic services delivered to a person in Uganda or the supply of intellectual property rights in Uganda or the supply of telecommunication services

At the time of preparing this chapter, the Tax Appeals Tribunal had issued a ruling on the issue of reverse-charge VAT on imported services. This issue regarded whether the place of supply provision is applicable to the imported services provision. The Tribunal ruled that VAT is payable on imported services by all recipients, whether taxable or not, and this input tax is not claimable, unless the person is a licensee or a contractor in the petroleum or mining operations or is a person providing business process outsourcing services. This decision has been appealed against in the High Court, and a decision is yet to be delivered.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Uganda.

Digital economy. For business-to-business (B2B) transactions, the customer would have imported a service and would therefore be expected to account for the output tax on imported services.

For business-to-consumer (B2C) transactions, the content is an imported service for which the individual customer is required to account for VAT through a self-charging mechanism. However, there would be no mechanism for the individual to account for VAT if the individual does not meet the VAT registration threshold requirements.

Online marketplaces and platforms. Electronic services when provided or delivered remotely to a person in Uganda, where the recipient is a nontaxable person, are supplied in Uganda and as such are taxable supplies in Uganda. Electronic services are defined to include websites, web-hosting or remote maintenance of programs and equipment; software and updating of software; images, text and information; and self-education packages among others. The Revenue Authority has issued a Public Notice that such a person providing these services ought to apply for registration and account for VAT in Uganda.

Registration procedures. A person that is not already a registered person must apply to be registered in accordance with the VAT Act by the following dates:

- Within 20 days after the end of any period of 3 calendar months if during that period the person made taxable supplies, the value of which exclusive of any tax exceeded UGX37.5 million (approximately USD10,000)
- At the beginning of any period of three calendar months if reasonable grounds exist to expect that the total value of taxable supplies, exclusive of any tax, to be made by the person during the period will exceed UGX37.5 million (approximately USD10,000)

Applications for VAT registration are done online (https://www.ura.go.ug/) using a form/template prescribed by the Commissioner General. A person who applies for registration is registered and issued a certificate of registration if the Commissioner General is satisfied that the person is eligible for registration under the VAT act and has a fixed place of abode or business. The Commissioner General must also be satisfied that that person:

- Will keep proper accounting records relating to any business activity
- Will submit regular and reliable tax returns
- Is a fit and proper person to be registered

Registration for VAT takes an average of two days from the date a complete application is submitted.

Deregistration. In the following circumstances, the VAT-registered person should submit an application for VAT deregistration online by amending the taxable person's tax identification number (TIN):

- If the taxable person has ceased to make supplies of goods or services for consideration as part of their business activities
- If, with respect to the most recent period of three calendar months, the value of taxable supplies exclusive of tax does not exceed one-quarter of the annual registration threshold and if the value of taxable supplies exclusive of tax for the previous 12 calendar months does not exceed 75% of the annual registration threshold

However, the Commissioner General may also initiate the cancellation of a person's VAT registration if the Commissioner General is satisfied that any one of the following circumstances exist:
- The taxable person is neither required nor entitled to apply for VAT registration
- The taxable person has no fixed place of abode or business
- The taxable person has not kept proper accounting records relating to its business activity
- The taxable person has not submitted regular and reliable tax returns
- The taxable person is not, in the opinion of the Commissioner General, a fit and proper person to be registered

The Commissioner General is required to serve notice in writing on a taxable person of a decision to cancel or refuse to cancel registration within 14 days of making the decision. The cancellation of registration takes effect from the end of the tax period in which the registration is canceled.

Deregistration does not affect the person's obligations and liabilities while the person was still a taxable person under the VAT act, including the lodging of VAT returns and payments of any taxes due.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 18%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for the zero rate or an exemption.

Examples of supplies of goods and services taxable at 0%
- Exports of goods or services from Uganda
- International transport of goods or passengers and tickets for their transport
- Drugs, medicines and medical sundries manufactured in Uganda
- Educational materials
- Seeds, fertilizers, pesticides, and hoes
- Sanitary towels and tampons and inputs for their manufacture
- Leased aircraft, aircraft engines, spare engines, spare parts for aircraft and aircraft maintenance equipment
- The supply of cereals grown and milled in Uganda
- The supply of handling services provided by the National Medical Stores in respect of medical supplies, funded by donors

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services
- Livestock, unprocessed foodstuffs and unprocessed agricultural products except wheat grain
- Postage stamps
- Financial services
- Services related to health insurance, life insurance, micro insurance, reinsurance and aircraft insurance services
- Unimproved land
- Sale, letting or leasing immovable property, other than:
  — Sale, lease or letting of commercial premises
  — Sale, lease or letting for parking or storing cars or other vehicles

  — Sale, lease or letting of hotel or holiday accommodation
  — Sale, lease or letting for periods not exceeding three months
  — Sale, lease or letting of service apartments
- Education services
- Veterinary, medical, dental, and nursing services
- Imported drugs, medicines and medical sundries
- Social welfare services
- Betting, lotteries and games of chance
- Goods as part of a transfer of a business as a going concern by one taxable person to another taxable person
- Burial and cremation services
- Precious metals and other valuables to the Bank of Uganda for the State Treasury
- Passenger transportation services (other than tour and travel operators)
- Petroleum fuels subject to excise duty (motor spirit, kerosene and gas oil), spirit-type jet fuel, kerosene-type jet fuel and residual oils for use in thermal power generation to the national grid
- Dental, medical and veterinary goods, including:
  — Dental, medical and veterinary equipment
  — Ambulances
  — Contraceptives of all forms
  — Maternity kits (mama kits)
  — Medical examination gloves
  — Medicated cotton wool
  — Mosquito nets, acaricides, insecticides and mosquito repellent devices
  — Diapers
- Animal feeds and premixes
- Selected machinery, tools and implements suitable for use only in agriculture
- Crop extension services
- Irrigation works, sprinklers and ready-to-use drip lines
- Deep cycle batteries, composite lanterns and raw materials for the manufacture of deep cycle batteries and composite lanterns
- Menstrual cups
- Agriculture insurance premium or policy
- Photosensitive semiconductor devices, including photovoltaic devices, regardless of whether they are assembled in modules or made into panels, light-emitting diodes, solar water heaters, solar refrigerators and solar cookers
- Solar power
- Life jackets, life-saving gear, headgear and speed governors
- Any goods or services supplied to the contractors and subcontractors of hydroelectric power projects
- Movie production
- Bibles and Qur'ans and textbooks
- Services to conduct feasibility study, design and construction:
  — Construction materials to a developer or operator of an industrial park or free zone, the developer's investment capital is at least USD100 million and the operators should be at least USD15 million (foreigner) or USD10 million in case of a citizen
  — Locally produced materials for construction of premises, infrastructure, machinery and equipment or furnishings and fittings that are not available on the local market to a hotel or tourism facility developer whose investment capital is USD8 million with room capacity exceeding 100 guests
  — Locally produced materials for construction of premises, infrastructure, machinery and equipment or furnishings and fittings to a hospital facility developer whose investment capital is at least USD5 million and who develops a hospital at the level of a national referral hospital with capacity to provide specialized medical care

- Earth moving equipment and machinery for development of an industrial park or free zone to a developer of an industrial park or free zone
- Wet processing operations and garmenting, cotton lint, artificial fibers for blending; polyester staple fiber, viscose rayon fiber yarn other than cotton yarn, textile dyes and chemicals garment accessories, textile machinery spare parts, industrial consumables for textile production, textile manufacturing machinery and equipment
- Fabrics and garments made in Uganda by vertically integrated textile mills that operate spinning, weaving/knitting, wet processing operations and garmenting
- Production inputs into iron ore smelting into billets for further value addition in Uganda
- Production inputs into limestone mining and processing and processing into clinker in Uganda and the supply of clinker for further value addition in Uganda
- Production inputs necessary for processing of hides and skins into finished leather products in Uganda and the supply of leather products wholly made in Uganda
- Imported mathematical sets and geometry sets used in educational services
- Woodworking machines
- Welding machines and sewing machines
- Imported crayons, colored pencils, lead pencils, rulers, erasers, stencils, technical drawing sets, educational computer tablets, educational computer applications or laboratory chemicals for teaching science subjects used in educational services

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Uganda.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply." The following are the rules for the time of supply:

- If goods are applied for a person's own use, the time of supply is the date on which the goods or services are first applied to the person's own use.
- If the goods or services are supplied as a gift, the time of supply is the date on which ownership in the goods passes or the performance of the service is completed.
- In all other cases, the time of supply is the earliest of the following dates:
  - The goods are delivered or made available, or the performance of the service is completed.
  - The payment for the goods or services is made.
  - A tax invoice is issued.

If goods are supplied under a rental agreement or if goods or services are supplied under an agreement or law that provides for periodic payments, the goods or services are treated as successively supplied for successive parts of the period of the agreement or supplied as determined by that law, and each successive supply occurs on the earlier of the date on which payment is due or received.

Deposits and prepayments. The time of supply occurs, and VAT is due on the date on which the payment for the goods or services is made.

Continuous supplies of services. The goods or services are treated as successively supplied for successive parts of the period of the agreement and each successive supply occurs on the earlier of the date on which payment is due or received.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. The time of supply occurs, and VAT is due on the date on which the goods are delivered or made available.

Reverse-charge services. Where applicable in cases of import of services made by a contractor or licensee in the petroleum or mining sector, or a person providing business process outsourcing services, the reverse charge and VAT is due at the time of import of the services. The same treatment applies to imported goods.

Leased assets. The assets are treated as successively supplied for successive parts of the period of the agreement and each successive supply occurs on the earlier of the date on which payment is due or received.

Imported goods. VAT on imported goods is due at the time of import.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A credit is allowed to the taxable person for the tax payable with respect to taxable supplies made to that person during the tax period and all imports of goods made by that person during the tax period, if the supply or import is for use in the business of the taxable person.

On registration, a credit is allowed to a taxable person for input tax paid or payable with respect to taxable supplies of goods, including capital assets, made to the person, and imports of goods, including capital assets, made by the person before registration, if all of the following conditions are satisfied:
- The supply or import was for use in the business of the taxable person.
- The goods are on hand at the date of registration.
- The supply or import occurred not more than six months for capital goods and four months for other supplies before the registration date.

Nondeductible input tax. VAT may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use by an entrepreneur). In addition, input tax may not be recovered for certain business expenses.

The following lists provide some examples of items of expenditure for which input tax is not deductible and examples of items for which input tax is deductible if the expenditure is for purposes of making a taxable supply.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible
- Taxable supply or import of a passenger automobile and the repair and maintenance of the automobile, including spare parts
- Entertainment (provision of food, beverages, tobacco, accommodation, amusement, recreation or hospitality of any kind) unless the person is in the business of providing entertainment or supplies meals or refreshments to his or her employees in premises operated by him or her, or on his or her behalf solely for the benefit of his or her employees

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (only if related to a taxable business use)
- A supply or import of a passenger automobile and the repair and maintenance of the automobile, including spare parts, if the automobile is acquired by the taxable person exclusively for the purpose of making a taxable supply of that automobile in the ordinary course of a continuous and regular business of selling, dealing in or hiring of passenger automobiles
- Entertainment if the taxable person is in the business of providing entertainment
- Supplies of meals or refreshments by employers to their employees in premises operated by the employers or on the employers' behalf, solely for the benefit of the employees

Partial exemption. If a taxable supply to, or an import of goods by, a taxable person is partly for a business use and partly for another use, the amount of the input tax allowed as a credit is the part of the input tax that relates to the business use.

If the percentage of the total amount of taxable supplies to the total amount of all supplies made by the taxable person during the period (other than the supply of goods as part of the transfer of a business as a going concern) is less than 5%, the taxable person may not credit any input tax for the period.

If the percentage of the total amount of taxable supplies to the total amount of all supplies made by the taxable person during the period (other than the supply of goods as part of the transfer of a business as a going concern) is more than 95%, the taxable person may credit all input tax for the period.

The Commissioner General may approve a proposal by a taxable person for the apportionment of input tax credit when the taxable person makes both taxable and exempt supplies.

Capital goods. The VAT law in Uganda does not define "capital goods."

Tax incurred on capital goods is claimable where these capital goods are used in the carrying on of the taxable person's business activities. Like with all other input tax incurred where the goods are used for both taxable and exempt supplies, the input tax will be apportioned using the Standard method in order to allow input tax credit in respect of taxable supplies.

The standard method is A*B/C where A is the total amount of input tax for the period, B is the total amount of taxable supplies made by the taxable person and C is the total amount of all supplies made by the taxable person during the period other than an exempt supply. This method applies to the supply of goods as part of the transfer of a business as a going concern by one taxable person to another taxable person.

Where the standard method disadvantages the taxpayer, the Commissioner General may approve an alternative method (standard alternative method) to calculate the input tax to be credited. Using this method, the taxpayer may directly attribute input tax separately to the exempt and taxable supplies in so far as it is possible and may claim credit for all input tax related to taxable supplies and none of input tax related to exempt supplies.

Refunds. If, for a tax period, a taxable person's input tax credit exceeds the person's liability for tax for that period, the Commissioner General must refund the excess to the person within one month after the due date for the return for the tax period to which the excess relates, or within one month of the date when the return was filed if the return was not filed by the due date.

Notwithstanding the above, if the taxable person's input credit exceeds his or her liability for tax for that period by less than UGX5 million (USD1,351), the Commissioner General may offset the excess amount against the future liability of the taxable person, except in the case of an investment trader or person providing mainly zero-rated supplies. In addition, with the consent of the taxable person, if the taxable person's input credit exceeds his or her liability for tax for that period by UGX5 million (USD1,351) or more, the Commissioner General may offset the excess amount against the future liability of the taxable person, or apply the excess in reduction of any other tax not in dispute that is due from the taxpayer.

A claim for a refund of input tax must be made in a return within three years after the end of the tax period in which tax was overpaid.

Pre-registration costs. A credit is allowed to a taxable person on becoming registered for input tax paid or payable in respect of:
- All taxable supplies of goods, including capital assets, made to the person prior to the person becoming registered
- All imports of goods, including capital assets, made by the person prior to becoming registered

Where the supply or import was for use in the business of the taxable person, the input tax paid for those supplies is creditable provided that the goods are on hand at the date of registration and that the supply or import occurred not more than six months prior to the date of registration.

Write-off of bad debts. A taxable person may seek a refund for the portion of tax paid that it has not received payment for within two years after the supply. The taxable person should have taken all steps to pursue the payment and reasonably believes that it will not be paid.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred upon purchases that are used for noneconomic activities, is not recoverable in Uganda.

G. Recovery of VAT by nonresidents

Uganda does not refund VAT incurred by foreign non-established businesses and there is no mechanism for refunding VAT to foreign visitors or tourists at the port of exit from Uganda.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A taxable person making a taxable supply to any person must issue to that other person, at the time of supply, with an original tax invoice for the supply.

A tax invoice must contain the following particulars:

- The words "tax invoice" written in a prominent place
- The commercial name, address, place of business, and the tax identification number of the taxable person making the supply
- The commercial name, address, place of business, and the tax identification number of the recipient of the taxable supply
- The individualized serial number and the date on which the tax invoice is issued
- A description of the goods or services supplied and the date on which the supply is made
- The quantity or volume of the goods or services supplied
- The tax rate for each category of goods and services described in the invoice
- The total amount of tax charged, the consideration for the supply exclusive of tax and the consideration inclusive of tax

Credit notes. Where a tax invoice has been issued and the amount shown as tax charged in that tax invoice exceeds the tax properly chargeable in respect of the supply, the taxable person making the supply shall provide the recipient of the supply with a credit note.

A credit note may also be issued by a person where a tax invoice has been issued and tax properly chargeable in respect of the supply that exceeds the amount shown as tax charged in the tax invoice.

A credit note must contain the following particulars:

- The words "credit note" in a prominent place
- The commercial name, address, place of business, and the tax identification and VAT registration numbers of the taxable person making the supply
- The commercial name, address, place of business, and the tax identification and VAT registration numbers of the recipient of the taxable supply
- The date on which the credit note was issued
- Tax rate
- Taxable value of the supply shown on the tax invoice, the correct amount of the taxable value of the supply, the difference between those two amounts, and the tax charged that relates to that difference
- A brief explanation of the circumstances resulting in the issuance of the credit note
- Sufficient information to identify the taxable supply to which the credit note relates

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is not mandatory but is available for taxpayers. It is optional. Taxpayers do not have to apply to use electronic invoicing, and there are no special rules for taxpayers to use it. However, records (including invoices) kept in electronic format should be capable of being retrieved and converted to a standard record format equivalent to that contained in an acceptable paper record.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified tax invoices may be issued by registered persons with a taxable turnover below UGX100 million per annum (USD27,000), for taxable supplies made to another registered person, provided the value of any individual item on the invoice does not exceed UGX50,000 (USD14) and the total invoice does not exceed UGX100,000 (USD28).

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Uganda.

Proof of exports. Goods that are supplied by a registered taxpayer to a person in another country that are delivered by a registered taxpayer to a port of exit for export may be invoiced at the zero rate if the registered taxpayer obtains documentary proof and if the goods are removed from Uganda within 30 days of delivery to a port of exit.

The Commissioner General may require that goods for export specified in a notice in the Uganda Gazette be distinctively labeled by the registered taxpayer. The Commissioner General will issue guidelines to specify the color, size, and type of labels.

For an export transaction to qualify for the zero rate, a registered taxpayer must show as proof of export the following:
- A copy of the bill of entry or export certified by the customs authorities
- A copy of the invoice issued to the foreign purchaser with tax shown at the zero rate
- Evidence sufficient to satisfy the Commissioner General that the goods have been exported, in the form of an order from, or signed contract with, a foreign purchaser, or transport documentation that identifies the goods such as transit order or consignment note, copy of bill of lading, copy of airway bill or copy of transit document

If services are supplied by a registered taxpayer to a person outside Uganda, the services qualify for a zero rate only if the taxpayer can provide evidence that the services are used or consumed outside Uganda. This evidence can be in the form of a contract with a foreign purchaser and must clearly indicate that the place of use or consumption of the service is outside Uganda or that the service is provided for a building or premises outside Uganda.

Foreign currency invoices. Foreign currency invoices are treated in the same manner as local-currency invoices. However, the tax authorities require that for purposes of accounting for output tax and input tax, the exchange rate prescribed by the tax authorities for that tax period is used.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. Taxable persons (i.e., those registered for VAT or required to be registered for VAT in Uganda) making supplies to any person, are required to issue all customers with a VAT invoice. Simplified tax invoices can only be issued by a registered person with a taxable turnover below UGX100 million (approximately USD28,000) per annum to another registered taxable person and in respect to individual items on the invoice that do not exceed UGX50,000 (approximately USD14) and the total invoice value does not exceed UGX100,000 (approximately USD28).

Records. Every taxpayer is required for tax purposes to maintain in the English language, as may be required to determine or readily ascertain the taxpayer's tax liability under a tax law. The records kept shall contain sufficient transaction information, and the case of an electronic format shall be capable of being retrieved and converted to a standard record format equivalent to that contained in an acceptable paper record.

Record retention period. The record retention period is five years after the tax period to which the record relates.

Electronic archiving. The Tax Procedure Code Act requires every taxpayer to maintain records including in electronic format, for a period of five years. A record kept in electronic format should be capable of being retrieved and converted to a standard record format equivalent to that contained in an acceptable paper record.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. The VAT tax period is one month. Returns must be filed by the 15th day after the end of the tax period. A "nil" return must be filed if no VAT is payable (either because the taxable person does not make any supplies or input tax exceeds output tax in the period).

If the normal filing date falls on a public holiday or on a weekend, the VAT return must be submitted on the last working day before that day.

Periodic payments. Payment must be made in full by the 15th day after the end of the tax period.

Electronic filing. All VAT returns are now being submitted online following the introduction of the e-tax system. The returns are populated and uploaded using return templates designed by the tax authorities. Similarly, amendments to VAT returns are also done online.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Uganda.

Special schemes.

VAT withholding scheme. A designated withholding agent for VAT purposes is required to withhold and remit 6% of the taxable value on making payment for taxable supplies. The withholding VAT will not apply to a taxable person who the Commissioner General thinks is satisfied has regularly complied with the obligations imposed on the tax payer by the Value Added Tax Act Cap 349.

If a taxpayer is included on the list of designated VAT withholding agents, they are required to withhold VAT from nonexempted suppliers at the rate of 6% of the taxable value of the supply. The list of designated withholding VAT agents has not yet been gazetted by the Minister and the list of exempt persons has not yet been issued by the Commissioner General, Uganda Revenue Authority.

Annual returns. Where a taxable person who deals in both exempt and taxable supplies apportions its input tax using the fraction of taxable supplies to total supplies made in any tax period, the taxable person is required to make a calculation of input tax based on the annual value of taxable and exempt supplies within the period following the end of the year.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in Uganda.

Digital reporting. No digital reporting requirements apply in Uganda.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. A person who fails to apply for registration as required by the VAT law is liable to pay a penalty equal to double the amount of the tax payable during the period commencing on the last day of the period when the obligation to register arises until either the person files an application for registration or the tax authority registers the person forcefully.

Penalties for late payment and filings. The late submission of a return is subject to a penalty of UGX200,000 (USD56) or an interest charge at 2% compounded for the period the return is outstanding, whichever is higher.

A person who fails to pay tax imposed before the due date is liable for a penal tax on the unpaid tax at 2% compounded.

The interest due and payable on unpaid tax shall not exceed the aggregate of the principal tax and penal tax.

For the avoidance of doubt, where the interest due and payable as at 30 June 2017 exceeds the aggregate referred to above, the interest in excess of the aggregate shall be waived.

Penalties for errors. There is no express penalty for errors in the Uganda VAT law. However, where an error is made leading to the taxpayer paying less tax, interest at the rate of 2% compounded per month will accrue on the unpaid tax.

Penalties for fraud. A person is liable to pay penal tax equal to double the amount of tax due, refund or an offset claim if the person knowingly or recklessly makes a statement or declaration to an official that is false or misleading regarding a material item or omits from a statement made to an officer any matter or item without which the statement is materially misleading and if the tax properly payable by the person exceeds the tax that was assessed based on the false or misleading information, the amount of the refund claimed is false or the person submitted a return with an incorrect offset claim.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:

- Supply of goods if the place of supply is within the customs territory of Ukraine including the free-of-charge transfer and the transfer of title to pledged property to the creditor, transfer of title to goods under a commodity loan and transfer of a financial lease object to a lessee
- Supply of services if the place of supply is within the customs territory of Ukraine
- Import of goods into Ukraine
- Export of goods from Ukraine
- Supply of services with respect to the international transportation of passengers, luggage and shipment of cargo by railway, automobile, sea and air transport
- Deemed supplies in cases specified by law

The following transactions are exempt from VAT (the list is not exhaustive and conditions may apply):

- Supplies of certain types of software (temporarily, until 1 January 2023)
- Most banking services
- Insurance and reinsurance services and services of securities traders
- Transfer of property with respect to pledges or operational leases
- Mergers and acquisitions
- Certain transactions under the product-sharing agreements when the taxable person maintains special tax accounting

In general, supplies of goods and services, where the place of supply is within the customs territory of Ukraine, are considered taxable by Ukrainian VAT.

Place of supply of goods. The following goods are deemed to be supplied in Ukraine:
- Goods located in Ukraine at the time of their supply, if they are not shipped, transported, assembled or installed
- Goods located in Ukraine at the time when shipment or transportation begins
- Goods assembled or installed in Ukraine, if such assembly or installation is performed by the seller or on its behalf

Place of supply of services. The following are the rules for determining the place of supply of services:
- Services related to movable property (for example, repairs and services auxiliary to transportation), services in the areas of culture, art, education, science, sport and entertainment, organization of training courses and seminars and certain other services: the place of their actual supply
- Services related to immovable property: the actual location of the immovable property
- Consulting, engineering, legal, accounting, audit, secondment, advertising, forwarding, information technology, data processing, telecommunication, broadcasting and certain other services: the place where the service recipient is incorporated
- Other services: the place where the supplier is established

C. Who is liable

A VAT taxpayer is any legal entity, individual (entrepreneur) or representative office of a nonresident that meets any of the following conditions:
- The person that is registered as a VAT taxpayer or is subject to a registration as a VAT taxpayer
- The person that imports goods into Ukraine in amounts subject to taxation (provided such person is liable for payment of taxes on the import of goods)
- The person maintains accounting under joint activity (JA) arrangements
- The person performs asset management
- The person disposes of seized, abandoned or unclaimed property as well as property inherited or transferred to the state (regardless of threshold and tax status of such person)
- The person is liable to administer tax with respect to services supplied by railway transportation companies

If an importer is not registered as a VAT taxpayer and imports goods in amounts subject to tax, it pays VAT during customs clearance, without registration.

If a nonresident entity (including a permanent establishment of a nonresident that has not registered for VAT) supplies services with a place of supply in Ukraine, the service recipient must accrue and pay VAT to the treasury.

A legal entity, individual entrepreneur (except for an entrepreneur who uses the simplified taxation system and belongs to certain groups) or representative office of a nonresident must register as a VAT taxpayer if its taxable supplies exceeded UAH1 million (net of VAT) during the preceding 12 calendar months.

A registrant is assigned a tax identification number (TIN), which is 12 digits for legal entities and permanent establishments of nonresidents (except those for which a 9-digit number applies — see below) and 10 digits for private entrepreneurs. A 9-digit TIN is assigned to the following entities:

- Entities paying tax from a joint activity without establishing a legal entity
- Property managers under property-management agreements
- Investors under product-sharing agreements
- Permanent establishments of nonresidents that do not have an identification number in the Unified State Register of Enterprises and Organizations of Ukraine
- Permanent establishments of nonresidents created through:
  - A building site, construction, assembly or installation project if it lasts more than six months
  - Employees/other personnel hired by a nonresident for the provision of services (excluding provision of personnel) if these activities last more than six months within any 12-month period
  - Residents authorized to act exclusively on behalf of a given nonresident

Exemption from registration. VAT law in Ukraine does not contain any provision for exemption from registration for VAT.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. A person that does not reach the registration threshold may still opt for a voluntary VAT registration. Existing entities willing to register voluntarily file a registration request not later than 20 calendar days prior to the tax period from which these entities would qualify as VAT taxpayers. Such entities may indicate the date from which they would qualify as VAT taxpayers in their application. Newly registered entities may register voluntarily through applying in writing to the state registrar which then passes this application to the tax authorities.

Group registration. Group VAT registration is not available in Ukraine.

Non-established businesses. In general, VAT registration of the non-established business is not possible. If a nonresident falls under mandatory VAT registration requirements or wishes to opt for voluntary VAT registration, it must first establish a business presence in Ukraine.

No VAT recovery mechanism is available for non-established businesses.

Tax representatives. Tax representatives are not required in Ukraine.

Reverse charge. A reverse-charge mechanism applies if a nonresident entity (including a permanent establishment of the nonresident that is not registered for VAT) supplies services for which the place of supply is within Ukraine.

In these cases, the VAT liability would arise for the service recipient under the reverse-charge procedure. The service recipient would account for the VAT due, at the time the services are supplied or the execution of the act of acceptance, whichever occurs first. The service recipient registered as a VAT taxpayer may record a VAT credit after registration of the VAT invoice in the Unified Tax Invoice Register.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Ukraine.

Digital economy. For business-to-business (B2B) transactions, there is no VAT if the payment qualifies as a royalty. VAT is expected to apply if the payment represents a service fee (and the service is deemed to be supplied in Ukraine). In this case the customer should self-assess VAT through the reverse-charge mechanism.

Under the general rule, the place where services are supplied is deemed to be at the place of the service provider's establishment. In this case, no VAT implications are anticipated in Ukraine, since the nonresident's business is based outside of Ukraine. However, if the services qualify as a special type of service (e.g., those in the sphere of informatics or data processing, including the use of computer systems, development, supply and testing of software, or use of intellectual property objects, including those under license agreements), these services may be deemed as supplied at the place of the service recipient's place of establishment (i.e., in Ukraine). VAT would apply in those cases, and the customer would have to self-assess VAT through the reverse-charge mechanism.

A temporary (until 2023) VAT exemption may apply to supply of software (including "online services," although there is no certainty as to the scope of this term) and transactions with software where payment does not qualify as royalty (e.g., sale to end-users, sale of data media with software). Eligibility for the exemption should be analyzed and contractual language will be important for this analysis.

For business-to-consumer (B2C) transactions, the qualification of transactions for VAT purposes should be the same as described above. However, even if VAT should formally apply, there may be no VAT payer in Ukraine, since the individual consumer is not a VAT payer and cannot reverse charge VAT by itself, and therefore nobody will be liable for VAT in this case.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Ukraine.

Registration procedures. Existing entities that are subject to a mandatory registration file a registration request by the 10th day of the calendar month following the month in which the threshold (UAH1 million) was exceeded.

It is possible to file the registration application electronically provided the requestor registered a valid electronic signature in accordance with acting legislation. The request must be submitted personally by the individual (entrepreneur) or the company's director/representative.

The tax authority includes the entity in the register of VAT taxpayers within three working days after receipt of the registration request or from the date indicated by the requestor (in case of voluntary registration). The tax authority issues the VAT registration certificate.

Information about registered and deregistered VAT taxpayers is available online at the following link: https://cabinet.sfs.gov.ua/cabinet/faces/public/reestr.jspx.

Deregistration. An entity registered as a VAT payer for the past 12 months may apply for deregistration if the value of its taxable supplies for the past 12 calendar months was below UAH1 million. Deregistration is also available at the request of the VAT payer or the tax authorities in cases such as the following:

- The entity took a decision to liquidate.
- The taxpayer has been registered as a single taxpayer, which does not envisage payment of VAT.
- The taxpayer has not been filing VAT return for 12 consecutive months and/or has filed VAT returns evidencing absence of taxable supplies/purchases.
- A court judged the entity's statutory documents to be invalid.
- A court ruled to liquidate the legal entity due to bankruptcy.
- The taxpayer is liquidated under a court decision, or the entity is relieved from VAT under a court decision.
- The individual entrepreneur has died.
- A joint activity or asset management or production sharing agreement expires.

Once deregistered, the entity is not allowed to credit input tax and invoices.

D. Rates

The term “taxable supplies” refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 20%
- Reduced rate: 7%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods and services unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate, the zero rate or an exemption applies.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Exports of goods (under customs regime of export, reexport (return of goods), duty-free shop and free customs area)
- International transportation of passengers, luggage and shipments of cargo
- Processing and repairs of imported movable property that is subsequently exported from Ukraine

Examples of goods and services taxable at 7%

- Supplies within Ukraine and import into Ukraine of registered medicines and medical devices that are either duly registered or which compliance with technical regulations is supported by a compliance certificate
- Supplies within Ukraine and import into Ukraine of medicines, medical devices and/or medical equipment for use in clinical trials permitted by the Ministry of Health of Ukraine

The term “exempt supplies” refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Supplies of certain types of software (temporarily, until 1 January 2023)
- Health care and rehabilitation services
- Supplies of baby nutrition
- Educational services
- Charity
- Supply of land plots (except for those located under real estate objects and included in their value under legislation)
- Supplies of housing (except for the first supply)
- Supplies of periodical printed mass media (newspapers and journals), books, etc., of domestic production
- Religious and funeral services
- Supplies to embassies, consulates and representations of international organizations (for their own needs) on a reciprocal basis
- Imports of cultural items produced 50 or more years ago
- Disposals by banks and financial institutions of property pledged by non-VAT taxpayers
- Sales or purchases by banks of liabilities on deposits
- Imports of certain equipment for wind and solar power plants
- Export of soya beans (from 1 September 2018 till 31 December 2021), rape and colza seeds (from 1 January 2020 till 31 December 2021) — exemption without credit to be applied (this exemption is not available to export of these goods by agricultural manufacturers of these goods grown on agricultural lands, permanently used or leased by them)

Option to tax for exempt supplies. Under Ukraine’s tax code a taxpayer may elect to reject or postpone a tax exemption for a period of months. However, in practice this is difficult to implement.

E. Time of supply

The Ukrainian VAT laws do not contain the concept of "time of supply." Instead, the tax code contains detailed rules with respect to the time for recording VAT liabilities and recognizing VAT credits.

Under the general "first event" rule, a VAT liability arises on the occurrence of the first of the following events:
- The date on which goods or services are dispatched or rendered
- The date on which payment is received with respect to a supply of goods or rendering of services

Special rules apply to certain transactions, including the following:
- For the import of goods, the VAT liability arises on the filing of the customs declaration for customs clearance.
- For the import of services (where the place of supply is within Ukraine), the VAT liability arises on payment or execution of the act of acceptance, whichever occurs first.
- For long-term agreements, the VAT liability arises on the delivery of the work results.

Deposits and prepayments. There are no special time of supply rules in the Ukraine for deposits and prepayments. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (see above). For prepayments (except for export/import of goods) these normally trigger a VAT event. If the supply does not take place and the seller returns prepayment, the seller and the buyer may adjust the output and input tax, respectively, based on the adjustment note to the VAT invoice properly registered in the Unified Tax Invoice Register.

Continuous supplies of services. There are no special time of supply rules in the Ukraine for continuous or rhythmic (two times and more per month) supplies of goods and services. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (see above). However, the law prescribes that in such cases the supplier may issue aggregate VAT invoices to each buyer registered for VAT or one aggregate VAT invoice for supplies to buyers not registered for VAT, by the last day of the month. A VAT invoice must be registered in the Unified Tax Invoice Register within the statutory deadlines. Generally, a VAT invoice is to be issued when the VAT liability arises.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. There are no special time of supply rules in the Ukraine for supplies of goods sent on approval for sale or return. As such, the general time of supply rules apply (see above).

Reverse-charge services. A reverse-charge mechanism applies if a nonresident entity (including a permanent establishment of the nonresident that has not registered for VAT) supplies services for which the place of supply is within Ukraine.

In these cases, the VAT liability would arise for the service recipient under the reverse-charge procedure. The service recipient accrues a VAT liability on the payment for the services or the execution of the act of acceptance, whichever occurs first. The service recipient registered as a VAT taxpayer may record a VAT credit after registration of the VAT invoice in the Unified Tax Invoice Register.

Leased assets. The time of supply rules for the supply of leased assets depends on the type of lease (i.e., operational lease or financial lease).

Transfer of assets under the financial lease arrangements is treated as supply of goods for VAT purposes. The lease qualifies as a "financial lease" if at least one of the below conditions is satisfied:
- Leased assets are transferred for a term during which at least 75% of their initial value is depreciated, and the lessee must purchase these assets from the lessor under the contract.

- At the time of expiration of the lease arrangement, the residual (balance) value of the leased assets constitutes up to 25% of the initial value of such assets.
- The total amount of lease payments equals/exceeds the initial value of the leased assets.
- Leased assets are manufactured under the instructions of the lessee and cannot be used by the third parties, considering the characteristics of such assets.

In case of financial leasing, the lessor must accrue VAT liabilities on the value of the assets upon their transfer to the lessee. The lessee is entitled to credit this VAT upon receipt of assets from the lessor.

Transfer and return of assets under operational lease (i.e., all leasing arrangements that do not satisfy the criteria for financial leasing) is not subject to VAT. Leasing fees payable under the operational lease arrangements can be subject to VAT under the general rules for supply of services.

Imported goods. Import of goods is subject to VAT at a 20% rate or 7% rate (which applies to a limited range of goods) unless an exemption is available under current legislation. The tax base includes contractual value or customs value of the goods, whichever is higher, including excise tax and customs duty paid. VAT liabilities arise, and VAT is paid during filing import customs declaration for customs clearance of the goods. It is not possible to delay payment of import VAT. The importer may credit import VAT in the tax return for a tax period in which the import VAT was paid. VAT credit should be supported by an import customs declaration. Customs may allow payment of VAT by installments for a period of up to 24 or 36 months during import of certain equipment for own manufacturing needs under the procedure approved by the government. The time of installments depends on the type of the equipment. The VAT amount payable should be guaranteed to customs through a financial/banking guarantee or pledge of the equipment.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

In general, VAT credit is available only for registered VAT taxpayers with respect to input tax paid in connection with the acquisition or production of goods, fixed assets or services.

A VAT taxpayer may claim VAT credit with respect to the following transactions:

- Purchases or production of goods and services
- Purchases (building and construction) of fixed assets
- Import of goods and/or fixed assets into Ukraine
- Receipts of services supplied by nonresidents in the customs territory of Ukraine
- Imports of noncurrent assets into the customs territory of Ukraine under lease agreements

A taxpayer must be able to confirm a VAT credit with a VAT invoice registered in the Unified Tax Invoice Register or a customs declaration. A duly registered VAT invoice is sufficient grounds for crediting input tax and no other evidences are required.

If a VAT taxpayer failed to claim a VAT credit in the reporting period based on suppliers' VAT invoices/corrections to VAT invoices registered in the Unified Tax Invoice Register, it may claim a VAT credit during the 1,095 calendar days beginning with the date of the issuance of the VAT invoice/correction to the VAT invoice.

A VAT credit is recognized regardless of whether goods or services or fixed assets were used in taxable transactions or whether the taxpayer performed taxable transactions in the reporting period.

Under the "first event" rule for VAT credit, the right to a VAT credit arises on occurrence of the first of the following events (provided other conditions are met):

- The date on which the taxpayer makes the payment for goods or services
- The date on which the taxpayer receives the goods or services

Special rules include the following:

- For the import of goods, the right to VAT credit arises on the payment (accrual) of VAT on the filing of the customs declaration for the customs clearance.
- For the import of services, the right to VAT credit arises on the date the VAT invoice is self-issued and registered in the Unified Tax Invoice Register.
- For long-term agreements, the right to VAT credit arises on the receipt of the work results (execution of the acts of work acceptance).

Nondeductible input tax. At the end of the tax period, the taxpayer must recognize VAT liability and register a VAT invoice in respect of 1) the goods, services or noncurrent assets that are designated for use or start to be used in nontaxable or nonbusiness transactions and 2) noncurrent assets converted into nonproductive assets. However, taxpayers may deduct such VAT for corporate profit tax purposes if certain conditions are met.

Input tax credits are not available for supplier invoices that are not registered in the Unified Tax Invoice Register, for imports that are not supported by customs declarations or on purchases that are not related to the business activity.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Business entertainment
- Goods found missing during stock-taking
- Purchases used to make supplies for which the place of supply is outside Ukraine (e.g., advertising services provided to a nonresident customer)

In general, input tax credits are not available from suppliers invoices that are not registered in the Unified Tax Invoice Register, for imports that are not supported by customs declarations or on purchases that are not related to the business activity.

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible
(if related to a taxable business use)

- Corporate business mobile phones
- Hotel accommodation for employees
- Business purchases for an amount up to UAH200 supported by a cash receipt indicating VAT ID of the supplier and an amount of VAT

Partial exemption. If the taxpayer carries on both VAT-able and non-VAT-able transactions, at the end of the tax period the taxpayer must recognize the VAT liability and register a VAT invoice for the amount of VAT on purchases used to make exempt supplies, determined on a pro rata basis. The pro rata coefficient is generally based on the percentage of taxable supplies to total supplies in the preceding calendar year. Based on the current year results, the taxpayer must recalculate the pro rata coefficient according to actual volume of taxable and exempt supplies and adjust VAT credit in the tax return for the last tax period of current year.

Capital goods. Taxpayers may deduct the whole amount of input tax incurred upon purchases of capital goods, provided that a duly registered VAT invoice or a customs declaration is available. If purchased capital goods are used both for VAT-able and exempt transactions, the taxpayer must then accrue VAT liabilities based on the pro rata coefficient (refer above). If capital goods are used not for business (i.e., income generating purposes) or to make exempt supplies, the taxpayer must accrue VAT liabilities based on the balance sheet value.

Refunds. VAT due to the budget is calculated as a positive difference between VAT liability (output tax collected from the customers with respect to sales of goods and services) and VAT credit.

If a taxpayer has a negative difference, the difference may be used to decrease the tax debt or may be carried forward as a tax credit to the next reporting period or claimed as a tax refund in the amount not exceeding the threshold of VAT invoices' registration calculated when the VAT return is filed. A refund may be provided by way of remittance of funds to the taxpayer's bank account or through offset against liabilities/debt on other taxes payable to the State Revenue.

From 10 January 2017, the tax authorities maintain a single register of VAT refund claims. In the register, the refund is available in sequential order depending on the date of the relevant claim (i.e., the earlier the claim is included in the register, the earlier the refund will be provided). The register is publicly available via the tax authority website.

From 1 February 2017 in parallel to the regular register, there will be a temporary register of VAT claims submitted prior to 1 February 2016 and where tax was not refunded as of 1 January 2017. The government would split amounts designated by the State Budget Law for refund between the two registers.

Within 30 days after the deadline for submission of a VAT return and application for refund, the tax authorities perform a desk audit to check the data in the return. The tax authorities may perform a documentary tax audit where a VAT refund includes negative VAT amounts relating to transactions made prior to 1 July 2015 that were not covered by documentary tax audits or on purchase transactions made prior to 1 January 2016 for entities that used the special VAT regime for agricultural producers. The taxpayers receive the refund after confirmation of the refund amount with the tax authorities after the tax audit. This confirmation is to be reflected in the register of VAT refund claims. The State Treasury of Ukraine must transfer funds to the taxpayer's bank account within five days after confirmation of the refund amount in the register.

Pre-registration costs. VAT on purchases made prior to a buyer's registration as a VAT taxpayer, is not creditable.

Write-off of bad debts. Output tax accounted for on supplies that do not get paid by the recipient (i.e., a bad debt) cannot be recovered in Ukraine.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred upon purchases that are used for nonbusiness purposes is not recoverable.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

The Ukrainian tax law does not allow nonresident entities that do not have a business presence in Ukraine to recover VAT.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A Ukrainian VAT taxpayer (seller) must provide an electronic VAT invoice registered in the Unified Tax Invoice Register to the buyer. The VAT invoice must be issued on a date when the tax liability arises for the seller and is registered by the end of the month (for VAT invoices issued from the 1st to the 15th day of the calendar month) and by the 15th day of the following month (for VAT invoices issued from the 16th day of the calendar month). The VAT invoice must contain all of the necessary elements and must bear a duly registered electronic signature. A supplier must issue separate VAT invoices for VAT exempt and VAT-able supplies.

If a VAT invoice is improperly completed or is not registered in the Unified Register, the buyer does not have the right to a VAT credit, but the supplier must report the relevant VAT liability. Improper completion of the VAT invoice (except for mistakes in the HS code of the goods) still allows identification of the transaction, and such VAT invoice should be allowed for registration.

From 1 July 2017, the authorities may block registration of VAT invoices based on the risk assessment system that automatically monitors all VAT invoices. In this case, the authorities would request additional explanations/documentation (to be submitted within 365 calendar days after arising tax liabilities reflected in the tax return) sufficient for unblocking registration of VAT invoices.

Credit notes. If output/input tax needs to be adjusted (e.g., due to change of compensation, return or goods/advance payment), the seller must issue electronically an adjustment note to the VAT invoice that must be registered in the Unified Tax Invoice Register either by the seller (in case of compensation increase) or by the buyer (in case of compensation decrease). The format of the adjustment note is approved by the Ministry of Finance.

In some cases, the buyer has the right to a VAT credit without the VAT invoice on the basis of the following documents:
- Transport ticket or an invoice for hotel or communication services
- Checks for goods or services for an amount not exceeding UAH200 per day
- Customs cargo declaration for the import of goods

Electronic invoicing. Electronic VAT invoicing is mandatory for all taxpayers. A VAT invoice must contain all of the necessary elements and must bear a duly registered electronic signature.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified VAT invoicing is not allowed in Ukraine. As such, full VAT invoices are required.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Ukraine.

Proof of exports. Export of goods should be supported by duly executed export customs declaration certified by customs to evidence that the goods actually left customs territory of Ukraine.

Foreign currency invoices. VAT invoices are issued in Ukrainian currency, which is the hryvnia (UAH).

Supplies to nontaxable persons. VAT invoices (registered in the Unified Tax Invoice Register) are required even for supplies by taxable persons to private customers. It is not mandatory to provide such a VAT invoice to the private customer, unless they request this.

Records. Documents that must be kept for VAT purposes include source accounting documents (e.g., invoices, service acceptance acts, supply contracts), accounting ledgers, VAT returns, customs declarations, issued and received VAT invoices, and other documents related to tax accounting.

Record retention period. The statutory retention period in Ukraine is three years (1,095 days) after the deadline for filing a tax return for the relevant reporting period.

Electronic archiving. Electronic keeping and archiving records is allowed for documents that were initially completed electronically (inter alia these documents should bear a relevant electronic digital signature). Otherwise, physical storage (i.e., paper) must be used.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. Entities that use the month as a tax period file tax return within 20 calendar days of the following month. Entities that use the quarter as a tax period file the tax return within 40 calendar days of the following quarter.

Periodic payments. Tax is payable within 10 days after the filing deadline. VAT liabilities must be paid to the revenue from the special VAT account of the taxpayer. All settlements must be made in the Ukrainian currency (UAH).

Electronic filing. All registered VAT taxpayers must file tax declarations electronically.

A system of electronic VAT administration is based on the interaction of the Unified Tax Invoice Register (UTIR) with the special VAT accounts.

VAT accounts are free for all VAT taxpayers in the State Treasury of Ukraine. Under this system the supplier is able to register a VAT invoice in UTIR for an amount that exceeds its VAT credit only when the taxpayer pays the corresponding amount of money into its VAT account. The VAT invoice registration threshold is calculated according to a formula. The formula also includes an allowed overdraft calculated as the average monthly amount of VAT that was declared as payment for the past 12 months (overdraft is to be recalculated quarterly). This overdraft is not available to taxpayers registered for VAT for less than 12 calendar months as of 1 January 2016 or registered as VAT payers after that date and becomes available in the quarter following the quarter in which the 12-month VAT registration period has been achieved.

Taxpayers will be able to replenish their VAT accounts or transfer funds remaining after settlements to their regular bank account (in the latter case, the VAT registration threshold would be reduced but a negative amount is not acceptable). Taxpayers will not be able to transfer money from the VAT accounts at their discretion. Neither funds from customers nor VAT refunds are transferred to the VAT account.

If a VAT taxpayer's registration is canceled, its VAT account will be closed, and the net balance of the account will be transferred to the state revenue.

The treasury communicates data about the net balance of the VAT account to the Unified Register online. If the total of input tax and VAT account balance is insufficient, the taxpayer will not be able to register the issued VAT invoice with the Unified Register. Consequently, the customer of the VAT taxpayer in question will not be entitled to recognize VAT credit.

At the end of the reporting period, the tax on the added value generated by such supplier should be accumulated in its VAT account. VAT payable to the state revenue at the end of the reporting period will be settled by means of funds in the VAT account.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Ukraine.

Special schemes.

Tourist operators. For tourist operators who sell tourist products for use in or outside of Ukraine, 20% VAT is applied on a margin calculated as a difference between the value of the tourist product and expenses incurred in relation to creating such a tourist product. For tourist operators acting as intermediaries for foreign tourist service providers and for Ukrainian tourist agents, 20% VAT is levied on a remuneration payable to such entities. Input tax on services included in the tourist product is not creditable whereas input tax on any tourist services not included in the value of the tourist product is creditable.

Works of art. The supply of works of art (HS headings 9701-9706) by dealers is subject to a marginal profit tax scheme if they were purchased from:
- Entities not registered as VAT taxpayers
- VAT taxpayers where the supply is exempt or not subject to VAT
- VAT taxpayers using a marginal profit tax scheme
- Authors of works of art or their legal successors

The taxable base includes the seller's marginal profit (excluding VAT). The VAT rate is 20%. The dealer (seller) is not required to issue a VAT invoice. The dealer who buys works of art from the above entities is not entitled to credit input tax. Export of works of art is not subject to zero VAT during export (i.e., input tax, if any, is not recoverable). The dealer is required to maintain separate accounting of transactions involving purchase and sale of works of art.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required in Ukraine.

Supplementary filings. Taxpayers must issue electronic excise invoices for all shipments of certain excisable goods (fuel and ethyl alcohol). Excise invoice layout and principles of electronic excise tax administration are similar to VAT rules.

Digital reporting. Taxpayers who are liable to use electronic cash registers must transmit real-time transactional data (information from cash receipts) to the tax authorities. Inter alia, this data includes information on the goods and services supplied, as well as amounts of VAT and excise tax.

All registered VAT taxpayers must file tax declarations electronically. Electronic filing of source accounting data (inter alia, upon tax audits) is being considered in the long term.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. Late registration or violation of other tax registration requirements may trigger a fine of UAH170 for self-employed persons and UAH510 for legal entities or tax agents. For a repeated violation, the amount of the fine increases to UAH340 and UAH1,020, respectively.

If the tax authorities determine that late registration caused tax understatement and reassesses the taxpayer's tax liability, general fines for tax understatement apply. The fines are imposed at the following percentages of the understated tax liability:
- 25% for the first violation
- 50% for a repeated (within three years) violation

An interest penalty may also apply. In addition, the taxpayer is not eligible for a VAT credit or refund with respect to input tax incurred before VAT registration.

Penalties for late payment and filings. The following are the penalties for failure to file or for the late filing of the VAT declaration:
- UAH170 for each violation
- UAH1,020 for repeated violations within a year

If a failure to properly file the tax return results in the understatement of tax liabilities, additional fines apply.

The following penalties are imposed for late payments:
- 10% of unpaid liabilities if the period of delay is up to 30 days
- 20% of unpaid liabilities if the period of delay exceeds 30 days

Under the tax code, an amount of VAT that is not refunded to the tax authorities on time is considered to be a debt to the state revenue. An interest penalty at a rate of 120% of the National Bank of Ukraine (NBU) rate applies to this debt amount until it is settled.

Penalties for errors. Penalties are imposed for the overstatement of a VAT refund or the understatement of VAT liabilities if the tax authorities increase the amount of VAT liabilities or decrease the VAT refund. The penalties are imposed at the following percentages of the reassessed tax liability or overstated VAT refund:
- 25% if the violation was made the first time within a three-year period
- 50% if the violation was repeated within a three-year period

It is not clear whether an overstatement of negative VAT (that does not lead to tax understatement or the overstatement of VAT refund) is subject to a fine.

The following are the penalties for the understatement of tax liabilities if the taxpayer corrects the mistake made in the VAT return:
- 3% of the understatement of tax liabilities if it submits an adjustment calculation

- 5% of the understatement of tax liabilities if it corrects the mistake in the tax return for the next reporting period
- 5% of the understatement for the failure to submit an adjustment calculation

The following penalties are applied for failure to timely register VAT invoices (excluding VAT invoices for exempt and zero-rated transactions that do not need to be issued to buyers) in the UTIR:
- 10% of VAT amount if the delay is up to 15 calendar days
- 20% of VAT amount if the delay is from 16 to 30 calendar days
- 30% of VAT amount if the delay is from 31 to 60 calendar days
- 40% of VAT amount if the delay is 61 days to 365 calendar days

If tax authorities detect failure to register a VAT invoice, they will issue the tax-notification decision and apply a penalty in the amount of 50% of the VAT amount. This penalty will not be applied where a VAT invoice is registered prior to tax audit.

The above penalties (10%-50%) are not applied where the VAT invoice is registered within 10 calendar days after receipt of the tax notification decision.

If the tax authorities block registration of a VAT invoice based on the risk assessment system, the above penalties are not applied for the duration of the blocking period.

A failure to register a VAT invoice after 10 calendar days following the receipt of the tax-notification decision may attract a penalty in the amount of 50% of VAT.

The following fines are applied for mistakes in a VAT invoice detected by the tax authorities during a documentary out-of-schedule tax audit at the buyer's request. The percentage penalty is based on the VAT amount due, and the timings are based on if the mistake is not corrected within such number of calendar days:
- UAH170 and obligation to correct the mistake
- 10% (15 days)
- 20% (16 to 30 days)
- 30% (31 to 60 days)
- 40% (61 to 90 days)
- 50% (91 to 120 days)
- 60% (121 to 150 days)
- 70% (151 to 180 days)
- 100% (after 181 days)

These penalties are not applied until 31 December 2017 for mistakes in a VAT invoice regarding indication of the tariff code of goods or code of services under the State Classifier of Products and Services.

In addition to the above, the interest penalty may apply for tax understatement and late payment. The interest penalty for late payment applies from the first business day on which the tax liability becomes overdue (that is, after expiration of the deadline for settling the tax liability indicated in the tax return or in the tax-notification decision issued by the tax authorities). Where taxpayers voluntarily correct errors in tax returns, late payment interest applies from the 91st calendar day after expiration of the deadline for payment of tax. The interest penalty for tax understatement applies to the whole period of understatement of the tax liability, even though the taxpayer may have recourse to the administrative or court appeal procedure.

The rate of the interest penalty equals 120% (100% in cases where taxpayers voluntarily correct errors in tax returns) of the yearly NBU discount rate for each day of tax understatement.

In addition to financial sanctions, administrative or criminal liability may apply.

Penalties for fraud. Deliberate tax evasion committed by a taxpayer is recognized as a criminal offense under the Criminal Code of Ukraine. Tax evasion may trigger criminal responsibility, if the total amount of underpaid tax (including financial sanctions) exceeds 3000 statutory nontaxable minimum income (for 2020 the threshold is UAH3 million — approximately EUR118,000).

The potential penalties for tax evasion include fines (the amount gradually rises depending on the amount of unpaid tax liability), restriction to occupy certain positions or conduct certain activities for up to three years and, in certain cases, confiscation of property.

Ukrainian Criminal Code does not envisage any special provisions on criminal liability of tax advisors.

B. Scope of the taxes

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- The supply (and deemed supply) of goods and services made in the UAE by a taxable person
- The acquisition of goods from another GCC Member State by a taxable person
- Reverse-charge services received by a taxable person in the UAE
- The importation of goods into the UAE, regardless of the status of the importer

Designated zones. A "designated zone" specified by a decision of the Cabinet, shall be treated as being outside the UAE and outside the GCC, subject to the following conditions:
- The designated zone is a specific fenced geographic area and has security measures and Customs controls in place to monitor entry and exit of individuals and movement of goods to and from the area
- The designated zone shall have internal procedures regarding the method of keeping, storing and processing of goods therein
- The operator of the designated zone complies with the procedures set by the authority

A transfer of goods between designated zones shall not be subject to VAT if the following two conditions are met:
- Where the goods, or part thereof, are not released, and are not in any way used or altered during the transfer between the designated zones
- Where the transfer is undertaken in accordance with the rules for customs suspension according to GCC Common Customs Law

Where goods are moved between designated zones, the federal tax authority may require the owner of the goods to provide a financial guarantee for the payment of the VAT, which that person may become liable for, should the conditions for movement of the goods not be met.

If a supply of goods is made within a designated zone to a person to be used by him or by a third person, a special rule applies. The place of supply shall be the UAE unless the goods are to be incorporated into, attached to or otherwise form part of or are used in the production or sale of another good located in the same designated zone and which itself is not consumed.

The place of supply of services is considered to be inside the UAE if the place of supply is in the designated zone. This means that services supplied in a designated zone are subject to VAT if supplied by a taxable supply.

The place of supply of water or any form of energy shall be considered to be inside the UAE if the place of supply is in a designated zone.

Goods located in a designated zone on which the owner has not paid VAT will be treated as imported into the UAE by the owner if the goods are consumed by the owner, unless these goods are incorporated into, attached to or otherwise form part of or are used in the production of another good located in a designated zone which itself is not consumed, or the goods are unaccounted for.

Any person established, registered or who has a place of residence in a designated zone shall be deemed to have a place of residence in the UAE for the purposes of the VAT law.

C. Who is liable

A "taxable person" is any person registered or required to register for VAT in the UAE.

Every individual/business who has a place of residence in the UAE, or in another GCC Member State, where the total value of all taxable supplies made in the past 12 months or expected taxable supplies in the next 30 days, exceeds AED375,000, must register for, collect and remit VAT. This includes non-executive directors receiving director fees in excess of the registration threshold.

Where a person has a requirement to register based on the above, they must apply to the federal tax authority to register within 30 days of the end of that month. Where a person does not file its VAT registration application despite being required to do so, the federal tax authority shall register that person with effect from the date on which the person first became liable to be registered for VAT and impose the necessary penalties.

For registrations based on supplies made in the last 12 months, the registration will take effect from the first day of the month following the month in which the person is required to register, or from an earlier date as agreed between the federal tax authority and the person.

For registrations based on expected supplies in the next 30 days, the registration will take effect from the date on which there are reasonable grounds for believing the person will be required to register, or from an earlier date as agreed between the federal tax authority and the person.

A taxable person who has been late in registering for VAT, is liable to account for and pay to the federal tax authority the VAT due on all taxable supplies and imports made by that person before registering.

Exemption from registration. A taxable person providing zero-rated supplies only may be exempt from the mandatory VAT registration obligation. Any taxable person excepted from the VAT registration obligation must inform the federal tax authority of any changes to their business that would make them subject to VAT, within 10 business days of making such supplies.

The federal tax authority has the right to collect any VAT due and administrative penalties for the period of exception if the taxable person was not entitled to the exception from VAT registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. A taxable person who is not obliged to register for VAT, may apply for VAT registration where it is expected that its supplies will exceed AED187,500 in the next 30 days. It should be able to provide evidence of an intention to make taxable supplies or incur expenses which are subject to VAT (at the standard rate) in excess of AED187,500.

Where a taxable person applies to register for VAT voluntarily, the federal tax authority shall register it with effect from the first day of the month following the month in which the application is made, or from an earlier date as agreed between the federal tax authority and the person.

Group registration. Two or more taxable persons may apply for VAT registration as a tax group if all of the following conditions are met:

- Each taxable person has a place of establishment or fixed establishment in the UAE.
- The taxable persons must be related parties.
- One or more taxable persons must control the other taxable person(s), i.e., there must be common ownership.

A tax group must select one of its registered members to act as the representative member of the tax group.

An application to form a tax group must be made by a taxable person. This person is the representative member of the VAT group.

All members of a tax group shall be jointly and severally liable for the VAT obligations of that tax group arising during its registration.

Any goods or services supplied to any of the members of the tax group (including imports) will be deemed to be supplied to the representative member. Any supplies made by a member of the tax group shall be deemed to be made by the representative member, which includes output tax charges or input tax incurred by any of the members.

Any supplies made by a member of the VAT group to another member of the same group, may be disregarded for VAT purposes. The tax group registration takes effect from the first day of the tax period following the tax period in which the application is received, or any date as determined by the federal tax authority.

Where the federal tax authority establishes that two or more taxable persons are associated as a result of their economic, financial and regulatory practices in business, the federal tax authority may register them as a tax group. Such notice may only be issued where the federal tax authority is satisfied that to treat such businesses separately would create a VAT advantage. In this scenario, the federal tax authority may only register a taxable person as part of a tax group if the taxable person's business includes making taxable supplies (or imports) and would exceed the mandatory registration threshold.

Self-supplies. Goods or services that a taxable business supplies to itself are not taxable. This includes instances where one member of a tax group provides services to another member of the same tax group.

If a branch of a business is registered for UAE VAT, and supplies goods and/or services to a head office or another branch, that transaction is disregarded (i.e., outside the scope of UAE VAT).

Non-established businesses. Every individual/business that does not have a place of residence in the UAE, or in another implementing GCC Member State, and where no other taxable person is obliged to pay the VAT due on these supplies in the UAE (i.e., via the reverse-charge mechanism), must register for VAT if they make taxable supplies of goods or services. A GCC Member State is only regarded as an implementing state if it is fully compliant with the provisions of the Common VAT Agreement of the States of the Gulf Cooperation Council and recognize the UAE as implementing state.

An individual/business who has a place of residence in a UAE designated zone shall be deemed to have a place of residence in the UAE for the purposes of UAE VAT.

The federal tax authority shall register a non-established business from the date on which it started making supplies in the UAE, or from an earlier date as agreed between the federal tax authority and the business.

A non-established business may not take the value of goods and services imported into the UAE to determine whether they are entitled to apply for VAT registration, if the calculation of VAT for such goods and services is the responsibility of the importer via the reverse-charge mechanism.

Tax representatives. The registered tax agent may act on a taxable person's behalf in respect of its VAT obligations in the UAE, by submitting a notification. Notwithstanding the appointment of a tax agent, the taxable person shall maintain individual responsibility for all such obligations. In performing their duties as a tax agent, the tax agent may rely on information provided to them by the person unless the tax agent has reasonable grounds for believing that the information may be incorrect. The federal tax authority may also rely on the information provided to it by the tax agent in the case of a tax audit, even after the expiry of the agency engagement or the dismissal of the tax agent.

A local tax agent must be licensed and registered with the federal tax authority, where a file shall be kept regarding all matters of professional conduct associated with the agent. In order for the agent to be registered with the federal tax authority, he must satisfy several conditions, including:

- To be of good conduct and behavior
- Never have been convicted of a crime or misdemeanor
- The ability to communicate orally and in writing in both Arabic and English
- To pass any tests to meet qualification standards as may be specified by the authority
- To perform his activity through a legal person approved by the Ministry of Economy and the local competent authority

The federal tax authority shall not deal with any tax agent where the federal tax authority has been informed that the agency engagement has ended or that the tax agent has been dismissed.

Reverse charge. Generally, the reverse charge VAT is applicable to the purchase of services from other GCC Member States and non-GCC taxable persons, as well as on intra-GCC acquisitions of goods.

Imports into the UAE by a VAT registered person can also be accounted for under the reverse-charge mechanism. Imports by a non-VAT registered person will be subject to VAT at import, with an actual payment of VAT required. The goods may not be released until the VAT has been paid.

Domestic reverse charge. A domestic reverse charge is applicable to supplies made in the UAE of any crude or refined oil, unprocessed or processed natural gas, or any hydrocarbons, and the recipient of these goods intends to either resell the purchased goods as any of these types of goods, or to use these goods to produce or distribute any form of energy.

The domestic reverse charge is also applicable to supplies of gold, diamonds and any products where the principal components are gold or diamonds. The supplies must be made to recipients registered for VAT in the UAE, who intend to either resell such goods or use them to produce or manufacture any such the goods.

This domestic reverse charge shall not apply in any of the following situations:

- Before the supply takes place, the customer has not provided a written confirmation to the supplier that their acquisition of the goods is for the purpose of resale
- The customer is VAT registered and the supplier has not verified the VAT registration of the customer by means approved by the federal tax authority
- Where the supply would have been subject to the zero-rate VAT
- Where the supply includes a supply of goods or services other than crude or refined oil, unprocessed or processed natural gas, or any hydrocarbons

If the supplier was aware (or was supposed to be aware) that the customer was not VAT registered at the time the supply takes place, the supplier and the customer shall be jointly and severely liable for any VAT due and relevant penalties.

Digital economy. For the purposes of UAE VAT, telecommunication services include the supply of equipment or devices which can deliver, broadcast, convert or receive communications, such as wired/wireless communications, music, viewable images and signals used to operate machinery.

Where telecommunication and electronic services are supplied within the UAE, the place of supply will be within the UAE to the extent that the use and enjoyment of the supply is within the UAE. Where the services are supplied outside the UAE, the place of supply shall be outside the UAE to the extent that the use and enjoyment of the supply is outside the UAE. The actual use and enjoyment shall be where the recipient consumes and enjoys the services, regardless of the place of contract or payment.

Telecommunications services may be zero-rated where the supplier has a place of residence within the UAE and makes the supply to either:
- Another telecommunications supplier who has a place of residence outside the implementing states
- A person who is not a telecommunications supplier, but who has a place of residence outside the UAE, where the services are initiated outside the implementing states

Online marketplaces and platforms. Electronic services include services delivered over an electronic network or marketplace, including the supply of domain names, web-hosting, software (including updates), images, music, magazines, advertising space, distance learning and live streaming.

At the time of preparing this chapter, the respective tax authorities of the UAE, Saudi Arabia and Bahrain are not treating each other as implementing states. Consequently, until being recognized as implementing states by the UAE, GCC Member States are treated the same as non-GCC countries. Therefore, the zero-rating provisions are still applicable. This situation should, however, be monitored as, going forward, GCC Member States that implemented VAT may be recognized as implementing states.

Registration procedures. A UAE VAT registration application must be made on the federal tax authority portal (www.eservices.tax.gov.ae). The following details must be provided:
- Company information: including, the UAE trade license; if the company has a place of residence in the UAE; legal name of the company in English and Arabic; certificate of incorporation
- Details of the authorized signatory: including, copy of the signatory's passport; copy of the signatory's Emirates ID; signatory's scanned copy of proof of authorization, for example, power of attorney
- Contact and bank account details, for taxable persons in a repayment position
- Actual or estimated financial information, for example, audited or non-audited financial statements, or revenue forecasts
- Cross-border flows of goods and/or services, specifying if they will be in relation to any other GCC Member States
- Details and evidence of business relationships

Upon receipt of the application, the federal tax authority will usually process the application within 20 business days. If the application is successful, the taxable person will receive its VAT registration certificate, containing the tax registration number, registered address, effective registration date, first and subsequent registration periods and VAT return due date.

Deregistration. A taxable person must apply to the federal tax authority to deregister from VAT within 20 business days of the occurrence of any of the following cases:
- If the taxable person stops making taxable supplies and does not expect to make any such supplies over the next 12-month period
- If the value of the taxable supplies made over a period of 12 consecutive months is less than AED187,500 and the taxable person does not anticipate its total value of supplies (or costs subject to VAT to be incurred) will exceed AED187,500 during the next 30-day period

If the deregistration application is approved, the federal tax authority shall cancel the VAT registration of the taxable person with effect from the last day of the tax period during which the taxable person has met the conditions for deregistration, or from another date determined by the federal tax authority.

A taxable person may not apply for VAT deregistration within 12 months of the date of VAT registration (where registered voluntarily).

Where a taxable person requests to be deregistered from VAT due to the reduction of its taxable supplies to less than AED375,000, the federal tax authority will, if in agreement with the taxable person, cancel the VAT registration. This is in effect from the date requested by the taxable person in the application, or the date on which the request is made if the taxable person did not indicate a preferred deregistration date.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
• Standard rate: 5%
• Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services, unless a specific measure provides for the zero rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

• A direct or indirect export of goods to outside of the GCC territory (with certain evidence and timings)
  — A movement of goods into a designated zone from a place in the UAE or a supply of goods to a designated zone shall not be considered an export of those goods
• Export of services, where the following conditions are met:
  — The services are supplies to a recipient of services who does not have a place of residence in the GCC and who is outside the UAE at the time the services are performed
  — The services are not supplied directly in connection with real estate situated in the UAE or any improvement to the real estate or directly in connection with moveable personal assets situated in the UAE at the time the services are performed
  — The services are actually performed outside the GCC or are the arranging of services that are actually performed outside the GCC
  — The supply consists of the facilitation of outbound tour packages, for that part of the service
• Export of telecommunications services, in the following situations:
  — A supply of telecommunications services by a telecommunications supplier who has a place of residence in the UAE to:
    — A telecommunications supplier who has a place of residence outside the GCC
    — A person who is not a telecommunications supplier and who has a place of residence outside of the UAE for a telecommunications service that is initiated outside the GCC
• Intra-GCC and international transport of passengers and goods, which starts or ends in the UAE
• The supply of sea, air and land transport services for the transportation of passengers and goods (including related goods and services designed for the operation, repair, maintenance or conversation of these means of transport, and supply of rescue planes and ships for the provision of sea and air help in addition to fishing vessels)
• The supply or import of investment precious metals (gold, silver, platinum that is a metal of purity of 99% or more and the metal is in a form tradeable in global bullion markets)
• The first supply of residential buildings of the following cases:
  — Within three years of its completion, either through sale or lease in whole or in part
  — Specifically designed to be used by charities through sale or lease
  — Buildings converted from nonresidential to residential through sale or lease
• The supply of crude oil and natural gas
• The supply of educational services and related goods and services, for nurseries, preschool, school education, and higher education institutions owned or funded by federal or local government
• The supply of preventive and basic health care services and related goods and services, made by a health care body or institution, doctor, nurse, technician, dentist or pharmacy, licensed by the Ministry of Health or by any other competent authority — this includes the supply of medications and medical equipment registered with the Ministry of Health and Prevention, or imported with permission or approval

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Financial services, as outlined below, that are not conducted in return for an explicit fee, discount, commission, and rebate or similar. Also, any Islamic financial products, being financial products under contract which are certified as Islamic Shariah compliant, which simulate the intention and achieve effectively the same result as a non-Shariah compliant financial product, will be treated in a similar manner as the equivalent non-Shariah financial product for the purpose of applying exemption from VAT.
  - Issue, allotment, or transfer or ownership of an equity security or debt security
  - Provision or transfer of ownership of a life insurance contract or the provision of reinsurance in respect of any such contract
  - Exchange of currency, whether effected by the exchange of bank notes or coin, by crediting or debiting accounts, or otherwise
  - The issue, payment, collection, or transfer of ownership of a cheque or letter of credit
  - The issue, allotment, drawing, acceptance, endorsement, or transfer of ownership of a debt security
  - The provision of any loan, advance or credit
  - The renewal or variation of a debt security, equity security, or credit contract
  - The provision, taking, variation, or release of a guarantee, indemnity, security, or bond in respect of the performance of obligation under a cheque, credit, equity security, debt security
  - The operation of any current, deposit or savings account
  - The provision or transfer of ownership of financial instruments such as derivatives, options, swaps, credit default swaps, and futures
  - The payment or collection of any amount of interest, principal, dividend, or other amount whatever in respect of any debt security, equity security, credit and contract of life insurance
  - Agreeing to do so, or arranging, any of the activities outlined above, other than advising thereon
- Supply of residential buildings, unless it is zero-rated, where the lease is more than six (6) months or the tenant of the property is a holder of an ID card issued by the Federal Authority for Identity and Citizenship
- Supply of bare land, meaning land that is not covered by completed or partially completed buildings or civil engineering works
- Supply of local passenger transport services in a qualifying means of transport by land, water or air from a place in the UAE to another place in the UAE

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in the UAE.

E. Time of supply

The time at which VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point." The time of supply is the earliest of any of the following dates:

- The date on which the goods were transferred (if such transfer was under the supervision of the supplier)
- The date on which the recipient of the goods took possession of the goods (if the transfer was not under the supervision of the supplier)
- Where the goods are supplied with assembly and installation, the date on which the assembly or installation of the goods was completed

- Where the goods are supplied on a returnable basis, the date on which the recipient of the goods accepted the supply, or a date no later than twelve (12) months after the date on which the goods were transferred or placed under the recipient of goods disposal
- The date when the performance of services has taken place
- The date of receipt of payment or the date on which the tax invoice was issued

Deposits and prepayments. The receipt of a deposit or prepayment would create a tax point where this forms part of the total payment of a particular supply if it precedes the issuance of a tax invoice.

Other matters concerning deposits and prepayments, for example, for consideration received prior to the implementation date of 1 January 2018 for services supplied after the implementation date, are detailed in Section K (Transitional provisions).

Continuous supplies of services. The date of supply of goods or services for any contract that includes periodic payments or consecutive invoices shall be the earliest of any of the following dates, provided that it does not exceed one (1) year from the date of the provision of such goods and services:
- The date of issuance of any VAT invoice
- The date payment is due as shown on the VAT invoice
- The date of receipt of payment

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. At the time of preparing this chapter, there are no special time of supply rules concerning goods sent on approval for sale or return. As such, the general time of supply rules (as outlined above) apply.

Reverse-charge services. Generally, the reverse-charge VAT is also applicable to the purchase of services from other GCC Member States and non-GCC taxable persons, as well as on intra-GCC acquisitions of goods. Where these types of purchases are made, which would be taxable if supplied in the UAE, the taxable person shall be treated as making a supply to itself. Therefore, the taxable person is responsible for all applicable VAT obligations and accounting for the tax due in respect of these supplies.

The above mechanism applies where the following conditions are satisfied:
- The taxable person is UAE VAT registered at the time of import.
- The taxable person keeps sufficient and appropriate records concerning the supply received.
- In the case of goods, the taxable person has given the federal tax authority its customs registration number.
- The taxable person has cooperated and complied with the federal tax authority in respect of the import.

In terms of the time of supply, the taxable person who has received the goods and/or services must declare and pay the due tax in the VAT return that relates to the tax period at the date of supply for which the purchase took place. Where any relevant VAT amount is expressed in a currency other than AED, the amount must be converted to AED using the daily rate prescribed by the central bank at the date of supply. Supplies within the same legal entity, e.g., branch to branch or head office to branch are, however, disregarded.

Leased assets. At the time of preparing this chapter, there are no special time of supply rules concerning leased assets. It is expected that both operational and finance asset leases are treated as continuous supplies of services (see below subsection), provided that legal title to the goods does not pass to the recipient and there is no express contemplation that title will transfer at some point in the future.

Goods supplied on terms that expressly contemplate that title will transfer at some point in the future (e.g., under hire-purchase or conditional sale agreements) are treated in the same way as a normal sale of goods where title passes at the outset. Unless a VAT invoice is issued, the time of supply will be linked to the basic tax point (see above). This means that the full amount of VAT will become payable up front, instead of being due as and when installment payments are made.

It is also expected that leases made under Islamic finance arrangements will follow the same VAT treatment as their conventional finance equivalents.

Imported goods. In the case of imports, the tax becomes due on the date when the goods are imported into the UAE, under the customs legislation.

Deemed supplies. The tax point of a deemed supply of goods or services, shall be the date of their supply, disposal, change or usage or the date of deregistration, whichever is applicable.

Vouchers. The tax point of a supply of a voucher, shall be the date of issuance or supply thereafter.

Vending machines. The tax point of supply, in cases where payment is made through vending machines, shall be the date on which the funds are collected from the machine.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax, which is VAT charged on goods and services supplied to it for business purposes. Recovery is by way of deducting input tax against output tax, which is the VAT charged on supplies made by the business.

Input tax includes VAT paid on imports of goods, and VAT self-assessed through the reverse charge mechanism.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered in respect of certain expenses specifically listed as nondeductible.

The following lists provide some examples of items of expenditure for which input tax is not deductible and examples of items for which input tax is deductible if the expenditure is related to a taxable business use.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Provision of entertainment services to anyone not employed by a taxable person, including customers, potential customers, officials, or shareholders or other owners or investors
- Where a motor vehicle was purchased, rented or leased for use in the business and is available for personal use by any person
- Where goods or services were purchased to be used by employees for no charge to them and for their personal benefit, including the provision of entertainment services, except in certain specific cases
- Business gifts supplied for no consideration, unless the total value of these gifts are less than AED500 per recipient within a 12-month period
- Health insurance for dependents, except in respect of Abu Dhabi employees
- VAT incurred for making exempt supplies
- Staff party expenses

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Motor vehicles not available for private use
- Where an employee requires hotel accommodation/subsistence for an overnight stay on a domestic business trip
- Food and drink in the normal course of a business meeting (e.g., simple refreshments)
- Short-term accommodation provided to a new employee joining the business

Partial exemption. Input tax related to goods and services used to provide supplies that are subject to VAT and other supplies that are exempt, may be deducted in accordance with the proportion of costs related to the supplies subject to the VAT.

The standard partial exemption method consists of the following two-stage calculation:
- Attribution of input tax exclusively used in making either taxable or exempt supplies.
- Apportionment of non-attributable input tax using the standard input-based calculation, which will calculate the percentage of recoverable input tax. This percentage is based on the respective values of VAT incurred wholly to make taxable supplies and VAT incurred to make wholly exempt and outside the scope supplies.

The percentage calculated shall be rounded to the nearest whole number.

The percentage calculated shall be multiplied by the amount of total non-attributable input tax incurred to establish the recoverable portion of that input tax.

The calculations referred to above shall be undertaken in respect of each tax period where input tax incurred relates to making exempt supplies or to activities that are not in the course of business.

At the end of each tax year the taxable person shall undertake the calculation outlined above, but in respect of the entire tax year just ended and include the result in the first tax period of its subsequent tax year. The amount calculated for the tax year shall be compared to the input tax amount actually recovered in all the tax periods making up the tax year, and an adjustment to the recoverable tax shall be made in the tax period.

There may be a difference between the recoverable tax amount calculated and the amount of a calculation which reflects the actual use of the goods and services to which the input tax relates. If that difference exceeds AED250,000, the taxable person shall, in the tax period for the tax year, make an adjustment to the input tax.

If the calculation outlined above, would give a result which the taxable person considers would not reflect the actual extent to which the input tax relates to making taxable supplies, it may apply to the federal tax authority to authorize the use of an alternative basis of calculation based on the list of accepted mechanisms issued by the federal tax authority.

Capital goods. Capital assets are items of capital expenditure that are used in a business over several years. If capital assets are supplied or imported by a taxable person, they shall assess the period of use of the assets and make the necessary adjustments to the input tax paid, in line with the capital assets scheme.

For purposes of the capital asset scheme, a capital asset is a single item of expenditure of the business amounting to AED5 million or more, excluding VAT, on which VAT is payable and which has an estimated useful life equal to or longer than 10 years in case of a building or a part thereof and 5 years for all capital assets other than buildings or parts thereof.

Items of stock, which are for resale, shall not be treated as capital assets.

Expenditure consisting of smaller sums which collectively amount to AED5 million or more shall be treated as a single item of expenditure of AED5 million or more, where the sums are staged payments for any of the following:
- For the purchase of a building
- For the construction of a building
- In relation to an extension, refurbishment, renewal, fitting out, or other work undertaken to a building, except that where there is a distinct break between any such works being undertaken, they shall be taken to be separate items of expenditure

- For the purchase, construction, assembly, or installation of any goods or immovable property where components are supplied separately for assembly

A taxable person shall keep the records related to capital assets for at least 10 years.

A capital asset eligible for the capital asset scheme shall be monitored and the input tax incurred shall be adjusted, over a period of 5 or 10 years (as outlined above), commencing on the day on which the owner first uses the capital assets for the purposes of its business.

Refunds. The amount of VAT reclaimed must be supported by a valid VAT invoice, and (if necessary) the customs documents that prove the taxable person is the importer of the goods in accordance with the Common Customs Law. The recoverable input tax may be deducted through the VAT return relating to the first tax period in which the taxable person receives and keeps the tax invoice. As a condition for input tax recovery, the taxable person must also pay the consideration for the supply or for any part thereof. The taxable person shall be treated as having made a payment of consideration for a supply to the extent that the taxable person intends to make the payment before the expiration of six months after the agreed date for the payment of the supply.

If the taxable person entitled to recover the input tax fails to do so during the tax period, he may include the recoverable VAT in the VAT return for the subsequent tax period.

Where a taxable person's recoverable input tax exceeds the output tax payable in the same tax period, the taxable person may opt to apply for a refund or carry forward any excess recoverable VAT to the subsequent tax periods and offset such excess against VAT payable or any administrative penalties imposed, until such excess is fully utilized. The refund request must be submitted through the prescribed form. As part of the application process, the taxable person must submit a letter to verify their banking details and agree to submit additional documentary proof to support the VAT refund application, if requested by the federal tax authority.

Pre-registration costs. A taxable person may recover input tax incurred before its VAT registration on the VAT return submitted for the first tax period following the VAT registration. It can relate to input tax paid of the supply of goods and services made to them (and also the import of goods by them) prior to the date of the VAT registration. This is on the basis that these goods and services were used to make supplies that give the right to input tax recovery upon VAT registration.

Input tax may not be recovered in any of the following instances:
- The receipt of goods and services for purposes other than making taxable supplies
- Input tax related to the part of the capital assets that depreciated before the date of the VAT registration
- If the services were received more than five years prior to the date of VAT registration
- Where a taxable person has moved the goods to another GCC Member State prior to the VAT registration in the UAE

Write-off of bad debts. A taxable person may reduce the output tax in a current tax period to adjust the output tax paid for any previous tax period, if all the following conditions are met:
- Goods and services have been supplied and the VAT due has been charged and paid.
- Consideration for the supply has been written off in full or part as a bad debt in the accounts of the supplier.
- More than six months has passed from the date of the supply.
- The supplier has notified the customer of the amount of consideration for the supply that has been written off.

The customer shall reduce the recoverable input tax for the current tax period related to a supply received during any previous tax period where the consideration has not been paid and all the following conditions are met:

- The supplier reduced the output tax by way of an adjustment for bad debts and the customer has received a notification from the supplier of the consideration being written off
- The customer received the goods and services and the relevant input tax was deducted
- The consideration was not paid in full or in part for the supply for over six months

The reduction shall be equal to the VAT related to the consideration which has been written off.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used in the course of carrying the taxable person's economic activity.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

The federal tax authority may refund VAT paid for any supply received by or import carried out by any of the following:

- A citizen of the UAE in respect of the goods and services related to the construction of a new residence that is not part of the person's business
- A nonresident, who is not a resident of a GCC Member State and conducts a business, and is not a taxable person
- A nonresident, for goods supplied to them in the UAE that will be exported
- Foreign governments, international organizations, diplomatic bodies and missions according to treaties that the UAE is a party to
- Any persons or classes listed in a cabinet decision issued at the suggestion of the minister

Designated persons. The federal tax authority may allow certain persons to apply for a refund of VAT paid by them on supplies of goods or services received in the UAE. These persons include (officials of) foreign governments, international organizations, diplomatic bodies and missions. A claim may be submitted to the federal tax authority requesting a repayment of the VAT incurred.

This mechanism is subject to the following conditions:

- The goods and services are for official use.
- The country in which the person is established excludes the same type of entities from the burden of any VAT in that country, i.e., reciprocity.
- The refund claim is consistent with the terms of any international treaty or other agreement concerning the liability to tax of such persons.
- Officials of the person should not hold UAE nationality nor have a residence visa under the sponsorship of an entity other the person.
- The person should not carry out any business in the UAE.

At the time of preparing this chapter, this mechanism has not been set up by the federal tax authority.

Designated charities. The federal tax authority may allow certain charities to apply for a refund of VAT paid by them on supplies of goods or services received in the UAE, to the extent that the VAT paid does not relate to onward exempt supplies made or those expenses are not blocked from input tax recovery.

Refund of VAT to taxable persons in other GCC Member States. Persons who are registered for VAT in another GCC Member State may submit an application for refund of VAT incurred in the UAE in accordance with the mechanism agreed between the GCC Member States. At the time of preparing this chapter, the mechanism is not yet available.

Refund of VAT to taxable persons nonresident in the GCC Territory. The federal tax authority has implemented a business VAT refund scheme for foreign businesses to allow the repayment of VAT on expenses incurred in the UAE by a foreign entity which has no place of establishment or fixed establishment in the UAE or in an implementing GCC Member State and is not taxable in the UAE. The foreign entity must be registered as an establishment with a competent tax authority in the jurisdiction in which it is established. The federal tax authority has further provided a list of countries eligible for VAT refunds for business visitors with reciprocal agreements. At the time of preparing this chapter, 25 countries are included in the list.

A foreign entity is not entitled to make a claim under the VAT refunds for foreign businesses scheme in the following cases:
• If it makes supplies that have a place of supply in the UAE or implementing GCC State, unless the recipient of the goods or services is obliged to account for VAT on those supplies through the reverse-charge mechanism
• If the input tax relates to goods or services for which the VAT is not recoverable
• If the foreign entity is from a country that does not in similar circumstances provide refunds of VAT to entities that belong to the UAE (per the above, the federal tax authority has specified a list of countries it considers eligible)

The claim for any refund shall be made on an electronic form as will be provided for the purpose by the federal tax authority. The period of the claim shall be 12 calendar months. The minimum claim amount of VAT that may be submitted under the VAT refunds for foreign businesses scheme shall be AED2,000. This may comprise single or multiple purchases.

For claims in respect of the 2019 calendar year, refund applications can be made from 1 March 2020. The federal tax authority will only process refund applications for six months from the date the business can first make a claim, i.e., from 1 March 2020. Note: the condition that the period of claim shall be one calendar year does not apply in the case of residents in any GCC State that is not considered to be an implementing state.

Refund of VAT to tourists. The cabinet issued a decision in July 2018 that introduced the tax refunds for tourists scheme. The decision specified the following:
• The goods are purchased from a retailer who is participating in the scheme.
• The purchase of the goods from the retailer is conducted in accordance with requirements as determined in a decision issued by the chairman.
• The export of goods is conducted in accordance with requirements as determined in a decision issued by the chairman.
• The goods are not excluded from the scheme by the authority.

The following conditions shall apply to the tax refunds for tourists' scheme:
• The goods that are subject to the tax refunds for tourists scheme must be supplied to an overseas tourist who is in the UAE during the purchase of the goods from the supplier
• At the date of supply, the overseas tourist intends to depart from the UAE within 90 days from that date, accompanied by the goods
• The relevant goods are exported by the overseas tourist to a place outside the implementing states in the GCC, within three months from the date of supply, subject to such conditions and verifications as may be imposed by the federal tax authority

The phrase "overseas tourist" means any natural person who is not resident in any of the implementing states in the GCC and who is not a crew member on a flight or aircraft leaving an implementing state. The federal tax authority may publish a list of goods that shall not be subject to tax refunds for tourists' scheme. Hence residents of other GCC countries will be treated as "overseas tourists" until their country of residence is recognized by the UAE as an implementing state. VAT shall not be refunded under the scheme in respect of any claim where the value of tax inclusive purchases is less than AED250 from the same supplier.

The authority may charge an administrative fee amounting to 15% of the amount of VAT to be refunded to the overseas tourist as well as a fixed fee of AED4.8 per refund claim. These fees are deducted from the refundable amount. The cash VAT refund is limited to a maximum of AED10,000 per overseas tourist per 24 hours.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. The supplier of taxable goods and services must issue a tax invoice or a similar document either upon partial or full receipt of the goods and services, and also for deemed supplies. This can be in the form of a printed copy or in an electronic format.

The supplier must issue a tax invoice within 14 days as of the date of supply, as per the tax point rules.

Where the VAT chargeable on a supply is calculated to a fraction of a fils, the taxable person is permitted to round the amount to the nearest fils on a mathematical rounding.

If there are or will be sufficient records available to establish the particulars of a supply, a taxable person is not required to issue a VAT invoice for the supply, where the supply is a wholly zero-rated supply.

Credit notes. A VAT credit note may be used to reduce the VAT charged and claimed on a supply, and also for deemed supplies.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is allowed in the UAE. A taxable person may issue a VAT invoice and VAT credit note by electronic means provided that:
- The taxable person must be capable of securely storing a copy of the electronic VAT invoice or VAT credit note in compliance with the record keeping requirements.
- The authenticity of origin and integrity of content of the electronic VAT invoice or VAT credit note must be guaranteed.

Electronic invoicing is not mandatory for all taxable persons, however, they may choose to raise electronic invoices if the above conditions are satisfied.

Simplified VAT invoices. A simplified VAT invoice may be issued in either of the following situations:
- Where the recipient of goods or services is not VAT registered
- Where the recipient of goods or services is VAT registered and the consideration for the supply does not exceed AED10,000

The federal tax authority may at its discretion grant an exception to standard rules applicable to VAT invoices, VAT credit notes, length of tax period, VAT staggers and standard time period for export of goods from the UAE. The federal tax authority considers requests for an exception on a case-by-case basis, depending on each applicant's individual circumstances.

Third party. Where an agent who is VAT registered, makes a supply of goods and services for and on behalf of the principal of that agent, that agent may issue a VAT invoice in relation to that supply as if that agent had made the supply, and provided that the principal shall not issue a VAT invoice. The same rules apply for an agent issuing a VAT credit note.

Summary invoices. A taxable person does not need to issue separate VAT invoices in respect of supplies where it makes more than one supply of goods or services to the same person and those supplies are included on a summary VAT invoice. The summary VAT invoice must be issued to the recipient of the goods or services, in the same calendar month as the date of supply of the goods and services supplied.

Self-billing. Where a recipient agreed to raise a VAT invoice on behalf of a VAT registered supplier, in respect of a supply of goods or services, that document shall be treated as if it had been issued by the supplier if the following conditions are met:

- The recipient of the goods or services is VAT registered
- The supplier and the recipient agree in writing that the supplier shall not issue a VAT invoice in respect of any supply between the parties
- The VAT invoice shall contain the full VAT invoicing requirements (as outlined above)
- The words "tax invoice raised by buyer" are clearly displayed on the same calendar month as VAT invoice

Under self-billing, any invoice issued by the supplier shall be deemed to not be a VAT invoice. The same rules above apply for issuing VAT credit notes.

Proof of exports and intra-GCC supplies. Where a taxable person makes a supply of goods from the UAE to a person who has a place of residence in an implementing GCC Member State, and the supply requires the goods to be physically moved to that other GCC Member State, the taxable person shall retain official and commercial evidence of export of those goods to that other GCC Member State.

Where a supply of the goods and goods or services is considered as supplied in another implementing state in the GCC, the taxable person must include the following additional particulars in the document issued:

- The VAT registration number of the recipient of the goods or services issued to them by the competent authority of the implementing state, in which the supply is treated as taking place
- A statement identifying the supply between the UAE and the implementing state
- Any other information specified by the federal tax authority

At the time of preparing this chapter, the respective tax authorities of the UAE, Bahrain and Saudi Arabia are not treating each other as implementing states.

Foreign currency invoices. Tax invoices must be issued in UAE Dirham (AED). If the supply is made in a currency other than AED, the amount stated on the tax invoice must be converted into AED according to the exchange rate approved by the central bank at the date of the supply.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. In the UAE, a taxable person is not required to provide a full tax invoice for goods and services where the recipient is not registered. Simplified VAT invoice provisions exist, with the requirements as outlined above in the "Simplified VAT invoices" section.

Records. The records of all goods and services supplied by a taxable person or on its behalf, showing the goods and services, suppliers and their agents, shall be kept and retained in sufficient detail to enable the federal tax authority to readily identify goods and services, suppliers and agents.

A taxable person who makes a taxable supply of goods or services in the UAE must keep records of the transaction to prove the Emirate in which the fixed establishment related to the supply is located. If the taxable person who makes a taxable supply of goods or services does not have a fixed establishment in the UAE, the taxable person must keep records of the transaction to prove the Emirate in which the supply is received.

A taxable person must keep the following records:

- Records of all supplies and imports of goods and services
- All tax invoices and alternative documents related to receiving goods or services
- All tax credit notes and alternative documents received

- All tax invoices and alternative documents issued
- All tax credit notes and alternative documents issued
- Records of goods and services that have been disposed of or used for matters not related to business, showing taxes paid for the same
- Records of goods and services purchased and for which the input tax was not deducted
- Records of exported goods and services
- Records of adjustments or corrections made to accounts or tax invoices
- Records of any taxable supplies made or received in respect of the reverse-charge mechanism, including any declarations provided or received in respect of those taxable supplies
- A tax record that includes the following information:
  - VAT due on taxable supplies
  - VAT due on taxable supplies pursuant to the reverse charge mechanism
  - VAT due after the error correction or adjustment
  - Recoverable VAT for supplies or imports
  - Recoverable VAT after the error correction or adjustment

Record retention period. The taxable person must hold and maintain these records for a period of five years after the end of the tax period to which they relate, or the concerned document was created, in the case of nontaxable persons. This period is extended to 15 years for records relating to real estate.

Electronic archiving. VAT records may be archived electronically in any location, provided that the authenticity, integrity and legibility of the content of source documents (invoice data) is protected and any records can be produced in a readable form (within a reasonable period of time) upon request by the federal tax authority.

I. VAT returns and payment

Periodic returns. A tax return must be received by the federal tax authority no later than the 28th day following the end of the tax period concerned, or by such other date as directed by the federal tax authority.

A person whose registration has been canceled must provide a final VAT return for the last tax period for which it was registered.

The standard tax period is three calendar months (i.e., quarterly) ending on the date that the federal tax authority determines.

The federal tax authority may assign a taxable person a shorter or longer time period where it considers that a nonstandard tax period length is necessary or beneficial to:
- Reduce the risk of tax evasion
- Enable the federal tax authority to improve the monitoring of compliance or collection of tax revenues
- Reduce the administrative burden on the federal tax authority or the compliance burden on a taxable person

Where a taxable person is assigned the standard tax period, it may request that the tax period ends with the month as requested by them, and the federal tax authority may accept such request at its discretion.

The four staggers of tax periods and tax years are as follows:
- 31 January, where the tax period ends 31 January and quarterly thereafter (stagger group 1)
- Last day of February, where the tax period ends last day of February and quarterly thereafter (stagger group 2)
- 31 March, where the tax period ends 31 March and quarterly thereafter (stagger group 3)

- Last day of the calendar year, where the tax period ends on 31 January and monthly thereafter (stagger group 4)

As part of the administrative exceptions, businesses in constant refund position, as well as small and medium enterprises making taxable supplies equal to or less than AED5 million per 12-month period, may apply to change the length of the tax period to 6 months.

At the time of preparing this chapter, it is expected that the VAT return format will be updated to include reporting for intra-GCC supplies, once each of the GCC states recognize each other as GCC VAT implementation Member States.

Periodic payments. Payment of UAE VAT due by a taxable person in respect of a tax period must be made at the latest by the 28th day of the month following the end of that tax period. The person making the payment must provide details of the tax registration number of the taxable person and the tax period or tax periods to which the period relates.

Payment can be made by several means, including:
- Visa/Mastercard bank transfer: there is a cap of AED50,000 per payment; there may, however, be other associated fees levied by the bank.
- E-dirham: a payment system used to pay VAT, as well as other federal-level services. E-direct is the online service that allows a taxable person to transfer funds to their e-dirham account from their existing bank account.
- Bank transfer: electronic fund payments can also be made to the tax authority using the taxable person's GIBAN, which is a unique IBAN number allocated to every taxable person.

Where any relevant VAT amount is expressed in a currency other than AED, the amount must be converted to AED using the daily rate prescribed by the central bank on the date that the relevant VAT amount becomes due.

At the time of preparing this chapter, these are the payment options and more may become available in the future.

Electronic filing. Taxable persons are required to submit their VAT returns online on the federal tax authority's portal and pay any VAT due electronically (see below subsection).

Taxable persons shall keep appropriate accounting records and commercial books for UAE tax purposes, including:
- Records of payments, receipts, purchases, sales, revenue and expenditure
- Balance sheets and profit and loss accounts
- Records of wages and salaries
- Records of fixed assets and inventory

The taxable person must hold and maintain these records for a period of five years after the end of the tax period to which they relate, or the concerned document was created, in the case of nontaxable persons. This period is extended to 15 years for records relating to real estate.

VAT records may be archived electronically in any location, provided that the authenticity, integrity and legibility of the content of source documents (invoice data) is protected and any records can be produced in a readable form (within a reasonable period of time) upon request by the federal tax authority.

VAT return data, records and documents can be submitted to the federal tax authority in English, except for where the federal tax authority specifically states that it will accept the information submitted by the taxable person to be in Arabic. This decision is at the discretion of the federal tax authority and, it may request that some or all of the information is translated into Arabic.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in the UAE.

Special schemes.

Profit margin scheme. A taxable person may calculate VAT on any supply of goods by reference to the profit margin scheme in the following situation:
- Where it has made a supply of the following types of goods, which have been subject to VAT before the supply takes place:
  - Second hand goods, meaning tangible movable property that is suitable for further use as it is or after repaid
  - Antiques, meaning goods that are over 50 years old
  - Collectors' items, meaning stamps, coins and currency and other pieces of scientific, historical or archaeological interest
- The goods (as outlined above) were purchased from either:
  - A person who is not VAT registered
  - A taxable person who calculated the VAT on the supply by reference to the profit margin

The profit margin is the difference between the purchase price of the goods and the selling price of the goods, and the profit margin shall be deemed to be inclusive of VAT.

A taxable person may not elect to calculate VAT on the profit margin in respect of the goods (as outlined above) if a VAT invoice or other document is issued for the supply, mentioning an amount of VAT chargeable on the supply.

Where a taxable person has charged VAT in respect of a supply under the profit margin scheme, the taxable person shall issue a VAT invoice that clearly states that the VAT was charged with reference to the profit margin, in addition to all other information required to be stated in a VAT invoice except the amount of VAT.

The taxable person must keep the following records in respect of supplies made under the profit margin scheme:
- A stock book or similar record showing the details of each good purchased and sold under the profit margin scheme.
- Purchase invoices showing details of the goods purchased under the profit margin scheme. Where the goods are purchased from non-VAT registered persons, the taxable person must issue an invoice showing details of the goods itself, including at least the following information:
  - The name, address and VAT registration number of the taxable person
  - The name and address of the person selling the good
  - The date of the purchase
  - Details of the goods purchased
  - The consideration payable in respect of the goods
  - Signature of the person selling the good or authorised signatory

Annual returns. Annual VAT returns are not required to be filed in the UAE.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in the UAE.

Digital reporting. Taxable persons are required to submit their VAT returns online on the federal tax authority's portal and pay any VAT due electronically.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. Any taxable person who has not applied for VAT registration within the set time frame shall be fined AED20,000.

Penalties for late payment and filings. If a taxable person fails to pay the VAT due within the prescribed time frame, e.g., within 28 days from the end of the taxable person's tax period, the following late payment penalty is levied:

- 2% of the unpaid tax is immediately levied when the payment is not received by the federal tax authority on the due date.
- 4% of the unpaid tax is levied on the seventh day following the tax due date.
- 1% daily penalty is applied to any unpaid amount that is still outstanding one calendar month following the tax due date. (This penalty is capped at 300%.)

The federal tax authority may impose a VAT assessment on a taxable person irrespective of a VAT return filed by the taxable person. The federal tax authority may make a new VAT assessment to amend a previous assessment made by it. The federal tax authority must notify the taxable person of a VAT assessment within five business days.

The federal tax authority may not issue or amend an assessment in respect of any tax period, after a period of five years after the end of the tax period to which the assessment relates.

In cases where any transaction is being carried out with the intention of breaching the provisions of the UAE VAT law and regulations, or in cases where a person is required to register but fails to do so, the federal tax authority may issue or amend assessments up to a period of 15 years after the end of the tax period to which the assessment relates.

Penalties for errors. If a taxable person recognizes an error in an already submitted VAT return, it has 20 days to notify the federal tax authority of the error by submitting a correction form. If the error results in a discrepancy of VAT owed under AED10,000, the correction can be made by adjusting the net VAT on the business's next VAT return.

Any taxable person who carries out the following:

- Files an incorrect VAT return to the federal tax authority
- Amends a VAT return after filing, or files any document with the federal tax authority due by them which results in an error and, hence, in an amount that is less than the VAT due, shall be liable for both a:
  - Fixed penalty: AED3,000 for the first time and AED5,000 for subsequent voluntary disclosures
  - Percentage based penalty based on the amount unpaid due to the error and resulting tax benefit:
    - 50% if the voluntary disclosure is made after the federal tax authority notifies the taxable person of the tax audit, the federal tax authority starting the tax audit or after being asked for information relating to the tax audit, whichever takes place first
    - 30% if the taxable person makes the voluntary disclosure after being notified of the tax audit but before the start of the tax audit
    - 5% if the taxable person makes the voluntary disclosure before being notified of the tax audit by the authority

A taxable person must notify the federal tax authority within 20 days of becoming aware of an error or incorrect amount, by submitting a voluntary disclosure. This notification must be given if the taxable person becomes aware of an error or an incorrect amount in a filed VAT return, or becomes aware of such facts which should have led him to be aware of such error or incorrect amount, which has resulted in the amount of VAT payable to the federal tax authority being understated and that amount of net tax payable is more than AED10,000.

In cases where a taxable person becomes aware of an error or an incorrect amount in a filed VAT return which has resulted in the amount of VAT payable to the federal tax authority being overstated, the taxable person may correct that error at any time, by submitting a voluntary disclosure.

Subject to the above, if the understatement of net VAT by the taxable person is less than AED10,000, the taxable person may correct that error by adjusting the net VAT in its next VAT return. If there is no VAT return through which the error can be corrected, the taxable person must instead make a voluntary disclosure.

No correction to any VAT return relating to an overstatement of VAT in respect of a tax period may be made after a period of five years has passed from the end of the calendar year in which the tax period takes place. In the case of an understated amount of VAT payable or an overstated amount of VAT refundable, two penalties may apply:

- Fixed penalty: AED3,000 for the first time and AED5,000 for subsequent voluntary disclosures
- Percentage based penalty based on the amount unpaid due to the error and resulting tax benefit:
  - 50% if the voluntary disclosure is made after the federal tax authority notifies the taxable person of the tax audit, the federal tax authority starting the tax audit or after being asked for information relating to the tax audit, whichever takes place first
  - 30% if the taxable person makes the voluntary disclosure after being notified of the tax audit but before the start of the tax audit; 5% if the taxable person makes the voluntary disclosure before being notified of the tax audit by the authority

A taxable person who fails to issue a tax invoice or alternative document, as appropriate, shall be liable for a fine of AED5,000 for each tax invoice or alternative document.

A fine of AED20,000 shall be imposed on any taxable person that:

- Fails to submit data, records and documents related to UAE VAT in Arabic to the tax authority when requested
- Prevents or obstructs the employees of the tax authority or any one working for the tax authority from performing their duties

Where the taxable person has failed to comply with the conditions and procedures regarding the issuance of electronic tax invoices and electronic tax credit notes, they shall be liable for a separate fine of AED5,000 per document.

Penalties for fraud. Tax evasion shall be punishable by a prison sentence and/or a fine not exceeding five times the amount of VAT evaded. By way of example, the following would be classified as tax evasion for UAE VAT purposes:

- A taxable person who deliberately understates the actual value of its business or fails to consolidate its related businesses with the intent of remaining below the required registration threshold
- A person who charges and collects amounts from its clients claiming them to be tax without being registered
- A person who deliberately provides false information and data and incorrect documents to the authority
- A person who prevents or hinders the authority's employees from performing their duties
- A person who deliberately decreases the payable tax through tax evasion or conspiring to evade tax

The imposition of fines shall not prejudice the payment of any tax due and the application of any other penalty stipulated by any other UAE law. In cases where any transaction is being carried out with the intention of breaching the provisions of the UAE VAT law and regulations, or in cases where a person is required to register but fails to do so, the federal tax authority may issue or amend assessments up to a period of 15 years after the end of the tax period to which the assessment relates.

Other penalties. The federal tax authority shall issue an administrative penalty assessment to the taxable person, and notify the taxable person within five business days, as of the date of issuance in any of the following cases:

- Failure by the taxable person to display prices inclusive of VAT (AED15,000)
- Failure by the taxable person to notify the authority of applying VAT based on the profit margin (AED2,500)

- Failure to comply with the conditions and procedures related to keeping goods in a designated zone or moving them to another designated zone (penalty is the higher of AED50,000 or 50% of the tax chargeable in respect of the goods as a result of the violation)
- Failure by the taxable person to issue a tax invoice or an alternative document when making any supply (AED5,000 for each tax invoice or alternative documents)
- Failure by the taxable person to issue a tax credit note or an alternative document (AED5,000 for each tax credit note or alternative documents)
- Failure by the taxable person to comply with the conditions and procedures regarding the issuance of electronic tax invoices and electronic tax credit notes (AED5,000 for each incorrect document)
- Failure by the taxable person conducting business to keep required records (AED10,000 for first offense, AED50,000 in case of repetition)
- Failure by the taxable person submit records in Arabic when requested by the federal tax authority (AED20,000)

If it is proven that a person who is not VAT registered acquires goods (crude or refined oil, unprocessed or processed natural gas, or any hydrocarbons, or gold or diamonds), claiming that they are VAT registered for the purposes of the reverse charge, he shall be considered as having committed tax evasion and shall be subject to penalties.

K. Transitional provisions

Time of supply and charging VAT. If the supplier receives consideration or part thereof or issues an invoice for goods or services before the VAT law comes into effect, the date of supply shall be the same as the effective date of the VAT law (only in respect of the amounts of consideration received or specified in the invoice issued before the VAT law came into effect), in the following instances, if they occur after the effective date of the VAT law:

- Transfer of goods under the supervision of the supplier
- Placing the goods at the recipient's disposal
- Completion of assembly or installation of the goods
- Issuance of the customs declaration
- Acceptance by the recipient of goods of the supply
  - This means the point at which the recipient of goods considers that the supplier has completed its obligations to them

For contracts that have been concluded before the effective date of the VAT law but the supply under the contract is wholly or partly made after the effective date of this VAT law, the following rules apply:

- A supply shall be considered to have taken place in accordance with the general time of supply rules (see above Section E. Time of supply) and special time of supply rules for continuous services, payment made through vending machines, deemed supplies and supply of vouchers (again see the above Section E. Time of supply). Where the date of supply has been triggered in respect of a supply of good or a service and the part of the supply of such good or service was before the VAT law coming into effect and partly after, the date of supply shall be treated as taking place after the VAT law has come into effect, for that part of the supply actually taking place after that date.
- A payment of consideration before the date the VAT law comes into effect, shall be disregarded in determining whether a supply takes place before that date if, or to the extent that, it appears to the federal tax authority that it would not have been so made but for the VAT.
- Consideration shall be treated as exclusive of VAT and the recipient of goods or services shall be obliged to pay the VAT in addition to the consideration if all of the following conditions are met:
  - Where the recipient of goods or services is registered for VAT

— Where the recipient of goods or services has the right to recover input tax incurred on the supply, either in full or in part

• The above only applies if before the date the VAT law comes into effect, the supplier requests from the recipient of goods or services to confirm the following:
— Whether the recipient of goods or services is or expects to be registered for VAT at the time that the VAT law comes into effect
— The extent to which the recipient of goods or services expects to be able to recover VAT incurred on the supply

Within 20 business days of receiving an information request under the above rule, the recipient of goods or services shall reply to the supplier in writing with the information requested. The supplier may rely on the information provided from the recipient of goods or services, in determining the tax treatment of the supply. If the customer knowingly provides incorrect information that results in the supplier having to treat the consideration inclusive of VAT, then the customer shall not be entitled to reclaim the input tax on that supply. Where the customer has failed to provide the information as requested by the supplier, then the supplier may treat the consideration in respect of the supply as exclusive of VAT, and request the customer to pay the VAT. The supplier and customer must both retain the records of the request and the information provided.

Where a taxable supply is treated as periodically or successively supplied, VAT shall not be charged on the portion of the consideration that relates to a supply made before the date the VAT law comes into effect.

If a contract has been concluded prior to the enforcement of the VAT law regarding the supply to be wholly or partly made after the effective date of the VAT law, but the contract does not contain any clauses related to VAT, it shall be treated as per the following:
• The consideration shall be considered inclusive of VAT (if chargeable)
• VAT shall be calculated on the supply and remitted regardless of whether it has been taken into account when determining the consideration for the supply

Implementation of VAT in other GCC Member States. A GCC Member State shall be treated as an implementing state according to the provisions of the Decree-Law if the following conditions are met:
• Where the GCC Member State treats the UAE similarly as an implementing state in its published legislation
• Full compliance with the provisions of the Common VAT Agreement of the States in the GCC

At the time of preparing this chapter, the respective tax authorities of the UAE, Bahrain and Saudi Arabia are not treating each other as implementing states during the transition period.

Electronic services system in all GCC Member States. Prior to the introduction of the electronic services system in all GCC Member States:
• A taxable person who receives goods into the UAE (excluding the designated zones) from another GCC Member State shall be deemed to have imported the goods into the UAE and VAT will be collected in accordance with the provisions for other imports.
• Supplies of goods involving transport of the goods from the UAE to another GCC Member State shall be treated as an export of the goods for VAT purposes.

The date of introduction of the electronic services system will be formally announced by the federal tax authority by way of an order issued by the federal tax authority.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- The supply of goods or services made in the United Kingdom (UK) by a taxable person
- The intra-Community acquisition of goods from another EU Member State by a taxable person (see the chapter on the EU)

- Reverse-charge services received by a taxable person in the UK
- The importation of goods from outside the EU, regardless of the status of the importer

For VAT purposes, the UK consists of Great Britain, the Isle of Man and Northern Ireland. It does not include the Channel Islands or Gibraltar.

At the time of preparing this chapter, the UK is due to leave the European Union on 31 January 2020. After this date (subject to any transitional period), the UK will no longer be required to harmonize its VAT legislation with the EU VAT system (although it is possible that Northern Ireland will have to follow different rules in respect of the EU VAT rules in relation to goods depending on any deal negotiated). However, the UK VAT system is expected to continue largely as before and CJEU case law should continue to apply where the UK legislation remains the same, and in any case will remain persuasive. Importantly, the UK will become a third country in relation to the remaining EU 27 Member States and will therefore no longer have the concepts of acquisitions and dispatches. Subject to any agreements made with the EU, goods leaving and entering the UK will be treated as imports and exports and customs and excise duties and import VAT may apply. Further details are expected to be published over the coming months.

C. Who is liable

A “taxable person” is any entity or person that is required to be registered for VAT. The term includes any entity or individual that makes taxable supplies of goods or services, intra-Community acquisitions or distance sales in the UK in the course of a business in excess of the relevant turnover thresholds.

The VAT registration threshold is GBP85,000; the threshold will remain at this level until 31 March 2022. This VAT registration threshold only applies to businesses established in the UK. A nil registration threshold applies to businesses not established in the UK. As a result, any non-established business that makes a taxable supply (not covered by an existing VAT simplification) in the UK is required to register for VAT, regardless of the value of the supply. Non-established businesses involved only in distance sales of goods to UK residents who are not taxable persons (see the chapter on the EU) are subject to the distance selling threshold (GBP70,000); this threshold is set by EU law and does not generally increase from year to year. The distance selling rules may be affected by Brexit.

Exemption from registration. A taxable person whose turnover is wholly or primarily zero-rated (see Section D) may request exemption from registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. A business may register for VAT voluntarily if its taxable turnover is below the VAT registration threshold. A business may also register for VAT voluntarily in advance of making taxable supplies. In this case, the business needs to demonstrate to the UK VAT authorities it has the firm intention to make taxable supplies.

Group registration. Corporate bodies and certain noncorporate entities (such as partnerships and individuals) that are under “common control” and are established or have a fixed establishment in the UK may apply to register as a VAT group.

A VAT group is treated as a single taxable person. The group members share a single VAT number and submit a single VAT return. No VAT is charged on supplies made between group members. Group members are jointly and severally liable for all VAT liabilities.

Non-established businesses. A “non-established business” is a business that does not have a fixed establishment in the UK. A non-established business must register for VAT if it makes any of the following taxable supplies in the UK, regardless of the value of the supply:
- Goods located in the UK at the time of supply
- Services to which the reverse charge (see Reverse charge) does not apply

- Supplies of telecommunications, broadcasting and electronic services (digital services) to non-VAT taxable customers in the UK (see Digital economy)

EU businesses not established in the UK must also register for VAT if they make distance sales in the UK in excess of the distance selling annual threshold.

A non-established business that registers for VAT may normally do so from its place of business outside the UK. If not registering online, the application form (VAT 1) must be sent to the following address:

Non-Established Taxable Persons Unit
Registration Team
HM Revenue & Customs
Crown House
Birch Street
Wolverhampton WV1 4JX
England
Telephone: +44 3000 521 261
Email: vrs.netpu@hmrc.gsi.gov.uk

Tax representatives. A non-established business may choose to appoint a tax representative or agent to act on its behalf in relation to UK VAT matters.

The UK VAT authorities may require that a non-established person appoint a tax representative. However, this condition may be imposed only if the business is established in a country outside the EU that has not agreed on mutual assistance provisions with the UK.

Reverse charge. If a non-established business supplies services to a UK taxable person but does not register for VAT, the taxable person may be required to account for the VAT due under reverse-charge accounting. This means that the taxable person charges itself VAT. The self-assessed VAT may be deducted as input tax (that is, VAT on allowable purchases) depending on the taxable person's partial exemption status (see Section F). This measure does not apply in all circumstances. For example, it applies only if the place of supply of the services is in the UK.

Domestic reverse charge.

Telecommunication services. Effective 1 February 2016, purchasers of wholesale supplies of telecommunication services are required to account for VAT under a domestic reverse-charge accounting procedure rather than paying VAT to the supplier. The domestic reverse charge does not apply to supplies made to a member of a corporate group for onward supply within that corporate group, and where the corporate group members consume that supply. When making a supply to which the domestic reverse charge applies, the supplier must show all the information normally required to be shown on a VAT invoice. The supplier must also annotate the invoice to make it clear that the domestic reverse charge applies, and the customer is required to account for the VAT. No additional notification or reporting requirements apply to these transactions.

Mobile phones and computer chips. Purchasers of certain designated goods (broadly, mobile phones and computer chips) to account for the VAT due under a domestic reverse-charge accounting procedure, rather than paying the VAT to the supplier. The domestic reverse charge applies for supplies in excess of GBP5,000 (exclusive of VAT). When making a domestic sale to which reverse-charge accounting applies, the supplier must show all the information normally required to be shown on a VAT invoice. The supplier must also annotate the invoice to make it clear that the reverse charge applies and that the customer is required to account for the VAT. Additional notification and reporting requirements also apply to these transactions.

Emissions allowances. Purchasers of specified emissions allowances must account for VAT under a domestic reverse-charge accounting procedure, rather than paying VAT to the supplier. When making a domestic sale of emissions allowances to which reverse-charge accounting applies, the supplier must show all the information normally required to be shown on a VAT invoice. The supplier must also annotate the invoice to make it clear that the reverse charge applies and that the customer is required to account for the VAT. No additional notification or reporting requirements apply to these transactions.

Gas and electricity. Purchasers of wholesale supplies of gas and electricity are required to account for VAT under a domestic reverse-charge accounting procedure, rather than paying VAT to the supplier. The domestic reverse charge does not apply to supplies of gas and electricity made under supply license or metered arrangements to residential and business premises (supplies for consumption). VAT-registered businesses that do not resell or trade the gas or electricity are not affected. When making a supply to which domestic reverse-charge accounting applies, the supplier must show all the information normally required to be shown on a VAT invoice. The supplier must also annotate the invoice to make it clear that the domestic reverse charge applies and that the customer is required to account for the VAT. No additional notification or reporting requirements apply to these transactions.

Domestic B2B supplies of construction services. From 1 October 2020, a domestic reverse charge will be introduced in the construction industry. The domestic reverse charge will only affect standard (20%) or reduced rate (5%) supplies where payments are required to be reported through the Construction Industry Scheme (CIS). Therefore, supplies between subcontractors and contractors (i.e., business-to-business (B2B) supply), as defined by the CIS, will be subject to the reverse charge unless they are supplied to a contractor who is an end user.

Digital economy. EU VAT place of supply rules apply to business-to-consumer (B2C) supplies (i.e., supplies to non-VAT-taxable customers) of digital services. Supplies of digital services to EU consumers are subject to VAT in the Member State where the customer belongs. Thus, where the customer belongs in the UK, UK VAT will be due.

Any taxpayers making B2C supplies of digital services are required to register for VAT in each EU Member State where they have customers or register for the Mini One-Stop Shop (see Mini One-Stop Shop subsection below).

Mini One-Stop Shop. The Mini One-Stop Shop (MOSS) gives taxpayers making B2C supplies of digital services the simplified option of registering in one EU Member State from which they can submit VAT returns and pay the VAT due in all Member States. Otherwise, they will have to register for VAT separately in each EU Member State where they have customers. The MOSS is available to taxable persons which are established in the EU (the Union scheme), as well as taxable persons which are not established within the EU (the non-Union scheme). Businesses established in the UK making B2C supplies of digital services to EU consumers can register in the UK for the Union MOSS scheme. Similarly, businesses established outside the EU making B2C supplies of digital services to EU consumers can choose to register in the UK for the non-Union MOSS scheme. The use of MOSS will be impacted by Brexit.

Taxpayers can register online for the MOSS in the UK via the UK VAT authorities' website at https://online.hmrc.gov.uk/registration/organisation/moss/introduction. The UK VAT authorities normally send an email within five working days of receipt of a completed electronic registration request. This will direct taxpayers to a secure communications portal where they can view their VAT identification number and Registration Certificate. VAT identification numbers for the non-Union MOSS scheme have their own unique format beginning with the prefix "EU," followed by a nine-digit number. These are different from UK VAT registration numbers issued under the normal rules. However, if a taxpayer is registered for VAT in the UK, it will use its existing VAT number.

Electronic declarations are due for each calendar quarter (31 March, 30 June, 30 September and 31 December) and should be submitted with full electronic payment of the tax due within 20 days of the end of each quarter. The UK VAT authorities will then send the appropriate information and payment to the VAT authorities of each relevant EU Member State. Late declarations or payments may render taxpayers liable to penalties. For each EU Member State in which a taxpayer has made B2C supplies of digital services, the declaration must state the total value of all supplies in the period (excluding VAT) and the standard or reduced VAT rate which applies in the customer's Member State. The amount of VAT payable in each Member State and the total amount of the declaration will be calculated automatically.

Taxpayers registered for the MOSS in the UK are required to submit declarations and payments in GBP. Conversions from other currencies into GBP must be made using the exchange rates published by the European Central Bank for the last day of the tax period to which the declaration relates or, if no such rate is published for that day, for the next day for which such a rate is published. Taxpayers will receive an online acknowledgment confirming that the UK VAT authorities have received their declaration.

Any adjustments that need to be made to a MOSS declaration must be made by making a correction to the original declaration and not by an amendment to any later declarations.

Taxpayers registered for the MOSS should maintain records of their transactions in sufficient detail to enable the VAT authorities in the customer's EU Member State to determine that the VAT declarations and payments made are correct. Such records must be retained for 10 years.

Taxpayers cannot recover VAT on purchases using the MOSS. However, taxpayers may reclaim any VAT paid on goods and services used for taxable activities falling under the MOSS from the EU Member State where that VAT was paid, under the terms of the EU Refund Directives (see Section G).

Following agreement at the EU level and new UK legislation, two changes to the VAT treatment of business to consumer supplies of digital services and the use of the MOSS scheme took effect on 1 January 2019:

- The introduction of a EUR10,000 threshold (GBP8,818 in UK legislation) for total supplies to the EU in a year of sales of digital services. This change means that businesses under this threshold may apply the VAT rules in their home country, rather than in the country where customers are located. Businesses can continue to apply the current rules if they prefer.
- Allow non-EU businesses, which are registered for VAT for other purposes, to use the MOSS scheme to account for VAT on sales of digital services to consumers in EU Member States. This group is currently excluded from using MOSS.

Online marketplaces and platforms. Under these provisions, where an overseas trader who operates through an online marketplace is liable to be registered and account for UK VAT, and they fail to do so, HMRC has powers in place to hold the online marketplace jointly and severally liable for any UK VAT due.

Where an overseas trader who operates through a fulfillment house/online marketplace is liable to be registered and account for UK VAT, and they fail to do so, HMRC has powers in place to hold the online marketplace jointly and severally liable for any UK VAT due. Linked to this, any fulfillment house/online marketplace that offers goods to UK consumers (which are fulfilled from a UK warehouse) must register with HMRC for the Fulfillment House Due Diligence Scheme.

Vouchers. The EU Voucher Directive has been implemented into UK law and aims to make the rules for the tax treatment of vouchers consistent. The new UK rules apply to vouchers issued on or after 1 January 2019 and refers only to single-purpose vouchers (SPV) and multi-purpose vouchers (MPV). A SPV is one where the place of supply of the underlying goods or services is known (i.e., the country in which the supply will take place) and the relevant goods or services have a single liability to VAT (i.e., standard rate, zero rate, reduced rate or exempt) at the time the voucher is issued and transferred (such that the applicable VAT rate is known at the time the voucher is issued/transferred). Both the issue of a SPV, and its subsequent transfer represent a supply of the underlying goods or services, and any VAT payable is due at this time. The consideration is the amount charged for the issue and transfer of the voucher. Any voucher that is not a SPV will be a MPV. With a MPV, at the time the voucher is issued or transferred, the VAT rate of the underlying goods or services is not known (e.g., the place of supply and/or rate of the goods is unknown) and thus the underlying goods or services are only taxed when the voucher is redeemed. The issue or transfer of the voucher is disregarded (i.e., not a supply for UK VAT purposes).

Registration procedures. The UK VAT authorities have introduced an enhanced online service for UK VAT registration (and deregistration) applications and for notifying changes to registration details (such as a change of address). This provides an incentive for businesses to use online services by offering quicker and more accurate processing.

When registering online, a VAT online account (sometimes known as a "Government Gateway account") must be created. Businesses should receive a VAT registration certificate within 30 working days, although it can take longer. Further details on how to register are available on the HMRC website (https://www.gov.uk/vat-registration).

Deregistration. A taxable person that ceases to be eligible for VAT registration must deregister. A taxable person may also request deregistration if its taxable turnover drops below the deregistration threshold (GBP83,000) or if its taxable turnover is wholly or primarily zero-rated (see Section D below). However, deregistration is not compulsory in these circumstances.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 20%
- Reduced rate: 5%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services, unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate, the zero rate or an exemption.

In addition, some supplies are classified as "exempt-with-credit." Exempt-with-credit supplies are known in the UK as zero-rated supplies. This means that no VAT is chargeable, but the supplier may recover related input tax (subject to the usual input tax recovery rules). Exempt-with-credit supplies include services supplied to customers outside the EU.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%
- Books, newspapers and periodicals
- Certain foodstuffs
- Children's clothing and footwear
- Drugs and medicines supplied by prescription
- New housing
- Transport services
- Exports of goods and related services
- Certain international services
- Intra-Community supplies of goods
- Services supplied to customers outside the EU (an exempt-with-credit supply)

Examples of goods and services taxable at 5%

- Fuel and power supplied to domestic users and charities
- Installations of energy-saving materials in residential buildings where the cost of the materials does not exceed 60% of the total cost of installation (where the 60% threshold is exceeded, only the labor cost element qualifies for the reduced rate); installations of energy saving materials in residential accommodation for recipients who are aged 60 or over or receiving certain benefits, for housing associations and where the residential accommodation is a building or part of a building used solely for a "relevant residential purpose." The reduced rate does not apply to the installation of wind turbines and water turbines
  Building materials for certain residential conversions
- Sanitary protection products
- Children's car seats
- Smoking cessation products
- Grant-funded installation of heating appliances and qualifying security goods
- Certain larger holiday caravans
- Small, cable-based passenger transport systems

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Betting and gaming
- Education
- Finance
- Insurance
- Land and buildings (in most cases)
- Postal services (in most cases)
- Human blood products
- Medical services
- Shared service arrangements in circumstances in which two or more organizations (whether businesses or otherwise) with exempt and/or nonbusiness activities join together on a cooperative basis to form a separate, independent entity (a cost-sharing group), to supply themselves with certain services at cost (the VAT cost-sharing exemption applies only in very specific circumstances and does not cover all shared-service arrangements)

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The UK operates an option to tax in respect of land and buildings. However, certain supplies of land and buildings are not affected by an option to tax (generally buildings intended for residential use or a qualifying charitable use).

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point." The "basic" tax point under UK law is the point when the goods are either removed from the supplier's premises or made available to the customer, or when the services are performed.

The basic tax point may be overridden by the creation of what is termed an "actual" tax point. An "actual" tax point occurs in the following circumstances:

- Before the basic tax point: if the supplier issues a VAT invoice or receives payment with respect to a supply, a tax point is created to the extent covered by the invoice or payment (whichever is earlier).
- After the basic tax point: if an invoice is issued within 14 days after the basic tax point, the date of the invoice becomes the tax point. Taxable persons may request permission to extend this 14-day invoicing tax point up to a maximum of 30 days after the basic tax point.

Deposits and prepayments. The receipt of a deposit or prepayment normally creates an actual tax point if the amount is paid in the expectation that it will form part of the total payment for a particular supply. A tax point is created only to the extent of the payment received.

Effective from 1 March 2019, the unfulfilled supplies prepayment rules became effective. The changes mean that all prepayments for goods and services are brought into the scope of VAT where customers have failed to collect what they have paid for and have not received a refund.

Continuous supplies of services. If services are supplied continuously and payment is made periodically, a tax point is created each time a payment is made, or a VAT invoice is issued, whichever occurs earlier.

Goods sent on approval or for sale or return. The tax point for goods sent on approval or sale or return is the earlier of the date on which the goods are accepted by the customer or 12 months after the removal of the goods from the supplier. However, if a VAT invoice is issued before these dates, the invoice creates an actual tax point, up to the amount invoiced.

Reverse-charge services. The tax point for reverse-charge services is governed primarily by when the service is performed, and a distinction is made between single and continuous supplies. For single supplies, the tax point is the earlier of the date of completion of the service or the date of payment for the service. For continuous supplies, the tax point is the end of each billing or payment period (or the date of payment, if earlier). For continuous supplies that are not subject to billing or payment periods, the tax point is 31 December each year unless a payment has been made before that date, in which case the payment creates a tax point.

Leased assets. Under current UK VAT law, operational and finance asset leases are treated as continuous supplies of services (see above), provided that legal title to the goods does not pass to the recipient and there is no express contemplation that title will transfer at some point in the future. Goods supplied on terms which expressly contemplate that title will transfer at some point in the future (e.g., under hire-purchase or conditional sale agreements) are treated in the same way as a normal sale of goods where title passes at the outset. Unless a VAT invoice is issued, the time of supply will be linked to the basic tax point (see above). This means that the full amount of VAT will become payable up front, instead of being due as and when installment payments are made.

Imported goods. The time of supply for imported goods is the date of importation, or the date on which the goods leave a duty suspension regime.

Intra-Community acquisitions. The time of supply for an intra-Community acquisition of goods is the 15th day of the month following the month in which the goods are removed (that is, sent to, or taken away by, the customer). However, if the supplier issues an invoice before this date, the tax point is when the invoice is issued.

Intra-Community supplies of goods. For intra-Community supplies of goods, the time of supply is the earlier of the 15th day of the month following the month in which the goods are removed or the date of issuance of a VAT invoice.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax, which is VAT charged on goods and services supplied to it for business purposes. A taxable person generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax, which is VAT charged on supplies made. Where input tax exceeds output tax in any period, the taxable person will receive a refund.

Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services supplied in the UK, VAT paid on imports of goods into the UK and VAT self-assessed on the intra-Community acquisition of goods and reverse-charge services (see the chapter on the EU).

A valid tax invoice or customs document (C79) must generally accompany a claim for input tax.

Special rules apply to the recovery of input tax on expenditure incurred before registration and after deregistration.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may be recovered only on purchases of goods and services that are used for business purposes (this excludes, for example, goods acquired for private use by an entrepreneur). However, input tax may not be recovered on some items of business expenditure.

The following lists provide some examples of items of expenditure for which input tax is not deductible and examples of items for which input tax is deductible if the expenditure is related to a taxable business use.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Purchase of a car (unless the car is available exclusively for business use)
- 50% of VAT incurred on the rental or lease of a car used for mixed business and private purposes
- Private expenditure
- Business entertainment and hospitality (except if provided to overseas customers)
- Import VAT paid by a taxable person who is not the owner of the relevant goods

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Conferences, exhibitions, training and seminars
- Taxi services
- Restaurant expenses for employees
- Accommodation
- Motoring expenses and fuel for business purposes
- Business use of a home telephone

Partial exemption. Input tax directly related to making exempt supplies is generally not recoverable (subject to above comments regarding "exempt with credit" supplies. If a taxable person makes both exempt and taxable supplies, it may not recover its input tax in full. This situation is referred to as "partial exemption."

A UK taxable person that makes both taxable and exempt supplies may calculate the amount of input tax it may recover in several ways. The standard partial exemption calculation method consists of the following two-stage calculation:

- The first stage identifies the input tax that may be directly allocated to taxable and to exempt supplies. Input tax directly allocated to taxable supplies is deductible, while input tax directly related to exempt supplies is not deductible. Supplies that are exempt with credit are treated as taxable supplies for these purposes.
- The second stage identifies the amount of the remaining input tax (for example, input tax on general business overhead) that may be allocated to taxable supplies and recovered. The amount of recoverable VAT is determined by making a pro rata calculation based on the respective values of taxable and exempt supplies made.

If the standard calculation method gives an unfair or distortive result, a special calculation method may be agreed with the UK VAT authorities. In some cases, the UK VAT authorities may impose the use of a special calculation method.

Capital goods. Capital goods are items of capital expenditure that are used in a business over several years. Input tax is deducted in the VAT year in which the goods are acquired. The amount of input tax deductible depends on the taxable person's partial exemption recovery position in the VAT year of acquisition. However, the amount of input tax recovered for capital goods must then be adjusted over time if the taxable person's partial exemption recovery percentage changes during the adjustment period.

In the UK, the capital goods adjustment scheme applies to the following assets for the number of years indicated:

- Land and buildings and related property expenditure valued at GBP250,000 or more: adjusted over a period of 10 years
- Computer hardware valued at GBP50,000 or more: adjusted over a period of five years
- Ships and aircraft valued at GBP50,000 or more: adjusted over a period of five years

The adjustment is applied each year following the year of acquisition to a fraction of the total input tax incurred (1/10 for land and buildings and 1/5 for computer hardware, ships and aircraft). The adjustment may result in either an increase or a decrease of deductible input tax, depending on whether the ratio of taxable supplies to total supplies made by the business has increased or decreased compared with the year in which the capital goods were originally acquired.

Refunds. If the amount of VAT recoverable exceeds the amount of VAT payable in a period, a refund may be claimed. This is done automatically by submitting the periodic VAT return. A taxable person that receives regular repayments of VAT may request permission to submit monthly returns to improve cash flow.

Pre-registration costs. Where a business buys goods or services before registering for VAT to support its taxable business activities, it can recover the VAT provided that certain conditions are met. In the case of goods, they must remain on hand at the date of registration and must be used in the newly registered business. These goods must also have been bought no more than four years before the date of registering for VAT. Different rules apply to capital goods within the capital goods adjustment scheme (see above). In the case of services, they must have been bought no more than six months before the date of registration.

Write-off of bad debts. Where a business has made supplies to its customers and has not been paid, it can claim relief for the VAT on bad debts provided a number of conditions are met. The main conditions for claiming VAT bad debt relief are that the business must already have accounted for the VAT on the supplies and paid it to the UK VAT authorities, the business must have written off the debt in its VAT accounts, and the debt must have remained unpaid for a period of six months after the date of the supply and the date payment was due, whichever is later.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred in relation to noneconomic activities is not recoverable in the UK.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

The UK refunds VAT incurred by businesses that are neither established nor registered for VAT in the UK. Non-established businesses may reclaim VAT to the same extent as UK VAT-registered businesses. VAT incurred in the Isle of Man may also be refunded through this procedure. For the general VAT refund rules, see the chapter on the EU.

EU businesses. An electronic VAT refund procedure applies across the EU. EU businesses must submit their claims for UK VAT through an electronic interface to their local VAT authorities, rather than directly to the UK VAT authorities.

Refund claims are based on calendar years. Claims must be submitted within nine months after the end of the calendar year in which the VAT is incurred (that is, by 30 September). Claims must be accompanied by the appropriate information (see the chapter on the EU). At the time of preparing this chapter, Brexit may impact the use of this scheme and may affect the deadline for submission of claims. No further guidance has been published However, in the event that the UK leaves the EU with a transitional period in place, it is likely that any changes will be delayed.

Non-EU businesses. For businesses established outside the EU, VAT refunds are made under the terms of the EU 13th Directive. The UK does not generally exclude businesses from any country from eligibility.

For businesses established outside the EU, VAT refunds are based on a "prescribed year" running from 1 July to 30 June. Applications for a VAT refund based on the EU 13th Directive must be submitted within six months after the end of the prescribed year in which the VAT was incurred (that is, before 1 January).

Claims must be submitted in English and must be accompanied by the appropriate documentation (see the chapter on the EU). The minimum claim period is three months, while the maximum claim period is one prescribed year. The minimum claim for a period of less than a year is GBP130. Where a claim covers the full 12 months of the prescribed year, the minimum VAT claim is GBP16.

Applications for refunds of UK VAT must be sent to the following address:

HM Revenue & Customs Compliance Centres
VAT Overseas Repayments Unit S1250
Benton Park View
Newcastle Upon Tyne
NE98 1YX

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A UK taxable person must generally provide a VAT invoice for all taxable supplies made to other taxable persons, including exports and intra-Community supplies (see the chapter on the EU). Invoices are not automatically required for retail transactions, unless requested by the customer. A VAT invoice is required to support a claim for input tax deduction.

Credit notes. A VAT credit note may be used to reduce the amount of VAT charged on a supply. The credit note must reflect a genuine mistake, an overcharge or an agreed reduction in the value of the original supply. A credit note must be issued within one month after the mistake or overcharge is discovered, subject to new rules below. If the customer can reclaim all the tax on the supply as input tax, the original VAT charge does not have to be adjusted, provided both the supplier and customer agree not to do so. Where a credit note is issued, it must refer to the number and date of the original VAT invoice.

From 1 September 2019, where a change in consideration is agreed by a supplier and customer (e.g., faulty goods) after the original date of supply and VAT has been accounted for in an earlier period, the new rules require that a VAT adjustment can only be made where a credit/debit note is issued within 14 days and, in the case of a reduction in consideration, a "payment" has been made. Where a VAT invoice is not required to be issued in the first place (e.g., retail customer), a debit/credit note will not be required. The credit note should also refer to the number and date of the original VAT invoice.

Electronic invoicing. UK VAT law permits electronic invoicing in line with EU Directive 2010/45/EU (see the chapter on the EU).

Simplified VAT invoices. There is no requirement to issue a VAT invoice for retail supplies to unregistered businesses. Retailers may assume that no VAT invoice is required unless a customer asks for one in which case, if the charge made for the individual supply is:

- GBP250 or less (including VAT), an invoice can be issued showing the retailer's name, address and VAT registration number, the time of supply (tax point), a description that identifies the goods or services supplied, and for each VAT rate applicable; the total amount payable, including VAT shown in GBP and the VAT rate charged. Exempt supplies must not be included on this type of VAT invoice.

- More than GBP250, then either a full VAT invoice or a modified VAT invoice must be issued, showing VAT inclusive rather than VAT exclusive values.

If the taxable person is not a retailer, and the total value of the supply does not exceed GBP250, the supplier may issue the customer with a simplified invoice. If the charge made for the individual supply is:
- GBP250 or less (including VAT), an invoice showing the supplier's name, address and VAT registration number, the time of supply (tax point), a description which identifies the goods or services supplied, and for each VAT rate applicable, the total amount payable, including VAT shown in GBP and the VAT rate charged. Exempt supplies must not be included on this type of VAT invoice.
- More than GBP250, then either a full VAT invoice or a modified VAT invoice must be issued, showing VAT inclusive rather than VAT exclusive values.

Self-billing. Self-billed invoices may only be issued by a customer to a supplier if:
- The supplier has agreed to this method of accounting
- A self-billing agreement has been set up
- Certain rules have been followed including:
  - — The raising of self-billed invoices for all transactions with the supplier named on the document for the period of the agreement/contract
  - — The completion of self-billed documents showing the supplier's name, address and VAT registration number, together with all the other details that make up a full VAT invoice and should also be clearly marked with "Self-Billing." HMRC also recommends including the following statement on each self-billed invoice raised: "The VAT shown is your output tax due to HMRC"
  - — The customer keeps the names, addresses and VAT registration numbers of the suppliers with whom a self-billing agreement is held.

HMRC authorization is not required to operate self-billing as long as all the relevant conditions are met.

Proof of exports and intra-Community supplies. UK VAT is generally not chargeable on supplies of exported goods. However, to qualify for VAT zero-rating, exports must be supported by evidence proving that the goods have left the UK.

Acceptable proof includes official customs documentation and commercial documentation, such as consignment notes and airway bills. The evidence must clearly identify the supplier, the customer, the goods, the mode of transport and route of movement of the goods, and the destination. The evidence must be obtained within three months after the time of supply and be retained for at least six years.

UK VAT is generally not chargeable on intra-Community supplies of goods, except distance sales (see the chapter on EU). From 1 January 2020, the VAT Quick Fixes come into effect across the EU and aim to harmonize certain requirements. The full impact of these requirements from a UK perspective will depend on the Brexit outcome, although any intra-Community supply chains with goods will be affected.

The Quick Fixes introduce two new material conditions that the supplier must comply with in order to zero rate the supply:
- The supplier must obtain the customer's VAT number and include it on their invoices.
- The supplier must include the supply of goods in its EC Sales List.

Rules on harmonizing the proof required for the intra-EU transport of goods are also introduced from 1 January 2020.

A business can either rely on the EU Quick Fixes proof of dispatch requirements or follow national rules on the proof of dispatch requirements if they prefer.

For intra-Community supplies, the UK proof of dispatch rules require a range of commercial documentation, such as customer orders, sales invoices, transport documentation and packing lists. The evidence must clearly identify the supplier, the customer, the goods, the mode of transport and route of movement of the goods, and the destination. The evidence must be obtained within three months after the time of supply and be retained for at least six years.

The proof of dispatch conditions under the Quick Fixes require the seller to hold two documents evidencing dispatch, this is enough to prove that the goods have been transported. The evidence must not be contradictory, and the tax authorities may still disapply the zero-rating if they find evidence to the contrary.

The evidence should be issued by two different parties that are independent of each other, as well as independent of the seller and the customer.

If the buyer arranges the transport, they will also need to provide the supplier with a written statement giving details of the transport and Member State of arrival. The buyer must provide this written statement to the supplier by the 10th day of the month following the supply.

At the time of preparing this chapter, specific UK legislation on the Quick Fixes is yet to be issued.

For further information on the Quick Fixes, please refer to the EU chapter.

Foreign currency invoices. If a VAT invoice is issued in a foreign currency, the pounds sterling equivalent of the VAT amount must also be stated on the invoice. Suppliers may use any of the following acceptable exchange rates:
- The UK market selling rate at the time of the supply (rates published in UK national newspapers are acceptable as evidence of the rates in force at the relevant time)
- The UK VAT authorities' published period rates of exchange
- Any other acceptable rate that is used for commercial purposes (and not covered by the two alternatives above), subject to agreement in writing with the UK VAT authorities

Supplies to nontaxable persons. In the UK, a taxable person is not required to provide a VAT invoice for B2C (e.g., retail) supplies of goods and services. In practice, this will normally mean issuing a VAT invoice to any customers who ask for one.

Effective 1 January 2015, new EU VAT place of supply rules apply to B2C supplies of digital services. From this date, supplies of digital services to EU consumers are subject to VAT in the Member State where the customer belongs. Although the vast majority of EU Member States, including the UK, do not require VAT invoices to be issued for cross-border B2C supplies, UK taxable persons making B2C supplies of digital services to customers in other EU Member States should check the invoicing requirements in the customer's Member State. For further details of the VAT rules on digital services in the EU, please refer to the European Union chapter.

Records.

Record retention period. VAT records must be kept for at least 6 years (or 10 years if you use the VAT MOSS service). VAT records include:
- Copies of all invoices issued
- All invoices received (originals or electronic copies)
- Self-billing agreements
- Name, address and VAT number of any self-billing suppliers
- Debit or credit notes
- Import and export records

- Records of items VAT cannot be claimed on — for example business entertainment
- Records of goods given away or taken from stock for private use
- Records of all the zero-rated, reduced or VAT exempt items bought or sold
- A VAT account

General business records, such as bank statements, cash books, check stubs, paying-in slips and till rolls must also be kept.

Businesses signed up to the "Making Tax Digital for VAT" (MTD) regime must keep VAT records digitally (subject to a 12-month digital links soft landing period), as well as a number of other digital records, including business name, address and VAT registration number, any VAT accounting schemes used, the time of supply, the net value of the supply and VAT on everything bought and sold. All transactions must be added to the digital records, but paper records like invoices or receipts do not need to be scanned.

Additional records must be kept if digital services are supplied in the EU and the VAT MOSS scheme is used.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is allowed in the UK, but it is not mandatory. If records are kept digitally, for example, under MTD, these should be archived electronically (subject to the 12-month digital links soft-landing period). However, records not required to be kept digitally can be archived in paper format.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. VAT returns are generally submitted quarterly. VAT return quarters are staggered into three cycles to ease the UK VAT authorities' administration. The following are the cycles:
- March, June, September and December
- February, May, August and November
- January, April, July and October

Each taxable person is notified at the time of registration of the return cycle it must use. However, the UK VAT authorities will consider a request to use VAT return periods that correspond with a taxable person's financial year. In addition, a taxable person whose accounting dates are not based on calendar months may request permission to adopt nonstandard tax periods.

Taxable persons that receive regular repayments of VAT may request permission to submit monthly returns to improve cash flow.

VAT returns must generally be submitted by the last day of the month following the end of the return period. However, in most cases, taxable persons that submit their VAT returns electronically have an additional seven calendar days after the normal due date in which to file their returns and make payment (businesses that use the annual accounting scheme or are required to make payments on account do not qualify for this seven-day extension).

Periodic payments. Payment must generally be made by the last day of the month following the end of the return period. However, in most cases, taxable persons that submit their VAT returns electronically have an additional seven calendar days after the normal due date in which to file their returns and make payment (businesses that use the annual accounting scheme or are required to make payments on account do not qualify for this seven-day extension).

VAT returns must be completed in pounds sterling (GBP) but return liabilities may be paid in pounds sterling or euros.

Electronic filing. The vast majority of UK VAT-registered businesses (with some limited exceptions) are required to submit their VAT returns online (using the UK VAT authorities' electronic VAT service) and pay any VAT due electronically. In addition, MTD rules came into effect for some UK VAT registered businesses from 1 April 2019 and for others from 1 October 2019. MTD requires that the nine-box VAT return is submitted using an application programming interface (API), i.e., MTD-compatible software (see Digital reporting subsection below).VAT records may be archived electronically in any location, provided that the authenticity, integrity and legibility of the content of source documents (invoice data) is protected and any records can be produced in a readable form (within a reasonable period of time) upon request by the UK VAT authorities.

Payments on account. Taxable persons that have an annual VAT liability of greater than GBP2.3 million must make payments on account, which are interim payments made at the end of the second and third months of each VAT quarter. The VAT return is due at the normal time together with a balancing payment for the period. The level of the payments on account is generally calculated as 1/24 of the taxable person's VAT liability for the preceding 12 months. Electronic transfers must be used for all payments on account.

Special schemes.

Cash accounting. Businesses with an annual taxable turnover (excluding VAT) of less than GBP1.35 million are eligible to use the cash accounting scheme which allows VAT to be accounted for on the basis of cash or other consideration paid and received. However, if their annual taxable turnover (excluding VAT) subsequently exceeds GBP1.6 million, they must stop using the scheme.

Annual accounting. Businesses with annual taxable turnover (excluding VAT) of less than GBP1.35 million may apply to complete an annual VAT return. Businesses that use annual accounting must make either three quarterly or nine monthly interim VAT payments. Any balancing payment must be made with the annual return. The annual return is due on the last day of the second month following the end of the taxable person's annual VAT accounting period. However, if their annual taxable turnover (excluding VAT) subsequently exceeds GBP1.6 million, they must stop using the scheme.

Special accounting. A special accounting scheme (known as the Flat Rate Scheme) exists for small businesses with VAT-exclusive annual taxable turnover of up to GBP150,000. Under the scheme, eligible businesses calculate the amount of VAT due based on a fixed percentage of their total (VAT-inclusive) turnover. The percentages range from 4% to 16.5%, depending on the trade sector of the business. However, if their annual taxable turnover (excluding VAT) subsequently exceeds GBP230,000, they must stop using the scheme.

Other special accounting schemes exist for retailers, businesses trading in secondhand goods, tour operators, gold traders and farmers.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required to be submitted in the UK.

Supplementary filings.

Intrastat. A UK taxable person that trades in goods with other EU countries must complete statistical reports, known as Intrastat declarations, if the value of its sales or purchases exceeds certain thresholds. Separate reports exist for intra-Community acquisitions (Intrastat Arrivals) and intra-Community supplies (Intrastat Dispatches).

For the 2019 calendar year, the threshold for Intrastat Arrivals is GBP1.5 million and the threshold for Intrastat Dispatches is GBP250,000. At the time of preparing this chapter, the 2020 Intrastat thresholds are not yet known.

A taxable person whose intra-Community trade in goods exceeds GBP24 million (for either Arrivals or Dispatches) must also provide additional information concerning the terms of delivery.

Intrastat declarations must be submitted electronically on a monthly basis and be completed in pounds sterling. The deadline for the submission of Intrastat declarations is the 21st day of the month following the end of the reference period (normally a calendar month) to which they relate.

Penalties may be imposed if a taxable person's Intrastat declarations are persistently late, missing or inaccurate.

EU Sales Lists. All businesses registered for VAT must complete EU Sales Lists (ESLs) if they make either or both of the following types of supplies:

- Intra-Community supplies of goods to business customers in other EU Member States
- Intra-Community supplies of services to business customers in other EU Member States, if the place of supply of the services is the customer's Member State and if the customer is required to account for the VAT due on the supply under the reverse-charge procedure

The information required to be provided on ESLs includes the country code and VAT registration number of the businesses to which the supplies were made, the total value of those supplies in pounds sterling and an indicator to identify a supply as a supply of services.

The ESL reporting period for intra-Community supplies of goods is a calendar month for supplies over GBP35,000 per quarter. The ESL reporting period for intra-Community supplies of services is a calendar quarter, but businesses may instead choose a reporting period of a calendar month (for example, to align with the ESL reporting period for intra-Community supplies of goods).

The following are the deadlines for submitting ESLs to the UK VAT authorities, for all frequencies of submission with respect to both goods and services:

- For paper ESLs: 14 days from the end of the reporting period
- For electronic ESL submissions: 21 days from the end of the reporting period

The UK is due to leave the European Union on 31 January 2020. After this date, EU filings, such as Intrastat and ESLs, may no longer be required. Specific requirements should be checked nearer the exit date, as HMRC has already indicated that Intrastat declarations will continue to be required post-Brexit where information about exports and imports is not otherwise reported, i.e., through the use of simplifications. If a transitional period is agreed, these EU filings will likely continue to be required until the end of that period. However, at the time of preparing this chapter, a transitional period has not yet been agreed.

Digital reporting.

Making Tax Digital for VAT. HMRC's Making Tax Digital (MTD) program applies to VAT and other taxes. It came into effect for VAT from 1 April 2019 for businesses registered for VAT in the UK, with a taxable turnover above the VAT registration threshold limit (currently GBP85,000), unless the business falls into one of the deferral categories (see below).

Businesses that fall into one of the "deferrals" categories below are required to meet the MTD requirements with effect from 1 October 2019:

- Trusts (although see below for NHS Trusts)
- "Not for profit" organizations that are not set up as a company
- VAT divisions
- VAT groups
- Local authorities
- Public corporations — HMRC has subsequently confirmed that a public corporation is a body owned/controlled by government/public authorities
- Traders based overseas
- Those required to make payments on account and annual accounting scheme users

At the time of preparing this chapter, Government Information and NHS Trust (GIANT) users are not live for MTD purposes. The MTD deferral for these users is for an as yet, undefined period.

Businesses that fall within the MTD rules have to keep their records digitally (for VAT purposes only), evidence a digital journey from source systems through to submission of the VAT return and submit the VAT return to HMRC using MTD-compatible software.

HMRC introduced a 12-month "soft-landing period" in relation to the digital journey requirements, meaning that, in the first 12 months of a business's MTD go-live date, the digital link requirements were relaxed. This means that if the Making Tax Digital rules apply to a business from a VAT period starting on or after 1 April 2019, the business will have until the first VAT return period starting on or after 1 April 2020 to put digital links in place. If MTD applied from a VAT period starting on or after 1 October 2019, businesses will have until the first VAT return period starting on or after 1 October 2020 to put digital links in place.

Following consultation with businesses, HMRC is now allowing businesses to apply for additional time to comply with the MTD digital journey requirements if they have complex or legacy IT systems, or if they have acquired a business and are unable to comply by the end of the initial soft-landing period. Applications must be received by HMRC by the end of a business's soft-landing period and must provide a clear explanation and timetable for when and how they will become fully MTD compliant.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. A penalty is assessed for late VAT registration. This penalty is calculated as a percentage of the VAT due (output tax less input tax) for the "relevant period." The "relevant period" begins on the date on which the business is required to be registered and ends on the date on which the UK VAT authorities became fully aware of this liability.

The penalty rate that applies may range from 30% (in most cases) to 100% (with respect to deliberate and concealed acts) of the VAT due. However, measures exist for the reduction of such penalties if the business voluntarily discloses the failure to register to the UK VAT authorities. The degree of mitigation of the penalties depends on the "quality" of the disclosure. No penalty arises where there is a "reasonable excuse" for the late registration.

Penalties for late payment and filings. If a VAT return or payment is late, the taxable person is in default and is issued a Surcharge Liability Notice. The notice specifies a period of 12 months from the last day of the VAT period under default, which is known as the "surcharge period." Any further default within this period may trigger a penalty and extend the surcharge period. The penalty is calculated as a percentage of the "outstanding VAT." A business has "outstanding VAT" for a period if some or all of the VAT due for that period remains unpaid as of the normal due date.

The following percentage penalty rates apply:
- For the first default in the surcharge period: a penalty of 2% of the outstanding VAT
- For the second default in the surcharge period: a penalty of 5% of the outstanding VAT
- For the third default in the surcharge period: a penalty of 10% of the outstanding VAT
- For the fourth and any subsequent defaults in the surcharge period: a penalty of 15% of the outstanding VAT (for each further default)

The UK VAT authorities do not impose a penalty at the 2% or 5% rates for an amount of less than GBP400. For the 10% and 15% rates, the minimum penalty is GBP30.

If a nil or repayment VAT return is submitted late or payment is made on time, but the return is submitted late, no penalty is imposed. However, a default is recorded, and the surcharge period is extended.

There will be no default or liability to a penalty where a business has a "reasonable excuse" for failing to submit a VAT return or make payment of VAT on time.

Penalties may be assessed for the late submission of ESLs and for material inaccuracies in ESLs.

Penalties for errors. If a business makes an error on a VAT return despite taking "reasonable care," it should not be liable to a penalty. Otherwise, the penalty rate depends on the behavior giving rise to the error (rather than the size of the error) and may range from 30% (for "careless" errors) to 100% (for "deliberate and concealed" acts) of the VAT due. However, provisions exist for the reduction of such penalties if the business makes an unprompted (voluntary) disclosure to the UK VAT authorities. The degree of mitigation also depends on the "quality" of the disclosure.

Penalties for fraud. A new penalty regime was implemented during 2017 for participating in VAT fraud. The penalty will be applied to businesses and company officers who "knew or should have known" that their transactions were connected with VAT fraud. The new penalty will be a fixed rate penalty of 30%.

Disclosure of tax avoidance schemes. From 1 January 2018, provisions came into effect to make scheme promoters primarily responsible for disclosing indirect tax avoidance schemes to HMRC. The scope of the current regime includes all indirect taxes and moves the responsibility for disclosing VAT avoidance schemes to HMRC from scheme users to scheme promoters. The measure took effect from 1 January 2018 and will affect those who promote schemes after this date.

With effect from 30 September 2017, the UK introduced a corporate criminal offense of failing to prevent the facilitation of tax evasion. The offense concerns when an "associate person," such as an employee, agent, contractor or subsidiary, facilitates the evasion of tax of a third party while acting on behalf of the business. The intention of the legislation is to attribute criminal liability to businesses for the criminal acts of employees, agents or those that provide services for or on their behalf.

If that business (defined as "relevant body") cannot evidence that it had reasonable preventative procedures in place to prevent the facilitation of tax evasion by persons acting on its behalf, then it could be subject to a corporate criminal conviction and an unlimited fine. While this is UK legislation, the impact is far reaching and could result in overseas businesses being prosecuted because the definition of a relevant body is "a body corporate or partnership (wherever incorporated or formed)."

A. General

The United States does not impose a national-level sales or value-added tax. Instead, sales taxes and complementary use taxes are imposed and administered at the state (subnational) and local (substate) levels. Currently, 45 of the 50 US states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico impose some form of sales and use tax. (See chapter on Puerto Rico.) Only Alaska, Delaware, Montana, New Hampshire and Oregon do not impose such taxes. Taking into account both the state-level and local-level aspects of sales and use taxes, approximately 13,000 taxing jurisdictions exist in the United States.

The laws, rules and procedures with respect to US state and local sales and use taxes are not uniform among these jurisdictions, and issues such as tax-base calculation, taxability of specific items and tax rates vary considerably among the jurisdictions. Sales and use taxes are generally imposed on transactions involving the sale of tangible personal property. However, several states also tax certain specified services and digital property (for example, electronically delivered software).

B. Tax rates

Sales and use tax rates vary among the states. For each state that imposes a sales and use tax, most apply one uniform rate at the state level. However, several states impose a lower rate on certain items, such as food, clothing, selected services and medicine, instead of exempting such items outright, while some also impose higher rates on items such as alcohol. Excluding additional local sales and use taxes, US state-level sales and use tax rates range from 2.9% (Colorado) to 7.25% (California). The highest combined state and local tax rate is 10.25% (Chicago, Illinois).

Local rates, if authorized within a state, may vary significantly. In addition, a single situs within a state may lie within several different local taxing jurisdictions. For example, sales made in one store may be subject to city, county and district taxes, in addition to the state-level tax, while sales made from a store in a different geographic location may be subject only to a county tax, in addition to the state-level tax. As a result, it is possible that two identical transactions within the same state may be taxed at substantially different rates based solely on the local sourcing of the transaction. In certain states, local rates can exceed 4% and constitute a greater portion of the total sales tax due than the state-level rate.

Not all states authorize the imposition of local sales and use taxes. Others require rate uniformity across the state or minimum local rates (e.g., California).

C. Imposition of tax

Sales taxes are transaction-based taxes imposed on intrastate retail transactions (sales made between a buyer and seller located within the same state) and are calculated as a percentage of the receipts derived from the transaction. The legal incidence of state sales tax laws may be on the buyer ("consumer" taxes) or on the seller ("vendor" or "privilege" taxes). However, regardless of the form of the tax, the consumer generally will bear the actual cost of the tax, while the vendor will bear the compliance cost.

Use taxes, which complement sales taxes, are imposed on the use, storage or consumption in a state of property or taxable services that have not been subjected to a sales tax. Essentially, use taxes are designed to prevent the avoidance of sales taxes on interstate retail transactions (sales made between a buyer and seller located in different states) by taxing goods and services procured in one state but intended for use or enjoyment in another state. To the extent that sales tax is paid in one state on such interstate transactions, a credit is allowed against any use tax that is ultimately owed.

D. Jurisdiction to tax

The key issue with respect to US state and local sales and use taxation is the jurisdiction to tax, or what is commonly referred to as "nexus." This concept deals with the power of one state or local taxing jurisdictions to compel a seller to collect and remit the sales or use tax due on a transaction. Prior to the ruling rendered by the U.S. Supreme Court (the Court) on 21 June 2018 in South Dakota v. Wayfair Inc. (Wayfair), nexus was deemed to exist only if the seller had some physical presence within the taxing state or local jurisdiction (either by itself or through an agent or affiliate that had "established and maintained" an in-state market for the seller) and if such presence was more than de minimis.

Direct physical presence. Even if unrelated to a seller's sales activity, automatically created (and still creates even after the Wayfair ruling) a registration and collection obligation. Physical presence may be deemed to exist based on the ownership of real or tangible personal property, the in-state presence of employees, the temporary storage of inventory or any other entry into the state by the seller or its employees (for example, delivery of goods sold in the seller's own vehicles). Physical presence may also be attributed to a seller based on activities conducted by third-parties in the state on the seller's behalf. Essentially, if an agent or affiliate of a seller that does not have nexus with a state enters the state and conducts activities on the seller's behalf that serve to "establish and maintain a market" for the seller's goods (for example, soliciting sales, providing repair or installation services or providing training services), the seller may be deemed to be physically present in the state and be subject to the state's sales and use tax jurisdiction.

Remote sellers. Between 1999 and 2018, several states enacted laws that required remote sellers with no in-state physical presence to register for sales and use tax purposes, and to collect and remit tax on sales to in-state customers based on their in-state sales volume. These laws, which many considered unconstitutional under the case law at the time, were challenged in each jurisdiction where they were enacted. In April 2018, the Court heard an appeal of the challenge to the state of South Dakota's law, which imposed a registration and collection obligation on any remote seller that had annual sales of USD100,000 or that entered into at least 200 transactions with

South Dakota customers. On 21 June 2018, the Court issued its ruling in the Wayfair case, concluding that the physical presence standard established under earlier precedent was "incorrect and unsound" under the Commerce Clause of the U.S. Constitution and was no longer applicable. The Court further held that states were free to compel remote sellers to collect and remit tax so long as their mechanism for doing so did not unduly burden or discriminate against interstate commerce. Through October 2019, all but three states — Florida, Kansas and Missouri — have enacted new laws applying an economic nexus standard based solely on sales directed to customers in the state. The Kansas Department of Revenue and the Kansas governor have taken the position that the state does not need to enact a law to apply such a standard. Furthermore, legislation is expected to be introduced in each of the three states during their upcoming 2020 legislative sessions implementing the same sales-only nexus standards, and it will likely be enacted.

Marketplaces. Also, in response to the Wayfair decision, nearly 40 states have extended collection responsibilities to marketplace facilitators and providers (i.e., businesses that operate and maintain a platform to allow sellers to market and sell their goods and services). In most instances, the states have required that the marketplace facilitator or provider have a physical presence in the state or meet the state's economic nexus sales threshold, A few states (e.g., Colorado, Hawaii, Maryland), however, have remained silent on whether such stand-alone nexus is required. In these states, sales and use tax collection and filing responsibilities with respect to any transactions made through the marketplace are with the marketplace facilitator or provider. These new laws have created significant complexities, given that the state definitions of "marketplace facilitator" and "marketplace provider" vary considerably and can be broad, pulling in a number of businesses that would generally not be perceived as operating "traditional" marketplace forums.

Businesses that are not physically present in the US should be aware that the US states believe that their remote seller economic nexus and the marketplace facilitator/provider provisions apply equally to businesses that lack any US presence or permanent establishment. Moreover, while enforcement by the states may present a challenge, noncompliance creates potentially significant accounting and financial statement risks, pursuant to Accounting Standards Codification (ASC) 450, for non-US companies that do not comply with these collection and registration requirements.

Third parties. In addition to these economic nexus provisions, more than 30 states have also enacted laws that specifically attribute certain activities of in-state third parties on behalf of remote sellers to such remote sellers, thereby creating a presumption of an in-state physical presence. These laws operate parallel to the new economic nexus standards and present a separate consideration. In many states, certain affiliate relationships with in-state entities also will create a presumption of an attributional physical presence for a remote seller. Finally, since 2010, more than 10 states have adopted a requirement for remote sellers that lack nexus with a state but make sales to in-state customers to provide notice to their customers that use tax is due and is the responsibility of the customer, and to provide the state revenue agency with a list of in-state customers and the value of their annual purchases. Despite the historic ruling in Wayfair, which drastically expanded the reach of states to enforce sales or use tax compliance by remote sellers, these provisions remain in effect and apply in the event nexus is not otherwise established (either through direct physical presence, meeting one or more state-specific sales or transactions thresholds, or by way of attributional or affiliate presumptions).

If a seller does establish nexus with a state for sales and use tax purposes through one of these means, the seller is generally required to register in that state for sales and use tax purposes, and the seller is required to collect and remit sales and use taxes due on its taxable transactions with customers in the state. The seller is also required to file monthly, quarterly or annual sales and use tax returns (depending on state law) and remit all taxes collected. Failure to comply with the specific state requirement may result in the seller becoming liable for any tax due on a transaction, plus penalties and interest.

Since 2000, legislation has regularly and routinely been introduced in the U.S. Congress that, if enacted, would establish a uniform national sales and use tax nexus standard for remote sellers (i.e., businesses that sell and ship goods to customers from points outside of the customer's state and that lack physical presence in the customer's state). At the time of preparing this chapter, several proposals are pending before both houses of Congress that would either codify the physical presence standard as it existed before the Court's ruling in Wayfair or provide guidelines that states must follow to compel remote sellers to register and collect tax. Such measures have been introduced in each of the past several Congresses, dating back well before the Wayfair decision. However, as in past years, none of these measures has progressed to a stage where passage seemed likely, and it is not expected that there will be any congressional action on the issue through 2020.

E. Retail sales

State sales and use taxes apply to receipts from taxable property and services sold and purchased at retail. A "retail sale" generally is defined as the transfer of title and possession of property from the seller to the ultimate consumer in exchange for consideration. Wholesale sales (discussed below), also referred to as "sales for resale," are exempt from sales and use tax in all states that impose a sales and use tax scheme. However, Hawaii imposes a 0.5% wholesale sales tax rate on resale transactions.

Taxation of services that are ancillary to the sale of taxable tangible personal property, such as delivery and installation, varies among the states. Most states have explicit statutory or regulatory provisions dealing with the treatment of such services. In many cases, such treatment is determined based on the state's specific definition of "receipts" for sales and use tax purposes.

Drop shipments. Retail sales involving three parties (retailer, buyer and supplier), in which title to the property sold passes from the retailer directly to the buyer, but possession is transferred from a third-party supplier directly to the buyer, are classified as "drop shipment" transactions. In a drop shipment transaction, the retailer is generally responsible for sales and use tax collection. However, if the retailer does not have nexus with the buyer's state, state law may determine that a supplier with nexus in the state may be held liable for sales and use tax collection on the transaction. Alternatively, states may attempt to assert nexus over the out-of-state retailer under a "flash title" theory (that is, by asserting that the retailer takes title to the property for an instant while the property is within the state and, accordingly, has physical presence in the taxing state) or assess use tax liability directly against the buyer.

Lease transactions. Leases are treated as taxable retail sales in most states. The tax generally applies separately to each lease payment. However, certain states, such as Illinois and New Jersey, require lessors of tangible personal property to pay the sales tax in full on acquisition and before any subsequent lease or rental. In these states, tax is not charged on the subsequent lease. Complications can arise when regularly leased property is brought in from a state that allows a lessor to purchase such property exempt from sales tax. In such cases, the state into which the property is brought may assert that use tax is due on the entire original purchase price or value of the property that is subsequently leased in the state. Careful consideration of the origin of leased property and the relevant and varied state approaches is recommended.

Lease transactions that are deemed to constitute "financed sales" (i.e., arrangements under which total lease payments approximate the sales price, with the lessor having the option to purchase the leased item for a nominal price at the end of the lease term) are generally treated as straight sales in most states and are subject to immediate sales and use tax. Thus, if a lease is reclassified as a financed sale, in virtually all states, sales or use tax is due in full at the time of inception of the lease, generally at the original purchase price of the leased property.

Taxable base. Sales and use taxes are imposed on receipts derived from taxable retail sales transactions. In most states, taxable receipts may be reduced by the value of any goods traded in by the purchaser as part of the transaction and by any coupons, rebates or discounts issued by the vendor.

F. What is taxable

State sales and use taxes generally apply to sales of tangible personal property, which is defined by statute in most states as personal property that can be seen, touched, measured and weighed, or is otherwise perceptible to the senses. On the other hand, services are generally not broadly subject to sales and use taxes unless the state's sales tax law specifically enumerates such services as taxable. The sales tax treatment of both sales of tangible property and services is not uniform across the states.

Real property. Real property (e.g., land, buildings and fixtures) is not considered to be tangible personal property, and the sale or lease of real property is not subject to sales and use taxation (except in certain limited circumstances, the leasing of real property is subject to sales and use tax in Arizona and Florida while in New York City a specialized lease transaction tax applies). State and local jurisdictions may, however, impose transfer taxes on real property that are administered separately and apart from the state or local sales or use taxes. Among the oldest taxes levied in the US, these tax laws vary widely from state to state and even within some states can vary not only as to rates but also applicability from locality to locality.

Intangible property. The sale of intangible personal property, such as securities and intellectual property, is generally not subject to sales and use taxation. However, the sale of certain intangible digital goods (such as computer software and electronically delivered photographs, music and video files) may be subject to tax, depending on the specific state's laws. For example, items such as music downloaded from the internet and canned (non-custom) computer software that is delivered electronically may be considered to be tangible personal property in several states and are subject to tax. California sales and use tax law, on the other hand, continues to treat any such goods delivered electronically as intangible property not subject to tax. Similarly, depending upon the jurisdictions involved, cloud-based software (SaaS) may be classified as taxable tangible personal property, nontaxable intangible property or a service (that may or may not be taxable).

Many states classify utility services, such as the sale of natural gas or electricity, as the sale of taxable tangible personal property. In such states, sales of these utility services may be subject to sales and use tax in addition to any applicable utility transmission fees or excise taxes that may be applied and collected separately.

G. Situs of sales

Where a sale is deemed to take place is crucial in determining which jurisdiction's tax laws and rates apply. For intrastate sales, the situs of the sale determines which local sales and use taxes (if any) are imposed in addition to the state-level tax and which locality receives the revenue. For interstate transactions, the situs of the sale determines which state's laws have control and which state is entitled to the tax revenue.

In general, sales are sourced based on the nature of the transaction. For example, if a sale occurs at a fixed location, such as an over-the-counter sale at a store, the sale is sourced to that location. For intrastate remote sales that involve a buyer and seller (and possibly the goods sold) at separate locations, the transaction may be sourced to where the goods are received by the buyer, where the order is accepted by the seller or from where the goods are shipped.

For interstate remote sales, tax generally is imposed at the destination (that is, where the goods are received by the buyer), regardless of where title passes to the ultimate customer. In such cases, use tax, rather than sales tax, is due, and it must be collected and remitted by the seller if the seller has nexus with the destination state. To the extent that the seller lacks nexus with the destination state, the purchaser must self-assess and pay use tax to the state. The elimination of the physical presence requirement by the Wayfair decision is expected to make such use tax transactional obligations much less frequent.

Sourcing for intrastate sales varies among the states. Most states apply local taxes on a destination basis, which means that local sales and use taxes at the customer location will apply. Others apply local taxes on an origin basis, which means that local sales and use taxes at the vendor or shipper location will apply.

H. Tax exemptions

Exemptions from state sales and use taxes is a significant component of the sales and use tax system in the US. Many of these exemptions are largely driven by tax policy and they may be based on federal or state law.

Federal exemptions. Exemptions based on federal law include excluding from state and local sales and use tax transactions that involve Indian tribes or occur on Indian reservation lands (although many Indian tribes may separately impose and collect their own sales and use taxes independent of the states in which such reservations are located). Moreover, sales made to the federal government may be expressly exempt from state and local sales and use tax and also would be excluded under precedent issued by the U.S. Supreme Court.

State and local exemptions. Other state and local level exemptions vary by jurisdiction, but may be grouped into the following four distinct categories:
- Entity based
- Property based
- Use based
- Transaction based

Like other aspects of state and local taxation, the availability and operation of sales and use tax exemptions and the procedures for claiming the exemptions vary widely among the states and, in some cases, even among the local taxing jurisdictions in the same state that impose such a tax.

Entity-based exemptions. Sales made to entities that qualify for exemption in a state (for example, religious or charitable organizations and state and federal governmental agencies) are not subject to tax. Issues may arise with respect to contractors performing work for or on behalf of such exempt entities. In general, contractors must pay tax on items purchased in fulfilling a contract with an exempt entity. However, tax is generally not due if the contractor is acting as an agent for the entity in procuring items for the entity's own use. Wide variations in these exemptions exist among the states and, in some cases, certifications of the exemption may be required.

Property-based exemptions. Many states deem certain specific items to be exempt from tax as a matter of policy. For example, several states do not tax the purchase of grocery food, clothing or medicine, or they provide for a reduced tax rate on such items. Certain states set thresholds for such items. For example, Massachusetts exempts clothing purchases up to USD175 per item.

Use-based exemptions. Items that otherwise are subject to the tax may be exempt based on their actual use by the purchaser. Most notably, items used in manufacturing, research and development and pollution control typically are eligible for exemption. In addition, many states provide specific exemptions for enumerated items purchased and used in designated enterprise and economic development zones in the state.

Transaction-based exemptions. The most common sales and use tax exemptions are based on the type of transaction involved. In the retail context, the "sale for resale" or "wholesale sale" exemption is most often claimed. Such exemptions are a structural component of the sales tax in the US intended to generally provide that tax only applies to the ultimate retail sale to the consumer.

Sales for resale. To avoid multiple taxation and maintain the general objective of only imposing tax on the last transaction involving the ultimate consumer, most states that impose a sales and use tax regime provide an exemption for wholesale sales. To claim this exemption, the purchaser must purchase the taxable items with the intention of reselling or leasing the items at retail. Any subsequent use by the purchaser of the items purchased under a resale exemption (e.g., taking items from inventory and distributing them as samples to customers) results in use tax becoming due. However, the seller is not required to collect such tax unless it knew at the time of sale that the purchaser intended to use the items.

Occasional sales. Most states provide an "occasional sale" exemption, also referred to as the "casual sale" or "isolated sale" exemption. This exemption typically applies in the context of business restructurings, mergers and acquisitions, and infrequent sellers, such as individuals selling personal property in single, limited transactions such as a garage or yard sale. Again, as with other exemptions, the occasional sale exemption rules vary widely among taxing jurisdictions.

The theory underlying this exemption is that the sales tax is meant to apply to retail transactions only, and one-time sales are not sufficiently systematic to indicate that the seller is in the business of engaging in such transactions. In states that do not provide specific exemptions for business reorganizations (for example, incorporations, mergers and spin-offs), the occasional sale exemption may apply to limit the application of sales and use taxes to transactions that involve the transfer of assets.

Temporary storage. Several states allow an exemption from use tax for property that is not used in the state but is stored temporarily in the state and is intended for ultimate shipment outside of the state. This exemption typically applies to items fabricated or produced in a state and to items purchased and warehoused in a state but intended for ultimate transport outside of the US.

Claiming exemptions. The process for claiming any of the exemptions described above varies depending on the type of exemption claimed and the state or states involved. In most instances, to claim an exemption, purchasers must provide the seller with a valid exemption certificate or statement in the form prescribed by law. In a number of states, the parties to the transaction must be registered for sales and use tax purposes in order to validly claim the exemption.

If the seller takes an exemption certificate in good faith (that is, the seller does not know of any reason why the exemption does not apply), the seller is relieved of any tax-collection requirement with respect to the transaction. "Good faith" standards are not uniform among the states. If a seller does not accept such a certificate and if the seller is otherwise required to collect tax but does not do so, the seller may be personally liable for any tax due on the transaction. In several states, a seller making an exempt sale must be registered for purposes of that state's sales and use tax to be able to accept an exemption certificate from a purchaser in good faith. This requirement may present a challenge for sellers not based in the US that are making sales for resale, or sales under some other exemption to customers located in the US, because registration often requires that the seller first obtain a federal employer identification number. In recent years, several states have greatly increased their scrutiny of the exemption certification process.

I. Local (substate)-level sales and use taxes

Local sales and use taxes are authorized in 37 states. Fortunately, in most of these states, the local sales and use tax base mirrors the state-level sales and use tax base. On the other hand, rates may differ significantly among the localities within a particular state and multiple local taxing jurisdictions (such as counties, municipalities and special taxing districts) may impose separate rates.

Thus, as indicated above, a single address within a state may fall within multiple local taxing jurisdictions for determining the applicable rate to apply to a specific transaction.

In most states, local sales and use taxes are administered at the state level. However, in a limited number of states, such as Alabama, Colorado and Louisiana, such taxes may be administered by the locality imposing the tax. Thus, separate registrations and filings may be required in addition to registrations and filings with the state. In these states, not only may rates differ but so may the applicable tax base (i.e., transactions exempt from state tax may nevertheless be subject to local sales and use taxes). Sellers that have nexus with a state are generally considered to have nexus with every locality within that state, regardless of whether they maintain any physical presence within a specific locality, but this position is not universal (e.g., Colorado's Department of Revenue recently declared that despite the decision in Wayfair, physical presence was still required to collect local sales and use tax by those few jurisdictions in the state that exercised home rule authority).

J. Registration, filing and compliance issues

Sellers that have nexus with a state (see Section D) must register with the state taxing agency for sales and use tax purposes. Registered sellers must collect and remit sales and use tax on all taxable transactions and maintain exemption certificates received from their customers. Sales and use tax returns are due on a monthly or quarterly basis, depending on the specific state's laws. Sellers that do not make any taxable sales for a given period may be relieved from filing regular returns, or they may be required to file "zero" returns indicating that no taxable sales occurred.

Most states impose successor liability on the purchasers of substantially all of the assets of a business for any sales or use tax deficiencies of these businesses. This liability can be avoided if the seller complies with certain bulk sales and notice requirements, the rules for which vary between states and they often are required in addition to the general requirements applicable to commercial transactions generally under the applicable commercial law of the state.

K. Penalties

All states impose penalties for failure to file returns and pay sales and use taxes as required by law. Penalty rates vary among the states. With respect to cases not involving fraud, the penalties range from 5% to 25% of the tax due. In cases involving the failure to file or pay as a result of fraud, penalties can exceed USD50,000 and result in imprisonment for any officers deemed responsible for the willful failure.

Similarly, all states impose interest on tax determined to be due that was not paid. In general, interest is assessed from the due date for any tax determined to be payable until the date of payment. The interest rate charged varies among the states. In general, interest rates vary from 1% to more than 14% annually. Some states determine their interest rates based on the prime rate, plus some additional percentage. Other states set rates legislatively. Rates set legislatively change less frequently, while those tied to the prime rate generally change quarterly, semiannually or annually, depending on market conditions.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- The supply of goods or services made in Uruguay by a taxable person
- The importation of goods from outside Uruguay, regardless of the status of the importer

C. Who is liable

A VAT taxpayer is any taxpayer for corporate income tax purposes that makes taxable supplies of goods or services in the course of doing business in Uruguay. Additionally, taxpayers of personal income tax for independent activities are subject to VAT as well as nonresidents rendering services in Uruguay or performing business activities. No registration threshold applies. The definition of a VAT taxpayer applies to a permanent establishment of a foreign business in Uruguay.

Exemption from registration. The VAT law in Uruguay does not contain any provision for exemption from registration. Registration before the tax authority is always mandatory for residents and nonresidents with permanent establishments in Uruguay. For other nonresidents, registration is not mandatory, as long as the foreign VAT taxpayer is subject to withholding for the obligations.

Voluntary registration. The VAT law in Uruguay does not contain any provision for voluntary VAT registration, as there is no registration threshold.

Group registration. VAT grouping is not allowed under the Uruguayan VAT law. Legal entities that are closely connected must register for VAT individually.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that does not have a fixed establishment in Uruguay. To register as a taxpayer, a non-established business must have an address in Uruguay.

Tax representatives. To register as a taxpayer, a non-established business must have an address in Uruguay and must appoint a tax representative to undertake its VAT obligations (such as filing returns).

Reverse charge. In Uruguay the importer entity should pay VAT on the taxed goods, no matter if it is a local or foreign entity.

Domestic reverse charge. Under Uruguayan regulations, there is no reverse charge as such.

However, there are some withholding agent regime measures related to VAT that are regarding goods and services that apply in the following cases:
- In the case of security, surveillance and cleaning services rendered to CIT payers for amounts higher than UYU40,000 excluding VAT (approximately USD1,050), the withholding would be 90% of the VAT.
- Moreover, if a taxed service is rendered in Uruguayan territory by a nonresident, a 22% VAT should be withheld by the CIT taxpayer client.

Also, some public bodies are appointed as VAT withholding agents for purchases of goods and services. In general, the withholding amount should be 60% of the total VAT.

Digital economy. Income derived from mediation and intermediation services related to the supply and demand of services rendered through the internet, technological platforms, computer applications or other similar means are considered to be Uruguayan-sourced income and, therefore, they are subject to VAT when both parties are located in Uruguay. Intermediation services means all services that are automated, require minimum human intervention and are not available outside of an application or similar software.

To determine whether the service provider is local, the provider will have to verify if the main business is located in Uruguay. To determine whether the acquirer is local, the location of the IP address of the device used for contracting the main service will have to be considered. If the provider's address or acquirer's IP address cannot be verified, regulations will treat the acquirer as located in Uruguay whenever the service is paid by electronic means administered from Uruguay. For mediation and intermediation activities, the withholding obligations are suspended. These provisions will be applicable exclusively when such activities are performed by nonresident entities that do not have a permanent establishment in Uruguay.

Online marketplaces and platforms. Additionally, for VAT purposes, audiovisual services provided directly through the internet, technological platforms, computer applications or other similar means are considered entirely Uruguayan-sourced, as long as the acquirer is located in Uruguayan territory. Additionally, the service acquirer is considered as located in Uruguayan territory when the IP address of the device used to contract the service, or the billing address, is located in Uruguay. In the case of continuous services (e.g., subscriptions), the determination of the acquirer's location must be performed at the time the service is contracted. If the IP or billing address cannot be verified, the acquirer will be deemed as located in Uruguay whenever the service is paid for by electronic means that are administered from Uruguay (e.g., electronic currency, credit or debit cards, and bank transfers).

The aforementioned does not apply to income derived from publicity, propaganda and technical services (including distant learning), even if rendered through the internet.

From 1 July 2018, Uruguayan corporate income taxpayers, state and local governments, and others are appointed as withholding agents responsible for collecting VAT on payments or credits for electronic services.

Registration procedures. Two printed copies of Form 0351 should be submitted to the tax office. Additionally, Form 0352 (individuals) or 0353 (legal entities) may have to be submitted in order to register representatives. The registration should be done when operations would take place. Additionally, a notary certification in Spanish would be needed containing information of the company and the representatives. If all documents are duly provided, the registration is finished on the same day the form is submitted. The corresponding representatives of the company submit the registration. The form should be signed by a person authorized by the company, but the submission to the tax office can be done by a third party. It is not possible to register online.

Deregistration. Deregistration is accomplished by submitting Form 0351, establishing that the entity is no longer a VAT payer. To deregister, the business should stop carrying on the activity that was taxed by VAT.

VAT payers include, among others, CIT taxpayers who perform taxed activities, personal income taxpayers for self-employed activity and nonresident income tax (NRIT) payers, except when their activities are related exclusively to obtaining capital gains or yields of capital.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 22%
- Reduced rate: 10%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate applies to all supplies of goods or services, unless a specific measure provides for the zero rate, the reduced rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Exports of goods

Examples of goods and services taxable at 10%

- Basic foodstuffs
- Soap
- Medicines
- Services supplied by hotels in "high season" to resident individuals
- Tourist services
- Health services

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT, and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Foreign currencies, securities, bonds, stocks and other financial transactions
- Milk
- Books, newspapers, magazines and educational material
- Water
- Services supplied by hotels in "low season" to resident individuals

Option to tax for exempt supplies. The option to tax exempt supplies is not available in Uruguay.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point." The basic time of supply is either when the goods are transferred or when the services are performed. The invoice for the transaction must be issued at the time of supply.

Deposits and prepayments. In principle, the taxable event for the supply of goods and services, is deemed to have taken place on the date of the invoice. However, the tax authority is empowered to establish another date whenever there is an omission, anticipation or delay in the billing.

In addition, it is important to note that the tax authority may authorize generally, for all the taxpayer's transactions, that the tax determination should be based on the date of the contracts.

Therefore, deposits and prepayments are not taxed if the taxable event does not ultimately take place (that is, if the services are not rendered or the delivery of goods does not happen) as the payments could not be considered to be the taxable event in themselves.

Continuous supplies of services. For ongoing supplies of services, the taxable event established in the Uruguayan VAT regulations is determined on a monthly basis.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. The time of supply rules provide that for VAT purposes, the taxable event occurs whenever goods are delivered and property rights are transferred (i.e., the owner can economically dispose of them at its will).

If goods are sent for "approval" or "for sale or return," the transfer of property on these goods would not happen. Therefore, no VAT is accounted for.

Reverse-charge services. Even though a VAT for reverse-charge regime for supplies of goods and services does not exist in Uruguay, if services are rendered in Uruguayan territory by a nonresident, the service provider is considered to be a VAT taxpayer and, thus, a withholding obligation arises for the payer.

Leased assets. In Uruguay there are two types of leasing: operative and financial. Both are treated as continuous supplies of services from a time of supply perspective (see above).

In accordance with Uruguayan law, by operative leasing includes a contract that gives the purchase option to the client at the end of the contract, but as long as such option implies a small amount (under certain circumstances determined on local regulations). Otherwise, it would be a financial leasing.

Leasing of real estate property in accordance with the Civil Code is exempt from VAT. Other operational leases are subject to VAT. Financial leasing is considered as sales and is subject to VAT depending on the goods supplied.

The tax treatment for "leasing" transactions with financial institutions is exempt from VAT. The leasing charge is exempted from VAT in the following circumstances:

- The contract must last at least three years.
- The goods subject to the contract have to comply with the definition of a utility vehicle given by the Uruguayan law and cannot be a real estate property affected to housing.

- The user must be a taxable person of one of the following taxes: CIT, farming CIT or transfer of agricultural and livestock assets tax.

If one of the circumstances mentioned above does not comply, the VAT applicable to the leasing would be calculated by the total amount of the payments expected in the contract, including the price of the asset and the accessory services.

Imported goods. The time of supply for imported goods is either the date of importation or the date on which the goods leave a duty suspension regime.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax (or credit VAT), which is VAT charged on goods and services supplied to it for business purposes. A taxable person generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax (or debit VAT), which is VAT charged on supplies made.

Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services supplied in Uruguay and VAT paid on imports of goods.

A valid tax invoice or customs document must generally accompany a claim for input tax credit.

Credit VAT would be recovered only if related, directly or indirectly, to sales subject to VAT or exports.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for making taxable supplies or for other business purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use by an entrepreneur). In addition, input tax may not be recovered for some items of business expenditure.

The following lists provide some examples of items of expenditure for which input tax is not deductible and examples of items for which input tax is deductible if the expenditure is related to a taxable business use.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Purchase of a car, van or truck by professional individuals

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Business gifts
- Purchase, lease or hire of cars, vans and trucks, except by professional individuals
- Advertising and sponsorship
- Parking
- Travel expenses
- Attendance at conferences and seminars
- Business use of home telephones and mobile telephones

Partial exemption. A taxable person generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax. If purchases of goods and services are not used for making taxable supplies or for business purposes, input tax may not be recovered. Input tax related to both taxed and exempted income (other than exports), should be apportioned and recovered based on the taxable person’s taxable and exempt income.

Capital goods. There are no special input tax recovery rules for capital goods. As such, the normal input tax recovery rules apply.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax (credit VAT) recoverable in a month exceeds the amount of output tax (debit VAT) payable, the excess credit may be carried forward to offset output tax in the following tax period. Nevertheless, input tax related to export sales can be recovered through credit certificates issued by the tax authorities.

For annual VAT returns, if the annual purchase VAT is greater than the annual sales VAT, the VAT credit is carried forward to the next fiscal year until it has been absorbed by VAT on sales.

Pre-registration costs. Before registration, some documents may have to be translated or notarized. Therefore, costs may vary depending on the company's situation. The cost of submitting a form, currently approximately UYU170, is updated every six months.

Write-off of bad debts. A bad debtor is considered to exist in the following situations:
- 18 months after the expiration of the payment obligation
- A check payment without funds
- Other similar situations

When the bad debt is recognized, the VAT that was accounted for by the supplier is reduced in the current VAT period. If the debtor subsequently pays, the company has to recompute the VAT deducted previously.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred upon purchases that are used for noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Uruguay.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Uruguay does not refund VAT incurred by foreign businesses unless the foreign businesses have a permanent establishment in Uruguay.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A VAT taxpayer must generally provide a VAT invoice for all taxable supplies made, including exports. A separate invoice is not required to be issued for an amount of less than UYU130, but all sales made in amounts lower than UYU130 must be recorded together in a general invoice prepared at the end of each business day. A VAT invoice is necessary to support a claim for an input tax credit.

Credit notes. A VAT credit note may be used to reduce the VAT charged and reclaimed on a supply of goods and services. A credit note must contain the same information as a VAT invoice.

Electronic invoicing. Currently, it is mandatory for certain taxpayers to apply to use electronic invoicing, subject to the size and category of the taxpayer. The tax authorities have established a calendar, detailing mandatory reporting deadlines according to the amount of sales made by each taxpayer. Even though the system is not mandatory for all taxpayers, any taxpayer can voluntarily request to be included in the system.

There is no need for an agreement between the issuer of the e-invoice and its customers when a taxpayer becomes an electronic issuer. When a taxpayer becomes an electronic issuer or wants to become an electronic issuer, it should start the reporting process established by tax authorities, which includes complying with a number of mandatory requirements.

An agreement between the electronic issuer and its customers could be necessary in the following scenario: for documents issued by the company to taxpayers who are not included in the electronic invoicing system or to final consumers, for which the issuance of the hard copy of the document involved is required. A hard copy may not be issued if the transaction does not involve the transfer of goods and the recipient expressly authorizes the receipt of the document through other means (e.g., email). This authorization must be obtained separately from the main agreement.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified VAT invoicing is not allowed in Uruguay. Nevertheless, a separate invoice is not required to be issued for sales to a final customers (i.e., for B2C not B2B sales) amounting to less than UYU140. In such cases, a general invoice should be issued at the end of each business day, including all sales that were not documented due to this exception.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Uruguay.

Proof of exports. Uruguayan VAT is not chargeable on supplies of exported goods. However, to qualify as VAT-free, exports must be supported by customs documents confirming that the goods have left Uruguay.

Foreign currency invoices. If an invoice is issued in a foreign currency, the amounts may be converted to Uruguayan pesos using the buyer exchange rate bill used between banks on the day before the transaction.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. VAT payers are always required to issue invoices for transactions. Documentation related to sales should also include separately the tax to be paid and the applicable tax rate. However, this last requirement does not exist when invoices are printed in the form of tickets using cash registers or electronic tickets (e-tickets).

Records. The records that must be held by taxable persons are as follows:
- Inventory book (which contains the balance sheets of the company)
- Diary book (which contains the accounting entries of the company)

Special accounts for VAT should also be kept and 22%-rate and 10%-rate transactions should be separated.

Record retention period. The general statute of limitations for tax obligations in Uruguay is 5 years, which may be extended to 10 years in cases of tax fraud, or other periods may apply for promoted investment projects.

Electronic archiving. Physical records should be kept physically (e.g., books), and electronic records should be kept electronically (e.g., accounting system).

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. VAT returns are generally submitted monthly. “Small VAT taxpayers” must submit returns annually. The tax authorities decide which businesses qualify as “small VAT taxpayers.” Monthly VAT returns are due in the month following the month in which the transactions are reported.

Periodic payments. All VAT taxpayers must make VAT payments monthly. Monthly payments are due in the month following the month in which the transactions are reported. The exact date for payment depends on the taxpayer’s registration number (RUT). VAT return liabilities must be paid in Uruguayan pesos.

Digital economy taxpayers may choose to file their tax returns (and execute their tax payment) in USD as long as:
- All transactions are documented in that currency.
- The taxpayer does not carry out other taxed activities in the country, or if they do, they are subject to withholding.

If taxable persons choose this option, it must be maintained for at least three fiscal years, provided the conditions to access the option are still met.

For annual VAT returns, if the annual purchase VAT is greater than the annual sales VAT, the VAT credit is carried forward to the next fiscal year until it has been absorbed by VAT on sales.

Electronic filing. Large taxpayers are required to submit tax returns electronically (with some exceptions, for example, if a tax return is reassessed and it includes a fiscal credit). All other taxpayers are allowed to submit their tax returns electronically through an online platform, if they wish to do so.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Uruguay.

Special schemes. A VAT taxpayer can submit a provisional annual tax return with the sole purpose of requesting fiscal credits with the tax administration.

VAT for small enterprises. Small taxpayers, that have not exceeded certain revenue thresholds in the previous fiscal year (approximately USD35,000 for 2018), can opt to account for VAT through a special regime called "VAT for small enterprises." Taxpayers using the scheme make reduced and fixed VAT payments on a monthly basis.

Annual returns. Small VAT taxpayers must file annual tax returns in the second month following the end of the taxpayer's fiscal year. For example, if a small VAT taxpayer closes its fiscal year in December, its annual VAT return is due in February. The exact date for payment depends on the taxpayer's registration number.

In case of professional individuals, VAT returns must be submitted annually (between June and August of the following year, depending on the calendar issued by the tax authority) although payments would be done bimonthly, e.g., payment of taxes corresponding to months January and February would be due in March.

However, large taxpayers are required to submit monthly tax returns.

Supplementary filings. There are several supplementary filings that apply, depending of the type of business, the type of VAT regime and the type of operation. Examples include:
- Informative form number 2181, including details of VAT on sales and purchases, which is applicable only to relevant or large taxpayers
- Informative form number 2183, including details of some VAT withholdings

Digital reporting. There are a number of digital reporting requirements in Uruguay. Examples include:
- Electronic invoicing, invoices are sent digitally in real time through the tax authorities' system
- Tax returns in most cases are filed electronically
- Disposal of electronic credit certificates for businesses
- Electronic payments

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. The penalty for late registration established by the tax authority is an economic fine of approximately USD20.

Penalties for late payment and filings. A penalty of 5%, 10% or 20% is imposed for late payment of VAT, and a penalty of UYU540, UYU560 or UYU610 is imposed for late submission of the VAT return. The penalty rate depends on the date of payment. In addition, interest is charged on late payments of tax at a rate that varies.

Penalties for errors. There are no specific penalties for errors in Uruguay. If taxes are not paid, irrespective of whether or not this arises as a result of an error, the penalties that can be imposed are those outlined above in Penalties for late payment and filings and below in Penalties for fraud.

Penalties for fraud. In cases of tax fraud, fines could total from 1 to 15 times the amount of unpaid taxes due to the infraction and the offense could be punished with a penalty of six months to six years in prison.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT is levied on turnover derived from the supply of goods and services in Uzbekistan (based on place of supply rules), including imports, unless they are zero-rated or specifically exempt. Any excise taxes paid are included in the taxable base for VAT purposes.

C. Who is liable

A taxable person is a person or legal entity that carries out a taxable transaction. A taxable transaction is a transaction involving the sale or importation of goods or services that is subject to VAT even if such transaction occurs only once. A person liable to VAT in Uzbekistan must register with the local tax service.

Uzbek legal entities and individual entrepreneurs with an annual turnover more than UZS1 billion (approximately USD105,000) have to register with tax authorities for VAT purposes. Importers of goods have to register with tax authorities for VAT purposes regardless of the annual turnover.

Exemption from registration. The VAT registration threshold in Uzbekistan is UZS1 billion (approximately USD105,000).

Voluntary registration and small businesses. Uzbek legal entities and individual entrepreneurs with an annual turnover less than UZS1 billion (except importers of goods) are eligible to pay revenue-based tax under simplified tax regime instead of CIT and VAT. However, they may become taxpayers on a voluntary basis.

Non-established businesses. Non-established businesses selling goods or services in the territory of Uzbekistan, are obliged to register for VAT if place of supply is deemed to be Uzbekistan. The basic place of supply rule for services is where the recipient of the service is located. There are some exceptions to the general place of supply rule, for example for advertising services and immovable property (located in Uzbekistan). If the recipient is registered for VAT in Uzbekistan, the recipient is responsible for accounting for the VAT.

For supplies made by non-established businesses, where the contract states VAT, the recipient in Uzbekistan withholds VAT at source. If the contract does not state VAT, the recipient accounts for VAT by way of the reverse-charge mechanism.

Tax representatives. Tax representatives are not required in Uzbekistan.

However, new rules for VAT on digital services were introduced from 1 January 2020. As such for non-established businesses supplying digital services to individuals in Uzbekistan, i.e., business-to-consumer (B2C), digital services are subject to VAT, and the non-established business must register for VAT in Uzbekistan. See the Digital economy subsection below for more details.

However, at the time of preparing this chapter, no exact detail has yet been published as to how non-established businesses must register for VAT in Uzbekistan, how they must pay the VAT, what documents are required etc. Therefore, it is possible that such businesses may be re-quired to appoint a tax representative, but this is not yet known.

Reverse charge. For supplies made by non-established businesses to businesses in Uzbekistan, i.e., business-to-business supplies (B2B), where the contract does not state VAT, the recipient must self-account for VAT by way of the reverse charge. However, this does not apply for supplies of digital services supplied to consumers (B2C). See the Digital economy subsection below for more details.

Digital economy. From 1 January 2020, nonresident entities providing electronic services to Uzbekistan individuals, i.e., B2C via the internet must register for VAT in Uzbekistan, calculate Uzbekistan VAT based on turnover of such services rendered (if place of supply is deemed to be Uzbekistan), file regular VAT returns (electronically) and pay the calculated VAT liability to the Uzbekistan tax authorities.

Registration procedures. Relevant notice for registration for VAT should be submitted to the tax authorities via the online platform or by an application in a written form.

Deregistration. Taxable persons may deregister for VAT if their turnover falls below the registration threshold.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
• Standard rate: 15%
• Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services unless a specific measure provides for the zero rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

• Exports of goods
• International transportation services
• Utility services provided to private consumers
• Goods and services supplied for official use to diplomatic missions

The term "exempt" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

• Financial services (e.g., banking and insurance)
• Sale of pharmaceuticals (e.g., drugs and medicines)
• Educational services
• Veterinary services
• Passenger transportation services provided by the government (i.e., the public transport system)

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point." The basic time of supply for goods is the earlier of when the goods are delivered, the receipt of the invoice or the title is transferred to the purchaser. The basic time of supply for services is the earlier of the acceptance of the supply of services or the receipt of the invoice.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

Input tax is VAT charged on goods and services acquired by an entity for business purposes. A taxable person generally recovers input tax by deducting it from output tax (VAT charged on supplies made). Input tax consists of VAT charged on goods and services purchased in Uzbekistan and VAT paid on imports of goods.

VAT payable to the budget is generally determined as output tax charged less allowed input tax paid on purchases. Input tax incurred in connection with the supply of exempt goods and services and on nonbusiness costs cannot be offset against output tax.

Partial exemption. Input tax directly related to the making of exempt supplies is, as a rule, not recoverable. If a taxable person makes both exempt and taxable supplies, it may not recover input tax in full. The amount of input tax that a partially exempt business may recover is calculated using the general pro-rata method or the direct allocation method. The method that is used is based on the accounting policy of the taxpayer.

For the direct allocation method, all input tax incurred that relates directly to taxable turnover can be offset in full. Then the input tax incurred for overheads is recoverable, based on the distributed ratio of turnover (total taxable turnover over total nontaxable turnover).

For the proportionate method, the taxpayer calculates the ratio of total taxable and nontaxable turnovers. That ratio is then applied to all input tax incurred.

Only the above two methods can be used in Uzbekistan, there are no special methods.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Non-established businesses not registered for VAT in Uzbekistan, cannot recover input tax incurred in Uzbekistan. This is, however, subject to certain potential exceptions. Nevertheless, input tax incurred in Uzbekistan by nonresident entities that are registered for VAT in Uzbekistan can offset their input tax against output tax.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. There is no specific VAT invoice format in Uzbekistan. However, there are general invoicing rules, which must be used. Invoices should be issued upon completion of the services or upon transfer of the goods. Invoices must be retained for input tax to be offset. If the services are rendered on an ongoing basis, the invoice should be issued at the end of the month.

Credit notes. If there are changes in the terms of the supply (e.g., change in the volume of supply, a price change, or if there is a return of the goods) the supplier may issue a credit note.

Electronic invoicing. With effect from 1 January 2020, electronic invoicing is now mandatory. There are no mandatory software providers for electronic invoicing.

Proof of exports. Proof of exports to support exemption with credit are the general commercial and transportation documents related to export sales, e.g., export declaration. Declarations should have the mark of the customs authorities where the goods have been exported from.

Foreign currency invoices. Invoices issued to foreign customers can be issued in USD or EUR, depending on the commercial terms of the agreement. If supplies are made within Uzbekistan, the invoices must be issued in Uzbekistani Som (UZS). The Central Bank exchange rates must be used for conversion, which are published on a weekly basis.

Records. All accounting records and supporting documents, invoices, contracts, and transportation documents, etc., must be kept by taxpayers.

Record retention period. Records must be retained for five years.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is not allowed yet in Uzbekistan. However as electronic invoicing is mandatory from 1 January 2020, new rules may be issued by the tax authority for electronic archiving. At the time of preparing this chapter, no rules have yet been issued. As such, physical records must be kept for now. Before 1 January 2020 all documents must be physically kept in Uzbekistan, but this may be subject to change.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. The filing of VAT returns is on a (calendar) monthly basis in Uzbekistan. Filing is due before 20th day of the month following the reporting period.

Periodic payments. Taxpayers must make VAT payments before 20th day of the month following the reporting period.

Electronic filing. VAT returns may be filed electronically, via the tax authority's website. It is not mandatory to file electronically but is strongly recommended. To file VAT returns electronically, the taxpayer must have an electronic signature from the tax authority's website to submit files online. However, if there is no possibility to submit VAT returns electronically, paper filing is still allowed.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. The penalty for late registration of VAT is 5% of the revenue subject to VAT, the penalty applies from the date when the VAT registration was due, until the actual date of registration. The penalty cannot be less than UZS5 million (approximately USD500).

Penalties for late payment and filings. For non or late payment of VAT, or for incomplete payment, a penalty is due of 20% of the amount underpaid or paid late.

For late or non-filing of the VAT return, the penalty is 1% of the tax due for each day of the delay, but not more than 10%.

Late payment interest is calculated 1/300 of the amount due, for each day of delay.

Penalties for errors. If an error leads to an understatement of VAT, late payment interest is due.

If an error leads to an overstatement of VAT, no penalties are due. An updated VAT return is required to be submitted to the tax authorities.

Penalties for fraud. A range of penalties may be applicable in the case of VAT fraud, but there is no specific fine for fraud.

For the concealed understatement of the tax base, a penalty is due of 20% of the concealed understated amount (i.e., a deliberate evasion). In addition, criminal sanctions and administrative fines may be imposed if the amount in question is significant.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
• The sale of tangible movable goods
• The final importation of goods
• The export of goods and services

- The provision of independent services performed or used in the country, including those coming from abroad

The definition of "services" includes the following activities:
- Any independent activity in which an obligation "to do something" is a principal element
- The provision of water, electricity, telephone and garbage collection services
- Civil works contracts, including personal and real property
- The lease of personal and real property intended to be used for purposes other than residential use
- The assignment of use of rights included in and regulated by the laws on industrial property (patents and marks) and intellectual property (copyrights), for valuable consideration

C. Who is liable

Taxable persons are ordinary taxpayers such as habitual importers of goods, manufacturers, traders, service providers, and, in general, individuals or legal entities that as part of their business activities carry out activities classified as taxable for VAT purposes.

Financial leasing companies and banks are ordinary VAT taxpayers with respect to the portion of the tax payable on the amortization of the price of tangible movable property, excluding interest.

Recipients of imported goods and services purchased from non-domiciled persons or entities are responsible for the tax due. As the "party responsible for the tax," the service recipient must declare and pay the VAT due on the imported goods or services. The tax paid by the recipient is treated as input tax for the responsible party and must be included in the tax return corresponding to the tax period in which the taxable event occurs.

Occasional taxpayers are non-habitual importers of tangible movable property.

Formal taxpayers are persons that exclusively carry out activities or operations that are exempt or exonerated from VAT.

Exemption from registration. The VAT law in Venezuela does not contain any provision for exemption from registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. The VAT law in Venezuela does not contain any provision for voluntary VAT registration, as there is no registration threshold (i.e., all entities that make taxable supplies are obliged to register for VAT). The only exception would be a non-domiciled entity, which is not subject to registration, but still can file for a voluntary registration.

Group registration. Group VAT registration is not possible in Venezuela.

Non-established businesses. Businesses that conduct business in Venezuela are required to register and obtain a taxpayer identification number even if they are not domiciled in the country.

Tax representatives. Part of the required process for becoming a VAT-registered entity is to appoint a tax representative.

Reverse charge. As a result of the "reverse-charge mechanism," the obligation to self-assess the VAT is switched to the recipient of the service. The law states the tax is self-assessed by the recipient "responsible" and "on behalf of the provider," but the input tax belongs to the recipient (the Venezuelan entity).

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Venezuela.

Digital economy. For business-to-business (B2B) digital transactions, the customer is required to self-assess the corresponding VAT using the reverse-charge mechanism, only when the provider is not domiciled in Venezuela.

For business-to-consumer (B2C) digital transactions, since individual consumers are unlikely to be registered VAT-payers, no VAT is anticipated.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplace and platforms in Venezuela.

Registration procedures. Individuals, corporations and entities, domiciled or not domiciled in the country, that conduct business in Venezuela are required to obtain a taxpayer identification number (RIF). Registration can be submitted online. Having a taxpayer identification number (RIF) is not a per se condition for being considered a taxpayer.

Deregistration. This occurs upon notification to the tax administration. This applies when taxpayers are liquidated or merged within another entity, in which cases the taxpayer ID of the entity that is absorbed or eliminated shall be deregistered.

Withholding of VAT. The SENIAT has designated taxpayers qualified as "special taxpayers" as the persons responsible for the payment of VAT in their capacity as withholding agents. Special taxpayers must serve as withholding agents of the VAT generated by the purchase of personal property or the provision of services provided by suppliers who are ordinary taxpayers.

The term "special taxpayers" is a category created by the tax administration referred to specific taxpayers that due to their high level of income or its business sector (i.e., oil and gas) are appointed as such by SENIAT and therefore are subject to additional obligations and formalities (specific calendar of compliance with tax returns/obligations as VAT withholding agent/VAT and income tax advance tax return made on a weekly basis).

The amount to be withheld is calculated by multiplying the price invoiced for the goods or services provided by 75% of the proportional tax rate (currently 16%). As a result, the effective withholding rate is 12%.

The VAT withheld is treated as an advance payment for the supplier and may be deducted from the tax liability in the period in which the withholding is made or in the period in which the withholding receipt was received, whichever is later.

If the tax withheld is higher than the VAT proportional rate in the relevant weekly period, the excess tax paid may be carried forward to the following periods until it has been deducted in full. If three periods expire and the excess has not yet been deducted, the taxpayer may choose to request a refund of the amount from the tax authorities.

If the withholding is made in the period from the 1st to the 15th day of the month, the tax withheld must be submitted by the withholding agent to the national treasury within the following five working days. If the withholding is made from the 16th to the last day of the month, the tax withheld must be paid to the national treasury within the first five working days of the following month. For taxpayers who have been qualified by the SENIAT as "special taxpayers," a different due date applies in accordance with the calendar issued by the SENIAT.

The VAT withheld must be submitted on a weekly basis, considering the calendar issued by the tax administration.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 16%
- Zero-rate: 0%

VAT law indicates that the minimum rate is 8% and the maximum rate is 16.5%. The National Executive also has the authority to determine the respective VAT rate (general rate and luxury consumption rate) within ranges provided in the VAT law. The luxury consumption (additional rate) is currently 15%. The 15% rate also applies to the sale or import of certain goods specified in the VAT law, and specific services.

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods and services, unless a specific measure provides for a different rate.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Exports of tangible personal property and tangible movable property
- Exports of services

Exempt goods and services are not liable to tax. The Venezuelan VAT law provides for the exemption and exoneration from VAT. Exemption is the entire or partial exemption of the payment of the tax obligation, granted by the special tax law. Exoneration is the entire or partial exemption of the payment of the VAT obligation, granted by the executive power.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 15%

- Membership and maintenance fees of restaurants, nightclubs and bars with restricted access
- The rental of ships or aircraft for civilians, among others, for recreational activities or sports
- Services provided by third parties through text messaging or other technological means
- Cars imported or manufactured in the country with a value equal to or higher than USD40,000
- Motorcycles imported or manufactured in the country with a value equal to or higher than USD20,000
- Airplanes used for exhibitions, advertisement, recreation or sports purposes
- Ships and vessels for recreation and sports purposes, or for particular use of its owner
- Gaming machines that use coins or cards
- Caviar
- Lease of ships for recreation and sports purposes or airplanes used for exhibitions, advertisement, recreation or sports purposes
- Services rendered on behalf of third parties, through text messages or other technological means

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Food and goods for personal consumption such as bread, rice, salt, sugar, coffee, milk, pasta and margarine
- Books, newspapers and magazines
- Education provided by institutions registered in the Ministry of Education, Culture and Sports and the Ministry of Superior Education
- Public transportation of passengers by land or sea
- Tickets to national parks, museums and cultural centers
- Banking and insurance services
- Imports made by diplomatic agents, in accordance with international treaties subscribed to by Venezuela
- Medical assistance services
- Residential electricity
- Fertilizers

Option to tax for exempt supplies. Option to tax for exempt supplies is not allowed in Venezuela.

E. Time of supply

VAT generally becomes due when the taxable event occurs.

For sales of tangible personal or tangible movable property the following is the time of supply:

- For sales to public entities: when the payment order is authorized
- For all other sales: when the invoice or the necessary documents are issued, or when the payment is due or made, whichever is earlier

For supplies of services, the following is the time of supply:

- For supplies of electricity, telecommunications, and broadcasting and television services: when the invoice is issued
- For services rendered to public entities: when the payment order is authorized
- For other services: when the invoice or equivalent document is issued, when the payment occurs or when the service is provided, whichever is earlier
- For services received from abroad that are not subject to customs procedures: when the invoice or equivalent documents are issued, when the payment occurs or when the service is provided, whichever is earlier

For all other supplies, the time of supply is when the invoice or equivalent document is issued, when payment is made or when the property is received, whichever is earlier.

Deposits and prepayments. In Venezuela, there are no special time of supply rules for deposits and prepayments. As such, the residual rule will apply (as outlined above) that establishes that for all other supplies not listed in the VAT law, the time of supply is when the invoice or equivalent document is issued, when payment is made or when the property is received, whichever is earlier.

Continuous supplies of services. In Venezuela, there are no special time of supply rules for continuous supplies. As such, the residual rule will apply (as outlined above), that establishes that for all other supplies not listed in the VAT law, the time of supply is when the invoice or equivalent document is issued, when payment is made or when the property is received, whichever is earlier.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. In Venezuela, there are no special time of supply rules for supplies of goods sent on approval for sale or return. As such, the residual rule will apply (as outlined above), that establishes that for all other supplies not listed in the VAT law, the time of supply is when the invoice or equivalent document is issued, when payment is made or when the property is received, whichever is earlier.

Reverse-charge services. In Venezuela, there are no special time of supply rules for supplies of reverse-charge services. As such, the residual rule will apply (as outlined above), that establishes that for all other supplies not listed in the VAT law, the time of supply is when the invoice or equivalent document is issued, when payment is made or when the property is received, whichever is earlier.

Leased assets. In Venezuela, there are no special time of supply rules for supplies of leased assets. As such, the time of supply rule for services applies. As such, VAT must be accounted for upon issuance of the invoice, payment or when the consideration is enforceable.

Imported goods. The time of supply for imports is when the registration of the customs return is due.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

Input tax (tax credit) is tax paid on supplies of goods and services acquired in the course of a taxable business activity. Input tax is deducted from the amount of output tax, which is the tax charged on the taxpayer's operations during the tax period. Input tax credit arises from the tax paid on the purchase and import of personal property or the receipt of services that are related to costs or expenses properly incurred in the habitual economic activity of the taxpayer. Under the VAT law, input tax is considered to be effectively paid by the recipient of the goods or services when the taxable event occurs.

If the input tax is higher than the output tax in the relevant monthly/weekly period as the case may be, the difference may be carried forward to the following periods until it has been fully deducted.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for making taxable supplies. Input tax may not be recovered if no documentation supports the transaction or if one or more formal invoice requirements are not fulfilled.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Goods acquired for private use by an entrepreneur

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Input tax is deductible on every item that complies with the requirements (subject to VAT and related to a taxable business use).

Partial exemption. There are no partial exemptions. Exonerations are temporary and can last up to five years.

Capital goods. There are no specific input tax recovery rules for capital goods. As such, the general input tax rules apply. The acquisition and sale of tangible movable assets will be taxable for VAT purposes whether or not such goods are referred to capital goods. In cases where acquisition of goods is used for both taxable and exempted activities, the attribution of the input tax shall be on a on a pro rata basis, in cases where it is not separately recognized. Regarding the use of the input tax from acquisition of goods note that such right is applicable for 12 months after issuance of invoice. This is the general rule to be observed under VAT law.

Refunds. If the amount of the deductible input tax is greater than the total tax payable in a tax period, the resulting difference is treated as a tax credit in favor of the taxpayer, which may be carried forward to the next or subsequent tax periods.

The right to offset tax paid (tax credit) against the tax payable on sales (tax debit) is a personal right of each ordinary taxpayer. This right may not be transferred to third parties, except in the following cases:
- Drawback of tax credits related to the purchase and acquisition of goods and services in the normal course of export activities (see Drawback of tax credits for exporters).
- Merger or absorption of companies. In a merger, the resulting company enjoys the remaining balance of the tax credit that corresponded to the merged companies.

Drawback of tax credits for exporters. Ordinary taxpayers that export domestic goods or services are entitled to a drawback of the tax credits paid for the acquisition and receipt of goods and services with respect to their export activities.

Application for drawback. To obtain the drawback of credits, the exporter must file an application with the SENIAT, stating the amount of the tax credit claimed. The SENIAT must give its opinion on the admissibility of the application within 30 business days. If the SENIAT does not express its opinion with respect to the application in the period of 30 business days, the taxpayer may choose to wait for the decision or consider the expiration of the period to be equivalent to the rejection of the application. In the latter case, the taxpayer may take the appropriate judicial action.

The drawback becomes effective on the issuance of special tax drawback certificates (Certificados Especiales de Reintegro Tributario, or CERT), with a face value equal to the amount approved by the SENIAT with respect to the claim. The exporter may use this amount to offset its own tax payments due to the National Treasury or it may transfer the credit to third parties.

Suspension of tax credits. A taxpayer that is involved with the development of an industrial project that takes more than six tax periods to be developed may suspend the use of the tax credits generated during the preoperational stage of the project. The taxpayer may use domestic and imported capital goods and purchase services that add value to the goods or that are necessary for the goods to perform the function for which they are designed, until the tax period in which they begin to generate taxable income. The tax credits are adjusted taking into account the consumer price index for the Caracas metropolitan area published by the Central Bank of Venezuela, from the period when the tax credits arose until the tax period in which the first tax payment is generated.

With the approval of the SENIAT, taxpayers that are involved in industrial projects aimed essentially towards exporting or generating foreign currency may choose to be refunded the tax paid during the preoperational stage.

Recovery of tax credits for special taxpayer. In the case where the withheld tax is higher than the tax quota of the respective tax period, the surplus that has not been discounted can be carried forward to the next tax period or the following ones, until its total discount. If after three tax periods there is a surplus that has not been discounted, the taxpayer can request the full or partial recovery of the accrued amount.

Recovery of tax credits for exporters. Taxpayers that carry out export activities related to goods or services of national production are entitled to recover the tax credits supported by the acquisition and reception of goods and services for their export activities.

Recovery of tax credits for oil industry. Mixed companies (empresas mixtas) that carry out activities related to oil and gas. Such companies are entitled to the recovery of tax credits related to the sale of natural hydrocarbons created in the country to Petroleos de Venezuela, S.A. or its subsidiaries.

Pre-registration costs. VAT incurred on pre-registration costs cannot be recovered in Venezuela.

Write-off of bad debts. Output tax accounted for on supplies that do not get paid by the recipient (i.e., bad debts) cannot be recovered in Venezuela.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred upon purchases that are used for noneconomic activities, is not recoverable in Venezuela.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

There is no procedure for the recovery of the VAT for non-established businesses.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. Taxpayers must provide VAT invoices for all sales of goods and supplies of services. Invoices may be replaced by other documents authorized by the SENIAT after such authorization is granted.

Credit notes. The VAT ruling establishes that the exchange or return to the seller of goods, merchandise or products purchased, made because they are in poor condition, expired, damaged, for not matching quality or characteristics to those actually acquired, or other causes, will not constitute a new sale, but will give rise to the issuance of credit notes or the issuance of new substitute invoices of the previously issued ones, which will be annulled.

If the merchandise is returned only in part, the tax credit will be limited to the part of the price corresponding to such part. The credit notes must be registered with a negative sign in the invoice column of the sales book. When substitute invoices are issued, it must be recorded in the sales book, in the same column where the amount of the voided invoice was recorded.

Electronic invoicing. In Venezuela, electronic invoicing is only permitted for taxpayers that are large services providers (usually utilities) and can be private or public legal entities, as per the following operations:
- Electricity
- Drinking water
- Domestic gas
- Urban cleaning
- Basic telephone services
- Mobile telephone services
- Dissemination by subscription
- Internet

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified invoices issued by tax machines (tickets) are allowed for ordinary VAT taxpayers, duty free shops and those that are not considered ordinary VAT taxpayers, when the annual gross income is higher than 1,500 tax units (1 tax unit is equivalent to VES50 — USD0.0025) and/or where businesses mainly execute transactions with customers that will not be using the invoice to support an expense claim, among other conditions.

Self-billing. Self-billing is allowed only when under reverse-charge mechanism (import of services).

Proof of exports. The document (e.g., commercial invoice, bill of lading, custom/export return) filed before the customs authority would be sufficient proof of export for VAT purposes. The sale made to a qualifying exporter would be subject to VAT. There is no legislation in respect of any special wording or legislative references required on a VAT invoice relating to an export sale.

Foreign currency invoices. Under Venezuelan law, if a VAT invoice is issued in foreign currency, it must also indicate the value of the supply in bolivars (VES), using the exchange rate published by the Venezuelan Central Bank on its website for the date of the transaction.

Administrative Order 00071, which contains general guidelines for issuing invoices and similar documents for VAT, was issued by the SENIAT and published in Official Gazette No. 39,795, dated 8 November 2011.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. There are no special rules that apply for VAT invoices issued for supplies made by taxable persons to private consumers.

Records. Taxpayers must keep in an orderly manner, as long as the obligation is not prescribed (6 to 10 years), both books, invoices and other accounting documents, such as magnetic media, discs, tapes and the like or other elements, which have been used to make the corresponding entries and records.

Record retention period. Records must be kept during the statute of limitation. Under Master Tax Code, the statute limitation is a period between 6 and 10 years.

Electronic archiving. Records shall be kept and archived in hard copy and electronically. Records must be available in case of any requirement from the tax administration.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. The tax is assessed for monthly tax periods. The tax return a must be submitted within the first 15 days following the tax period. It should be filed online.

In the case of special taxpayers, the VAT return shall be filed on a weekly basis on the week after the taxable events occur. The due date is established by the tax administration on a special calendar.

Periodic payments. The payment of any tax due must be submitted within the first 15 days following the tax period. It should be filed online.

Electronic filing. Electronic filing is required for all taxpayers and submitted online.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Venezuela.

Special schemes. The taxpayers qualified as "special" (high level of income) by the tax administration will act as withholding agents for the VAT invoiced by their suppliers of goods or services.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required to be filed in Venezuela.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in Venezuela. However, there is an obligation to maintain a sales book, among other books (i.e., a daily book, inventory book, mayor book (ledger), shareholder book, shareholders meeting minutes book). Nevertheless, these books must be provided to the tax authority only when it is required through a legal procedure. In this sense, it is not be considered a supplementary filing.

Digital reporting. No digital reporting requirements apply in Venezuela. VAT returns must be filed electronically (definitive/WHT/and advance VAT).

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. The penalty for late registration is closure of the office (when applicable) for 5 days and a fine of 50 tax units (currently, the value of 1 tax unit is VES50 [USD0.00201] at the FX rate of VES21,000VES1 to USD1).

Penalties for late payment and filings. The penalty for late payment and filings will be:
- Less than one year from the expiration date — a fine of 0.28% of the amount due for each day of delay up to a maximum of 100%
- After one year but less than two years from the expiration date — an additional fine than previously indicated equivalent to 50% of the amount due
- Delay exceeding two years from the expiration date — an additional fine to what was previously indicated equivalent to 150% of the amount due

The penalty for nonpayment of VAT due, is a fine between 100% and 300% will apply.

Failure to withhold VAT may result in the following penalties:
- For not withholding, a penalty equivalent to 500% of the tax not withheld, will be applicable
- For applying a withholding in a lower amount, 100% of the tax not withheld
- For late payment of the WHT, a penalty equivalent to 5% of the amount withheld for each day of delay up to a maximum of 100 days
- For nonpayment of the amount withheld, the penalty will be 1,000% of the respective amount and this will imply imprisonment between six months to seven years

Supplementary VAT returns (substitutive) are allowed when there is a VAT amount to be paid (output tax higher than input tax). Submission of substitutive (rectifying) declarations is subject to fines only after the file of the second substitution or when the first substitute declaration is submitted after the 12 months following expiration of the deadline for the presentation of the substituted declaration. In these cases, a 50 UT fine is assesed (1 UT equals VES50 – USD0.002).

Penalties for errors. Noncompliance of formal duties are sanctioned as follows:
- Failure to file the VAT declaration
- Incomplete filing of the VAT declaration
- Filing of the declaration in a form not authorized by the SENIAT
- Failure to exhibit accounting books when ordered to by the SENIAT
- Providing the SENIAT with false information
- Breaching the SENIAT's requirements for purchases and sales books
- Failure to issue invoices or required documents
- Issuing invoices that do not comply with tax requirements

Penalties for fraud. The penalty for tax fraud is a term of imprisonment, ranging from six months to seven years.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to goods and services used for production, business and consumption in Vietnam, including goods and services purchased from foreign suppliers, except for those specifically identified as not subject to VAT.

VAT on imported goods is payable by the importer within the same time limit for declaring and paying import duty.

C. Who is liable

Organizations and individuals that produce and trade in taxable goods and services in Vietnam or who import taxable goods and services from overseas (referred to in this chapter as "businesses") are liable to pay VAT. Businesses for these purposes include the following:

- Business organizations with business registrations issued under Vietnamese laws.
- Economic organizations of political, social, and professional organizations and units of the people's armed forces.
- Enterprises with foreign-owned capital incorporated under Vietnamese laws and foreign corporations and individuals conducting business in Vietnam that have not established a legal entity in Vietnam.
- Individuals, family households, partnerships and other forms of businesses conducting production, trading or import activities in Vietnam.
- Organizations and individuals conducting production and business in Vietnam and purchasing services (including services attached to goods) from foreign organizations without a permanent establishment in Vietnam or foreign individuals who are nonresidents of Vietnam.
- An Export Processing Enterprise (EPE) and its branches (if any) that are established to trade in goods and do the tasks related to goods trading in Vietnam in accordance with the laws of Vietnam.
  — An EPE imports goods for manufacturing and then re-exports the goods. An EPE is generally not subject to the requirement of VAT filing in Vietnam. However, under current regulations an EPE is also allowed to do some trading activities that are indicated in an EPE's business license. To perform trading activities, an EPE is required to separately account and declare relevant expenses/revenues from its manufacturing operations. Accordingly, an EPE is liable to register, declare and make payment of VAT for its trading activities. This means that trading activities conducted by an EPE and its branches (if any) shall be treated similarly to transactions of local entities.

No VAT registration threshold applies in Vietnam.

In certain cases, tax declaration and payment are not required. Examples of cases where tax declaration and payment are not required:

- Organizations and individuals that receive revenues from compensation (including compensation for land and land-attached assets upon land recovery under decisions of competent state agencies), bonus, support, transfer of emission rights and other financial revenues (except for compensation/cash supports received for the purpose of performing service of repair, warranty, sales promotion or advertising to supporters, in which case VAT declaration and payment are required)

- Services provided by foreign organizations that do not have a permanent establishment in Vietnam, limited to the following: repair of vehicles, machinery and equipment (including supplies and spare parts); advertising and marketing; investment and trade promotion; goods sale and service provision brokerage; training; and sharing of charges for international post or telecommunications services provided outside Vietnam between Vietnamese and foreign partners, and lease of communication and transmission lines and foreign satellite frequency bands in accordance with law
- Assets sold by nonbusiness individuals or organizations (which do not have to pay VAT when selling their assets)
- Organizations and individuals that transfer investment projects on production or trading of goods or services liable to VAT to enterprises and cooperatives
- Assets used for capital contributions

Exemption from registration. The VAT Act in Vietnam does not contain any provision for exemption from registration. Notwithstanding, EPEs and suppliers of non-VAT-able supplies are exempted from VAT filings (see detail above in respect of EPEs).

Voluntary registration and small businesses. Ongoing enterprises and business cooperatives that (1) adopt full Vietnamese Accounting Standards, as well as accounting books (together with invoices) under Vietnamese regulations and (2) generate revenue less than VND1 billion per year from the supply of goods and services subject to VAT, may apply to register voluntarily to deduct VAT.

A foreign individual or corporation doing business in Vietnam may also register if it satisfies the following conditions:

(i) It has a contract with a Vietnamese entity for more than 183 days.
(ii) It has a permanent establishment in Vietnam.
(iii) It adopts full Vietnamese Accounting Standards or keeps accounting books in accordance with Vietnamese accounting laws.

Group registration. Group VAT registration is not allowed in Vietnam.

Non-established businesses. Foreign contractors that have a permanent establishment in Vietnam, that conduct business in Vietnam for more than 183 days and that adopt the Vietnamese Accounting Standards/Hybrid Method pay VAT in accordance with the tax credit method and pay their tax liabilities directly to the tax office. Otherwise, they must pay VAT on a withholding basis.

If services are supplied by nonresidents, tax is payable only through the withholding mechanism.

As outlined above, there are two methods for VAT calculation (under the current VAT regulations) in Vietnam:

- Credit method: declare the input and output VAT and pay to authority the offset amount between output and input tax
- Withholding method/direct method: fixed tax rate on added value/revenue

A foreign contractor will elect the most suitable method for its VAT filings in Vietnam, subject to fulfillment of relevant conditions. For example, if it anticipates that it will incur a lot of local input tax, it will apply credit method.

The tax authority will issue a tax number for each foreign contractor (FC) when they register directly with the tax authority. Otherwise, the Vietnamese contracting party will be responsible for registering and declaring the tax liability for the FCs on their behalf.

Tax representatives. Tax representatives are not allowed in Vietnam.

Reverse charge. Reverse-charge services relate to foreign contractors who apply the foreign contractor tax (FCT) declaration under the deemed method. Upon making the payment, the Vietnamese purchasers must self-assess and withhold the FCT amount (including VAT and corporate income tax).

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Vietnam.

Digital economy. For business-to-business (B2B) transactions, the supply of a lease/rent/license for the right to use intellectual property (IP) may be subject to VAT, since it is not considered as a transfer of ownership right in accordance with the Vietnam law on intellectual ownership rights. If the supplier is a nonresident business, the customer should withhold, declare and pay VAT via the withholding tax regime. The applicable VAT rate for the payment of such activities is 5%.

For business-to-consumer (B2C) transactions, the individual customer makes payment directly to the nonresident business (e.g., by way of credit card). By regulations, there should be a WHT of 5% VAT on the payment, but in practice, there is no mechanism to enforce the withholding and payment of tax by the individual.

Online marketplaces and platforms. New rules will come into effect from 1 July 2020 for cross-border business activities based on digital intermediary platforms. The foreign parties must register for VAT directly with the tax authority. For e-commerce trading, i.e., business based on digital platforms, and other services performed by foreign suppliers having no permanent establishment in Vietnam, the foreign suppliers have to directly register for VAT and pay VAT based on the regulations by the MOF.

Registration procedures. For newly established businesses that have completed incorporation procedures and received an incorporation license, the incorporation number shown on the license serves as the tax registration number. No separate registration procedures are required. The local business registration office/authority shall — internally — inform the local tax office where a newly established business is located.

When a newly established business has an office, factory, branch or outlet engaging in direct sales in another province, different from the locality of the headquarter, such office, factory, branch or outlet must separately pay VAT to the local tax office where it is located, except for certain cases in which the head office can declare and pay VAT. However, there is no need to register with the local tax office of such office, factory, branch or outlet. When the headquarter sets up an office, factory, branch or outlet in another province, it shall need to update its tax registration information with a local business registration office/authority in the locality where its office, factory, branch or outlet is located. This registration office/authority shall internally inform the local tax office the number of this newly licensed office, factory, branch or outlet, which is also the tax number.

Other businesses (e.g., foreign contractors having a permanent establishment in Vietnam) must register for tax purposes within 10 working days from the date on which contract award agreements are signed. This registration requires the regulated form (i.e., Form 04-DK-TCT), a copy of contractor license (or the equivalent issued by competent authority) and a copy of the acknowledgment/confirmation of the registration of the project office establishment (or the equivalent issued by the competent authority). Within three working days of receiving the sufficient dossier, the tax authority will issue the tax code for the taxpayer.

Currently, there is no process for registering for a tax code online.

Deregistration. When the organization/individuals end their business in Vietnam, they need to proceed with the closure of the tax code after clearance of current tax liabilities (Article 16, Section 3, Circular 95/2016/TT-BTC).

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 10%
- Reduced rate: 5%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods and services, unless a specific measure provides for a reduced rate, the zero rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Exported goods and services, including goods and services sold to overseas organizations or individuals outside Vietnam, as well as goods and services supplied to organizations or individuals in non-tariff areas
- Construction and installation carried out overseas or within export processing zones
- International transportation

Examples of goods and services taxable at 5%

- Water (except for bottled water)
- Medicine and medical equipment (except for medicine included in medical service package)
- Teaching tools
- Agricultural products
- Residential housing for sale or lease

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Raw agricultural products
- Livestock
- Aircraft, oil rigs and ships that are not yet locally produced and that are leased from overseas
- Land-use rights
- Credit activities, credit guarantees, financial leases and financial derivative services
- Capital transfers
- Securities transfers
- Life insurance services
- Health services, veterinary medicine services, including medical examination and treatment services for humans and animals
- Care services for elderly people and disabled people
- Education and vocational training
- Publication of newspapers, magazines and certain kinds of books
- Public transportation by bus and electric car
- Reinsurance services
- Technology transfers
- Public sewage services
- Foreign currency trading
- Debt transfers
- Credit card issuance
- Factoring
- Exported natural resources that are not processed or cover 51% into other products inclusive of energy cost

Option to tax for exempt supplies. Option to tax for exempt supplies is not allowed in Vietnam.

Foreign contractors. Foreign contractors that supply goods and services to Vietnam are subject to the following deemed VAT rates:
- Trading goods (separate value from service in the contract): exempt
- Services: 5%
- Construction and installation with supply of materials and equipment: 3%
- Construction and installation without supply of materials and equipment, or if supply of materials and equipment is subcontracted: 5%
- Supply of machinery and equipment with installation, training, operation and trial operation services, if the value of each activity is not calculated separately in the contract: 3%
- Transport and production: 3%
- Other business: 2%

VAT is withheld at source by the Vietnamese party to the contract, unless the foreign contractor has registered for tax.

E. Time of supply

For goods, the time of supply for VAT purposes (the tax point) is when the ownership or use rights of the goods are transferred, regardless of whether the payment is made. For services, the tax point is when the service is completely performed or when the invoice for the service is issued, regardless in both cases of whether the purchaser makes payment.

Deposits and prepayments. For services, the tax point is when the prepayment is made, requiring an invoice to be issued.

Continuous supplies of services. Vietnam does not have a special time of supply rule for continuous supplies of services. As such the normal tax point rules for services apply (see above).

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. If goods are returned to the seller because the buyer finds that the goods are not in line with a previous agreement between the parties in respect of their quality, quantity and characteristics, etc., the following applies. If the invoice has already been issued, an adjustment invoice should be issued by the buyer that clearly states the reason for the return and the amount of VAT. If the buyer is not eligible to issue the invoice, an adjustment minute should be prepared between the two parties as the evidence to make a VAT adjustment declaration.

Reverse-charge services. Reverse-charge services relate to foreign contractors who apply the Foreign Contractor Tax (FCT) declaration under the deemed method. Upon making the payment, the Vietnamese purchasers must self-assess and withhold the FCT amount (including VAT and corporate income tax).

Leased assets. Vietnam does not have a special time of supply rule for leased assets. As such the normal tax point rules for services apply (see above).

Imported goods. For imported goods, VAT becomes due at the time of registration of the customs declarations.

Installment sales. For installment sales, VAT becomes due when the purchaser possesses the right to use the goods.

F. Recovery of VAT by registered persons

Businesses may claim input tax paid on goods or services used for the production or trading of goods or services that are subject to VAT. Businesses recover input tax by offsetting it against output tax (VAT on sales).

To be entitled to VAT credit, a document evidencing payment made through a bank is required except for the case where the purchase value is less than VND20 million. Bank payments must be made from the bank account of the buyer(s) to the bank account of the supplier(s).

In general, a valid tax invoice must be retained to support claims for input tax credits. The tax invoice must state the pretax price, the VAT and the total amount payable.

The basis for determining the amount of deductible input tax is the amount of VAT stated on the following:
- Valid tax invoice for the goods or services
- Documentation evidencing VAT payment at the stage of importation
- Documentation evidencing VAT payment on behalf of a foreign party

If a business establishment discovers that it has not deducted an amount of VAT in its declaration because the tax invoice or receipt of the tax payment was omitted, it may make an additional declaration requesting the credit. However, any additional VAT credit declaration must be made before the tax authority issues a decision about any tax inspections carried out at the premises.

Nondeductible input tax. Businesses may not claim input tax paid on goods or services used for producing or trading nontaxable goods or services. They also cannot claim the input tax of the unrelated expenses or incorrect payment method as regulations.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible
- Food and beverage expenses for employees (snack, soft drink, moon cake).
- House rental fees for employees who have signed labor contracts with the company. In cases in which these expatriates are assigned to work in Vietnam by the foreign parent company but remain employees of the foreign parent company during their secondment period in Vietnam (i.e., they receive salaries and other benefits from the foreign parent company), and the Vietnamese entity and the foreign parent company enter into a written agreement that states that the Vietnamese entity shall bear all accommodation fees for these expatriates during their secondment period in Vietnam, input tax of these accommodation fees is creditable.
- Expenses paid in cash with the value of more than VND20 million.

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)
- Expenses paid for raw materials, offices supplies, transportation, etc.

Partial exemption. Businesses that produce or trade taxable and nontaxable goods or services must maintain separate accounts for input tax paid on goods or services used for taxable and nontaxable goods or services. If no separate accounts are maintained, the deductible input tax is calculated using a ratio based on the proportion of taxable turnover compared with total turnover.

Capital goods. "Capital goods" are defined as tangible fixed assets such as building, machines, equipment, etc. When capital goods are purchased and relate to both taxable and exempt supplies made by a taxpayer, an apportionment has to be calculated to work out the percentage of the goods that relates to the taxable supplies. This percentage can only be deducted as input tax, and the remaining percentage that relates to the exempt supplies is not allowed to be deducted. There are no special rules for capital goods in respect of time and duration of use.

Refunds. Businesses that pay VAT using the tax credit method (see the non-established businesses subsection above for detail on this method) are eligible for a refund of VAT in the following circumstances:
- The business exports goods and services (including goods imported) to export) during a month or quarter and has a credit balance of input tax of at least VND300 million at the end of that month. The refund is granted monthly or quarterly.

- An incorporated establishment is entitled to a refund if it is in the investment stage of a new project (except investment projects that construct houses for sale or rent but without constituting any fixed assets) and if it has accumulated input tax of at least VND300 million that has not been credited against output tax of its operating businesses. In the following events, a business shall not be eligible for a refund but can carry forward remaining deductible VAT on its investment project to the subsequent period:
  - The charter capital of the investment project of the business has not been fully contributed as registered as per the laws
  - An investment project is carried out by a business that undertakes conditional trade(s) but is not satisfying business conditions as per the Investment Law; in other words, such investment project is run by a business that engages conditional trade(s) but is not licensed thereto; by a business that engages in conditional trade(s) but is not qualified for this; by a business that engages in conditional trade(s) but is not permitted to perform this trade; or by a business that engages in but does not meet conditions to perform conditional trade(s) though not required by the laws on investment to be permitted or certified in writing.
  - An investment project is carried out by a business that undertakes conditional trade(s) but fails to sustain business conditions during its operations; in other words, such investment projects are run by a business that engages in conditional trade(s) but has its relevant license(s) revoked during its operations; by a business whose certificate(s) of eligibility for conditional trade(s) is (are) revoked; by a business that has the written permission revoked by a competent authority for conditional trade(s); or by a business that fails conditions to undertake conditional trade(s) as per the laws on investment. In this event, the business shall be ineligible for the refund of VAT upon the revocation of one of the said documents or upon being exposed by competent government authorities as having failed to meet the conditions for conditional trades.
  - The value of natural resources and/or minerals plus the energy cost of an investment project for extraction of natural resources and minerals that has been licensed since 1 July 2016 or an investment project for production of goods makes up 51% of its prime cost or above.
- The business establishment that uses the deduction method shall receive a refund of the surplus VAT or the VAT that is not completely deducted when there is a change of ownership, or when the enterprise is converted, merged, amalgamated, divided, dissolved, and bankrupt or shut down.
- Foreigners and Vietnamese people residing abroad who have passports or entry papers issued by foreign competent authorities shall receive refunds of VAT paid on goods purchased in Vietnam and taken abroad.
- VAT will be refunded when paid by programs/projects using nonrefundable ODA, nonrefundable aid or humanitarian aid.
- A taxpayer eligible for diplomatic immunity who purchases goods and services in Vietnam shall receive a refund of the VAT stated on the VAT invoice or the receipt that indicates the VAT-inclusive price.
- Refunds will be paid when a business establishment receives a decision on VAT refunds from the competent authorities and when VAT refunds are due according to international agreements to which the Socialist Republic of Vietnam is a signatory.

An application for a refund must be submitted to the tax authority (that is, to the tax department or to the general tax department in some special cases). Taxpayers may file an electronic claim online or file a physical claim directly or by post to the supervisory tax authority.

The notice detailing the outcome of the tax refund application shall be sent to the applicant within six working days (in the case of refund before examination) or within 40 days (in the case of examination before refund).

Pre-registration costs. A taxpayer may recover input tax it incurred prior to registering for VAT. It must hold the invoices bearing the name of the authorized business. The invoices of which the value is VND20 million or more (inclusive of VAT) must be reimbursed via the bank of the company, and not via the tax authority.

Write-off of bad debts. Input tax incurred in relation to bad debts can be recovered by taxpayers. The VAT must have already been written off as an expense, as a provision for bad debts.

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred in relation to noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Vietnam.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

A VAT refund is allowed only for businesses using the tax credit method. A foreign contractor that has no legal presence in Vietnam but conducts business or derives income from activities in Vietnam may recover VAT if it adopts the Vietnam Accounting Standard/Hybrid Method and it satisfies certain bookkeeping and tax registration requirements. To be eligible for VAT recovery, a foreign contractor must meet all of the following conditions:

- It has a permanent establishment in Vietnam or is a resident of Vietnam
- It conducts business in Vietnam under the contractor's or subcontractor's contract for 183 days or more beginning on the date on which the contract takes effect
- It adopts the Vietnam Accounting Standard/Hybrid Method

Foreign contractors that do not apply the Vietnam Accounting Standard/Hybrid Method may not recover input tax unless a specific international agreement entered into by Vietnam provides otherwise.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A taxable person must provide an invoice for all taxable supplies made, including exports. There are four categories of invoices:

- Invoices of exports for exporting transactions (i.e., the commercial invoice is required instead of VAT invoice)
- VAT invoices for domestic transactions of taxpayers applying the tax credit method
- Sales invoices for domestic transactions of taxpayers applying the direct method
- Others, including receipts, tickets and other vouchers

The invoices can be presented in the following three forms:

- Self-printed invoice: wholly printed by the taxpayer's printers
- Invoice printed by order: produced by a printing house by order of taxpayer or tax authorities for provision or sale to taxpayer
- Electronic invoice: must be created, issued and processed on computers of issuer under the law on e-transactions

The tax authorities may sell only blank invoices to a few specified persons such as nonbusiness organizations, individuals and households that generate sale revenue.

A valid invoice is necessary to support a claim for input tax deduction.

Credit notes. Credit notes are not available in Vietnam. An adjustment or cancellation to a supply is reflected by way of an adjustment invoice. If it is return of goods, the buyer is required to issue an invoice to the seller. In case an issued invoice is found incorrect before it is given to the buyer, the seller shall cross out the copies and keep the incorrect invoice.

In case an issued invoice is found incorrect after it is given to the buyer but before goods are delivered or services are provided, or after it is given to the buyer but before the buyer and the seller declare tax, the invoice shall be void; the buyer and the seller shall make a record on withdrawal of copies of the incorrect invoice. The withdrawal record must specify the reasons for invoice withdrawal. The seller shall cross out the copies, keep the incorrect invoice and issue a new invoice as prescribed.

In case an invoice is found incorrect after it is given to the buyer, goods are delivered or services are provided, the buyer and the seller are declared tax, the buyer and the seller shall make a record or a written agreement specifying the errors, then the seller shall make a corrective invoice. The corrective invoice must specify the adjustment (increase or decrease) to the quantity of goods, sale prices, VAT rates, VAT amounts on the invoice number. According to the corrective invoice, the buyer and the seller shall adjust the sales, input tax and output tax. Negative numbers must not be written on the corrective invoices.

Electronic invoicing. An electronic invoice is legally valid when it satisfies the following conditions:
- Includes all the compulsory information as prescribed and includes the date of issuance
- Data included on the invoice is under the format prescribed by the Ministry of Finance
- The information contained on an electronic invoice can be accessed and used in complete form when necessary

The electronic invoices can be presented in the following two forms:
- Electronic invoice with a certified code from the tax authority: an electronic invoice that is assigned an identification code by the tax authority before an organization or individual selling goods or providing services sends it to buyer
- Electronic invoice without a certified code from the tax authority: an electronic invoice that an organization selling goods or providing services sends to the buyer in the absence of a tax authority's identification code. Subject to the approval of local tax authority, business entity shall register to use such kind of electronic invoice via the portal of General Department of Vietnam Taxation

It is understood that from 1 July 2020 , the use of electronic invoices shall be compulsory for all taxpayers. During the period from 1 January 2018 to 31 October 2020, all taxpayers must well prepare to meet the information technology infrastructure requirements for electronic invoicing. Business entities can use different forms of invoices. However, the use of electronic invoices is encouraged.

At the time of preparing this chapter, it is understood that the implementation of electronic invoices shall be delayed from 1 July 2020 to 1 July 2022.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified VAT invoicing is not allowed in Vietnam. As such, full VAT invoices are required.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Vietnam.

Proof of exports. Exports of goods and services are zero-rated. Proof of export is required. The required documents to claim a refund of input tax include contracts for the sale of goods, legitimate invoices, customs declarations and proof of payment through a bank by foreign parties.

Foreign currency invoices. If an invoice is issued in a foreign currency, all values that are required on the invoice must be converted into Vietnamese dong, using an acceptable exchange rate.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. For the payment of purchases of goods and services valued at less than VND200, the supplier is not required to issue a VAT invoice unless the purchasers require one; however, at the end of the day, the supplier has to issue VAT invoice for the total of those such purchases.

Records.

Record retention period. The following general guidelines apply to the retention of documents and other accounting records:

- Documents to be kept for at least five years include those used for management or operation of the enterprise
- Documents to be kept for at least 10 years include accounting data, accounting books, financial statements and reports of independent auditing firms
- Documents to be kept permanently include those that are significant in terms of economics, national security and defense

Electronic archiving. Enterprises are allowed to choose whether to keep the records in physical form or electronically. Upon the request from competent authorities for the purpose of inspection, enterprises might be required to print out the electronic records, sign and seal to provide.

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. Businesses are generally required to file a monthly tax return to the tax office by the 20th day of the following month. Exceptions are taxpayers that make quarterly declarations (permitted for businesses whose revenue in the previous year is VND50 billion or lower). Newly established entities must file VAT on a quarterly basis. After 12 months of operation as of the following calendar year, if eligible for quarterly VAT declarations for satisfaction of the condition on revenue of goods/services of the prior full calendar year, the entity can request permission of the local tax authority to continue declaring VAT quarterly.

If the entity is eligible for paying VAT on a quarterly basis but would like to change to the monthly VAT declaration, it is required to notify the local tax office under statutory Form No. 07/GTGT within the deadline of the first month of the year it commences the monthly VAT declarations at the latest. The method of VAT declaration must be fixed for three years.

Periodic payments. Businesses are generally required to remit the monthly VAT payable to the tax office by the 20th day of the following month or quarterly VAT payable by the 30th day of the following quarter.

Any excess input tax paid may be credited in the following period or refunded if the business is eligible for a refund (see Section F).

A business that imports goods subject to VAT must file a customs declaration and remit VAT payable on each occasion when goods are imported. The time limit for notices and payments of VAT with respect to imported goods is the same as the time limit applicable to notices and payments of import duties.

VAT liabilities must be paid in Vietnamese dong.

Electronic filing. A taxpayer doing business in a locality with online access shall make declaration, pay tax and make transactions with the tax authority as prescribed by the laws on electronic transactions. Different online systems (i.e., both online and offline software such as Tax Online, iHTKK) have been deployed across Vietnam to facilitate electronic filing.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Vietnam.

Special schemes. There are no special schemes for VAT available in Vietnam.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required to be filed in Vietnam.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in Vietnam. However, in case the tax declaration dossier submitted to the tax authority is erroneous or inadequate, supplementary documents may be provided within 10 years from the deadline for submission of the erroneous or inadequate tax declaration dossier but before the tax authority or a competent authority announces a decision on tax document examination.

Digital reporting. No digital reporting requirements apply in Vietnam. At the time of preparing this chapter, it is understood that electronic invoicing will be implemented to 1 July 2022.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. Failure to comply with registration requirements (if applicable) may result in a fine. The penalty for late registration ranges from VND400,000 to VND2 million, depending on the length of the delay.

Penalties for late payment and filings. Interest is imposed for late payment of VAT at the progressive rate of 0.03% per day from 1 July 2016.

Failure to comply with tax filing requirements may result in a warning or a fine ranging from VND700,000 to VND5 million, depending on the length of the delay.

Penalties for errors. The fine for understatement of tax payable or overstatement of refundable tax, exempt tax shall be 20% of the tax arrears or overstated refundable tax, exempt tax.

Penalties for fraud. Tax evasion or tax avoidance if incurring may result in a fine ranging from one to three times of the tax arrears.

Thresholds
Registration	ZMW800,000 in any 12 consecutive months ZMW200,000 in any three consecutive months
Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses	Yes (limited to exports)

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- Supply of goods and services in Zambia by a taxable person
- Reverse charge on services provided by a nonresident to a taxable person in Zambia
- Importation of goods from outside Zambia, regardless of the status of the importer

C. Who is liable

Any person who makes supplies of taxable goods and services in Zambia in the course of a business is liable to register for VAT if the person's turnover exceeds either of the following thresholds:
- Turnover of ZMW800,000 in any 12 consecutive months
- Turnover of ZMW200,000 in any three consecutive months

Turnover tax (tax charged on gross sales) rather than VAT applies to certain businesses, including those with a turnover of less than ZMW800,000.

Exemption from registration. The VAT law in Zambia does not contain any provision for exemption from registration where an entity qualifies as a taxable person. However, where the Commissioner-General is satisfied that all supplies of a business are zero-rated, they may by notice waive the requirement of the business to register. However, the Commissioner-General reserves the right to rescind the decision any time they deem it necessary.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. A taxable person with an annual turnover of less than the statutory registration threshold has the option to register under a voluntary registration if it satisfies the prescribed conditions.

A business registered under voluntary registration is required to:
a) Renew the registration every 12 months
b) Notify the Commissioner-General in writing 30 days before the expiry of the 12-month period of its intention to renew the registration

Group registration. Group VAT registration is not allowed in Zambia.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that does not have a fixed establishment in Zambia. A foreign company may not register for Zambian VAT unless it has a place of business in the country. It must also make taxable supplies of goods or services.

A foreign business that makes supplies in Zambia must appoint a representative who is responsible for registration for and payment of VAT. If an agent is not appointed, the non-established business may not deduct input tax (see Section F).

Tax representatives. Foreign companies or persons who do business in Zimbabwe but do not reside in Zimbabwe can appoint resident Zimbabweans to act as their representatives. The representatives can be held responsible for tax purposes on behalf of their principals in their representative capacities only.

Reverse charge. A reverse charge may apply for services received by a taxable person in Zambia from a non-established service provider. The Zambian VAT law requires that a taxable person must act on behalf of a non-established supplier of services with respect to matters relating to tax, in the following circumstances:
- The supplier is a company that does not have a business establishment in Zambia.
- The supplier is an individual or partner in a partnership that does not have a usual place of residence in Zambia from which to appoint a person resident in Zambia as a tax agent.

If a tax agent is appointed, the agent invoices the recipient of the services for the VAT payable, collects the tax and accounts for it to the tax authorities. The recipient of the services may claim input tax relief on the basis of the invoice issued by the tax agent (see Section F).

If no tax agent is appointed, the recipient of the service must self-assess for the VAT due and declare the output tax as if it were the supplier. However, in this case, no input tax relief may be claimed.

Domestic reverse charge. There are no domestic reverse charges in Zambia.

Digital economy. No specific rules apply. In theory, VAT applies based on the place of supply rules (but there is no mechanism to monitor supplies made to nonresidents). Before 1 January 2020, the VAT treatment of e-services supplied by non-established businesses would have been treated as an imported service. Effective 1 January 2020, the VAT Act has been amended to introduce the taxation of electronic services, whereby tax is payable on the provision of an electronic service in Zambia where that service is performed, undertaken or utilized in Zambia or the benefit of the supply is for a recipient in Zambia regardless of whether the provider of the service has a place of business in Zambia or the service is paid for outside Zambia.

As with other imported services, in the event that the non-established business has no registered office in Zambia, the supplier will be required to appoint a tax agent resident in Zambia to account for VAT. In absence of tax agent, the customer would account for the VAT as output tax.

Online marketplaces and platforms. No special rules exist for online marketplaces and platforms in Zambia.

Registration procedures. Businesses are required to apply for VAT registration if they deal in taxable goods and services, and their turnover exceeds registration threshold of ZMW800,000 per annum.

Businesses apply by filing a prescribed ZRA application form. The following documents must be attached:
- Sketch of map of location
- Bank statements covering a period of three months
- Business plan
- Certificate of registration or incorporation
- Evidence records like cash book, purchase daybook, sales daybook, invoice books, a set of accounts and confirmed orders/signed contracts for existing business
- Tax clearance certificate
- VAT knowledge form

Businesses whose turnover does not meet the statutory threshold may register for VAT voluntarily.

Deregistration. A taxable person whose turnover falls below the registration threshold for VAT is allowed to deregister after the end of the relevant accounting year. The taxable person is required to notify the Commissioner-General in writing through form VAT 99. To complete any deregistration, the taxable person is required to ensure that there are no tax obligations on that particular account.

D. Rates

The term “taxable supplies” refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rates are:
- Standard rate: 16%
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods or services, unless a specific measure provides for the zero rate or an exemption.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Exports of goods
- Books and newspapers

- Foreign aid donations
- Medical supplies and drugs
- Bread and wheat

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that does not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Health and educational services
- Supply of water and sewerage services
- Most public transport services
- Real estate transactions
- Financial services (except fee-based banking services, which are subject to VAT at standard rate)
- Insurance services (except property insurance and casualty insurance, which are subject to VAT at the standard rate)
- Basic foods
- Agricultural supplies

Option to tax for exempt supplies. Option to tax for exempt supplies is not allowed in Zambia.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply" or "tax point." In Zambia, the tax point is when the earliest of the following events occurs:
Goods:

- The time when they are removed from the seller or supplier's premises
- The time when made available to the person to whom they are supplied
- Then a payment is received
- The time when a tax invoice is issued

Services:

- The time when a of supply for prepayments is the date when payment is received
- The time when a tax invoice is issued
- The time when they are actually rendered or performed

Deposits and prepayments. Most deposits serve primarily as advance payments and they therefore create tax points when received. However, certain deposits are not consideration for a supply and their receipt does not create a tax point. This latter treatment includes deposits taken as security to ensure the safe return of goods hired out, provided that form part of the consideration, the time of supply is when the deposit is refunded when the goods are returned safely.

Continuous supplies of services. If a supplier provides services on a continuous basis and receives payments regularly or from The time to time, the tax point is the earliest of the conditions as stated above being met. Examples include supplies of water, gas or any form of power, heat, refrigeration or ventilation, etc.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. When a business supplies goods on "sale or return" terms, the goods have not been sold and the supplier still owns them until such time as the customer adopts them. Adoption means the customer pays for them or otherwise indicates willingness to keep them. Until the goods are adopted, the customer has an unqualified right to return them at any time, unless there is an agreed time limit. The tax point for these consignments is the earliest of the date of adoption, payment or invoicing.

Reverse-charge services. The tax point is the time when tax is due and payable. It is, the earliest of the following:

(a) The time when a payment is received

(b) The time when a tax invoice is issued
(c) The time when the services are actually rendered or performed

Leased assets. The time when leasing services are supplied for VAT purposes is whichever is the earliest of the following times:
(a) The time when payment of the lease rental is received from the lessee
(b) The time when the lessor issues a tax invoice
(c) The time when the leasing services are rendered, and this condition will only be satisfied at the expiry of the lease period

In practice, a lease rental will generally be received by the lessor before conditions (b) and (c) can occur and this is taken to be the tax point.

Imported goods. The time of the supply for imported goods is either the date of importation or the date on which the goods leave a duty suspension regime.

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A taxable person may recover input tax, which is VAT charged on goods and services supplied to it for business purposes. Input tax is claimed by deducting it from output tax, which is VAT charged on supplies made.

Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services purchased in Zambia and VAT paid on imports of goods and services.

Nondeductible input tax. VAT may not be recovered on purchases of goods and services that are not used for business purposes (for example, goods acquired for private use by an entrepreneur). In addition, input tax may not be recovered on certain business expenses, including the provision of food, beverage, entertainment, amusement, recreation or hospitality of any kind and any incidental transportation provided to any person by a taxable supplier whether directly or indirectly, in connection with a business carried on by a taxable supplier.

The following lists provide some examples of items of expenditure for which input tax is not deductible and examples of items for which input tax is deductible if the expenditure is for purposes of making a taxable supply.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Purchase and hire of passenger cars
- Business gifts valued at more than ZMW100
- Office, home and mobile telephone service
- Domestic refrigeration equipment, air conditioners, mobile phones, motor vehicle parts, digital satellites, television sets, decoders, video players, curtains and construction of dwelling houses for staff
- Business entertainment
- Fuel for passenger vehicles
- Petrol
- Diesel (recovery restricted to 90%)

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Purchase, hire and maintenance of commercial motor vehicles
- Business gifts valued at less than ZMW100
- Mobile telephone handsets
- Hotel accommodations
- Utilities
- Educational material

Partial exemption. Where a taxable person incurs input tax that relates to both taxable and exempt supplies, the input tax that is wholly attributable to the taxable supplies can be recovered in full (subject to the partial exemption rules). Input tax that is fully attributable to exempt supplies cannot be recovered. This situation is referred to as "partial exemption." In Zambia, if a taxable person supplies both taxable and exempt goods and services, the amount of input tax recoverable is calculated using a simple pro rata method based on the value of taxable and exempt supplies made.

Capital goods. No special input tax rules apply to VAT incurred upon capital goods. As such, normal input tax recovery rules (as outlined above) apply.

It is worth noting, however, that capital goods are subject to VAT at the standard rate except where expressly exempted. Thus, input tax would be claimable by a taxable supplier subject to the normal recovery rules. However, when goods are imported into Zambia (which includes removing from an approved bonded warehouse), VAT, together with any import duties, is payable at importation except for exempt goods. There may be some exceptions for goods imported pursuant to the Customs and Excise (General) Regulations.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax in a period exceeds the amount of output tax due, a taxable person may request a VAT refund. VAT refunds are generally paid within three months, subject to the audit of the respective period and approval of the refund by the tax authorities. However, no interest is payable if the refund is paid late.

Pre-registration costs. Businesses registered within one month after becoming liable to register are eligible to claim input tax incurred three months prior to registration.

Write-off of bad debts. VAT paid to the authority but not received from a customer may, subject to the rules below, be claimed back:

- The debt has been outstanding for 18 months or more.
- The debtor has been declared insolvent by a court of law, i.e.,
  - If the defaulting customer is a person, sole trader or partnership, who has been declared bankrupt by the courts
    Or
  - If the debtor is a limited company, the court has ordered it's winding up and an appointed liquidator or receiver has issued a certificate to the effect that in his opinion the company would not meet the debts of unsecured non-preferential debts

To satisfy the revenue authority that claims to bad debt relief are valid, VAT-registered suppliers claiming bad debt relief should retain the following documentary evidence:

- A copy of the tax invoice issued to the debtor in connection with the supply that later became a bad debt
- Evidence that the VAT being claimed as bad debt relief was remitted to the authorities
- Copies of correspondence referred to in steps 1 and 2 above

Noneconomic activities. Input tax incurred in relation to noneconomic activities is not recoverable in Zambia.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Zambia does not generally refund VAT incurred by a foreign business unless it is registered for VAT. However, a refund scheme allows a VAT refund to be paid to a non-established business that purchases goods from a Zambian VAT-registered supplier for onward export.

The refund scheme applies to foreign passport holders that are on a business visit to Zambia. The scheme applies only to commercial export consignments that do not otherwise qualify for VAT zero rating. The refund is restricted to VAT paid on goods supplied by a participating supplier. VAT incurred on other expenditure in Zambia is not recoverable using this scheme.

Refund application. The foreign exporter pays the full VAT amount on the export consignment to a participating supplier at the time of purchase. The first time that the scheme is used, the participating supplier must issue a commercial export tax invoice (Form VAT 283) and a commercial export authorization (Form VAT 284). For subsequent exports, the supplier need only issue Form VAT 283. The exporter must declare the goods to Customs at the port of exit from Zambia, and, at the same time, submit Forms VAT 283 and VAT 284 for verification and certification.

Customs officials at the port of exit retain copies of Forms VAT 283 and VAT 284 for first exports and subsequently dispatch them to the Zambia Revenue Authority for processing. The exporter may retain a certified copy of the forms for its records.

After the refund has been processed, the amount is sent to the exporter's destination address or an authorized representative may collect the refund in Lusaka. The exporter must indicate an authorized representative on Form VAT 284.

To qualify for this scheme, the export should be sent through the following designated exit points from Zambia:
- Lusaka International Airport
- Mpulungu Border Post
- Kasumbalesa Border Post
- Mwami Border Post
- Nakonde Border Post
- Chirundu Border Post
- Kazungula Border Post
- Victoria Falls Border Post

To participate in the scheme, a foreign business must apply in writing to the Commissioner of Value Added Tax. An application form (Form VAT 282) may be obtained by writing to the following address:

The Assistant Commissioner — VAT Credibility
Zambia Revenue Authority
1st Floor, Eastern Wing
Revenue House
Private Bag W136
Lusaka
Zambia

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A supplier of taxable goods and services must issue a tax invoice to the purchaser. A valid tax invoice is required to accompany all claims for input tax deduction. The period for which tax invoices can be used to support input tax recovery is three months.

All tax invoices must be issued from a ZRA approved software package. Taxpayers are able to apply for approval from the tax authority of their accounting packages prior to the issuance of invoices.

Effective 1 January 2020 taxpayers are also required to use electronic fiscalized devices (EFDs). Taxpayers must have the EFD in place at the time of registering for VAT. The application for EFDs can be done electronically (via the tax online system) or physically (by paper in person). The statutory provision allows for the Commissioner-General to apply his discretion in approving the use of a document, device or equipment other than an EFD for a certain category of taxpayers. It is mandatory to capture and electronically transmit to the ZRA the taxpayer identification number (TPIN) and names of both the buyer and seller of goods and services in all business-to-business and business-to-government transactions.

Credit notes. A credit note may be used to reduce the VAT charged on a supply of goods or services. Credit notes should show the same information as tax invoices.

Electronic invoicing. Electronic invoicing is not mandatory in Zambia but is allowed and is being encouraged. Suppliers with computerized accounting packages (in-house or off-the-shelf) that have not already been approved by the Commissioner-General are required to apply for approval.

Eligible accounting packages must have the capacity to:
(a) Print tax invoices, credit notes and debit notes bearing all the mandatory features of a tax invoice
(b) Generate automatic and consecutive document numbering with inbuilt safeguards against reallocation or resetting of the numbers in any circumstance; transactions, once posted and a tax invoice has been printed, must become read-only to all users
(c) Or, where editing is possible, a read-only audit trail showing the original details is built into the program
(d) Produce periodic transaction reports showing the invoice number, invoice date, customer's name, description of goods or services supplied, value before VAT and VAT amount

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified VAT invoicing is not allowed in Zambia. As such, full VAT invoices are required.

Self-billing. Self-billing is not allowed in Zambia.

Proof of exports. Goods exported from Zambia are zero-rated. However, to qualify for a zero rating, exports must be supported by customs evidence that proves the goods have left the country.

Foreign currency invoices. Invoices issued using a foreign currency must indicate the equivalent in Zambian kwacha using the exchange rate for the date of the transaction.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. There are no special VAT rules for supplies made to private consumers. A tax invoice must be issued for all supplies.

Records.

Record retention period. All records and accounts, including tax invoices and credit notes, must be preserved in English for a minimum of six years and made available for inspection to authorized officers of the ZRA on demand.

Electronic archiving. The VAT Act does not specifically provide for electronic archiving. However, it is recommended to archive records electronically in addition to manual archiving (i.e., by paper).

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. The tax period for VAT is one month. Returns must be filed by the 16th for withholding VAT and the 18th day for normal VAT after the end of the tax period. Electronic filing of VAT returns is mandatory if there are 10 or more transactions.

Withholding VAT is a mechanism where the responsibility to account for and pay the VAT due on the supply of goods or services is shifted to the person making the payment, i.e., the customer. Withholding VAT works very much in the same way as normal VAT. The revenue authority through the Commissioner-General appoints agents for purposes of withholding VAT on payments made to VAT-registered suppliers. Normally, large companies with a lot of suppliers are appointed as withholding VAT agents, e.g., mining and manufacturing companies. Once the agent is appointed, the legal obligation of the VAT due on all supplies shifts to the agent from the supplier. Therefore, ultimately, the responsibility to ensure that all the VAT that is due on the agents' purchases is properly accounted for and is remitted to the revenue authority by the due date shifts to the agent.

Periodic payments. Payment is due in full by the same date as the filing deadline of the VAT return (see above).

Electronic filing. Electronic filing of VAT returns is mandatory for all VAT taxpayers; however, the law provides for submission of manual returns for taxable businesses with less than 10 transactions in a tax period.

Payments on account. Payments on account are not required in Zambia.

Special schemes.

Cash accounting. All VAT registered businesses are required by law to account for tax based on the invoices issued, except where the law has given relief for cash accounting. The businesses, which are permitted to use the payment or cash accounting basis, are required to account for VAT to the extent that payment has been made or received. Therefore, output tax is accounted for on payments received and input tax is recovered only on those invoices where payment has been made for taxable supplies received.

The cash accounting concession is restricted to businesses that carry on mining activities and are licensed under the Mines and Mineral Development Act and to members of the Association of Building and Civil Engineering Contractors (ABCEC).

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required to be submitted for VAT in Zambia.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in Zambia.

Digital reporting. Electronic invoicing is not mandatory in Zambia but is allowed and is being encouraged.

Effective 1 January 2020, taxpayers are also required to use electronic fiscalized devices (EFDs). Taxpayers must have the EFD in place at the time of registering for VAT. The application for EFDs can be done electronically (via the tax online system) or physically (by paper in person). The statutory provision allows for the Commissioner-General to apply his discretion in approving the use of a document, device or equipment other than an EFD for a certain category of taxpayers. It is mandatory to capture and electronically transmit to the ZRA the taxpayer identification number (TPIN) and names of both the buyer and seller of goods and services in all business-to-business and business-to-government transactions.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. K3,000 (10,000 penalty units) for each tax period that the taxpayer is eligible to register but remains unregistered. The taxpayer is also liable to an assessment on the sales made in the same period; input tax deduction is not allowed.

Penalties for late payment and filings. Penalties for late payment is 0.5% of the tax payable in respect of the period covered by the return for each day the payment is late. Interest is charged at the Bank of Zambia Discounted Rate plus 2%.

Penalties for late filings is K300 (1,000 penalty units) per day or 0.5% of the tax due, whichever is the greater, for each day the return is late.

Penalties for errors. Interest is chargeable at the Bank of Zambia discount rate plus 2% on amounts underdeclared on VAT returns, e.g., under-declarations discovered and assessed following a VAT inspection visit.

Failure to issue a tax invoice from an approved computer package, preprinted tax invoice book or a fiscalized cash register can result in penalty of K90,000 (300,000 penalty units).

Penalties for fraud. Penalties for the issuance of false returns and statements attract a fine of up to K6,000 (20,000 penalty units) or imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years, or both. Penalties for fraudulent evasion of tax attracts a fine of up to K9,000 (30,000 penalty units) or six times the amount of the tax sought to be evaded or recovered, whichever is greater, or imprisonment for a term not exceeding three years, or both.

B. Scope of the tax

VAT applies to the following transactions:
- The supply of goods and services in Zimbabwe by a “registered operator” (see Section C)
- The importation of goods into Zimbabwe by any person

- The supply of imported services by any person
- The supply of goods and services through an auctioneer

C. Who is liable

A "registered operator" is required to account for output tax on all goods and services supplied unless the supply is specifically exempt or zero-rated.

A "registered operator" is a person who is or is required to be registered under the VAT act. It includes a person who makes supplies of taxable goods and/or services in Zimbabwe in the course of a business. A person includes a public authority, local authority, company or body of persons, whether corporate or unincorporated, the estate of a deceased or insolvent person and a trust fund.

The VAT registration threshold from 2012 to 2019 was USD60,000. With effect from 1 January 2020 the threshold is Zimbabwean RTGS dollar (RTGS)1 million. A taxable person must notify ZIMRA of its obligation to register for VAT within 30 days of becoming obligated to register.

The auctioneer through whom a non-registrant supplies goods and services is responsible for the VAT on the supply of such goods and services.

Exemption from registration. The VAT Act in Zimbabwe does not contain any provision for exemption from registration.

Voluntary registration and small businesses. Generally not allowed in Zimbabwe who may set threshold for voluntary registration from time to time. There are also no special rules for small businesses. The law requires a trader to satisfy the Commissioner General that they are eligible to register for VAT. ZIMRA generally rejects an application for registration if the applicant's annual turnover is less than RTGS1 million per annum. A company cannot apply for VAT registration for purposes of recovering input tax.

However, the Commissioner can set the turnover threshold for voluntary registration on a special case basis, upon its approval.

Group registration. Group VAT registration is not allowed in Zimbabwe. Each entity in a group has to be registered separately if it transacts in taxable supplies and meets the threshold for value-added tax registration of RTGS1 million per annum.

Non-established businesses. A "non-established business" is a business that does not have a fixed establishment in Zimbabwe. A non-established business that makes supplies of goods or services in Zimbabwe must appoint a representative to register for VAT. The representative must be resident in Zimbabwe.

Tax representatives. Foreign companies or persons who do business in Zimbabwe but do not reside in Zimbabwe can appoint resident Zimbabweans to act as their representatives. The representatives can be held responsible for tax purposes on behalf of their principals in their representative capacities only.

Reverse charge. The reverse-charge mechanism is not in place in Zimbabwe. An importer of goods is required to pay VAT. The recipient of "imported services" is required to pay VAT on these services. "Imported services" refer to a supply of services that is made by a supplier who is resident or carries on business outside Zimbabwe to a recipient who is a resident of Zimbabwe to the extent that such services are used or consumed in Zimbabwe. With effect from 1 January 2019, registered operators were required to pay VAT on imported services. However, the tax paid was not claimable as import tax. The tax is eligible for input tax starting 1 January 2020 following a change in law.

Domestic reverse charge. It is applicable in limited situations. The Commissioner's approval is required before it is applied. The domestic reverse charge applies to the following:
- Supplies of commodities
- Supplies made within the mining sector

For such supplies, the customer is required to self-account for the VAT due. It is also allowed to self-bill for the supplies made, as it is only the purchaser who can exactly quantify what and how much has been supplied, due to the nature of the supplies and sectors in scope.

Digital economy. There are no specific rules on registration of businesses that sell goods via the internet to customers who are in Zimbabwe. See the Online marketplaces and platforms subsection below. There are no special rules on B2B and B2C transactions.

Instead, VAT is accounted for by the customer where it imports services into the country. With effect from 1 January 2020, the supply of radio and television services from outside Zimbabwe to an address in Zimbabwe or of electronic service by an electronic commerce operator domiciled outside Zimbabwe to a person resident in Zimbabwe shall be deemed to be a supply made in Zimbabwe. This means operators are supposed to charge VAT at the standard rate. The obligation to charge and account for tax shall be that of the supplier or their duly appointed representative in Zimbabwe. Operators are required to appoint a representative taxpayer who will be responsible to account for the tax.

Online marketplaces and platforms. With effect from 1 January 2020, VAT is due on supplies made through online marketplaces and platforms in Zimbabwe. However, at the time of preparing this chapter, the legislation on this change has been released by the tax authorities, but no regulations outlining the detail on this change have yet been published.

Registration procedures. Every person who carries on trade is liable to register within 30 days if:
- Taxable supplies exceed RTGS1 million for a period of 12 months at the end of the month
- At the commencement of any month where there are reasonable grounds of believing that the total value of taxable supplies will exceed RTGS1 million from the month of intended registration
- Temporary increase in turnover such as sale of capital assets, cessation or substantial reduction in scale of trade and abnormal circumstances are not considered

Application for registration is made on form REV 1. The following documents should be attached to the REV 1.
- VAT 1
- Company registration documents or national identity document
- Bank statements for a period of at least three months prior to the date of registration
- Invoices issued in the last three months prior to registration

Deregistration. A registered operator may apply to be deregistered if the taxable turnover of goods or services in a period of 12 months does not exceed RTGS1 million or is not expected to exceed RTGS1 million in the period of 12 months commencing at the beginning of any tax period.

D. Rates

The term "taxable supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are liable to a rate of VAT, including the zero rate.

The VAT rate are:
- Standard rate: 14.5% (with effect from 1 January 2020)
- Zero-rate: 0%

The standard rate of VAT applies to all supplies of goods and services, unless a specific measure provides for the zero-rate or an exemption.

The effective date for collection of tax on the exportation of unbeneficiated platinum is 1 January 2022. In addition, exported unbeneficiated hides are subject to tax at the higher of USD0.75 or 14.5% of the gross value.

No VAT payable with effect from 1 January 2020 to 1 January 2025 on the value of unbeneficiated lithium exported in the form of spodumene and chemical grade petalite concentrate by a supplier of such lithium who, by 1 January 2020 commences or has commenced operations as a lithium producer in a Special Economic Zone.

Value-added withholding tax on taxable supplies is at the rate of one-third of the VAT payable on an invoice.

Examples of goods and services taxable at 0%

- Exports of goods (other than unbeneficiated hides and unbeneficiated platinum) and services that would otherwise be standard rated. This includes exports of financial services other than short-term insurance.
- Certain supplies of goods that are used exclusively in an export country
- International transport of goods and services
- Sales of businesses as going concerns to registered persons
- Gold sales to the central bank, Fidelity Printers and Refiners, and commercial banks
- Services supplied outside Zimbabwe to foreign head offices by Zimbabwean branches or to nonresident persons that are outside Zimbabwe when they are rendered
- Tourism-related services (other than accommodation) rendered by designated tourist facilities, such as hotels, tour operators and car-hire companies
- Intellectual property rights for use outside Zimbabwe
- Certain foodstuffs except rice, margarine, cereals, mahewu, pork, beef, fish, chicken and potatoes, which are now exempt
- Supply of domestic electricity
- Certain goods used for agricultural purposes, such as animal feed, fertilizers, seed, animal remedies, pesticides, plants, tractors and, when exported, specified agricultural implements
- Prescription medicines
- Building bricks
- Goods used by disabled persons
- Fixed charges on commercial and domestic electricity
- Supply of pipeline transportation services
- Livestock

The term "exempt supplies" refers to supplies of goods and services that are not liable to VAT and that do not qualify for input tax deduction.

Examples of exempt supplies of goods and services

- Local supplies of financial services (as defined) including services supplied by banks, building societies and insurance companies, but excluding the supply of short-term insurance by insurance agents or brokers
- Medical services
- Educational services by institutions registered under the ministry of education or higher education
- Transport of fare-paying passengers by railway or road
- Supplies of donated goods or services by nonprofit (charitable) bodies
- Supplies of immovable property located outside Zimbabwe
- Rental of residential accommodation

- Staff accommodation
- Water supplied through a pipe for domestic use
- Owners' rates charged by a local authority (a levy charged by a local authority based on the value of property)
- Commission charges on tobacco sales on auction floors
- Tobacco supplied on auction floors
- Sale and import of leaf tobacco
- Most fuel and fuel products
- Revenue arising from the operation of a temporary casino license in accordance with the terms of the lotteries and gaming act
- Protective farming clothing, including gumboots, raincoats and gloves used for agricultural purposes
- Eggs, vegetables, fruits, rice, margarine, lactose and mahewu (including cereals, pork, beef, fish, chicken and potatoes, as explained above)

Option to tax for exempt supplies. Option to tax for exempt supplies is not allowed in Zimbabwe.

E. Time of supply

The time when VAT becomes due is called the "time of supply." In Zimbabwe, the basic time of supply is the earlier of the following:

- The issuance of an invoice by the supplier or the recipient with respect to the supply
- The receipt of a payment of the consideration by the supplier with respect to the supply
- In the case of supply of an immovable goods, at the time the recipient takes possession of said goods
- In the case of a supply of a movable good, at the time of its removal from the place of sale
- In case of a supply of a service at the time the service is performed

Other time of supply rules apply to various situations, such as change of use, repossessions, betting transactions and lay-by sale agreements (the purchaser makes partial payments over time, and when a predetermined amount has been reached, the goods are released to the purchaser).

Deposits and prepayments. The time of supply for prepayments is the date when payment is received. If deposits form part of the consideration, the time of supply is when the deposit is paid or received. The time of supply for a deposit may be delayed if the supply of goods or service is conditional.

Continuous supplies of services. The time of supply for periodic supplies is the earlier of the date on which the payment is due, the date on which payment is received or the date on which an invoice relating only to that payment is received.

Goods sent on approval for sale or return. The time of supply is dependent on the "cooling off period" under the agreement of sale. If goods are returned during a cooling off period, there is no supply. The date of decision to buy during the cooling off period is the time of supply. If goods are not returned, the time of supply is on the day the cooling off period expires.

Reverse-charge services. Reverse-charge services are not provided for in the VAT law. The reverse charge is not applicable in Zimbabwe, as imported services are taxed directly. As the VAT due on imported services is accounted for by way of the reverse-charge mechanism (i.e., the customer self-accounts for the VAT), the tax point for imported services is the earlier of the receipt of the invoice or receipt of payment.

Leased assets. No special time of supply rules apply for supplies of leased assets. As such, the normal time of supply rules apply (see above). However, certain lease transactions are covered under instalment or credit payments or rental agreements.

Rental agreements. The time of supply for rental agreements is the earlier of the date on which the payment is due or the date on which payment is received.

Installment credit agreements. For installment credit agreements, the supply is deemed to take place at the earlier of when the goods are delivered or when a payment of the consideration is received.

Immovable property. The time of supply for the supply of immovable property is the earlier of the date on which the change of ownership is registered in the deeds office or the date of receipt of a payment of the consideration. Otherwise, it is deemed to be the date of signing of the sale agreement. If the sale is made by deed of sale, VAT is payable on the installments as and when they are paid.

Imported goods. The following are the time of supply rules for imports:
- Imported goods that require direct clearance for home consumption under the customs and excise act: when the goods are cleared
- Goods that are imported and entered into a licensed customs and excise bonded warehouse: when the goods are cleared from the warehouse for home consumption
- Imported services: the earlier of the date on which an invoice is issued and the date on which a payment is made by the recipient with respect to the supply

VAT deferment. Deferment of VAT payment for a period of up to 90, 120 or 180 days from the date of importation is available with respect to plant, equipment and machinery (other than road motor vehicles in most cases) that is imported and used exclusively for mining, manufacturing, industrial, agricultural, aviation or health purposes.

To qualify for this deferment, the value of such imported plant, equipment and machinery must be USD100,000 – USD1 million (90 days), USD1-10 million (120 days), or more than USD10 million (180 days) up to 31 December 2019.

Supplies between related persons. The following are the times of supply for supplies of goods and services between related persons:
- Supply of goods: when they are removed or made available to the purchaser or recipient of the goods
- Supply of services: when the services are performed

F. Recovery of VAT by taxable persons

A registered operator may claim input tax (that is, VAT charged on goods and services supplied to it for business purposes) by deducting it from output tax, which is VAT charged on supplies made. Input tax may be deducted if all of the following conditions are satisfied:
- The expenses are incurred in the making of taxable supplies
- The claimant has a valid tax invoice or bill of entry (imports)
- The claiming of input tax deduction is not specifically prohibited by the VAT Act

Input tax includes VAT charged on goods and services purchased in Zimbabwe and VAT paid on imports of goods and services.

In addition, a registered operator claims a deduction of the 1/3% VAT withheld by designated value-added withholding tax agents upon payment by the agents to the registered operator for supplies of goods and services.

Nondeductible input tax. Input tax may not be deducted with respect to purchases of goods and services that are not used for taxable purposes (for example, goods or services acquired for private use by an entrepreneur or for the purposes of making exempt supplies). In addition, input tax recovery may be prohibited for certain specified business expenses.

Examples of items for which input tax is nondeductible

- Initial purchase of passenger motor vehicles as defined in the income tax act
- Fees or subscriptions paid by registered operators with respect to memberships in clubs, associations or societies of a sporting, social or recreational nature
- Amounts with respect to goods or services acquired for the purposes of business or staff entertainment (subject to certain exceptions)
- VAT payable on exports of unbeneficiated hides and unbeneficiated platinum

Examples of items for which input tax is deductible (if related to a taxable business use)

- Maintenance costs of passenger motor vehicles
- Purchase, hire and maintenance costs of non-passenger motor vehicles, such as vans and trucks
- Expenses incurred by registered operators in the making or importation of taxable supplies, such as trading stock, raw materials, administration expenses and marketing costs

Partial exemption. VAT directly related to purchases with respect to the making of exempt supplies is not recoverable as input tax. A registered operator that makes both exempt and taxable supplies (mixed supplies) cannot recover input tax in full.

In Zimbabwe, if VAT relates to the making of both exempt and taxable supplies, deductible input tax is determined using a two-stage calculation, which is described below.

Direct attribution. For direct expenses, the first stage is to identify expenses incurred in making taxable supplies and those incurred in making exempt supplies. VAT paid on expenses incurred in making taxable supplies is deductible as input tax while VAT paid on expenses incurred in making exempt supplies is not deductible.

Apportionment. For overheads, the turnover method or another apportionment method acceptable to the ZIMRA must be used to allocate the VAT between taxable supplies and exempt supplies. Input tax related to taxable supplies is deducted, while input tax related to exempt supplies is not deducted. If taxable supplies exceed 90% of the total supplies made by a registered operator, all of the VAT incurred by the registered operator is deductible as input tax.

Capital goods. Capital goods are defined in Zimbabwe as any asset, or any component of any asset, which is of a character granted capital allowances in terms of the Income Tax Act. Input tax incurred on capital assets used exclusively to produce taxable supplies is claimable in full. Where capital goods are used to produce exempt supplies and taxable supplies, input tax claim shall be determined using the ratio of exempt/private use to taxable supplies. The input tax amount shall bear the ratio of intended use of the goods. If goods are used for more than 90% to produce taxable supplies, they are regarded as having been acquired or used wholly for the purpose of making taxable supplies.

Refunds. If the amount of input tax recoverable in a tax period exceeds the amount of output tax payable in that period, a refund of the excess may be claimed. ZIMRA must pay interest at the prescribed rate if it does not process and pay the refunds within 30 days after the date on which the relevant return is submitted.

Before a refund is paid, the refund amount is applied against any tax, levy, interest, or penalty payable by the registered person under the VAT Act the customs and excise act, the income tax act and the capital gains tax act.

Pre-registration costs. VAT incurred on goods and services prior to VAT registration is claimed as input tax deduction in the month of VAT registration if such goods and services are still on hand and used for making taxable supplies. In the case of stocks and consumables, input tax deductions can be made only if they were purchased not more than six months prior to date of registration of the operator. Furthermore, costs incurred six months prior to incorporation of a company or in connection with the incorporation of a company qualify for input deduction provided the goods and services were acquired solely for the purpose of a trade to be carried on by the company, and the purchaser is reimbursed by the company for the whole amount of the consideration for the goods and services.

Write-off of bad debts. A taxpayer is permitted to claim relief for the VAT on bad debts. The taxpayer is required to satisfy the Commissioner that they have taken all reasonable steps to collect the bad debt without success. The amount should be included in the prior period VAT returns and should still be due to the taxpayer.

Noneconomic activities. VAT incurred on nonbusiness/noneconomic activities is not recoverable. The VAT Act allows for recovery of input tax on goods and services used to produce taxable supplies only. Nonbusiness/noneconomic activities are not within the scope of taxable supplies.

G. Recovery of VAT by non-established businesses

Non-established businesses can recover VAT incurred in Zimbabwe, through their agents in Zimbabwe.

H. Invoicing

VAT invoices. A registered operator must provide a VAT invoice to the recipient for all taxable supplies made within 30 days after the date of supply. In certain circumstances, subject to ZIMRA approval, the recipient of goods and services issues the VATVAT invoice to the supplier. The VAT Act requires invoices to be issued through fiscal devices linked to the Revenue Authority online.

All VAT-registered taxpayers are required to install (at the time of registering for VAT) electronic registers or electronic signature device, with prescribed specifications to record taxable transactions. 50% of the cost of acquiring these prescribed, "fiscalized" electronic registers is deductible from VAT payable. The law requires transmission of sales data online to ZIMRA through a server-to-server connection.

Credit notes. A credit note may be used if the output tax accounted for exceeds the output tax properly chargeable with respect to a particular supply. A debit note may be used if the output tax properly chargeable with respect to a supply exceeds the output tax accounted for.

Electronic invoices. Electronic invoicing is not allowed in Zimbabwe.

Simplified VAT invoices. Simplified VAT invoicing is not allowed in Zimbabwe. As such, full VAT invoices are required.

Self-billing. Self-invoicing is allowed in Zimbabwe, subject to approval by Commissioner. Self-billing may apply to the following:
- Supplies of commodities
- Supplies made within the mining sector

For such supplies, the customer is required to self-account for the VAT due, by way of the domestic reverse charge (se subsection Domestic reverse charge above). It is also allowed to self-bill for the supplies made, as it is only the purchaser who can exactly quantify what and how much has been supplied, due to the nature of the supplies and sectors in scope.

Proof of exports. Exports can be classified as direct or indirect exports.

Direct exports arise if the registered operator is responsible for consigning or delivering the goods to an address in an export country. These exports can be zero-rated if the documentary requirements are met.

Indirect exports arise if the registered operator does not consign the goods to an address in an export country but instead delivers them to the purchaser that is responsible for taking them out of the country. The registered operator must satisfy ZIMRA that it will comply with all exchange-control regulations relating to the export of goods. If ZIMRA is satisfied that the goods were not taken out of Zimbabwe, the seller of such goods is liable to VAT at a rate of 15%.

If requested by ZIMRA, to prove that the supplies are entitled to the zero rate, the registered operator must furnish ZIMRA with all documents that evidence that the goods were exported. Emphasis is now on actual evidence that the goods were exported. The required documents are as follows:
- Tax invoice
- Debit and credit notes
- Sales agreement
- Lease agreement
- Contract document
- Export documents bearing a ZIMRA stamp at the point of exit
- Other receipts if applicable
- Other documents acceptable to ZIMRA

Foreign currency invoices. Zimbabwe's functional currency is the Zimbabwe RTGS dollar (introduced on 20 February 2019). With effect from 1 January 2019, VAT is paid using the currency received from the customer. In cases where another currency other that the USD is used, international cross rate is used to determine the USD equivalent. Invoices may be issued in any currency. However, payments to the Revenue Authority in case of other foreign currencies other than USD should be converted to USD at international cross rate.

Supplies to nontaxable persons. No VAT invoice is required for supplies to nontaxable persons unless requested by the purchaser. However, all VAT-registered taxpayers are required to install fiscal devices at all points of sale.

Records. The following records should be maintained:
- A record of all goods and services supplied by or to the registered operator showing suppliers or agent in sufficient detail
- A record of all importations of goods and documents relating thereto
- The charts and codes of account, the accounting instruction manuals and the system and program documentation
- Any documentary proof required to be obtained and retained

Record retention period. VAT records must be held for a period of six years. In cases of fraud or misrepresentation the Revenue Authority may open the record retention period beyond six years. The Companies Act provides that records should be retained for eight years.

Electronic archiving. Electronic archiving is not allowed in Zimbabwe. Taxpayers are required to maintain physical archiving (i.e., paper, computer print outs).

I. Returns and payment

Periodic returns. All registered operators with annual taxable supplies in excess of RTGS1 million have a monthly tax period.

Prior to 31 December 2019 returns were filed on a monthly or bimonthly basis. From 1 January 2020 returns are filed on a bimonthly basis.

For monthly returns there is one category – C. For bimonthly returns, there are two categories — A and B. Category A is the two months starting with an odd number and ending with an even one, e.g., December/January. Category B is the two months starting with an even number and ending with an odd one, e.g., January/February.

The threshold for category A and B is RTGS1 million. For category C the threshold is RTGS4 million. At the time of preparing this chapter, taxpayers are filing monthly returns until more guidance is issued from the tax authorities for bimonthly returns.

VAT returns must be filed by the 25th day of the month following the tax period. If the due date falls on a Saturday, Sunday or public holiday, the due date is the last business day before the 25th. With effect from 1 November 2016, designated VAT agents are to submit value-added withholding tax returns by the 15th day of every month.

Periodic payments. Payment of VAT is due in full by the same date as the VAT return filing deadline (see above).

Zimbabwe uses multiple currencies. With effect from 1 January 2019, VAT is paid using the currency received from the customer.

Subject to application to the Commissioner, an extension may be granted for the payment of tax deadline. However, interest at the rate of 10% per annum is charged.

Electronic filing. VAT returns must be submitted online.

Payments on account. The law does not specifically provide for payments on account. However registered operators may apply to the Commissioner for specific payment terms. Interest at 25% is charged for payments received after due date.

Special schemes. No special schemes are available in Zimbabwe.

Annual returns. Annual returns are not required to be filed in Zimbabwe.

Supplementary filings. No supplementary filings are required in Zimbabwe. However, VAT returns can be amended within the six-year prescription period. In case of additional tax payable interest at 10% is charged.

Digital reporting. Real-time transactional reporting. All VAT-registered taxpayers are required to install (at the time of registering for VAT), electronic registers or electronic signature device, with prescribed specifications to record taxable transactions. 50% of the cost of acquiring these prescribed, “fiscalized” electronic registers is deductible from VAT payable. The law requires transmission of sales data online to ZIMRA through a server-to-server connection. Therefore, all transactions are transmitted to the ZIMRA on a real-time basis.

J. Penalties

Penalties for late registration. A person becomes liable to pay tax from the time that person first becomes liable to be registered. A penalty of up to 100% of the amount of VAT and 25% interest thereon is assessed for the period interval when the person first became liable to be registered and the late-registration date.

Penalties for late payment and filings. A penalty is imposed for late payment of VAT at a rate of up to 100% of the outstanding tax for each month. Additional tax equal to 100% of the relevant tax may be levied in cases of fraud.

With effect from 1 January 2019, the VAT Act is amended to allow payment of the principal amount first before payment of penalty and interest. Interest is charged on outstanding tax at a rate of 10% per year.

For late submission of VAT returns, a civil penalty of USD30 per day per tax return is imposed. Those daily penalties continue during the first 91 days that each return is in default. If the person continues to be in default after the 91 days, he or she shall be guilty of an offense and liable, on conviction, to a fine not exceeding level 14 (USD5,000) or imprisonment for a period not exceeding five years or to both the fine and imprisonment.

Penalties for errors. A civil penalty of up to USD25 per point of sale per day is charged for failure to use prescribed "fiscalized" electronic registers. A similar penalty is imposed on approved suppliers of electronic signature devices and fiscalized or non-fiscalized electronic registers who fail to supply them within six weeks of an order with payment in full.

Fines, imprisonment or both may also apply to various other offenses, including making false statements and obstructing a revenue officer.

Failure to pay in the prescribed currency will result in a penalty double the amount payable. Failure to pay the penalty will result in a civil penalty of USD30 per day that the penalty remains unpaid up to 181 days.

Penalties for fraud. Any person or agent who with intent to evade the payment of tax or obtain a refund that they are not entitled to, is liable for any of the following actions:

- Makes or causes or allows to be made any false statement or entry in any return
- Prepares or maintains or authorizes the preparation or maintenance of any false books of accounts or authorizes the falsification of records
- Gives any false answer to any request of information
- Make use of any fraud or false statement
- Issue erroneous or incomplete invoice, credit and debit note

They shall be guilty of an offense and liable to a fine of level 12 (USD3,000) or imprisonment not exceeding two years.
